Negro Is Wounded After Quarrel At Altamonte Springs

J. C. Hastings, a negro of Altamonte Springs, shot and severely wounded Alton Smith, another negro, last night about 1:00 o'clock in Altamonte Springs, Sheriff C. M. Hand revealed today.

Smith was rushed to the Fernand Laughton Hospital where he was reported "resting easily" late today.

Hastings was arrested by Deputy Jack Hickson who investigated the case.

Mr. Hickson said that the shooting was the aftermath of a quarrel during which Smith was reported to have slapped Hastings when Hastings threatened to kill him.

Leaving Smith standing in front of a store in Altamonte Springs, Hastings was said to have gone to the home of a grower about four miles away where he got a pistol out of the grower's car and returned to the place he had left Smith.

As soon as he came close to Smith, Hastings was said to have fired, wounding Smith in the shoulder. Smith grappled with Hastings and wrested the pistol from him. Later he gave it to his brother who turned it over to Mr. Hickson.

Hastings was placed in jail pending developments in Smith's condition.

Hull Asks Americans To Assist International Recovery

By Associated Press
Japanese planes twice raided Canton today and it was feared casualties might be even greater than those of last Saturday's raid when 750 were killed and 1,350 wounded.

The unpredictable Chinese-Japanese war today provided one of the strangest spectacles in the strangely disordered world as six Chinese junks, rigged out in armor plate, figured in a naval engagement with the Japanese.

They attacked no mighty warship, only a patrol boat off the south China coast. However, a Japanese naval spokesman conceded: "This amounts to an extension of guerilla activities to the sea," and added "we are prepared to cope with it."

United States Secretary of State Hull was moved last night in a speech at Nashville to call on American people to support a program to replace "international anarchy" and "savagery" with "order under law."

He said he was willing to join other nations in steps to restore international economic order, "humanize" warfare, and reduce armaments.

Japanese land forces reported further success in a westward drive along the Lungshai railway to open a push against Hankow.

A week of war in Spain ended with the insurgents virtually halted in a struggle to widen the breach in government territory and capture Castellon de la Plana and Valencia.

Their small gains were reported to have been made at an estimated cost of $100,000,000.

Growers Seek Government Control Of Celery Acreage

A petition requesting government control of the celery acreage over the United States and payment of $50 per acre for all celery land left idle by growers is being circulated in this area and is receiving favorable response. The growers are favoring control of the acreage rather than the control of shipments as provided under the marketing agreement under which the industry in this state operated during the past season.

The petition, after it has been signed by as many growers as care to sign, will be sent to Florida's representatives in Washington. The petition asks for the "protection of the celery industry of Florida under the Agricultural Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act."

"We believe that in protection of the celery industry under the said act, a provision should be made which will give us compulsory celery acreage control under the act for tobacco and cotton," the petition reads.

"We further believe that the government should pay to each of the growers a sum of not less than $50 per acre for any portion of his celery lands left idle under the conservation plan," the petition continues.

"We request a prompt investigation of the industry in Florida with the view of immediately placing the industry under the Agricultural Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act."

$27,462.39 Is Collected By Jinkins In May

Tax Collector Reports $217,657.38 Paid For 71 Percent Of Tax Roll For 1937

Collection of State and County taxes during the month of May totaled $27,462.39 bringing to the total tax collections on the 1937 tax rolls to $217,657.38, County Tax Collector Jno. D. Jinkins reported today.

Although $217,657.38 is credited on the books for payment of taxes since last November, only $112,019.65 have been added to the State and County coffers since a total of $5,637.69 has been deducted as discounts allowed for early payments. The collections to date represent 71 percent of the total amount of taxes assessed for 1937, Mr. Jinkins stated.

Contributing largely to mounting the tax collections for May was the payment of $13,511.80 by the Atlantic Coast Line, the Florida, East Coast and the Southern Airlines have paid approximately 50 percent of the taxes assessed against them by the State Railroad Assessment Board, Mr. Jinkins said.

Payment of the remainder of their taxes is being withheld pending the outcome of a hearing in the courts for which they have appealed. The railroads claim that the assessed valuation of their property as set by the State board is too high. The State Comptroller, Attorney General, and the Treasurer consult the Railroad Assessing Board.

Intangible personal property tax collections are slightly higher than for real taxes, Mr. Jinkins reported, adding that to date collections totaled 84 percent of the amount which was assessed. Delinquent intangible personal property taxes are a lien against real estate and tangible property until paid, Mr. Jinkins declared.

Mr. Jinkins stated that he is now preparing to advertise as delinquent all real estate on which taxes are assessed and remain unpaid and on which there are no outstanding State tax certificates for 1932 or subsequent years.

However, Mr. Jinkins declared, any real taxes may be paid until June 10 without payment of penalties as provided by law. After that date he said, advertising costs must be paid at the rate of 10 percent for the first year, 10 percent thereafter, Mr. Jinkins said, adding that these rates are fixed by law.

Schools Close To End Studies For 1,500 Students

Pupils Are Asked To Call For Report Cards On Friday

Schools of Seminole County closed their doors yesterday afternoon and approximately 1,500 students finished another school year. Carefree students, with books tucked under their arms, left schools behind their only thought being the three months of vacation that stretched out ahead.

At the schools, however, teachers and administrators will continue to pour over records and plan through files for another two weeks, seeking to bring the mass of data, records and reports for the 1937-38 terms up to date. Also at the high school a class of nearly 90 seniors remain to present themselves as candidates for graduation at the exercises to be held in the auditorium Monday night.

The graduates, according to Prof. R. E. Kipp, principal of the Grammar School, have spent collectively a total of 64,000 days in classrooms during their first four years of high school. In this period their instructors recorded 1,800 grades for them while through the elementary grades these students attended classes a total of 115,000 days and their instructors recorded 4,720 grades.

During the 12 years of their study this group has attended school a total of 180,000 school days and in the files are recorded 6,120 grades. These grades for many in the class are the final scholastic records as graduation Monday night will mark the end of their formal schooling.

Instructors will continue in the classrooms and the final reports for students will be completed the latter part of next week and students of the Sanford Grammar School, Junior High and Seminole High Schools have been asked to report at their respective schools between 9:00 and 12:00 A. M. next Friday to obtain their report cards.

Testimony Offered By State Counsel In Flogging Case

BARTOW, June 4.—(AP)—The State started offering testimony today in its effort to prove five former Tampa policemen had named Eugene F. Poulton, one of the victims of the 1935 Tampa flogging case.

The seventh juror, Guy Thompson of Willow Oak, phosphate miner, was agreed upon after 197 veniremen had been summoned in a week long attempt to choose a jury. A six-man jury had been completed two days ago but it was necessary to qualify an alternate in the event one of the jurors became incapacitated during the trial.

The court was recessed soon after the jury was completed for lawyers to look up authorities to bolster arguments after Chief Defense Attorney Pat Whitaker objected to Assistant Prosecutor Wallace Shaffer's opening statement to the jury.

Although Jefferson's Declaration of Independence was adopted on July 4, 1776, the colonies had adopted the resolution of independence July 2.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—The Senate beat down yesterday an attempt to relieve West Virginia, Florida and Georgia from the necessity of providing 55 percent of the cost of projects undertaken by the Public Works Administration.

Without a record vote, senators killed a relief bill amendment by Senator Neely, Democrat, West Virginia, authorizing the PWA to allot the entire cost of projects in states and subdivisions where constitutional limitations prevent local contributions toward the cost.

Neely said West Virginia, Florida and Georgia, whose constitutions prohibit issuance of state bonds, would be the principal beneficiaries.

Senator Adams, Democrat, Colorado, floor manager of the relief bill, objected on the ground it would be unfair to other states. Nor would he withdraw his objection when Senator Andrews of Florida proposed to limit the allotments to the amount the state would receive if the 45 percent grant limitation applied.

James Cash Is Resigned To Death Of Son

Father States Conviction That Kidnapers Eventually Will Be Captured

Cash Is Visited By Edgar Hoover

Over 150 Volunteers And Officers Begin Search For Child

PRINCETON, Fla., June 4.—(AP)—His shoulders bent and his eyes bloodshot, James R. Cash today emerged from his home today expressing resignation to the death of his only child and a conviction that the kidnapers would be caught.

Appearing briefly on the porch of his home, Cash was asked whether he thought the kidnaping would be solved.

"Yes, I think so, as far as catching the fellow who did it is concerned," he replied dejectedly. "Once we catch them we will be able to find out what they did with the boy."

"I expect a break within the next week or ten days," he remarked, but declined to amplify the statement beyond indicating he did not expect his son, five year old James Jr., would be found alive.

He said J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, visited him last night for the first time and "naturally" was confident of a solution.

Mr. Cash, who had been under a physician's care, was feeling "some better," he added.

Seventy-five volunteers and like number of officers were sent today on what may be the last organized search in south Florida.

The grand prize will be a free trip to the National Model Airplane Meet which will be held in Detroit, Mich., from July 6 through the 9th. British Taxation

Ever since the British government announced a 21 percent increase in its income taxes for re-armament purposes, the belief has been given renewed emphasis that British taxes are much higher than they are in the United States, as if to show that taxes in the United States are not really high. To some extent this belief has been fostered by political interests for many years.

As a matter of fact if the city, county, state and federal taxes, combined, in this country are compared with the same local and national taxes, combined, in Great Britain, we pay a considerably larger portion of our income for taxes than our English cousins. Furthermore, the fact should not be overlooked that the British are paying all of their expenses out of taxation; whereas in this country the government spends about twice as much as it taxes produce, raising the rest by borrowing.

We are indebted to Dr. John T. Gebhart, director of research for the National Economy League (not to be confused with the Liberty League or any partisan organization) which shows just how British and American taxes compare. When the politicians point out that British taxes are higher than they are in the United States, there is certainly some truth in the statement, if they mean only income taxes and have no reference to other forms of taxation.

Furthermore, there is some truth to the statement, if the politicians mean that British taxes are higher on a per capita basis. The United States with more than twice the population of Britain actually collects a little less from each person, though the total amount collected is more than twice as much as the total amount in Britain. The per capita tax in Britain is $92.28; in this country $61.87.

That is all the truth there is to the popular conception fostered by persons with axes to grind that English taxes are higher than American. They do not tell you that in the United States the average man and the poor man pay a larger share of the total taxes, than the average man or poor man in Britain, and they do not tell you that if you include the taxes levied by local governments, our taxes are more than twice as high as theirs.

For instance, taking an average of taxes collected in recent years this country raised $9,368,000,000, of which 69.8 percent was by local governments. England during the same period of time collected on the average $4,276,581,300, of which only 19.5 percent was in local taxation. Thus it is seen that in Britain local taxation is a relatively insignificant item, while in this country it is considerable, and that our total tax bill is more than twice that in Britain.

In this connection it is interesting to note the ratio of British income taxes to American income taxes, especially when we keep in mind that only about three million persons of the wealthier classes in this country pay any income tax at all. In British income taxes produce 63.1 percent of the total national budget; in this country the same type of taxes produce only 15.7 percent of the total taxes collected by the federal government. Thus in Britain income taxes represent more than half of all it spends; and in the United States income taxes represent only a little more than 15 percent of all its tax collections, which in turn are only half of what is spent.

Furthermore it is only fair to show that in Britain excise and sales taxes which fall on the total population, even the poorest classes, amount to only $783,539,000 or 30 percent of the total; whereas in this country the same type of taxes collected from every man who buys cigarettes, gasoline, and so forth, amount to $1,689,216,000, or 63.2 percent of all the taxes collected by the federal government.

And so that statement that British taxes are heavier than American should be taken with a grain of salt. Even if the statement were true, it is only a half truth because the government spends twice as much as it raises by taxation whereas in England there is a balanced budget. And even if it could be shown that taxes in any country of the world are higher than they are in this country, we doubt if this is a goal which we should try to achieve.

Sanford's Prospects

If we want to look for them there are plenty of gloom clouds on the horizon. Certainly the world picture is not a bright one, with major wars being fought in the Eastern and Western Hemispheres, with insurrection threatening in many places, with dictators under strange banners menacing the peace of other people, and with a thousand and one crack-pot economic and political theories abroad in every land.

But locally, despite the very discouraging celery season, there are unmistakable signs of renewed life. A drive in almost any direction of the city will reveal new construction under way. The much-delayed home-building activity has at last begun and the sound of the carpenter's hammer and saw can be heard almost any time of day in widely scattered areas.

In the center of town, modernization of McCrory's Store into one of the finest stores of its type in Florida led the way to a small building boom among local business establishments for this Spring and summer. Yowell's store has announced an air-conditioning and renovation program that contemplates the expenditure of over $18,000. W. L. Cooper is making extensive alterations to the "Cooper block," which will see a lot of interior re-decoration and face-lifting to the properties located on the southeast corner of Park Avenue and First Street. On the corner of Oak Avenue and First Street, a new building is being erected to house a new business concern.

Reports are prevalent but unconfirmed that other major properties on First Street will undergo extensive alterations pending financial arrangements, and acceptance of architectural plans. All in all, it is seen as though Sanford will have its busiest summer in many seasons.

With work advancing rapidly on Fort Mellon Park, with new homes being erected, and with local stores being remodelled and new ones built, Sanford merchants stand to get a good share of the money being turned loose and to get through the summer without too much difficulty, all things considered.

CANDLELIGHT

By NINA OLIVER DEAN

"What's he to do when he gets knocked down? Why, take it for his share and go on!"

Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings' new book, "The Yearling," is distinguished not only by the beauty of the setting in the Florida wilderness but by the ease of courage of Penny Baxter, who lived by his philosophy, that when life knocked you down, you took it for your share and went on. "The Yearling," a book of the Month Club selection, is the story of a year in the lives of the Baxter family in their cabin in the clearing in the midst of a sea of Florida scrub. There is "Penny" Baxter, who for all his being no bigger than a "leetle of penny size" is stout of heart and the mightiest hunter in the county, his wife, capable of hand and tongue sharpened by the bitter sorrow of the loss of small graves in a cleared place among one black jacks, and their only surviving son, Jody, the "yearling," twelve year old with his father's heart and imagination that gives him the ability of seeing even among the hardships glimpses of the beauty of life.

These three live as if in a cottage, ringed around by the forest and the wild beasts, struggling for existence a life as primitive and full of hardy adventure as that of the American pioneers two hundred years ago. Mrs. Rawlings' style has something of the clarity and directness of the life and people about which she writes. It has too the same beauty of simplicity.

The book runs from April to April. Between its covers, the lavender thimbleberry blossoms after the yellow jessamine of March followed by the sweet bay and the magnolias of May just as surely as they bloom in the Florida woods. The sharp scent of pine rises from the pages mingled with that of the blue wood smoke from the Baxter's red clay chimney and the onion and sweet potato pines of the Baxter's supper Old Slewfoot, the point outback bear, with one foot missing from his right front foot, has left his tracks in paper just as unmistakably as those he made in the "clearing" by the body of the Baxter's brood sow. The hungry green-eyed wolf pack howls through these chapters; the black masked faces of cougars peer out from the print; Jody's pet fawn with its merry white tail held aloft like a flag bounces over the palmetto, and the mocking birds sing breath-takingly sweet in the wild plum.

Have you ever been drunk on April? Mrs. Rawlings has made that lovely feeling articulate in her description of how Jody felt after a Spring trample in the wood:

"It was true. He was added with April. He was dizzy with Spring. He was drunk on Lem Furcator on a Saturday night. His head was swimming with the song made up of the sun and the air and the blue-gray rain. The flutter-mill had made him drunk, and the doe's coming, and his father's hiding his absence, and his mother's making a pun and laughing at him. He was stabbed with the candle-light inside the safe comfort of the cabin; with the moonlight around it. He pictured old Slewfoot, the great outlaw bear with one toe missing, rearing up in his winter bed and leaving the soft air and smelling the moonlight, as he, Jody, smelled and tasted them. He went to bed in a fever and could not sleep. A mark was on him from the day's delight, so that all his life, when April was a thin green and the flavor of rain was on his tongue, an old word would thrum and a nostalgia would fill him for something he could not quite remember. A whisp'or-will called across the bright night, and suddenly he was asleep."

Mrs. Rawlings can draw a character too as well as paint a background. The reader's admiration and sympathy go out to Penny Baxter who when he was young had "talked until his small bones ached" and now wanted to let his boy "kick up his heels" for awhile because "the day'll come, he'll not even care to." The reader's heart melts with Jody's tenderness for the fawn, something to follow him and as his "something with deer-scent" in "it" and will break with the "yearling" when the fawn has to be shot. new experiments in farming. Needless to say, Young again lost money, and finally paid a farmer $300 to take the job off his hands. His successor made a fortune from the place.

Finishing himself in financial difficulty, Young wrote and sold a book on the subject he knew best but prospered least—animal husbandry. Cheered on by the thought that he might become a successful tiller of the soil, Young took the proceeds from his book's sale and bought another 100-acre farm in Hertfordshire. Again, he failed to make it pay.

Young began to realize he could better tell other people how to farm than farm himself, as he trained the spade for the pen. Volume after volume poured forth: "Essay on Management of Hogs"; "The Farmer's Guide in Hiring and Stocking a Farm"; "Rural Economy"; "A Course in Experimental Agriculture"; "The Farmer's Calendar."

From 1769 until 1771 he wrote his first year netted $5,000. The King praised his work; the Royal Society elected him a fellow. From 1781 until 1815 he turned out the "Annals of Agriculture," a 16 volume masterpiece of advice on farming.

From these writings he bought his greatest farm of all—a 4,000-acre affair in Yorkshire—a 1,400-acre "White Elephant" which he soon disposed of as he had the others. But Arthur Young's triumph came when, in 1793, he was appointed Secretary of the Board of Agriculture set up by Parliament.

Tomorrow! Has a "338" game ever been bowled?

Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings has so identified herself with the "hammock" country of Florida that it is almost a surprise to remember that she is city bred. Born in Washington, D. C. and educated at the University of Wisconsin, she spent several years as a newspaper woman in New York City before coming to live on an orange grove near Hawthorn, Florida. That she has found the life that she prefers is made evident by a letter she wrote to the Tampa Tribune's editor E. D. Lambright which he quotes in his column, "Books and Bookmen": "I admire simplicity and courage; and I despise cities and towns." Sam Spry, the Sanford boy, who is now playing in "Mev and Mrs." told me that he had lunch at Mrs. Rawlings' house the last time he was down from New York. He said that she lived simply, was a wonderful cook, and served a good meal of four and twenty blackbirds that was the delectable dish that was ever set before a king!

Mrs. Rawlings may not care for the cities, but the cities certainly like her books. At the Rollins Animated Magazine in Winter Park, she read 250 of a cosmopolitan audience, the chapter of Penny's trade of the fawn dog for the gun and her husband's set as well as the story of the farmer's story of the bear hunt. At the meeting of the Florida State Historical Society in St. Petersburg, recently, it was interestingly interesting to hear Mrs. Rawlings speak on the use of Florida native materials in her writing, and it was interesting to hear her speak on the use of Florida native materials in her writing, and it was interesting to hear her speak on the use of Florida native materials in her writing.

Mr. Rawlings' style has something of the clarity and directness of the life and people about which she writes. It has too the same beauty of simplicity.

EXILED WINDSORS HAVE FIRST ANNIVERSARY

AIR LINER CARRIES 10 TO DEATH IN OHIO RAVINE—Nine men and a woman, all on board, perished in the crash of a United Air Lines transport plane into a ravine near Cleveland, Ohio, just a few minutes before it was due to land at the airport. Spectators and firemen are shown watching as the wreckage was devoured by flames which broke out as the ship struck earth.

FLOYD ROBERTS WINS INDIANAPOLIS SPEEDWAY RACE—Checkered flags hail Floyd Roberts of Van Nuys, Calif., as the winner as he flashes across the finish line at the end of his 500th mile in the annual Memorial Day race on the Indianapolis Speedway. He set a new record by covering the distance in four hours and 16 minutes at an average speed of 117.200 miles an hour.

WHEN WELTERWEIGHT CROWN CHANGED HEADS, some 20,000 fans in New York saw Henry Armstrong (left) hammer pitilessly at Barney Ross, defending champion, through 15 rounds—at which point a unanimous decision gave Armstrong the world welterweight title. He also holds the world featherweight title. This series shows how Barney Ross, who outweighted Armstrong, managed to stay 15 rounds. Armstrong (1) starts a right to chin; Barney's shoulder (2) deflects blow; the punch (3) slides off, but (4) Barney's legs wobble anyway.

COLOSSAL IN A MUSSOLINI WAY, a thunderous reception, built up near Fushers, about 30 miles from Rome, for the benefit of raising funds for the battle of one hour. # Sanford Theater News for the Coming Week

"DOIN' THE COLLEGE SWING"—Betty Grable and Jackie Coogan do the new dance which has taken the country by storm, the "College Swing," in the picture of the same name, opening tomorrow at the Ritz Theatre. The cast of this campus comedy is headed by George Burns, Gracie Allen, Bob Hope and Martha Raye.

Basis For Musical Is Madcap Life Of College Students

A comedy as light-hearted as its title and as laugh-filled as a cast headed by Burns and Allen, Martha Raye and Bob Hope can make it, opens tomorrow at the Ritz Theatre. It is "College Swing," and in Paramount presents one of the gayest and most colorful musical productions of the season.

College life in its most madcap and "collegiate" aspects forms the background for the piece. A typical American college school, Alden College, is turned upside down when one of the students, Gracie Allen, stands to inherit the entire university due to the provisions of the will of one of her ancestors, as soon as she passes her first examination.

In exchange for a promised cut of the profits, one of the students, sly Bob Hope, prepares Gracie for the great day. Through a hilarious bit of sculduggery she confounds the examiners, and especially one of the trustees, a South American woman having millions played by Edward Everett Horton, by hitting every one of the tricky questions right on the nose. Faced with the inevitable, the authorities turn the college over to the "class dumb-bell."

Under Gracie's administration, Alden College becomes the most hilarious seat of learning ever in sprout on the field of liberal education. Gracie may not have her faculties, but she has her faculty, which includes Bob Hope, Martha Raye and a score of other funmakers. But her feeble-minded career as an educator ends abruptly when Horton's bank, the trustee of the institution, suspects the trickery and takes possession of the place all over again. Gracie is not thwarted by this turn of events, however. She turns her charm full force on the woman-hating Croesus and makes him forget all the nasty things he ever said about the fair sex.

The supporting players of "College Swing," certainly belong on Hollywood's "jean's list." ### A RECORD

Handsome Laurence Olivier, who appears opposite Merle Oberon in "The Divorce of Lady X," Alexander Korda's technicolor comedy, which comes to the Ritz Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday, has an unusual record for an actor. He has never, with one unavoidable exception, gone two weeks without working on either a stage or a film production. The exception was when he had to take time out to mend two fractured ankle bones, injured when he vaulted over a stage banister—and missed!

FAMED LANDSCAPE

American film fans will see the English countryside in its true colors for the first time in "The Divorce of Lady X." Alexander Korda's technicolor comedy which stars Merle Oberon at the Ritz Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday. Buckinghamshire County, home of Korda's Denham studios, and locale of the outdoor scenes in "Lady X," is one of the most picturesque and historically famous counties in England. "The Divorce of Lady X" is released through United Artists.

Shop Girl And Agency Clerk Fall In Love Each Thinking Other Celebrity

Lovers pretending to be social celebrities to impress each other, an irrepressible small brother who plays a clarinet and complicates romance, troubles with a huge St. Bernard dog, mingle in a combination of hilarity, romance and intimate human touches in "Hold That Kiss," coming to the Ritz Theatre next Thursday and Friday.

Maureen O'Sullivan, Dennis O'Keefe, Hollywood's newest romantic leading man, and Mickey Rooney form the principal trio in the comedy of mirth and heart throbs, which Edwin L. Marin, who filmed "Everybody King," directed. The story deals with a travel agency clerk, played by O'Keefe, and a pretty shopgirl, Miss O'Sullivan's role. Attending a society girl's wedding as part of their work, they meet, each assuming the other is a social celebrity. They fall in love. Each tries to maintain the deception to impress the other. An absent-minded millionaire gives them a St. Bernard dog which neither can afford to keep. The heroine's small brother threatens exposure. A borrowed fashionable apartment is in disaster. ## Merle Oberon Is 'Lady X' To Young Love-Sick Lawyer

Several delightful surprises await you at the Ritz Theatre this week where Alexander Korda's merry technicolor comedy, "The Divorce of Lady X," will play Tuesday and Wednesday. Chief of them is the erstwhile comic and tragic Merle Oberon in a gay mood, revealing a new and breathtaking beauty in her (and Korda's) first color film. The lovely star emerges as a splendid comedienne in one of the most charming and spirited comedies this reviewer to behold.

Laurence Olivier, that handsome and talented young actor who scored so heavily in "Fire Over England," appears opposite her and also turns in a great comedy performance. Also among those prominently present are the always welcome Binnie Barnes; Ralph Richardson, whom you saw in "Things To Come" and "The Man Who Could Work Miracles," and who proves himself one of England's finest comedians; and, last, but by no means least, that lovable veteran, Mortimer Snerly, who gives a charming portrayal.

The story, which was based on the play, "Counsel's Opinion," by Lajos Biro and prepared for the screen by Robert E. Sherwood in collaboration with the author, opens with a charity ball in a fashionable Park Lane Hotel. A dance fog prevents the guests from leaving, and there are no accommodations to be had. So they curl up on divans and chairs in the lobby of any place they can find room.

But one beautiful young guest, Miss Oberon, of course, refuses to take no for an answer and boldly invades the suite of a very tired and very handsome young lawyer (Olivier), and demands to be put up. She impudently puts him out of his own bed, steals his pajamas, his book, his breakfast next morning and vanishes, leaving him very much perplexed and very much in love with this charming intruder whom he knows only as "Lady X."

During the morning, one Lord

Mousetrap Salesmen Find Few Mice In Swiss Alps

DELLA LIND—Special interest is attached to the opening at the Ritz Theatre Tuesday of the new Laurel and Hardy feature-length musical extravaganza, "Swiss Miss," due to the fact that this is the picture which introduces to American screen audiences the sensational Viennese singing star, Della Lind.

Mera (Ralph Richardson) calls on Olivier to institute divorce proceedings. From his outline of the case, Olivier reaches the disconcerting but inaccurate conclusion that Merle is Lady Mera and that he himself is the unidentified correspondent. Merle leads him a merry chase and lets him go on believing what he will until she and Lady Mera (Binnie Barnes), meet by accident and Merle confesses the hoax. The angry husband is taken into the joke and lets Merle invite Olivier down to his country estate for the weekend. There the hoax is exposed and Olivier leaves in a huff after denouncing Merle for making game of him. Heartbroken, she pursues him, and persuades him to marry her and all ends happily.

Jim Whelan has treated the production to his usual brilliant direction, the dialogue is smart, the action is fast-paced and the comedy is decidedly funny. The technicolor is very effective and the sets and costumes designed by Lesare Mereson and Rene Hubert, respectively, are eye-filling. Included in the unusual routines are bell-ringing, flag-throwing, the blowing of the huge wooden Alpenhorn and the amazing variations of yodeling. Musically the picture is of marked significance. Its score incorporates folk tunes of infectious rhythm and vocal melodies that carry rare appeal. Interpreting many of these numbers which have the potentialities of song hits, are Della Lind and Walter Wolf King who share the romantic honors of the picture. Miss Lind is a blonde and beautiful Viennese stage and screen star who is making her American debut in this film.

House Members Reject Wages, Hours Proposal

cents an hour. The minimum could not be lowered by any administrative agency created by subsequent legislation. They also adopted a child labor provision prohibiting interstate shipment of commodities manufactured under "oppressive" child conditions.
It was understood the conferees had agreed on a compromise exempting certain industries for geographical or economic reasons. This would tend to mollify Southern opposition which resisted the House version because it contained no differential favoring Southern industries.
The child labor provision outlawing hiring in hazardous industries of children less than 18 years old. In other employment the minimum is fixed at 16 years although the administrative office, probably the secretary of labor, could make exemptions to a minimum of 14 years.
Senate critics of the Administration's spending-lending bill played their ace card yesterday—and lost.
They failed 29 to 43, to tie up $325,000,000 of the measure in such a way as to make sure that the money would be used for specific rivers and harbors and flood control projects.
Administration supporters had fought such "sneaking," declaring the President wanted and should have a free hand to allocate the money. They said that in that way the Administration could mobilize dollars quickly in areas of most severe unemployment.
Critics of the Administration replied that Congress should keep more control over appropriations, especially in view of charges of political rigidity. They said the projects they favored could provide employment quickly.

In Ecuador, a cabinet resigned following a protest to Peru over their places in the army.
In his address at Nashville, Tenn., declared "the most important problem now confronting the human race is that of establishing throughout the world... an unshakable regime of order and law. What is most needed for the accomplishment of this task is persistent and determined effort to bring men to realize that such a regime is essential and to cause them to give full and effective support to the principles and processes of international law."
The Secretary of State said "there is again abroad, in more than one part of the earth, a spirit of international anarchy. Solemn contractual obligations, he said, "are brushed aside with a light heart and a contemptuous gesture. Respect for law and observance of the pledged word have sunk to an inconceivably low level... Armed force, naked and unashamed, is again being used as an instrument of policy and a means of attaining national ends through aggression and appropriation. It is being employed with brutality and savagery that outrages and shocks every honest man."
"In the face of these grim developments, there are some among our people who would have our Nation withdraw into its own shell and isolate itself from the rest of the world. They would have us seek safety and security in a narrow, exclusive, and selfish policy of isolationism."
"I am sure that the American people will not permit such a policy to be adopted by our Government."

Suspects In Cash Kidnap Case Freed

M.F. Braxton And Son Are Given Freedom After Wives Visit Miami FBI Office

Cash, Sr. Says No New Developments

Note Believed From Explorers Dropped To G-Men By Plane

PRINCETON, Fla., June 6.—(AP)—M. F. Braxton and son James, held by federal agents since last Wednesday in connection with the kidnaping of James Bailey Cash, Jr., were released today after their wives called at the Federal Bureau of Investigation to plead for their freedom.

The women emerged from the FBI office near hysterics, reporting the agents had refused to let them see their husbands or give them any word but the un-employed carpenter and his fisherman son turned up here a short time later.

Both declined to make any statement about the case, apparently on the instruction of the G-men.

As far as was known, no possible witnesses remained in custody at the Miami headquarters. Meanwhile, Cash, Senior, re-opened his filling station and lunchroom for the first time since May 28 when his five-year-old son was abducted for $10,000 ransom. He said he had heard nothing new.

A small yellow plane swept low over the FBI field office here this morning. Dropping a note which agents picked up. The plane came from the direction of the islands to the south and presumably brought a message from a handful of men exploring there.

Bad Temper Causes Isolation Of Big Alligator At Zoo

There was a flurry of excitement at the Zoo this morning when attendants tried to transfer a huge alligator from a pool into another only to find the amphibian most unwilling to assist the prespiring attendants.

The gator is extremely vicious and has killed two smaller gators recently and has wounded some of the others in occasional displays of his ugly disposition. Superintendent of Parks James Moughlton said.

Under the circumstances, Mr. Moughlton explained, there was nothing to do but to move the alligator to another pool. Since there was no other pool immediately available, a section of the same pool was partitioned and the gator, which is 13 feet long, was forced into the newly created pool away from the smaller and younger gators.

It took four men about 20 minutes to complete the transfer. Mr. Moughlton said that two deer were received by the Zoo this morning from Orlando and that two were transferred to Winter Garden.

The transfer took place under the direction of James Black, deputy game Commissioner of the State Game Department.

ABANDONS HOPE

Commenting publicly for the first time since his five-year-old son "Skrogie" was kidnaped from his home at Princeton, Fla., James Bailey Cash, Sr. (above), said he and his wife had abandoned all hope of ever seeing their only child alive again. Meanwhile, G-men under the personal direction of FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover are continuing their investigation of the case.

Fans Organize To Back Local Baseball Club

Bradshaw Is Elected President Of New Association At Meeting Today

Following the surrendering of the franchise of the Sanford Lookouts in the Florida State League by Henry Watson last Thursday and the failure to make satisfactory arrangements with C. C. Combs after his arrival here Saturday from Phoenix, Ariz., local baseball enthusiasts met in the City Hall this morning and organized a new association to sponsor the baseball team.

E. K. Bradshaw of Altamonte Springs was named president of the new association which will be known as the Seminole County Baseball Association. In other offices elected were as follows: Rex Packard vice president, Frank Lamson, treasurer, and Ralph Bissett secretary and publicity director.

At the meeting today Mayor Edward Higgins presided and W. Spencer, attorney and baseball fan, acted as secretary. A subscription for funds to pay only the past due salaries of players and delinquent league assessments was started with a bang at the meeting when several fans pledged amounts up to $200 for this purpose. The subscription will be carried throughout the entire county in an effort to secure sufficient funds to pay the deficit of the team after which Sanford's franchise in the state league will be given to the new association by league president Henry L. Gray.

Declaring he did not feel it a safe investment, C. C. Combs stated Saturday that he did not wish to take over the local team but declared he believed it a good civic proposition and offered to handle the affairs of an organization of fans on a salary basis. His offer however was declined.

A board of directors for the newly formed organization is composed of enthusiasts from Sanford and surrounding communities. They are as follows: Mayor Higgins, Walter Coleman, Jackson Lodge, Otto Caldwell, W. C. Hill, T. E. Simpson, J. A. Wright, H. H. Coleman, Robert Strickland, C. H. Eckerson, W. P. Stone, Braxton Perkins, E. F. Housholder, W. G. Kilbee, Joe Linhart, Gus Schmah, Roy Howell, M. H. Smith and Mark Dodd.

A meeting of the directors was called for tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 o'clock to be held in the City Hall and the public has been especially invited to attend this meeting. A desire was also expressed to have fans attend future meetings of the directors which are scheduled to be held monthly.

Mr. Packard announced that Manager Bill "Raw Meat" Rodgers has "lined up" several good players and that the Lookouts roster will probably be changed considerably within a short time.
