Casselberry 'Buys A Lawsuit' Over Off-Site Signs

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

"I don't want to buy a lawsuit," was Casselberry City Councilman Jim Lavigne's reason for opposing the Aug. 31 120-day moratorium by the council banning erecting or using off-site signs for advertising in the city.

But, as of 11:43 a.m. Wednesday, the city had in fact "bought a lawsuit."

The Peterson Outdoor Advertising Corp. has filed suit against the city of Casselberry and city Building Official Frank Broyles because Broyles allegedly "failed and refused to perform his duty" by not issuing the advertising company three requested permits to erect advertising signs along State Road 436. The advertising company said the city's self-imposed ban on issuing permits for outdoor, off-site advertising signs is in "violation of applicable state statutes and regulations."

The company has "commanded" the city and Broyles to "immediately issue building permits for signs" or appear before Circuit Court Judge Kenneth Loeffler at the Seminole County Courthouse in Sanford at 8:30 a.m. Nov. 6 to show cause why the permits should not be issued.

The company submitted three applications for off-site signs to Broyles on Oct. 12. The signs were slated to be erected at 490 SR 436; the east side of SR 436, about a mile north of Aloma Ave.; and the southwest side of SR 436, about 2,000 feet northwest of Red Bug Road, within the city limits. However, the city's moratorium banning the construction of off-site signs does not allow issuance of the permits.

"I have asked that the matter be placed on the agenda for Monday night," Mayor Owen Sheppard said. "I am asking the council to allow City Attorney Ken McIntosh to represent the city in the lawsuit."

Gerald Livingston, a lawyer in Orlando, is representing the advertising company in the suit.

During the Aug. 31 council meeting when the moratorium was imposed, McIntosh warned the council that passage of the moratorium could result in at least three lawsuits against the city. He said passing the resolution will inevitably result in action at the Circuit Court of Seminole County level and, ultimately, the U.S. Supreme Court.

Council members said the moratorium is needed to gain some control over signs erected within the city. A study by Broyles revealed there are currently 28 off-site signs within the city limits and another 20 in a section of the county within the city's jurisdiction.

Review Of Sanford Salaries Requested

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Should the salaries of Sanford's city manager and the city's six department heads be reviewed annually and merit pay raises considered at that time?

Mayor Lee P. Moore thinks they should and has asked his fellow city commissioners to consider the matter for action at the Oct. 26 commission meeting.

"The city manager and department heads sit in a never-never land," Moore said today. "Unless someone on the commission brings their names up, their service never gets reviewed."

"I think they should be reviewed, but that doesn't necessarily mean their salaries should or will be increased," he added. Moore noted that the salaries of other city employees are reviewed annually, and merit step increases granted if their service is considered satisfactory. The salary increase granted with a step advance is 6.3 percent.

The merit increases are in addition to cost-of-living pay raises. All city employees, including the city manager and department heads, received a five percent cost-of-living increase Oct. 1. A second cost-of-living increase, of four percent, is scheduled for April 1.

Total service to the city by the six department heads and the city manager is 156 years.

Their salary range is $21,525 to $32,550. See PAY, Page 3A

Sheriff's Appeal Polk Offers A Surprise Report

By DARLENE JENNINGS
Herald Staff Writer

Speaking before state planning and budgeting officials, Seminole County Sheriff John Polk has told the state County Commission has not given him enough money to fight crime in this county.

Polk appealed his budget to the state Wednesday, seeking a third party to order the county to give him the $330,000 increase he is demanding.

County Administrator Roger Neiswender, one of four county representatives at the hearing, said today state office of Planning and Budget (OPB) Director Glenn Robertson ran an "excellent hearing" and allowed both sides to present their case.

However, Neiswender said the sheriff threw an "unexpected" 50-page report at the county as further evidence as to why he should receive the additional money he asked for above the $579 million budget the county has approved for this year.

The sheriff also was represented by a different legal consultant than the lawyer he had said earlier would be his legal representative.

Polk introduced Glen R. Murphy of Virginia, a member of the National Sheriffs Association, Washington, D.C., to present the report on the "Analysis of Personnel and Organization Requirements of Seminole County." Murphy told the county needs about 118 deputies to adequately patrol this area of the county and that right now the county only has 66 deputies to do the job.

Murphy is a consultant on rule making for law enforcement and an educator on police law and management.

He has also worked for the U.S. Department of Justice and has been a lecturer for several colleges around the country, including the University of Texas and the University of Georgia.

Neiswender said today the county has asked Robertson not to consider this report when making his recommendation to the governor and the cabinet, who are scheduled to consider Polk's appeal on Nov. 3 and reach a final decision the next day.

County Attorney Nikki Clayton, Office of Management and Budget Director Eleanor Anderson and legal representative Mack Cleveland also represented the county.

Ms. Anderson testified that if the sheriff wins the appeal, the county might be faced with paying the sheriff out of the already conservative county contingency fund. The fund currently has approximately $670,000 in it.

Taxpayers Footed Bills For Trip

Six county employees traveled to Tallahassee between Tuesday and Wednesday for Sheriff John Polk's budget appeal hearing in the state capital's Senate Room. And all their travel expenses were paid by the county's taxpayers.

Polk appealed his 1981-82 budget request because, he says, he needs the additional $330,000 the County Commission has denied him. The county originally agreed to give the sheriff $5.7 million, but he says he needs the additional money to fight crime.

So, luggage in hand, county and sheriff's representatives went to Tallahassee Wednesday on an expense account funded by the taxpayers.

According to Pam Hastings, county Office of Management and Budget (OMB) analyst, the state statutes grant county employees a $50-a-day blanket expense account, or the employees may opt to accept their accommodations and meal allotments separately. Whichever plan the employee decides on, however, the end total is still $50. If taken separately, meals are allotted at $21 a day.

According to figures released by the county attorney's office, County Attorney Nikki Clayton, who is co-counsel in representing the county on the appeal, is expected to spend around $207 for her overnight trip to Tallahassee.

This figure includes $100 for airfare,

$34.98 for a rental car, $28 for hotel accommodations at the Tallahassee Hilton, and $33 for meals.

Mack Cleveland, who is also representing the county, also went up to Tallahassee Tuesday, and the cost of his trip is estimated to have been $173. That's slightly less than Ms. Clayton's because he was not expected to rent a car.

However, Cleveland's expense account also includes a $75-a-day fee the county has agreed to give him for legal representation.

Both Ms. Clayton and Cleveland made a previous trip to the capital Sept. 2 to deliver the appeal to the OMB.

The cost of that trip was around $362 for both attorneys representing the county.

A Sept. 30 trip also was planned for Ms. Clayton and Cleveland to study how other sheriffs' appeals were being handled, but it was canceled.

The county attorney's travel-expense budget for 1981-82 is $2,910. Based on travel-expense estimates for the Sept. 2 and Oct. 13-14 trips to Tallahassee, her office has spent approximately $569 of that budget already.

Even though the sheriff also participated in Wednesday's budget hearing his legal representative, lawyer Doug Stenstrom, remained in Sanford.

The county is also, indirectly, paying for Stenstrom's legal advice to the sheriff, said Mrs. Hastings. The county appropriates funds to the sheriff and he has control over how that money is spent.

According to John Spolski, Seminole County Sheriff's Department spokesman, the sheriff went to Tallahassee in his sheriff's car with his department's comptroller, Betty Simcoe, and secretary, Sherry Clark.

Spolski said the sheriff, Mrs. Simcoe and Ms. Clark will be reimbursed for meals, fuel, and hotel accommodations out of the sheriff's budget.

The sheriff's budget is part of the county's total budget, and is supported by county taxpayers at a rate of $5.27 per $1,000 assessed property value.

Mrs. Simcoe said the sheriff also traveled to Tallahassee once during the last two weeks to attend a meeting of the Police Standards Board, of which he is a member. The sheriff also had the opportunity to observe other sheriffs' appeals being heard at the time of this trip, Spolski said.

Other county representatives who attended the sheriff's budget appeal hearing were County Administrator Roger Neiswender and OMB Director Eleanor Anderson.

Neiswender and Ms. Anderson also flew up to Tallahassee — along with Clayton and Cleveland — at a cost of $100 each. They also had accommodations at the Tallahassee Hilton.

Mom's Harrowing Night: 'Have They Killed Her?'

Four-year-old Kelly Erin Chesser of Casselberry had been missing for over 12 hours.

After more than 40 law-enforcement officers and scores of neighbors and friends had searched for Kelly throughout the night Wednesday and early Thursday, her distraught and frightened mother kept trying to imagine where she could be.

It was 7:25 a.m. Kelly had been missing since about 6:30 p.m. the previous day. The thought that someone could have taken Kelly and was hurting her preyed on Carla Chesser's mind.

Police had searched door-to-door at the Squire 1 apartment complex where Mrs. Chesser lives with her daughter, there had been a helicopter search and a search of adjacent apartment complexes, as well as contact with relatives and friends to ask if they had seen the girl. All to no avail.

A United Way Agency

Senior Volunteers Stay Productive

Since 1973 the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) has been a vehicle through which Seminole County senior citizens continue to live a productive life in retirement.

RSVP, a United Way agency, is a volunteer placement bureau that seeks out senior citizens and matches them to needs in the community. It helps men and women 60 and older to become involved in the community through meaningful volunteer work.

During the last year, 325 volunteers provided 64,000 hours of service in Seminole County at 46 agencies and 25 schools. These hours were served at health care facilities, nonprofit community service agencies and governmental agencies.

RSVP is a community program, with the community determining the focus of the projects and sharing in the cost of the operations. It's a flexible program that bends to meet the needs of the community.

For instance, because of budgetary considerations, a delay was experienced in the hiring of a manager for the Senior Center Multi-purpose Center, so RSVP volunteers have been serving as managers at the facility since its opening Aug. 31. Without this help, the Senior Center could not have opened when scheduled. The Task Force on Domestic Violence is preparing to conduct a survey to telephone interviews.

A special RSVP project is the RSVP Christmas Store, which is held annually at the Sanford Chamber of Commerce for 500 or more children, many of whom would face a bleak Christmas without the opportunity to shop for gifts for family members.

Some need assistance, such as transportation, to be able to offer their services. RSVP has three vans that are used to transport the volunteers who can no longer drive. Transportation is provided to 375 volunteers per month. (Some volunteers work at more than one station or more than once a week.) Mileage reimbursements are provided to about 70 volunteers monthly to help defray the cost of transportation to their volunteer station.

RSVP is a cost-effective program, with the average cost per volunteer hour being approximately $1.15.

"We're at a time where RSVP is needed in the community more than ever before. Budget cuts have hurt many agencies. RSVP volunteers have had and will continue to have a tremendous impact on these agencies," says Joan Madison, RSVP director.

"Anywhere a helping hand is needed, RSVP is there," she adds.

Final Showdown Set For AWACS Package

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, struggling to avert a major foreign policy defeat in Congress, is searching for Senate votes in preparation for a final showdown on his proposed Saudi arms deal that includes AWACS radar planes.

By a vote of 301-111 Wednesday, the House passed a resolution opposing the sale of the AWACS and other aircraft equipment to Saudi Arabia, setting the stage for a Senate battle where the fight will be won or lost.

'Rehire Air Controllers'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional report says the federal government will have difficulty rebuilding the strike-rattled air traffic control system and recommends rehiring many of the 11,500 fired controllers.

"The picture for rebuilding the system as a whole is grim," said a staff report released Wednesday by the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

Suit: Hauptmann Framed

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — New Jersey officials held back evidence that would have prevented the execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the 1932 kidnap-murder of the Lindbergh baby, Hauptmann's widow charges in a $100 million suit.

The suit was filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court by Anna Hauptmann, 82, in a final attempt to clear her husband's name before she dies. It charges Hauptmann was deprived of his constitutional rights and "wrongfully, corruptly and unjustly tried, convicted and executed" for the 1932 kidnaping and slaying of aviator Charles Lindbergh's 20-month-old son.

NATIONAL REPORT: Brazos County officials, equipped with only one boat for rescue purposes, braced for heavy rains today on the fourth day of storms that have lashed Texas, killing six people and causing more than $25 million in damages to homes, businesses and crops. The National Weather Service reported a massive storm system, with winds gusting to more than 60 mph, was slicing northeast from San Antonio toward the populous Bryan-College Station area, where Texas A&M University is located. The weather service said scattered showers and thunderstorms would continue through early Friday over all of central and southeast Texas. A downpour of several inches fell Wednesday in Bryan and the rising waters drowned a 15-month-old baby who wandered out of his parents' trailer home. A huge, slow-moving storm, which relentlessly dumped heavy rains in a 200-mile area from Abilene to Gainesville and south to Waco for three days, moved north Wednesday and floodwaters began to recede in north and central Texas. Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown estimated the flooding across north central Texas caused an estimated $25 million in damage to cotton crops alone. Winter wheat and pecan crops were also damaged.

Lone Bandit Gets Unknown Amount Of Cash

Savings And Loan Robbed... Again

By DIANE PETRYK
Herald Staff Writer

Armed with a note and a threat, a man entered the Security First Federal Savings and Loan Association at the Longwood Village Plaza shortly after noon Wednesday, demanded money and escaped with an undetermined amount of cash.

According to police, the robber placed a note on teller Judith A. Ryan's counter that said:

"Don't look around.
"Don't make a sound.
"Give me all the money."
When she attempted to gather up change the robber whispered, "I don't want the change. I want the 100s and the rest of the money. If I hear a sound you'll be the first one I shoot."

Ms. Ryan did not see a weapon, however, police report. After she handed over the money in a white cloth Barnett Bank bag, he retrieved his note and ran out the front door, police said.

Employees of the savings and loan rushed outside to observe the robber's vehicle but did not see him get into a car.

The robber wore sunglasses, a long-sleeved white shirt and dark trousers and was described as a white male, about 5-feet, 4-inches tall, 160 pounds, and 19-20 years of age. He is also said to have black hair and a fair complexion.

There were four employees but no customers in the bank at the time of the robbery, the third in less than a year at the savings and loan according to the branch manager.

The robbery took only about four minutes, police said.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

A 36-year-old Longwood woman was treated and released from Florida Hospital-Altamonte Tuesday after she sustained an accidental gunshot wound.

Barbara Ambrose told police a .38-caliber revolver accidentally discharged while she was holding it. The bullet entered and exited her left ring finger and entered and exited her lower left leg, police said. The shell was found on a bed under the victim.

Mrs. Ambrose's husband, Frank Ambrose was present at the time of the incident. He said they were planning on taking the guns to a shooting range and were cleaning them when the accident occurred.

Ambrose, a former Seminole County deputy sheriff, said the gun was a revolver he purchased for himself for off-duty use. He had been a deputy with the county from December 1975 until July of this year.

He resigned, he said, to start a pressure cleaning business. The sheriff's office has ruled the shooting accidental.

Lake Mary Council To Talk Trash

Representatives of the Superior Sanitation Co. will again request the Lake Mary City Council, at a 7:30 p.m. meeting today, to approve a $1 monthly rate increase for the collection of garbage and trash from city residents.

The Longwood-based firm, operating in Lake Mary under a non-exclusive franchise, was denied the proposed increase by the council two weeks ago. At that time Joseph Ardolina, president of the firm, said the company needs the increase from $7 to $8 monthly because the Seminole County Commission raised dumping fees at the county sanitary landfills Oct. 1 by 50 percent, from $6.50 per ton to $9.75.

Mayor Walter Sorenson and the councilmen chastised Ardolina for trying to collect the $1 increase from city residents before the firm had received approval for the increase from the council, as required by the franchise agreement.

Ardolina countered that his firm only recently purchased the company and was unaware of the regulation. Councilman Vic Olivera dismissed the argument, saying any businessman should check out legal requirements before purchasing a company. Olivera also said he doubted the increase in dump fees is related to the proposed 15 percent rate increase proposed by Superior.

Other councilmen asked Ardolina for financial statements showing the portion of the collection fees directly relating to overhead costs. Sorenson and Councilmen Gene McDonald and Richard Fess said it appeared the company would be making excessive profits from the proposed increase.

In other business, the council will consider a change of zoning, open bids for a portable pump for a fire truck, and appoint persons to fill vacancies on the Board of Adjustment and the Planning and Zoning Commission. Bill Durrenberger, who held posts on both the decision-making board and the advisory body, resigned to run for the council seat held by Ray Fox.

Hans Schwitzer has requested a change in zoning from agriculture and lakefront to planned unit development on the 20 acres north of Lake Bingham, across from Seminole Community College.

Schwitzer said he plans to subdivide the 20 acres into 33 lots. Two weeks ago, adjacent property owners protested the proposal, saying drainage runoff from proposed septic tanks in the project would pollute Lake Bingham. They also said development of the area would cause further traffic congestion on the roads around the community college.

Only one bid has been received on a "skid-mounted firefighting unit" — a pump to be put on a fire truck. Although $5,000 has been budgeted for the pump, Fire Chief Jim Orioles estimated it will cost $4,500. — DONNA ESTES

New England Crime Boss Not Coming To Florida

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — A federal magistrate says ailing Raymond L.S. Patriarca can't be ordered to Florida for arraignment on a racketeering charge because the stress could kill New England's reputed mob boss.

Defense lawyer John F. Cicilline hopes Wednesday's ruling by U.S. Magistrate Jacob Hagopian will convince a Rhode Island judge next week to further delay an unrelated murder accessory trial for Patriarca.

After listening to a full day of testimony from four physicians, Hagopian said it would be "judicial folly" to send Patriarca to Miami in his present medical condition.

Patriarca, 73, of Johnston, was described as suffering from serious medical problems including diabetes, hardening of the arteries, frequent chest pain, irregular heart beat, congestive heart failure and depression.

"My ordering his removal would be a deliberate act of judicial folly...with callous disregard for human life. I will be party to none of it," Hagopian ruled.

"I am convinced beyond doubt that removal of the accused would present a clear and present danger of death given the uncontradicted medical evidence," he said.

Doctors testified Patriarca's health is likely to worsen, not improve.

"The experts speak in one voice — that the precursor to death given the medical condition of this patient — is stress," Hagopian said.

Peoples Temple Members Were CIA Guinea Pigs

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The CIA took part in sinister mind-control experiments on Peoples Temple members in the Guyana jungle prior to the mass murder-suicide ritual of Rev. Jim Jones and 813 cultists, a $63.4 million suit against the federal government claims.

The suit filed Wednesday by cult survivors and relatives of the dead also accused the State Department and other federal agencies of fatal negligence by allowing arms, poisons and drugs to be shipped through Customs to the jungle commune of Jonestown and of not warning of the dangers.

It said Jones, a San Francisco area minister who transported his flock to the "Utopian" agricultural commune, was actually an "employee, servant, agent or operative" of the CIA from 1963 until his death and conspired with the agency to prop up a corrupt Guyanese regime and to run medical and mind-control experiments on cult members.

The suit for personal injury and violation of civil rights charges that former Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and former CIA Director Stanfield Turner participated in a conspiracy with Jones to control temple members who held socialist beliefs.

The plaintiffs have asked for $13.4 million in individual and $50 million in punitive damages. The mass deaths were triggered by the assassination of Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., who was visiting the jungle colony to investigate charges that Jones was using physical and mental abuse to control his flock. He and four others died on a remote airstrip on Nov. 18, 1978.

During the recent trial of temple aide Larry Layton, charged with conspiracy in the congressman's death, testimony concerning the CIA was not allowed to be admitted into evidence by the defense. The case ended in a mistrial and may still be retried.

Wednesday's suit charged the CIA knew "that they had commissioned (Rev.) James Warren Jones to embark upon a plan to control and to ultimately massacre members of the Peoples Temple."

Larry Monk Bagby, Thomas Bogue and Teens M. Turner, wounded in the 1978 attack on Ryan, filed the suit in U.S. District Court, joined by relatives of several cult members who perished in the murder-suicide rite.

"The purpose of this plan was to amass... economic and political power in James Warren Jones so that persons tending toward a socialist perspective would align themselves with James Warren Jones so that he and said defendants could best control these persons," the suit said.

BURGLARS NET THOUSANDS

The burglar of a residence at Crows Fish Camp, Highway 66, kicked out a front door panel and got away with $1,225 in goods belonging to Paul Raymond Thomas, 1121 Sanford Ave., Sanford, police report.

Among items taken sometime between 7:30 a.m. and 11:45 p.m. Tuesday were a stud gun, valued at $150; bows and arrows, $120; a $25 saw; Winchester rifle, $50; Remington shotgun, $320; black and white television, $90; Kenwood stereo receiver $350; a hand sander, $60; and 12 boxes of shells, $60.

In an unrelated incident, a burglary of 519 Dew Drop Cove, Casselberry sometime between 8:30 and 11:30 a.m. Monday netted thieves $5,800 in goods, police report.

Items taken from the Ronald L. Clifford residence included two cameras, $300 in currency, golf clubs, Sony stereo and two speakers, a movie camera and projector, 27 record albums, 20 eight-track tapes, two men's leather coats, one ladies leather coat, a woman's 18-karat gold ring with 30 diamonds, an 18-karat gold men's star sapphire ring with two diamonds, two pair of diamond earrings, three 14-karat gold bracelets, a gold necklace and cross, and an 18-karat gold rope chain.

A burglary of a trailer at Lot 7, Ridge Road, Longwood sometime between 11 p.m. Thursday and 10 p.m. Saturday apparently cost James Arthur of Orlando the music in his life.

In addition to his Yamaha 8-string folk guitar, valued at $100, thieves also took Arthur's AM-FM receiver valued at $450, cassette tape deck valued at $300, one pair of stereo speakers valued at $300, and a Zenith color TV valued at $350, police said.

Burglars had more of a taste for jewelry when they hit the home of Dennis S. Duke, 2550 Tuscaloosa Trail, Maitland.

Seminole County deputies report $1,400 worth of jewelry was taken in the heist sometime between Saturday and 1:28 p.m. Monday.

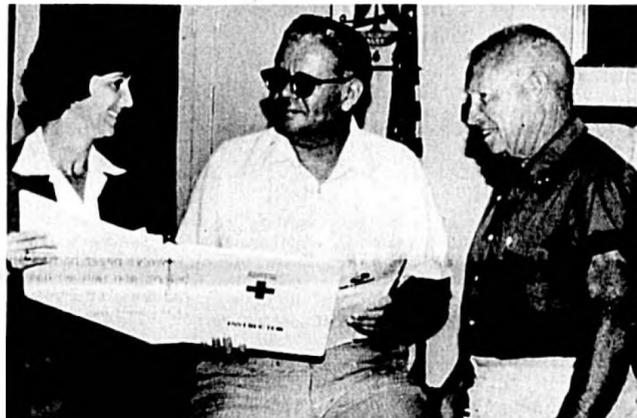

The missing jewelry includes an engagement ring, two wedding bands, a college class ring, one gold and jade ring, one topaz ring and two gold bracelets.

The jewelry was taken from a master bedroom dresser drawer after thieves gained entry to the house via a window on the south side, deputies report.

TENNECO BREAK-IN

An undetermined amount of cigarettes and cash were stolen at approximately 3 a.m. today from the Tenneco Gas Station, 1800 French Ave., Sanford.

The theft was discovered by Sanford police officer Mitch Tindel when he noticed the east front door of the station had been broken.

Franzen will coordinate the canoeing and sailing events on Lake Monroe and Mast will do exhibition diving at the Sharidan Aquatic Center, Longwood. The games will be held in Sanford Nov. 9-14 for men and women 55 years or older.

Iron Bridge Coming In Under Cost

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

Bid contracts totaling $6.7 million were awarded to several construction companies Wednesday by the South Seminole and North Orange County Wastewater Transmission Authority to connect area sewer lines with the Iron Bridge regional sewage treatment plant.

The authority also received a $12 million Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) grant earmarked to fund construction to the plant for Winter Park, Casselberry, Maitland and Seminole County. Winter Springs' request for a $51,000 grant was rejected by the EPA this summer because of the cutback in federal aid.

Winter Springs Mayor Troy Piland said his city needs more sewerage capacity and wants to join Iron Bridge because of the unanticipated growth in the area. While the Seminole County Commission has offered some of its reserve capacity to Winter Springs, Piland said the city hasn't requested capacity from Orlando, owner and operator of the regional plant.

According to Authority Vice Chairman Owen Sheppard, mayor of Casselberry, construction costs are not as expensive as previously anticipated.

"The whole thing is coming in about $5 million less than we anticipated," Sheppard said. "Therefore the user will realize some savings. Individual use bills could be less."

Construction costs are expected to total $9.3 million. The remaining funds could be used to fund Winter Springs' design and construction cost to tie into the regional plant in Oviedo, board members said.

Sheppard said the authority does have one major problem, however.

"With the volatile situation concerning the bond issue, we are looking at the possibility of going to notes (to facilitate sewer connection)," he said. "Bonds are just not real stable right now, and it's something the board has to consider."

Graham announced Wednesday that Ehrlich would succeed Justice Art England, who resigned this summer to return to private law practice.

Just A Heartbeat Away

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — A 13-year-old Daytona Beach boy suffering from a degenerative heart ailment died Wednesday night before he could be flown to Stanford University for a heart transplant that doctors said might have saved his life.

Eighth-grader Terry Cooks, one of eight children, died of rheumatic heart disease at the University of Florida's Shands Teaching Hospital as doctors struggled to stabilize his condition.

Haitians Keep Coming

MIAMI (UPI) — A 28-foot sailboat carrying 63 Haitians — including an infant born at sea — was towed into Bahia Honda State Park Wednesday by a Coast Guard cutter.

Federal officials said the boat, which was towed ashore after being sighted about half a mile off Big Pine Key, left from either Haiti or the Bahamas.

The boatload of Haitians was the second to arrive in Florida since President Reagan ordered the Coast Guard to turn back illegal aliens this week.

Sentences 'Meaningless'

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Attorney General Jim Smith says "gain time" awarded to inmates for good behavior has become meaningless because it is based on judges' sentences that themselves are academic.

"Part of the problem is we're not honest with the public," Smith told the Governor's Advisory Committee on Corrections Wednesday. "A judge is a referee of the trial and that's about it... Their sentences really don't mean anything unless the judges retain (jurisdiction over) a third of it."

2 Busted In Gold Buy

ORLANDO (UPI) — Two Georgia men have been arrested for attempting to buy $1 million in stolen gold from undercover police.

I. C. D. Buchanan of the Metropolitan Bureau of Investigation said the arrests were made Wednesday at a downtown Orlando bank. Charged were Norman L. Simowitz, 47, of Atlanta, and Nathan R. Wolf, 36, of Decatur.

Police Chief Ben Butler, the senior department head in terms of service with 30 years and three months, receives an annual salary of $30,197.28. Butler became chief 17 years ago after working through the ranks, beginning as a patrolman.

Fire Chief William C. Galley, who receives a salary of $24,836.68, also worked his way through the ranks, becoming chief when former Chief George Manning Harriett retired nearly a year ago. He has been employed by the city 29 years and 11 months.

City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles, employed by the city for 28½ years, receives an annual salary of $44,625.

Public Works Director Bob Kelly, with the city for 26 years, receives $26,384.26.

Jim Jernigan, director of parks and recreation, with the city for 20 years and five months, receives a salary of $27,633.23.

Henry Tamm, city clerk and finance director, with the city 12 years, receives $30,487.70.

Mack LaZebny, a state-certified civil engineer who serves as both utility director and city engineer, has been with the city 10 years and receives a salary of $38,356.25. Since he holds a dual position, his salary is above the range set for other department heads.

Moore also is asking his fellow commissioners to look at the salary of City Attorney Bill Colbert, appointed earlier this year and receiving $13,775 annually, and of City Physician, Dr. Russell Shaw, with the city for the past year, who receives $6,106 annually. Both Colbert and Shaw serve part-time.

...'Where Is My Child?'

"your car?" asked Mrs. Chesser's neighbor, Linda Lee, as morning was not serving to make this situation look any brighter.

"No," Mrs. Chesser replies. "But I drove the car around the apartment complex when she first turned up missing."

The two women looked at each other. Mrs. Chesser said they were both thinking the worst.

Then Ms. Lee volunteered to look in the trunk. She watched her slowly walk around to the rear of her 1980 Toyota Corolla and lift the trunk lid.

"All I could see was her eyes widen in terror," Mrs. Chesser said. "Then she stepped back."

"I thought the worst. I thought somebody had done it. They had killed her and stuffed her in the trunk of my car. It was probably the most horrifying moment of the whole night. Linda had put her hand up to her mouth and I almost died."

Ms. Lee then reached into the trunk and picked up a limp body.

But as Mrs. Chesser stared, the little girl started to move. Then she opened her eyes.

She had been asleep. She was unharmed.

"I screamed for joy. It was unbelievable," Mrs. Chesser said. "It was a joyous moment."

After Kelly had awakened enough to be questioned her mother discovered what had happened:

KELLY CHESSER

A neighbor's little dog had been biting at the little girl's pants cuffs her mother explained. To escape the dog, she climbed into the car trunk, which is the type that can be opened without a key. It was chilly, so she pulled down the lid. Then she went to sleep.

"She apparently had slept peacefully there all night," Mrs. Chesser said. "She didn't even wake up when I turned the car on and drove it around. But then she's a pretty dead sleeper."

Mrs. Chesser said she asked Kelly how she got the trunk lid pulled closed. She said she told her there are "two little holes inside" and she stuck her fingers in and pulled down. Mrs. Chesser added she is going to check out the trunk and probably keep it locked from now on. "She obviously got enough air, but if she hadn't fallen asleep she could have been awfully scared," she said.

And although she was up all night, Mrs. Chesser said she is going to stay up "probably 12 more hours, just to sit with her and look at her."

The Sterling Park kindergartener wasn't sent to school today.

"She still doesn't realize anything happened," her mother said. "She wonders why she's not in school."

Mrs. Chesser said throughout the ordeal she had a strong feeling Kelly was all right.

"I'd just envision her walking through the door asking what's for supper," she said. "A couple of times I thought someone might have taken her. When I got most depressed was when I thought someone had her and was hurting her and I couldn't do anything about it."

As a pediatric nurse, Mrs. Chesser said she has seen children when they have been hurt and that made it all the more difficult for her.

She added that the police were "just super," throughout the episode.

She said Kelly's father, who lives in Orlando, was with some of the search teams and said he had a high regard for all the officers who helped out.

"Everyone was so helpful," she said.

"The phone company came out right away to put a tap on the phone. And people who live here — when they heard — they just came out and started helping us search."

UCF Players, Coaches Robbed

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (UPI)—A Coral Gables police detective says four women soccer players from the University of Central Florida and two coaches were knocked out with chloroform and robbed last weekend.

"We've never had an MO (method of operation) like this before, and neither has anybody in the county," Sgt. Earl Callahan said Wednesday. "It put them right out. In fact, one of the girls thought she was dreaming."

The burglars struck early Saturday morning at the Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge in Coral Gables. Coach Jim Rudy, assistant Ray Sandidge and four players lost more than $1,000 in the heist.

The thieves got all the team's travel money, as well as some luggage, two wallets and four purses. Police theorize they got in the rooms by climbing a tree and breaking through balcony doors.

"I feel victimized," Rudy said. "It's a disappointing thing to experience. We were sprayed with ether and cleaned out."

Callahan said the fact some of the victims reported sore throats and grogginess following the incident indicated some kind of chloroform mixture was used.

He said, however, it was not possible to tell if the anesthetic was applied by aerosol or other means. A task force of detectives has been assigned to the case.

"We have no suspects, but it's definitely under active investigation," Callahan said. "This is a matter we're not going to drop."

Ray said he didn't realize he was burglarized until he woke up Saturday morning.

"I thought I'd had a bad dream and was telling Rudy about it when the phone rang," he said. "It was the four girls in the next room. They were hysterical and said their purses were gone."

Rudy said he remembered a "big, Oriental-type figure dressed in black" prowling around his second-floor motel room and trying to wake up. He said police told him he was better off asleep.

Despite the rip-off, the trip wasn't a total loss. The girls went out and beat the University of Miami women's soccer team 3-0 after the burglary.

Radio, TV Kill Will To Whistle

BALTIMORE (UPI) — There's a new reason to worry about today's youth. Radio and television have destroyed their will to whistle, a Johns Hopkins professor says.

Robert Pond was back in the classroom Wednesday, fresh from the International Whistleoff in Carson City, Nev., carrying on his crusade to revive the "lost art" of whistling. The 64-year-old whistler said the reason for his crusade is to make people happy.

"Have you ever tried to whistle when you're unhappy?" he asked. "It's impossible."

Pond, a professor of metallurgy at Hopkins' engineering school, worries that young people aren't taking the time to learn the trills and warbles that are the mark of distinction for a whistler.

"It's much easier to be entertained by radio and television than to put forth a little effort and whistle," Pond said. "Whistling also involves recall, something that young people aren't drilled in anymore."

Pond, who learned to whistle while listening to mockingbirds in his childhood home of Franklin, Va., has a master plan for perpetuating whistling. He wants old people to "dust off" the whistling skills they learned in their youth and act as examples to the next generation of whistlers.

The Race Is On In Casselberry

Candidates, start your engines. Today is the first day for qualifying to run in the Dec. 1 Casselberry election race for mayor and two City Council seats.

According to City Clerk Mary Hawthorne, anyone interested in running for any of the three positions must qualify with her, beginning at 8:30 a.m. today and running through 5 p.m. Oct. 30. There are no fees required by persons entering either the mayoral or council races, she said.

Salaries for the two-year-term positions are $21,281 annually for mayor and $300 per month for council seats, Mrs. Hawthorne noted.

Incumbent Mayor Owen Sheppard has said he intends to run for reelection. He also said today he has opened his campaign account at the Barnett Bank in the Live Oaks Center. His campaign fund currently totals $200.

Councilman John Leighty said he will qualify today for reelection.

Council Chairman Tom Embree previously said he too will seek reelection.

Witch Can't Hex Rumors

WARTBURG, Tenn. (UPI) — A self-proclaimed witch said she reads Tarot cards, uses herbs for healing and pentagrams for protection but insisted rumors of sacrificial rites being spread among the mountain hamlets of Morgan County are false.

Patty Dean Hawn, 29, said she practices and studies witchcraft and that she and her husband Randall, 35, have been followers of the New Bern, N.C.-based Wicca church for about a year.

But the religious preference of the Hawns has broken the normally calm area and sent rumors flying and the phones ringing at the sheriff's office.

One prevalent rumor says an 11-year-old virgin will be sacrificed on Thanksgiving or Halloween. There are also rumors dogs and cats have been sacrificed and their carcasses thrown in their owners' yards.

Mrs. Hawn said she doesn't mind admitting she's a witch, but she stresses there are no blood sacrifices involved. She said she removed her four children from school because she has trouble coping with the stares and taunts from other children.

A pudgy woman with long, black hair, Mrs. Hawn said she has been involved with the religious sect for about a year and hopes to be fully initiated into it soon.

Carolyn Frazier, a Morgan County sheriff's department dispatcher, said the county has received 500 phone calls in the last two weeks to report a rumor or ask for information.

"They just say 'I heard John Doe's dog was killed and the blood was drained out of it,'" she said.

The rumors have "spread like wildfire" to neighboring counties, including Roane, Fentress, Anderson, Scott and Cumberland counties.

"What am I supposed to do — go out and arrest these people?" said Morgan County Sheriff Dennis Ledbetter. "They haven't done anything against the law. They have freedom of religion."

The Hawns live in a small house in Twin Lakes Subdivision of Wartburg, a town of about 600 situated on the Cumberland Plateau.

Anwar Sadat: Statesman

The assassination of Egypt's President Anwar Sadat is a tragedy of enormous proportions. Sadat's breadth of vision, his political imagination and his diplomatic skills profoundly changed the course of events in the Middle East more significantly than anything else in the last three decades. We share the grief of the Egyptian people.

His courageous, historic journey to Jerusalem in 1977 paved the way for the Camp David Accords and for the subsequent peace treaty between Egypt and Israel. The price Sadat was willing to pay for that achievement was proved great; in addition to settling much of the rest of the Arab world against him, it contributed to current rising internal tensions from political and religious opposition. Now it has cost him his life.

Sadat was a virtual unknown vice president when he succeeded the late President Gamel Abdul Nasser in 1970. A charismatic leader with a flair for the dramatic, within three years he had consolidated power enough to oust Soviet diplomats and advisers and turn Egypt toward the West. It was an extraordinary setback for the Russians in the Middle East, moving them to the periphery of events ever since. In 1977, while engaged in a limited border war with Soviet-sponsored Libya, Sadat announced his intention to fight Russian penetration in Africa, a course that has led to new military tensions between Egypt and Libya. At the same time — and despite the rejection of most of the rest of the Arab world — he remained an outspoken champion of the Palestinian cause, a cause whose hope is now also dimmed.

One can hardly exaggerate the importance of Sadat's presence and leadership in the Middle East. His death means new uncertainties for Egyptian-Israeli relations; for the future of the Camp David process; for the Reagan administration's plans for securing the gulf against Soviet expansion; for the proposed sale of AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia; for the leadership of other Western-oriented Arab states and, not least, the immediate stability of the Egyptian government. His successor, Vice President Hosni Mubarak, is virtually unknown outside Egypt; the prospect appears to be a political power struggle whose uncertain outcome magnifies the scale of problems for the West presented by Sadat's death.

Most of the world will deeply mourn the loss of this urbane, witty and sophisticated statesman on whose courage and vision so many hopes have depended in recent years. It is some indication of Sadat's stature that the troubling questions for Western policy resulting from his death will continue to produce shock waves long after he is buried. The hope now must be that Cairo government will be able to manage the transition of power in a stable and peaceful way and that Egypt's tragedy will not prove the precursor for further trauma in that fragile part of the world. The enormous difficulties we now face are some measure of the man we have lost.

People of humanity and respect for courage throughout the world mourn the loss of Anwar Sadat, and grieve for humanity itself, wounded by another murderous barbarity. That they must do so in a state of anxious vigilance for international stability adds great and painful emphasis to the stature of the man whose death is mourned.

"...And the good news is — you're not going to be 'empty nesters' any more!"

By JANE CASSELLBERRY

Seminole County's newest high school, Lake Mary High, is the first school in this area to have a bicameral legislative student government. According to student government sponsor Dena Horner, the idea of a house and senate came from Lake Mary principal Don Reynolds. "He wanted the student government as close to a real life legislature as possible," she said.

The student body for its first year consists of ninth and 10th graders. Students will be in the same homeroom for the duration of their time at Lake Mary. "Mr. Reynolds wanted them to have a sense of belonging," said Ms. Horner. The homeroom classes each elected a representative to the house.

The senate is made up of the regular class officers and the student body officers and initiates business. The president of the student body, John Brantley, is the presiding officer.

The Lake Mary Legislature got off to an impressive start Monday when State Senator John Vogt and State Rep. Bobby Brantley administered the oath to the student legislators at its opening session. Clyde Yayas is the other faculty sponsor.

Years before public schools were required to supply "special education" and training for handicapped children, the Seminole County Association for Retarded Citizens was endeavoring to help retarded children and young adults reach their potential and become useful citizens. They operated the Little Red School House for retarded children for years in borrowed and rented facilities from one end of the county to the other — always hoping to eventually have a place of their own.

When the Little Red School House program closed down, SCARC concentrated on a program to help meet the social and vocational needs of area retarded young adults and the Special Olympics.

The "impossible dream" of the director Christine Jones and the SCARC Board has turned out to be more impossible than even they thought, however. They have dreamed of and planned for a Children's Village complex centrally located in the county, but the necessary funding has eluded them.

So it was with some sadness we heard recently from Chris that SCARC has turned over the Special Olympics program to a local coach and although it has not dissolved the association has decided to be inactive this year.

Some dreams die hard and Chris has not abandoned the Children's Village, which she still hopes to resurrect if the necessary funding can be found. ("We'll have to go out of state to get it," she said).

A new version of Murphy's Law seen on a sign in Casselberry: "Don't mess around with Mrs. Murphy."

DON GRAFF Gold Standard Argument

Is all that Franklin Delano Roosevelt and Richard Nixon wrought about to come to naught?

You might think so from all of the talk and some of the action concerned with the question of whether the United States should resurrect the gold standard.

A presidential commission on that very matter has commenced consultations in Washington. Outspoken supporters include court economist Arthur Laffer, he of the curve, and Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., father of the three-year tax cut. Further, candidate Reagan himself indicated definite interest, although President Reagan has been officially more reticent.

If it should come to pass, it would be a complete reversal of developments that go back to the first FDR administration and the ending of gold coinage. The dollar remained tied to gold at a fixed price of $35 an ounce for the next few decades. But in 1971 the Nixon administration severed the last tie, withdrawing the treasury's standing offer to buy and sell to foreign authorities upon demand.

The dollar has since been on its own, and you know how it has done.

The basic argument for a return to the gold standard is that it would instill automatic monetary discipline. No longer would the money supply be subject to contractions or expansion at the discretion of the Federal Reserve and the deficit-prone federal budget makers, often working at cross purposes.

Instead, the price and supply of gold would govern. No more money could be issued than the treasury possessed gold to back it.

That is theory. In practice, there are a number of reservations as to the effectiveness of gold as a monetary basis in today's complex national economies.

For one thing, fixing a realistic price is not easy — observe that in the last few years gold on the free market has fluctuated between less than $400 an ounce to around $1,000. And once fixed, it may not stay realistic.

Price, as with most commodities, which gold is for all its historic glamour, is dependent upon supply. The supply of gold is popularly thought of as being fixed, or at least increasing at a consistent rate. But that will not necessarily continue to be the case.

It is possible that large new sources or more efficient extraction methods could be developed, greatly increasing supplies and dropping the price.

But even if not, present supplies are a problem in themselves. Most new gold comes from South Africa, which strictly controls its marketing but could be expected in its own interests to cooperate, and the Soviet Union, which is another case. The Soviets market gold as they need foreign exchange. Cost of production means nothing in their fantasy monetary system and it could well suit their interests at some point to dump so much of the metal that the U.S. treasury and other buyers would be hard pressed to hold a fixed price.

Palestinians Shipping Arms To Egypt

WASHINGTON — The exclusive contract for shipping American arms to Egypt is held by a company that was founded by a Palestinian and may still be controlled by him.

Egyptian sources say they are "100 percent certain" that some of the U.S. munitions were diverted to Palestinian groups and other elements opposed to assassinated President Anwar Sadat. These sources also suspect the Palestinians and anti-Sadat forces used their connection to gain valuable intelligence about the inner workings of both the American and Egyptian military.

What makes the situation all the more startling is the involvement of Cabinet ministers and other high Egyptian officials in the secret contract manipulations. Amazingly, the arms shipment contract wound up with the Palestinians, an itinerant merchant named Ali el Shorafa.

My associates Dale Van Atta and Indy Badwar have identified several Egyptian bigshots who have been actively associated with the backroom deal. These include Brig. Gen. Mounir Sabet, chief of military procurement for Egypt and brother-in-law of Vice President Hosni Mubarak; Kamal Hassan Ali, deputy premier and foreign minister, and Defense Minister Abu Ghazala.

WASHINGTON WINDOW New Breed Of Liberals

By IRA R. ALLEN
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Starting with George McGovern's defeat in 1972, liberalism has been on the run.

Now that it's in full retreat, a repolished brand of liberalism has begun to emerge in the Senate, where there is always a plentiful supply of deep-thinkers willing to have their ideas — and themselves — considered presidential material.

Two of the latest up-and-comers striving to make Democrats forget about Walter Mondale and Edward Kennedy in 1984 are Sens. Gary Hart of Colorado and Paul Tsongas of Massachusetts.

Hart, handsome and intense, gazes forth on the cover of this month's influential Washington Monthly magazine, which asks, "Should this man be president?" The magazine's answer seems to be a resounding "maybe."

Tsongas has made a splash with a book that outlines a program for modern liberals so that they will not continue to be "round pegs (who) no longer fit into the square realities of our world."

Thoughtful and informative, Tsongas is also truly depressing in his recital of the dangers facing the modern world. Of such negativism, leaders are not usually made.

The irony of each senator's claim to Democratic dominance is that while they profess to be men of fresh approaches, Tsongas and Hart each attained his present prominence by stepping over the bodies of their failed patrons.

Hart went from managing McGovern's disastrous presidential campaign to running for Senate just two years later as someone trying to "redefine" liberalism and "question some of the premises upon which the Democratic Party has operated."

Tsongas, once a Republican, defeated Edward Brooke, 12 years after urging a Republican congressman for whom he worked not to challenge the Senate's only black. One reason for Tsongas' victory was campaign help from Kennedy, who had never before campaigned hard for a Brooks opponent.

Then, in the midst of Kennedy's campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination last year, Tsongas lauded his senior colleague in a powerful speech to the Americans for Democratic Action: "This is a different generation. And if we do not speak to this generation in its terms, liberalism will decline. And if we do not meet these needs, liberalism should decline."

The Tsongas book came out of that ADA speech, made well before the Ronald Reagan juggernaut completed its devastation of liberals.

Their ambitions shouldn't of course denigrate what they are saying. Both are properly concerned about energy and the environment, with each breaking from liberal orthodoxy in important areas: Hart touting a strong, lean defense posture and increased military spending, and Tsongas urging a tougher foreign policy toward the Russians, increased reliance on nuclear energy and more tax breaks for business. Both have also broken from organized labor on the Chrysler bailout and other economic issues.

In the book — "The Road from Here: Liberalism and Realities in the 1980s" — Tsongas warns: "If a liberal has not fashioned a coherent, aggressive, effective position on the realities, then he will be judged only on those divisive issues where the electorate is at odds with his views."

He describes his economic, environmental, energy and foreign policy programs as "compassionate realism" based on economic, social and political justice and respect for the environment and "the family of man."

WILLIAM STEIF Exercise For The Elderly

A recent national survey shows that only one physician in five advises older people — in their 50s or older — to exercise.

But many people believe that doctors above all others should be urging older Americans to get out and move around (within reasonable limits, of course). This comes to mind, because:

— If reductions in mortality continue, aging Americans will be our fast-growing population segment, with women expected to live an average of 84 years by the turn of the century, men 74 years.

— A University of Southern California study shows a group of retirees, average age 69, had a striking improvement in capacity to work through regular exercise.

Another survey shows, however, that more than half of those 60 to 64 years of age are very unlikely to indulge in any kind of exercise; 43 percent say a doctor's recommendation would be most likely to increase their chances of exercising and 23 percent say nothing would increase those chances.

Some organizations are getting wise to the efficacy of exercise for older folks. The President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, founded under President Eisenhower, is one. It has recently teamed up with General Foods Corp.'s Post Cereals and Sanka divisions to hold the First National Conference on Fitness and Aging in Washington. This was mostly media hoopla, but it can't hurt if it focuses attention on the need. And this attention will further focus by a General Foods-sponsored sports festival, the Golden Age Games, scheduled for Nov. 9-14 at Sanford, Fla.

V.L. Nicholson, one of the council's 13 staffers, says exercise "improves the quality" of people's lives. More exercise, he says, means more mobility and more mobility minimizes the danger of broken bones.

"Old people," Nicholson says, "have an exaggerated notion of the risks of exercise." That point also is made by Robert Beland, a University of Florida gerontology specialist. Older people, he says, shouldn't limit themselves to golf or shuffleboard.

"For the older person who is healthy, we know of no activity that is limited because of age," he says. "We tend to use age as an excuse. You may not be able to do everything you used to do, but that doesn't mean you stop."

Exercise, Beland adds, not only is important from a health standpoint but promotes sociability.

He advises older people to start slowly in whatever exercise program they choose. One of the best programs: walking.

"Twenty or 30 minutes of walking three times a week and you'll find getting in and out of chairs and going up stairs will be a lot easier," he says. The simple combination of milk-drinking and systemic exercise can help prevent osteoporosis, the softening of bones common in older persons.

company and refused to let it ship anything for eight months, contract or no contract.

The matter came to a head when then-President Carter and Sadat agreed that some early, visible military support from the United States was essential. They settled on some hardware that would be part of the annual Oct. 6 military parade — the same event that was chosen by Sadat's assassins two years later.

"There's no way we were going to jeopardize the Oct. 6 parade shipments by passing them to that company," said a Pentagon official. So the Defense Department handled the first eight months of arms shipments itself.

Meanwhile, the Defense Intelligence Agency and some honest Egyptian officials were checking into Tsongas' credentials. It was soon clear the company was not qualified to handle the arms shipments.

Tsongas solved this problem by subcontracting with legitimate shippers — and changing its name to Egyptian American Transport and Services Corp. Clines became 60 percent owner of Tsongas' new incarnation. But the predecessor company owns the other 40 percent — and sources believe Shorafa, the Palestinian exile, still owns most of that.

At the time, Tsongas was little more than an office in Geneva and another in Washington. It had no experience whatever in shipping.

The front man in Egypt was an Egyptian intelligence officer named Hassan Salem; ex-CIA official Clines was the man in Washington. But the silent partner and financial backer was Ali Shorafa.

Shorafa, a merchant in the Gaza strip until 1973, tried to do business in Egypt with no success, and then settled in Abu Dhabi, capital of the United Arab Emirates. It wasn't till he hooked up with Salem that his fortunes dramatically improved. Salem brought in the high officials of the Sadat regime — and Shorafa's dark-horse company won the race for the arms shipment contract.

Egyptian sources say it was pressure from the Pentagon and CIA that got Tsongas the contract. They quote the deputy premier-foreign minister, Hassan Ali, as saying several times that the Americans insisted that Tsongas be used because of its CIA connection.

But a high Pentagon official — and friend of Clines — insists that the pressure on Tsongas' behalf came from the Egyptians.

One thing is clear: The Pentagon didn't know Tsongas' background, didn't trust the

Fan Sues 'Fradulent' Bears

ROCKFORD, Ill. (UPI) — A die-hard Chicago Bears fan is suing the club for a $58.40 refund, claiming it is fraudulently billing itself as a "professional" football team. After watching the hapless Bears lose Sunday 24-7 to the previously winless Washington Redskins, James Tully filed his small claims complaint, alleging he did not see a professional game. The complaint filed Wednesday asks the Bears to refund him $58.40 — $23 for the game tickets for himself and his wife, Sue, $18 for gasoline, $15 for a babysitter and the rest for highway tolls to get to the game. The 31-year-old school supply salesman said the team was guilty of false advertising and consumer fraud. "I went to see a professional football game," he said. Instead, the team made mistake after mistake. "If Barry Manilow came on stage in Rockford and suddenly got laryngitis or couldn't talk, I'd get a refund," Tully said. "If the Rolling Stones came to Rockford without Mick Jagger, that would be misrepresentation." Tully mailed the complaint to the Cook County Sheriff's Department, which will present it to the Chicago Bears Football Club Inc., and it will be heard in small claims court Nov. 10. "I love the Bears. I'm not angry," Tully said. "But we've been rebuilding for 47 years."

Lyman Determines Own Destiny

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

No one in the Five Star Conference can better determine its football fate than Lyman—and that's just fine with coach Bill Scott. "It's not going to be one of those years where you have to depend on someone else to help you," the Greyhound boss assessed. "We can make our own destiny, write our own ticket." Scott would like to write a first class ticket into first place, but first he has some passengers ahead of him. Seminole and Lake Brantley, both 2-0, hold down the top spot. Spruce Creek is 1-0. "Seminole is going to be a tough horse to catch," admitted Scott. "And before the season I thought Apopka and Spruce Creek would fight it out. Lake Brantley has a tough defense."

While the Greyhounds get a first hand look at all of those ball clubs in the next six weeks, foremost on the burly coach's mind is Chip Gerke's Blue Darters, a 28-13 loser to Sanford last week.

Scott takes his 'Hounds into an Apopka Homecoming game Friday night at 8. He's wary of the Darters even though they had a down night against Seminole. "I know they'll be fired up, especially since its homecoming," speculated Scott. How fired up the Apopka crew is might depend on the status of running back Arnell Lykes. The 5-foot-10, 170 pounder was suspended prior to the Sanford game for a training rules infraction.

Gerke said he would miss the Lyman contest, but Scott is preparing his team with the notion Lykes may make an appearance. "Lykes and (Kenny) Flowers of Spruce Creek are two of the premier runners in Central Florida," said Scott. "You'd be crazy not to prepare for him because a guy like that can really burn you in a hurry. Lykes hasn't been turned loose yet. We just hope we don't turn him loose."

Greyhounds

With or without Lykes, Scott feels the Darters have a couple of game breakers. The Darters run multiple offenses and move a lot of people around. "They have a run-and-shoot, they go some from the power-I. They'll use everything," warned Scott.

Scott fears quarterback Brian Pitts and wideout Keith Bridges the most. He points to Mark Seelig, the Darter kicker, as a person who could determine the outcome. He has in Apopka's two wins in five games. The Greyhounds, meanwhile, look for a return to form of junior quarterback Jerry Axley. Axley threw for 240 yards two weeks ago. Last week he threw four interceptions.

"Jerry just had a bad night," explained Scott. "On some of those interceptions the ball was tipped and a couple of times the receivers ran their routes behind the linebackers instead of in front of them."

Scott is pleased with the protection his offensive line of guards Gene Allen and Graham Mays, tackles Chris Tschleder and Chad Denny along with center Jay Mazaleski has been giving the quarterback.

The running game, however, has not been up to expectations despite the presence of Vince "The Prince" Presley, a 9.9 sprinter.

"Vince has run hard," pointed out Scott. "But the blocking timing has not been there. I think this is because we have made a lot of changes and everybody is a junior except Mazaleski."

"I look for that to get better when they get to know each other better." Which Scott hopes to be sooner than later since the first place passengers are coming to the loading gate considering the "Lyman Destiny" in the Five Star.

After an open date Oct. 23, Lyman, takes on Lake Howell, Sanford, Spruce Creek and Lake Brantley. All except Sanford are at home.

"From here on out, the next six weeks should be for real," Scott said.

You can say that again Big Bill. "From here on out, the next six weeks should be for real."

Goodbye Billy, Goodbye Billy... Hello Lou

NEW YORK (UPI) — He would've had to be deaf not to hear them and there isn't a thing wrong with Billy Martin's ears.

"Goodbye, Billy... Goodbye, Billy," they mocked him and his youthful Oakland A's only two outs away from a humiliating 13-3 back-crusher at the hands of the New York Yankees. "We hate to see you go..."

Many of those in the crowd of 48,497 serenading Martin at Yankee Stadium after Wednesday's lopsided defeat, which left the A's a single game away from elimination in the American league's final playoff, were the same people who had given him such a warm, rousing ovation when he was introduced before Tuesday night's opening contest.

Martin couldn't possibly miss hearing them sarcastically telling him goodbye now, the obvious implication being his A's were dead even though they were going back home. "That don't bother me," he said expressionlessly. "It ain't over yet. We'll win tomorrow and the next day and then we'll see who'll be singing that song."

Craig Nettles accounted for the most damage with his seventh-inning homer and three singles while Jerry Mumphrey chipped in with a ground-rule double and three singles and Dave Winfield a double and a single, but it was the seldom used, 38-year-old Lou Piniella who really settled things with his three-run homer in the fourth after replacing Reggie Jackson in right field an inning earlier. Jackson had been forced out by a call injury.

The Yankees, who trailed 3-1 at one point, were ahead 4-3 in the fourth when Piniella produced his three-run shot into the right field seats off righthander Dave Beard.

When the A's manager saw Piniella in the on-deck circle waiting to hit his first time up in the third Wednesday, he kidded the veteran Yankee outfielder by hollering over at him, "The boss' buddy has his dream."

Milton Richman
UPI Sports Editor

Piniella merely laughed. Nor did he show any hard feelings toward Martin after the game.

"Billy is OK," he said. "He helped us get on our winning ways when he was here. He showed us how to play with intensity."

But Piniella got into only 60 games with the Yankees this year, usually as a designated hitter or pinch hitter, but the fans here still love him. They hollered for him to come out of the dugout and take a bow after his homer as some of the other Yankee players do, but he declined. "I take baseball as a profession, not as show business," he explained later. "I don't believe in curtain calls. I don't say it's wrong if other guys want to do it but it's not my way. Why embarrass the other ballclub? Why, embarrass the pitcher?"

Piniella said he was grateful to Yankee Manager Bob Lemon for using him after Jackson found he was unable to continue.

"I appreciated the fact that Lem had confidence in me to put me in right field," he said. "There were a lot of other people he could have put in instead of me."

During the past winter, when he was recuperating from an attack of hepatitis, Piniella thought of quitting. He was discouraged and that same feeling returned when after the strike was settled in July and he was told he wasn't going to play the outfield anymore.

"That perturbed me," he admitted. "I can still play. I think I can help a lot of clubs. That's for sure. Just ask Billy Martin."

Awesome (?) Leesburg Brings 22-Game Losing Streak Into Oviedo Execution Friday

JOE MONTGOMERY
...fears Yellow Jackets

It wasn't that many years ago that a two-year old football franchise in Tampa was lumbering along with a 26-game losing streak.

Then, one Sunday it traveled to the Super Dome in New Orleans and claimed its first victory ever against the Saints. The Tampa Bay victory may not have had anything to do with it, but as you know nothing much has gone right for the Saints since.

Come to think of it, nothing has ever gone too well for New Orleans.

Oviedo coach Joe Montgomery finds his Lions in that inevitable position of the Saints Friday evening when the Leesburg Yellow Jackets and their 22-game losing streak enter the Lion's Den at 8.

And, as Tampa Bay coach John McKay can certainly attest, no one wanted to win more than his Bucs after 26 losses. The opposite is also true. No one wants to be the first victim of a team which sports a long losing skeln.

"Hey, Leesburg is not that bad," Montgomery said about the Yellow Jackets, if anyone can say that about an 8-22 ball club. "They could be a good football team."

But at least for Leesburg, nevertheless, "Monty's" usual coaching snow-job may have some credence. The Yellow Jackets have been ahead in four of their five losses this year. Against Ocala Forest, they led, 3-0, going into the fourth period.

"They beat themselves all the time," observed Montgomery. "Fumbles, interceptions and penalties have hurt them."

Leesburg has been through two coaches during the drought. Steve Schaap, who was successful at Ocala Forest, has suffered the last 15 setbacks. He took over for Max Wettstein, who owned the first seven losses.

Montgomery has not taken the Yellow Jackets lightly. The Oviedo mentor put four hours of practice in Wednesday afternoon and three hours in on Tuesday.

"They're due to win," laughed Monty. "The odds are in their favor. True, but the odds have been in their favor for a long time."

The game, however, means much more to the Lions. Coming off a 32-8 shellacking of Lake Weir, the Lions are in a position to challenge in the district race. They are 2-2 overall and 1-1 in the district.

"It's our ticket to get back into the district championship game," emphasizes Montgomery. "Also, they had eight starters out last week and six will be back against us." Leesburg uses multiple player combinations. It has four tailbacks and three quarterbacks. And, this was before the six returnees.

Oviedo, meanwhile, will have to get back into the race Friday without two starters. Powerful fullback Dean Prealing broke a rib and will miss eight days. Defensive tackle John Mann has a separated shoulder and will miss the encounter.

Quarterback Carl Jones had a fantastic game last week against Lake Weir. The senior signal caller ran for 67 yards, passed for 200 yards and scored a touchdown.

Jones' big show earned him the Burger King Offensive Player of the Week award. The Burger King Defensive Player award went to Sanford linebacker Antonio Davis who had 12 tackles, one assist and one sack.

Jones will line up with senior Lamar Smith at wingback, tiny Mike Oliver at tailback and sophomore speedster J.W. Yarbrough at fullback in place of Prealing.

"I'm telling you they ain't that bad," stressed Montgomery. "If they execute they can be awesome."

Okay, Joe, so can an electric chair.

Homecoming At Lake Howell

Hawks Wing Toward First Win

By BILLY STRIPP
Herald Sports Writer

Lake Howell coach Mike Bisceglia and his Silver Hawks will still be looking for victory number one this Friday night when they host Daytona Beach Mainland at 8.

Mainland has a "big, tough team" according to Bisceglia and it will invade in an attempt to ruin the Lake Howell Homecoming Night.

The Silver Hawks have been off since Oct. 2 when they were shut out, 14-0, by Lake Brantley. "The lay off gave us a chance to get healthy," said Bisceglia. "It also gave us time to look over the things that we have been doing wrong."

Lake Howell is 0-4 for the season and 0-2 for the conference. The Hawks need a victory to hope for any shot of repeating the Five Star Conference championship they won last year.

"I'm really pleased with the team's attitude. They're still hanging in there," said the curly-haired coach. "I just wish we could play like we practice."

Lake Howell

Bisceglia and his coaching staff are optimistic about Friday's game and despite the slow start are looking for the first victory to take place.

Bisceglia is impressed with Mainland's 50-50 defense. "Their defense is real solid," said Bisceglia. "They have speedy tackles and two good linebackers who read well."

Frosh Rams Blank Hawks, 8-0

Lake Mary's Billy Caugell ran in a touchdown from four yards out and Don Meyer tackled a halfback in the end zone for a safety as the Rams' freshman football team upended Lake Howell, 8-0, Tuesday at Howell.

The victory improved Frank Schwartz' ball club to 2-0 and sets up a battle for Seminole County bragging rights Tuesday night at Lake Mary against undefeated Crooms. Game time is 7:30 p.m. Caugell's four-yard dash climaxed a 70-yard drive set up by Scott Underwood's interception in the second quarter. The extra point kick was blocked. Meyer's safety came in the fourth quarter.

The young Rams came close to scoring on several other occasions. Twice, Charlie Lucarelli returned punts inside the Howell 30 yard line, but both were called back by penalties.

Bisceglia and his Hawks would like to follow the trend.

Raines Rips 3 Hits, Drives In Run

Burriss Paints Dodgers Blue, 3-0

MONTREAL (UPI) — It was supposed to be one of the Los Angeles Dodgers' easier games.

Rookie pitching phenom Fernando Valenzuela was supposed to work his magic against the Montreal Expos while the Dodgers were supposed to pounce on Expos' starter Ray Burriss, who has been with more clubs than some golfers.

But things don't always go as planned.

Wednesday night in Los Angeles it was Burriss who worked some magic, throwing a five-hit shutout and lifting the Expos into control of the National League Championship Series with a 3-0 victory. It was the Expos' first win at Dodger Stadium in their last 11 games and just their second in the last 21 games in Los Angeles.

The Expos now host the Dodgers for the remainder of the best-of-five series, with the third and fourth games scheduled for Friday night and Saturday and a fifth game slated for Sunday afternoon, if necessary.

Burriss, a seven-year major league veteran, also has played for the Chicago Cubs, New York Yankees and New York Mets. He signed as a free agent in February after being released by the Mets.

"This is very gratifying," the 6-foot-5, 200-pound right-hander said after helping the Expos even the series at one game each. "I've played for a number of managers and a number of clubs, and this has to be the greatest experience of my career."

Burriss faced the Dodgers twice during the regular series, being shelled for six runs in the first game and giving up two in the second meeting. He said he learned a pitcher can't get away with challenging the Dodgers and their potent fast-ball-hitting lineup.

"Tonight I mixed my offspeed pitches," he said. "I used a slider, changeup and curveball. Earlier this year I went mostly with the hard stuff against the Dodgers and they clobbered me."

The only batters to bother Burriss were Dusty Baker and Bill Russell, both of whom had a pair of singles.

NL Playoff

The Expos jumped on Valenzuela for a pair of runs in the second inning to give Burriss all the support he needed. Montreal, which had managed only eight hits against Valenzuela in 18 innings previously this season, rapped out four in the second and might have had an even bigger inning if right fielder Pedro Guerrero hadn't thrown out Warren Cromartie at the plate for the final out.

With one out in the second, Larry Parrish and Jerry White stroked back-to-back singles and Cromartie followed with a double to right that scored Parrish and sent White to third. Chris Speier then drew a walk on a full count and after Burriss struck out, Tim Raines singled sharply to right to score White.

Sanford's Raines ripped three hits including a double for Montreal.

Cromartie also tried to score on the play, but was cut down at the plate by Guerrero.

Valenzuela retired the next 10 batters in a row but the Expos got to him for another run in the sixth with the aid of a throwing error by left fielder Baker. With one out, Andre Dawson singled and Gary Carter sent him to third with another single. When Baker's throw to second went astray, Dawson scored to give Montreal a 3-0 lead and Burriss then sealed the win. The Expos knew losing both games in Los Angeles would virtually guarantee them an early start on winter vacation.

"No doubt about it, it would have been very difficult to come back and win the series if we'd lost both games here," said manager Jim Fanning. "Now it's an entirely different series."

Montreal catcher Gary Carter, who had two of the Expos' 10 hits, said the win changed the series dramatically.

"We feel very confident now with three games in Montreal coming up," he said. "We are as confident there as the Dodgers are here." Carter said the two teams create a contrast with the Dodgers' vast experience against the inexperience of the Expos.

Piniella, Nettles Bombard A's, 13-3

AL Playoff

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — With the Oakland A's banking on some home cooking today to save their jeopardized season, the New York Yankees continue to display an insatiable appetite for a world championship.

The Yankees, seeking their fourth World Series berth in the last six years, treated five Oakland pitchers like batting practice fodder Wednesday, setting a slew of American League Championship Series batting records en route to a 13-3 humiliation of Billy Martin's Western Division champions.

The Yankees, holding a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five series, try to nail down the sweep at Oakland Coliseum in Game 3 behind hard-throwing rookie left-hander Dave Righetti, who has already notched two post-season victories. Right-hander Matt Keough will start for the shell-shocked A's.

"I'm pumped up for it," said Righetti, who had an 8-4 record with a 2.05 ERA during the regular season. "The biggest part is to stop them early and get some runs. We don't lose too many games when we get the lead."

And the Yankees hit Oakland early and hard in both games at Yankee Stadium, taking a 3-0 lead in the first inning of Game 1 on Graig Nettles' bases-clearing double. On Wednesday, New York waited until the fourth before lowering the boom on Oakland starter and loser Steve McCatty and a quartet of struggling relievers.

Dave Winfield, who made a spectacular leaping catch to rob Oakland slugger Tony Armas of a second-inning homer, drove in the winning runs with a bases-loaded double in a seven-run fourth and Lou Piniella, a third-inning replacement for an injured Reggie Jackson, capped the outburst with a three-run homer.

"We are going to try and sweep," said Winfield, who is blossoming under the national spotlight in his first exposure to post-season play. "If you can solve their starting pitchers and get to their bullpen, you'll do all right."

McCatty, a 14-game winner during the regular season, was even more critical of his club's pitching staff — which had yielded only five runs in four previous playoff games in

"It would be easy to say that we can forget about all this after a few beers on the plane ride home," said McCatty, who lasted just 3 1/3 innings before leaving with Oakland still ahead 3-2. "This was easily the worst performance of my career and I would have to save it for this game. I'm very embarrassed and I'm sure our fans in Oakland are very disappointed."

McCatty left the game with the bases filled and Dave Beard promptly allowed five straight hits, including a three-run home run by Piniella. Nettles, who went 4-for-4, added a three-run homer in the seventh off Bob Gwinn.

In setting records for most hits (19) and runs in a game, the Yankees' imposing lineup featured an abundance of heroes — despite the absence of Jackson, who left after a slight strain of the left calf.

Jerry Mumphrey had four hits and scored twice, Larry Milbourne, filling in brilliantly for the injured Bucky Dent at shortstop, went 2-for-5 with two runs scored and Willie Randolph, relegated to the ninth position in the batting order, had two hits, scored one run and drove in another.

The Yankees' batting pyrotechnics obscured a strong 5-2-3 inning relief stint by winner George Frazier, who pitched just 27 2/3 innings all season. Frazier took over for a battered Rudy May with runners on second and third and one out in the fourth and allowed only one run before getting speedy Rickey Henderson to tap back to him for an inning-ending double play.

"It's unbelievable," said Frazier. "My mother, father, wife and son were here and it's the first time my mother and father have seen me pitch live."

Nettles became the first player in league playoff history to get two hits in the same inning when he lashed two singles in the fourth.

Miss Tapley, A.D. Cohen Repeat Vows

Carol Lynn Tapley of New Smyrna Beach, and Alan Dale Cohen, Osteen, were married Sept. 12, at the First Baptist Church, New Smyrna Beach. The Rev. Charles R. Boggs Jr. performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Carol B. Miles, New Smyrna Beach, and Joan A. Tapley, Swainsboro, Ga., and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. George V. Beck, New Smyrna Beach. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cohen, Osteen.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows an organza gown fashioned in a Victorian style with a sheer English net yoke and lace Schiffle detail.

She carried a bouquet of pink roses and daisies accented with baby's breath.

Peggy Bushman, Edgewater, was the maid of honor. She wore a gown of burgundy with a delicate lace and net bodice.

The bridesmaid's gowns were identical to the maid of honor's. There were the bride's sisters, Rebecca and Sharon Tapley, New Smyrna Beach, the sister of the groom, Christy Cohen, Osteen, and Shelly McAlean, New Smyrna Beach.

Michelle Tapley, sister of the bride, from Swainsboro, Ga., wearing a pale pink gown, was the flower girl.

The best man was Tommy McDonald, Samsula. The ushers were Randy Cohen, the groom's brother, from Osteen, Ron and Mark Irwin, cousins of the bride from Orlando, and Billy McDonald, Samsula.

MRS. AND MRS. ALAN DALE COHEN

The mother of the bride wore a long Grecian style lavender gown. Mrs. Cohen, mother of the groom, wore a smoky rose gown with sheer long sleeves.

Millie Cowen was the organist. A reception was held at the Anglers Yacht Club, New Smyrna Beach.

Sandy Silvers kept the bride's book. Mimi Holloman served the wedding cake.

Guests from out of town were: Corinne Irwin, Orlando; Mrs. John Tapley, Swainsboro, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Preston A. Lodge, Sanford; Mr. and Mrs. J. Burleson and Gail, Oviedo; Mr. and Mrs. Mark Burleson, Sanford; Mrs. Doris Friskie and Marcia, Tallahassee; Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Smith, and Shannon, Allyson, Lynne, Patricia, and Sylvia, all from Sanford.

Little People Of America For Folks Short In Size

DEAR ABBY: I've been a big fan of yours for a long time, but I've never written to you before.

I am 27, white, male, and I'm 4 feet, 6 inches tall and weigh 95 pounds. I have never had a date with a girl because all the girls I know are bigger than I am and they don't want to go with a runt.

Abby, I don't want to live the rest of my life single. I'd like to find a nice little lady and get married.

I've been told that there is a club somewhere in the U.S.A. for small people. Do you know anything about it? Please help me if you can. Thank you.

YOUR FAN IN ORANGE, TEXAS

DEAR FAN: The club you've heard about is "Little People of America." It was organized in 1957 to bring together people of smaller stature to help them meet others like themselves and to share valuable information, such as how to get the right kind of jobs, where to buy clothing in sizes for adults, not children, etc.

There are chapters of this organization all over the U.S.A.; they hold district and national conventions and publish an informative newsletter. The even have a teen membership.

For information about the chapter nearest you, write to: Little People of America, Inc., National Headquarters, Box 126, Owatonna, Minn. 55060. Please enclose a S.A.S.E. as it is a non-profit organization. I recommend it highly.

DEAR ABBY: I have five daughters. My only son was killed when he was 16. How do I answer people when they ask me how many children I have? I feel bad saying I have only five, because my son is still in my heart. Also, if I say "I have five girls," I have to listen to jokes about having no boys. Then I have to tell them of my only son's death, and they and I feel bad.

So what is the correct answer? My head tells me to answer five, but my heart says six.

MRS. H.

DEAR MRS. H: Listen to your heart, and say "I have five daughters; I lost my only son when he was 16."

That will eliminate any "jokes," and you will feel better. DEAR ABBY: Recently I received a phone call from the 35-year-old illegitimate child of my deceased husband. The girl said she was anxious to know something about her father, thus she had traced her lineage and found me.

She knew before contacting me that she had been conceived within six months after my marriage and that the affair with her mother, of which I had no knowledge, was an ongoing thing from before our marriage. She also knew that her father had died some years ago. She has substantiated to me the truth of her claim.

This has brought me only heartache. I don't want to know this woman. I have two daughters and a son whom I love dearly, and I have no need for this woman to enter my life as a constant reminder of my husband's infidelity.

Abby, don't adoptees seeking natural parents know when to stop? Why do they continue their search at the risk of bringing unhappiness to innocent people?

In this case, the innocent people who could be hurt, in addition to me, are her adoptive parents, her biological mother's husband and children, and my children.

I beg you to ask those who seek their natural parents to please consider the heartaches they can bring to others in order to satisfy their own curiosity.

SUE IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR SUE: Consider it done. Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (35 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

No Obvious Cause Found In Seizures

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — My son had a seizure just after his 18th birthday. I took him to the best neurosurgeon in this area and he told me he had epilepsy and put him on phenobarbital. He had a brain scan along with a blood sugar tolerance test. He also had a brain wave test and all of his tests were negative.

I'm sure his doctor is a fine, capable man but he can't communicate with my son or me so can you tell me what is causing the seizures? I worry that he is treating a symptom without looking for the cause. Other than the seizures my son has always been healthy and athletic.

DEAR READER — Your son's doctor thinks he has already told you what is causing your son's seizures when he told you he had epilepsy. The story is typical for this rather common condition. In many such cases no underlying cause is ever found.

The important thing is to be sure there is no underlying cause that can be corrected, rather than neglected, and I am sure from your letter that your son's doctor has already done this.

important people in history such as Julius Caesar and Alexander the Great, were epileptics.

The other point you need to keep in mind is that it is not always easy to control seizures. It often takes a period of time in evaluating the individual patient's responses to different treatments before finding the best one available.

DEAR DR. LAMB — We have a spilling grandmother who gives our 2 and 3-year-old children Halls cough drops and Roloids as candy.

DEAR READER — I'm sure she means well and just wants to express her love for her grandchildren but it is a bad habit. Halls cough drops contain one ingredient that has an adrenaline-like action.

Beyond that, it is very bad to give children medicines, including antacids, as a substitute for candy. It gives them the idea that medicines are candies and can lead to carelessness.

New Nursing-Home Rules Focused On Improvement

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — A new system to give consumers a way to rate the performance of Florida's 350 nursing homes is still nearly three months away from being put into effect.

But the guidelines are ready and a public hearing has been set for Oct. 26 before an administrative hearing officer.

Ms. Alicia Jacobs, the official in charge of the project, said the goal is to improve the quality of patient care without increasing the cost.

Under the old system, "any home that threw out the garbage once a week could get an 'A' rating," she said Tuesday.

She thinks only 15 to 17 percent of the homes would qualify for a superior rating if the new standards were in effect now.

The best part about the new grading system, she said, is that it's based on clear guidelines and will be easy to enforce. Homes that cannot meet at least minimum standards will be closed down without the lengthy, difficult process now required.

Ms. Jacobs is deputy assistant secretary for Medicaid in the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. About half of the customers of nursing homes are patients receiving either Medicaid or Medicare.

Once the new rules are approved, probably within a month or two, it will take a year to inspect every home, she said.

The package has been through several revisions and watered down substantially to keep down costs to the patient.

For homes that accept Medicaid and Medicare patients, there should be no cost impact because no major increase in staffing is required, Ms. Jacobs said.

Every home would have to have a staff medical director, but that is required now by federal regulations for Medicaid-Medicare patients.

For the 30 homes that do not take such patients, she said, there will be the extra cost of salary for this position. New rules also require staff social services and activities directors. But they can be people already on the staff who have the ability to take on the extra duty.

No change was made in present minimum staffing and space requirements.

"We would like to have raised the nurse-per-patient ratio but there is a statewide nurse shortage and we did not want to give the homes an impossible requirement," she said.

"Many have gone to pool nursing which is a fact of life we must deal with," she said.

The new system requires development of pre-service and in-service training for all nursing home personnel, she said.

It will give grades of "superior" for those that go beyond minimum standards, "unrated" for those meeting minimum standards and "conditional" for the worst ones which have a certain amount of time to meet minimum standards or be shut down.

The old system used "A" and "C" and almost any home could get an "A," she said. The "C" homes had substantial problems, she said.

"We pray the new system will result in a much better quality of nursing home care," but she conceded there probably is no rule to cover homes that don't care. The best hope for patients in these facilities, she said, is the easier route to shut them down.

Catch-22: Bungle Makes Agency Pay Another For Useless Power

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — A bureaucratic bungle has created a Catch-22 situation in which one government agency is paying another government agency for electric power neither can use.

In the final analysis, the foulup may wind up costing the nation's taxpayers and consumers of Tennessee Valley Authority power billions of dollars.

The participants in the bureaucratic goof are TVA and the Department of Energy.

The plot is simple: The DOE, back in the 1960s and early 1970s, projected a huge demand for electric power in the area. TVA responded to the projections by building a network of seven nuclear power plants and 17 reactors that could cost $31 billion.

But, DOE made a serious mistake.

It overprojected the power the area would need and TVA wound up over-building nuclear power plants.

America's taxpayers are covering the cost of the DOE mistake and TVA's 2.8 million customers are footing that agency's bill. The overprojection has already cost millions of dollars and it may reach the billions in the next 10 years.

Adding fuel to the situation was the Arab Oil Embargo, inflation, spiraling interest rates and a sagging economy. But, the DOE-TVA overcalculation was an important part that eventually led to TVA having to put part of its nuclear construction program in mothballs and DOE having to pay for power it does not need.

The problem dates back to the 1960s and early 1970s and is recorded on graphs of expected electrical demand for the 1980s and beyond. Shuffling those papers in closed-door meetings was Aubrey "Red" Wagner, TVA's chairman from 1962 to 1978.

Under Wagner's direction and based on DOE projections, the federal utility planned for a 7 percent growth in power demand during the 1980s and 1990s and began building nuclear plants to meet these needs in its seven-state service area.

The projections of electrical demand are different now, lower. The power will not be needed as quickly as some thought and may never be needed.

The DOE's predecessor, the Atomic Energy Commission, also played a key role in the project.

The AEC operated uranium enrichment facilities in Oak Ridge, Tenn., Portsmouth, Ohio, and Paducah, Ky., that produced the fuel for nuclear reactors.

The AEC contracted with TVA to buy huge blocks of power to help support the uranium enrichment plants. It was reasoned that TVA, with its huge nuclear program, would need a large amount of the uranium fuel, as would other utilities with nuclear plants.

But, like the economy, the nuclear power industry hit a slump. Utilities are not buying as much uranium fuel, and they are not building new atomic plants that will need the fuel.

Since 1978, no utility has ordered a new nuclear plant.

A recently released 1980 forecast of TVA's power supply hinted at the situation:

"With the rapid buildup of both domestic and foreign commitments to nuclear power through the mid-1970s, the availability of adequate uranium capacity and its related power supply to support the planned growth of commercial nuclear power was a major problem," the document says.

TVA agreed to sell 4,485 megawatts of power a year to the government until 1992, at which time the purchases would decline. Because TVA was fashioning its nuclear plant construction around the schedule, the AEC had to notify the utility eight years in advance if it wanted to cancel buying up to 1,000 megawatts. The rest of the power would have to be paid whether it was used or not.

"At that time and until just recently, there was no reason to believe that AEC would not continue to take and TVA to supply the full 4,485 megawatts over the useful service life of at least 30 years..." the report said.

"Events of the last several years have drastically changed the outlook for the growth of nuclear power-related demand for enrichment services to be provided by the U.S. government's enrichment facilities as well as the types of advanced enrichment technology that might be most effectively utilized to meet those demands," the report said.

DOE discovered its overprojection mistake in February, 1980, and asked TVA to bow out of its contract.

TVA officials were stunned. The giant utility was building a nuclear power program keyed to its largest buyer and now the buyer said it didn't need the electricity.

TVA officials initially tried to sell DOE's power elsewhere, but found no takers. At that point, TVA told DOE a contract is a contract and it must live up to its end of the deal.

That meant American taxpayers paid TVA $27 million for unused power in 1981. That figure will climb to $100 million next year and the price tag for unused energy until 1992 is close to $1 billion.

TVA says it needs the money to keep its nuclear construction program going.

DOE, meanwhile, recently announced it was cutting its production of enriched uranium in half. DOE officials are also re-thinking the future demand for enriched uranium with any eye toward more cutbacks.

If that happens, the taxpayer costs will rise even more unless TVA can find another utility to buy its surplus power. Houston Power & Light is considering taking some of the electricity off TVA's hands, but it took TVA 18 months to find a possible buyer in the Texas utility.

The future demand for enriched uranium, meanwhile, looks dim.

Uranium is enriched in what the nuclear industry calls "separative work units." DOE says it takes 250,000 separative work units to fuel a 1 million kilowatt reactor and 110,000 of the units to refuel a reactor each year.

The three DOE enrichment plants have a combined capacity of 28 million separative work units. But, the plants are only producing 10 million units a year because demand has dropped and the DOE has 30 million units in its stockpile.

Uranium, meanwhile, has dropped in price from $44 to only $25 a pound.

Some foreign countries are now enriching their own uranium and many reactors are being put on a deferred status and are likely to remain that way for a number of years.

TVA has five deferred reactors and has slowed work on three others. The agency is considering halting work on yet another reactor.

So what once was described as a monumental feat of "keeping the lights on in the Tennessee Valley" for the next 40 years is now turning into a billion-dollar nightmare.

The industry, and TVA's massive nuclear program, is being hit by various ripples from various sides.

Lynn Maxwell of TVA's load forecasting branch doesn't believe there is a single scapegoat for getting TVA and DOE in their present bind.

"I identify three structural changes in the economy that caused this," Maxwell told UPI.

"One, the 1973 Arab Oil embargo and the rapid escalation of all prices stemming from this. Two, what I call a second oil embargo in 1979. Here, there was a fairly rapid escalation in all energy prices in 1979. This runup in all prices — partly caused by the deregulation of some oil and coal prices.

"Three, a tremendous increase in interest rates," he said. All of the factors escalated the cost of building nuclear plants and eventually led to the slump in the nuclear industry.

As the cost of energy rose, so did conservation efforts. People were asked to conserve, they did, and the demand for electricity declined. The region's energy demands has almost leveled, in fact, since the 1973 Arab oil embargo.

Two new Kiwanis Clubs—Kiwanis Club of South Seminole and Kiwanis Club of East-West Sanford—have been established in Seminole County to meet a challenge from international and state organization officials. International President E.B. "Mac" McKittrick and Florida District Gov. Stuart Jacobs challenged Kiwanis members to build a new club in the first 80 days of the Kiwanis 1981-'82 calendar year. The Kiwanis Club of East-West Sanford was established at one minute after midnight Oct. 1 and the Kiwanis Club of South Seminole County was established at noon on Oct. 1 the first day of the new year. $100,000 Mouse Stew

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — A Nashville man who found a decomposed mouse in a can of beef stew is suing Campbell's Soup Co. for $100,000, claiming he has "lost the ability to enjoy eating such food" as a result of the experience.

The suit was filed Wednesday on behalf of Barry Martin, an employee of Gibson Guitar Co. in Nashville. The suit said Martin has suffered medical expenses, lost wages and mental pain and suffering as a result of discovering the rodent in a can of Bounty Brand Beef Stew that he bought from a vending machine at work. His attorney, Wayne Detring, said Martin also is suing over "the lost ability to enjoy eating such food in the past and the future."

Detring said his client is requesting a jury trial. "Mr. Martin purchased the can of Bounty Brand Beef Stew from a vending machine at work," Detring said. "After eating a portion of it he noticed it didn't taste exactly right. Then he noticed a tail and then he noticed the body of a whole mouse. It was not a rat but a mouse."

Prenatal Learning: Is It Possible?

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Any parent knows babies learn quickly.

But, a Greensboro researcher is developing a theory that learning begins before a child draws its first breath and is exposed to others from whom it will learn.

Anthony DeCasper, associate professor of developmental psychology at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, has found that infants less than 3 days old will work to produce the sound of their mothers' voices in preference to those of strangers.

The psychologist says he is interested in finding out if babies learn to recognize their mothers' voices while they are still in the womb. By studying infants as soon as possible after they are born, DeCasper says he moves closer to finding out what they learn before birth.

DeCasper and William Fifer, then a doctoral candidate, did two studies in 1980 with a total of 26 infants to see if there was any evidence babies recognize the sound of their mother's voice.

Using rubber nipples hooked up to tape recordings, researchers found most of the infants changed their sucking patterns to produce the sound of their mother's voice instead of a recording of a stranger's voice.

"Those less than 48 hours old preferred their mother's voice just as strongly as those more than 72 hours old," DeCasper said in a recent interview. "That suggests that age is not crucial."

The prenatal experience of babies has long fascinated scientists. For instance, DeCasper said the question of whether a fetus hears sounds is a baffling one.

"About 20 years ago, a man named Lee Salk had a theory that babies heard the sound of their mother's heartbeat when they were in utero and it became important to them," DeCasper said. "There were a rash of experiments in the '60s exploring the question, but the issue just got dropped because it couldn't be resolved to anyone's satisfaction."

DeCasper picked up the question, though, and plans to publish an article he says shows the sound of a human heartbeat is a reward for babies.

DeCasper said sounds can be detected within the womb, and fetuses can hear sounds. The question is whether unborn babies hear the sounds that are there, he said.

"As far as the heartbeat goes, (babies) will work for it," the psychologist said.

The voice preference and heartbeat studies move researchers closer to answering the question of whether learning begins before birth. Still, DeCasper is cautious about saying 3-day-old babies who prefer their mother's voice to someone else's learned that preference before they were born.

"The experiment we did took 20 minutes, and they could learn in 20 minutes how to produce their mother's voice," he said. "The babies could have learned in eight hours to become acquainted with their mothers' voices."

Sit On It!

AMHERST, Mass. (UPI) — Students at the University of Massachusetts are taking a ban on coed campus toilets sitting down.

The sit-in is planned today by the school's Student Government Association, which says demonstrators will take over the bathrooms in a major campus dormitory to protest what it calls a violation of their "human rights."

The move to end the 10-year-old single-sex bathroom policy was made earlier this year by school administrators, who cited complaints from students and parents. The state plumbing code also calls for separate sex bathrooms in public places.

The purpose of the demonstration is not for a change in the bathroom policy, but rather for a "non-enforcement of the policy," said Kevin Mangan, co-chairman of a committee organizing the sit-in.

"A basic right is being infringed upon by the administration, the right for students to make decisions and control their own lives," he said.

"Our human rights are at stake here," he said. "We're going to march over to Whitmore (dormitory) and take over the bathrooms. This will be a symbolic act."

Vietnam

Even Its Memorial Stirs Controversy, Bitterness

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — They say it is what they remember when they think of Vietnam — a rifle standing muzzle down in the mud, the generations-old symbol of a fallen infantryman.

They want to see that symbol towering over Arlington National Cemetery, three stories high, the black plastic of the M-16s they carried to a faraway war transmuted to black marble, shot with veins of red, the precision machinery of the receiver reproduced in a massive aluminum casting, all supported by a column of steel barrel.

The Vietnam War, the most divisive modern conflict in modern American history, cannot even be memorialized without drawing a protest.

A group of Vietnam veterans, outraged at plans to build what they consider an inappropriate or insulting memorial in Washington, want to replace or upstage it with one of their own design, based on the rifle-in-the-earth sign of a dead soldier.

"This is what we saw with tears in our eyes after a fight, rows of M-16s stuck in the ground by their bayonets," said Steve Androff, vice president of the United Veterans Coalition.

Funds are now being raised for a $7 million Vietnam War Memorial to be built near the Lincoln Memorial. The group behind the drive was headed by a Vietnam combat veteran, Jann Scruggs.

The design, chosen from more than 1,400, was submitted by Maya Ying Lin, a 21-year-old Yale architecture student. Two 200-foot-long polished black granite walls would be sunk below ground level, meeting in an inverted "V," bearing the names of all 57,000 servicemen killed in the war.

"We think we know better than a bunch of strangers what should stand in Washington to remember our brothers by," Androff said.

"Look at who's raising funds for this — Bob Hope, Gen. Westmoreland, all those people who kept the war rolling and our blood flowing."

Androff said his group is preparing to launch a national campaign to have their idea for a monument replace the controversial design approved in Washington.

"We have 3,600 members," he said, "and I'm sure many more veterans would join us in this."

"We also have some support from Vietnam veterans in Congress, who agree with us that a black marble slab isn't much of a monument."

Androff, a commercial artist who served in the 1st Infantry Division, has drawn up plans for the enormous rifle monument, and would like it to be built entirely by Vietnam Veterans and placed in Arlington "with the Marine memorial to Iwo Jima, the tombs of the unknown soldiers — something we can look up to instead of down into the earth."

"There are great artists, architects, engineers, craftsmen, all who served in Vietnam," he said. "We'd need welders, stonecutters, machinists, and from the reaction I've gotten from other veterans, I don't think I'll have trouble finding them."

He estimates the monumental rifle would cost $3 million, and concedes there is no money available to build it now.

"But our lawyers are drawing up papers to apply for nonprofit status so we can accept donations, and I'm preparing a poster that will show what the memorial would look like to raise funds for it."

There have been several protests against the current design plans, including complaints that its shape echoes the v-fingered peace sign, symbolic of many who refused to fight in the war while others served.

Another Vietnam veteran, twice-wounded West Point grad Tom Carhart, appealed to the Capital Fine Arts Commission Tuesday to reopen the design competition, saying black was "the color of dishonor" and the monument is "a black grave in the earth."

"This monument has become symbolic of the Vietnam War, and like the war it's getting people bitterly divided," said Forrest Lindley, a correspondent for Stars and Stripes who was a captain in the green berets.

"The sad thing is that the monument is becoming a symbol for the frustration and bitterness and anger of Vietnam veterans."

"Everybody sees in Vietnam what they want to see, and there isn't going to be any one design that all Vietnam veterans will agree sums up their feelings and honors those who served and those who died."

"The monument, any monument, is not going to solve the problems of the Vietnam veterans, no matter what the design. It won't touch substantive issues, like Agent Orange."

"If this controversy grows, instead of healing the wounds Vietnam left, which was the idea behind it, the Memorial may just make them worse."
