THE SWAN BATHING

(From The Virginia Quarterly Review)

Now to be clean he must abandon his bath, and he knows how to do it

There where she is strongest, in midcurrent,

He strikes the stream, he half sinks,

Who knows how to do it

His armed head, his proud wave-

The meeting streams glide rear-

ward, fill the hollow

Of the proud wings; then as if

Draining, he falls sidelong,

Flaming, without shame, reveals the shiplike belly,

Flushing, reversed, with limp

black paddles waving,

And down, gliding abandoned,

Impulsively willows,

The head and neck wreathed most and pennon, trailing.

It is enough: satisfied he rears himself,

Starts with swift movements his disordered turtles,

And again the master, and so onward

Flaming, he spreads his wings and flings the water

And the should triumph; in a

French Possessions

Yesterday afternoon the United States Senate voted unanimously in favor of a resolution disapproving the transfer of any part of the Western Hemisphere from one non-American power to another non-American power, and threatening to confer with other American republics on appropriate steps to be taken in the event such transfer should occur.

We wonder if the United States Senate is so naive as to believe that in passing this resolution it has done anything at all. Such words mean exactly nothing to Adolf Hitler. They will have just as much effect upon the future course of events as if the Congress in its infinite wisdom had passed a law prohibiting Germany from launching any attack upon the United States or any Latin American country.

What makes the Senate think that Hitler would be so stupid as to ask for the transfer of any French possessions in this hemisphere to Germany? He knows that would be an overt act violating the principles of the Monroe Doctrine and sure to encounter the stiff opposition of the United States. For the moment it serves his purpose better to be subtle in his dealings with the United States.

In concluding his peace treaty with France, he may give Tunisia, French Morocco, Djibuti and Corsica to the Italians. He may take a generous slice of France for himself. But Guadeloupe, Martinique and French Guiana will remain French. There will be no excuse given this country for extending greater aid to Britain because of German seizures of French territory in this hemisphere.

Instead these islands will continue to be governed by the French government, but not the French government which existed before the war, the French government which will be set up by the new conquerors of France. This government will be friendly to Germany. It will be a puppet government, like the one which Japan established in Manchuria, which Italy placed over Albania. And it will do what Hitler says, both at home and in the New World.

French islands in American waters, still belonging to France, will be the scene of considerable activity as naval bases are laid down and air fields constructed. France will never have any use for these bases, but Germany may. And so they will be built. That is, if the United States permits it.

Post Mortems

Though it has often been said that you never win a football game with post mortems, the fact remains that a careful analysis of the mistakes in one game sometimes help to win the next. We hope that the lessons which are being written today with the blood of Frenchmen in the soil of France are not lost on the American people. We can save ourselves the same horrible nightmare by remembering the tragic record which is responsible for France's present plight.

It is not enough to say that the superiority of German tanks and airplanes accounted for the French disaster, or that the failure to blow up a bridge crossed with Belgian refugees was to blame. Nor is the answer to be found in the last minute entrance of Italy into the war, or the failure of Great Britain to render any effective aid. These things are but the natural concomitants of hostilities and should have been expected by the French long in advance.

One could go back to the Treaty of Versailles for the cause of the French defeat and the failure of Marshal Foch to carry the war into Germany before concluding an armistice. We could say that the victory of American isolationists in keeping the United States out of the League of Nations, the brain child of Woodrow Wilson and in reality the very thing for which we sacrificed a quarter of a million American men, was to no small extent responsible.

But even these things could have been counteracted if the French people, upon the advent of Hitler to power and the obvious preparation of Germany for a new war, could have united, dropped selfish partisan politics, and gone to work with vigor and enthusiasm to repair the breaches in their defensive armor. France could have matched Germany from seven years back, tank for tank and airplane for airplane. France could have extended her Maginot Line to the sea instead of stopping at the Belgian border.

But these things cost money. French leaders knew what was going on across the Rhine and the French people were complacent. Taxes were already high enough. They did not want to see taxes raised any higher for the sake of airplanes, tanks and battleships which might never be used. They did not want to see the dole reduced, old age pensions cut, or any other benefits of paternalistic government curtailed in order to get ready for a war which might never occur.

When rearmament was belatedly begun, all the luxuries of a carefree easy-going existence were cheerfully indulged. While Hitler was working his eight million men, women and children 70 hours a week at wages set by the state, with strikes banned by law, France with only half that population was content to experiment with the 30-hour week, and engage in nation-wide strikes every time the bell hop was late with the afternoon glass of ice tea.

The United States has much to learn from the experience of France. We can outbuild Germany in tanks, airplanes, and battleships, but we can't do it on a sit-down strike. We can't do it at all unless every last one of us is willing to work just as hard, and just as long as the Germans are. We can't do it unless we are willing to sacrifice as much in industry as we would expect to sacrifice in battle.

Monroe Doctrine Is Rejected By Senate

WASHINGTON, June 15.—The Senate today rejected the Monroe Doctrine, which forbids the transfer of any part of the Western Hemisphere from one non-American power to another non-American power.

Creases Of Labeled

WASHINGTON, June 15.—The Senate today rejected a resolution which would have labeled the creases of the United States flag as national landmarks.

THE STREETS OF PARIS—1940

DISPELLING THE FOG

By CHARLES MICHELSON, Director of Publicity, Democratic National Committee

As this letter is written, the Republicans are gathering for their National Convention. Naturally, having no inside information, I will not attempt to forecast what the outcome at Philadelphia is going to be, but I am inclined to accept the New York Times survey, conducted by that veteran political observer, James Hagerly, who, when I was doing the same job for an opposition newspaper, was generally more nearly right in his estimates than any of his competitors.

He thinks that District Attorney Dewey's nomination for the Presidency is unlikely on the first ballot, and appears to regard Senator Taft as the real contender. Going on from that situation, he visualizes a possible deadlock, from which the governmental map and demerol means that every candidate from the favorites down to the lesser-known also-rans will get a shot at the prize.

This seems to an outsider, far from the battlefield, like good politics, for a number of reasons. In the first place, it reduces the residue of prospective sorrows and so tends to hold the party together—for subsequent campaigns. It is doubtless to put it mildly—if any considerable number of the delegates at Philadelphia think there is much hope for the G. O. P. this year.

If this diagnosis is correct, a first ballot nomination could mean one of two things: either the convention was saggy to get through with a hopeless preliminary as soon as possible, that it would be deemed a useful thing by the party backers to eliminate an unwelcome candidate who had amassed too many delegates to make dropping him down advisable. In other words, if Mr. Dewey were given the prize, neither he nor his supporters would have any role to play in the minority party, candidate.

Candidates come and go, but the solidarity of the Weir, Fews, and others of the Liberty League stand, remains unchanged. It might seem like the end of the world to Mr. Dewey, for example, but to these in the background it is only one skirmish in their war to regain control of the government.

It is easy to talk about the adjustment of politics to a national emergency, but it is not so easy to do it. The emergency is not the emergency of the war, but the emergency of the election.

It is not the emergency of the war, but the emergency of the election. The emergency is not the emergency of the war, but the emergency of the election.

It is not the emergency of the war, but the emergency of the election. The emergency is not the emergency of the war, but the emergency of the election.

It is not the emergency of the war, but the emergency of the election. The emergency is not the emergency of the war, but the emergency of the election.

It is not the emergency of the war, but the emergency of the election. The emergency is not the emergency of the war, but the emergency of the election.

Graduating Class At Kelly Field Is Largest In History

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 15.—The largest graduating class in the history of the army air corps advanced training school at Kelly field will complete training this week and make room for a fresh batch of fledgling fliers.

The class of 1940—the third to finish advanced training in 1940—will receive their diplomas June 21, along with commissions as second lieutenants in the air corps reserve. One hundred of these men will report to Randolph field—the West Point of the air—to complete a flying instructor's school.

An air corps announcement said this group, which has already started for the 100 potential teachers, will qualify the men "for the tremendous air corps expansion now under way."

The group, which has been assigned to extended active duty with the air corps to complete training in modern army planes. Officers who came to Kelly field from other branches of air service will be transferred to the air corps in grade. This group includes 99 recent West Point graduates.

Kelly field's record class goes into the army after completing two streamlined basic courses, one at a civilian school under army supervision and another at Randolph field. The complete course includes approximately 225 hours of flying and 400 hours of ground school instruction. Specialties at the advanced school included formation flying, cross-country flying, instrument flying and night flying.

Gen. R. C. Richardson, commander of the army cavalry school at Fort Riley, Kan., will speak to the graduates. Among them will be his son, Lieut. R. C. Richardson, III.

Report Is Made On Fascism In New York

NEW YORK, June 17.—(AP)—Report that Italian Consul General in the United States had instructions to advance the cause of Fascism in this country apparently prompted a general order to all city police chief commanders Thursday to intensify their vigilance against "fifth column" activities.

The order accompanied delivery of a 25-page report containing the findings of an investigation by an unnamed federal agency, to each commander.

SERVICE with a smile! ROY BRITT

delphia. Doubtless, we will hear impassioned speeches and read a peace-loving President as a simplification that will picture our sister figure. That is part of routine politics, thoroughly understood through long experience by the nation.

After November, the Democratic grows goes along with the President when it comes to appropriating huge sums for national defense. They recognize that this is something on which the whole safety of the country depends.

Probably the circumstances are that the people are united in their demand that we make ready for whatever the future has in store, has something to do with it, but the higher purpose is not advanced, but patriotism comes first. There may not be agreement all the time, as the war party implies on patriotism—but that is another story.

So while the anti-administration folks go along on the preparedness program in general, they balk on details. They fuss with the President as to where Civil Aeronautics should be on the governmental map and demand giving him authority to call out the National Guard when and where he thinks it necessary to set that first element of our military reserves to active duty. It is hard for a politician to go the whole route for somebody he has consistently assailed and opposed. Of course, they do not admit that their holding back is political, or that anything but a real sense of guarding American liberties is behind their nagging and wringing, but that does not make their course less of a national danger.

It is conceded that only by showing that this country is impenetrable, ready to meet any aggression, have we a chance of avoiding the actuality of having to fight in the unpredictable, but imminent, future for the preservation of these same liberties. Things move swiftly these days. The Commander-in-Chief of our armed forces might not have time to await the outcome of a Congressional debate before taking a defensive step to meet an assault as unheralded as the invasion of Holland and Belgium.

Those who are combating the status program of the administration's defense effort to meet a test of dictatorialism. Really, every President of the United States has a defense in war time. Lincoln was in the war between the States. Wilson was in the First World War. When the emergency is past, the dictatorialism vanishes automatically. Wilson's defense was never dictatorial, or would that Congress reported the terms of the treaty he wanted to sign immediately after the war had closed. It was the same thing.

It is not the emergency of the war, but the emergency of the election. The emergency is not the emergency of the war, but the emergency of the election.

MOVIE MUSINGS

By CHARLIE MORRISON

Somewhat, I just can't explain
why, my thoughts went back this morning to a little melodramatic
picture show, in Troy, N. Y.,
where I was born—I used to sing
illustrated songs, there, sometimes, on Saturdays and Sundays,
doing as many as ten shows a day
until my boyish soprano squeaked,
in rebellion—Let's see, that's close to 45 years ago my, how time flies! I can see myself, now, standing down there by the outlet of the piano, with a professional copy of a new ballad (?) on a music rack, lighted by one of those old-time carbon bulbs that gave no more light than a match
box. The title slide hits the dinky sheet that serves as a screen. I listen to my introduction and in the song I go—Perhaps it's
"Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage"
or "The Mansion of Aching Hearts" that pours from my tired throat but still, it's a thrill, for although we didn't realize it, at that time, we were pioneering.
I'll never forget (and some of you, if you've read this far, will remember, I am sure) how our shows,
in those days, started. A red white and blue slide with just one word WELCOME, flashed on the screen then came a parade of slides—let's see if we can remember some of them: NO SMOKING PLEASE; "AIDED
WELL PLEASE" "IF YOU LIKE
OUR SHOW TELL OTHERS
IF NOT, KEEP THEM FOR THE BEST IN COUNTRY"
"READ AT BROWN'S STORE"
"DON'T SPIT ON THE FLOOR"
"REMEMBER THE JOHNSON
FLOID" "MATTINEE EVERY DAY" "AFTER THE SHOW GET YOUR SODA WATER AT THE GEM DRUG STORE" "COM-PLETE CHANGE OF PROGRAM
TOMORROW" "TAKE YOUR GIRL RIDING—THE BEST
RIGS IN TOWN AT PETE'S
LIVERY STABLE" "HAPPY CRY-ING IN LOBBY" (and half the nannies in the show would hurry out to tender first aid.)
It was almost a certainty that the slide would stop during every red and when the screen went white, we knew the film had broken. A loud BOO from the children in the audience.
The operator flashed another slide on the screen—"OPERATOR
HAVING TROUBLE PLEASE BE PATIENT" The broken ends were mended and all was serene until the end of the reel when the slide announced
"ONE MINUTE TO CHANGE REELS" the show continued, until it was announced,
"THOSE WHO CAME IN LATE MAY REMAIN FOR THE NEXT SHOW", or, if it happened this

MOVIE MUSINGS

Somewhat, I just can't explain
why, my thoughts went back this
morning to a little melodramatic
picture show, in Troy, N. Y.,
where I was born—I used to sing
illustrated songs, there, sometimes, on Saturdays and Sundays,
doing as many as ten shows a day
until my boyish soprano squeaked,
in rebellion—Let's see, that's close to 45 years ago my, how
time flies! I can see myself, now,
standing down there by the outlet of the piano, with a professional
copy of a new ballad (?) on a
music rack, lighted by one of those old-time carbon bulbs that
gave no more light than a match
box. The title slide hits the dinky sheet that serves as a screen. I listen to my introduction and in
the song I go—Perhaps it's
"Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage"
or "The Mansion of Aching Hearts" that pours from my tired throat but still, it's a thrill, for
although we didn't realize it, at
that time, we were pioneering.
I'll never forget (and some of
you, if you've read this far, will
remember, I am sure) how our shows,
in those days, started. A red white and blue slide with just one word WELCOME, flashed on the screen then came a parade of slides—let's see

"Youth looks for leadership and we must use all the social and recreational facilities through out the nation for instructing young people in the American way of life. Pressure groups, the fifth column and other foreign organizations are seeking to influence young people, substituting for our democratic ideals the policies of Moscow and Berlin," he said.

"Totalitarian governments have made themselves all-powerful in a few short years by an intensive plan of youth education and training. The world is aflame today because of the tragic misdirection of youth under dictatorships. Our own young people must receive citizenship instruction as well as adults. We must use public forums to create a better understanding of government problems. We need the assistance of all forces in a community in the observance of Constitution Week and in bettering law observance and enforcement."

The only hope is to give the fullest assistance and co-operation in promoting citizenship and loyalty to American ideals, Mr. Hippler warned.

"We cannot afford an indifferent promotion. We need a vigorous and aggressive participation by all Americans who realize that our civil liberties were purchased at a dear price. We will never be imperiled by propaganda or force from without or by burrowing termites from within if we promote loyalty and patriotism."

"Citizenship is the nation's life at war. What the future holds for us none can tell, but we do know that unless we have adequate national defense we cannot accept our full responsibility as a nation.

The blessings of liberty must be preserved by legal processes against terror bands and pressure groups. Our entire public affairs program for the U. S. is practical and workable. The burden and responsibility of the problems confronting the United States calls for the active co-operation of every loyal citizen. We need

The chair upheld Connally's request and ordered the sergeant-at-arms to remove any person who cheered or applauded.

Today Pepper offered the following seven point program for the defense of America:

1. Confer upon the President full war time power to prepare and defend America.
2. Universal defense service so that every citizen may be best trained and placed for the country's defense.
3. Confer upon the President power to suspend all rules, regulations and statutes, including Army, Navy and departmental seniority regulations, which in his judgment interfere with the maximum speed in the production, transportation, or manufacture of defense material.
4. Confer upon the President the power to suspend the present debt limitation, if in his judgment such limitation interferes with the maximum speed of the defense program.
5. Grant the President the authority to aid in material or credit those countries and nations which in his judgment at this time constitute America's first line of defense.
6. The President and the Congress to begin immediately the preparation and adoption of a defense budget and tax program adequate to the national defense.
7. Confer in the President the power to take into custody for the duration of the defense effort all aliens whose freedom would, in his opinion, jeopardize the defense program.

These powers would continue only for the duration of the emergency.

Petain, Weygand Urge French To Keep On Fighting

A French night communique said the fighting still was violent, that French resistance continued, and that there had been no lull in the fierce Nazi onslaught south and east from the River Loire.

Military spokesmen admitted, however, that the front was disorganized and that the Germans had split the French forces into four ribbons.

Hardest fighting was reported in the vicinity of Orleans, along the Loire River, 75 miles south of Paris. (The Germans said they had taken Orleans and crossed the Loire.) The French communique told of desperate resistance all along the middle Loire, but said German spearheads still stabbed deeper into France in the regions of Dijon and Amiens, east of the Loire, 150 to 175 miles southeast of Paris.

The French admitted German mechanized units had pushed into the department of Doubs and Jura west of the Swiss frontier.

"At all points of contact," the communique said, "our troops still are fighting with the same bravery for the honor of the flag."

The French radio said late last night that the French Navy was "intact" and that the French air force was "intact and powerful."

"We are ready to lay down arms if we can get an honorable peace," the communique said.

Foreign Minister Paul Baudouin in a broadcast to the world over the French radio.

"But we are never ready to accept shameful conditions which mean the end of the spiritual freedom of our people."

Baudouin spoke as Adolf Hitler and Italy's Premier Benito Mussolini arranged to meet today to give the verdict on the French.

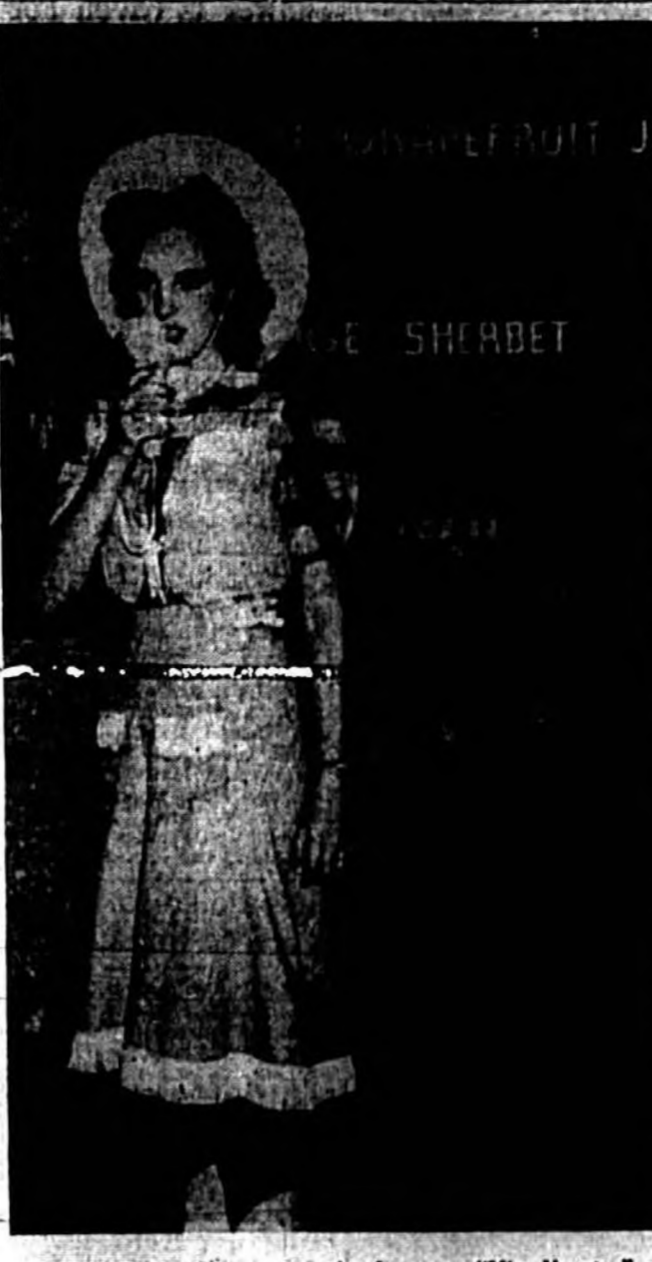

Premier Mussolini last night was enroute for a meeting with Adolf Hitler at which they will decide how to cut up and police the defeated French empire.

Terms of the armistice which the dictators will draw up during the next few hours, it was stated authoritatively, will provide for military occupation of France and French possessions by Italian-German forces.

Germany, Italy, Spain and possibly Japan and Belgium will take parts of the French empire, it was reported reliably.

Mussolini, who brought Italy secretly into the war only six days ago, left by train accompanied by Foreign Minister Ciano and other advisers. It was exactly three months ago that Il Duce and the Tushier had their famous meeting in Brenner Pass at which they mapped the strategy of their Spring diplomatic and military campaigns.

This strategy now had brought France to her knees, necessitating a further conference of the two dictators to fix terms for vanquished France and then to lay plans for the next great phase

Advance Guard Of Republicans Meet To Write Platform

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—(AP)—In an atmosphere heavily clouded by the crisis in the Allied cause abroad, the advance guard of the Republican convention met yesterday to write its 1940 platform.

Unanimously, it elected a Dewey man—Herbert K. Hyde, of Oklahoma—as its temporary chairman, while one of the party's most intense anti-Deweyites—Kenneth Simpson, New York national committeeman—was telling friends that in his opinion the Dewey boom had "collapsed."

The first thought of nearly everyone was for the war situation and what the Republicans as a party should say and do about it.

"We are standing at the crossroads of civilization," Hyde said in accepting the temporary chairmanship. "Half the world is in flames."

He added that "as our distinguished President has said, 'in our own country a third of the nation is ill-fed, ill-housed and ill-clothed, and what is that after seven years?'"

In connection with the growers conference which was attended by the two Sanfordites, Mr. Dawson said that they had gone to the capital to discuss with officials of the AAA plans for the conservation program for 1941. The same program was in effect this year was adopted with few changes, the county agent said.

Most members of the committee were obviously of the opinion that the plank on foreign affairs should be phrased in general terms which would commit the party to no specific course of action and leave it and its allies to be replaced by circumstances as they develop.

There was surprisingly little talk of candidates, so absorbed was everyone in the foreign situation, but nevertheless Simpson, who was defeated by the Dewey forces at a meeting of the New York state committee last week, and is to be replaced as national committeeman before the Republicans leave Philadelphia, was outspoken on the subject.

line of his legislative program. In this category, and probably the main obstacle to adjournment, were conference reports on important appropriations bills, such as farm and relief which must be discussed before July 1, beginning of the new fiscal year. Unless they are approved, many federal agencies will be left without operating funds.

Martin said the Democrats were badly mistaken if they thought they were going to keep the Republicans on the job during their convention, then recess for the Democratic show in Chicago.

Here is an unseparable line from sea to sea, protected not with the might of great guns and armaments but by mutual understanding, neighborliness and good will. This boundary line may have been created by treaty, but it has been maintained and preserved by a sound public opinion, a high idealism and a sense of mutual trust and understanding."

"It's the one unforgivable social error"

There is seldom any excuse for offending others with halitosis (bad breath) due to food fermentation in the mouth. It is easy to make your breath sweeter and more agreeable with Listerine, the safe antiseptic.

The baddest thing about this offensive condition is that nearly everybody has it at some time or other without realizing it. Experienced people protect themselves by gargling with Listerine Antiseptic morning and night, and before every important social or business engagement. Listerine Antiseptic safely kills food fermentation, and by doing so, prevents it from becoming a major cause of mouth odor, and overcomes the social handicap.

Why this offending others... understanding your social or business position? Use the safe Listerine Antiseptic that is a safe, reliable mouth antiseptic and deodorant regularly.

Hutson Hurls St. Augustine To 7-2 Win Over Sanford

Seminoles Left Helpless Before Offerings of Saint Moundsman

Howington Allows Five Runs And Nine Hits In Five Innings Of Work; Corley Is Choice Tonight

St. Augustine accomplished one of the league's hardest tasks last night—that of beating Sanford in its home ball orchard. And they did it decisively, 7-2, before some 400 fans, including 70 Oviedo Night guests.

Cecil Hutson was complete master of the situation all the way. He demonstrated good control, better than average fast ball, and an assortment of curves that baffled the Seminoles all the way.

Tonight Sanford journeyed to St. Augustine with Corley expected to do the hurling honors for the Seminoles.

Jodie Howington opened for the Seminoles last night, but was nicked for nine hits and five runs in five innings. Howington appeared to be faster than at any time this year, but he exhibited little change of pace and the Saints got the range of his fast ball.

Honolulu Fuller McGhee pitched the last four innings, allowing four hits and two runs.

Only in the seventh inning when they were trailing 5-0 did the Seminoles even remotely threaten to overcome St. Augustine's lead. In this inning Andy Johnson opened with a three base hit to right field. Russell was safe on a fielder's choice and Johnson scored even though a throw was made to the plate in an effort to catch him. McGhee scratched a hit to third base.

Ryder and Campbell popped out to Buddy Lake at second, but Willie Skeen blasted a hit to left field, Russell scoring.

In the ninth Cleo Jeter pinch hit for McGhee and doubled to left field. He scored on Whitely Campbell's single to center.

Hits by Hutson, Cofer, Lake, and White accounted for two of St. Augustine's runs in the third inning. In the fifth three runs came in on three hits and three errors. Doubles by Cofer and Miller scored another in the sixth. A walk to Hutson, a sacrifice, and Miller's hit to center wound up the scoring for the Saints.

Buddy Lake, hard-hitting St. Augustine catcher, gained an edge on Red Ryder in their duel for batting supremacy of the league. Lake garnered three hits out of five times at bat, while Ryder went hitless in five times up. In fact Ryder did not even get a base, so a lot of the color was taken out of the game.

Joe Justice made a nice play in the third inning to tag out White coming into third. Rival pitchers seem to have Joe's mark with an outside curve ball. That is about all he has been getting for the last three games.

When McGhee relieved Howington after the first time in 20 games a Sanford pitcher had failed to go past the fifth inning.

Red Marion poked a long drive that went for a triple in the

Speedup Of Cadet Training Sought At Naval School

Plan Calls For Three Years Of Training Instead Of Four

By JACK STINNETT
 WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP)—Plans are afoot for the United States navy to streamline its naval academy course at Annapolis to three years to meet the demand for officers in the vast expansion of our sea power.

According to Grapevine information, Annapolis officials already have the new course mapped out and on less than 24-hour notice from the Navy Department could put the streamlining into effect to give our fighting ships 165 more ensigns a year than they're getting now.

The plan, of course, would have no effect on the 100 young men who are getting their stripes in June—but the second classmen (juniors), numbering more than 600, probably would be kept from their summer cruise to South America. Instead they would grind away in intense training and be graduated at midyear early in 1941.

The 1,200 other young men in the academy and the new class of plebes would be thrown into a speed-up curriculum of high-gear training.

A lot of the frills and furbelows of modern education would be dropped. The advanced courses in English, for example, probably would go overboard. You don't need a knowledge of restoration comedy to haul out orders from the bridge of a plunging cruiser or a familiarity with the verse forms of Beowulf to crack commands down an engine-room speaking tube.

Also tapped for dismissal are some of the foreign language courses. A lot of the social activities at the academy would be cut off. In the time thus saved, the young sea dogs would concentrate on technical studies, such as navigation, gunnery, electricity and steam.

It begins to appear that the country's rapidly expanding naval program already has created a shortage of young officers in the fleet.

It was partially to offset this that the order was issued that only those youngsters in the 1940 graduating class who are physically unfit will be allowed to resign. In the past, when there was no shortage of officers, the young men could resign on graduation.

The officers detached from the fleet for post-graduate study at the Annapolis post-graduate school also have been ordered back to active duty. A third measure to fill the gap was taken recently when many officers, retired from active duty for physical disability or some such were called to the academy to become instructors, releasing able officers for fleet duty.

One factor which has created the demand has been reconconditioning of a large number of World War destroyers. These are a little disparagingly referred to by some of the younger navy boys as a bunch of old cans and they are not to be used for anything at the moment but Atlantic patrol duty, but they have to be officered and manned just as well as the crack ships in the Pacific battle fleet.

If the order comes down to streamline and the academy training, it won't be the first time. During the World War, Annapolis was on such a schedule, turning out classes at midyear, the classes being known as 1917-A, 1917-B and so on.

Army officials say that plans for army expansion will not necessitate any changes at West Point. There during the World War, however, the officers' training course was virtually blighted; classes being graduated not only at the end of three years, but at the end of two, and one class, pushed out in November, 1918, had only a little more than a year's concentrated schooling. These youngsters, however, were returned to the academy later for further training.

Present army increase plans will create a demand for more officers, but reserve officers may be taken on for extended service of from six months to one year.

ENGLISH COAST RAIDED
 LONDON, June 13.—(AP)—The air ministry announced that there was some enemy activity in the south coast last night, one aircraft dropping a bomb which caused negligible damage. There were no casualties.
