Hospital: More $$

Seminole Memorial Hospital is preparing to raise its current tax millage almost four times the current rate upping its income from that millage from $242,000 annually to about $950,000, the maximum allowed by law.

The increase would first be felt by taxpayers on next year's The millage hike will be presented to county officials in late June, so that it can be included in the commission's budgetary review in early July, according to Hospital Administrator Charles

The hospital's current millage rate is $.16 per $1,000 assessed valuation. The hike would be to $.65 per $1,000 assessed valuation. The $242,000 the hospital receives on the current millage is used to cover the facility's bonded indebtedness and budgetary shortfalls, according to Bentley

The increase in millage will be used to "cover the cost of indigent care," said Bentley. "The total cost of indigent care, not

Bentley said he has already held preliminary discussions with county officials to iron-out details of the millage increase. "We've given the budgetary people in the county notice that we will be asking for close to the maximum millage we are allowed," lawsuits from auto accidents to commented Bentley. Bentley said the reason for the increase due to the high cost of providing indigent care.

A final determination on the amount of millage increase to be requested will be made when final figures on the expense of indigent care are figured in June, Bentley said. The increased millage may also be used to pay doctor's fees for indigent birth care, according to Bentley. However, he cautioned that would only be considered if the millage would provide the manent injury. The hospital's board of trustees voted in mid-April to stop paying obstetricians $275 per indigent delivery and $25 to pediatricians for infant care resulting from those deliveries. Monday, the board reaffirmed that stand. The hospital by-laws state that no member of the hospital's medical staff, "or other doctor attending free patients," shall receive compensation for their services. However, the hospital board voted in November 1976 to pay obstetricians and pediatricians in indigent care. A report to the county commission from Troy Todd, director of Human Services, in late March advised against the commissio paying the doctor's fees out of the county's general fund. Todd's report recommended the commission maintain "the status quo." He cautioned the commission might open itself to payment to all physicians for all indigent care. "There is a request of Seminole Hospital from a medical staff member for payment of specific fees for surgical operation for indigent patients," according to Todd's report. "Such request is county commissioners) would be asked by individual doctors to pay for medical services if BCC were to pay obstetricians for indigent delivery." Seminole Memorial Hospital officials claim they have paid out over $50,000 in doctor's fees since instituting the payment policy Dr. Vincent Roberts wrote the hospital board in February 1976 stating he would not perform indigent deliveries on nights he was not on call. However, he continued to perform such deliveries. Roberts said then, and has continued to maintain, that the indigent cases are more than two obstetricians can handle without

Albert Dallabrida Sr., sat nervously at the defense table this morning, sometimes leaning forward in his chair, occasionally wiping at his eyes as his lawyer recounted events leading up to the van-truck collision that killed his wife and three children. "What if" was the theme set by Dallabrida's lawyer Ronald Brooks — defending the 53-year-old Sanford man charged with four counts of manslaughter - during closing arguments today... the third day of the circuit court trial.

Brooks was attempting to emphasize to the six-member jury that the cause of the Oct. 28, 1977 accident in front of the Burger King restaurant on U.S. 17-92 in Sanford had not been established. Only about 25 persons were in the spectator seats this morning as both the prosecuting attorney, Ralph Eriksson and Brooks, made closing arguments to the jury.

"What if Mr. Dallabrida's vision was impaired because of glaring lights... What if another contributing factor was that the driver of the truck was driving too fast ... What if when Dallabrida looked up he thought, just for an instant when he saw the truck, that he could make it into the restaurant?" Brooks asked the

As for the third point, he said the testimony of chemist Kenneth Dale Livingstone that the alcohol content of Dallabrida's blood was .21 per cent was prima-facie evidence of intoxication.

The blood sample was taken at Seminole Memorial Hospital about one hour after the accident. Erikason noted that .10 per cent is legal intoxication as defined by the state legislature. "He had twice as much as necessary," Eriksson said.

'Distortion Of Rights'

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A State Department statement, referring to the harsh sentencing of Soviet dissent Yuro Orlov and cleared at the highest levels of the administration Thursday, said "to punish activities aimed at increasing free expression of opinion as 'subversive' ... is a gross distortion of internationally accepted standards of human rights."

Orlov, who helped found a group to monitor Soviet compliance with the Helsiniki agreement on human rights, was sentenced to seven years in a prison camp for anti-Soviet activities. In addition to the U.S. administration other Western governments also denounced the trial and sentence.

Taiwanese Or Red Chinese?

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Four of the U.S. lawmakers, who traveled to China in January, agree relations with the world's most populous nation should be normalized but were not willing to endanger Taiwan, saying. "We have historic commitments to Nationalist China and should not take action which would place these allies in jeopardy."

However, the other six of members of the congressional delegation are calling for action this year to break the U.S. defense treaty with Taiwan and give full diplomatic recognition to

(UPI) - The ballot counting in the Dominican Republic's disputed presidential election resumed briefly Thursday, but was halted again when soldiers were charged with denying opposition representatives the right to observe the vote tally, as provided by law. In the meantime both incumbent President Joaquin Balaguer and his opponent Antonio. Guzman claimed victory. In an emotional, 25minute television address Balaguer promised the winner will be allowed to take office, but blasted Washington for interfering in Deminican affairs. The United States has been pressuring him to complete the ballot.

25 Thoroughbred Horses

Killed In Race Track Fire

CINCINNATI (UPI) - At least 25 thoroughbred horses died in a fire at River Downs race track early today. Twenty-three of the horses burned to death and two had to be killed because of injuries.

Three barns, valued at about $200,000, were also destroyed by the blaze which was believed to have been started by a short circuit in an electrical wire, authorities said. Track Manager John Battaglia said it would cost at least $200,000 to replace the barns that housed at least 80 horses at the time of the fire. More than 50 horses survived and several were roaming the countryside near the track at dawn

Two injured employees - Paul Hostuler and Bobby Todd - were treated at the scene for arm and shoulder burns.

Rigged Long Johns?

RICHFIELD, Utah (UPI) - A set of explosive-laced long underwear that was found a week ago has been turned over to the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms for analysis, Sheriff Rex Huntsman said.

Sewn onto the underwear was a black hood and covering for hands and feet. Running along the arms and body was Primacord, an explosive about the thickness of a pencil and more powerful than dynamite.

The Born-Again Republicans

Like many historical developments, the resurgence of the Republican party, now proceeding apace, has come about hy small degrees and in surprising, unassuming ways.

Republicans are quietly being born again, but the reality of their resurrection from disgrace and defeat has become sufficiently apparent to worry some of the more alert Democrats.

The Tidewater Conference of elected GOP officials at Easton, Md., held the first of this month. proved to be both a harbinger and determinant of Republican renewal.

No one was more surprised than the participants themselves at what happened.

Conservatives, moderates and liberals who went expecting a bloodletting over party principles, instead found themselves in a love feast - a rare occurrence among Republican chieftains. "I came here prepared for a fight," liberal Sen. Jacob Javits of New York told newsmen, "but I find I am in agreement with virtually all of the proposals that have been made." This of course, is not to suggest that the Republican office-holders lurched leftward at

Rather, it was a case of liberals and conservatives finding consensus in their opposition to Carter administration policies.

And their agreement on foreign and domestic resolutions moved House Minority Leader John Rhodes to exultation over Republicans speaking "with a common voice." The GOP's new common voice has suddenly shaped itself into a unified congressional force in opposition to President Carter.

All 38 GOP senators have signed a manifesto attacking the president's foreign policy; they charge that it is "compromising our ability to defend itself."

The significance of this is that Mr. Carter can no longer count on assistance, as in the past, from liberal and moderate Republicans now arrayed Moreover, fresh clarity and power have been given to the GOP's sometime jaded philosophy by a potent new book, "A Time for Truth," by William Simon, former secretary of the treasury. Mr. Simon appeals to the innate conservatism shown by opinion polls to reside in the majority of people.

Out on the hustings, Republican prospects for the November elections appear to be the brightest in living memory. GOP candidates, generally hailed as being head-and-shoulders above the average of recent years, are themselves likewise harbingers and determinants of their party's rising fortunes.

The sweet promise of victory has attracted top candidates who in turn promise to make a political battleground of such key states as California, Texas, New York, Colorado and Pennsylvania. Equally impressive is a $9.3-million war chest, raised largely by mail contributions from a broad cross-section of citizens who feel the need for a vigorous two-party democracy.

It is precisely the requirement for a two-party balance to invigorate the political system that makes the current Republican resurgence an exciting development.

We are reassured, therefore, that the political straws point to one of the more interesting off-year elections this November in many years.

Tax 'Cure' May Be Worse

Hill turns to tax reform, it is only prudent to hide the family silver. Experience teaches that "cures" for what ails the tax system can be deadlier than the disease itself.

A case in point is the utter chaos Congress inflicted upon millions of unsuspecting citizens when it adopted some "reforms" of the estate tax in its 1976 Tax Act. Anyone who has inherited even a modest estate since Dec. 31, 1976 has no doubt learned the hard way what kind of mischief good intentions can create.

Before the law was changed, anyone inheriting property had only one thing to worry about - estate taxes, which were calculated on the basis of the fair market value of all assets in the estate at the time of death.

But reform-minded senators and House members thought they detected an inequity in that set-up. Elderly people who sold off stocks, real estate or personal property to obtain money for their declining years had to pay capital gains tax on the appreciated value of those assets. But if they were able to hang on and pass the same assets on to their heirs, the beneficiaries could sell the property without paying a capital gains

At the last second, House-Senate conferees hammering out the final version of the 1976 tax law decided to close the apparent "loophole." forth, they decreed, heirs would inherit not only the decedent's assets but also his "cost basis." If any of the inherited property is sold, a capital gains tax must be paid on the difference between the original acquisition cost of the asset and its sale price. This capital gains tax would NORM'S NOTIONS apply even in cases where the total estate was too small to require the filing of an estate tax

To ease the impact of this sweeping change, Congress provided a "fresh start" date of Dec. 31.1976. Only the increase in value since that date is subject to the capital gains tax; earlier ap-

Great Scott! Greyhounds Have A Pulsebeat!

Only a handful of spectators were in the stands Thursday night when Lyman High staged an intra-squad game, but surely all must have been asking the same question.

I'm with them. Just who were those masked men?

I mean, what do Lyman's guards mean by pulling and throwing crisp blocks on linebackers and defensive ends? Don't they know that the Greyhounds won only one game last season, two the year before and just three prior to that? The progression would indicate no wins this season.

"It's a whole new ball game," explains Bill Scott, the new head coach of the 'Hounds. The guards weren't the only ones playing with abandon Thursday night. Offensively, Lyman looks dangerous. Defensively, there are some questions, because the first offense was playing against the rest of the bunch.

Haynes' Hunches

By JIM HAYNES Herald Sports Editor

But offense is what Lyman has been sorely missing the last few years. And with the likes of Tony Rouse Kenny Young, Arthur Cleveland and Mel Melton toting the ball, and Jeff Meyers throwing it, Lyman's opponents just might not be able to look ahead next fall.

Trying to pinpoint the differences between this team and, say, last year's, it is obvious the new coach has rekindled a new vigor.

David Stevens was asked to pinpoint the major differences.

"Everything," he said. Asked to be specific, he thought a moment and said he couldn't, except to note that a new attitude had surfaced at the Longwood school.

Safety Steve Kuhrt was standing nearby, and chipped in with "the biggest difference is going to be that we are going to the playoffs."

And that is some kind of change in attitude. Some of the better football players in the school didn't even come out last season. They are out this spring, and hardly seem aware of the fact the Greyhounds only won once last season, instead talking playoffs.

Some of the best news at Lyman is that Brooks has a clean bill of health. He was hurt in the fifth game last year against Mainland. and with him the offense seemed to die. This year, it isn't just a healthy Brooks that looks dangerous. Cleveland and Young are actually the fastest runners on the squad. Two years ago Brooks and Young played on Lyman's crackerjack jayvee team. But Young moved to Plant City for last season, but is back for his senior year.

Other returnees who are weilding major roles are Darren Stevens, Mike McClanahan, Mark Fricke, Jeff Hill, Greg Theophilus, Keith Whitehouse and Tom Kleinknight.

Coaches can extoll virtues of their teams and newspaper writers can headline the hotlooking teams. But in the final analysis, the best barometer is the pulsebeat of the players themselves.

Great Scott! Lyman has a pulse after all!

Ah, You Bruins!

BOSTON (UPI) — Terrific? Certainly. Fantastic? Unquestionably. But invincible?

Not quite. The Montreal Canadiens can be beaten, as the Boston Bruins proved Thursday night in grinding out a 4-0 shutout over the twice defending Stanley Cup

The two teams face off again Sunday night at Boston Garden with Montreal leading the bestof-seven series, 2-1.

The win was a rare treat for the Bruins, who had not besten Montreal once in a Stanley Cup final series in 20 years. Also, the Canadiens had won 11 straight games in their last three Stanley Cup finals, had been unbesten in its previous 13 games against Boston, and, because the odds indicated the Bruins would not and could not

In addition to "The Bastard," "Prime Time" will present television versions of Irwin Shaw's "Evening in Byzantium" and Howard Fast's "The Immigrants."

"The Bestard," withor without its issudered title, tells the story of Phillipe Charbonness, raised by his French mother (Patricia Neal) but really the illegitimate son of Britain's Lord Amberly, the duke of Kentland.

In the opening spinode process.

In the opening episode young Charboneau tries to claim his inheritance but winds up being hounded out of England by the legitimate Amberlys and heads for the New World. He arrives in Boston in 1772, changes his name to Philip Kent and seeks his fortune as the American Revolution revs up. When Philip isn't putting down Lord North, fighting or engaging in swordplay (he was taught swordsmanship by the teen-age Marquis de Lafayette whose life he saved), he is wrestling and engaging in other sports with women whose necklines plunge almost to the navel. The whole thing is fastmoving fun, never taking itself too seriously but stopping this side of satire.

Unfortunately, in many areas "The Bastard" will conflict with CBS "The Dain Curse." It also will coincide with "Just Me and You," a romantic comedy NBC will broadcast May 22, 9-11 p.m., Eastern time.

The comedy was written by Louise Lasser, best known as "Mary Hartman," Mary Hartman."

"Just Me and You" stars Miss Lasser as Jane Alofsin, a computative talker and eater who answers an ad to share driving chores from New York to California.

The car's owner is a computer selesman (Charles Grodin) who is separated from his wife. The most exciting thing that who is separated from his wise. The most exciting thing that hoppens on the trip is a flat tire.

Miss Lasser's measurements and her character's personality made at least one viewer hope she wouldn't get the guy in the end. Actually, they wind up fully clothed, kissing in the Pacific surf. Why?

flowers, both fresh and dried, overflowing from shopping bags clutched in both hands.

Vases, baskets, bowls and other containers for flowers along with wire, styrofoam, pliers, scissors and notebooks were manhandled through the door and dropped on tables around the room.

Once in place they started shaping the styrofoam to fit their containers and working their flowers into attractive designs.

Sanford's Linda Totora has been arranging flowers professionally for five years and shares her knowledge with the public in weekly classes at Seminole Community College's Leisure Time program. "The course is mainly for housewives who want to make arrangements for their home and need directions where to hunt and shop for flowers, and how to arrange flowers," explained Mrs. Totora.

She said some of the students have been placed in flower shops working parttime after taking her course.

Mara Helms of Longwood worked carefully over a small arrangement in a China bowl, occasionally stopping to push her glasses higher on her nose. She said she was taking the course,

"mainly for fun, but hoping — with any luck — to get to work in a florist shop." Susie Smith lives in Altamonte Springs and was working with long- stemmed Cardone Puffs and adding curled strips of bamboo to the bright orange flowers.

She has always enjoyed flowers and working with them. "I've had some previous experience and this is just to further my knowledge," she said.

Most of the women taking the course were doing it for their own personal enjoyment because they enjoyed flowers and making something for their home.

Lynn Nopper of Altamonte Springs paused as she cut stems of her dried flowers.

"It's a new hobby," she explained. "I wanted things to go in my new home without spending a fortune."

Ask Dick Kleiner By DICK KLEINER

DEAR DICK: I've heard many rumors that Carrie Fisher's home in Glendale, Calif., was broken into and the criminals attacked her and mutilated her face. Please tell me the truth because I'm very worried about her. J.N., Buffale, Mo.

You don't have to worry about Carrie any more, at least not about that rumor. Her face is as good as it ever was. And, as a matter of fact, she is now shooting a movie opposite John Ritter.

DEAR DICK: Every time I see a show like "Charlie's Angels," I feel like I am the actress in the show, one of the people in it. Why do I feel this way? Do you think it's because I want to be an actress? Do you think I should try out some place to be an actress? MONTOUR, Tucson, Ariz.

Most of us, if we are caught up in a show, experience that sensation of imagining we are living a part with the rest of the cast. Nothing strange about that. I can hardly imagine "Charlie's Angels" would have that effect, but it takes all kinds. It might mean you would enjoy acting. Give it a try and see. Try out for your school plays, if you are still in school, or some local little theater group. it's another form of

DEAR DICK: Who sings the introduction on "The Love Boat" TV show? My dad says it's the bartender. My brother thinks it's the ship doctor. And I say it's the captain. Who's right? A.C., Portage, Mich.

You are a pretty wrong family. It's none of the above. The voice is that of Jack Jones. DEAR DICK: I was wondering if Don Knotts is still living. My mom says no. I say yes. AN-NETTE SORENSEN, Ogden, Utah. DEAR DICK: I have known for years that Don Knotts is Carol Burnett's brother. My daughter questions this. Did I dream it? MRS. M.J. DHAENENS, Vicksburg, Mich.

Don Knotts is still living, but he is not now nor has he ever been Carol Burnett's brother. Pleasant dreams. DEAR DICK: We would like to find out where we can get an application form and address for the '$100,000 Name That Tune" program. WILL AND LINDA SCHMIDT, Sheboygan, Wis. Write to Name That Tune, c-o Ralph Edwards Productions, 1717 North Highland Ave., Los Angeles, CA 90028.

DEAR DICK: Who's this Red MacLeish "CBS News" has doing its weekend commentaries? I know no one can ever completely fill Eric Sevareid's shoes, but MacLeish sounds like the town simpleton. What's his background? R.M. TARBY, Oswego, N.Y.

MacLeish is a veteran reporter, writer, TV newsman. He worked for ABC and UPI and then became news director of two Boston TV stations. After that he was commentator for Group W. Westinghouse. He has written a book, "The Sun Stood Still," about the Arab-Israeli wars. He joined CBS news two years ago.

DEAR DICK: Whatever happened to George Fenneman, the announcer with Groucho Marx on "You Bet Your Life?" JOHN N. DROLEN. Kalamazoo, Mich.

Fenneman is living the good life, and is still fit and happy. He retired, but couldn't stand it, so a few years ago he unretired. Now he does commercials and some announcing, and is the voice of a large savings and loan association in Los Angeles, which keeps his face on the screen every day.

DEAR DICK: I enjoyed "Black Beauty" on TV. I was wondering if the same horse plays Thunder on Saturday mornings. CHRISTINE HERENDEEN, Claypool, Ind. Yes, His name, incidentally, is Ott.

Making A Movie In Hoboken?

HOBOKEN, N.J. - They're shooting a movie in Hoboken, which is something like trying to grow huckleberries in Times Square. A movie in Hoboken? The big question is - Why? The answer is that the story is set there, the young man who wrote the acreenplay, John Herrfeld, grew up around there, and the producer, Joe Wizen, and the director, Robert Markowitz, figured it might be interesting to shoot it where it

They are trying to make capital out of it, too. They boast that this is the first film which will be shot in its entirety in the state of New Jersey since "The Perils of Pauline." In Pauline's day, Fort Lee, just across the Hudson River from upper Manhattan, was the center of the motion picture

About the only thing Hoboken can boast of now is a unique view of New York's skyline, just over there. And Markowitz is taking full advantage of that geographical quirk. They shot a lot of the film in areas where that fantastic skyline lurked in the background. It should give "Voices" a unique look. 'Voices" is a working title, and there could be fireworks

"Ill fight any title change"

about it before it's over. Hersfeld called his original screenplay "Voices," and he still likes it. "I'll fight any title change," he says. "My story is about people listening to their inner voices, and that's what it should be called. They've suggested things like 'It Happened In Hoboken' and 'Rhapsody In Hoboken.' I'll fight it all the

On the other hand, there is producer Wizan, who thinks the title is misleading — "it sounds like it's a supernatural film" and wants to change it. The battle lines are drawn. But everybody agrees that in this day and age, "Voices," or whatever it is finally called, is a different sort of movie. All the participants are young and yet it isn't the typical movie young film-makers generally grind out. Herzfeld and his script set the tome for that. There is no explicit sex, no violence, and the language is clean. "If I want realism," Herzfeld says, "I can stand on the corner and watch reality go by. No, when I go to the movies, I want heightened reality, I want escape.

no explicit sex. I want my father to see my picture. "I dislike morose pictures, like 'Taxi Driver' and 'Straight Time.' There is not one four-letter word in this, and yet I feel it is realistic. You don't need to show people making love to know that people are making love." His story is basically a love story, between a young man who wants to be a singer and a deaf girl who is a dancer. They are played by Michael Ontkean - the former Rookies co-star who quit the series - and Amy Irving - the beauty who survived in "Carrie."

Amy, playing the deaf girl, was not a dancer and did not know the sign language when she auditioned for the part. But she took a crash course in dancing and her sister, who coincidentally teachs the deaf at a school in Frederick, Md., taught her enough sign language so she can get by. She says she is now studying dancing, and finds she is enjoying it. And she is also continuing her work on the sign language and finds that a beautiful way of expression. Shooting in Hoboken, as opposed to shooting in New York City itself, has almost a small-town flavor. The police watch the traffic and passing motorists stop to chat with the cops. Hoboken is small enough so people know each other. They were shooting outside a huge coffee roasting plant with the river and the New York skyline just beyond it. And teasing the extras and whistling at the girls. They kept asking people they knew, neighborhood friends who were working in the cast as extras, for their autographs. That was the biggest joke of the day "I really wanted this shot here in New Jersey," says the plant workers on their coffee breaks strolled around,

"This place has its own flavor and it has never been put on film before. The new York skyline is always right over there. and that has a big psychological impact on you - you're just not quite in the big time, but it's always right over there." Herzfeld says he always wanted to get into the movies. As a kid, when he talked about it, he was teased and razzed, but he stuck to his dream. They day after he graduated from high school, he flew to Hollywood. "I took a cab to the Sunset Strip," he says. "And, surprise, a picture was being shot there. I stuck around and begged my way into a job as an extra, and I had one scene. That picture

'It's All Over; Kolwezi Captured'

KINSHASA, Zaire (UPI) — French and Belgian paratroops recaptured the copper center of Kolwezi today and rescued nearly 3,000 Europeans trapped and hiding from marauding rebels who had launched a slaughter of whites.

Officials said it appeared French residents of the town had been singled out for execution, apparently because French planes transported Moroccan troops to a similar invasion of the copper belt Shaba province last year. The Morroccans halted that invasion and routed the rebels back to Angola.

Italians, 14 Americans and five Swiss. From Kolwezi, Belgian transports ferried the refugees to Kamine, 125 miles north of Kolwezi where other planes, including 18 U.S. C141 transports, waited to fly them to Kinshase and on to
