G. W. Spencer Is Winner Of City Golf Tourney, Defeating Brother One Up

Inability to gain his usual distance on shots from the tee contributed mainly to the defeat of Jim Spencer, 1933 City Golf champion who lost his title to his brother, G. W. Spencer at the Sanford Country Club yesterday afternoon in a match that was closely contested and decided on the 18th hole.

Away to a bad start, the pair settled down to par golf on seven of the first nine holes, as a large gallery looked on. The defending champion won the first hole, but the match was even at the end of the fourth hole, won by the challenger.

Starting the back nine, each scored a birdie four. The champion won the 11th and 12th holes, but dropped the 13th and 18th to even the match again. The title was decided on the 18th hole where the champion took a five, one over par, while his brother took a four and the title of 1934 City Golf Champion.

The new champion was awarded a silver loving cup, while the retiring champion received a pair of golf shoes donated by H. J. Perkins.

Woman Member Of Cabinet Is Leader Against Low Wage

LAKELAND, Mar. 12.—Porter's first woman cabinet member has an eager eye for such things as shop windows filled with bargain price frocks.

To Frances Perkins, new secretary of labor, price tags unreasonably low suggest the possibility of great shop conditions for the girls who make the dresses.

New York, under her direction has been active in attempting to eradicate the sweat shop.

Not only sweat shops, but old age pensions, unemployment insurance, minimum wage laws, labor exchanges, fuller statistics on unemployment—all of these which have engaged her attention on a state-wide scale now become points of attack on a national basis.

Miss Perkins speaks her opinions in an even calm voice, but her sparkling brown eyes belie any lack of interest.

She is of medium height and medium stature. Her black wavy hair surmounts a high wide brow. She smiles easily, gestures little.

With a master's degree in sociology from Columbia University and with many years of practical work as a social welfare worker, she has spent much time since she left Boston, her birthplace, studying labor's problems, and seeking to solve them.

She urges high wages, believes most employers agree that they are necessary for sustained purchasing power. She has studied England's "dole" and is convinced some form of unemployment insurance will come to the United States.

As New York's industrial commissioner she has argued with the federal government as to the accuracy of the latter's figures on unemployment, quoting New York's figures to support her contention that the government's estimates were too low.

Campaign To Raise Sum For Southern College Is Put Off

NEW YORK, Mar. 12.—America's financial community today was discussing the Aldrich plan for sweeping banking reform, and the name of Rockefeller came often to many lips.

In fact, in some quarters the prospect of far-reaching measures which would drastically change present banking practices relegated the financial crisis to a position of secondary importance.

The arraignment of certain banking and investment methods by Winthrop M. Aldrich, the new and comparatively youthful head of the Chase National bank, appeared but one of a chain of incidents showing that at least some leaders in the world of finance are not opposed, but actually in

Hitler Wins Big Victory In Poll Held Yesterday

(Continued from Page One) yesterday's election is partly explained by the fact that a six-month residence in a city is required, while for state and national elections there is no such regulation.

For this reason, Chancellor Hitler and Dr. Wilhelm Frick, minister of interior, could not vote.

The government's success yesterday automatically resulted in the removal of Dr. Brüning, whose resignation was demanded by the Reichstag.

Normally, commercial banks throughout the country take participations in the underwriting of securities, which are then sold to customers. Such operations will not be permitted to underwrite securities, a provision which would have revolutionary results and involve many intricate aspects.

Sharply varying opinions were met with in a caucus of Wall Street officials, regarding Aldrich's views on commercial bank activity. His recommendation that commercial banks should no longer be permitted to underwrite securities, a provision which would have revolutionary results and involve many intricate aspects.

At the office of the Guaranty Trust company it was learned that William C. Butler, president, does not feel it is necessary to be stampeded into action. The Guaranty company has never had the widespread distributing machine possessed by the Chase and National City banks, nor has it occupied such a dominant position in the capital market.

The First Security company was never a security affiliate in cases of being public distributors, it was explained Thursday. In a letter to stockholders, early last year, Jackson H. Reynolds, president stated that the company had never been engaged in trading in securities but, rather in the holding of long time investments.

HERMES

By a CRIPPLED BEGGAR

Crouch and grovel on the temple steps. And watch the white-robed throng go slowly by. They scan my curst deformity with harden'd eye.

—By H. R. Nicholson.

Under the new banking act currency will be issued on all security except cats and dogs.

And one of local young bloods expressed himself so vigorously against these gold hoarders that the crown dropped off one of his teeth.

As one fellow writing for a newspaper declares, if the banking moratorium marks the end of the depression, the secretary of the treasury will be the Woodin of the depression.

Arthur Brisbane, true to the first love of his employer, says that wasn't any earthquake at all which struck California, just a couple of mild shakes. A farewell to milk shakes probably!

Federal guarantee of bank deposits is a measure to help the banks pay off their depositors after they have closed. We prefer the other method of making them remain open so they can pay off without closing.

Adolph Ochs, of the New York Times, predicts that this country is on the eve of an unprecedented era of prosperity. Ouch! Drat those prognosticators! Until this happened we had begun to believe things were getting better.

Four of Florida's representatives, including Mark Wilcox of the fourth district, voted in favor of President Roosevelt's economy bill calling for reductions in veterans' appropriations and other government expenditures. Only Joe Lewis, of Florida, failed to support the measure by being absent.

Big men are not getting the breaks these days. Mayor Cermak is fatally wounded by a shot intended for Roosevelt. Senator Walsh suffers a heart attack and Senator Howell dies of double pneumonia. French Strother, Hoover's secretary, also dies of pneumonia. May he be just a coincidence. Or may he overwork economy in connection with public relations men had something to do with it.

All the bank failures we have in this country during the ten years (ten or twelve depending on number) only about $100,000,000 in deposits have been lost. That is, of course, a lot of money, particularly if it is for savings which are frozen in connection with the total loss of $100,000,000 in the hands of the banks. It is a lot of money, particularly if it is for savings which are frozen in connection with the total loss of $100,000,000 in the hands of the banks.

History Repeats

If any one beneficial thing seems about to come out of this depression, it is a curb on gambling, a check on speculation with other people's money, a correction of the errors of the ways which brought on the depression. And yet we wonder! We have had depressions before. We have emerged from them. And we have gone back into them.

The following extracts taken from "A History of the Thirty Years' Peace—A. D. 1816-1848" by Harriet Martineau dealing with a similar world wide depression over a hundred years ago, particularly as it affected England, indicate that human nature is pretty much the same throughout the ages and that depressions which come will finally go:

It is not altogether rapacity which instigated the follies of 1824 and 1825. Too many were eager for gain, making haste to be rich; and of these the sharpest of society made an easy prey; but with many more, the charm was in the excitement—in the pleasure of sympathy in large enterprises—in the arousing of the faculties of imagination, and conception, when their field of commerce extended over the Pampas and the Andes, beyond the furthest seas, and among the ice rocks of the poles.

Early in the spring of 1824, gold and silver were exported to South America; yet nobody appeared to observe that there was too much money abroad. In June and July, there was a decided fall in the exchanges with the Continent, and for three months of the next year, and it was not until the end of that time, in the spring of 1825, that even sagacious men of business began audibly to prophesy the evil to come.

Between June, 1824, and October, 1825, from ten to twelve millions of coin and bullion were exported; and during the greater part of that time, the Bank of England was still putting out its notes, and the provincial banks issued as many as they could, till the country was deluged with paper money.

Many a man set up for a banker who would, at another time, have as soon thought of setting up for a king. Lord Liverpool complained, after the crisis, of the system which allows any petty tradesman, any cobbler, or cheesemonger to usurp the royal prerogative, and to issue money without check or control. There was a perfect mania of competition in making paper issues.

It would have been well if the rage for speculation had been confined to men engaged in trade. The madness spread everywhere. Some who went on in their ordinary course, untouched by the madness of the time, were reproached for injustice in their families, in declining to help themselves from the stores of wealth which were poured out all around.

After a weary and dreary season of suspense, affairs began to mend; but so heavily, that even the king's speech, which is understood to make the best of everything at all times, declared, in the next November, that the depression had abated more slowly than his majesty had thought himself warranted in anticipating.

Still, the depression did pass away. Our ships were once more abroad upon the sea; and the clack of the loom and the roar of the forge were again heard in our towns.

Condolence For California

California's recent earthquake, according to latest reports, was not as serious as had been earlier thought. At this writing 119 deaths have resulted and several thousand persons have been injured, and upwards of $45,000,000 in property damage was inflicted.

Like Florida, which periodically is visited by hurricanes, the Golden State is always under the threat of these earth tremors. They have occurred at almost equal intervals since there has been a record of the state.

The fact that the recent disaster did not cause a greater toll in deaths and property damage is probably due in no small wise to the advancement of building construction along earthquake-proof lines. After all, this is the only way to cope with the earthquake menace, just as the only guarantee against destructive winds is an airtight building code.

It is regrettable that earlier reports which were broadcast by quavering radio announcers carried a spectre of tidal waves, vast death lists, famine, pestilence, and horror. They are merely attempting to enter the field of news dissemination which they, by experience, are not capable of handling. It remained for the qualified press services to present a true and accurate picture of the situation.

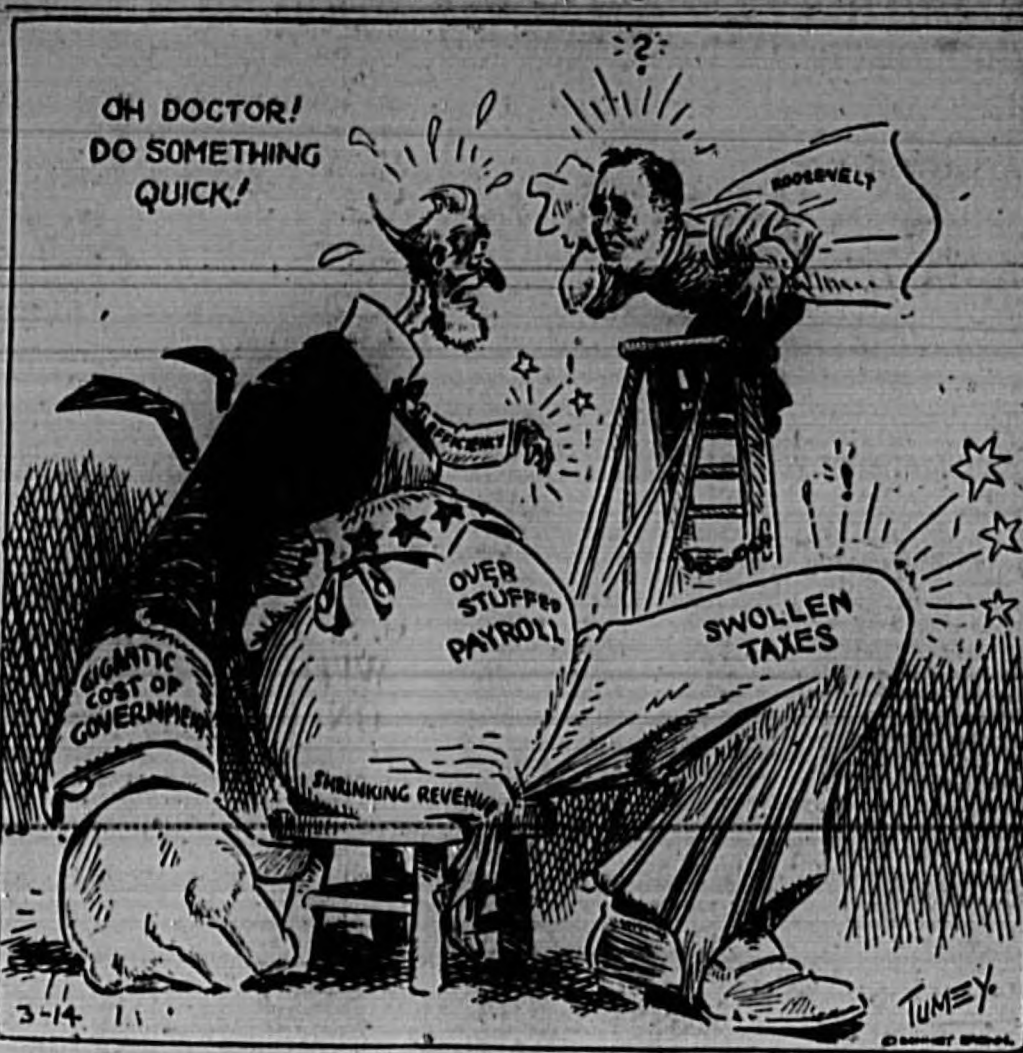

People of this state have a sympathetic feeling for California in its present distress. We, too, have had our calamities and can appreciate the difficulties and problems which are facing our proverbial competitor state. But we know that Californians will accept their misfortune philosophically and in the spirit of Will Rogers, who said: "California having the best of everything else, must take a slice of the calamities."

This is much the way Floridians feel about the hurricanes which sometimes smite us. We know that we have a monopoly upon nature's gifts and are willing, in view of this, to undergo a little unpleasantness now and then. Further, even if we wanted to, we don't know any spot in the world where we could go and live in absolute security without fear of dangerous elements. As Mr. Rogers says: "Even New York has its Wall Street."

A Serious Case

ROMANTIC GOLD

NEW YORK HERALD-TRIBUNE

So many people have been holding gold in recent weeks that many will probably be interested to learn that some of the metal they held has romantic associations, if not all of it. Very little gold has disappeared from view in the history of the world, and all of it, at some time or other, has been involved in important episodes and periods of history.

After a weary and dreary season of suspense, affairs began to mend; but so heavily, that even the king's speech, which is understood to make the best of everything at all times, declared, in the next November, that the depression had abated more slowly than his majesty had thought himself warranted in anticipating.

Soviet Sentences Farmers To Death As Object Lesson

MOSCOW, Mar. 14.—(AP)—In sentencing 35 agricultural employees and executives to death and 40 others to eight or 10 years in prison, the soviet state has again given what it calls an object lesson to rich but backward regions.

The chairman of the state political department announced that the sentences had been carried out, following a trial by members of the OGPU—the secret police—on charges of counter-revolutionary activities and sabotage in the Ukraine and north Caucasus.

Fifty-five great leaders are invited to Washington by a Senate committee to explain the causes of the depression and to suggest cures. If the nation can pull through this ordeal, it bears a charmed life.—The New Yorker.

Stokes Is Awarded U. S. Seed Contract

The Stokes Seed Co., of Sanford has been awarded the contract to supply the seed to be furnished by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the relief of the unemployed in Florida for the coming months. The contract was signed recently, and the local seed company will furnish 245,000 pounds or 100 tons of seed under its terms.

What this means locally is that 100 additional local persons must be employed at once to handle the work of preparing 50,000 collections of seeds, each to contain 17 varieties of vegetables and to weigh four pounds. This bag of seeds will be supplied to worthy families throughout the state through county welfare groups, so that the families may raise vegetables for their own use during the spring and summer months.

Real Estate Has Much Activity In Orlando Recently

ORLANDO, Mar. 14.—During the past week, when the entire country was in turmoil, real estate activities in Orlando showed a definite pickup with sales and rumors of sales running the streets like wildfire.

Latest announcements are by the McNutt-Hensley Co., and others are in abeyance—not because the real estate men haven't received the money but because they are deferring to wishes of their clients. Here are three transactions announced by the McNutt-Hensley office and L. R. Nydegger, their associate.

A local business man purchased the large two-story residence at 213 Whitler Circle, in Copeland Park. An out-of-town resident purchased a home at 21 South Lake Street, belonging to the Inland Investment Co. Another large two-story residence at 717 W. Colonial Drive was sold to a local business man.

These properties were all sold for homes and will be occupied in the near future by the new owners. From these sales there is a general indication that the business man of Orlando believes that local real estate has reached its lowest point, and that they are willing to invest in good property for future homes.
