MISCHIEF IN HER EYES

Willard Downs, widely known newspaper and magazine illustrator, depicts Bobby Clark and Ella Logan in one of their many comedy sequences from "The Goldwyn Follies" to be shown at the Ritz Theatre tomorrow and Sunday.

"The Goldwyn Follies" Production Is Most Lavish Musical Show Yet Filmed

All the greatest entertainers of the stage, the screen, the radio, the dance and grand opera put on the greatest show the screen has ever shown in Samuel Goldwyn's glorious technicolor screen musical, "The Goldwyn Follies," which plays at the Ritz Sunday and Monday.

Produced on the most magnificent scale of any musical in cinema history, this most ambitious of all the great Goldwyn's screen ventures does great credit to the name it bears.

Offering a cast headed by Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, radio's No. 1 stars, Adolphe Menjou, The Ritz Brothers, Zorina, the beautiful young premiere ballerina of the Ballet Russe, who is a splendid actress as well as a great dancer; Kenny Baker, Helen Jepson, the lovely Metropolitan Opera star who makes a brilliant film debut; Andrea Leeds, Phil Baker, Ella Logan, Bobby Clark, Jerome Cowan, The American Ballet of the Metropolitan Opera and the gorgeous Goldwyn Girls, "The Goldwyn Follies" is a movie fan's dream, combining every element of great entertainment in magnificent measure.

Two Suspects Are Killed In Attempt To Steal Emerald

Film audiences who in the past have been thrilled and chilled by the nerve-racking adventures of that apex mind of mystery fiction, Arsene Lupin, are in for another mystery treat with the playlet of "Arsene Lupin Returns" at the Ritz Theatre Thursday and Friday.

A cast of established film favorites is seen in the pictures headed by Melvyn Douglas, novel by Virginia Bruce and Warren William. Douglas comes to his new role from his comedy triumph in "Theodora Goes Wild"; Miss Bruce was recently seen as the heroine of "Bad Man of Brimstone"; and William fills the new role of new crime investigator following his outstanding characterization in last season's hit hit, "The Firefly."

Others who have prominent roles in the production include the well-known Broadway actor, John Halliday, Nat Pendleton, Monty Woolley, E. E. Clive and George Zucco. The director was George Fitzmaurice.

"Arsene Lupin Returns" presents an entirely new story based on the famous character, Arsene Lupin, created by Maurice Le Maistre, master of French detective fiction. Continuing the adventures of the celebrated gentleman jewel thief, the action of the narrative moves at high speed from the Federal Bureau of Investigation to the Montmartre district of Paris.

The story begins when Warren William is assigned to guard a valuable emerald after he is freed from his G-Man job because his work has made him too well known to the underworld. The gem is owned by John Halliday, playing Virginia Bruce's father.

A paste copy of the emerald is stolen and a card marked "Arsene Lupin" is left in its place. To avoid further robbery attempts Halliday and Miss Bruce take the jewel to Paris. Here they are met by Melvyn Douglas, an old friend of the family.

Two suspects are killed during a second attempt to steal the emerald.

FOOD FOR ROMANCE

Gladys Swarthout, John Boles and John Barrymore keep eating so that they won't sink their teeth into each other in "Romance in the Dark," a gay comedy of backstage theatre life, which plays Tuesday and Wednesday at the Ritz Theatre.

In the past decade land in Texas devoted to the production of vegetables for canneries has increased more than 1,000 per cent.

Canada produced nearly nine and a half million cases of canned vegetables in 1937 compared with 7,948,240 cases in 1936.

Country Girl Gets Singing Role By Working As Maid

A gay romantic plot, light-hearted comedy, with John Barrymore and sparkling musical selections by Gladys Swarthout and John Boles, combine to make "Romance in the Dark," which show Tuesday and Wednesday at the Ritz Theatre the complete entertainment it is.

Miss Swarthout, whose provocative voice and beauty enable her to mix food music and screen comedy, is seen in the role of an ambitious country girl who turns housemaid to get her first chance to sing and then becomes party to a great hoax to get across.

Complications arise in the life of Boles, the sensational opera star, when Miss Swarthout enters his home as a servant and utilizes every spare moment to sing herself into his range of notice. Completely wrapped up in his own romance with a beautiful countess, played by Claire Dodd, Boles ignores her talents but decides he can use her to get even with his manager and rival for the hand of the countess, John Barrymore.

In a grand piece of showmanship Boles transforms his musical Cinderella into a glamorous Persian princess, hoping she will interest Barrymore sufficiently to take his mind off the Countess. He succeeds far better than he hoped for not only does Barrymore fall for the "princess," but Boles himself realizes that he is in love with her. Miss Swarthout completes his misery by agreeing to enter a show under Barrymore's wing after finding out that Boles' original plan was only to use her to get rid of a rival.

In a brilliant climax Miss Swarthout makes her Budapest debut as the "princess" only to be exposed in the middle of her performance by a newspaper columnist. The audience turns on her in anger, and when it seems impossible for her to go on with the show, Boles comes to her rescue by appearing on the stage with her.

SHE'S BRINGING UP "BABY"

Katharine Hepburn goes through a hectic series of adventures with this live leopard and Cary Grant in "Bringing Up Baby," RKO Radio comedy romance produced by Howard Hawks. Charlie Ruggles, May Robson, Barry Fitzgerald and Walter Catlett are in principal support.

Katharine Hepburn Prevents Marriage Of Man She Loves By Kidnapping Him

Revealing the amazing Katharine Hepburn as the exponent of complete entertainment, "Bringing Up Baby" plays Thursday and Friday at the Ritz Theatre; it is a mad comedy that defies comparison with any picture released in the past. Teamed with Miss Hepburn is Cary Grant, who intensifies the reputation for comedy which he so brilliantly established in "The Awful Truth." "Bringing Up Baby" is both a situation and dialogue comedy, with Grant, May Robson and Charlie Ruggles combining their talents with Miss Hepburn's genius for characterization. In the story starts, of all places, in a museum of natural history, introducing Cary Grant as curator of the fossil gallery who has just completed four years of work in constructing the skeleton of a prehistoric brontosaurus. It is a chance to go to the golf course for a game with the lawyer's woman who is contemplating giving a million dollars to the museum. It promises to be a quiet afternoon, until Grant slices his ball from the first tee and meets Hepburn. Then the fun, which never again lets down, starts its mad progress. Miss Hepburn has decided that she wants Grant for herself, and sets about preventing his marriage. Practically kidnapping him, she takes Grant to Connecticut where they meet with an astounding series of adventures before the film reaches its conclusion.

BRITISH LIFEBOATS BRING BALEARES SURVIVORS TO SAFETY

A majestic survivor of the major naval engagement of the Spanish civil war off Cape Pales, near Cartagena, Spain, the insurgent cruiser Canarias stands untouched by bombs as survivors of the sunk Baleares are rowed towards her starboard gangway in boats from the British destroyer Boreas. This picture of the dramatic rescue is one of an exclusive series taken for the Associated Press by a British naval officer. Six hundred men went down with the Baleares; 200 were rescued.

FIRST PICTURE OF BALEARES SINKING IN SPANISH SEA BATTLE

This picture, one of the most dramatic ever taken of a battleship sinking, shows the 16,000 ton cruiser Baleares, Spanish insurgent vessel, going to the bottom early in the morning, March 6, after a sea battle with the government destroyer Lepanto 70 miles off Cape Pales, near Cartagena, Spain. The Baleares was struck squarely amidships by a torpedo from the Lepanto. Six hundred men lost their lives when the ship went down, and two hundred were saved by the British destroyers Boreas and Kempenfelt. Note heads of the men struggling in the water at left. This picture, first of a cinematic series, was taken by a British officer from the deck of the Kempenfelt. To make connections with the Europe it was carried in a dramatic race from Gibraltar to Tangier by chartered tug; thence flown to Fes and carried by another chartered plane to Oren. From there the pictures were relayed to Marseille for transportation by air to London.

Only 1-3 On Pensions Are Natives Of State

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Mar. 10.—Despite the heavy influx of immigrants from other states to Florida during the past 65 years, slightly more than one-third of those receiving Old Age Assistance were born within the state, according to figures made public here by Clayton C. Goddard, state welfare commissioner.

Native-born Floridians number 2,223 of a total 27,110 who have been placed by the Old Age Assistance payroll. Former Georgians number 5,479, former residents of Alabama 2,294 and former residents of South Carolina 1,822. Colorado, New Mexico and

South Dakota are the only states in the union whose natives are not benefiting from this state's Old Age Assistance program.

London Suburb Gets The Creeps

LONDON.—(AP)—A "ghost house" complete with practically all the noises except clanking chains, has some of the more superstitious residents of a London suburb alarmed. Furniture has been overturned and crockery moved from kitchen table to floor, according to reports, to the accompaniment of tapping noises and long drawn-out moans. Many persons have urged that a priest be called to exorcise the place. But an author who has become interested in the case thinks this should only be tried as a last resort. She suggests the residents of the house try to communicate with the "spirits."

Deaths from lightning are comparatively rare, averaging only about 100 a year for the entire United States. Nine-tenths of the property damage from lightning comes in rural dis-

Big Navy Bill Passes House By Heavy Vote

46 New Warships, 22 Auxiliary Vessels And 950 Airplanes Authorized By Bill

Recommittal Move Defeated 2 To 1

President Says Bill Needed Because Of Arming Elsewhere

WASHINGTON, Mar. 21.—(AP)—The House approved overwhelmingly today the Administration's billion-dollar naval expansion bill.

Final passage came after the defeat of a Republican attempt to send the bill back to the House Naval Committee with instructions to eliminate provisions for three new battleships.

The bill now goes to the Senate. The measure authorizes construction of 46 new warships, 22 auxiliary vessels and 950 airplanes which President Roosevelt said were needed "specifically and solely because of the piling up of additional land and sea armaments in other countries."

The recommittal motion, offered by Representative Church (R-Ill.), member of the naval committee who has opposed the program since its introduction, was defeated by a vote announced by Speaker Bankhead as 276 to 114.

The new warships, estimated to cost $711,000,000, include three battle cruisers, 23 destroyers, nine cruisers, 23 destroyers and nine submarines.

No Public Hearing Will Be Held For Boat Basin Permit

No public hearing will be held before the issuance of a permit by the United States War Department for construction of a boat basin at the municipal pier, according to information received today from the United States Engineer's Office in Jacksonville.

The plans for this work have been reviewed by the United States Engineer in Jacksonville and also the Engineer at the sub-office in Mayport. It was indicated after an investigation "it is not proposed to hold a public hearing on this application."

"Anyone desiring to protest the proposed work from a standpoint of its interference with, or effect on navigation, should submit such a protest in writing, with reasons in sufficient detail to permit intelligent consideration," it was stated. Also these protests must be received at the Engineer's office in Jacksonville by Mar. 23.

At the last meeting, the City Commissioners requested City Clerk Frank S. Lamson to file application for the permit in anticipation of submitting a WPA project for construction of the basin, which will extend about 450 feet into the lake.

Whitney Accepts All Blame For Firm Crash

NEW YORK, Mar. 21.—(AP)—Richard Whitney, 43, expelled former president of the New York Stock Exchange, disclosed at a public hearing today that he was in serious financial straits in November, 1927, and that his brother, George Whitney, partner in J. P. Morgan & Co., came to his aid with a personal loan of $1,000,000.

The gray-haired defendant, who has pleaded guilty to two grand larceny indictments, denied that he was "shredding" any of his associates in the investigation of the collapse of Richard Whitney & Company, Wall Street broker, his firm, he insisted that he alone was responsible for the crash.

Leffler Declares Celery Prorates Hurting Demand

Market Seen As Drying Up As Pressure For Sales Declines

Pointing out that while Florida has been curtailing its celery shipments by heavy prorates, large shipments of celery are continuing to go to markets from California which is beyond the reach of the Control Committee, W. A. Leffler today declared in a letter to The Herald that if the restrictions on celery shipments continued, the demand for celery will get less and less.

Mr. Leffler's letter in full is as follows: "I have read with interest, and encouragement, too, your editorial of March 19th on the Farm Problem, mainly as it applies to celery growers in Seminole County. You probably know that during the time Florida has been curtailing its shipments of celery, there have been large shipments of celery from California. The control of celery shipments does not apply to California.

Gen. Andrews Denies Need Of Canal In War

Second Canal Across Isthmus Of Panama Seen As More Vital For National Defense

The absurdity of the necessity for the Florida cross state canal as a means of moving troops, food supplies and war materials to the Pacific coast in the event of attack in that area is apparent, according to Gen. Avery D. Andrews in an address at the Rotary Club today. What is needed, he added, is a second canal across the Isthmus of Panama probably by the Nicaraguan route.

Most of the food and much of the war supplies in this country, he said, are produced in the interior part of the country. It is ridiculous to suppose, he added, that the War Department would move these necessary supplies by railroad to the eastern seaboard, then by boat thousands of miles, through the Florida canal, the Gulf of Mexico, the Panama Canal and then 2,000 miles farther, through submarine-infested waters to San Francisco, when the more direct route overland by railroad and truck would be shorter, safer, and free from attack.

Gen. Andrews was introduced by George Hollins, who had charge of the program, as one who had been a member of Gen. Pershing's staff during the World War. As a deputy chief of the Utilities Service Commission, set up by Gen. Pershing, Gen. Andrews had charge of American transportation in France.

Mentioning Gen. Summerall as a friend of long standing for whom he had a high personal regard, Gen. Andrews called attention to the fact that Gen. Summerall has been given a final check by H. M. Leighley, RCA representative who is in charge of the installation, and it has now become an established part of the Department, Chief of Police Roy G. Williams said today.

River Excursion To Be Conducted Mar. 25

Because of a number of requests, Capt. Ed Rice will conduct another special St. Johns River excursion for winter visitors on Friday, Mar. 25.

A feature of this all-day trip will be an old fashioned fish fry on the banks of the river near Lemon Bluff. The Yacht "Char-much" will leave the Sanford Municipal Pier promptly at 9:30 Friday morning and will return at 6:30 P. M. As the capacity is limited, tickets must be secured in advance at the Chamber of Commerce Building not later than Wednesday.

Winter visitors who have taken one of the previous excursions this winter, will be particularly interested in this opportunity to explore a route south along the St. Johns, Chamber officials said.

Radio For Local Police Is Given Last Adjustments

Greater Co-Operation Of Residents With Department Is Urged

The police radio at the Police Station has been given a final check by H. M. Leighley, RCA representative who is in charge of the installation, and it has now become an established part of the Department, Chief of Police Roy G. Williams said today.

Greater coverage than was originally anticipated has been acquired from the equipment which at present is in "Perfect working condition," according to a statement of Mr. Leighley after the final adjustments had been made.

The addition of this equipment has in no small measure increased the efficiency of the Police Department, Chief Williams declared, adding that the average time required for a policeman to reach the scene of an accident or other trouble was only about two minutes after a complaint was received at the Police Station.

Mayor Edward Higgins, inviting public inspection of the equipment, declared that it had been the motive of the Commissioners in authorizing purchase of this equipment to increase the efficiency of this branch of city government, in order to cope more satisfactorily with modern criminals.

B. C. Moore Tells Senior High Boys About Accounting

B. C. Moore, member of the local firm of auditors, Pentland, Gray and Moore, outlined to the boys of the senior class at the Seminole High School this morning the work of an accountant. The program today was the fifth of the vocational guidance programs sponsored by the Rotary Club and arranged by a committee headed by J. L. Ingley.

Before discussing accounting as a vocation, Mr. Moore pointed to five virtues, honesty, dependability, loyalty, integrity, and truthfulness, which, he declared, were essential to success in any vocation and added that no real success could be achieved in the absence of these.

In his address to the students Mr. Moore explained the principles of accounting, as well as what an accountant should know and do. He also told of the openings offered in this field. As a definition of accounting, Mr. Moore stated that it was a logical, relative manner of facts of business transactions, systematically classified and recorded, and declared that the reward for an accountant came only after long years of hard study and a thorough knowledge of mathematical principles.

Reorganization Bill Is Flayed By Utah Senator

Alvord Declares Tax System Is Cause Of Unemployment

WASHINGTON, Mar. 21.—(AP)—Senator King (D-Utah) told the Senate today that the passage of the Administration's reorganization bill would mean "expectations of balancing the budget and lifting a heavy tax burden must be abandoned."

The broad reorganization powers which would be granted to the President under terms of the pending measure would permit a "bureaucratic government to become more powerful and therefore more autocratic," King asserted.

He declared that he believed the proposed reorganization would be followed by an increase in government employees and a constant increase in expenditures.

Ellsworth C. Alvord, tax expert for United States Chamber of Commerce, told the Senate Finance Committee that present tax laws were responsible for much of the unemployment.

Italo-British Accord Seen As Imminent

Rome Sources Think Agreement Will Be Concluded Saturday; 4 Points Included

Poland, Lithuania Patch Differences

Germany Says "New League" Is Not League Member Now

By Associated Press. The world's wars surged on today but Europe's rumor of new wars slackened. Predictions of an early British-Italian accord became a splash of cheerful color on the European panorama after two hectic weeks of anxious, somber retouching and repainting.

Informed sources in Rome predicted the British-Italian accord would be concluded by Saturday to include these provisions: British support for the League of Nations; recognition of the Italian conquest of Ethiopia; withdrawal of all Italian combatants from the Spanish Civil War; and absolute withdrawal of Italian forces from the Balearic islands.

Poland and Lithuania, near armed conflict last week, planned to patch up an old railway line so they could resume friendly communication, non-existent for nearly 18 years. There were rumblings of discord in Lithuania, however, with two cabinet members tendering resignations and students calling a 10-day period of mourning over the capitulation to Poland's army-backed demand for normal diplomatic and commercial relations.

Germany, still digesting Austria, informed the League of Nations that her new province "no longer is considered" a member of the League. A mysterious roundup of Soviet citizens was underway in Russia—apparently an effort to isolate the suspicious regime from foreign contacts.

Spanish insurgents straightening out their front for another big lunge toward the sea against stiffening government resistance, occupied triangular pieces of territory south of Alcaniz. They still were more than 40 miles from the coast.

LOCAL WEATHER

Fair to partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday.

The Czech Leader

One of the most important figures in Europe today and one of the most significant factors in deciding the question of peace or war is Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia. Upon his shoulders and those of 89-year old President Masaryk rests the responsibility of maintaining the independence of Czechoslovakia and, if possible, averting a war with Germany.

Born of Czech peasants in Bohemia in 1884, Benes was reared in an atmosphere of grinding poverty. The youngest of five children, he fought his way up until he was able to enter the University of Praha where Thomas G. Masaryk was then a professor. By writing for newspapers and doing all manner of odd jobs, Benes worked his way through college.

Later he studied at the Sorbonne in Paris and at the University of Dijon where he won his doctor's degree with a thesis entitled "The Austrian Problem and the Czech Question—A Study of the Political Struggles of the Slavic Nationalities," showing that as early as 1909 he had been giving serious thought to the independence of the minority races of Central Europe.

When the war broke out Benes was a teacher at the University of Praha and manifestly out of sympathy with the Pan-Germanic doctrine of the Hohenzollerns and the autocratic rule of the Hapsburg monarchy. He remained in Praha for a while where he attempted to organize the Czechs in the interest of the Allies but was soon discovered by the secret police and barely managed to escape to Switzerland where his friend and teacher Masaryk had preceded him.

Benes' real mission in life began at that moment and he set himself earnestly to work to establish an independent nation of Czechoslovakians. At the Versailles Peace Conference, when Woodrow Wilson was preaching his doctrine of "self-determination of peoples," and Will Rogers was saying that "any place with a chamber of commerce could get themselves a nation," Benes created the little land-locked country of Czechoslovakia out of the former Austro-Hungarian Empire and a part of Germany.

"Our principles," Benes says, "proceed from faith in democracy and opposition to every form of absolutist and oligarchic power with all their medieval survivals. We believe in respect for the personality of man in all things and direct our actions accordingly. We condemn violence in any form, whether it be material or spiritual. We know that among nations there will continue to exist conflicts of interest and opinions, but we desire to settle such conflicts by democratic exchanges of ideas, by arguments and reason and altogether by methods permeated with the spirit of humanity."

The past few years, however, have been devoted by Benes to making Czechoslovakia impregnable from a military point of view and in building up alliances designed to support the independence of his country in case of attack. He is the father of the "Little Entente," a mutual assistance pact among Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania, and also has defensive alliances with France and Russia.

DISPELLING THE FOG
By CHARLES MICHELSON
Democratic National Committee

When Administration critics in and out of Congress turn out their grievances against the White House they always come back to the solemn charge that the President is speaking to assume dictatorial powers. Just how dictatorial the Chief Executive is able to be was recently illustrated by the conference he had with the three commissioners of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The President had all three of them in, two of them declaring that their chairman would not co-operate in any way and that, therefore, all manner of things that ought to be done were being done. The chairman of the board, in response, accused his two fellow commissioners of lack of integrity and other ailments which suggested turpitude, but fairly refused to disclose whether the inquiry had been exhibited or what special iniquitous act he had in mind.

Up to date, the dictators we read about perform their functions with perfect secrecy until the time for action in their estimation has come. For example, nobody heard of the conquest of Austria by Herr Hitler until the Fuehrer's soldiers were at the border. If not actually marching into Austria, similarly, Signor Mussolini failed to advise the world in advance of his conquest of Abyssinia.

Something New in Dictatorship
Consequently, it was somewhat surprising to students of the dictator business when the President of the United States had in a stenographer to report his long conversation with the three commissioners and supplied the newspaper with the verbatim report, page by page, as the examination went on. Nothing was developed beyond the fact that the Commission was in a mess, for it is pretty obvious that there could hardly be an efficient administration of the big project with the Chairman believing that his colleagues were crooked, and the colleagues insisting that they could not get any action in any direction from the Chairman. And it appears that there wasn't anything special that the President could do about it.

Here is a board, constituted under Congressional authority by the President, who appointed these men, that seems to have bogged down and it is questionable if the President can remove them and substitute new appointees. This would seem to be another evidence that the alleged aspirant to the dictatorship has an awful long way to go to lend any probability to the thought so glibly and frequently voiced by his political foes.

Two methods of clarification have been suggested. One, a Congressional investigation; and the other—originally suggested by Senator Norris—and investigation by the Federal Trade Commission. To anybody who has ever watched such a proceeding by Congress, the first idea suggests interminable hearings, complicated by all sorts of politics, not unexpected in the coming Congressional session, an opportunity for a vast amount of oratory, and perhaps possibly and minorly repetitious. However, on the other hand, those who favor an investigation say that an inquiry by one Commission into the work of another would be a whitewashing show. Just why the Federal Trade Commission should be interested in whitewashing the T. V. A., or which side of the controversy they would be likely to plaster, is not quite apparent. Nor do I know anything of the merits of the conflict but it is interesting as furnishing an instance of the duplicity of the President—who can't do a damned thing about it.

The Veto Power Limited
Another example of the unparalleled domination by the White House incident is the difficulty being experienced in getting action on a measure that would permit him to veto an individual item in a bill instead of, as he has to do at present, accepting or rejecting the whole measure. Presidents in the past have frequently complained of the existing process. It was brought to a conspicuousness not so very long ago when the Senate accepted a bill to the District of Columbia and the bill which had to do with permitting certain amendments and whoreships to live the amount at which it had to be held at retail. The veto had as much to do with taxation in the District of Columbia as the bill of the lady penitents at the Soldiers' Gardens here (that day was related to the war in China. However, should the bill ever reach the White House the President would have the option of either vetoing it or amending it. The bill was carried to the Senate and it was accepted with a 95-0 vote. The measure to which he had subjected expressed his disapproval at various times during the two years that measure as an individual bill had been before Congress. Of course, he indicated desire of the authority to veto individual items rather than a whole bill was promptly denounced by his political opponents as just another sample of grasping at more authority.

To be sure, Congress could, if it wanted to, over-ride the veto of an item just as sometimes it over-rides the veto of a bill. But if you are going to worry about dictatorship, any and every vehicle must be employed. Then there is, of course, the reorganization bill. I think every President with any recollection has recognized the necessity of overhauling the government's machinery to get away from overlapping, duplication, divided authority, and other handicaps which have, through a hundred and fifty years, come to barge the hull of the ship of state. But again the cry is raised, because Franklin D. Roosevelt suggested it, that there is something dark and demonic about the proposal.

To recapitulate, this threatened dictatorship has up to date made this score: He is, temporarily at least, styled on the T. V. A. The conference committee of the Senate and House eliminated the proposition giving him authority to veto approval to any particular section of a bill without vetoing the whole thing. And the reorganization bill is still in committee. All of which show how grave is the danger of our Chief Executive being a Fuehrer, a Duce, or a Boss Comissaris.

Interest Renewed In Cure For Rail Ills By Roosevelt
WASHINGTON, Mar. 21.—(AP)—A capsule compounded for the railroad ill five and a half years ago, and laid aside, is being looked upon with renewed interest in the capital.

It was wrapped up in 23 words in a September of 1932 by Franklin D. Roosevelt in that vast egg-shaped building that Brigham Young built for his followers on the shore of the Great Salt Lake. Mr. Roosevelt put it like this: "Avoid financial excesses; adjust plant to traffic; protect the workers; coordinate all carrier services; above all, serve the public reasonably, swiftly and well."

He paused for half a second, then added: "This is the road to economic safety." Behind him, the giant pipe organ thundered into "Happy Days Are Here Again." The crowd cheered. Mr. Roosevelt beamed.

Money has been loaned to the railroads to pay debts and buy equipment. Motor carriers have been brought under government regulation. Numerous studies have been made of railroad problems and a variety of remedies suggested.

Gen. Andrews Denies Need Of Canal In War

Attention to a recent statement of the former chief of staff in which he is quoted as saying that in case of war in the Pacific, troops, food supplies and war materials would have to be moved by boat through the Panama Canal as the transcontinental railroads are in no position to handle so large an amount of traffic.

Gen. Andrews also paid high tribute to his former clamant, Gen. Pershing, whom he characterized as one of the truly great commanders of the World War. Gen. Pershing was, he said, the only commanding officer on the Allied side who brought his men over, organized them, achieved his objectives, and then fought them home.

Antelope Is Victim Of Land Abuses

By "DING" DARLING
"Coming Back" is the good word that comes from the western plains regarding the antelope, the most sprightly member of our American fauna.

The pronghorn is unique among the animals of the world—the only representative of his peculiar branch of the family.

No animal except the buffalo has a more dramatic story to tell of wildlife waste, and of what restoration can do.

What came mightily near being the final chapter in the antelope's history was written when settlers moved with their cattle and sheep onto the sparse, semi-arid lands of the great western plains. There farming was utterly impossible.

Shackers, deluded by the dream of free homesteads, paid more heed to the law of hunger than to game laws. They shot anything and everything that could be put into the kettle. Slaughter and competition with the domestic flocks for food almost annihilated the last of the antelope herds. Over-grazing has turned millions of acres into denuded and barren waste.

In recent years, we have begun to wake up to the unwise uses of land, and the luckless shacker has drifted away from some of the range of the antelope. At the same time some of the big ranchers have become the most stalwart friends of wildlife, and by rigid protection the antelope has gradually gained its numbers until now, sustained herds are appearing on the old hereditary ranges. The sweetest example of stream-lined speed imaginable is an antelope on the run. No wasted motion.

An antelope one of the most agile in appearance of the American fauna, won't or can't get over a four-foot fence, but it will dive under the ordinary ranch wire fence, come up on the other side in full stride without any apparent check in its speed, which is about twice that of the bounding deer.

One of the finest examples of wildlife conservation in America is the Sheldon Antelope refuge in northern Nevada, under the management of the U. S. Biological Survey, where an adequate block of winter and summer range has been set aside for the permanent home of pronghorn antelope.

WHAT WILL HITLER DO WITH HIS NEW AUSTRIAN CABINET?

This radiophoto shows the Austrian cabinet selected after Adolf Hitler forced Chancellor Schuschnigg and his anti-Nazi administration to resign. But now that Hitler has made his decision to make Austria just another state of the German Reich, no one knows how he will use these men. One thing is certain—Michael Skubl (extreme left), the newly chosen state secretary, already is out of the cabinet. He is not a Nazi and so was removed and placed under "protective arrest." The others, left to right: Wilhelm Wolff, foreign affairs; Rudolf Neumayer, finance; Hans Fishbeck, commerce; Arthur Seyss-Inquart, chancellor; Anton Rheinbaler, agriculture; Edmund Glaise-Horstenau, vice chancellor; Hugo Jury, social welfare, and Ernst Kaltenbrunner, who succeeded Skubl.

FOUR DEAD IN ALABAMA TORNADES

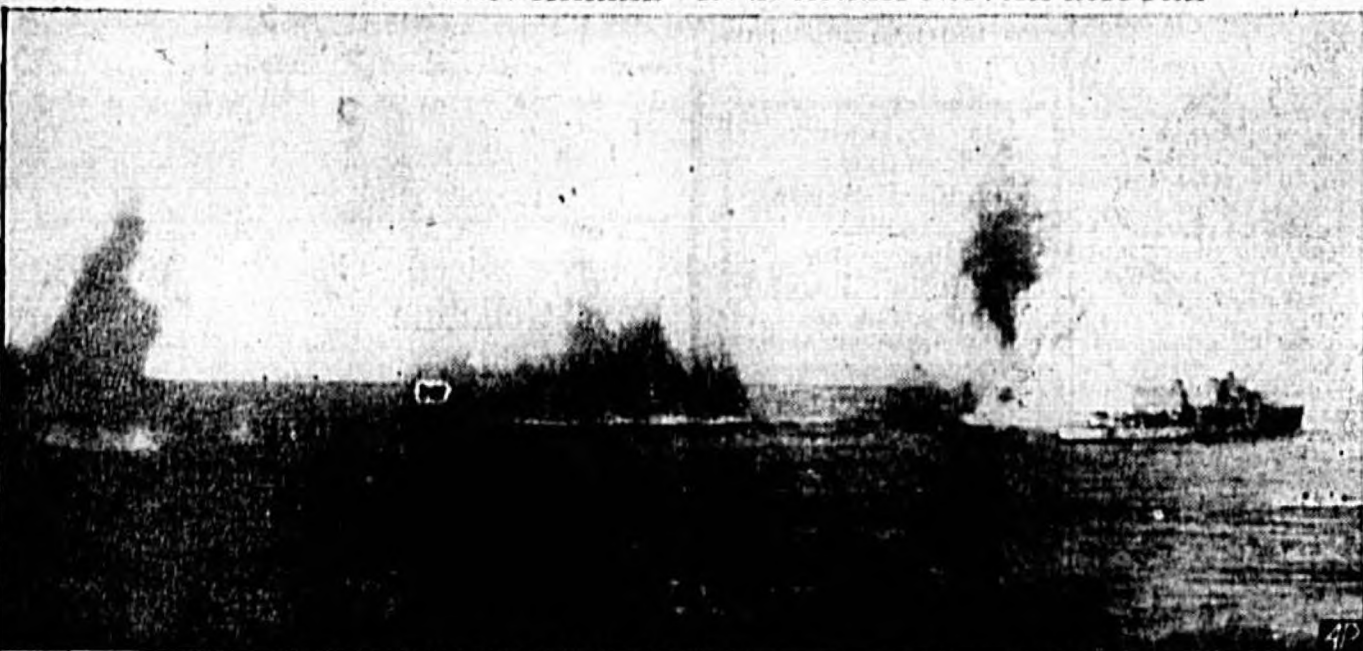

Sweeping over wide areas in Alabama, a series of roaring tornadoes accounted for the deaths of three men and a woman, left more than 50 persons injured, and created unestimated destruction to property. This picture of scattered debris and flattened frame houses presents a typical scene in Demopolis, Ala., one of the hardest hit communities. It was estimated 100 homes were destroyed by the storm.

BRITISH SEAMAN KILLED IN SPANISH NAVAL BATTLE

After the Baleares, 10,000-ton pride of the Spanish insurgent navy, had received her death blow from the government destroyer Le Panto, the British destroyers Boreas and Kempenfelt, on non-intervention duty in the Mediterranean, steamed up to pick up survivors. At that time, though, government planes let loose a hail of bombs on the Baleares, sinking her, and almost getting the Boreas, shown at right. One British seaman was killed. This picture is one of an exclusive series taken by a British naval officer from the deck of the Kempenfelt. The battle, in which 600 lost their lives, took place March 6 about 70 miles off Cape Palos, near Cartagena, Spain.

Gen. Oscar Westover, chief of army air corps; A. L. Godwick and Col. C. W. Kerwood.

BARCELONA STREETS SPRAYED BY INSURGENT BOMBS

Harried residents of Barcelona scurry past a shattered streetcar and wrecked buildings in this radio photo, one of the first received in the United States showing the destruction wrought by intensive insurgent bombing of the city since last Wednesday. SURVIVORS OF BALEARES BOMBING RUSHED TO MAJORCA

This picture, taken at Palma, Majorca, shows some of the 200 survivors of the Baleares sinking after they were rescued by British naval vessels and rushed to the first port of haven. Six hundred men lost their lives in the tragic naval engagement off Cape Palos, near Cartagena, Spain, March 6, when an unerringly aimed torpedo from the government destroyer Lepanto found its mark and blew up the munitions magazines on the Spanish insurgent cruiser Baleares. Turned into a raging inferno, the Baleares sank quickly, taking with it its terrific toll of lives.

Iron Ruler Of Nazis Was Tempered In Fire Of War

Great events can best be understood if one understands the men behind them. Behind the great events in Europe today stands Adolf Hitler. Morgan Beatty, editor of men and events, here now tells the remarkable story of Hitler's career and reports what the biographers and commentators say about him. This is the first of Beatty's three articles.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
NKW YORK, Mar. 21.—(AP)—If Barnum were alive and running a wax works of famous living men, he probably would bill Adolf Hitler as the greatest human enigma of all time.

That, of course, would be a Barnum exaggeration, but it would be a showman's way of explaining the unpredictable man who is dictator over 75,000,000 German people.

For whatever else one may think about Hitler he certainly is a puzzle—more so than other famous dictators.

Even the beginning of his life present contradictions, a tempting field for students of human character.

The Hitler ancestral home is in Austria, across the border from Germany. The region is peopled with honest, illiterate peasants whose tragedy has long been poverty and inbreeding.

Hitler's father, Alois, is pictured by biographers as a strong-willed robber who obtained a financial nest egg when he married the first of three wives. Then he wanted an Austrian civil service job, and started a family, moving from town to town along the border as a customs inspector. In a few years, the first Mrs. Hitler died, and Alois took a second wife, who lived only a few months after the marriage.

One day, the widowed Alois spotted tall, dark-eyed Clara Poel-and told the story to a curious world years later.

Again you are told that Hitler's border birthplace was a natural spot to develop any political sense he may have had, for along the border was heard the constant cry for a union of all Germanic peoples—a dream Hitler himself has only now brought to reality.

The next thing you know, the lad Hitler is being expelled from school for smoking. That's odd for Hitler, the man, neither smokes nor drinks.

Later Hitler attended a Catholic monastery school and there developed a taste for music and art—especially art. This roused Alois who told Adolf he was to follow in his father's footsteps in the civil service. He punctuated the declaration with a spanking.

The young Hitler obviously preferred his mother. This favoritism seemed to develop in him into a reverential love for her and a positive dislike of his father. Certain it is he fought shy in later life of alcohol and over-eating, both liked, say, biographers, by the elder Hitler.

When Adolf was 13, his father died and the son continued his schooling for a while, making indifferent progress, and learning more heavily toward that art career. Although his mother was slowly dying of cancer she determined Adolf should settle the course of his life in his own way. She helped him go to Vienna to study art when he was 17.

In a year or so the young painter, dubbed "Haudsome Adolf," tried to enter the Vienna School of Fine Arts but was turned down twice. Then his mother died.

For five years he lived from pillar to post, earning his bread as a hack artist, house painter, paper hanger. "In the years 1909-10," he wrote, "I had so far improved my condition as not to have to earn my daily bread as an artist worker. I was working independently as a draftsman and painter in water colors."

He was also dipping into history and economics, and attending political meetings now and then. Once, he says, he came across a being in a long caftan, with black side locks. "My first thought was: Is that a Jew?" And then, "Is that a German?" He studied the Semitic question a long time, he says, before concluding that Jews were not Germans.

In 1912 Hitler migrated to Munich. Came the World war and Hitler discarded his Austrian citizen hip like a dirty shirt. He rebelled to fight in the service of the hated Germany.

The dandy who painted and modeled from the war four years later a man's man, he was a hero upon whom had been hung the Iron Cross for personal valor, a soldier who bore shrapnel wounds and the pain of war gas.

This was the man who was one day to awaken Germany to a new day, for better or for worse.

IN THE FIELD OF SPORTS

By JULIAN STENSTROM

The signing of "Little" Joe Ruggerio to play third base for the Sanford entry in the Florida State League for the forthcoming season is the first interesting bit of baseball news to be announced this year except the signing of Guy Lacy as pilot.

Ruggerio did not play what can be considered outstanding baseball last year but his playing was steady. The little Italian was a recruit of the Joe Engel Baseball School held here last season and had a hard man to beat to be able to remain here. Ruggerio and a youth from Schenectady, N. Y., Jack Weisberger, were the only ones in line for the second base position but Joe was spotted by Bill Rodgers, and named to stay to play with the Lookouts. Weisberger went to Maywood, N. C., of the Carolina League but was not satisfied there.

Ruggerio capped the season with a "Lunk" and won two successive games in a row for the locals with long doubles in each cented. Ruggerio became liked by the fans who saw him do his best. The little fellow was moved to the hot corner after the release of Freddie Brunie where he kept his steady playing although he was handicapped by his height.

Many local fans have hoped for his returning and some future day he may be prominent around the major circles.

Three more ball players entered this city late yesterday afternoon and may display their wares for the local this year. Herman Medler, former Sanford pitcher in 1936. St. Tomblow, St. Augustine third baseman in 1936 and a shortstop whose name could not be learned, stated that they may be with the local outfit this year. They were probably led by Henry Watson not to make any definite statements about being stationed with Sanford. Watson said they did not get come down, only for a tryout, since Medler's 1936 record with Sanford and Tomblow's stay with St. Augustine proved their abilities.

Ruggerio Signs To Play With Sanford Again This Season

"Little" Joe Ruggerio, second and third baseman for the Sanford entry in the Florida State League last season announced that he has re-signed with the local team for the coming season.

The information was received in a letter in which the little Italian stated that he would report for training on or about April 1. Ruggerio will hold down the third base position for the Sanford entry again this season it was indicated.

He was not quite ready for class "B" competition this year and was turned over to the Sanford club by Washington. Joe played steadily last year for the Lookouts last year hitting for an average of .277 and fielded an average of .900.

Leffler Declares Celery Prorates Hurting Demand

Continued From Page One of Agriculture, through the Celery Marketing Control Committee, has held out the hope that they could regulate the shipments of celery to market so as to force a reasonable price—a price sufficient to pay cost of production and leave some profit, but so far they have failed to do this. If we get a reasonable price for one-third of the crop, can we pay off them? What will our labor do if we ship only one third of our crop, and how will our merchants fare on the shippings from a one-third crop? How can employment be maintained by restricting our main business?

"An amazing thing about our Government's regulation of farm products and prices and some of its other activities is that the Government holds out hopes, and encourages the belief that its plans will cure our troubles, and all the while they are making these promises, or predictions, we live largely on this air of hope and trust and do not stir ourselves to sell our products and to create a larger demand for our goods. Do not suppose that the earned goods man and the frozen food man are pulling in their horns.

"Our products are not necessities of life. If they are to be sold, they must be actively presented to probable customers, and the pressure for sales must be constant or the demand will disappear and dry up.

"I am convinced that if shipments of celery are restricted, the demand will get less and less as the years go by and our customers for celery will eat something else, —they may be eating something else now.

"The next thing the Department of Agriculture will do, or try to do, will be to set acreage quotas and tell you and me how much we can plant and then when my boys want to farm, they will go to a County Agent to get a permit to grow celery and a County Agent will say, "No, you can't get into the business of growing celery. We have all the celery we can permit." That will be a bad state of affairs, but it is not at all impossible.

"Hambone says we know "more and more about less and less."

Ancient Rites Mark Rosicrucian New Year

The vernal equinox on Mar. 21st when the sun enters the astronomical signs of Aries, upon its journey around the Zodiac marks the ancient beginning of the New Year commemorated by the Rosicrucian Order, AMORC, a philosophical fraternity since today. "The traditional history of the Rosicrucians," says L. A. Renaud, local Rosicrucian representative, "records its establishment during the reign of Pharaoh Amenhotep IV, 1350 B. C., who is said to have instituted the ancient ceremony and feast, which is continued in commemoration in the same ancient manner by the Rosicrucians throughout the world today. The Emperor of the Order declares annually, by proclamation from the Grand Lodge of the Order in San Jose, California, the exact date of the ceremony. Throughout North and South America, newly appointed officers for local lodges and chapters of the society will be installed following the ancient rites.

POOL HALL STATESMAN.... Louis XIV of France loved to play billiards. He was good, too, and few members of his court were able to defeat him. Those who could dared not, for fear of arousing his anger. That is, all but one man.

Michel de Chamillart could and did beat the king at billiards. And strange as it seems, he made the king like it. His technique at handling Louis was equal to that displayed with the billiard cue and consequently Chamillart won the favor and admiration of the king instead of his ire.

In appreciation of Chamillart's skill, Louis appointed him Minister of Finance in 1685. As if this were not enough reward for being able to play the game so well, Louis added another title to Chamillart the same year—

Minister of Revenue. By 1699 Chamillart was still better than Louis at billiards, so he became Controller-General of France, a position he held without relinquishing his other titles.

Louis XIV the following year displayed his friendship for his pool hall companion by making him Minister of State, the second highest position in the country, and in 1701 climaxed his admiration by benevolently creating Chamillart Minister of War!

Publisher Wants Senate To Stop Lobby Committee

WASHINGTON, Mar. 21.—(P) Frank Gannett, newspaper publisher, (P) might demand that the senate abolish its lobbying investigation committee and publicly apologize for its "viciously illegal activities." He made his demand as head of the national committee to uphold constitutional government whose executive secretary, Dr. Edward A. Rumely, faces a contempt of the senate citation for refusing to surrender the organization's private records to the lobby investigators last Friday.

Condemning as "infamous" the committee formerly headed by Supreme Court Justice Black and now directed by Senator Milton, Indiana, Gannett charged that its renewed activities are prompted by a desire to smear and intimidate his and other organizations fighting the government reorganization bill.

Effort Made To Cut Agency From Control

Administration Beats Attempt To Exempt U. S. Agency From Reorganization Bill

William Green Fights Measure

TVA Chairman Refuses To Give Reason Against Removal

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—(AP)—Administration leaders today beat off the first move in the Senate to exempt a specific federal agency from the executive reorganization bill.

One Administration supporter, Senator Hatch, New Mexico Democrat, joined the opposition for the first time in advocating the Pittman amendment but he announced he would oppose further exemptions.

Senator Clark, Missouri Democrat, offered an amendment to exempt the Veterans Bureau from the terms of the bill.

Senator Johnson, California Republican, is supporting Pittman's proposal, read into the Senate record a telegram from President William Green of the American Federation of Labor opposing the enactment of the bill and urging that it be sent back to the committee for further hearings.

Meanwhile in Yellow Springs, Ohio, Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the T. V. A., announced a flat refusal to meet President Roosevelt's request that he give "any reason" why he should not be removed as chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

"I have no further statement to make other than what I told the President yesterday," Morgan said following his return to his home here.

President Roosevelt had given Morgan until 2:30 P. M. today to provide "any reason."

There were indications in Washington the President might issue an executive order removing Chairman Morgan if the latter failed to offer any reason by the hour indicated.

Morgan declined to comment on what steps he would take if the President removes him. Morgan and the other two members of the T. V. A., Board, David E. Lilienthal and H. A. Morgan, have been involved in a heated controversy over T. V. A. affairs.

Mr. Roosevelt said he would take action against "my old friend" reluctantly. He said that in the evidence before him he found that: (A) Arthur E. Morgan has failed to sustain the grave and libelous charges of dishonesty and want of integrity which he has made against his fellow directors; his conduct in this respect is legally and morally unjustified.

(B) On the face of the record the charges of the other directors that Arthur E. Morgan has obstructed the work and injured the morale of the organization of the TVA must be accepted as true; he has refused to offer testimony in denial of the charges.

Wilson Appeals For Assistance To Salvation Army

Report Is Made Showing Work Of Group During Past Year

Fred Wilson, chairman of the Salvation Army's Home Service Appeal, today called upon the citizens of Sanford to put their shoulders to the wheel and co-operate with the Salvation Army in its huge community undertaking for the spiritual development, character building, and welfare needs of underprivileged people.

In a resume of the work of the organization for last year it was pointed out there were 175 families who received material assistance, as well as helpful advice from this organization and that three were about 900 garments, 100 pairs of shoes given to needy, medical aid given to seven families, and furniture given to nine families, besides grocery orders and dental aid for persons in Sanford and Seminole County.

The Salvation Army furnished transient with 412 beds; 692 meals; gave medical aid to one. (Continued on Page Three)

Herbert H. Lehman Flays Government Taxing Policies

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—(AP)—Herbert H. Lehman of New York, whom Franklin D. Roosevelt once called "my strong right man," charged yesterday that "independent sovereignty of the States is threatened by Federal taxing policies."

His charge was made in a letter to the Senate Finance Committee, which is studying the House-approved tax revision bill preparatory to Senate action upon it.

The New York Governor said he spoke for all States in asking that the Federal Government agree to a 50 percent credit on Federal estate taxes "on account of death duties paid to the States and territories."

Lehman said the House bill's provision for a 10 1/2 percent credit for taxes paid States was equivalent to saying States had only a one-sixth right to estate taxes.

The New Yorker was Lieutenant Governor of his State when Mr. Roosevelt, then Governor, called him "my strong right man." He differed publicly with the President last year over the Roosevelt court reorganization bill, calling it "a greatly dangerous precedent."

Spokesman for a major segment of business and industry appeared in person before the Senate committee yesterday to urge that it take a chance on lowering tax rates in the hope of stimulating business and thus actually increasing Government income.

Naval Bill To Give Senate Debate Fuel

LaFollette Asserts $1,000,000,000 Measure For Ships Is "Preposterous"

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—(AP)—The Administration's naval expansion bill, outspoken critics today indicated, will become the vehicle for a far-reaching Senate debate on foreign policy, neutrality and national defense.

Senate opponents of the bill, which the House passed yesterday 222 to 100, are led by Senators Borah, Idaho Republican, and LaFollette, Wisconsin Progressive. They expected to decide on strategy soon after disposal of the government reorganization bill.

LaFollette, calling the projected $1,000,000,000 expenditure for new ships "preposterous," criticized particularly the proposal of naval experts to develop fleets capable of defending the United States on both coasts at the same time. Although the program is generally considered America's answer to aggressor powers, the bill carries a statement asserting the United States would welcome a world disarmament conference. However, in the same statement, it specifically forbids the President to suspend or scrap any vessels actually under construction regardless of possible treaty terms.

This section originally carried a broad declaration of naval policy, which President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull had approved, embracing construction of a fleet powerful enough to defend both coasts simultaneously, protect all territories and possessions as well as "commerce and citizens abroad" and carry out all national policies.

The policy section was offered as the administration's answer to vigorous Senate criticism of President Roosevelt's foreign policy led by the veteran Senator William E. Borah (R., Idaho) and Hiram W. Johnson (R., Calif.). Throughout House consideration of the bill, it had been defended by administration leaders as "this nation's naval policy from time immemorial," but with dramatic suddenness last Friday they practically withdrew all support and allowed it to be stricken on point of order.

Women's Civic Group Of County C Of C Plans For Next Season

Initial action was taken yesterday morning by the Women's Civic Committee of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce to work out a plan for a winter entertainment program for the next season. According to tentative plans, various civic and social organizations in the City will be called upon to provide at least one entertainment program in addition to regular activities of the Sanford Tourist Club. Included in a tentative program is a tour of the most beautiful gardens and an inspection of the industries in this area.

While the present tourist season has been conceded the most successful in the recent history of Sanford, this plan for additional entertainment will provide further attractive inducements to the visitors.

Of particular interest to members of the Committee, was an announcement that their activities will be the subject of a feature article to appear in the Annual Women's edition of the Baltimore & Ohio Magazine, published by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. The article is being prepared by Secretary Ralph

Sanford Leads Cities Of Class In Bond Sales

$79,612.50 Invested Here In Government Bonds Last Year

Sanford citizens bought more United States Savings Bonds last year than any other Florida city having a second class post office, a bulletin from the Treasury Department revealed today. In per capita sales, Sanford ranked 12. The total sales here aggregated $79,612.50 of which $55,812.50 were through the Post Office and the remaining $23,800 were mail order sales.

Detailed analysis of the daily sale at each of the post offices throughout the country authorized to sell Savings Bonds was begun on Sept. 1, 1936, and for the year ending Aug. 31, 1937, showed that there was a maturity value sale of $636,748,500, or an average sale of $2,101,500, for each business day for the first year these records were kept.

The attached tabulations show for this period of one year the cash sales of the first ten ranking cities, towns and villages of the first, second, third and fourth class post offices, which led the nation in their respective classes in the sale of savings bonds for this period.

War Continues On China And Spain Fronts

Europe Relaxes From Tension Of Recent Weeks As Crisis Apparently Passed

England Shuffles Foreign Policy

In China Battle Rages For Possession Of Vital Railroad

By Associated Press Bloody warfare raged on in China and Spain today while the rest of the world relaxed somewhat from its recent tension. The Spanish insurgents, having consolidated their recent sweeping gains in Aragon, started "softening" the government's new defense line in the rugged terrain southeast of Alcaniz.

Aerial bombardment and infantry attacks supported by tanks broke through the government line but the defenders rallied and temporarily at least prevented the insurgents from driving eastward toward the Mediterranean.

In China the Japanese pounded steadily at the Chinese forces along the grand Canal but made slow headway against the Chinese defenses.

While the European situation relaxed from the critical stage reached during the Austrian seizure and the Polish-Lithuanian dispute, Great Britain endeavored to form a foreign policy adequate to meet conditions and restore England to her historic "balance of power" position.

The Nazis in the tiny principality of Lichtenstein, precariously located between Austria and Switzerland, were reported in conference with Germany over the establishment of closer ties. (Nearly all of Lichtenstein's population is German.)

Fighting raged across the bloody Grand Canal, as the Chinese and Japanese, their lines but 50 yards apart in some places, battled for the possession of Suchow, a vital junction point of the Lunghai and Tientsin-Pukow railways.

Gunfire was audible in Suchow, 22 miles from the battle-front, as the Japanese ranged heavy artillery along the north shore of the canal and opened the bombardment of Chinese lines.

In all other directions the Chinese were launching desperate counter-attacks, preventing Japanese reinforcements to the Suchow battle and adding confusion to an already mixed situation in five provinces.

Foreign exchange dealings were suspended by the Central bank of Mexico at the same time that expropriation of the $400,000,000 foreign oil industry was announced last week. Other banks followed suit.

While long lines of Mexicans paraded past windows of the Bank of Mexico exchanging currency for silver coins, banking quarters said it was understood the government contemplated establishing two (Continued on Page Three)

American Oil Men Held Prisoner In Mexican City

Tampico Workers Demand Back Pay And Detain Executives

MEXICO CITY, Mar. 22.—(AP)—An American and two Mexican oil company executives were reported held prisoner yesterday by Tampico workers in the first disorders developing from President Cardenas' expropriation of the foreign petroleum industry.

Tampico advised said Edward Borrego, American superintendent of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey refinery there, and the Mexicans were held within a building by workers demanding payment of back pay.

Company officials here said they knew of no pay due, unless it was one day's wages in certain fields where pay-day was on Thursday instead of Friday or Saturday as elsewhere.

Meanwhile, the possibility Mexico would take a leaf out of Germany's bank book and institute a system of "blocked pesos" was suggested.

Foreign exchange dealings were suspended by the Central bank of Mexico at the same time that expropriation of the $400,000,000 foreign oil industry was announced last week. Other banks followed suit.

In China Battle Rages For Possession Of Vital Railroad

By Associated Press Bloody warfare raged on in China and Spain today while the rest of the world relaxed somewhat from its recent tension. The Spanish insurgents, having consolidated their recent sweeping gains in Aragon, started "softening" the government's new defense line in the rugged terrain southeast of Alcaniz.

Aerial bombardment and infantry attacks supported by tanks broke through the government line but the defenders rallied and temporarily at least prevented the insurgents from driving eastward toward the Mediterranean.

In China the Japanese pounded steadily at the Chinese forces along the grand Canal but made slow headway against the Chinese defenses.

While the European situation relaxed from the critical stage reached during the Austrian seizure and the Polish-Lithuanian dispute, Great Britain endeavored to form a foreign policy adequate to meet conditions and restore England to her historic "balance of power" position.

The Nazis in the tiny principality of Lichtenstein, precariously located between Austria and Switzerland, were reported in conference with Germany over the establishment of closer ties. (Nearly all of Lichtenstein's population is German.)

Fighting raged across the bloody Grand Canal, as the Chinese and Japanese, their lines but 50 yards apart in some places, battled for the possession of Suchow, a vital junction point of the Lunghai and Tientsin-Pukow railways.

Gunfire was audible in Suchow, 22 miles from the battle-front, as the Japanese ranged heavy artillery along the north shore of the canal and opened the bombardment of Chinese lines.

In all other directions the Chinese were launching desperate counter-attacks, preventing Japanese reinforcements to the Suchow battle and adding confusion to an already mixed situation in five provinces.

$79,612.50 Invested Here In Government Bonds Last Year

Sanford citizens bought more United States Savings Bonds last year than any other Florida city having a second class post office, a bulletin from the Treasury Department revealed today. In per capita sales, Sanford ranked 12. The total sales here aggregated $79,612.50 of which $55,812.50 were through the Post Office and the remaining $23,800 were mail order sales.

Detailed analysis of the daily sale at each of the post offices throughout the country authorized to sell Savings Bonds was begun on Sept. 1, 1936, and for the year ending Aug. 31, 1937, showed that there was a maturity value sale of $636,748,500, or an average sale of $2,101,500, for each business day for the first year these records were kept.

The attached tabulations show for this period of one year the cash sales of the first ten ranking cities, towns and villages of the first, second, third and fourth class post offices, which led the nation in their respective classes in the sale of savings bonds for this period.
