Refusal To Sign Check Causes Upset In Commission Room

The Board of Seminole County Commissioners split over an open question at yesterday's meeting. Chairman Krider proposed that the Board sign a check for $10,000 to the State Road Department. Commissioner Little refused to sign the check, and the chairman's refusal to sign a payroll check for a commissioner's son.

"I believe the boy should have his pay even if it takes a new chairman," second the motion." Commissioner Little brought the matter of the check before the board of commissioners' earlier in the day, a question that exploded into sharp words and a request that the County Engineer and the County Road Superintendent be brought before the board for questioning concerning the employment of Commissioner Little's son.

Both C. W. Yarborough and W. M. Hoag, of the Seminole County Road Department, admitted before the board that they had been requested to give the commissioner's son a job. Little, following the exchange of words with the two county employees, admitted asking for the job. The motion to elect a new chairman of the board of commissioners died for lack of action after Commissioner Lawrence E. Swofford attempted to have the motion tabled.

Segregated Question Enters Senator Race

By United Press International The explosive segregated question, which has been kept in the background in the Florida senatorial race, flared to the forefront today. Sen. Spaard L. Holland, accused earlier of siding with outspoken segregationists, told voters Tuesday that "forced integration will only bring trouble" in Florida. Holland's statements came in the wake of accusations by his opponent, Claude D. Pepper, that Holland was part of the "John same doctrine Kasper preaches on duinity, bitterness and race hatred." Both candidates campaigned in north Florida today. Holland swung through Madison, Greenville, Monticello and Tallahassee, while Pepper centered his activities in the vote-rich Jacksonville area. Holland said a group in Live Oak, Tuesday had had "bitterness" in the racial question. "I want only good will and understanding to prevail, but I would not like to see us approve coercion for it is perfectly idle to try to force integration." Holland added that Pepper "abandoned Southern traditions and stood by himself, performing great disservice to our people." "He misrepresented their convictions and their attitudes and participated in the efforts brought up by ultra liberals that brought on the problem of school integration." In Miami, Pepper said, "the people are determined that they will be properly represented in Washington by a program of vigorous action which will include better legislation for the working people, increased benefits for the senior citizens and for the growers, farmers and shippers of the state." "There's going to be a change made by the people of Florida to remove from office the false-labeled, do-nothing Democrats," Pepper said. "What I have seen thus far, from Pensacola to Key West and from Tampa to Jacksonville, indicates clearly to me that the people want the service I gave them and will do something definite about it in 1940."

4 Bandits Take $700,000 In Loot From Jewelry Store

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI)—Four bandits hurled a smoke bomb in a jewelry store, broke a display window and escaped with loot valued at around $700,000 Tuesday. The smash-and-grab bandits clad in T-shirts and with handkerchiefs clamped in their teeth to hide the lower portions of their faces, worked with professional precision in robbing the Tobias Jewelry Store. Shortly after diamond rings, bracelets, necklaces and ear rings had been taken from the vault and placed in the window, the robbers struck, ignoring three other displays of comparatively inexpensive jewelry. They escaped in a blue sedan parked in front of the store. While the exact value of the loot could not be determined until an inventory, W. J. Tobias, owner of the store, estimated it at between $700,000 and one million dollars.

Dr. H. R. Wilbur, of DeLand game warden of the Seminole County Sportsmen's Association, a word picture of the program being conducted now throughout the Florida Wildlife Federation organization and in Tallahassee. Dr. Wilbur spoke at a recent meeting of the local sportsmen's organization. He emphasized a Florida Wildlife Federation meeting to be held in Tallahassee on Sept. 19 to which local delegates will be Jack Wilbur, George A. Spicer Jr., and Porter Lansing. Dr. Wilbur told local sportsmen that the first shark was taken from the St. Johns River in 1943 and that "last year 84,000 of the fish were taken or an equivalent of about 90 tons of fish." In other business coming before the Seminole County Sportsmen's report was made on Big Tree Park which was said to be "in bad shape." Muller Lake Park, said Porter Lansing, president of the club, "is clean but needs repairs." Wekiva Park is in good shape, he said, but Cameron White Park needs sign repairs and tables. Those who failed to return the buff card earlier this year and who have not received a buff Registration Card will be required to qualify during the period ending Saturday at 5 p. m., Mrs. Bruce said this morning.

According to the monthly report of State Comptroller Ray E. Green, the sales taxes collected in Seminole County were more than $10,000 greater in June 1938 than they were during the month of June 1937.

Three Inches Of Rain Fall Here Yesterday

Three inches of rain were dumped into Sanford streets yesterday all in a matter of about one hour. The Central Florida Experiment Station's rain gauge measured the precipitation which caused local streets to stand in water from curb to curb. Nearly every downtown street was flooded and those caught in the undercurrents were traveling back to work minus shoes with trousers rolled up to the knees. On First Street water stood a foot deep at the intersection at Park Ave. with water equally as deep at other intersections. Cars were stalled on Fresh Ave. as they attempted to plow through water that splashed up over automobile motors drowning them out. A few fortunate slow-movers made their way through the curb-to-curb rainwater without incident. Other areas, throughout the city, were under water with traffic halted as water came up fender high. Sanford Avenue, Rosalia Drive, Locust Ave., Mellonville Ave., Sumnerline Ave. were all under water, especially at intersections. Children made the best use of the flash rains when they donned bathing suits to invade the deep places along the rain-swollen streets while traffic ceased to plow through. Power was interrupted during the heavy thunderstorm which struck during the noon rush hour and telephones were out of order in several sections of the city. Emergency crews from both the power and telephone companies restored service immediately.

Citizens Have 3 Days Left To Register

"Even the rain didn't keep people from registering yesterday," Mrs. Camilla Bruce, Supervisor of Registration for Seminole County, said this morning. There were 87 registrations yesterday. Mrs. Bruce revealed, with 78 registrations on Monday. "These two days have been the heaviest and biggest since the books were opened," she said. In addition, Mrs. Bruce said, there were at least 80 who qualified during the two-day period this week. "There are only three more days to register if citizens want to vote in the Sept. 9 Primary and the Nov. 4 General Elections," Mrs. Bruce stated this morning. The office of the Supervisor of Registration in the Chamber of Commerce Building on First St. and Sanford Ave. will be open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. throughout this week. Those who failed to return the buff card earlier this year and who have not received a buff Registration Card will be required to qualify during the period ending Saturday at 5 p. m., Mrs. Bruce said this morning.

Commissioners Fire County Engineer

The Seminole County Engineer, W. M. Hoag, was fired yesterday by the Board of Seminole County Commissioners, in a 3-2 vote. Commissioner Homer Little proposed that Hoag be fired when he said commissioners during the afternoon session of the board "I feel that we have the wrong man at the head of the Road Department." "I'm not in favor of that at the present time," Commissioner Lawrence Swofford said quickly. "Every man in this before we would go along." However, Commissioner Swofford explained "Every person I have talked to has told me that if we held on to him (Hoag), he would save Seminole County money. Our roads are in better shape now than they have been in 30 years."

Summer Play Program Number Tops 50,000 Mark

The 1938 summer playground ended last week after seven successful weeks of activity for the youngsters of Sanford and Seminole County. Ronald Perry, recreation director of the City of Sanford, reports that nearly 2,000 different children registered for the activities conducted at 25 five city centers and 600 registered for activities at five county centers. The average attendance at the Sanford activities was over 7,000 per week in all recreation events. For the seven week period, this amounted to a participation of over 20,000. Many children attended different activities each day, attending the playgrounds in the morning, special activities such as riding or horseback riding in the afternoon and ending the day with a visit to the youth wing in the evening. The program was conducted jointly by the City of Sanford and the Seminole County School Board. The latter employed 28 teachers throughout the county, the larger percentage supervising activities in Sanford. The City employed several extra teachers and a number of college students. In a breakdown of enrollment, the playgrounds had the largest, with Pinecrest registering 225 to top the white centers and Goldboro enrolling 200 to lead the Negro centers in the special activities which included music, story, golf, bowling, tennis, etc. Mrs. Mary, supervisor, was skilling was the most popular, with 161 enrollments and horseback riding second with 88 riders registered. The young wing of the city center was in use five days a week and six nights. The average attendance was 80 in the afternoons and 175 at night. The Castle Brewer Court for Negroes was open two nights a week with an attendance of 120 per night. Although the summer program is over, the youth wing and the Castle Brewer Center will remain open as they have during the past seven weeks. Evening activities, supervised by the recreation department, will be in effect for the entire fall, winter, and spring months. A complete winter program of events will begin in September for all age groups, as Sanford begins the first full-time year "round recreation program."

Registration for elementary students will take place in the auditorium and parents will be informed as to the room and location their child will attend. Bus routes will be explained and supply fees and insurance may be paid at that time.

Police Nab Bootlegger

A Russian refugee and his wife held police at bay in Gothen, Ind., for more than two hours before they were finally flushed from their home by tear gas. Sheriff's deputies were trying to serve warrants on Nikolai Fedorow for the illegal sale of whiskey and for operating a moonshine still. Officers were reluctant to use weapons because of Fedorow's six children, some of whom are shown here weeping as their father is led away after his arrest. (UPI Telephoto)

County's Tentative Budget Ok'd

Seminole County's tentative budget of $1,187,778.71 was approved yesterday without a dissenting vote. The Board of Seminole County Commissioners, without changing any item in the proposed money bill, agreed to approve the tentative measure that now goes to the Comptroller for okay and comes back to the commissioners for final approval. Yesterday's approval means that there will be no millage increase. However, commissioners agree that it will not take care of needed services and improvements that are demanded. "It merely takes care of the bare operation of the county," Commission Chairman John Krider said. Concerns over the possibilities of the construction of a new Health Center was expressed as well as the need for additional facilities at the Seminole County Jail for the housing of juveniles and mental patients. At the beginning of the afternoon discussion, Commissioner Lawrence Swofford stated "I am not willing to cut the Road and Bridge Fund and I am not going to vote for a millage increase." Commissioner B. C. Dodd, after perusal of the proposed budget

Ike Prepared To Face Khrushchev With Facts

By STEWART HENSLEY
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower is prepared, at the proposed Middle East "summit" meeting, to confront Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev with the record of worldwide Russian aggression and subversion dating back to 1940, it was learned today.

Officials said Secretary of State John Foster Dulles might give a preview of the American position and tactics at his news conference today.

The President will lay bare the Russian record from the Red takeover of the Baltic nations of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia in 1940 through Czechoslovakia and the brutal 1956 repression in Hungary. His aim will be to document the American position that "direct or indirect aggression" poses the principal threat to peace and stability in the Middle East as well as other areas of the world, high officials told United Press International.

Consult NATO Allies
The Chief Executive said in his last letter to Khrushchev the proposed meeting "should be limited to a discussion of the problems of the Middle East including the causes of these problems." Officials said this does not prevent him from citing history to make his case.

Meanwhile American officials were holding last-minute consultations with their North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) allies on President Eisenhower's next note to Khrushchev. It will try to nail the Russian leader down to a summit conference between Aug. 10 and 18 in the United Nations Security Council.

The 1956, which officials said may be delivered Friday, will emphasize American insistence the summit conclave be held within the framework of the council which would be empowered to set time and place and invite any additional participants it believes necessary. It will reject Soviet suggestions of a five-nation meeting including India held outside the U.N.

Will Be Held
The impression in high official quarters here today was that a summit conference will be held in the Security Council and will take place in New York, although Eisenhower has indicated his willingness to meet in any other city except Moscow.

Other summit developments worldwide included: London: Britain will tell Russia today it is willing to attend a summit Security Council conference in Geneva in a couple of weeks, informed sources reported. The sources said Britain would suggest a mid-August meeting.

Paris: The NATO ambassadors were summoned to another permanent council meeting today to try to patch up differences among France and the United States and Britain over the site of a summit conference. France is opposed to a New York meeting.

United Nations U.N. officials deny reports that Secretary General Hammarskjold had ordered a general cancellation of meetings in the belief a summit meeting would be held here.

Hymn-Loving Ohio Gives Organs Away

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI)—Claud Foster, 88-year-old inventor and manufacturer who has given away seven million dollars, is getting his biggest thrill out of passing around his last $500,000.

Each Wednesday, Foster's small office here is packed with ministers and their families, mostly from small Ohio communities, who have come to pick up a check for a free organ.

Foster will give away 15 organs each week until the total reaches 700. Then he'll tour the state to "see and hear how those organs are being used."

The organ giveaway started this way: "I used to drive around in the country on Sunday, stopping off to attend services at small churches," Foster explained. "I heard some fine sermons, but I grieved on my nerves to hear people singing to the accompaniment of an old piano that usually was out of tune."

"I decided to give those churches a good organ when I could afford. Now I can, so I'm doing it," he added.

A visit to one of the first recipients of a free organ stirred a mild uproar from the white-haired inventor when he discovered that the instrument was not being used.

"We have no one who can play it," the minister said. "It was no excuse for Foster. "Anyone who can play the piano can play this organ," he said. And before he left, the minister's wife had begun mastering the keyboard.

Agriculture News

By CECIL A. TUCKER, II
If one looks at the calendar he can see that August has been set up for institutes by our Agricultural Extension Service. The first institute is the Beekeepers Institute, August 6-8. The following week, August 11-16, is the Citrus Institute, and the third week in August—August 18-23, is the Poultry Institute. All of these will be held at 4-H Club Camp MeQuarrie. The fourth is the Castleman's Institute—a single day program which will be held at Cloverleaf 4-H Camp near Lake Placid.

For the next couple of weeks we will highlight in this column what the programs will include at these various institutes.

At the Beekeeping Institute—August 7 and 8—every phase of "beekeeping, from the egg to honey, will be covered. Visitors will register at the 4-H camp in the Ocala National Forest the evening of August 6 and a stunt night program will be led by Ray Bailey. Papers and panel discussions will be featured August 7 and 8.

One of the most interesting papers is expected to be a report on basic research in transferring nuclei between honeybee eggs of different hereditary characteristics by Dr. E. J. DuPraw of the University of Florida.

Mr. John D. Hoyle, agriculturalist with the Agricultural Extension Service, says other talks will deal with honey packing costs, royal jelly research, nectar-producing plants and beekeeping in South Florida. Speakers will include Dr. R. B. French of the Agricultural Experiment Station, Fred Hooper and C. A. Biggers, graduate students at the University of Florida, and Fred L. Stealey, president of the Subtropical Beekeepers' Association.

Panel discussions will cover beginning beekeeping, packing and production of royal jelly, and bee behavior. Beekeeping equipment and literature and foods made with 30% honey will be displayed.

Is There Hope That Western Powers Will Reach Agreement With Russia At Summit Meet

By KINGSBURY SMITH
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—What hope, if any, is there of the western powers reaching an agreement with Russia at a summit meeting in the Middle East as a leading question in the chancelleries of the world today.

Washington remained skeptical. President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles were known to be highly doubtful that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev was ready to come to any reasonable settlement with the West over the Middle East. They feared the Red ruler would use such a meeting as a propaganda sounding board to harangue the United States and Britain for military intervention in Lebanon and Jordan, and to make Russia appear as the champion of Arab nationalism.

Governance Pleas Receives "No" Reply

By LYLE C. WILSON
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. William F. Knowland is grieving some of his good friends by standing pat on his reputation of being a man who knows his own mind and who cannot be swayed.

That is a friendly way of stating that Sen. Knowland is a very stubborn man. He is being stubborn right now in refusing to abandon his seat in the U.S. Senate and his position of Republican leader to undertake an all-out campaign for governor of California.

The word around Capitol Hill and in the National Press Club, where recent visitors to California sometimes get together, is that the Republican party is headed for a classic defeat in California next November. Knowland, especially, is noted by those who discuss California politics as the Republican candidate who is in the most trouble and who needs to go home and campaign hard.

Average Family's Postage Bill About $2 More Per Year

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Post Office Department says new stamp rates will add about two dollars a year more to the average family's postage bill.

For the big business houses the extra penny for stamps will run into thousands of dollars a year, for normal billing and advertising.

Postmen throughout the country tried to give letterwriters a fighting chance by making Thursday night's final streetbox collections a couple of hours later than usual.

Hallmark, the biggest greeting card firm in the world, said it figured the average family sends out 250 cards a year, 150 of them at Christmas time.

A Hallmark spokesman said the penny hike would cost the average family about $2.50 more a year to mail out cards alone.

In addition, the federal government's postage bill is expected to go up to about $7,000,000 a year.

Is The United States A Crime Center? Close Watching Needed

Victor Riesel, whose anti-rackets columns subjected him to a blinding acid attack a couple of years ago, has raised a disturbing question about the extent of the racket system which allegedly controls crime in the United States. He reports from Paris that the Mafia, the notorious "Back Hand," now is a United States-centered group which organizes crime all over the world.

"The United States," Riesel has written from Paris, "is the world's greatest supplier of master criminals in multi-billion-dollar crime."

If the Mafia, or the syndicate, or whatever else one calls the group of mob chiefs, does run organized crime in the United States, that is bad enough. If its bloody hands also are directed elsewhere in the world by those same mobsters, that is worse. If this is true, it gives a new dimension to the problem of dealing with organized crime. The question of its truth demands intensive investigation.

Most criminal experts in the United States seem agreed that much of this nation's crime is directed by a few master criminals. The organization of this group remains shadowy. Law enforcement officials in various parts of the country suffer the handicap of not having exact data on the whereabouts and activities of those who direct the syndicate, and many of their henchmen.

This is not an insurmountable difficulty. There could be a national crime information clearing house which would keep tabs on known criminals and hamper them with constant surveillance. The need for such an information center is underscored by what Riesel has written about the international reach of the U. S. crime lords.

Such information is indeed additional proof that local law enforcement officers who know and see the passing population of people, day in and day out, should also keep closer tabs on the activities of known criminals.

The establishment of a national crime information center should in no way hamper or hamstring the activities of local law enforcement. Neither should there be a state bureau of police or crime prevention which would take out of the hands of local citizens the right to have their own protection.

It does point up the necessity of more education for officers of the law and salaries commensurate with their duties and dangers which face them every hour they are on duty and many during their off hours, too.

Secrecy Won't Be Tolerated

It is good that Congress found time, in the midst of other concerns that might have seemed more pressing, to strike a blow for freedom of information. This was done by passage of a bill that amends an old law authorizing government agency chiefs to regulate the custody and use of official records.

The former law, enacted in 1789, had been used by department heads as their logal basis for withholding information that might have embarrassed or inconvenienced them. This abuse of authority, which did violence to the concept that the people are entitled to know what their government is doing, aroused strong opposition from the nation's press.

Now the opposition has borne fruit. As is proper, access to certain data—FBI files, secrets related to national security, and other information covered by specific laws—will continue to be restricted. But heads of government agencies have been notified "that congress will not tolerate secrecy except where it is clearly justified and specifically authorized."

The abundance of our wealth and power are proofs that we do. But we also, as a people, like things to be as easy as possible. We sometimes reject challenge and discipline. There is considerable truth in the remark of those who wrote the Rockefeller Report on Education that "we may have, to a startling degree, lost the gift for demanding high performance of ourselves."

The report quotes Emerson: "Our chief want in life is someone who will make us do what we can." It comments: "People who live aimlessly, who allow the search for meaning in their lives to be satisfied by shoddy and meretricious experiences, have simply not been stirred by any alternative meanings—religious meanings, ethical values, ideals of social and civic responsibility, high standards of self-realization."

How truly do these comments reflect attitudes widespread among the people of the United States? Have we, indeed, lost much of our "gift for demanding high performance of ourselves"? These are serious questions, worth the attention of all who cherish our society as a means of developing the highest human potential.

People Like Things Easy

There has been a good deal of comment, lately, about the so-called "cult of easiness" which is supposed to be sapping the creative energies of the United States. Such criticism, as is usually the case when a way of life is criticized, tends to emphasize the flaws and pay little heed to exceptions. Yet it is well to listen to the criticism and see how well it fits the life around us.

There is plenty of evidence that "cult of easiness" is a phrase which aptly describes some aspects of American life. It is not that we don't work hard, as a people; we do, and

Naguib Is Forgotten Man Of Egypt

By WILBUR G. LANBRY
United Press International
CAIRO (UPI)—What has happened to Gen. Mohammed Naguib, the forgotten strongman of the Egyptian revolution?

Chances are you'll find him playing tennis or reading newspapers at the Al Manshi mansion in a northeastern suburb of Cairo.

It was Gen. Naguib, then 51, who led the revolt that deposed King Farouk late in July 1952, and later became president and premier of Egypt.

But the shaggy-haired, rugged, spotted general was in turn ousted by Gamal Abdel Nasser and put under arrest in November 1954. Nasser said in an interview last year that Naguib had been sentenced to 10 years' house arrest by a military tribunal.

Life of Nasser
Now, Naguib lives a life of ease

at the mansion. He cannot leave the grounds, but inside he is completely free. He even sends out for meals from Cairo's best restaurants to vary his fare.

There are reports he talks to Nasser by telephone. But Nasser last year told an interviewer he does not see Naguib.

The Al Manshi "palace" has over 30 rooms surrounded by gardens and farm plots where Naguib spends most of his day playing tennis and chatting with friends and relatives who are allowed to visit.

Occasionally he hunts pigeons and ducks.

The general still rises early every morning to play tennis, read the papers and have breakfast with his family. The newspapers and magazines he reads come from all over the world—no reading matter is withheld from him.

Naguib never misses a radio news bulletin and was reported joyous the day of the Iraqi revolt.

Has Three Wives
He has three wives. Each spends a week with him in turn. Most of his children are abroad at foreign schools—studying at government expense. Naguib himself wanted them to study abroad and often calls them by long distance telephone.

Naguib writes and receives frequent letters from relatives and friends.

But otherwise, he is the forgotten man of Egypt. The local press no longer mentions him.

"I do not seek personal power," he once said. "I want to rid Egypt of its assaults. I must, because if I fail Egypt will fall to dust."

Now he has finished his job, forced out of the way while Nasser seeks to solidify the Arab Nations.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

"This is my beloved seat
Found between Luke 9 and 10"

Science Today

By Deane Smith
UPI Science Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—That highly experienced apple-cart upsetter, Basil O'Connor, is at it again and it makes many a scientist (and non-scientist) nervous. But all the scientific apple carts he upset in the past led finally to the Salk Anti-Polio vaccine. The question now is, Can apple-cart upsetting lead to the conquest of other diseases?

Speaking from behind the scientific scene, this reporter is telling you how this man operates. It is of interest because today he is embarked on vast new enterprises in public health, and because Dr. Jonas E. Salk himself will tell you gladly that O'Connor is more responsible for the Salk Vaccine than Salk.

The way O'Connor operates is from the conviction that all enterprises, large or small, must have leadership. Real leadership, not figurehead; leadership which sets goals and directs activities toward the realization of those goals, and meanwhile prevents people from getting bogged down in their disagreements and their special interests.

All this he endeavors to do with a lawyer's strict reliance on rooting out the "facts" and then being guided only by those "facts."

Twenty years ago when he began his long span as president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, he set a goal which was the wiping out of polio as a crippling disease. It was an absurd and laughable goal then. The most learned scientists knew just about nothing about polio.

In the years since O'Connor has enraged many a scientist by asking, what does that have to do with the goal, doctor, no matter how interesting it is as pure science? Or isn't there a shorter way of getting the same results, Doctor? Or how can we have a vaccine for polio if we don't know whether the polio virus is ever in the blood stream?

This reporter has seen scientists chucking and shaking their heads, saying: "How does a lawyer dare to talk to scientists like that?"

O'Connor says he has never made a scientific decision which wasn't thoroughly backed by his scientific advisors. But the scientists who have advised—and over the years they number in the hundreds—have all had to defend their advice against a lawyer's logic based upon a lawyer's understanding of facts and goals.

No person could be more logical—or more urban—in discussion or argument than O'Connor who is now 64-years-old, with the grand manner and elegant tailoring of a duke. He is a velvet glove man, but the hand in the glove can be very hard when he can't make logic prevail and hardness seems called for.

Try and Stop Me

A NEW RECRUIT could not master the intricacies of close-order drill, no matter how hard the sergeant tried to din the various moves into his head. The recruit had just cut a gash in his nose while exercising "right shoulder arms," and the "sarge" gave up.

"Jones," he said wearily. "You and General Maxwell-Taylor have one thing in common. Both of you have gotten just about as high as you ever will in this man's army!"

The mother of seven explained to a radio audience how her philosophy had changed through the years. "When I had my first baby," she recalled, "I summoned the doctor every time he burped. Yesterday my seventh child swallowed a dime. All I did was tell him, 'Okay, sneaky pants, that dime comes out of your allowance.'"

Lebanese Mountain Rebel Chief

By Jack V. Fox
MOUNTABA, Lebanon (UPI)—Hollywood in its wildest flights never dreamed up a setting or a cast of characters like this rocky, scraggy hillside north of Beirut, the chief of the Lebanese mountain rebels.

Here in a dilapidated sort of three room of a great stone castle that would have suited King Arthur, I found a rather bored, elegant young man in a wrinkled suit of Ivy League cut and smelling of toilet water. He was surrounded by willow-like and scruffy-looking followers who broke into gasp-toothed grins at the first friendly overture.

The castle itself has 300 rooms, and long, steep flights of stairs and passages which suddenly turn into corridors and lodges that fall to the rocks below.

I reached Jumbhatt's castle after a two-hour taxi ride from Beirut, passing through at least a dozen bandit road posts with nothing more than my American passport and the garrulous amiability of my cab driver.

Leader Haida Court
In the courtyard below the castle were several hundred rebels armed with rifles, bolted hand grenades, submachineguns and cartridge belts crossed over their shoulders.

Jumbhatt is a leader of the Druze sect, an offshoot of the Islamic sect which believes that the Savior is yet to come and that he will be born of man.

I was led up three long flights of stone steps and taken into a large room with straight-backed armchairs.

Jumbhatt walked into the room followed by a strange array of men, some in uniform, some in Western style suits, but most in native dress.

Jumbhatt shook hands and mentioned me to a seat on his left. The others sat around the room, then one by one came forward to speak in Arabic.

Jumbhatt was holding court. After 15 minutes Jumbhatt turned to me.

Marine Must Go
He is an acceptable type who speaks accented but good English. He once taught at the Sorbonne in Paris.

I asked him what message he had for the American people.

He said first the Marines should go. Perhaps they were, as President Eisenhower said, helping preserve Lebanon's independence and integrity, he said. But the country must work out its own internal affairs, he said.

The rebels, Jumbhatt said, did not want Lebanon in Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic nor in Russia's, but they also did not want it occupied by American troops.

I asked if his men would fight the Americans.

Jumbhatt said they did not want to fight the Americans but would do so if the Marines came up into the mountains.

We talked for 30 minutes. Then I rose to go. Jumbhatt shook my hand limply.

All the men sitting around the wall stood up and returned my farewell wave.

Indian Monument Still Needs Work

By MURRAY M. MOLER
CUSTER, S. D. (UPI)—If Korrash Ziolkowski (Cora-shk Jewel-uff-shk), now 48, doesn't lose his health or his ambition during the next 20 years, he'll uree he'll be able to complete man's greatest monument.

It will be a gigantic—563-foot high—figure of Indian Chief Crazy Horse and his pony, "carved" out of the solid granite of Thunderhead Mountain, a few miles north of Custer.

During a recent jeep ride up the tortuous trail leading to the top of the mountain, Ziolkowski told United Press International that in 10 years of hard work, he has moved 1,164,000 tons of rock.

Thanks to the new jeep trail that permitted him to bring in better drilling and blasting equipment, the Boston-born sculptor hopes to have 3,000,000 tons off by the end of this year.

"I figure the whole mountain weighs 16,000,000 tons," he added. "To complete the job, we'll have to cut off one third of the rock or a total of 4,000,000 tons. It'll probably take 30 more years. But I'm going to do it."

Determination is one of the many things that Ziolkowski has. So he can work on the mountain in the daylight hours, he gets up before dawn to milk more than 300 cows at his dairy. Revenue from the dairy, and a new saw-mill, give Ziolkowski money to set on—and provide for his family of seven children.

The work on the statue is strictly a "labor of love." He feels America owes a debt to its Indians—and this is the artist's way of showing his appreciation.

Money to hire the two laborers who now help Ziolkowski with his drilling and blasting comes from donations and from fees charged tourists to visit a combined home and studio for a close-up look. A tourist holding a lucky number drawn each afternoon gets to close a switch that touches off the day's dynamite blast high on the mountain.

Unlike nearby Mt. Rushmore, where Ziolkowski worked briefly some years ago, the Crazy Horse statue will be completely "in the round"—like a bust. At Rushmore, the faces of four presidents are carved in relief only.

As a further tribute to the Indians, the artist hopes that—eventually, "probably after I'm gone"—a park containing a museum, hospital and the "University of North America" will be created at the base of the statue.

Illinois Group Plans War Against Glaucoma

By HERMAN M. BUNDESEN, M. D.

GLAUCOMA long has been a major cause of blindness. About one out of every eight of the 200,000 blind persons in America is a victim of this sinister eye disease caused by increased fluid pressure building up inside the eye.

Now the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness is doing something about it. The society has launched a five-point educational and case-finding program which I am confident will save many persons from blindness.

Many Unaware
In Illinois alone it is estimated that there are some 40,000 adults who have glaucoma but don't know it. Most of them probably are 40 or older, because glaucoma is primarily a disease of the middle-aged and older.

Naturally, I would like to see similar programs adopted in other states. Until they are, I'd like to keep reminding you of the possible early symptoms of glaucoma:

Frequent changes of glasses, loss of side vision, blurred or foggy vision, inability to adjust the eyes to darkened rooms such as theaters, and rainbow-colored rings around lights.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
W. R. T.: When is the best time for a person to brush his teeth?

Answer: It is usually best to brush one's teeth after eating so as to eliminate any food particles that may be caught between the teeth or elsewhere in the mouth.

Brushing the teeth immediately after eating may help prevent the growth of certain bacteria which live on food particles and cause tooth decay.

The woman who's been asking "what ever become of the little black dress" now has the answer. It is back full scale, in both crepe and wool, in both slim and full-skirted silhouettes. Designer Jane Derby features a whole group of black crepes with the Empire waistline. One of them has knife pleats falling from beneath the bosom all the way to the hem, for a silhouette similar to the Dior trapeze.

Women's Editor Describes Dior Fashion Show
By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

PARIS (UPI)—Come with me to a Dior opening and I think you'll agree the "spectacular" outdoes a first night on Broadway or in Hollywood for glamour and excitement.

There may be fewer celebrities than you'll see at the theater, but the ones Dior draws are the "cream." Even the Duchess of Windsor came Friday.

"A fever of expectancy begins several days in advance. Fashion reporters, seeing collections of fall and winter clothes from other designers, keep muttering, "Wonder what Dior will do." The excitement spreads, as if most of the people in Paris were marking time.

By the time the big day arrives, you can almost breathe the tension. I was so scared I would miss something I arrived half an hour ahead of schedule. To find I had company. Several hundred persons were clustered close to the entrance of the salon, just off the Champs Elysees.

Like opera crowds. They are like the crowds which gather to watch celebrities at an opening night of the Metropolitan Opera, or stand outside a church to see members of a society wedding gather.

But no gate crashers. Without the ticket, you have as much chance to see a new collection as the Washington Senators have of taking a pennant this year.

Once inside the five-floor Dior establishment, you are ushered up a wide, spiral staircase to the second floor. This is where the show is held—where the models will wind their way through the rows of chairs in the several rooms on the floor.

All in confusion at first, too many people for the space available. Looking to upper floors, you find the whole open stairway filled, people seated four and five abreast on the steps. And for a while there is no room to sit, they stand and lean over the railing for a look.

Bridal Gown Last
Then there is hush. And suddenly, a clear voice announces in French "treize cinq"; that is the stock number of the first costume, and the show is on.

Two hours and 15 minutes go by awfully fast, and there's the finale of the show—a wedding gown, traditional "lace" with at least all Paris firms.

The show is ended. Now all the designer has to do is watch as spreads, and is copied from Cairo to California.

Stutzman, Lewis and Ann Tamm, Jimmy and Mary McGuire, Lee and Bea Hamrick, Bob and Bru Northridge, Frank and Ann May, Dave and Lee Cunningham, Joe and Mickey Andrews, Bill and Margaret Hamilton, and Maurice and Lee Wakeman.

Schiffgen, Ken and Mary Mundy, Al and Jerry Hauerperger, Father N. W. Hubbell, Frank and Esther Riney, Ray and June Perry, Louise Carrole, and Jack and Carlie Strubling and guests, the Rainwater's.

Present were Mrs. George Dixon, Mrs. R. T. Thomas, Mrs. Fred Myers, Mrs. C. C. Byrd, Mrs. W. L. Lynn, Mrs. H. W. Rucker and Mrs. Ray Britt.

Circle five gathered in the TEL classroom for its meeting with Mrs. S. A. B. Wilkinson presiding. Mrs. Martha Marshall offered the devotional emphasizing stewardship. She closed with a poem, "High Noon."

The ladies voted to give a money gift to the circle's missionary and plans were made for the monthly missions for the month.

Enlistment chairman, Mrs. Brooks, reported on enlistments and gave a talk on missions.

A vote of thanks was given Mrs. J. B. Fields for her work as program chairman. Mrs. Drake closed the meeting with the hymn, "Blest Be The Tie That Binds."

Attending were Mrs. Isabelle Simon, Mrs. J. L. Jackson, Mrs. Wilkinson, Mrs. Marjorie Marshall, Mrs. W. P. Brooks, Mrs. G. B. Drake, Mrs. J. B. Fields, Mrs. B. C. Moore, Mrs. H. H. Newman, Mrs. Tadlock and Mrs. H. E. Turner.

General Mills Introduces New Breakfast Cereal

MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA — General Mills is currently introducing into this area a new high-protein ready-to-eat cereal which tests have proved to be the most nutritionally perfect breakfast cereal on the market. Called Hi-Pro, the new product is the only breakfast cereal that gives you more high-quality protein than the milk you put on it.

Such cereals, such as the recent Iowa Breakfast Study, have revealed that four out of five children go to school without an adequate breakfast providing proteins, vitamins and minerals. And more startling, half of all teenagers and adults skip breakfast entirely! Hi-Pro will answer many of those breakfast needs, for in addition to providing more high-quality protein than any other cereal, one serving of this new cereal will provide one-third of the estimated minimum daily adult requirements of seven essential vitamins, and substantial proportions of the estimated minimum daily adult requirements of three minerals.

An exclusive new process, developed just for this cereal, has made it possible to add the milk protein, casein, to the flaked cereal. This is the one protein lacking in many other cereals.

The Hi-Pro flake is a combination of three grains—corn, wheat, and rice. It is only by the combination of these grains with protein-rich food materials, including milk protein, that the excellent quality of protein is achieved in Hi-Pro. Flavor for the cereal rises high, too—independent home testers score the brown crispy flakes "top" in taste and appearance.

Shape not all it should be to show off a bathing suit? Well, one manufacturer (Jantzen) comes to your aid with padded bra and elasticized briefs to fit under beach wear. Both afford control, without constriction.

Palsley or floral printed challis is one of the top fabrics for fall. Designer Jane Derby shows a floral printed theater suit decorated to the ultimate. The fabric's background is covered with black paillettes.

This is the season for the "dip-over" treatment of dressy clothes. Almost all the fall collections from New York firms feature short cocktail dresses with two layers of material—a black satiny lace over a black satin sheath, for instance. Or, transparent chiffon over satin. Designer Oleg Cassini shows one dress-up frock with the underdress a slim printed organza. Topping it is a flowing cover of sheer black chiffon.

Men Are Better Antique Collectors

NEW YORK—(UPI)—Men make better antique collectors because they don't bargain-hunt as women do, says one dealer.

"It takes a man longer to make up his mind to buy a particular object," said Mrs. Mary Muller, one of 125 exhibitors in the New York Antique Fair. "But in the end he will get a really good piece of antique pewter, silver or furniture because he will pay more."

"The average woman antique enthusiast has quantity rather than quality as her goal. She'll gather every paperweight or miniature glass slipper she can find and put them on display, whereas a man will collect only the best examples in his field of interest."

"But you can't say all men are better collectors than all women, and you have to give women credit for one thing. They usually start their husbands collecting."

Town Saddened By Pioneer's Death

By Sibyl Grant

LONGWOOD.—This whole community was saddened at the sudden passing away of one of her pioneers, Bertie A. "Linnie" Hartley, this past weekend.

Mr. Hartley was born in Kissimmee, but came to Longwood 30 years ago. He was the pitcher of the Longwood baseball team in 1908, and for several years thereafter. He enjoyed participating in boxing to his younger days, and was an avid fan until his untimely death.

Linnie, as he was affectionately known, will be best remembered for his hunting and fishing feats. He had eight trophy sets of deer and a skilled hunter and woodsman, he could name animals by their tracks. He knew their habits, and habitats, there is not a fishing or hunting spot in the county that Mr. Hartley was not very familiar with.

Mr. Hartley served in the U. S. Army with forces in Germany during World War I for three years. He was a member of American Legion in Sanford.

Mr. Hartley was active until the last day of his life. On Monday he accompanied John Warren to Salt Springs, Tuesday he took a trip with his cousin, Willie Hartley. Thursday night he had supper with Mrs. Nancy Stevens, a family friend of over 50 years standing. He was stricken with a pain in the chest, which became so severe that these friends took him to the Sanford Memorial Hospital. After being admitted and treated, he appeared much better, but suffered another attack and passed away at 8 p. m.

Mr. Hartley was never married. He is survived by two nephews, Clarence C. Johns and Andrew E. Johns, both of Orlando; one niece, Mrs. Lula Gray, West Palm Beach; a cousin, W. J. Hartley, Longwood, and a host of friends, especially among the oldtimers of the area, who will miss him greatly.

Graveside services were conducted by the Rev. L. Futch, pastor of the Longwood Baptist Church where Mr. Hartley attended, at 3 p. m. Sunday afternoon.

Tractor, 2 Cars In Wreck Yesterday

LONGWOOD.—A heavy tractor of the type used to pull trailers yesterday in DeLand bounced a pickup truck that was being towed into automobiles and then into an office doorway, miraculously inflicting no injuries.

Plum, C. W. Hayes and a witness Horace Heley said the tractor or then went over two blocks through two green lights before it was brought to a stop.

The pickup truck, belonging to Constable Equipment Parts, Inc., Orlando, was driven by Wilbert Beach, 37, Longwood Mechanic. Heley said the driver applied his brakes near Morris Restaurant, DeLand, and the pickup skidded and the tractor struck it, breaking the chain.

The truck bounced off one car and the tractor hit again, knocking it into a second car, then the tractor struck the truck a third time knocking it over the sidewalk into the doorway of the Constable Equipment Parts, Inc.

Plum, C. W. Hayes and a witness Horace Heley said the tractor or then went over two blocks through two green lights before it was brought to a stop.

One of the cars struck was parked and belonged to Leon Edfield, Jr., Tarrytown, Ga. Alfman, the other was driven by John Murray Linsley, 27, Daytona Beach salesman, who saw the pickup coming out of control and stopped.

Rev. Oldsen Is Sunday's Lutheran Hour Speaker

Anyone who has ever felt sorrow—and hasn't everyone?—will be interested in the Rev. Armin C. Oldsen's message of Sunday, Aug. 10, on The Lutheran Hour over WIOD at 1 p. m.

The Lutheran Hour summer guest speaker will say, "Christ demonstrated that profound sorrow is pretty much of a private matter, not to be displayed before the curious eyes of the public. It is good for every grieving person to spend moments alone with God."

Pointing out, however, that Christ did give expression to His sorrow, Pastor Oldsen will brand as "fervidly false and harmful" the idea that brave people don't grieve, that big boys don't cry, or that true Christians don't mourn.

Services were conducted by the Rev. L. Futch, pastor of the Longwood Baptist Church where Mr. Hartley attended, at 3 p. m. Sunday afternoon.

In comparison with the 3.6 per cent increase this July over last June, last year's July collections fell 4.45 per cent under June collections. In addition, the 11.02 per cent increase this July over last July compares with a 4.28 per cent increase this June over last June.)

Over Half Of U. S. Licensed To Drive

WASHINGTON (UPI)—More than half the people in the United States are registered drivers. A report by the Bureau of Public Roads shows that more than 80 million Americans have been issued driving permits.

It also shows that 87,133,516 auto, trucks and buses jammed the streets and highways last year—more than one for every three U. S. residents.

The 1937 total represents an increase of only 3 per cent over 1936. This is the smallest climb in the number of vehicles since the average yearly 6.3 per cent gain since World War II.

New Scout Troop Being Organized In Longwood

LONGWOOD.—The Longwood Chamber of Commerce held the first of a series of three meetings to acquaint parents and members in the vicinity of Longwood with Walter Krabbe, of Casselberry, Organization Member of the St. John Area and Mr. Petach, Scoutmaster of Troop 34 of Sanford, were the speakers of the evening.

Interesting color slides were shown on scouting.

Ca. M. Whener, former scoutmaster of the Longwood Boy Scout Troop gave a short talk on what the troop under his guidance had accomplished in the past. Due to circumstances beyond his control the troop has to disband. He stated that there were supplies and a good size bank account for the new troop to start with.

The following men are serving as organization committeemen: James McEver, John Carhart Jr., Frank Brown and Paul Blevens.

By the way, the committee that more of the parents will be able to attend the second and third meetings. These meetings will be held at the Old First Baptist Church on Warren St., at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, Aug. 7 and Friday, Aug. 15.

No charter can be issued to a troop if there is not an adequate working committee formed to work with the Boy Scout Troop.

Therefore parents who have boys that are interested in scouting and friends of scouting are urged to attend these meetings.

Want to Gain Weight? Then Take These Tips

By HERMAN N. BUNDEN, M. D.

I'VE WRITTEN a good many columns about the dangers of being overweight and about reducing problems.

I must confess, however, that I have sadly neglected those of you who are underweight and wish to add pounds.

I'd like to do something about this oversight right now. If you are trying to gain weight, you should make every effort to increase your enjoyment of food and boost your appetite.

Rest and Exercise. I think it goes without saying that you should have adequate rest and exercise. Meal-times should be happy occasions. Don't take your domestic and office problems to the dinner table with you.

Between-meal snacks are perfectly all right, providing they don't harm your appetite for your regular meals. But there is another trick of this weight-gaining business which will help a lot.

I don't mean that you will be able to gain 10 or 12 pounds in a day or two. But by carefully adding a few extra calories here and there—it's just the reverse of reducing regimes—you can add weight.

Here's How. There are many simple ways of doing this.

If you have a hot cereal for breakfast, add a few raisins, dates or figs. This will give you an extra 100 calories or so without adding appreciably to the bulk.

Drink milk or cocoa instead of tea or coffee. If you do drink tea or coffee, mix some evaporated milk with it. Evaporated milk, you see, is equal to about twice the amount of regular milk.

When drinking evaporated milk, dilute it with regular milk instead of water. That way you get more milk.

When you have finished a meal, try to eat another slice, or even half a slice, of bread. Use plenty of butter and jelly or marmalade. This can add between 100 and 200 calories to your meal.

One more tip: Rich, sweet and fried foods tend to depress the appetite. So save them until the end of the meal.

QUESTION AND ANSWER. Q. M. Whener: I drink a warm drink, I pumpkin profluse. What causes that?

A. Answer: The taking of any warm beverage may cause a person to perspire, due to the effect of the warm drink on the nervous mechanism.

Man's Life Cheap On Lebanese-Syria Border This Week

By JACK V. FOX
United Press International
BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—Un here an what is now the Lebanese-Syrian border a man's life is cheap. Men are dying daily, I learn here from Beirut.

Investigative reports that 1,000 rebels led by Syrian officers had launched a heavy attack on government-held positions. With me were cameramen Bill Sauro and TMO von Robnitz.

While army sources were reluctant to go into details, it appears that a heavy attack did take place Sunday and that Syrians were among the attackers.

At headquarters of Toufek Sous, a tribal chieftain whose men now hold the front line of government positions north of Zhorta, I was told that one of the enemy killed had documents identifying him as a Syrian officer.

Czech Rifle Captured. The chief also showed me a Czech rifle captured during the battle. He claimed his forces killed 20 of the rebels and suffered only three wounded.

While we were at the headquarters, there was a rapid exchange of rifle and machinegun fire with the rebels and Toufek led his men in a charge toward the enemy positions while dust kicked up by rebel bullets spouted between their legs.

Watching from the safety of a concrete wall we saw them pour several hundred rounds into the rebel positions and then return, firing into the air very much in the spirit of having accomplished a great victory.

The whole operation smacked of Hollywood with the warriors dressed like brigades armed to the teeth with rifles, pistols, grenades and handgrenades slung around their chests in profusion.

Don't Want Ammunition. Most of the rifles are wartime German types and the ammunition is Turkish—made in 1944. The grenades are French.

Toufek said the reason he and his men are fighting the rebels is because they do not want Lebanon to be annexed by Syria.

Driving up the road from Tripoli to the front, we were stopped five times by patrols, each time, however, when we identified ourselves as American newsmen, we were waved on.

Between the last army post and Toufek's frontline positions we passed over a mined bridge which had been half destroyed and by bullet-scattered abandoned homes.

Farm fences were torn down and cattle wandered aimlessly, left behind by the owners who fled to the safety of the towns and left them to fend for themselves.

Nation Headed For Another Round Of Inflation Today

By CLYDE M. FARRINGTON
NEW YORK (UPI)—The nation headed for another round of inflation today with prices for basic materials—steel and aluminum—moving up a notch.

All the major steel companies were charging $4.25 to $4.50 per ton more on the steel products used in autos and appliances.

At the same time Aluminum Co. of America announced it was raising prices of the lightweight metal 1-10ths of a cent per pound. And trade experts said other aluminum producers soon would follow the Alcoa lead.

The new increases mean higher prices for everything from hairpins and coat-hangers to the family car. About a ton of steel and several hundred pounds of aluminum are used in an average car.

Steel costs moved up July 1 when the industry gave workers an additional 30 cents an hour under a three-year contract with the United Steelworkers.

The companies said the steel price boost, which averages nearly 3 per cent and lifts a ton of steel to about $10, will enable them to recover less than half of the higher costs.

In the aluminum industry the higher wage costs went into effect today under a three-year contract with the same union. They also amounted to 30 cents an hour.

Predicts General Increase. Alcoa stressed its price increase restores only part of a two-cent per pound reduction last April 1 when the price of the metal dropped in world markets from 95 to 93 cents as the result of large Soviet offerings.

So far the steel price increase has been on a selective basis, affecting only sheet and strip products used by auto and appliance makers.

However, Bethlehem Steel Corp. president Arthur W. Homer predicted Thursday that by the end of this month the increase will be "across the board."

Still to be affected are steel products like bars, the pipe, heavy plates and structural shapes used by such industries as shipbuilding, canning and construction.

U. S. Gets Priceless Dividend As Result Of Millionaire's Stroll

By Louis Casella
United Press International
WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI)—On a windy March afternoon 32 years ago, a minister escorted a rich man on the most expensive stroll in history.

The minister was the late William A. R. Goodwin, rector of Bruton Parish Episcopal Church in Williamsburg. The rich man who accompanied him on a walking tour of Williamsburg was John D. Rockefeller Jr.

Before their jaunt was over, Rockefeller had decided to buy the run-down little village and rebuild it exactly as it was in the 18th century, when Williamsburg was the capital of Colonial Virginia.

The project has cost the Rockefeller family $82,000,000 to date. And it has given Americans a priceless opportunity to establish a living, personal contact with their own heritage.

For most of the 18th century— from 1699 to 1780— Williamsburg was the capital of Colonial Virginia. It was here that a mumbly and embarrassed planter named George Washington accepted congratulations for his expedition against the French and Indians... that young Thomas Jefferson delivered his first speech on the inalienable rights of free men... that fiery Patrick Henry denounced the Stamp Act and challenged the House of Burgesses to make the most of his "treason"... that George Mason drafted the Bill of Rights.

Not even Rockefeller, money could bring Washington and Jefferson back to life. But the inns in which they drank, the tavern building in which they debated, the streets along which their carriages rumbled, all these have been recreated with painstaking authenticity.

The result, as more than a million tourists learned last year, is not a museum, but an educational institution. Williamsburg of

Raises Mushrooms In Old Coal Mine

SANTA FE, N. M. (UPI)—Luke Roy, 42, a former New Yorker, runs a mushroom farm 200 feet below the surface of the earth in an abandoned coal mine 20 miles south of Santa Fe.

He has been at it four months and can't fill the orders that come in at $3.50 a pound. Roy may have the best-paying coal mine in the state.

He had bought and cooked mushrooms for 20 years as a chef when he decided to raise them. His boss thought he was crazy.

But he has been so successful that one buyer has tried to contract for his entire crop at a premium price. Roy turned him down.

"So I make real good... year or two," he said. "Then what if they cancel on me? I'd a lot rather have 13 small accounts than one big one."

Roy thinks mushroom raising is easy in a mine like his. "I've got a beautiful strain of pink mushrooms," he said. "They're much more succulent than those pale white ones you get all the time."

The restored area stretches for more than a mile down Duke of Gloucester street, the main thoroughfare, and for several blocks on either side. It contains more than 450 buildings which have either been restored or reconstructed on their original foundations.

No detail has been overlooked and no short cuts taken. The glass in the windows was made by the same process used in the colonial era—and has the same imperfections. Even the gardens behind the houses are planted and tended as they were in the 18th century.

Williamsburg is the only major privately-owned tourist attraction in the world which is operated, deliberately and cheerfully, at a loss. Every cent taken in from tourists goes to help pay the cost of maintaining the town and its staff of 2,000.

But the income never covers all of the costs. The Rockefellers pick up the tab for the deficits. The price tag on that stroll is getting higher all the time.

The highest point in Berlin is at the peak of a 23-foot hill composed entirely of wartime rubble and now covered by flowers, shrubs and trees.

THE CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The Sanford Herald meets a need which is difficult to fill in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have been helpful but also courteously acknowledges the services and kind wishes of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed.

THE "IN MEMORIAM" NOTICE

It is the custom of many families in this country to commemorate a bereavement by an "In Memoriam" notice in newspaper classified columns. They find a real solace therein. Preservation of a suitable verse brings back to them tender, precious recollections. As Eliza Cook, the English poetess has so beautifully expressed it:

How cruelly sweet are the echoes
That start
What memory plays an old tune
On the heart.
Most frequently an In Memoriam is inserted on the anniversary of death. However, other dates, which in all are appropriate or meaningful are also chosen. The birthday of the departed is an anniversary. Anniversary Day, even Christmas are among other significant occasions chosen.

THE RATE

Cards of Thanks and In Memoriam notices, due to the fact they may run to considerable length, are billed at $1.00 per column inch.

Try and Stop Me
By BINNETT CERN

A GLAMOUR GIRL whose escapades are faithfully chronicled in the best gossip columns confirmed to one writer that she always jumped out of bed the first moment the sun's rays shone into her boudoir. She neglected to add that her boudoir window faces west.

A lady investor explained the secret of her stock operations to a gentleman friend. "I just look at a company's annual balance sheet," she stated, "if the total assets and the total liabilities are exactly the same, I know everything's all right!"

Two actresses who make believe they love each other, were once dining together at the Algonquin. "I've just reached the dangerous age—66, you know," admitted one coyly. "How amazing!" roared the other. "What delayed you?"

The marriage of a prominent sports magnate had reached the nine-and-tick stage; he takes the nip—and she has to look him in the bed.

Windshield Lays Egg In Chicken Safety Test

This is a first-hand report on the exciting work being done by Government scientists to make air travel safer.

By Robert J. Berting
United Press International
INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The young scientist put a dead chicken in a 20-foot pneumatic tube.

The nose of the tube extended out of a ramshackle building and pointed straight at an aircraft cockpit windshield, three-quarters of an inch thick, mounted on a dummy.

The scientist pushed a button. A chicken, a white leghorn, had been painlessly electrocuted and then wrapped in a cloth sack, shot out of the tube at 400 miles an hour. It crashed into the windshield. Glass and chicken splattered in a shower of splinters, blood and feathers.

"Well that glass will never do," said the scientist.

This was just one of the experiments going on at the Civil Aeronautics Administration's Technical Development Center (TDC) here — a 200-acre site composed largely of some disreputable-looking buildings inhabited by some very reputable technicians.

The firing of a chicken through an experimental cockpit windshield was typical of the TDC's work. Birds are a menace to air pilots. Cockpit windshields must be strong enough to withstand the impact of a large bird hitting the glass at speeds up to 500 miles an hour.

TDC scientists also are working on:

—Daylight radar displays: this involves projecting regular radar images on a TV screen, thus making the image not only larger but easy to see even in broad daylight. Present radar is almost useless unless viewed in a dark room.

—New means of handling jet airplane traffic: using simulated air traffic control centers, the FAA scientists have worked out methods of efficiently working the jets into today's piston-engine traffic patterns.

—Larger radar displays for control centers: this has been accomplished by photographing radar images, developing the pictures in seconds, and projecting them onto big tables. There, controllers can "see" departing and arriving traffic not only more clearly, but on a scale big enough to allow efficient manipulation of route information cards representing the airplanes above. The radar image reaches the table in about 10 seconds; the technicians are trying to cut this down to half-seconds.

—New types of fuel tanks which won't rupture on impact. Engineers were allowed to watch delicate destruction of a helicopter, topped with a sickening thud from a 26-foot tower. It hit the ground at a speed of 40 feet a second. The experimental tank cracked open, but in such a way that the fuel trickled out instead of in waves. ("When it sprays it's more likely to catch fire and explode," a scientist explained. "This tank has possibilities.")

—Ways to battle fires in jet engine engines. American-made jets like Boeing's 707 and the Douglas DC-8 will have their engines suspended below the wing in huge "pods." CAA tests have eliminated the possibility of an engine fire reaching a vital wing structure. At the TDC, technicians deliberately let a fire rage for nearly 10 minutes; the flames never reached the wing.

Reporters who saw some of these experiments in progress at the Center were most impressed, however, by the martyred chicken.

Spaniard Traces Alaska To Spain

JEROME DE LA FRONTERA, (UPI) — Jose Rivera Gonzalez, an amateur lexicologist, says he believes that Alaska is named after Andalusia in southern Spain.

Senior Gonzalez makes barrels for the storage of sherry in the many famed bodegas in this city. As a hobby, he likes to trace the origin of geographic names.

As to Alaska, he points out that his word was the Russian word for saying Aleutian, the original Eskimo name for both the Aleutian Islands and the mainland of the state.

"Where?" he asks. "I think the Eskimos heard some early Spaniards describe Andalusia as the paradise it is known to be. Then the Eskimos decided to name the land for their own land. Really we should speak of the Andalusian Islands, not the Aleutian Islands. Andalusia not Alas-

Balloon Heading For Stratosphere Collapses In Flight

CROSBY, Minn. (UPI)—A gigantic plastic balloon containing a female monkey, frogs and goldfish as passengers collapsed today at 40,000 feet about one hour after it started a 25-mile trip to the stratosphere.

Air Force spokesmen said it was the largest plastic balloon ever launched.

A Winsor Research Laboratories official here said it was not known what caused the failure. He did not know whether the monkey or other contents of the balloon survived.

A similar launching about the same site was destroyed by sharp air currents at 40,000 feet.

The balloon soared skyward from an open-pit mine near here at 8 a. m. (edt). The Air Force lost contact with it at 7 a. m.

The monkey was strapped with photosensitive plates to measure the cosmic rays. The Air Force stressed that the flight was planned to insure the monkey would not be harmed as a result of the test.

The frogs and goldfish, as well as onions and potatoes, were sent aloft to study any cell damage that might occur at the 25-mile altitude.

In addition, fruit flies and a type of fungus, neurospora, were included in the cargo to see if cosmic rays cause any genetic or hereditary changes.

The giant balloon, made of this polyethylene plastic, measured 800 feet in diameter and weighed 450,000 pounds. It has a capacity of five million cubic feet when inflated to its fullest.

Student Pilot Killed In Jet Bomber Crash

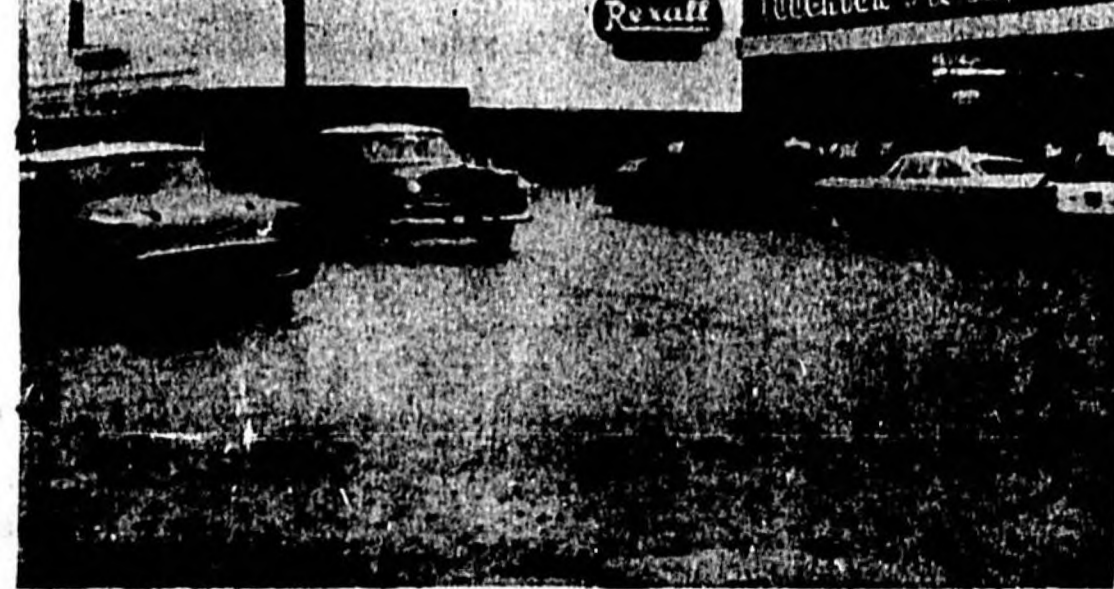

ELGIN AIR FORCE BASE (UPI)—A student pilot was killed and his instructor injured when a B-27 jet bomber attempting a takeoff crashed into three other parked planes here Wednesday.

The Air Force said the left engine of the twin-jet plane apparently failed, causing it to veer to the left. It landed on the flight ramp, and rammed into the other planes. All remained two of them B-27's and the third a small T-33 jet trainer.

Maj. Harold G. Martin, 36, Mawson, N. J., was killed in the accident. Maj. Randall L. Petty, 38, Los Angeles, received minor injuries and was hospitalized.

Officers said the plane headed at first toward a hangar crowded with personnel, but struck the other planes and came to a stop on the ramp.

The Board of Seminole County Commissioners, as a Board of Equalization, began a house-by-house inspection of homes on which taxpayers protested unequal taxes or tax inequities in comparison with other properties in the area.

This morning, the Board of Equalization heard complaints again, as applications of protest were read, along with notes by the Seminole County Tax Assessor regarding the particular property involved.

The board met primarily this morning to visit each property site in an attempt to reach a decision on either lowering tax on the particular piece of property or raising property tax on properties used as comparable examples.

It is expected that the group of commissioners, along with other officials, will take most of this afternoon to look at properties and then reconvene tomorrow to come to a decision.

The Board of Equalization this morning gave the Hunter Ice and Fuel Co. more time to have an appraisal made of their property by competent engineers. However, no definite length of time was given for the proposed appraisal.

Board Chairman John Krider stated "I don't think I am qualified to make an appraisal of an ice plant."

The question of personal property assessments took a substantial part of the morning in discussions with taxpayers who had gathered in the county commission room to take part in any discussions regarding their property on which tax protests had been made.

On a question of "Do you accept 40 percent of value on personal property?" Mrs. Mary Earle Walker replied "yes, that is the criteria set by the Tax Assessor's Association."

Officers Wives Undertake Civil Defense Project

At a recent Civil Defense meeting, attended by a representative of the Naval Officers Wives Club, various aspects of Civil Defense in Seminole County were discussed.

Feeling it was necessary to inform transient Navy personnel and dependents of Florida type weather, disasters, and Civil Defense plans for this area, a meeting was held to determine whether or not the Naval Officers Wives Club could disseminate this information.

At this meeting a few Naval Officers Wives Club representatives, including Captain and Mrs. J. D. Ramo and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Peterson Sr. It was decided that "the Naval Officers Wives Club could coordinate the material to be distributed to the various naval personnel and their families."

After much work on this undertaking, the Naval Officers Wives Club has now reached the distribution stage of this project.

As Captain L. A. Arthur recently stated in an address before the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, "Sanford is a Navy town and community relations are of the highest level."

Once more the unprecedented cooperation between civilian and Navy groups on an issue of such vital interest to all makes for a strong, sincere relationship.

the Tax Assessor's Association." However, Bralley Odham, attending the hearing, pointed out that the form requires "full cash value" and said "don't believe you have the right to make side agreements."

One person in the audience said "We were told to put down 'what we paid for everything.'"

Commission Urged To Consider Needed Juvenile Facilities

A Sanford attorney pointed out to members of the Board of Seminole County Commissioners that the present "lunatic" over-representation is keeping the county from securing a new and needed facility for juveniles.

"I represent a client and he is entitled to consideration," Attorney Kenneth Spaulding told the commissioners.

"Judge Volle A. Williams Jr. made an inspection of the Seminole County Jail at my request," the attorney said "and he found a minor of 15 years of age held in a bullpen for 22 days with adult criminals."

Spaulding pointed out the specific law to the Board of Commissioners which read that "without exception a child shall be kept in separate facilities."

"You people have put the Sheriff of Seminole County in a position of violating the law," he said.

"The family of the minor child has inquired whether or not a civil suit can be filed against the Board of Seminole County Commissioners for violation of that boy's civil rights," Spaulding told the board.

"It doesn't make any difference whether he is a bad boy or a boy that has just been led astray," the attorney said.

Spaulding explained that an order transferring the boy to Circuit Court jurisdiction has been issued and the boy is now bondable.

"That takes you off the hook, right now," said the attorney.

"Politics behind reassessment or equalization seems to be the trouble that has put you in the position of placing the Sheriff of your county in violation of the law," he said.

"I think you should give some thought to the situation even though you have already adopted your budget for the coming year," the attorney said.

Holland Says Pepper Urged Halt Of Atom Bomb Production

By United Press International San. Spessard Holland charged Wednesday night that Claude D. Pepper was so "glib" about Russia's plans for expansion after World War II that he advised Congress to discard its atomic arsenal.

Holland, in one of the harshest hitting speeches of his campaign, insisting that any such action be handled only through the United Nations. And he warned it would be dangerous to elect Pepper to the Senate.

Holland turned his campaign southward today through Perry, Cross City and Ocala in a swing which includes two radio addresses.

Pepper, meanwhile, moved in Orlando where he was scheduled to attend a labor rally and make a television speech.

Wednesday, Pepper focused his attention on the proposed cross-state barge canal and charged that Holland gave it "weak-kneed" support.

The former senator told the Jacksonville Southside Businessmen's Club that Holland "deliberately withheld" the favorable report made by the Army Engineers regarding the waterway.

Mrs. Walker denied the statement as she replied "We told you that we took 40 percent of that figure."

Attorney Joe Davis told Mrs. Walker that "The form specifically calls for 'full cash value' and the individual is under oath. Have you officially notified everyone by some public notice of your policy?"

Mrs. Walker pointed out that the Tax Assessor has the right to change a sworn statement "if we find it necessary for us to try to keep those things on an equal basis."

As protests were read, Bralley Odham contended "The progress (Continued on Page 8)

Judge Orders Case Of 'Mystery Baby' Investigated

JACKSONVILLE (UPI)—Juvenile Court Judge Marion W. Gooding today ordered an investigation in the case of a "mystery baby" who was placed in a boarding home here two weeks ago.

Gooding also issued a warrant for the arrest of Robert C. Chunn, 31, a short-order cook who is accused of putting the little girl in the home "without the knowledge and consent of its mother."

The probe was ordered following a hearing Wednesday in which Gooding said he was "not satisfied" with the story by Mrs. Betty Lou Hatata, 21, of Youngstown, Ohio, who claims to be the baby's mother.

Mrs. Hatata told the court that she and her husband, Dan, last March took the baby from their home in Youngstown, going to Orlando to live with friends.

She said she worked as a waitress for Chunn at Orlando and two weeks ago, the pair left the city on route to Atlanta. They got as far as Jacksonville where Mrs. Hatata got a job as a waitress.

The mother said Chunn took the baby to a nursery and she did not know where her daughter was until a story concerning a "mystery baby" appeared in a local newspaper.

Mrs. Hatata appeared at the juvenile shelter Tuesday to claim custody of the child and Gooding ordered a hearing in the case. He ruled against giving custody of the baby to Mrs. Hatata until the matter was more thoroughly investigated.

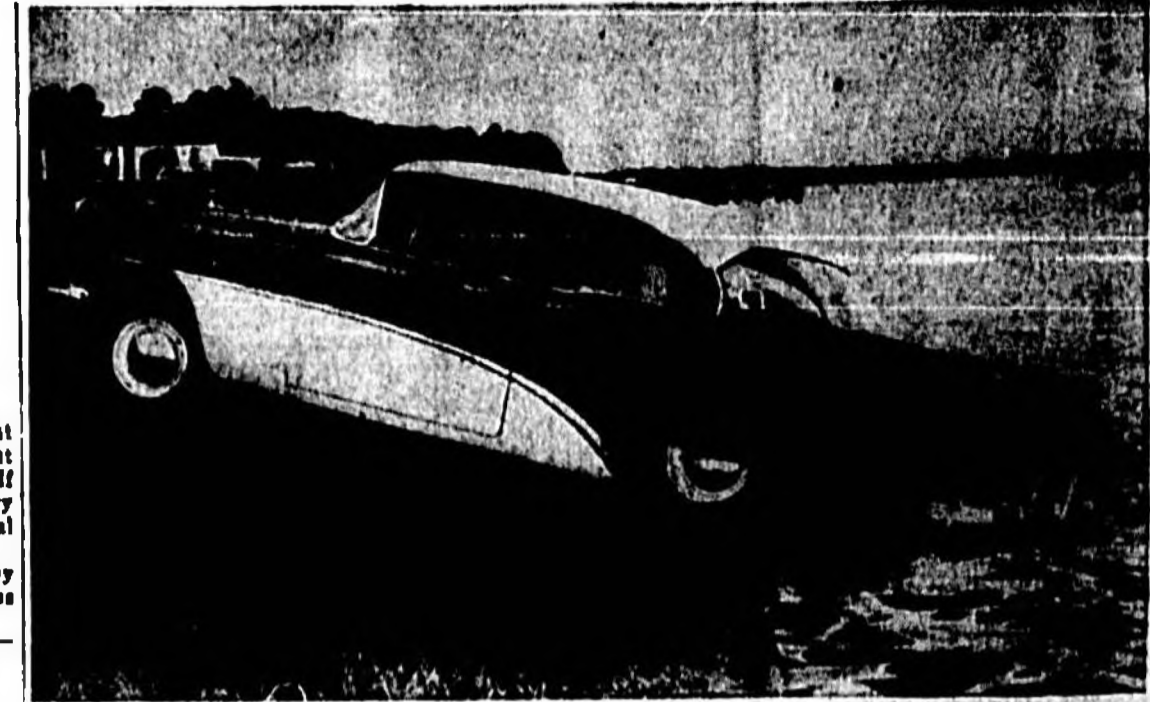

Boy, 10, Thought Dead Recovers From Operation

GREENVILLE, S. C. (UPI)—A 10-year-old boy who had been given up as dead recovered today from an appendectomy.

The youth, Warren Crosby Hoag, of Greenville, was found prostrate behind a service station Tuesday, authorities said. Station attendants, believing him dead, sent him to a funeral home.

Members of the mortuary staff detected signs of life and summoned police. The youth was rushed to a hospital.

Doctors found the boy was suffering from acute appendicitis and operated immediately. His condition was reported "fair" and medical attendants said chances of recovering were good.

THIS AUTOMOBILE SKIDDED into a position just off the Lake Monroe sea wall yesterday shortly before 12 o'clock. Damage was light, said FHP Patrolman Olin Garrett. Driver was 16-year-old Julian Markham Jr. of Sebring who was headed for Daytona Beach. The accident occurred during a heavy rain when he skidded 150 feet when brakes were applied. (Staff Photo)

Undersecretary Says Talks With Nasser 'Very Satisfactory'

BEIRUT (UPI)—Deputy Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy, shrugging off a snub and a spate of anti-American propaganda, said in Cairo today that his meeting with President Gamal Abdel Nasser was "very friendly and... very satisfactory."

Details of the Murphy-Nasser talks were not announced officially, but informed sources said the Arab leader repeated his demand for the withdrawal of U. S. troops from Lebanon.

In Lebanon, the hull that followed Gen. Fuad Clichah's election to the presidency continued unbroken today except for some minor squabbling between outgoing President Camille Chamoun and his political foes.

Chamoun told Parliament speaker Adel Osseryan that Premier Sami Sidh's cabinet will remain in power "as long as I am president." His term ends Sept. 23.

The 14,300 U.S. troops who were rushed to Lebanon to guard the nation against indirect aggression from Syria remained quietly in their camps. American Protestant residents of Beirut sent them some cakes today "to give the boys a touch of home."

Other developments: Amman-Anglo-American supply flights from Cyprus to Jordan, cut off at Israel's request following threats from Russia, resumed at least temporarily Wednesday night. Britain was reported preparing to fly troops up from Agaba to reinforce its Amman garrison.

Tafi-Arabia's King Saud met Egyptian Field Marshal Abdel H. Amer in this Arabian resort in what appeared to be a new effort to patch up strained relations between Saud and Nasser. Italian Cairo indicated that the meeting was cordial.

6 Die As Tankers Collide In Fog, Burst Into Flames

NEWPORT, R. I. (UPI)—Two tankers, one loaded with a million gallons of gasoline, collided in dense fog and burst into flames off Ft. Adams today, spilling crewmen into a fiery sea.

Of the 20 men aboard the two ships, six were known dead, nine were listed as missing and 25 were taken to hospitals, several critically burned.

The larger ship carried 20 men, the smaller, 18.

The larger of the ships, the 10,000-ton S. S. Gulfport of Philadelphia, still was burning out of control at 9:30 a. m., two and a half hours after colliding with the coastal tanker S. S. Graham in a half-mile wide channel at the entrance to Narragansett Bay.

The flaming 200-foot Gulfport went aground not far from the wreckage of the Norwegian tanker Bettyville which ran aground last September during President Eisenhower's vacation here.

The Graham went aground at the southern tip of Rose Island.

Explosion on Contact Preliminary reports indicated both ships exploded on contact, the Coast Guard said at Boston. A spokesman said neither ship had time to put lifeboats in the water.

Engineer Melvin J. Wroten, aboard the fully loaded Graham, said "It was like a stick of dynamite. It was awful and it was beautiful and, oh my God, I lived through it."

Dunn Shocked By Board Action

"I am shocked by the action of the Board of Seminole County Commissioners when my opponent B. C. Dodd, and Commissioners Fred Dyson and Homer Littleford County Engineer W. M. Hoag," Vernon W. Dunn told the Sanford Herald yesterday.

Dunn said "There is not the least doubt in my mind that the reason Mr. Hoag was fired is for some reasons other than they prefer."

"The county road department is a highly important agency in the operation of our county government and the development of our county," Dunn said. "It needs a god engineer such as Mr. Hoag," said Dunn.

He emphasized the fact that the Seminole County Road Department needs a business-like administration based on sound engineering principles and it needs roads built on the basis of proven need to serve the most people of this county instead of just a few.

Dunn pointed out in his interview that the county road budget for 1958 includes expenditures of $148,000 worth of so-called free labor. This budget item is for personnel to operate machinery to drive trucks, to dig ditches, and to surface roads. This personnel needs competent supervision and planning.

"The 1958 budget further includes an item of $20,000 for equipment maintenance for trucks, road graders and other machinery. This machinery and the men operating them will use, according to the county budget, $20,000 worth of oils and greases," he said.

"This county road department will purchase and use it to be used $100,000 worth of road materials and there is another item in the budget of $60,000 for road machinery and equipment," he pointed out.

These expenditures constitute large sums of money, said Dunn, and it is necessary to have a capable department to direct the work of the personnel; to direct the use of machinery; to engineer and properly plan road construction and road maintenance for the proper development of a county road system and a proper and adequate drainage program.

Dunn said emphatically "This money and machinery should be spent in the interest of the general public and for the general good of all of our county and not spent at the personal whim of some of those elected to public office. Our road program should have the interest of all of our people at heart and not just the special interest of some of our political office holders and friends."

ground in road construction and he refused to continue to operate the county road department in the inefficient manner in which it had been operating for years."

Dunn pointed out that "The inefficient methods that Commissioner Dodd and the others prefer is so expensive, in my opinion, our people cannot afford it. Waste, inefficiency and political favoritism far too often have been the guide rule of the system that they prefer."

"The county road department is a highly important agency in the operation of our county government and the development of our county," Dunn said. "It needs a god engineer such as Mr. Hoag," said Dunn.

He emphasized the fact that the Seminole County Road Department needs a business-like administration based on sound engineering principles and it needs roads built on the basis of proven need to serve the most people of this county instead of just a few.
