The days of courage and gallantry are not dead yet. We may think sometimes as we see signs of moral and physical decay about us that the present generation of young men is strangely lacking in something which made their forefathers robust ploneers, but every now and then some young fellow dashes into a burning building to rescue a pet cat and we have to revise our estimate of the entire group from which they come.

The United States Army Recruiting News this month tells the story of a number of particularly thrilling acts of heroism among soldiers awarded medals of honor who we are sure would give pause to even Hitler's most aggressive Storm Troopers. These incidents occurred not in time of war when people are steeled to unusual sacrifices but in the ordinary course of human life while still at peace.

TALLAHASSEE, Apr. 11—
(Special)— N. Ray Corroll, representative of Osceola county, and Thurnday that Florida cattlemen would back Governor Holiand's request for a $50,000 appropriation in the next two years to restock deer in Orange, Osceola, Highlands and Glades counties where they were killed to complete the tick stradication program. Holland called it an obligation to the sportsmen.

"The cattlemen promised the deer would be replaced when they were killed," Catroll said, "and we are going to insist that the program be carried out. That's about the main thing cattlemen want from this Legislature. They're doing all right without other laws."
