Bernier gets 5 years in death of infant

SANFORD — An Altamonte Springs man was sentenced to five years in prison Wednesday followed by 10 years probation for killing his infant daughter.
David Bernier, 20, was convicted of third-degree murder and child abuse in January in the death of 3-month old Kaitlin. Bernier claimed the baby was accidentally injured when he fell over a broken recliner footrest and fell on the child. Bernier was babysitting while his wife worked Oct. 29, 1993 when the death occurred.
Prosecutors said Bernier squeezed the infant to death when she wouldn't stop crying.

More people working Seminole County unemployment less than last year

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County unemployment statistics were higher in January 1995 than in December 1994, but lower than January of one year ago.
The latest figures have just been released by the State of Florida Bureau of Labor Market Information.

Meanwhile, Manpower Inc., in Orlando, is predicting a sunny job climate this spring in Central Florida based on its second quarter employment outlook survey.
According to the State Labor organization, with an estimated present workforce of 187,755 in the county, 177,950 are employed, for a 5.2 percent unemployment. In December, unemployment was 4.2 percent, but statistics show the county had 2,544 more employable workers.

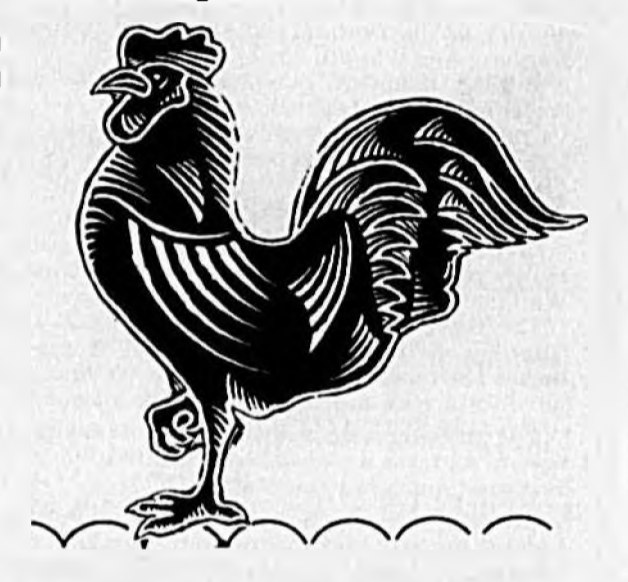

Figures are considered preliminary at the present time, however, but the final listing of numbers on the labor force has been relatively similar to other preliminary findings.
Seminole County is part of a larger group, the Orlando Metropolitan Statistical Area (MSA). The area consists of Lake, Orange, Osceola and Seminole Counties. In all, the January unemployment figure was 5.6 percent, overall.

Downtown historic district: Something to crow about

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — While residents of the Sanford Downtown Historic District may feel their neighborhood is something to crow about, this is not what they had in mind at all.
A rooster, some say more than one, has been keeping neighbors up at night with his loud calls.
"He starts at about 11 at night and keeps going until 7 in the morning," said Joanne Wheeler, who lives near where the rooster allegedly roosts. "If I could catch that thing, I'd stuff him. He'd look great in my kitchen."

Most have never seen the rooster, but those who have describe him as a beautiful bird with long red, gold and teal plumes. They say he struts proudly through the alleys and yards in an area generally bordered by Oak and Myrtle avenues and Second and Fifth streets.
"He really gets around," said Mike Stubblefield who lives in that area. "On the one hand it is really aggravating, but he is a beautiful animal."
Beautiful or annoying, city codes prohibit any live poultry from residing within the city limits.
"No live chickens," said Mary Muse of the city's building department. "You can have a chicken"

County talks trash

By BARBARA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County commissioners were talking "trash" Wednesday and agreed to draw up a plan which would let private industry as well as the county solid waste division bid on operating the landfill and transfer station.
Privatization of the landfill and transfer stations was rejected following a 1985 study in which sufficient cost savings could not be shown.
The county owns and operates a 230-acre solid waste management facility (landfill) on a 1,220 acre site in northeast Seminole County affording ample room for expansion. The landfill has been in continuous operation since 1970. The estimated daily disposal capacity is 1,200 tons for a ten-hour shift.
The 20-acre transfer station at 1634 State Road 419, Longwood, was opened in August 1992 at a cost of $9 million for land, design, permitting and construction. The site has a 1,900 tons per day capacity but currently receives an average 755 tons of mixed commercial and residential refuse.

SCC awakens public with AIDS awareness

By VICKI DeBORNIER

SANFORD — Despite all we hear about AIDS, officials say too many people are somehow still unaware of the frightening realities of the disease.

This month, Seminole Community College, is celebrating AIDS Awareness Month throughout March.

"We've been doing this since 1988," said Debbie Warfield, a counselor who is coordinating the event.
When SCC began the AIDS Awareness program seven years ago, it was a week long event. With the support of the faculty, Warfield said, it has grown to a month of films, discussions and activities designed to raise awareness of the disease.

Reforming welfare Rewards for states reducing illegitimacy?

WASHINGTON — Republicans on the House Ways and Means Committee, under the banner of welfare reform, agreed to reward states that reduce out-of-wedlock births without driving up the number of abortions.

The panel worked until midweek Wednesday on its rewrite of the welfare laws and was resuming work today on cutting welfare benefits for legal aliens.

Democrats tried in vain to get the abortion issue dropped from the welfare bill. They also lost an attempt to give the states leeway to determine whether to deny benefits to unwed mothers under 18 and to impose a cap on the number of abortions.

The panel's chairman, Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, originally had proposed giving states an extra 10 percent of their welfare grants if they reduced their out-of-wedlock births by 2 percentage points from the previous year.

But Rep. Jim McCreery, R-La., argued that states could qualify for the bonus simply by performing more abortions.

On a 21-15 vote along party lines, the committee adopted McCreery's amendment only to factor in any increase in a state's abortions into the formula for determining a state's illegitimacy ratio.

But Democrats sought unsuccessfully to drop the number of abortions entirely from the equation.

"It has never been the purpose of this committee to offer a bounty, a bribe, to hold out a carrot," said Rep. Peter Stark, D-Calif.

Rep. Jim McDermott, D-Wash., complained, "You're running a bill through here at 100 miles per hour."

The GOP bill "is loaded against women. It's unfair," said McDermott. The Republicans "crank out a bill each year just like some broom maker."

After two Republicans — Bill Thomas of Arizona and Dave Camp of Michigan switched from no to yes, the panel approved, 19-17, an amendment by Rep. Clay Shaw, R-Fla., requiring states to reduce a family's welfare benefits by $50 or 15 percent each month "until the paternity of the child is established."

The lawmakers also approved a Democratic amendment allowing any welfare recipient who qualifies for Medicaid under the rules in effect Sept. 30, 1995, to remain eligible for that coverage.

States would share the $15 billion block grant to run cash welfare, food stamps, child care and child nutrition programs.

Numerous federal welfare programs would be repealed, including Aid to Families with Dependent Children, which supports 5 million adults and 9 million children.

States would be required to place 17 percent of adult recipients in a work program by 2000. Failure to comply could cost them up to 5 percent of their block grants.

Don't relocate courthouse

The Waterfront Steering Committee plans have been drawn based on having the Seminole County Courthouse expanded, and featured as one of the focal points of the downtown area of the city. Many others, including county personnel, have been considering various ways to expand the present courthouse, or county services building in the downtown area.

Now what? A few county leaders are talking about moving everything out to Five Points. Probably, after many dollars are spent in studying the proposal, someone will come up with another idea, possibly to move the courthouse to the airport, or out to Chuluota.

No doubt, planners are making a good living over such change-of-minds. There have been county leaders proposing the move of the courthouse out of the city for many decades. This is nothing new. The only problem is that every time someone suggests another move, more studies are needed, and more tax money is spent, only to have it prove not worthwhile.

Who would benefit? Some county employees and officials possibly. They would have everything at one location: Judicial offices, courtrooms, clerk's office, tax offices, sheriff's department, jail, juvenile detention.

Yes, it would be simpler for employees who have to go from one department to another during the course of their work day.

But it certainly wouldn't be of benefit to anyone else. The loss of the courthouse facilities in downtown Sanford could be a disastrous economic blow to the city's economy. Restaurants and other businesses would lose a great portion of their clients. Filling stations, convenience stores, and many other businesses could have a serious loss of income.

We see little to gain through such a move, and much to lose, and are against even paying for a study.

There is also a drive by a few government leaders to merge the Sanford Airport Authority with the Seminole County Port Authority. While they say it would be economically beneficial, the projection is only superficial. Nothing concrete has been advanced where both entities would be improved.

Many people and area government leaders are against this proposed merger. We can only wonder if someone is now trying to push this merger through by using a threatened courthouse move.

The proposed move of the county facilities out of the downtown Sanford business area, and the drive to merge these two authorities may not be connected, but who is to say at this time. We believe both matters, and the persons who are promoting these changes, should be monitored very closely by all citizens.

Just what is 'affirmative action'?

The backlash against "affirmative action" is rolling over the Democratic Party like a tidal wave, and President Clinton has come forth with his first response. (No doubt there will be others.) It is a typical Clinton waffle: We will examine the whole spectrum of affirmative-action programs and eliminate any that "aren't working," but will defend the principle of affirmative action to the death.

Practically the entire Democratic Party has fallen in behind this formulation, including some black politicians (like Willie Brown in California) who until last week were vowing to defend the whole edifice of affirmative action with their dying breath. This merely demonstrates how scared they are — and they have every right to be scared.

For the rest of us, it is important to hack our way through the thick growth of misconceptions and planted axioms with which the liberals and their allies in the media have attempted to obscure the whole issue.

1. In the first place, exactly what is "affirmative action"? It is a nice-sounding phrase, carefully chosen about 30 years ago as a substitute for such unpopular terms as "preferences" and "quotas." Liberals nowadays always hotly deny that they favor quotas or preferences in hiring (e.g. in fire departments) or admissions (e.g. to colleges), but if affirmative action doesn't mean exactly that, then precisely what does it mean?

At that point you will be treated to some woozy poetry about "goals," or diverted to some side issue such as "out-reach" (making sure that minorities are given a chance to compete) on which everybody agrees. But the present drive to eliminate "affirmative action" is aimed squarely at policies that favor one skin color over another regardless of individual merit. We must insist that liberals tell us whether they are for that or against it, and where they stand on policies that would eliminate it.

The backlash against affirmative action is rolling over the Democratic Party like a tidal wave.

2. The liberals are forever telling us that the glad day will dawn when discrimination no longer exists in America. "but it certainly isn't here yet," so affirmative action can't be abandoned yet. The planted axiom here is that this country at some point decided to correct the consequences of discrimination by requiring "affirmative action" until those consequences were eradicated.

But exactly where and when did America adopt such a policy? Certainly not in the Civil Rights Act of 1964. One of its chief authors, Hubert Humphrey, swore that he would "eat his hat" if that law was ever interpreted as requiring a black American to be hired, or admitted to college, in preference to a better-qualified white. The whole object of the act was to require that blacks be evaluated on their individual merits and treated accordingly — that they be judged, in Martin Luther King Jr.'s ringing words, "not by the color of their skin but by the content of their character."

And yet, under the rubric of "affirmative action," a whole complex skein of entitlements has evolved that benefits nobody but smart lawyers and their wealthy clients.

Single greatest law of the land

For the better part of two years or so we have touched on, in letters to the editor and here in this column, the single greatest law this country has ever seen, or for that matter, will ever see.

It's called "The Constitution of the United States." It consists of a preamble, some seven articles and some 26 amendments which were created over some 180 years ... first to last.

The original ratifications by the initial 13 states started in 1787 when Delaware gave its stamp of acceptance unanimously and ended three years later in 1790 when Rhode Island joined her 13 other sister states with a 34 year to 32 days which by the way was the closest vote of all 13.

The first 10 amendments, called "The Bill of Rights" jumped into the picture real quick. Mid-December, 1791 brought what was felt by the creators of the Constitution to be "people protection" amendments into the Constitution to become an integral part of "the law of the land." And all this happened the very next year after the final ratification by Rhode Island.

And what type of people do you folks out there in readerland think were involved in the writing and the rewriting of the original Constitution? Scholars? Maybe. Hunters and trappers? Quite possible. Just plain, simple farmers? A very strong possibility. How about a tradesman or two? Why not? Wagon maker ... blacksmith ... sure.

Actually, how about a small group of just plain ordinary folks from 12 of the original 13 states. Those ordinary folks numbered a grand total of 42 of which 39 pioneers dedicated to creating a workable, a just and fair blueprint to run a painfully new country by and with, actually signed it.

Of those 39 tried and true citizens of the then fledgling country called the United States, only a very few names such as George Washington, Alexander Hamilton, Benjamin Franklin, James Madison went on to bigger and better things. Perhaps you recognize one or two of those names.

What happened to the other 35 fine stalwarts? I don't know. Probably went back to farming, hunting, trapping or even building wagons and shoeing horses. Political careers hadn't become in vogue yet.

Why in the world are we dedicating so much time, effort and space to "just the original law of the land"?

Well now, if you good folks out there in readerland will permit this old fellow to vocalize a very, very strong opinion on the subject, I'll be more than happy to tell you. If not, I plan on telling you anyway but I won't be happy while doing so.

Never before since the ratification of the first 10 amendments (the Bill of Rights) way back in mid-December 1791 has our Constitution been in greater danger of near total degeneration than it has during the last few decades. Oh no — not destruction by burning or blowing up. Simple annihilation by circumvention will do — and is doing — on almost a daily basis right now.

SEMINOLE OPINION

Article I references Congress and its two halves, the Senate and the House of Representatives, both of which have made the big-time news with their scandal after scandal. Are they resolved? Ever try looking under the rug? Any rug?

Article II covers the presidency. Seems like I can recall a few presidential scandals ... some semi-resolved ... some still in limbo ... and maybe some yet to emerge.

Article III spells out the "do's and don'ts," the "cans and can'ts," the general and specific limitations of the judicial branch of government. With so many highly questionable and overly liberal decisions emanating from the federal judiciary, it's a total quandary if there are any "don'ts, can'ts or limitations" left.

Article V covers how amendments to the Constitution are accomplished. So far, we've had some 26 made part of the "original law." The last was in 1971.

Article VI references this Constitution to be the "Supreme Law of the Land" and the judges in every state shall be bound by it. It also commands senators, representatives, state executives and legislators and all federal and state judicial officers to be bound by oath to support it. Too bad so many of them can utter an oath at the drop of a pinfeather and then, almost instantaneously, revert back to "business as usual."

Article VII actually established the Constitution in its entirety by the acceptance ratification by nine of the 13 state conventions. It became effective when, on June 21, 1788, New Hampshire put its John Henry on the line with 57 years to 47 days.

Space limitations preclude the inclusion of specific amendments this week. If the good Lord wills it, if the creeks don't rise, hopefully we can hit a few of the most endangered amendments next week.

All I can say right now is that I'll sharpen the pencils, ready the paper, and give it a try ... If Grandpa's gone. Bye!

Chopping back protection

WASHINGTON — Shortly before Republicans captured control of Congress with help from the "Contract With America," Senate Majority Whip Trent Lott, R-Miss., sought a scamy side deal with the Environmental Protection Agency. Lott now says it was all just a "joke."

For Clinton administration officials, it was a deadly serious omen of how Republicans want to ride roughshod over an agency whose public health agenda is targeted for dismantling by conservatives.

One thing that's clear is that Fred Hansen was innocently caught in the cross-fire last fall as his nomination to be deputy administrator of the EPA hit a snag in the Senate. Lott had placed a "hold" on Hansen, who enjoyed bipartisan support and has served both Democratic and Republican presidents. With time running out in the last Congress, Lott got a phone call from EPA Administrator Carol Browner, who was looking for answers.

According to Clinton administration sources, Lott informed Browner that he routinely puts holds on nominations and only later determines if he has a problem with the individual agency or department. Lott said in this case he has no problem with the EPA or the nominee and would remove the hold — with one catch.

"I just want you to remember this when I do have a problem," Lott told Browner. One administration official, who says Browner was affronted by the conversation, describes Lott's intentions as: "I'll be back and you'd better be nice to me." It wouldn't be unprecedented for the wheeler-dealer Republican: Lott reportedly intervened with the EPA during the 1980s on behalf of companies with records of environmental violations.

A Lott spokesperson says he was merely "answering in a very jocular way" and being "light-hearted" with Browner. "He said the proof is there is no quid pro quo," said the spokesperson, adding that Lott denies putting routine holds on nominations and thinks White House officials "are reaching and need to get some sleep."

There will be little time for rest in the last half of the GOP's 100-day deadline for passing the "Contract With America" — especially since the Job Creation and Wage Enhancement Act before Congress is a fight Clintonites are spilling for. The bill's euphemistic label belies its lethal danger to public health. It raises the specter that a generation of important laws, which stopped the flood of sewage into rivers, cleaned up hazardous waste disposal and reduced lead in the air — and in children's blood — may be gutted.

Lott and House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., support the ruse of "risk assessment" and "cost-benefit" analysis to carry out the contract on the EPA. Under their plan, bean counters would be overruling biologists in setting public health standards by forcing EPA to quantify how the benefits will "justify the costs" of any agency initiative. As a recent study by the Natural Resources Defense Council concludes:

"No light is shed on how agencies are to place dollar values on such imperponderables as: preventing a child's learning disability, avoiding cancer or birth defects, reducing infertility, preserving an endangered species, protection of a National Park, or any of the other benefits of environmental protection programs."

Gingrich has plunged into this critical public health debate with vintage vitriol.

For Clinton administration officials, it was a deadly serious omen.

This morning the events kicked off with a seminar entitled "AIDS 101: The Facts vs. The Fiction."

On Wednesday, March 8, health officials from the Seminole County Public Health Unit will be available to answer questions from people who have concerns about AIDS and the way in which it is transmitted. There will be a table set up in the Student Center from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. for that purpose.

The film "Philadelphia" will be shown at noon in room J100 and at 7:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Concert Hall on Wednesday, March 15.

The film, which deals with the discrimination against those with AIDS, will be shown for free.

Also that evening at 5, the film "Common Threads-Stories from the Quilt" will be shown in the Multipurpose Room in the Student Center.

That showing will also be free.

There are over 44,237 reported cases of AIDS in Florida of which more than 25,218 have died. This was an increase of over 9,300 new reported cases in a one year period.

"When we did the program in 1988, we had a seminar called '49,700 and Counting,' which referred to the number of cases of AIDS nationwide," Warfield said. "Now there are almost that many in Florida."

AIDS is the leading cause of death among Americans between the ages of 25 and 44.

On Thursday, March 16, there will be a panel discussion called "Faces Behind the Numbers." People infected with the HIV virus will be on hand to discuss the disease and how it affects them and their families and friends.

discussions during three seminars on Wednesday, March 22. Warfield warns that the discussion will be frank and is designed for mature audiences.

The seminars will be at 9, 10 and 11 a.m. in the Fine Arts Concert Hall. Jeffrey-John Nunziata, assistant district AIDS coordinator for the Department of HRS in Tampa, will be the speaker.

On Monday, March 27, a three-part film about HIV and AIDS will be shown in the Multipurpose Room in the Student Center.

At 9 a.m. they will show "The Hunt for the Virus," followed at 10 by "The End of the Beginning," and at 11 by "Fighting for Life."

The month will conclude with the Seminole County Public Health Unit officials once again on hand to discuss the disease and answer questions. Warfield expects a good crowd for all the events, especially the films and the panel discussion.

"We have a great deal of support from the faculty," she said. "They encourage their classes to come to the programs and they often bring their classes."

AIDS Awareness Month activities are all free and open to the public, Warfield said. It is the organizers' hope that they can educate the whole community about AIDS.

Watching their waste

Commissioner Daryl McLain had the opportunity to honor the work his sister and her Pine Crest Elementary School students do in helping save the environment. Debbie Bowlin, fellow teacher Rhoda Wilson and the members of the school's environmental club have recycled newspapers and aluminum cans at an impressive pace for several years. The club this week was presented with a Waste Watchers Award from the county for their efforts.

for dinner, but there aren't supposed to be live ones." There was no one in the code enforcement department today.

Similarly, she said animal control officials have told her they would come to get the rooster if she could pin-point his exact location.

"They should come out and look for it," she said. "That's their job."

Stubblefield said the rooster arrived with two or three others several weeks ago in the company of a lawn maintenance person who was working in the yard. The roosters somehow got away and settled into trees in the neighborhood, he said.

Once there they began crowing loudly. A cat, he said, had one for dinner and another rooster met with a carefully aimed bullet from a neighbor's shotgun as it crouched at 4:30 one morning. The lone rooster still crows loudly through the early morning hours.

"I think he may just be lonely," said Stubblefield.

Margaret Duggar of Duggar's General Store on Sanford Avenue said the rooster is most likely being disturbed by a bright street light or, perhaps, passing headlights during the night.

"They usually react in reaction to light," she said.

But, for those who might want to catch the bird, she said they are blind at night and can be easily taken.

"At night you can just walk up to them and pick them up," she said. "They'll never see you coming."

as well as 65 tons of yard waste daily.

Representatives of three private disposal companies, Browning-Ferris Industries, Octogon/PSESI and Waste Management, Inc. presented materials to the commissioners supporting the position a private company could operate the landfill more efficiently.

A report prepared by the county staff contends the current system does not have significant problems. Some cities and counties around Florida faced with public opposition to new landfills on suitable land opted to contract with private companies to dispose of solid waste. Some counties could not get permits for existing facilities under a 1988 Solid Waste Act and chose to contract with private business for the service.

Seminole County has ample space at the landfill and is limited only by manpower and equipment to handle more volume, the staff report states. The estimated useful life of the permitted facility is in excess of 40 years.

The private business representatives noted the county would reduce its liability risks on environmental or hazardous waste issues if the landfill was in private hands.

"People who have lived in Florida for 40 years say they are from Massachusetts, or Michigan," said Wynne.

New England Historical Society fund drives have been known to raise $250,000 from former New England dwellers in Florida, the envy of the Florida historical group, he said. "I'd kill for that."

Iowa, population 2.8 million, has planned since 1991 for a yearlong, $5 million sequicentennial celebration that begins in December. The Orlando Sentinel pointed out recently.

In contrast, the Florida Sequicentennial Commission has spent six months and $125,000 - all that the chairman, former state Sen. Curt Kiser, said the state can afford.

"The best-case scenario would have been to have started about two years ago," said Wynne.

That would have allowed time to raise more private donations and corporate sponsorships.

More money could have gone for extras such as printing promotional materials, creating a sequicentennial speakers' bureau to supply lecturers for events, or buying advertising "not only within the state but without," Wynne said.

But now 57 of Florida's 67 counties have created local commissions to plan observances, up from only 35 counties early in February. "Things are coming along," said Wynne.

The pregame show of this year's Super Bowl in Miami celebrated Florida's 150th birthday, just one of more than 100 events the commission has approved so far, said Northam, whose department oversees the panel.

Friday's festivities mark the anniversary of the March 3, 1845 date when President John Tyler signed the act granting statehood.

Lawmakers plan more observances next week - commemorating the arrival of the news in Tallahassee on March 11, 1845.

Other communities plan different observances at other times of the year, keyed to local historical events, Northam said. "It's all through 1995."

higher than Seminole alone. Even so, the Orlando MSA had the eighth lowest unemployment rate in the state's MSAs.

The MSA figures show the rate increasing from 4.8 percent in December, but considerably lower than the 7.0 percent in January. For last December, the Orlando MSA was still rated as the eighth lowest among 20 MSAs in the entire state.

On statewide MSA listings, the Panama City area (Bay County) was the highest at 10.6 percent.

Seminole County, among other counties, was 19th in the state, tied with Pinellas County.

Individual county statistics for January 1995 indicate that Liberty County had the lowest unemployment rate at 2.5 percent. Liberty however, has only 2,282 persons listed on the active work force.

The highest single county in the state was Bay, an MSA, with 10.5 percent unemployment. Bay has 60,867 persons on its listed labor force, of whom 54,319 are employed.

In the Orlando MSA, with Seminole's unemployment rate the best at 5.2 percent, Orange had 5.6 percent, Lake had 5.9 percent, and Ocoee had 6.3 percent unemployment.

On the state totals, the unemployment rate is 5.8 percent adjusted. Nationally, the rate is 6.3 percent adjusted, both higher than Seminole.

Florida labor officials say Seminole County's relatively low percentage is due to what it calls being the bedroom community for the Orlando market. Yet they admit with growing industry in the county, more and more jobs are being created helping improve the overall labor picture.

Meanwhile, Manpower Inc. spokesman Daniel G. Gavin reported this week that 37 percent of local executives polled in this area of the state say they will increase payrolls during April, May and June. Three percent said they anticipated staff reductions, 50 percent said they will stay at the current level, and 10 percent admitted to being uncertain.

On a national level, each quarter Manpower arrives at figures based on telephone surveys with over 15,000 public and private employers in 471 cities.

Locally, Manpower, Inc. is located in Maitland at 541 S. Orlando Avenue.

Income, spending up

By JAMES H. HUBB
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Americans' personal income rose 0.9 percent in January, the biggest gain in three months and more than twice as rapidly as spending.

The Commerce Department also said today that income climbed 0.7 percent in December, revised from an earlier estimate of up 0.8 percent.

Spending increased 0.4 percent in January after edging up 0.1 percent in December.

The January figures are in line with analysts' predictions and the spending advance could suggest at least a temporary slowing in the economy. But analysts said in advance of the report that the solid income gains could point to increased buying later this year.

In another report, the Labor Department said the number of newly laid-off Americans filing claims for jobless benefits fell 13,000 to a seasonally adjusted 331,000 last week. The closely watched four-week moving average of weekly jobless claims was 329,000, up from the two-week average of 322,700.

Consumer spending, representing two-thirds of the nation's economic activity, is expected to slow this year from the rapid pace that has driven the economy's four-year-old recovery. The government reported Wednesday that the economy surged 4.6 percent in the last three months of 1994 and grew 4 percent for the year, the best showing in a decade.

The Federal Reserve, seeking to restrain growth and check inflation, has raised interest rates seven times in the past 13 months but expects a slowdown this year.

Disposable income - income after taxes - climbed 0.7 percent in January after gaining 0.8 percent the previous month.

Income "was" unchanged in November, only the second time all last year it failed to increase. It soared 1.3 percent in October, the last time it gained more than January.

Spending had slipped 0.1 percent in November after surging 1.4 percent in October.

The spending gains in January were due to non-durable goods such as food and fuel and services.

City joins kidney program

LONGWOOD - The city of Longwood passed a resolution at a recent commission meeting to link the city's abandon vehicle program with the National Kidney Foundation's Kidney Car Campaign. Under the program, unwanted cars, trucks and motorcycles can be donated to the foundation, free of charge, and owners can claim a charitable deduction for the fair market value on their income taxes. Vehicle owners simply call (800)488-CARS to donate.

The program will work through the abandon vehicle program administered by the planning and building services department. Along with the abandon/inoperable vehicle violation notice currently affixed to abandon vehicles, the department will also affix a brightly colored kidney car campaign notice. This will give vehicle owners all the information necessary to get the vehicle removed, free of charge, and avoid the cost incurred if the city has to remove the vehicle.

The National Kidney Foundation is the major health agency dedicated to the eradication of kidney disease. Funds raised are used for programs of research, professional and public education, organ donor awareness and patient services.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Planned Parenthood may reinvent itself

NEW YORK — Planned Parenthood, one of the most forceful advocates for abortion and birth control, is bitterly debating a reinvention that would turn its 900 clinics into health-care centers treating everything from the flu to cuts and bruises.

The plan to add primary care to Planned Parenthood's roster of family planning services would be one of the most dramatic changes in the history of the 78-year-old non-profit organization.

The plan is being promoted by Planned Parenthood's national leadership, which wants to ensure the group's financial health in an increasingly competitive health-care market. Mary Rauh, a board member of the Planned Parenthood Federation, the New York-based group that links the affiliates, said the group is approaching "the threshold of an era."

"The question is, will there be a place in the reformed health-care system for a niche provider, a reproductive health provider?" Rauh said. "It looks very risky to depend on that for our future. ... We might get frozen right out of the system."

Balanced budget

WASHINGTON — Frustrated Republicans predict that President Clinton and Democrats will be punished by the voters if the Senate defeats the immensely popular balanced budget amendment.

Supporters said Wednesday they were still a solitary senator shy of the 67 votes they need. All but bargained out, Republicans set a long-awaited showdown roll call on the measure for today. Six wavering Democrats seeking constitutional insulation for Social Security from deficit-reduction efforts said the GOP had not offered enough.

"We've done all we can," Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., conceded late Wednesday, a month and a day after debate began.

After fruitless behind-the-scenes efforts to gain the decisive vote, Dole and his fellow GOP leaders weren't quite conceding defeat. But they were already apportioning blame for the failure of the heart of GOP plans to slam the brakes on federal spending.

Clinton warns of new isolationists

WASHINGTON — Drawing a foreign policy battle line with the new Republican Congress, President Clinton warned against new isolationists who would "have us face the future alone."

But Sen. Bob Dole, who is expected to seek the 1996 Republican presidential nomination, criticized Clinton's "misguided devotion" to Russia and what he called a failed policy in Bosnia and mistakes in dealing with Iraq and North Korea.

This exchange — while not face to face — offered an opportunity for the Democratic president and a potential 1996 opponent to air their foreign policy differences. It took place Wednesday at a forum sponsored Wednesday by the Nixon Center for Peace and Freedom.

While Clinton, speaking at the forum just hours after the Senate majority leader, portrayed the Republicans as advocates of "a new form of American isolationism," Dole and House Speaker Newt Gingrich sounded internationalist themes in their speeches to the forum.

Grammys: Crow, Bennett, Springsteen

LOS ANGELES — Sheryl Crow had some fun as "All I Wanna Do" won record of the year and Tony Bennett championed American classics when his "MTV Unplugged" was named best album as the 37th annual Grammys spread top honors across musical generations.

Bracketed by the newcomer and the veteran crooner, rocker Bruce Springsteen won the top songwriting honor — song of the year — for "Streets of Philadelphia."

Bennett's victory Wednesday capped a career revival that began two years ago, and Crow's was a rocket to the top of the music world — a rare and sometimes risky ride.

Paying kids to read

WASHINGTON — House Speaker Newt Gingrich won at least one convert with his promise to pay kids $2 to read a book.

"I'll try it," said sixth-grader Erick Turner. "Sure I will." Normally, the 11-year-old doesn't read much outside school, he acknowledged with a grin. But now, he said, "I want the money."

Handing out hundreds of new books donated by a private charity, Gingrich told Erick and other kids at Moten Elementary he wants them "to grow up and make a good living, so you can come back and do good things for this school."

Democrats weren't quite so easy to persuade Wednesday when Gingrich launched the private "Earn to Learn" program at an inner-city Washington school so poor its leaky roof often damages the few books in the library.

New weapon against AIDS

BOSTON — A drug that prods the body to speed up production of blood cells killed by the AIDS virus may give doctors a powerful new weapon against this relentless killer.

The treatment, if it works, may help the body stay ahead of the virus by pumping out these critical blood cells faster than they can be destroyed.

The drug is Interleukin 2, or IL-2, a natural protein that regulates the immune system. Doctors said it appears to work only on people who are infected with HIV but have not yet developed AIDS.

Some patients have been taking it for up to 3½ years with no sign of wanting effectiveness — something no other medicine has accomplished.

WORLD BRIEFS

Somalia mission closes

MOGADISHU, Somalia — The United Nations closes out its mission in Somalia today, leaving the Mogadishu airport in the hands of a warlord who once carried a $25,000 U.N. price on his head.

The last U.N. peacekeepers were to leave today, headed back to Pakistan. After they are safely evacuated, the 1,500 American Marines and 329 Italians covering them will return to their ships, leaving Somalia to its fate.

The Horn of Africa country has been without a functional government since former dictator Mohamed Siad Barre was overthrown in January 1992. The multinational mission ended widespread starvation that, together with war and disease, had killed 350,000 people that year, but failed in its effort to restore government.

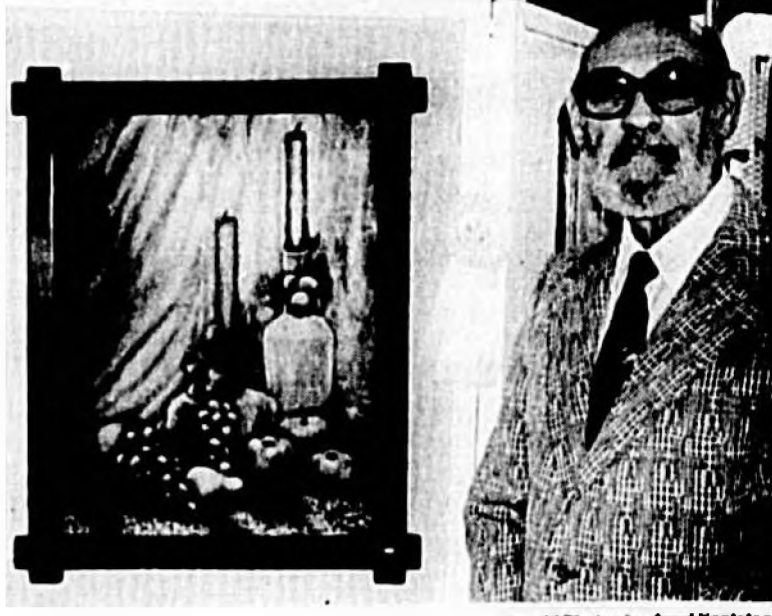

It's not known if much humanitarian relief or commercial traffic will return anytime soon to the Mogadishu airport, its seaports or even overland.

Matching older volunteers, inner-city teens

By DENISE LAVOIE
Associated Press Writer

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. — In Diana Crosdale's 12 years, she's seen drug deals go down, classmates display weapons and three older brothers sent off to jail.

Every Tuesday afternoon, Crosdale turns to a group of older volunteers for help in avoiding a similar fate.

The volunteers teach her and 20 other inner-city youngsters how to cook, sew and stay out of trouble.

"They've taught me that you can always have someone there for you in your life," Crosdale said. "They are like my grandmothers."

The Spices of Life program, run by the city Police Department's community services division, is aimed at helping at-risk girls avoid pregnancy, drugs and violence.

Each week, the girls, ages 10 through 13, get a practical lesson from their older friends in everything from craft-making to nutrition. They also get a lesson in life.

"We talk to them about how they need to build themselves up, how they don't need boys and how they don't want to get pregnant at a young age," said Angelina Spiak, 77, one of the volunteers.

Ruby Crear, a Bridgeport police officer, started the pilot program last September, using a $2,000 federal drug enforcement grant.

Crear said the idea for the program grew out of her own impoverished upbringing in Mobile, Ala., and her struggle as an unwed teen-age mother. At age 25, Crear, who was then working as a nurse's aide in a nursing home, befriended a man in his 70s who helped lift her low self-esteem.

"He taught me about believing in myself," Crear said. "As a police officer, I find that kids today are never taught they can be something. So many girls become pregnant because they feel no one believes in them or loves them and that a baby will do that for them. We're trying to show them that that's not the answer."

The weekly sessions, held in the basement of a converted firehouse, feature regular guest speakers who talk to the girls about everything from the importance of exercise to the pain of racism. One week, a 17-year-old girl told the group about her experiences as a homeless mother of a 3½-year-old child.

At a recent session, a video producer showed short films on the dangerous lure of gangs and the tendency for girls to place too much emphasis on getting a boyfriend, sometimes at the expense of their friendships with other girls.

The girls in the group were encouraged to talk about their own lives and the pressures they face.

Crosdale talked about her three brothers, all in their teens. Two are serving time on drug charges; the third was recently released from prison.

"When my brother was small, he used to be so nice to everyone, but now all my brothers are doing drugs, and it's all messed up," she said.

Chanel Cruz, 10, said she knew a teen-age boy who was fatally shot in her neighborhood.

"It makes me feel bad. I don't want people to get hurt over stupid things," she said. Sometimes, the harshness of the children's lives gets to the older people.

"Some of their stories are kind of heartbreaking," Spiak said. "We didn't go through these kinds of things when we were young."

Angela DeLeon, a civilian member of the Police Department who runs the volunteer program, said the weekly sessions fill a need for the older people and allow the girls to leave their responsibilities at home.

"The seniors feel as though they're doing what they've done so well all their lives ... to love and nurture children," said DeLeon.

"For the girls, many of them are not allowed to be children because when they are at home they are taking care of their younger brothers and sisters," she said. "Here they can be (children) because they are with a grandmother."

Mary Demchuk, 67, said when the program first began, some of the girls were hesitant to talk about their lives or the problems discussed by the group.

"But now, they love to talk,"

she said. "These children really deserve our help. ... You can really make good kids out of them."

Crear, who at 42 is a grandmother herself, sees the program as a way to "teach young girls how to be young ladies."

During a recent session, she told the girls about the importance of getting an education. "You can go anywhere and do anything if you have education," she said.

Mary Bike, 77, has seven grandchildren of her own, but said she feels like the unofficial grandmother of the 21 girls in the program.

"There are a few of them who are in danger of going bad," she said. "If you can reach one girl, then it's worth it."

Brent Wright had 23 points for Miami Senior (33-5).

Mainland (33-2), ranked No. 1 in the final state poll, has won 22 in a row and will meet No. 4-ranked Fort Lauderdale Dillard (32-3), winner of 23 in a row, in the title game Friday.

Dillard bounced Winter Haven 71-52 in the early 6A semifinal Wednesday.

Pippen leads Bull rout of Heat

CHICAGO — Scottie Pippen had 27 points and 10 rebounds as the Chicago Bulls beat Miami 114-85 Wednesday night, their second home rout of the Heat this season.

Billy Owens scored 20 points, but had six of the Heat's 26 turnovers. Miami was without top rebounder Kevin Willis, missing his second straight game with a severe back strain.

Nordiques blow away Lightning

QUEBEC — Defenseman Uwe Krupp scored the first hat trick of his career and added an assist, and Mike Ricci had four assists as the Quebec Nordiques routed the Tampa Bay Lightning 8-2 Wednesday night.

The victory snapped Quebec's four-game winless streak and ended Tampa Bay's three-game unbeaten string.

Scott Young added two goals as Quebec reached its season high for goals in a game.

John Tucker and Shawn Chambers netted the Lightning goals.

Delaware St. eliminates FAMU

BALTIMORE — Andre Griffin scored a season-high 30 points to pace Delaware State to a 100-73 victory over Florida A&M Wednesday in the opening round of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference tournament.

The eighth-seeded Hornets (7-20) advance to meet regular season champ Coppin State in Thursday's quarterfinals.

Byron Coast and Ricky Davis led FAMU (5-22) with 16 each. Sean Black had 14 points and 12 rebounds and Scientific Mapp scored nine.

Luis Rivera authored a masterful 11-strikeout performance Wednesday, allowing only an unearned run on one hit and one walk in five innings of work to help Lake Mary knock off Seminole in the Raminole Invitational.

LAKE MARY — Lyman and Lake Mary advanced to the finals of the Raminole Invitational baseball tournament with wins Wednesday night at Lake Mary Field that were polar opposites of each other.

Lyman (5-0) nipped St. Cloud (2-4) 5-4 in a nail-biter, Teddy Koller singling home Robby Bruce in the seventh inning, Lake Mary (4-1) then clobbered Seminole (3-1) 11-3 behind Luis Rivera's masterful 11-strikeout performance.

The Rams and Greyhounds will meet for the tournament championship Friday night at 7 p.m.

Seminole plays Oviedo tonight at 7 p.m. in the second losers' bracket semifinal after Trinity Prep (1-1), which defeated New Smyrna Beach (0-2) 5-2 Wednesday, plays St. Cloud at 4:30 p.m. The losers' bracket final will be Friday at 4:30 p.m.

With reliever Danny Bogeajis shutting down St. Cloud, Lyman rallied from a 4-2 deficit to tie the score in the sixth. Tommy Dixon and Mike Paulos both singled, and Mike Hensch provided the big hit with a double. Bruce doubled in the seventh to set up Koller's game-winning single.

Lyman took a 2-1 lead in the third with singles from Jason Shipley, Koller and Bogeajis. But two Greyhound errors in fourth helped St. Cloud score three runs.

"We've got to get sharper mentally," said Lyman head coach Bob McCullough. "We're getting good production out of everybody. Our first string is tough. We're hitting well, and I'll give the pitching a couple more weeks. But, we need to play consistently good, fundamental baseball and not beat ourselves."

Lake Mary set the tone in the first inning with three runs, while Rivera struck out the side. By the end of five innings, Lake Mary led 10-1. Rivera allowed only one hit and one walk along with his 11 strikeouts in five innings of work. The only run he gave up was unearned.

"When Rivera's curveball is working, he can be outstanding," said Lake Mary coach Alan Tuttle. "Pitching has been carrying us all year, and I hope it can continue to. We really need to work on our offense."

Lake Mary's outburst was led by Jay Reynolds (3-for-4, triple, three runs) and Bryan Schumaker (3-for-4, three runs, three RBI).

Other big hitters were Brent Wehmeyer (single, two runs), Chris Klieb and Dwayne Sanford (each with a single and an RBI), Scott Bryan (single, run), Nick Sosa (run), and Ryan Mau (RBI).

Brian Wilcox provided Seminole's highlight when he ripped a two-run home run in the sixth. His double in the fourth was Seminole's only other hit. Seminole made six errors, but there were bright spots, such as center fielder Matt Mehalko's diving catch in the fifth inning.

"We need to learn to play together as a team," said Seminole head coach Mike Powers. "We have a lot of individuals, and we're going to make a change in team attitude."

Cuba has a bright future

Goodbye Clintons; hello Dole and Powell

DEAR JERRY: The robins are flying north for spring, the corn is growing, the strawberries are in, the economy sucks, and I have become addicted to reading your column. I feel that it would be limiting you if I just asked you a personal question, so why don't you just, for once, write about some things that are on your mind and let's explore some of your journalistic talents and verbiage that I, and I am sure, your other readers have come to expect and enjoy. Maybe you could write about what might be ahead, as you seem to have some uncanny ability to sense, rationalize, or know. Patiently waiting.

JERRY STEWART

DEAR JOANNE: I and avid readers of this column, if life is a box of chocolates, therefore, we have to learn to live with some

"nuts!" Take Fidel Castro, for instance. In a short time he'll be gone and Cuba shall become the new southernmost destination for Florida visitors after a short, fast hovercraft ride to that country. Besides, most people don't know it, but they have some of the finest citrus products in the world just waiting. And just how did they do it? Most people aren't aware that several years ago, the state of Israel was paid in gold bouillon to send agricultural engineers there to get something going besides tobacco and sugar. When the new government and economy begins, within the next five years, a nudge of Cuba shall arise from the Caribbean like the Phoenix of lore.

As for the United States, say goodbye to the Clintons and say hello to Dole and Powell. Yes, America finally sees the "first" African American vice president. A successful administration that shall easily see two terms. Welcome to the new world!

Abortion takes a back burner this time as a major consideration and reforms, welfare cutbacks, crime and punishment take precedent. Now in testing, the Cyclatron becomes an option to jail cells, walls, and as a means of execution. What is a Cyclatron? Stay tuned to upcoming detailed information.

Let's just say for now that it is a means by which generated power, condensed into pure energy, has unlimited potential in everything from science to medicine, business, and industry. Furthermore, (it is) a means to discovering mysteries of our planet, elements yet unknown, and enabling society to reach beyond itself in ways that one, perhaps, would not have thought of in another 1,000 years.

As for O.J., he will fade into history, just like all stories like this as he will be found to be innocent and the real perpetrators are arrested and convicted.

Debbie Dryden, Sunshine Committee described the "Potluck Dinner" taking place March 4 at 8 p.m. at the home of Ernesta Faye. "Less is More" or "Dining on the Light Side" is the theme for the evening. Each individual delicious serving should contain less than 450 calories (10 percent of calories from fat).

Guest speaker, Dr. Matt L. Leavitt of the Advanced Dermatology and Cosmetic Surgery Center gave information on "Dermatology, maturing skin and collagen material."

He described cosmetic treatment to reduce the effects of aging and correct scarring. The benefits of eyelid surgery, chemical peels and dermabrasion were discussed followed by a question and answer period.

Living will causes living hell

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to inform anyone with a living will that is sometimes overpowered by the doctor's "will to decide" for the patient.

My husband passed away last April, but if his doctor had had his way, my husband (I'll call him "Bill") would still be here on life support. Bill had a living will that clearly stated what he had decided. But my family and I had to fight with the doctor to have Bill's wishes obeyed.

It all began when Bill was diagnosed with cancer. The doctor believed he would be able to remove all of it, but when they operated, they found the cancer had spread to Bill's heart. We knew then that he had only a few days to live.

You would think the doctor would have tried to make Bill's last few days as comfortable as possible, but that's not how it was. I had to struggle to keep Bill off artificial life support. He wasn't afraid to die; he knew he would be in a better place — with God.

On his second day in the hospital, the doctor ordered the nurses to put him on life support. Bill wouldn't have it. He struggled so hard they tied his wrists and ankles to the bed like an animal! At that moment, I happened to walk into the room. My husband was very upset. He said, "You promised! You promised you wouldn't let them do this!"

Well, I had promised him, and I did everything I knew to keep my word. I called our daughter, who flew here immediately. She also had to argue with the doctor. At one point, the doctor asked her if she wanted to be responsible for her father's death! Knowing that her dad wanted nothing to do with life support, she replied, "Yes!" She wanted her dad to pass on peacefully.

ADVICE

The next day, my sons arrived from out of state. The doctor informed them that he wanted to hook their father to life support and they also said, "No, it is against Father's wishes!"

On the seventh day, my husband finally passed on — without having been hooked up to life support.

Abby, please tell your readers that not all doctors will honor the living will. People must carefully interview a doctor about his or her views on artificially prolonging life before putting themselves under that doctor's care. It is hard enough to lose a loved one, but it is 10 times harder when you are fighting for that loved one's right to die!

GRIEVING WIDOW, EDGEWATER, FLA.

DEAR GRIEVING: Please accept my sympathy on the loss of your husband. At a time when you should have been gathered around your husband, allowing him to pass peacefully, you and your children had to direct your energy toward fighting a physician who wanted to impose his own wishes. A doctor should respect the patient's wishes, especially when those wishes are backed up by the family. If the doctor refuses to do so, the family should file a formal complaint with the medical licensing board in their state.

Stop smoking to ease emphysema

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with early emphysema. What can I do or take to slow down the process? I'm 80 but very active and don't want this to get the best of me.

DEAR READER: Emphysema is often related to the aging process, which is associated with enlargement of the air spaces within the lungs, resulting in trapped, stale air. This causes expansion of the chest wall and difficulty breathing during exercise. This rather pure form of emphysema, although untreatable, rarely causes significant respiratory handicap.

However, emphysema can also be a consequence of asthma and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (a disorder caused by smoking cigarettes). When there is considerable overlap between these afflictions, it may be difficult to separate the various components.

Therefore, if you have emphysema, you may be helped by stopping smoking, using antibiotics and bronchodilators (medicine to open the airways), learning special breathing exercises, or resorting to supplemental oxygen.

If your emphysema is not complicated by the factors I mentioned and, as you state, you are in the early stages, you probably don't need to make any alterations: Continue to be active and obtain treatment for any respiratory symptoms (such as those caused by mild lung infections or bronchitis) as they arise.

Because your doctor likely diagnosed your mild emphysema from a chest X-ray, I urge you to discuss this with him. He is familiar with your state of health and can advise you about the cause of your pulmonary problem and any therapy you may require.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Why does some stool float in the toilet bowl after evacuation, while at other times, it sinks to the bottom? Is it an indication of a health problem?

DEAR READER: As a general rule, fecal matter floats when it contains air and sinks when it does not. Thus, the variation in your stool "behavior" is normal and to be expected.

Nonetheless, some forms of maldigestion, such as those associated with chronic disorders of the pancreas, lead to malabsorption of dietary fat. In these instances, the stools are greasy, loose, foul-smelling and tend to float.

WHAT IS THE PROBLEM?

By Phillip Alder

Samuel Taylor Coleridge defined poetry thus: "Poetry is not the proper antithesis to prose, but to science. Poetry is opposed to science, and prose to metre. The proper and immediate object of science is the acquirement, or communication, of truth; the proper and immediate object of poetry is the communication of immediate pleasure."

I suppose this means I should write these vignettes in rhyme; but if I tried, I think my output would drop to a column a week.

In today's deal, many players would overlook the communication problem between the dummy and hand. How should South play in seven hearts after a trump lead?

South won the first trick in hand with the heart jack and played a trump to the dummy, preparing to claim if the hearts were 3-3. However, when they were 4-1, there was still work to do. Declarer cashed dummy's spade king, played a spade to his ace and ruffed his low spade in the dummy. He cashed dummy's remaining trump winner and faced the problem of reaching his hand. Naturally, he played a club to his ace, but West's ruff resulted in immediate pain.

South, of course, spent some time complaining about his bad luck. But North knew better. "You misplayed," he said bluntly. "Just win the first two tricks with dummy's trump honors. Then, after ruffing the spade in the dummy, you can lead dummy's last trump, overtake in hand and draw West's remaining heart. There was no rhyme or reason to your line."
