Developers Seek Permits For Homes Along Wekiva

By Kathy Tyrity
Herald Staff Writer

Development along the Wekiva River west of Sanford is the subject of two meetings this week, and the public is invited to be heard tonight at 7 p.m. regarding the appeal of a developer seeking to build 1,240 homes along the river.

The meeting is to be held in Sanford City Commission chambers at city hall, 300 Park Ave. Seminole County officials earlier blocked the developer's plans, saying so many homes should not be built so close to a pristine river and adjacent wetlands.

The developer, Amcor Investments Corporation, of Phoenix, says the county's development restrictions would deny them profitable use of their land. The county has suggested the developer limit its project along the river to 200 homes on its 573 acres.

The Amcor appeal is before a state hearing officer and may go to the governor and cabinet this summer.

The hearings continue through Thursday at Sanford City Commission chambers.

Meanwhile, the St. Johns River Water Management District board of directors sent a developer back to the drawing board for more plans concerning its request for consumption permits for a Wekiva Falls development. The directors heard Hollywood Inc.'s application Monday and today. The firm is from Hollywood, Fla. If the consumption permits were approved, the development would still need approvals from Lake and Orange counties.

The water district directors were also to consider a set of more stringent construction setback rules for development along the Wekiva basin.

The meeting was being held at the Seminole County Commission chambers and attracted hundreds of interested citizens.

Hollywood's proposal is to build 2,375 homes, 425 apartments, an 18-hole golf course and 400,000 square foot shopping center on 1,842 acres which straddle the Orange-Lake county line. The property is just south of State Road 46 and west of Wekiva River Road.

Expressway Opponents Organizing

A meeting of residents opposed to the Seminole County Expressway going through their neighborhood is planned for 7 p.m. today at the Lake Mary Community Building on Country Club Road.

Keith White, 116 Grove Hollow Ct., said he is organizing the group because one proposal would take the beltway directly through his subdivision, Grove View Village, off Lake Mary Boulevard. The subdivision has more than 400 homes.

Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith and Gerald Brinton, executive director of the Seminole County Expressway Authority, have been invited to speak at the meeting.

The group claims the expressway will provide no benefits to them as taxpayers.

"We will lose personally, environmentally and financially for a highway which provides no benefits to us — the taxpayers," says a letter inviting residents to the meeting.

It continues: "The commissioners are elected to represent us, not to dictate changes... we already have good access Interstate-4. Other routes give better access to I-4 exits at Lake Mary or Route 46."

The letter encourages a more easterly route for the expressway. And it encourages all concerned residents of south Sanford and Lake Mary to write the Expressway Authority members individually.

Wekiva Development Mulled

Sandra H. Gray, left, and Lynne Capehart, members of the St. Johns River Water Management District board of directors, listen to audience comments in Sanford today on development along the Wekiva River basin. The board, which usually meets in Palatka, held their "out-of-town" governing board meeting and work session in Seminole County Commission chambers at the County Services Building in Sanford Monday and today. The board turned down a water consumption permit for a planned development of 2,375 homes and 425 apartments on 1,842 acres along the river. The board was to discuss more stringent construction setbacks for the Wekiva basin.

6 Students Suspended

Teacher Quits Over Alleged Drinking Bout

By Tom Giordano
Herald Managing Editor

A Lake Brantley High School science teacher resigned Monday and six students were suspended in connection with an alleged drinking incident during a trip to Birmingham, Ala.

Although the trip to Alabama for a three-day sports medicine seminar was in mid-February, school administrators apparently didn't get wind of the alleged drinking incident until some time last week and began an investigation. That probe led to the teacher's resignation and the students' suspension.

Some of the parents of those students said they are angry over the manner in which their children were questioned during the probe and will take their complaint to the school board. Those parents said they objected to their children being questioned without their knowledge and they are angry that the students had to sign a notarized statement detailing their involvement without benefit of counsel.

School principal Darvin Boothe said the manner in which the school investigated the incident "is routine and a matter of policy carried out throughout the school district."

Boothe confirmed the teacher's resignation: "I have that teacher's resignation on my desk. As of today (Monday) he no longer works at Lake Brantley and will not return to work here in the future. His resignation states, simply, that he resigned over irreconcilable differences."

The teacher who resigned is Richard Allen, 35, of Deltona, according to school administration records. Allen said he does not plan to appeal to the school board and declined further comment. "I don't care to comment further," he said. Allen is married and joined the Seminole County school district in August, 1986, as a science teacher. Before that, school district records show he worked at Madison High School in Portland, Ore. in 1976-1977; at Seabreeze High School in Daytona in 1977-1978; and was an athletic trainer and therapist at Bethune Cookman College in Daytona 1978-1979. From 1979 until he was hired by Seminole County, school records show nothing regarding any employment, according to school district administrators.

Although versions of what happened on the trip to Alabama vary slightly when related by some of the students and their parents, here's what school administrators confirm occurred:

Six Lake Brantley students traveled to the University of Samford in Birmingham for a three-day sports medicine seminar held Feb. 26, 27, and 28. The seminar was for sports trainers and student trainers from around the Southeast and included mostly college students and faculty from Florida and other states, although there were some high school teams in addition to the Lake Brantley High School contingent.

Sports trainers monitor injuries students sustain during various sports activity and also engage in taping ankles and securing equipment to prevent injury. Student trainers are students who are learning the art from the faculty sports trainer.

On the trip to Alabama was Allen and the six students, two of them females, ranging in age from 14 or 15 to 17, according to some students who went along. There also was a female assistant trainer who also is a science teacher at Lake Brantley who apparently had nothing to do with the alleged drinking incident, according to Boothe.

Sun Bank To Get Longwood's Latest Loan Repayment Plan

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

While Longwood's City Administrator is to approach Sun Bank today with a new proposal for financing the city's hookup with the Seminole County sewer system, one of the city's commissioners suggested finding a new bank "that knows what it's doing."

Commissioner Harvey Smerlison said, "We should pull out everything from Sun Bank and take it to a bank that knows what it's doing."

"Sun Bank lost a lot of money in South America and would love to sock it to the city."

Sun Bank wants the city to show, now that it has changed its mind about building its own sewer system, that it can repay $3 million it borrowed for that purpose. (Sun Bank purchased $3 million in bonds to finance the Longwood system).

At the commission's Monday night meeting, former City Commissioner Perry Faulkner asked what would

Sanford Considers Foot Bridge Over Creek Where Boy Drowned

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Whether the city of Sanford should build a foot bridge over a creek where a 4-year-old boy drowned last week is to be considered by the city commission Monday.

The foot bridge and other items were discussed by the commission during a work session at city hall Monday.

"Is there something we can do to provide a safe bridge if we know kids are using the creek to go to the Westside Recreation Center," asked Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith during the session.

She was referring to a 4-foot wide spot over Mill Creek where Arthur Bradshaw Jr. fell in while trying to jump the rain-swollen stream March 30. His body was recovered Sunday. It apparently is a well-traveled path for kids heading towards the recreation center, she said.

The bridge would cost $8,000 to $10,000 and be installed by city workers, said city manager Frank Faison. He also said there is an old drainage study of the creek that needs updating but it recommends portions of the waterway be covered.

"We might save a life in the meantime if we put in a bridge," said Mrs. Smith.

Commissioner Bob Thomas, who represents the district where the child drowned, said he was not opposed to the idea, but did not know if it were necessary since the weather conditions that brought about the flood-waters were unusual.

"We usually don't get rain like we had the last time," he said. Commissioner A.A. McClanahan agreed and thought the bridge might be futile.

"I'm not sure a bridge in one spot is (not) like eating soup with a fork," he said.

Faison said the city could put the bridge up immediately if funds were made available and called the 4-foot narrow spot in the creek an attractive nuisance.

"I think that's a lot of reason right there to put up a bridge," said Mrs. Smith. The item is to be included on the agenda for the city's next regular meeting.

Another item scheduled to be considered Monday by the commission is its alcohol and drug testing policy.

William Colbert, city attorney, has approved the policy in that it is consistent with state and federal law. Colbert did add, however, that the issue of employers testing employees is one before the courts and the policy should continue to be re-examined in light of new rulings.

The issue, according to the attorney, is whether a policy represents a reasonable intrusion into an employee's expectation of privacy.

"The proposal of the city of Sanford for testing of non-probationary employees and probationary employees is consistent with emerging standards at both the state and federal level," said a report to the commission.

The policy calls for all applicants for full and part-time jobs be tested for "controlled substance" use including alcohol. Any applicant testing positive will not be hired by the city, according to the policy. Any applicant refusing to take the test will not be hired by the city, either.

Minor Violence Follows Death Of Suspect

TAMPA (UPI) — Police arrested five people and closed a street for about three hours because of minor violence sparked by the death Sunday night of a black suspect in police custody.

There were no reports of serious injuries in the disturbance, but a police car was damaged by flying rocks and bottles. Those arrested included four adults and a juvenile.

A preliminary medical examiner's report Monday failed to determine a cause of death of Otis Miller, 35, who died Sunday night after struggling with two police officers, Capt. Keith Linton said.

"The preliminary report showed no trauma to the head or throat," Linton said. "There was a minor injury to the inside of the windpipe, apparently a result of the medical procedure."

Miller — described as between 30 and 35, 6-feet tall and between 250 and 300 pounds — stopped breathing as he was being handcuffed following the struggle. The two officers and rescue personnel revived him but he later died at St. Joseph's Hospital.

"The medical examiner said the cause of death is pending toxicology reports," Linton said.

It was the third time since Feb. 18 that a black man has died at the hands of white police officers in Tampa, and in both prior cases the officers were cleared. The two officers involved in Sunday's incident were placed on administrative leave pending an investigation.

Maj. Gabe Venero said the scuffle occurred after the officers responded to a suspicious person report and found the man pushing a grocery cart filled with aluminum cans and other material.

Venero said the first officer to arrive was Roxanne Wollem, who is 5-feet, 4-inches tall and weighs 105 pounds. The other officer was M.D. Noyes, who is 5-feet, 10 inches tall and 180 pounds.

"He spit on her and she backed off and waited for her backup, about four or five minutes," Venero said. "Another officer arrived and he spit on him too, and then became belligerent and swung on both officers."

Venero said Wollem tried unsuccessfully to take the man down with a headlock, and then Noyes put him on the ground with a headlock. At one point the victim was struck on the elbow with a flashlight.

"The female grabbed him first and he shook her off, and then the male officer grabbed the man and took him down," Venero said. "After they handcuffed him they realized he wasn't breathing. They administered CPR and called for a rescue vehicle."

Noyes also was taken to the hospital where he received stitches for a cut lip. A group of about 25 people gathered at the scene, some shouting angrily at passersby, but the group dispersed without trouble.

Suspect In Cab Heist Held In Lieu Of $1,000

A man who matched the description of a suspect who at gunpoint at about 10:40 a.m. Saturday in Seminole County allegedly robbed a Safe Way Cab driver of $18, was spotted by Sanford police at about 12:17 p.m. Sunday and arrested on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

The suspect claimed he had to pull the gun to make the cab driver give him change for the $20 bill he had given to pay for his ride. But the cab driver, Johnny L. Cain, 30, of Sanford, told sheriff's deputies a different story when he reported the armed robbery. Cain told sheriff's deputies the gunman hadn't given him a $20 at all, but still pulled the gun and demanded $18 "in change" from him. Cain handed over the money and the gunman fled, a sheriff's report said.

Felix King Bailey, 68, of no address, was nabbed by Sanford police on Laurel Avenue at Fifth Street. He reportedly matched the description of the robbery suspect and police searched him after noticing the bulge in his jacket, where the gun was reportedly found. Bailey was being held in lieu of $1,000. Charges in connection with the armed robbery were not reported along with the weapons charge.

Winter Springs Sues Florida Public Utilities Company

The city of Winter Springs filed suit against the Florida Public Utilities Company claiming the business refuses to remove a gas main from city property.

The city says it needs the property the gas main related devices are in for an effluent disposal site. The suit states the company had no title or right to the property yet refused to remove the main.

Florida Public Utilities Company president Frank Cressman in West Palm Beach would not comment on the suit.

The city states in the suit that it told the utility in 1985 to remove the main or it would be charged rent at $100 a day and be sued. The city began charging $100 a day on Aug. 15, 1985, and claims the company owes it, as calculated to today based on city figures, $61,100 in back rent plus interest and attorney fees.

The case has been assigned to Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr.

Tentative Trial Date Set For Petsos

A tentative trial date of June 8 has been set for a Lake Mary City Commissioner accused of burglary and petty theft.

Commissioner Arthur "Buzz" Petsos has pleaded not guilty to the charges. Petsos, 35, was suspended from office Friday by Gov. Bob Martinez pending the outcome of the charges.

Petosos is accused of entering the Pie-A-Deli in Lake Mary March 16 and taking bread, coffee, coffee filters and plastic trash bags. It was a business he once owned, and he said he used his own key to get inside to check receipts. He alleged the business bounced a check, and he wanted to see if the business was having financial trouble.

While he was inside, the owner returned with a delivery of supplies at about 9:18 p.m. and called police after he saw a man inside which he said looked like Petsos.

Petosos is treasurer of a nearby business in the same shopping center. He is free on bail while awaiting trial.

Northeast Floods Fed By More Rain

By United Press International

A slow-moving storm poured more rain on the Northeast today, aggravating floods that overwhelmed dams, isolated residents of a Massachusetts town and kept hundreds of people away from their homes.

The storm spread rain today from Ohio and West Virginia to Maine, prompting flood watches and warnings across much of New England, the National Weather Service said. The storm, which has forced at least 1,700 people to flee their homes, was expected to linger over New England at least through tonight.

Since Saturday, more than 600 people have been evacuated in Massachusetts, 415 in New Jersey, 500 in New Hampshire and 212 in Connecticut. About 285 people in New Hampshire and 200 in Massachusetts remained out of their homes today.

States of emergency were declared Monday by Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis and New Hampshire Gov. John Sununu, clearing the way for requests for federal assistance. New Jersey Gov. Thomas Kean ordered a limited state of emergency for Passaic, Bergen and Morris counties.

Rivers in Connecticut, western Massachusetts and southern Maine crested and some residents returned home Monday, but new evacuations were ordered in New Hampshire and eastern Massachusetts, civil defense officials said.

About 150 people in Buckland in northwestern Massachusetts were reported "totally isolated" by high water, said Civil Defense Director Robert Boulay. Concord, Mass., police called off a search for a man reported missing and presumed dead after he fell into the Assabet River Monday.

73rd Legislature Opens With Martinez Speech

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Lawmakers convened today in the 73rd session of the Florida Legislature, set to deal with a $900 million sales tax reform, massive shortfalls in roads, schools and prisons, and the creation of a billion-dollar lottery.

Gov. Bob Martinez presented his State of the State Address to a joint assembly of the 160 House and Senate members. He was the first Republican governor to do so since Gov. Claude Kirk in 1970.

Martinez pushed hard for his sales tax exemption proposal, touting it as the best way to begin funding the services and facilities demanded by Florida's rapid growth.

The governor wants to eliminate exemptions for advertising, legal fees, real estate transactions and many other services. Services, which account for 82 percent of Florida's economy, currently are not taxed.

The only exemptions that would remain in place would be those on items considered essential, including health care, food items and social services such as day care.

House Speaker Jon Mills and Senate President John Vogt both have endorsed the proposal. They said Monday they hoped to pass the reform early in the session, despite strong opposition from many special interests.

"If we can agree and move forward on the tax issue, then people can turn to the 5,000 other important issues that are out there," Mills said. "This thing (the tax reform) is so dominating what is going on, it has prevented us from dealing with children's health care and those kind of things."

Mills said he and Vogt had not set a deadline for passing the bill, but were committed to getting it done as quickly as possible.

Mills and Vogt also predicted passage for a lottery bill, a bill eliminating local gun control ordinances and a bill allowing a 1-cent local option gasoline tax.

Voters approved a state lottery last year, but legislators must establish the nuts-and-bolts operation of what is expected to be a $1 billion a year business. Mills and Vogt said they were close to an agreement on that bill.

Martinez and legislators have clashed over the makeup of the proposed lottery commission, with Martinez saying he will veto any bill that does not give him sole authority to appoint commissioners. Mills and Vogt said they were "flexible" on the matter.

On other legislative issues, Mills and Vogt:

—United in support of a plan to let local governments enact a 1 cent gasoline tax for road repair.

—Predicted a bill repealing local gun control laws would pass easily, though it may be amended to include a two-day "cooling off" period on handgun purchases.

—Said they had reservations about allowing local governments to add a 1-cent local option sales tax, a proposal backed by Martinez.

—Suggested they would not allow reporters to follow all legislative activities. Mills said he would allow reporters in most meetings but would not give them advance notice; Vogt said access would depend on the subject matter of a meeting. Most state government meetings are open to the press and the public, but the Legislature exempted itself when it wrote that law.

—Said they were interested in Gov. Martinez' attempt to bring the multibillion dollar federal superconducting super collider project to Florida, but want more information before they allocate $2 million to fund an intricate state application.

—Said they liked the concept of sentencing guidelines for judges, but that they favored adopting reforms proposed by the Supreme Court last week.

—Said they would like to end the session within its scheduled 60 days — but could not promise to do so.

Mr. Bob Visits 2 Schools

By Genie Lindberg

Elementary schools participating in the award-winning Friendly Reading Incentive Program are scheduled to receive visits from Sesame Street's "Mr. Bob" Bob McGrath on April 8 and 9, Jim Fiola, Friendly's media relations representative said.

McGrath is scheduled to appear at Hamilton Elementary School Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. and at Idyllwild Elementary Thursday at 9:30 a.m., Fiola said.

In addition, Family Circle will present an award of recognition to Seminole County Schools for participating in the program, selected as a recipient of the magazine's "Leaders of Readers" Recognition Award, Fiola said.

The Friendly Restaurant chain created this program in 1983 and since that time, 64 elementary schools have participated in the program and more than 291,508 books have been read, Fiola said. Friendly has also donated more than 17 thousand books to participating school libraries. In Seminole County, more than 3,900 books were donated to ten participating elementary schools in 1986, he said.

Evaluation of the program has found the best response comes from the average and below-average reader and generally, one-third of the participants earn a bookplate by reading 12 books, Fiola said.

AP Courses Boost GPAs

Advanced Placement (AP) courses taken by students in high school can result in students receiving grade point averages (GPAs) higher than a 4.0, Charles Jacobs, Seminole High School guidance counselor, said.

Since AP courses require more work and study time from students, they are weighted more in terms of figuring average GPA's, Jacobs said. If a student takes an AP course as a regular high school course and receives an A which normally has a grade-point value of four points, the student will receive one additional point, he said, making the A worth five points.

The same grading system applies to dual enrollment courses which are college-level courses taught at Seminole High School through Seminole Community College, Jacobs said.

U.S. Interests Must Be First

A powerful congressional bloc wants to cut drastically the Reagan administration's proposal for aid to Pakistan unless the latter signs an international agreement against the spread of nuclear weapons. This sounds reasonable at first glance. But cutting aid is a sure way to guarantee that Pakistan will go nuclear as soon as possible. The United States also must balance concern about nuclear non-proliferation against the very real prospect of Soviet expansion in the area.

The Reagan administration is asking $4 billion in economic and military assistance for Pakistan over the next six years. The proposal would temporarily exempt Pakistan from a law banning American aid to countries that do not assure they won't acquire or develop nuclear weapons. A similar waiver was given in 1981, even though concern existed then that Pakistan was trying to develop nuclear weapons.

The issue has come to a head because administration analysts believe Pakistan manufactured weapons-grade uranium for the first time last year. They think it has almost the same ability as Israel to assemble a nuclear device within weeks. Pakistan denies these claims.

Still, Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., plans to introduce a bill that would cut military assistance 50 percent and limit waiving assurances against building nuclear weapons to two years. He and other opponents fear the spread of nuclear weapons, especially to Pakistan which fought a conventional war in the early 1970s with neighboring India, a country that has nuclear capability.

The Pakistani effort, however, is an understandable response to India's developing nuclear capability. It was India that in 1974 became the first country in the world to explode an atomic bomb made from materials imported for peaceful nuclear purposes. Just because both sides have nuclear weapons doesn't mean the weapons will be used, as the United States and Soviet Union have proved during the last 40 years.

Cutting aid and attaching unacceptable restrictions will only hasten a more daunting reality — a Pakistani backlash against the United States that will allow the Soviets to consolidate their puppet Afghanistan government.

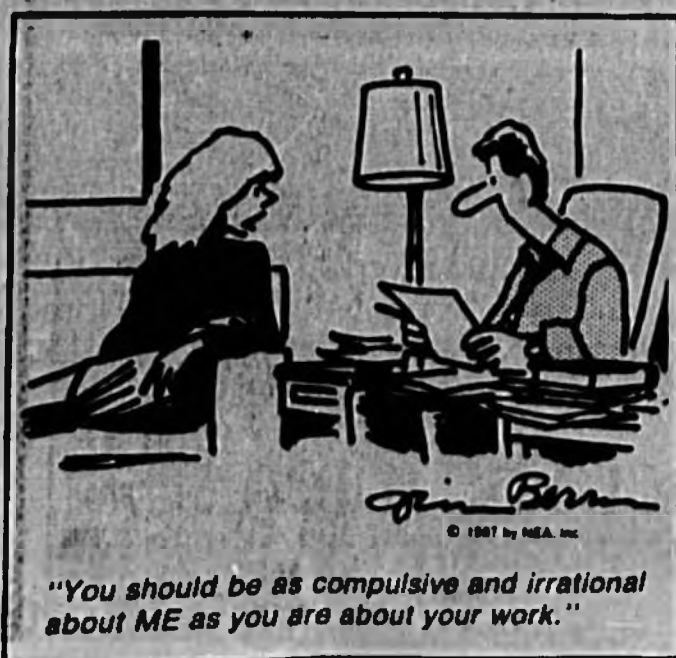

Pakistan's border areas have been flooded with Afghan refugees. The refugee camps serve as sanctuaries for Afghan freedom-fighters, but Pakistan is under considerable pressure to close them down or limit border-crossings. If U.S. support for Pakistan wavers, the Pakistani government will be more convinced than ever that it needs atomic weapons to defend itself.

It also will be tempted to cut a deal with Moscow that could be disastrous for Western interests. The brave Afghans would be offered up to the tender mercies of a Soviet-controlled regime in Kabul. Another anti-communist guerrilla group would be seen to have "failed." The Soviets didn't invade Afghanistan because of a security threat from that mountainous, largely barren country. Most analysts believe they are pursuing the traditional Russian goal of getting closer to a warm-water port — which in this region would be offered by Pakistan.

The Soviets would then have a base from which to block vital oil shipping lanes in case of war. Nonaligned India probably wouldn't protest too much against the subjugation — or "Finlandization" — of its neighbor because of the traditional hatred between it and Pakistan. Iran still is consumed with the Iraq war and its own dreams of expansionism.

The Pakistan government is also unpopular with many in Congress because it is insufficiently democratic. But the United States should have learned a lesson from the loss of Iran, a key country in the region. Utopian foreign policy almost always leads to disaster. Pakistan may not be the most likeable ally, but it's the best ally we've got in the region — indeed, the only ally. We should continue supplying aid as proof of our support and not allow quixotic ideas about nuclear non-proliferation to endanger our security interests.

Standardized Tests Are Anti-Democratic

The Supreme Court's recent affirmative-action ruling cheered some women and most minorities, angered most white males and relieved employers, but, typical of great court decisions, it still left a critical question twisting in the wind.

How important are tests as a measurement of ability?

Following the court's logic, not very. Naturally, minimum psychometric standards must be met.

But once you go from the tests' supposed precision for determining who is best suited for entry-level jobs to the diversity of human variables that come into play when considering promotions, the bigotry of the ol' boy network takes over.

That's what happened to Diana Joyce in Santa Clara, Calif.

She got aced in the interviews for promotion. But audacious confidence drove her to seek justice.

"There was never any doubt in my mind that I was going to bury the sucker," she said of the man she beat out for the job.

After 200 constitutional years of white-male preferential treatment, wasn't it time to redress the wrongs of inequity?

The court thought so.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce and many major industries concurred.

Paradoxically, women, who would benefit from the court's attempt to redress the wrongs of discrimination, disagreed.

In a USA Today poll, 58 percent of the women surveyed said the court decision was wrong.

However, 58 percent of blacks said the court's decision was "right on."

But one swallow doesn't make a spring, and one Supreme Court decision won't open doors overnight that have been closed for 200 years.

America's white male oligarchy still controls the levers of power in American society, and standardized tests are the most powerful lever of all.

In a pluralistic society where many groups are denied equal access, standardized tests are major tools used to exclude these groups.

The white male-dominated Educational Testing Service controls most of the standardized tests that decide who gets into college, who is admitted to law school, who can go to graduate school and who can be certified by many professions.

Supporters of standardized tests insist that such tests are necessary to ensure a meritocracy.

They're wrong. In a democracy where racism, sexism and elitism still govern who gets hired, promoted and fired, meritocracy based on testing is actually anti-democratic.

ETS's tests retard women's progress.

As evidence, several major research projects have documented that females receive higher grades in school than males, yet females score lower than males on the SATs and all ETS-controlled exams.

A few weeks ago, a group of alarmed University of North Carolina trustees noted that women made up 59.2 percent of the 15,313 students. This ratio prevails on many college campuses.

Place more emphasis on the SATs, where males score higher than females, suggested trustee Richard H. Jenrette of New York.

ABM, SDI Provokes Debate

The present struggle over the interpretation of the ABM treaty is fascinating politically, but entirely unnecessary.

On the one hand, the administration and supporters of SDI are insisting on a broad interpretation of the treaty that would permit the testing of components of the SDI system. At his press conference, the president was able to cite no less than Marshal Grechko, Soviet Minister of Defense, in support of his position. Soviets even now are conducting tests that are actually in violation of the treaty.

Opponents of SDI have been insisting on a narrow interpretation. And now comes Senator Sam Nunn and the interesting part. Nunn has acquired the reputation of a sound thinker on defense matters, a man who does his homework and exercises good judgment. These qualities have earned him a location on the right wing of the Democratic Party as far as defense is concerned. Nunn opposed SALT II for example.

But Nunn is a sometime presidential candidate who wants to keep that option open, and he knows that no one who supports either SDI or aid to the Nicaraguan resistance will get the Democratic nomination, over which the left has an effective veto.

Senator Hollings, another moderate Southerner who also inhabits the right wing of the Democratic Party attempted to run for the presidency in 1984. He too had opposed the SALT II treaty. But while running for president he emitted large clouds of squid's ink regarding his defense and foreign policy positions.

Nunn came out sternly, even theoretically, against a broad interpretation of the ABM treaty, even predicting a "constitutional crisis" if the administration takes the broad route.

A strict interpretation of the treaty would not end work on SDI, only cripple it. What the Nunn position boils down to is that the SDI program is all right as long as it is ineffective. Politically, however, funding probably would not continue for a program that could be shown to be going nowhere.

Under the terms of the treaty itself, either signatory can withdraw after giving six months notice. Withdraw altogether. According to the testimony of former Senator Fulbright, who favors a strict interpretation, "The administration has the right under the ABM treaty to propose amendments or to withdraw from the treaty. It does not have the right to perform radical surgery."

FAA Ignores Bad Bolts In Airlines

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Spear
WASHINGTON — Federal Aviation Administration officials have done little but wring their hands helplessly in the eight years since investigators reported that bogus steel bolts could cause an airliner's wing to tear loose under stress.

Because the supervision and paperwork needed to prevent the use of dangerously substandard bolts would have been burdensome, the FAA bureaucrats chose instead to do virtually nothing. About all they've done, besides worrying, is issue "alerts" to aircraft companies from time to time, warning them of the dangers that phony bolts pose.

In fact, the FAA recently made it more difficult than ever to track substandard aviation bolts. The agency deleted all references to "bogus" bolts from its computer system in Oklahoma City.

The computer keeps tabs on maintenance problems reported by

Black Budget Scandal

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Here's a preview of the next major Defense Department scandal: It will involve the unlawful diversion of millions of dollars in public funds by Pentagon contractors working on "black" projects.

The department's black budget for programs carrying security classifications has more than tripled during the Reagan administration. That's a faster growth rate than experienced by any other major federal activity.

But oversight and accountability have not increased commensurately. Indeed, the Defense Department frequently refuses to allow either its own auditing agencies or the General Accounting Office to examine the financing of black programs.

The Pentagon's black budget is estimated to total about $35 billion annually, although only about half of that amount is spent on classified military programs. The other half is earmarked for the nation's intelligence agencies, most of whose funding is hidden in the Defense Department budget.

Some black military programs are identified in public budget summaries only by code names such as "Tacti Rainbow," "Elegant Lady," "Prairie Schooner" or "Island Sun."

Others are hidden behind meaningless phrases such as "special activities," "selected activities," "special programs," "advanced concepts" or "other production charges."

The F-19 Stealth fighter-bomber, for example, is a black project that until recently carried the code name "Aurora." When some members of Congress noticed several years ago that the proposed budget for the program increasing dramatically from $80 million in 1986 to $2.3 billion in 1987, they sought an explanation — but were repeatedly rebuffed by the Pentagon.

Most legislators and even federal investigators lack the security clearances required to gain access to what the Defense Department calls "sensitive compartmented or special access information." In fact, there are more than 10,000 such security "compartments," each requiring a special clearance.

"We're talking about hidden caches of funds that suck in billions of U.S. taxpayers' dollars," says Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., who recently initiated an effort to curb reported financial abuses within.

"There is no accountability and no real oversight," added Boxer, a member of both the House Armed Services and Budget committees. "We need to make sure these programs are black for legitimate national security reasons."

Similarly, Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Commerce Committee, says he is convinced, on the basis of an initial probe, that the Pentagon's black budget is "out of control" and "conceals outright illegal activities."

Some instances of financial abuse already have become known. In one case, a Northrop Corp. employee assigned to work on Stealth was an ex-convict who defrauded the government program out of $600,000 by channeling subcontracts to a company he secretly owned.

In another instance, a Northrop purchasing agent awarded subcontracts to bidders who promised him kickbacks. "We don't have any supervisory people," he said in explaining how easy it was to defraud the black programs. "Nobody questions dollars."

Knowledgeable sources here say those examples are only the proverbial "tip of the iceberg" of a clandestine scandal likely to soon burst into public view.

Balanced Economy Required

WASHINGTON — The willingness to put the economic interests of Japan ahead of the economic interests of the United States is an attitude found among certain administration economic advisers. Important publications such as The Wall Street Journal and The Washington Post, and in statements of libertarian groups such as the Cato Institute.

The Japan First policy was expressed most explicitly in early February by Dr. Paul W. McCracken, a member of the Board of Contributors of the Journal. In a Feb. 9 article, Dr. McCracken said "Those in Japan who say that the U.S. must accept a reduction in its standard of living if a better balance in the world economy is to be achieved are correct." There you have it in plain language: let the Americans cut their standard of living.

Did thousands of Americans give their lives in resisting Japanese military imperialism in the 1940s only to have America yield national interests to Japanese economic imperialism in the 1980s? In Dr. McCracken's acceptance of Japanese overlordship, one reads a failure to consider vital historical factors. This kind of omission is characteristic of many economic commentators.

Americans ought to know that their standard of living is being reduced by the heavy burden U.S. taxpayers bear in providing for the defense of Japan. Japan spends less than one percent of its gross national product for defense. The U.S. spends more than 5 percent. And, the U.S. provides naval and air defense for Japan in areas that are of exclusive importance for Japan, such as the tanker routes across the Indian Ocean.

Dr. McCracken doesn't suggest that we tell Japan to pick up the tab. He doesn't suggest a Defense of Freedom Tax on goods from Japan, South Korea and other countries which get a free ride at the expense of America.

Instead, he says that America must do as the Japanese say and accept a reduction in the American standard of living. The advocates of a Japan First economic policy hail the Japanese "transplants" which use high-tech parts manufactured in Japan. The Wall Street Journal cries "Give Us More Service Jobs." They ignore the danger of the U.S. becoming a vast holding company for foreign investors while our meaningful jobs are displaced by low-wage, low-skill jobs — American drones serving foreign masters.

Standard Pressed Steel, of Jenkintown, Pa., gives its dealers a notarizing stamp to certify that the bolts they sell are the genuine SPS article. Any purchaser of SPS bolts from an authorized dealer gets a document bearing the certifying stamp.

The reason for this precaution is that counterfeiters can also fake authenticating documents. For example, a bogus-bolt maker was recently caught giving one manufacturer of small aircraft a doctored certificate for some SPS bolts that were also doctored. The bolts had been rendered substandard by the modification, according to Don Roach of SPS.

The new SPS stamp makes a raised seal, like a notary public's, on the dealers' certificates. The company hopes this will at least make it more difficult for bogus-bolt makers to fool their customers with forged documents.

Canadian Summit Over, Reagan Returns To Domestic Agenda

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, back home today following his small concession to Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, is returning his focus to domestic affairs — where he also is being pressed for compromise.

After last week's stinging congressional override on his veto of the highway bill, perhaps the largest issue looming before the president is the budget, and Democrats have made it clear they want to talk before taking action.

But Reagan has resisted calls for a "budget summit" without a promise from Congress not to try to raise taxes. The only summit he has given attention to recently is the one he just completed with Mulroney in Ottawa.

The president spent 24 hours in Ottawa talking with Mulroney, his friend and fellow conservative, as well as meeting opposition leader John Turner and speaking to Canada's Parliament.

New Twist In Chemical Evolution

DENVER (UPI) — Halley's comet seems to be blanketed by some of the chemical precursors to life, suggesting the evolution of living things on Earth may have been a little different from the prevailing theory, a chemist says.

Clifford Matthews said the dark material that closeup pictures found covering the nucleus of the comet is a crust made from hydrogen cyanide and related compounds — the basic ingredients of the stuff from which life can develop.

Support for that idea comes from analysis of data obtained in March 1986 by the European Space Agency's Giotto spacecraft and two Soviet Vega probes that intercepted Halley as the comet made its once-every-76-years swing into the inner solar system.

Lawmaker Belittles Scandal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Dick Cheney, R-Wyo., the vice chairman and chief presidential defender on the House panel probing the Iran-Contra scandal, predicts the controversy will end up a mere footnote to Watergate's chapter in American history.

In an interview with United Press International, Cheney strongly defended President Reagan and former CIA Director William Casey and portrayed himself as a Reagan point man on the Democrat-led House select committee.

Cuomo Launches Bridge Collapse Probe

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — New York Gov. Mario Cuomo said Monday he has asked the National Transportation Safety Board to join state officials in the investigation of the collapsed New York Thruway bridge and that outside consultants also may be hired.

Engineers Monday began inspecting the remains of the bridge, discovering soil erosion previously hidden by floodwaters that washed out the span "built to withstand a 100-year storm."

"This bridge didn't 'age out,'" said Daniel Garvey, chief engineer of the New York Thruway Authority. "It just got hit with something it couldn't stand."

Inspection teams Monday examined two of the support columns that rise from either side of the Schoharie Creek closest to its banks. The two middle columns were knocked down when the 200-foot section of the bridge collapsed Sunday.

Garvey said highway maintenance crews and state police routinely check the Thruway bridges during heavy rains and flooding, looking for structural damage "or anything unusual."

He said the Schoharie Bridge was checked Sunday morning by both police and Thruway crews, but the creek was 10 feet above flood stage at that time, and the soil erosion was apparently hidden below the water line.

"We had no indication there was a problem. It seemed it (the collapse) was rather quick and dramatic. It didn't give any warning," he said.

Since Sunday, water levels were receding by as much as 20 feet, and engineers were able to see erosion and large cracks in the earth around the base of the bridge on the western side of the span. They are trying to determine whether the erosion may have pulled the bridge off its supports, or have caused the columns to shift enough to leave the span susceptible to the swift currents.

Engineers also were examining blueprints of the bridge at the site.

Garvey said the bridge, built in 1956, underwent repairs five years ago, was fully inspected last April and deemed to be in good condition.

"It was built to withstand a 100-year storm — a statistical standard we use," he said. "We've never seen it (the creek) this high. ... There is a lot of water, a lot of rain and melting snow."

Cuomo said Sunday after a preliminary inspection of the failed bridge. "We have no reason at this moment to believe there was a defect" in the span.

Consultants have been called in to design both temporary and permanent replacements for the washed-out bridge. Disaster Preparedness Commission spokesman Peter Slocum said.

In the interim, tractor-trailers were banned from the highway because of lengthy detours onto two-lane roads made necessary by the collapse, Cuomo said.

The New York Legislature opened hearings Monday into the bridge collapse, with one lawmaker expressing concern about detouring traffic around the accident site onto older bridges.

Bomb Threat At Amy Carter Trial Clears Courtroom

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (UPI) — Jury selection began Monday in the trial of Amy Carter and Abbie Hoffman on charges stemming from an anti-CIA protest after a delay caused by a bomb threat that forced officials to clear the courtroom.

Carter, Hoffman and other defendants milled around the Hampshire County Courthouse for about 20 minutes while authorities searched the building for explosives.

Jury selection began after defendants, potential jurors and reporters were allowed to return to the courtroom.

The threat came at about 10:20 a.m., moments after the pool of potential jurors filed into the courtroom. Court officers first ordered them to leave the building, then told reporters to get out.

At a pre-trial news conference near the courthouse Monday morning, Hoffman predicted he and fledgling activist Carter, a 19-year-old sophomore at Brown University, will be acquitted by showing the intelligence agency is out of control.

Carter, Hoffman and 13 others are charged with trespassing and disorderly conduct stemming from a noisy demonstration last fall against agency recruiting at the University of Massachusetts main campus in Amherst.

"Regrettably, but definitively, we feel this agency is out of control," Hoffman said. "What we are showing (with this case) is that people are free to act."

"We issue a challenge to the CIA because we support free speech for the CIA." "We are convinced that we are going to win our case," said Hoffman, 50, a leader of the anti-Vietnam War movement in the 1960s.

Carter said her knowledge about the CIA was enhanced by her contact with her father, former President Jimmy Carter.

"I've certainly learned a lot from living in the same house with him," she said, describing her parents as "completely supportive" of her role.

But, Carter stressed that she has done quite a bit of research on her own and considered the trial to be "probably the most important thing I have done."

A dozen pro-CIA students held a counter-demonstration Monday morning, waving an American flag and chanting, "Fund the Contras not the Soviets."

Defense attorneys have promised to defend their clients by putting the CIA on trial.

"I think there are people in this country that are offended that the CIA is ignoring the will of Congress," said defense attorney Thomas Lesser of Northampton.

Fifteen people, including Carter and Hoffman, face trial on charges related to the protest.

Some 60 people were arrested after they occupied a university building Nov. 24. All but 15 had their cases disposed of in Northampton District Court, mostly by no-contest pleas.

Among the witnesses expected to testify on behalf of the protesters are former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark; Daniel Ellsberg, the man who leaked the Pentagon Papers to the media in 1969; and former CIA agent John Stockwell, who has openly criticized his one-time employer.

New Support For Origin Of Life Theory

DENVER (UPI) — Studies of Halley's comet last year by three spacecraft add new support to the controversial theory that life on Earth evolved from a primitive protein-rich "stew" rather than from a dilute "soup" in the oceans, a chemist reported Monday.

The dark material that closeup pictures found blanketing the nucleus of Comet Halley is a crust made from hydrogen cyanide and related compounds — the basic ingredients of the stuff from which life can develop.

If this is so — and he said other Halley measurements back the idea — then that suggests such chemistry "is a preferred pathway in the solar system" and played a key role in the development of life on Earth, he said at the annual meeting of the American Chemical Society.

Matthews, professor of chemistry at the University of Illinois at Chicago, believes such compounds also formed on Earth and some other bodies in the solar system, but comets and most other planets did not have the liquid water and right temperatures to permit the additional steps necessary for life.

"Even though you might have the right stuff, we don't think the conditions existed to get it together." But on Earth, he said, the chemicals were "the right stuff in the right place at the right time" to lead to basic forms of life.

The prevailing theory holds that lightning flashing through a primitive atmosphere of methane, ammonia and water vapor would have produced amino acids that settled in the oceans. Then this soup of amino acids joined together to form proteins, key components of living systems.

Although laboratory experiments dating back to 1953 have been able to produce the amino acids from such a mixture of gases, Matthews said it is difficult to see how those acids joined together to form proteins.

Matthews' alternative hypothesis starts with the same ancient atmosphere of methane and ammonia. But he believes sunlight triggered a chemical reaction to form clouds of hydrogen cyanide.

The cyanide then linked together to form similar but more complex compounds called polymers that rained out of the atmosphere into the seas, skipping the amino acid step. Some of these polymers, Matthews believes, were converted in water to protein-like compounds "able to take part in and promote the interactions leading to life."

"It's a very rich stew instead of a thin soup," he said in an interview. "With this rich stew we can see how things begin to happen."

Loveland's Gives Furniture That Tender Loving Touch

Bob Loveland, owner of Loveland's Refinishing located at 506 W. 13th St., Sanford for 2½ years, wants to thank all his residential and commercial customers for making the business a success.
 Because of the growth of the business, Bob has hired a third person and is now able to turn out jobs faster. Adrian Boyd, who formerly worked in furniture refinishing has returned to his "old love." Larry McKenzie has worked at Loveland's for almost two years.
 All work is guaranteed. Even though the business is growing, everything is still under Mr. Loveland's tender loving care.
 They also do stripping on old doors, kitchen tops, cabinets and in-home touch ups.
 For a free estimate in his shop or your home, Bob says call 322-7496 for an appointment as it is almost impossible to give estimates over the telephone.
 Repairing cigarette

burns, fire, smoke and water damage are a specialty. Restoration and refinishing work is welcomed. Don't throw away old pieces of furniture with a lot of memories or heritage behind it. Loveland's can bring it back close to new, but with that old look in it.
 Free pickups and deliveries are available in Loveland's new and bigger truck, which enables them to pick up larger pieces such as pianos.
 Customer parking is available off of the Laurel Avenue entrance. Loveland's is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday or call for an appointment. They are willing to stay open when the job requires it.
 During Bob's 10 years in the field, he has mastered all the problems that can come along. Furniture stores are welcome to call upon his on-the-road service. No job is too big or too small for Loveland's to handle.

Army Declines Comment On Defector Report

HEIDELBERG, West Germany (UPI) — The U.S. Army declined comment Monday on a report in its daily newspaper that a soldier suspected of deserting to the Soviet Union left a note on his barracks bed last month saying he was leaving.

The Stars and Stripes newspaper, an authorized unofficial publication, said the note said "I can't handle this anymore. Maybe I'm not cut out to be a soldier" and followed disciplinary action.

A Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman in Moscow on Thursday said an American soldier identified as W.E. Roberts and his West German bride had been granted political asylum.

A spokesman at the European headquarters of the army in Heidelberg said the army had no statement to make on the Stars and Stripes report, which he said was based on information provided by four unidentified soldiers.

The Stars and Stripes, said in its Saturday edition that the Pentagon is speculating that the soldier the Soviets say defected is Pvt. 2 Wade E. Roberts, a 22-year-old combat wireman of San Bernardino, Calif., who went absent without leave March 2.

He was listed as a deserter April 2, the newspaper reported.

The Stars and Stripes interviewed four members of Wade E. Roberts' unit, Battery B, 3rd Battalion, 79th Field Artillery, 42nd Field Artillery Brigade, in Gieseen, about 45 miles north of Frankfurt.

The soldiers, who asked that their names not be used, said they would not be surprised if Roberts were the defector. They said their battalion handles sensitive equipment, but they would not elaborate.

NASA Says Station May Grow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — NASA's new space station design features less electrical power for research than originally envisioned, but agency officials said Monday they are confident the $10.9 billion outpost will meet scientific demand.

Andrew Stefan, NASA's associate administrator for space station, said at a news conference the smaller-scale station approved Friday by President Reagan can be upgraded in the future if budgets permit.

"We'll have the first element launched in 1994, permanently mated in 1996," he said. "We will have full international participation. It was designed to be able to grow in the future. We've always had an evolutionary plan in mind with the station so with time it could grow."

"I think we have a program that we can fully support that will deliver science and technology and will give us a capability ... of perhaps passing the capability the Russians will have at that time."

President Reagan gave NASA permission Friday to proceed with the project, which now is estimated to cost $10.9 billion, although congressional approval is yet to come. NASA originally promised to build the modular outpost for $8 billion.

Stefan said the first space station component will be launched in mid-1994 by a space shuttle and, if all goes well, the space base will be mated on a permanent basis with rotating crews beginning in early 1996 — a delay of almost a year over the most recent plan.

The initial scaled-down space station will not have advanced solar power generators as originally planned and only 50 kilowatts of electrical power will be available, 37.5 kilowatts less than envisioned.

That will have an impact on the number and kinds of experiments that can be performed but Stefan said the issue was still under debate. Under the current plan, only 20 kilowatts of power would be available to science users. The rest will be required for basic station systems and "housekeeping."

"The final amount of power will be adequate," Stefan said. The new station also will lack a satellite servicing facility or large upper and lower booms that were part of the basic design where Earth observation and astronomy experiments were to be mounted.

But the new plan does call for two U.S.-built laboratory and habitation modules, four associated equipment-docking modules and an instrument platform to go into a different orbit.

The project bogged down when NASA told the White House in January that new studies showed the station would cost about $13 billion in 1984 dollars. That prompted a long series of meetings within the administration and the decision to proceed with the scaled-down version.

The revised space station plan was approved Friday by Reagan. In addition to the $10.9 billion cost of the new station, NASA said $1.3 billion will be required to support space station work over the next eight years at NASA's field centers.

Leonard: Defiance Of History

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — What had appeared self-deception has proved self-fulfillment.

Ray Leonard convinced himself he could succeed in his unlikely comeback attempt, and Monday night he convinced the judges as well.

"I knew I could do it," the three-time champion said after upsetting Marvin Hagler against steep odds. "I'm a non-conformist. This is in defiance of history."

Hagler, however, was unconvinced, even after the split decision rocked the millions of fight fans who watched live at Caesars Palace and on closed circuit screenings across the country. After the fight, he claimed even Leonard had conceded defeat.

"He told me, 'You beat me, man,'" Hagler said, fighting back tears. "I know in my heart I won the fight."

The result sets up a possible rematch, and both fighters left open the possibility. Once again, Leonard has injected new excitement into the fight game.

"It depends on the contract," Leonard said when asked about a "Superfight II." Later he added, "I just want to enjoy my accomplishment tonight."

The biggest argument against Leonard coming out of retirement to face Hagler was the possibility of serious injury to his left eye in the light of surgery to repair his partially torn retina. As promoter Bob Arum protested for months, however, Leonard's eye proved a non-issue.

Hagler scored with straight rights against Leonard's left eye numerous times during the bout, and raised a slight welt high on the cheekbone. Leonard's vision at no time appeared impaired, though, and he did not complain of pain in the eye following the fight.

The decision was very much an issue for Hagler however, he reiterated one of boxing's unwritten laws, that a champion must be knocked out or unambiguously ruled the loser. Judge Lou Filippo cast the dissenting vote, giving Hagler a 115-113 edge.

"I feel in my heart I'm still the champion," he said. "I really hate the fact that they took it away from me and gave it to Sugar Ray Leonard, of all people. I really hate that. But congratulations to Sugar Ray Leonard. It's not his fault. He's not the one who makes the decisions."

Even Leonard left room for debate. Since acquitting himself, not winning the title, was his chief goal, he could afford to be gracious.

"I want to thank Marvelous Marvin Hagler for giving me the opportunity to make history. To me, he is still the undisputed champion of the world."

Despite Hagler's contention, most observers believed Leonard deserved the victory. He landed 49 percent of his punches, compared to Hagler's 37 percent. He absorbed all the punishment Hagler could inflict, and responded.

"My tactics were stick and move, hit and run, taunt, create frustration," said Leonard, who succeeded in all three. "I knew what I was doing."

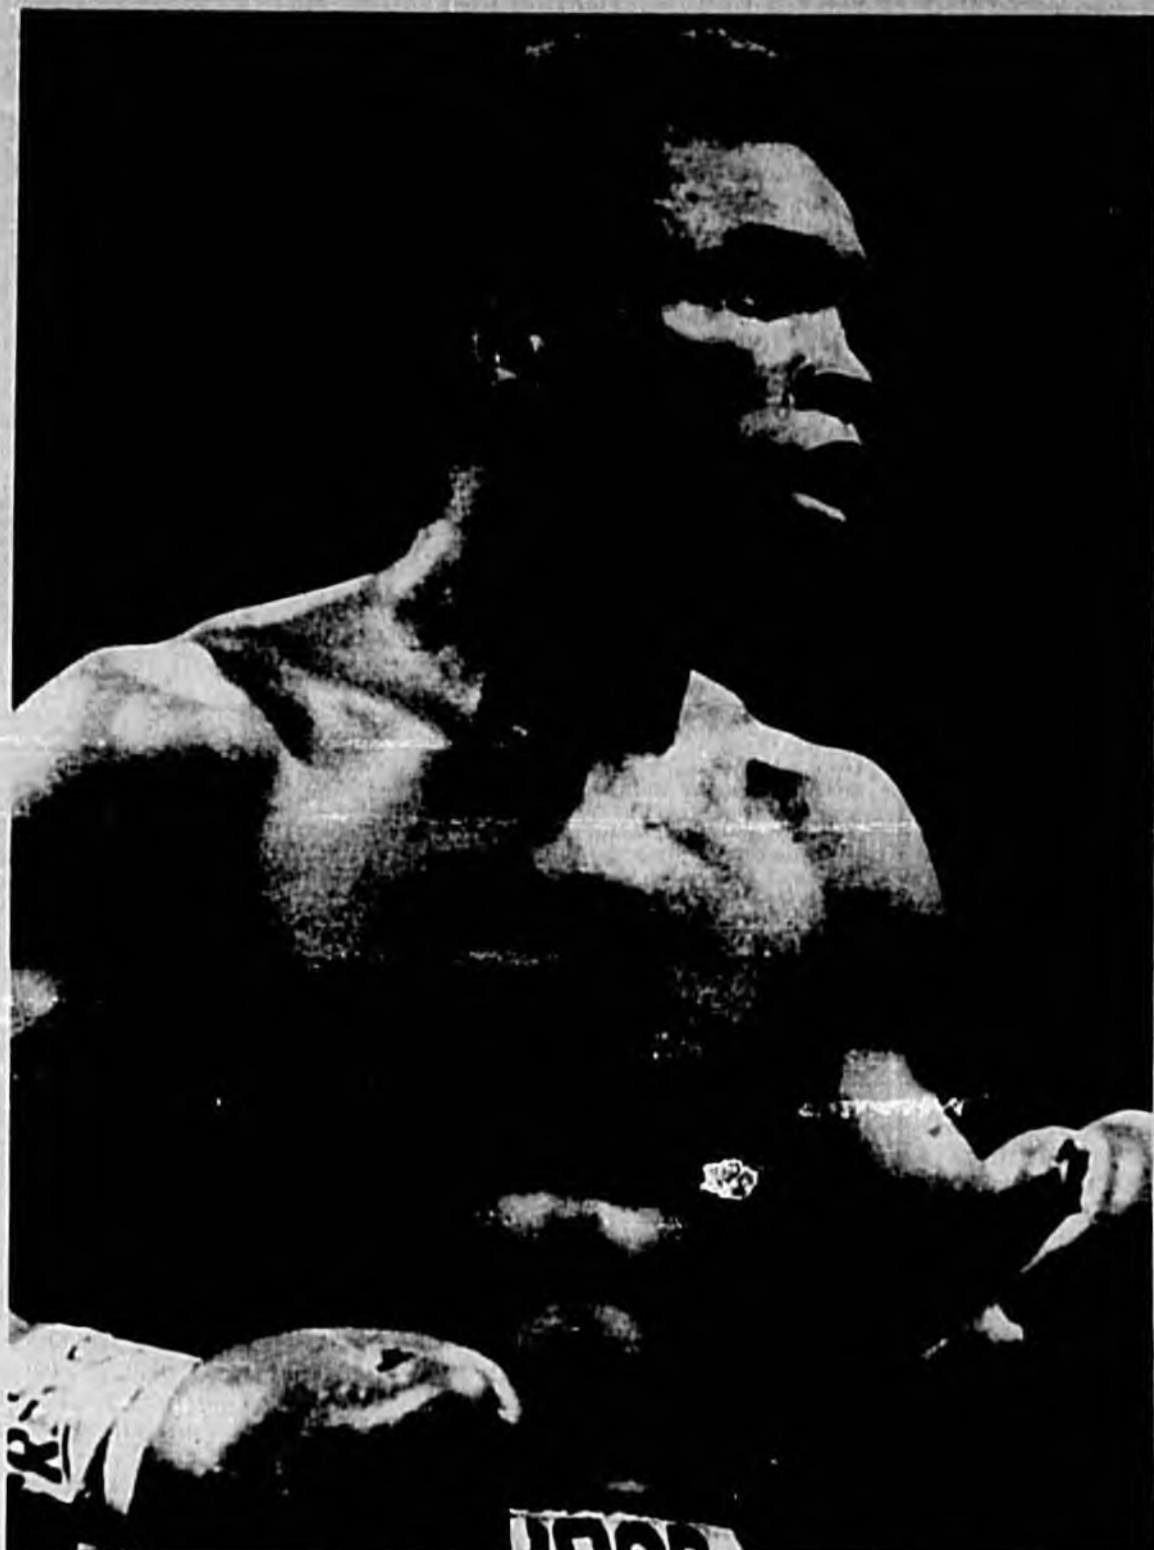

Still, Hagler felt cheated. "It happened to me the same way when I fought (Vito) Antuofermo," Hagler said of his November 1979 draw that allowed Antuofermo to retain his title. Hagler badly battered and bloodied the champion in that fight.

"This is the second time in my life here that something like this happened to me, and it puts a very bad taste in my mouth."

"What happened is this: I believe the world of boxing wants me back, and the only way they could keep me here is by trying to have a rematch with Leonard, but I don't like the way how they done it."

"It's not fair. They should have let me retire if I wanted to retire, as undisputed middleweight champion of the world, and then let me make up my own decision whether or not I wanted to give Leonard a return match because he gave me a good challenge. It should have been my decision, and not the judges' decision to take it away from me like that."

This fight was staged despite tremendous doubts. Now there is no doubt a rematch is in order. Prepare yourself for "Superfight II."

Sugar Ray Leonard won split decision over Marvin Hagler Monday.

Roldan Earns TKO Against Kinchen

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Argentine Juan Roldan, the World Boxing Council No. 2 contender, scored a ninth-round technical knockout of James Kinchen Monday night on the undercard of the Marvin Hagler-Ray Leonard middleweight title bout.

Kinchen's cornerman, Eddie Futch, asked referee Carlos Padilla to stop the fight at 1:06 of the ninth.

Roldan, also ranked fifth by the World Boxing Association, raised his record to 61-3-2 with 41 knockouts.

Sweet Shuffle: Sugar Ray Sours Marvelous

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — On a night Sugar Ray Leonard defied boxing comeback history, he ended the era of Marvelous Marvin Hagler's invincibility.

"It was nothing new to me," Leonard said Monday night after he returned to his glorious past, flicking and shuffling to a 12-round split decision over middleweight champion Hagler. "I had fun."

The enjoyment continued when the scorecards were read. Judge JoJo Guerra of Mexico had it 118-110 and Judge Dave Moretti of Las Vegas scored it 115-113, both for Leonard. Lou Filippo of Los Angeles had Hagler ahead 115-113.

United Press International scored the match 116-112 for Leonard.

"When the fight was over, Leonard told me himself, 'You beat me, man,'" Hagler said. "I made him fight. I took everything he had and I won the fight. They stole it."

Most thought Leonard, not the judges, stole the title in a $60-70 million fight, the richest in the sport's history. Only three of 14 boxers attempting comebacks had won a crown. No one had ever done it by moving up in class.

Leonard, the former welterweight and junior middleweight champion who retired twice, battled just to get into the Caesars Palace outdoor ring. His left retina, surgically repaired in 1982, was the subject of intense scrutiny.

It proved to be a non-factor against Hagler.

Leonard, 34-1, taunted Hagler soon after the opening bell, then slipped punches with ease that belied a 35-month layoff. He took command early, tagging Hagler with combinations.

In the second round, Leonard effectively went to the body and he duplicated the feat in the fourth as Hagler failed to figure out which way the moving target was going.

Leonard slowed in the fifth and sixth as Hagler continually had him against the ropes.

"He never hurt me," Leonard said. "He shook me up, but he didn't stun me. I thought he gave away the first six or seven rounds."

Hagler, a 32-year-old who had not been in the ring in 35 months, was as weary as the 30-year-old Leonard by the 10th round. Leonard had the stronger legs in the final two rounds. He stuck his face out at the champion, raised his arms at the conclusion of rounds and got the better of the exchanges despite being backed into the ropes.

"I respect everyone's opinion, but this fight meant the world to me," Leonard said. "It wasn't the belt that I wanted. It was to defeat Marvin Hagler. To me, Marvin Hagler is still the middleweight champion of the world."

Leonard hinted in the ring that he would move up in weight to fight World Boxing Council light heavyweight champion Thomas Hearns. A victory in that bout would give Leonard an unprecedented fourth world title.

At a post-fight news conference, however, Leonard was non-committal.

"Let me enjoy my performance tonight," he said.

Hagler, who has mulled retirement for years, suggested that he is now required to remain active.

"The world of boxing wants me back," said Hagler, who fell to 62-3-2. "They want to keep me here for a rematch. It's not fair. It should've been my decision and not the judges' decision."

Hagler won the title from Alan Minter on Sept. 27, 1980. He successfully defended the crown 11 times, three short of the middleweight record held by Carlos Monzon.

ARUM, KING TRADE BLOWS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A fight few people would pay to see — but many would love to watch — broke out Monday night following the Ray Leonard-Marvin Hagler middleweight title bout.

Bob Arum and Don King, the two promoters who have waged a long and fierce struggle to dominate boxing, traded blows a few minutes after Leonard was awarded a victory by split decision over Hagler.

Arum, who was promoter of the Leonard-Hagler bout, jumped on King as he tried to climb into the Caesars Palace ring. The two wrestled and King never made it into the ring to congratulate Leonard.

Seminole senior Gary Derr has quietly worked his way into the elite of the Seminole County hitters this year. Derr's 1 for 2 plate performance Monday pushed his average to .405, third best in the county.

Derr, nevertheless, did more with his arm than his bat Monday. The big right-hander retired 17 of 20 batters as the 'Noles scrambled back from a five-run deficit to overhaul Orlando Lake Highland, 9-8, in nonconference baseball at Seminole High School. Seminole, which travels to Lake Mary Wednesday, improved to 7-7.

"Derr just did an outstanding job." Seminole coach Mike Ferrell said about his three-year varsity starter.

Derr did exactly that. The Highlanders had jumped on James Joyce for six runs to erase a 3-0 first-inning deficit. After Derr was touched for a two-run single, he fanned the next hitter and induced an inning-ending fielder's choice to quell the outburst. All told, Derr hurled five and two-thirds innings while picking up his first victory of the year. He struck out three and did not walk anyone.

Seminole also received strong performances from freshman Jeff Bergman and seniors David Goldstick and Joey Corsi. Bergman, starting his second game, singled and doubled. Goldstick continued an amazing string of reaching base. He walked three times and singled home two runs. The Tribe right fielder has reached 14 times in 16 appearances.

Seminole pulled within 8-6 with three more in the third. Jeff Blake singled up middle and Derr followed with a shot over third. Ron Blake's groundout pushed the runners to second and third. David Goldstick followed with a rocket up the middle for two more runs. Goldstick stole second and after Roy Jensen's groundout moved him to second, he scored on a base hit by Joyce.

Bergman, who moved into the leadoff spot to replace injured Alonzo Gaiety, singled to left to start the fourth. After Corsi was hit by a pitch, a wild pitch moved up the runners. Jeff Blake's sacrifice fly to center field score Bergman as Corsi alertly tagged and took third. Derr then walked and stole second to set the stage.

Junior first sacker Ron Blake then produced the winning runs with a ground single up the middle for a 9-8 edge.

WINTER PARK BOPS LYMAN

In other action Monday, Lyman's Greyhounds dropped an 11-5 nonconference contest at Winter Park. Lyman, fell to 11-10.

Winter Park jumped to a 2-0 lead against loser Dale Stevens in the second inning.

In the Lyman third, Noah Talesnick, who led the 'Hounds with two hits, singled but was forced at second by Johnny Luce. Chris Brock, batting .386, rapped a base hit to send the speedy Luce to third. Darrin Boyesen then followed with a double to left to plate Luce. When the second baseman let Kenny Jackson's ground ball get through him, two more runs scored.

Albert Nets Upsets

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

On a mission to prove he was not just another unseeded player the top seeds use to kick around, Seminole High's Matt Albert knocked off two foreign exchange whiz kids and took center stage Monday in the opening rounds of the 4A-5 District Tennis Championships at Sanlando Park in Altamonte Springs.

In the biggest upset of the day, Albert outlasted Orlando Boone's Zahed Tal, the top-seeded player in division four singles, by the score of 7-5, 7-6 (7-2 in the tiebreaker). After the first-round upset, the Seminole High senior downed West Orange's Nhat Bul, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3, to advance to today's semifinal round against Winter Park's third-seeded Robert Roland.

"It would be really nice to win this division in my senior year," Albert said. "If I did, I would have beaten the guys who beat me at conference and went as far as I can go."

The district championships resume today with the semifinal round in singles and quarterfinal and semifinal rounds in doubles. The tournament will end with the finals beginning Wednesday morning at 9.

In the team races at this point, the Lake Howell girls have all but wrapped up the title and a trip to the state tournament while the boys division could go down to the wire with Lake Mary, Lyman, Lake Howell all competing and pre-tournament favorite Boone slipping after having two top-seeded players upset.

Albert's upset of Tal was the big surprise of the first day as Albert had lost to the Boone standout, 8-2, during the regular season. But Albert went into the match knowing he had nothing to lose and everything to gain.

"He (Tal) was the top seed and all the pressure was on him," Albert said. "I was moving pretty well and my ground strokes and passing shots were going pretty much where I wanted them to."

Albert had little time to savor the victory over Tal as he had to come back 30 minutes later to play Bul.

Tennis

Lake Howell's girls almost assured themselves of a second consecutive district title by rolling up 12 points and advancing all its singles players and doubles teams past the first day.

"All of our people at all the positions are still in it," Lake Howell coach Mike Hargis said. "It just about assures us a win. If we live of seven matches tomorrow, we win."

DeLand is in second place with 10 points while Lake Mary, Winter Park and Orlando Boone are tied for third with nine points each while Lake Brantley is next with eight points.

Lake Howell's five singles players, Renee Martin at division one, Emmylou Dulce at number two, Bonnie Oliver at division three, Mindy Gardberg at four and Mina Allin at five all won their first two matches and advanced to the semifinals. The division one doubles team of Dulce-Martin and division two Gardberg-Allin also won their first-round matches.

Lake Mary advanced three singles players and two doubles teams past the first day. The singles players going to the semifinals include number one Susie Stewart, number four Kerry Marshall and number five Ingrid DeGraaff. The doubles teams are number one Stewart-DeGraaff and number two Heather Bennett-Erin Higgins.

Lake Brantley's number one player, Kristin Longmire, continued her drive toward an individual berth in state by winning two matches and seems headed toward a showdown in the final with top-seeded Ivy Conoley of Boone.

In the boys division, Lake Howell leads with nine points while Lyman, Lake Mary and Boone were next with eight. DeLand has seven. Lake Mary and Lyman worked their way into contenders roles by advancing unseeded players to the semifinals.

For Lyman, second-seeded Eric Hochman at division one and fourth-seeded Steve Westmoreland at division two each won their first

Price, Wright Shatter Marks

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

Great athletes will always make the best of advantageous conditions. That was certainly the case Monday night at the St. Cloud Invitational where a pair of Oviedo long jumpers leaped into the record book.

In near perfect weather, with a slight tail wind and jumping into a slightly downhill pit, senior Kelly Price soared to a first place jump of 18-8 and broke her own school record and this season's county-leading jump by eight inches.

"Kelly (Price) first went 18-1 1/2, then 18-4," Oviedo coach Ken Kroog said. "Right before her last jump, I said, 'you'll never see this pit again, so go for it.' If they had a better board she would have jumped out of the pit."

Junior Karl Wright, jumping in the same pit, sailed 23-0 to tie the school record set in 1974 by John Jackson. Wright's first-place leap also put him in the county lead by over one foot.

In the boys team standings Monday, St. Cloud was first at 89 followed by Oviedo at 53, Clermont at 52 and Okeechobee at 45.

Along with winning the long jump, Wright took firsts in the 120 high hurdles (14.9) and 330 intermediate hurdles (40.6). The Lions also got first places from Robb Hughes in the discus (140-3) and Brian Wilson in the high jump (6-0).

Second places were turned in by Pete Lingard in the triple jump (39-5) and both the 440 relay (45.5) and mile relay (3:35.7). Both relays set season's bests. The 440 relay team include Dwight Everett, Lingard, Willie Pauldo and Hector Diaz. The mile relay foursome was Hughes, Sandy Potts, Wright and Dana Hill.

In the girls team standings, it was host St. Cloud with 109 points, Clermont with 45, Oviedo 30 and Okeechobee 21.

Price scored 18 of the 30 points with firsts in the long jump, 110 high hurdles (15.7) and 330 low hurdles (48.6). Sophomore Suzanne Hughes won the high jump at 5-2 and was second in the 220 at 28.5.

Reds' Davis Dominates Expos Before 55,166

United Press International

The largest regular-season baseball crowd in Riverfront Stadium history witnessed a phenomenon that has been predicted all spring — the dominance of Eric Davis.

The Cincinnati Reds crushed the Montreal Expos 11-5 on Opening Day Monday, with Davis providing a resume of his skills. The 24-year-old center fielder went 3 for 3, including a homer, walked twice, stole two bases, scored two runs and drove in three runs.

A crowd of 55,166, which had started to boo when the Reds fell behind 4-0 after two innings, went wild as the home team turned a 5-2 deficit into an 11-5 advantage with a nine-run fourth inning that Davis was at the heart of.

N.L. Baseball

"I knew if Eric Davis got on, he'd get the 55,000 into the game," Red Manager Pete Rose said.

Davis reached base twice in the fourth inning, stole second twice and scored two runs.

Davis opened the Reds' biggest inning in nearly two years with a walk off starter and loser Floyd Youmans, stole second, took third on a groundout and scored on a single by Bo Diaz.

Giants 4, Padres 3

At San Francisco, Chili Davis singled home Jeffrey Leonard from second base with two out in the 12th inning to help San Francisco spoil the major-league managing debut of Larry Bowa. Dave Dravecky was the loser. Jeff Robinson, the third San Francisco pitcher, hurled two scoreless innings for the triumph.

Astros 4, Dodgers 3

At Houston, Jose Cruz belted a two-out solo home run in the seventh inning to snap a 3-3 tie and lift the Astros. Cruz knocked a 2-0 pitch over the center-field wall off loser Orel Hershiser before an Astrodeum record opening-day crowd of 44,585. Mike Scott, 1-0, last year's Cy Young winner, gave up eight hits and three runs in seven innings.

Long-Time Trademarks Power O's Past Rangers

United Press International

Pitching and defense, two long-time Baltimore trademarks that deserted the Orioles last year, reappeared on Opening Day of the 1987 season.

Mike Boddicker and Don Aase combined on a six-hitter and first baseman Eddie Murray made a key defensive play in the eighth inning Monday to lead the Orioles to a 2-1 triumph over the Texas Rangers in the managerial debut of Cal Ripken Sr.

The Orioles suffered through a miserable 1986 season, finishing last in the American League East for the first time. The 73-89 record was Baltimore's worst in three decades. The Orioles were 10th in the league in both pitching and defense.

"It's just the first game of the season, and we still have 161 to go," Ripken said. "I don't excite about first games of the season but winning is better than losing."

Pinch-hitter Larry Sheets hit a sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth inning to send home Rene Gonzalez, who was running for Ray Knight, with the game-winning run. Gonzalez advanced from first to third on a wild pickoff throw by loser Greg Harris.

"The ball slipped out of my hands because I didn't get that good of a grip on it," Harris said of the wayward pickoff throw. "Normally, I'm always trying to pick a baserunner off but this time I was just trying to keep him honest."

Aase, who pitched 1 1/3 innings of hitless ball, was credited with the victory.

In the eighth with the score tied 1-1, Steve Buechele ripped a double off the left field wall, but pinch-runner Bob Brower was cut down at the plate on a relay throw by Murray to catcher Terry Kennedy.

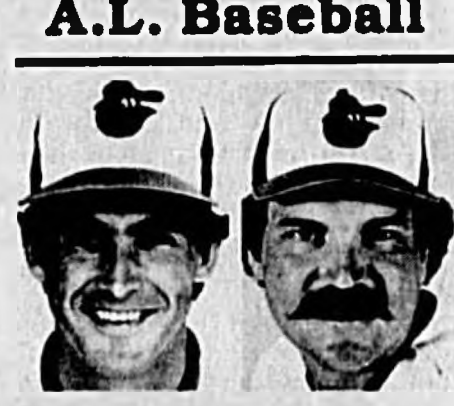

The Rangers grabbed a 1-0 lead just three pitches into game when Oddibe McDowell homered. Baltimore tied the score in the second when Fred Lynn scored on a passed ball.

Elsewhere in Opening Day action, Toronto downed Cleveland 7-3, the New York Yankees edged Detroit 2-1 in 10 innings, Milwaukee stopped defending league champion Boston 5-1 and Chicago nipped Kansas City 5-4.

Blue Jays 7, Indians 3

At Toronto, Lloyd Moseby ripped a solo homer for the first hit of the 1987 major-league baseball season and added a bases-loaded single, powering the Blue Jays past Cleveland. Jimmy Key gave up two runs and three hits in six innings to earn the victory while Tom Candiotti took the loss. The Blue Jays scored once in the first and two more times in the second.

Yankees 2, Tigers 1

At Detroit, Rickey Henderson doubled home Claudell Washington with two out in the 10th inning to lift the Yankees over Detroit. Washington and Wayne Tolleson had back-to-back singles with two out before Henderson's game-winning, Jack Morris, who yielded just six hits entering the 10th, took the loss. Dave Righetti earned the victory with three innings of one-hit relief.

Brewers 5, Red Sox 1

At Milwaukee, Robin Yount drove in two runs with a single and a double and Jim Gantner added three hits to lead Milwaukee past Boston. Milwaukee starter Ted Higuera pitched seven shutout innings for the victory. Bob Stanley, a surprise starter for Boston, took the loss. Stanley earned the start because of the holdout of Roger Clemens and injuries to Bruce Hurst and Dennis Boyd.

White Sox 5, Royals 4

At Kansas City, Mo., shortstop Buddy Biancalana made a crucial error during a four-run second inning and Chicago held on for the victory. Richard Dotson earned the victory and Bob James got the save. Danny Jackson took the loss. Biancalana mishandled a sharp grounder with the bases loaded. Bo Jackson was hitless in four at-bats for the Royals.

Canadiens Ride Winning Streak, Past Into Stanley Cup Playoffs

United Press International
The defending Stanley Cup champion Canadiens and 15 other NHL teams open the Stanley Cup playoffs Wednesday night, with Montreal riding the NHL's longest winning streak of the season.

Eying Cup No. 23, the most successful professional team in North American sports history ended its season with a nine-game winning streak, including 9-0-1 in its last 10 games.

Montreal, second in the Adams Division despite the surge, opens at home against the Boston Bruins while the first-place Hartford Whalers host the fourth-place Quebec Nordiques.

In the Patrick Division, the first-place Philadelphia Flyers host the New York Rangers, and the Washington Capitals have home ice against the Islanders to round out the Wales Conference.

In the Campbell Conference, the NHL regular-season champion Edmonton Oilers host the Los Angeles Kings and the Calgary Flames entertain the Winnipeg Jets in the Smythe Division. The Norris champion St. Louis Blues are home against the Toronto Maple Leafs, with the Detroit Red Wings hosting the Chicago Blackhawks.

All series are best-of-seven in a new format Montreal Coach Jean Perron says may make it difficult for coaches to ride one hot goaltender.

Turkey Season Through April 26

Attention hunters: There is no need to put away your shooting iron yet, Spring turkey season runs from March 31 through April 26.

During the spring season, hunters are allowed to take bearded turkeys or gobblers only. The daily bag limit is one, and the season bag limit is two. Legal shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise to 1 p.m.

"It is not legal in Florida to hunt turkeys with dogs, and hunters may not take turkeys over bait," Col. Brantley Goodson of the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission said. "The birds can be taken with guns or bows."

Turkey hunters must carry state turkey stamps affixed to their hunting licenses. The $5 stamps are available from tax collectors and their subagents.

After spring turkey season ends, hunters may continue to take rabbits, opossums, raccoons, coyotes, skunks, nutria and beavers throughout the year.

These regulations apply only to private property. Regulations for wildlife management areas may differ considerably.

For specific details concerning hunting regulations, sportsmen can contact the Commission's regional offices, listed on the inside front covers of most telephone directories.

DeLand Adds To Lyman Woes

Lyman's Lady Greyhounds continue to improve but don't yet have a win to show for it as they dropped a 5-2 decision to a powerful DeLand team Monday in nonconference softball action at the DeLand Airport.

The Lady Greyhounds, 0-16 overall, return to Seminole Athletic Conference action tonight at 7 at Lake Brantley. It will be the first night game at the newly lighted Lake Brantley softball field. Lake Brantley is 4-2 in the SAC while Lyman is 0-6.

In other SAC games today, Lake Mary (3-3 in the league) plays Seminole (2-4) at Fort Mellon Field in Sanford and surging Lake Howell (4-2) takes on first-place Oviedo (5-1) at Red Bug Park.

DeLand took a 3-0 lead after one inning Monday but Lyman came back within 3-2 in the top of the fifth. Consecutive singles by Heather Flattery and Nikki Jarrett got the rally started and Rhonna Carter and Sabrina Jarrett followed with RBI singles.

South Alabama Hires Arrow

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — South Alabama's new coach Ronnie Arrow says the high-scoring offense he used to win three national junior college titles at San Jacinto College may not bring similar success to the Jaguars overnight.

"I can guarantee you some things about our teams," Arrow said after being announced as South Alabama's new coach Monday. "We won't put you to sleep. We're going to score some points."

Arrow, 39, compiled a 302-43 record in 10 years at the Pasadena, Texas, school. His teams were 168-9 over the past five seasons, winning national championships in 1983, 1984 and 1986.

Vance Hall, Seminole Community College's Mid-Florida Conference Player of the Year, will play at South Alabama next winter.

Pitino Leans Toward Providence

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Providence coach Rick Pitino came close to putting an end to rumors that he will accept a coaching job with the NBA.

Pitino Monday said he will probably return to coach the Providence College basketball team next year, despite reports that the Final Four coach might take a job with the NBA's Phoenix Suns.

Pitino said he has been approached by two NBA teams, although he would not name them.

Taking A Boat Trip Soon?

Taking a boat trip soon? If you use your own boat, you know where all the safety items are and how to use them. But what if you take an excursion boat dinner boat ride or a fishing charter?

What do you need to know? Almost all small passenger vessels, with very few exceptions, are required to adhere to certain Coast Guard safety regulations. Among other things, the regulations state that:

- 1) A safety orientation must be provided for passengers;
- 2) An emergency check-off list must be posted in a conspicuous place accessible to crew and passengers;
- 3) There must be a life-preserver for everyone on board;
- 4) The vessel must be certified safe by the Coast Guard.

Small passenger vehicles usually have small crews compared to the number of passengers, and the duration of the cruise is usually short, so it is not practical to hold emergency drills for the passengers.

Since any watercraft can come in contact with sudden storms or unexpected rough seas, it is important to know some basic safety information in the event of a sudden emergency.

Since a safety orientation must be provided, many operators use public announcements or provide instruction placards, sometimes both and must be provided in a manner that affords all passengers the opportunity to become acquainted with:

Carl Carlson
HERALD BOATING WRITER

- 1) Stowage location of life preservers;
- 2) How to put on and adjust life preservers;
- 3) Descriptions and locations of other life-saving equipment on board, such as life rafts and life rings;
- 4) Location and descriptions of the emergency check-off list.

The emergency check-off list is primarily for the crew, but passengers should be aware that this list should contain, at a minimum, instructions for emergencies such as rough weather at sea, man overboard and fire at sea.

In addition to the requirement that there be one life preserver for each adult aboard, there must be an additional 10 percent allotment of children's life preservers aboard. Children's life preservers must be stowed separately from the adult life preservers.

All life preservers must be easily visible to the passengers or in labeled containers so that passengers can easily locate and distinguish the adult and children's preservers.

Is the vessel safe? It must have at least a certificate issued by the Coast Guard, readily visible to the passengers as they board the vessel indicating that the vessel has been inspected by the Coast Guard. This certificate is valid from the date of inspection for a period of time from one to three years depending on the type of vessel and usage.

The Coast Guard shows the expiration date by punching out the appropriate day, month and year. If the certificate shows that the expiration date has expired, the vessel may no longer be fit for the commercial service and it is illegal for the operator to carry passengers in the service for which it was originally certified.

Look for the certificate as you board the vessel.

BOATING TIP — Next time you go boating with a friend, ask him to show you where all the safety items are located. Most small boats, especially those that have been examined by the Coast Guard Auxiliary, will have life preservers, horns, lights, fire extinguishers and many times a first aid kit. In the Coast Guard Auxiliary, each time we crew upon another member's vessel we are required to know where all the equipment is. Any one of us could be suddenly in command.

Fired-Up Knicks Tip Dr. J

United Press International
One of the longest good-byes in sports history — Julius Erving's farewell journey around the 23 NBA cities — reached New York Monday afternoon where "Dr. J" was welcomed by a group of other famous practitioners.

Dr. Ruth Westheimer, Dr. Joyce Brothers, Doc from "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," and Dr. Bones McCoy of "Star Trek" were on hand to honor Erving in his final appearance at Madison Square Garden.

Erving, making his 30th appearance at Madison Square Garden, scored the first 4 points of the game and finished with 21. New York overcame a 23-point halftime deficit to post a 108-101 victory over Erving's 76ers.

Gerald Wilkins and Trent Tucker scored 24 points apiece as the Knicks overcame their own fans.

Elsewhere, Atlanta topped Cleveland 110-105, Sacramento stopped Utah 110-104, Houston downed Portland 114-108, the Los Angeles Lakers ripped the L.A. Clippers 135-112, and Phoenix beat Dallas 118-110.

Record Market Slides

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened lower today, slipping from Monday's record highs in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rose 15.20 to its first close above 2400 Monday, was down 10.37 to 2395.17 shortly after the market opened.

Losers led gainers 627-367 among the 1,455 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 12,168,900 shares.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed above 2400 for the first time Monday, but trading was subdued after Friday's sharp advance. The Dow finished above 2300 for the first time on March 20 and has climbed 510 points, or 26.9 percent, since the start of 1987.

Traders said stock prices Monday benefited from an early surge of follow-through buying — largely by foreigners — on Friday's rally. A strong bond market and futures-related buying provided some buoyancy, they said.

But Ernie Rudnet, manager of block trading at Mabon Nugent & Co., said no particular group of stocks was up dramatically.

"We saw a very, very mixed market here with people trying to see whether we've seen the end of the correction that took place early last week or whether it's a short-term trap for bulls."

Dollar Off Sharply, As Gold Flounders

By United Press International

The U.S. dollar fell sharply in Tokyo today and opened lower on major European money markets. Gold was mixed.

The dollar fell on the Tokyo foreign exchange market despite renewed intervention by the Bank of Japan to support it.

Dealers said traders were pessimistic over whether the major industrial democracies, at a meeting Wednesday in Washington, will show enough commitment to regaining stability in exchange rates.

The dollar closed at 145.25 yen, a record low and down 0.75 yen from Monday's close at 146.00. The previous post-war low was last Tuesday's close at 145.65.

After opening at 145.95 yen, the dollar moved lower despite intervention by the central bank. The Bank of Japan intervention was estimated at only around 86 million, and it was overwhelmed by selling pressure from institutional investors and speculators, dealers said.

The dealers said the market reflected gloomy prospects for exchange rate stabilization after the Washington meetings.

happen if Sun Bank calls the city in default of the $3 million bond issue. Waller replied that should this happen the consequences could be that the city would have to pay back the loan with a penalty and the city would lose its municipal credit rating and never be able to get a loan or bond issue again.

It was then that Smerilson suggested dumping Sun Bank.

"I think Sun Bank is in default itself because it based the loan on figures of the projected number of hookups and they are now saying they don't like them," Smerilson said.

By unanimous vote, the commission agreed to take a proposal of Smerilson's to the bank, bypassing a plan drawn up by City Administrator Ron Waller.

Smerilson's plan calls for no increase in sewer rates to users.

Waller's plan, based on hypothetical assumptions and using the figures and format drawn up by the accounting firm of Kane & Shuck with some changes, called for an increase in user fees of 25 percent in 1988 and a 20 percent increase in 1989. Customers now pay $24 a month.

Waller had called for two employees in the sewer department, while Smerilson's plan cut expenses by eliminating one of the positions in 1988, 1989 and 1990 only and decreased maintenance cost by $12,400 in 1989 only assuming that with new equipment the cost would be less.

Both options assumed passage of an ordinance that would require developer assistance fees to increase to $5.50 above the county's fees for this year. The public hearing has been held on the ordinance, which is scheduled to be on the April 20 meeting agenda, but a special meeting may be called before then if necessary.

Waller said in his opinion his plan kept increases to the bare minimum, but thought some user fee increases were necessary to meet the debt.

"After I worked to cut everything [projected costs] drastically, I hate to see it cut any further," Waller said. "The bank is meeting Tuesday (today) to discuss the status of the loan amongst themselves and anything to help our cause will be to our benefit."

The city issued bonds which were purchased by Sun Bank in August, 1986, in order to build a $2.5 million sewage treatment plant and pay off a loan from Freedom Bank for $500,000 improvements to the city's water plant. The latter is being paid off from water revenues.

When the city commission decided to go with the county sewer system rather than build the Grant Street plant, the bank wanted assurance that the city will be able cover its debt.

However, according to John Reichert, school district personnel director, the investigation is not yet concluded and the question remains as to whether the female faculty member was acting as a chaperone or was just there to attend the seminar.

"I believe she would be considered a chaperone," Reichert said. He and Boothe also said when the school finishes its investigation it will turn over its findings to the school administration which then will determine if it should all be turned over to the state's Professional Practices Services.

It has been the school district's policy in these matters to turn such information over to that agency for disposition. Boothe and Reichert explained. If the PPS agrees with their findings, punishment issued can range from probation for the teacher or teachers involved, to temporary suspension of their teaching certificate to permanent revocation, they said. They added it is yet to be determined if the female faculty member ought to have known about the students' activity, or if her conduct was reasonable and for whatever reason she couldn't have known what happened.

The Lake Brantley contingent checked into the Radisson Hotel in Birmingham and, according to reports confirmed by Reichert and Boothe, drinking occurred the first night. Some of the Lake Brantley students had taken their own beer along from Florida and when they ran out, Allen allegedly bought more for them.

"That's correct, those are the two allegations we have: that Mr. Allen knew of the students' drinking, and that he bought them beer when they ran out," Boothe said.

Two of the students said drinking during the three-day seminar was widespread at the hotel and included not only the Lake Brantley students, but students from colleges and other high schools. The students were housed two to a room, but most of the drinking occurred in only one room. One student said the group got so noisy during the last night "after the drinking began at about 10:30 p.m." that a hotel security guard had to come into the room and order them to quiet down.

Somehow, last week Lake Brantley administrators heard about the episode and began their investigation. Both faculty members and the students were interviewed and Friday, the students said, they were told they were suspended for three days.

"But Monday, they told us it was for five days and we have to pay to be interviewed by a Health and Rehabilitative Services-approved agency to determine if there is a potential alcohol or drug problem before we can return to school," one of the students said. School administrators confirmed that information.

The students have 10 days in which to have those interviews conducted, according to school investigation records.

Employees hired before the policy's adoption may be tested for alcohol or controlled substances on the basis of "reasonable suspicion." Reasonable suspicion requires that the city "must have factual foundation and rationale which is interpreted in the light of experience," such as a supervisor noting that an employee appears drunk or has slurred speech or someone witnessing possession sale or use of an alcoholic beverage or controlled substance by an employee while on duty.

One item that did not make the agenda but has been scheduled for a workshop is determining how much fines the Florida Hotel, 500 S. Oak Ave., owes the city over code violations.

"I think we have to address the fines, put it on the agenda and get it out of the way," said McClanahan.

"I think the city bordered on harassment... The city went for overkill and that might generate some liability," he said. Mc-

Clanahan said he favored canceling the fines.

Faison replied that a hurried review of the issue might have had affect on city boards and that it was an issue better suited for a workshop session than a commission meeting where it could become dragged out.

"If you yank the fines away," Faison said, "you may gut the Code Enforcement Board."

The commissioners were also given an overview of the city's new planning program which was a year in the making.

They were shown some maps that helped demonstrate the program.

One map, for example, showed how land was zoned in the city. A related map showed how much of the zone-designed land was actually put to that use. Another map, one of several, showed the types of zoning around the city and how that, though outside city limits, could have an effect on city zoning and land use.

Cheers From Opposite Sex Given To 17-Year-Old Virgin

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in response to "Hurting in Hartford," who wanted to know if she had to have sex in order to make a relationship last.

I am a 20-year-old male who reinforces your advice to keep saying no until you feel you are ready.

I've been dating the same girl for two years. She was a virgin when we started to date, and she still is. I lost my virginity in the eighth grade and I'd be lying if I said I never tried to talk her into going to bed with me.

I have quit trying to wear her down. I am now willing to wait until after we're married. Sex can cheapen a relationship, not make it more valuable.

D.H. IN DALLAS

DEAR ABBY: That 17-year-old girl who's "Hurting in Hartford" should quit hurting and thank her lucky stars she's smart enough to say no.

She's living in the insurance capital of the world, and from where I'm sitting, I'd say a girl with her qualities is a pretty good risk.

G.S. IN MANCHESTER, CONN.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 20-year-old male university student who is not a virgin, although I am celibate now. I'd like to tell "Hurting in Hartford": You are not weird for wanting a relationship with a guy without having sex.

Today, the risks of sex far outweigh the pleasures.

HOWIE ON LONG ISLAND

DEAR ABBY: The guy who marries "Hurting in Hartford" will be a very lucky man. Please tell her she's wrong to think a relationship won't last without sex.

virginity. "Hurting." Your husband will appreciate it. Sign me...

UNLUCKY IN LOVE IN GASTONIA, N.C.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing in response to "Hurting in Hartford" who thought she had to have sex with a guy in order to have a lasting relationship.

I wish there were more girls who weren't so sex-happy. I'm a 19-year-old male virgin. I'm not ugly and I'm not dumb.

CARING IN COLORADO

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Hurting in Hartford": I am a 22-year-old male college senior. I am also a virgin. You are not weird; you are unusual.

Governor Declares April As 'Stroke Club' Month

Gov. Bob Martinez has declared April as Stroke Club Awareness Month. The purpose of the proclamation is to make the community aware that stroke clubs exist and that they are a self-help group of individuals dedicated to helping stroke patients maintain their identity and become contributing members of the community.

These clubs reach out to the 86,000 citizens of Florida who have been affected by stroke, the number one disabling disease.

to cope with their disease, and to participate in social and educational activities.

The 47 stroke clubs in Florida work closely with the American Heart Association whose mission is to reduce premature death and disability and cardiovascular diseases and stroke.

A stroke club conference titled "A Day of Triumph" is scheduled for April 25, at the Hilton Inn Florida Center, Orlando, from 9 a.m.-3:15 p.m.

The program includes the following topics: Recovery from Stroke; Cooking Demonstration; Surgical Update on Stroke;

Driving/Vehicle Modification/Talk Back to Stroke

There will also be commercial exhibits, entertainment by the Voices of Victory Glee Club, round table discussions and award presentations. All Florida stroke clubs have been invited to participate. The primary focus will be education and the increase of quality of life for stroke survivors and their families.

For additional information about stroke clubs and the conference, please contact your local American Heart Association.

Medicine Manages This Heart Problem

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — This spring I developed ventricular tachycardia and had three cardiac arrests in the hospital. I'm now taking medicine to prevent this. When I try to explain my condition to people, I just get a blank stare. Maybe you can do a better job!

DEAR READER — I'll try. Under certain circumstances, the muscle cells that make up the wall of the major heart chamber (left ventricle) generate electrical impulses that interfere with or override the heart's natural pacemaker (sinoatrial node). The ventricular impulses usually are rapid (tachycardia). If this maverick rhythm is not controlled, heart damage may result or the ventricular tachycardia may develop into a heart-rhythm disturbance called ventricular fibrillation, which can be fatal.

This seems to be what happened in your case, since you had cardiac arrest — a term that is used to describe both ventricular fibrillation and cardiac asystole (heart stoppage).

One of the most remarkable advances in scientific medicine has been the development of drugs that inhibit the ventricular muscle's tendency to form electrical charges. By using these medications, doctors can prevent competing ventricular impulses and thereby save the lives of many patients who, years ago, would have been helpless and at great risk.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Neither my father nor I was able to complete college. I have trouble keeping up with others in taking notes or tests, learning foreign languages, doing mathematics or even working on handicrafts. I just can't manage anything that requires speed. I've had a fairly good life, though, due to my supportive husband and sense of perspective.

Now I worry because my oldest son is exhibiting similar symptoms. He's in a school for learning-disabled kids. This has helped, and he is normal socially and intellectually. I want him to have the chance my father and I did not have, but don't know how to give it to him. What can you suggest?

DEAR READER — I think that you're doing all you can by putting your son in a school where the teachers are trained to help children with learning disabilities. Dyslexia, a condition that makes reading difficult or impossible, is only one of several types of learning disabilities. Learning disabilities are being given more attention today, and increasing numbers of educators are devoting their professional lives to helping learning-impaired youngsters. Years ago, this help was not available. With special programs and teachers who are caring and supportive, your son may well be able to overcome his handicap.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Let's say you have nine cards in the trump suit, missing the Q-J, and you play one of your high honors. The opponent sitting behind the hand holding the queen or the jack. What now? Without getting into the whys or wherefores, the right percentage play is to now take a finesse. It is much more likely that the honor played was a singleton rather than part of a Q-J doubleton. However, don't ever let your knowledge of percentages isolate you from considering the entire deal.

Against today's contract, the defenders played three rounds of clubs. Declarer ruffed, played the spade king and, noting the fall of the jack, took a finesse against the hoped-for queen in the West hand. When that worked, he subsequently lost two diamond tricks but still made his contract. Although the operation was successful and the patient did not die, declarer still had misplayed the hand. If East held Q-J of trumps, he would win his trump trick and get off lead with a heart, and eventually declarer would lose two diamonds. But if declarer goes up with the ace and East shows out, no real harm is done. Declarer will play his three high hearts and then get out with a trump. West will be forced to lead diamonds, and the defenders will only take one trick in that suit.
