House Reprimands Rep. Robert Sikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted overwhelmingly today to reprimand a subcommittee chairman, Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, on two counts of financial misconduct.

It was the House's first punishment of a member since 1969 when it fined Harlem Democrat Adam Clayton Powell and stripped him of seniority.

There were only three speakers in the debate before the reprimand against Sikes, a Florida Democrat.

One of the speakers, Rep. Andrew McGuire, D-N.J., said the House ethics committee should have recommended a stiffer punishment than censure. He said members should consider whether to take away Sikes' chairmanship of the House military construction appropriations subcommittee next year.

"The committee has found conduct that cannot and should not be tolerated by this House, or anybody or the American people," McGuire said.

The House approved the reprimand by a 381 to 3 vote, with five members voting present. Voting against the reprimand were Reps. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., Tom Steed, D-Ola., and Olin Teague, D-Tex.

Sikes made no statement to the House in his own defense but received permission to insert a statement later into the Congressional Record.

In a 486-page report issued earlier this week, the ethics committee called for Sikes to be reprimanded for:

- Buying 2,500 shares of stock in the First Navy Bank after he took office to help establish the bank at the Pensacola, Fla., Naval Air Station.
- Failing to report in financial statements to the House both the bank stock and 1,000 shares of stock Sikes owned in Fairchild Industries, Inc., a major defense contractor.
- A reprimand is the mildest form of punishment the ethics panel could have recommended.

The committee also said Sikes created "an obvious and significant conflict of interest" by sponsoring a bill in 1961 to clear commercial development of Florida land owned by a company he controlled.

County Studies Alternatives

Attorney Issue Rises Again

By ED PRICKETT
Herald Staff Writer

Wednesday's county budget workshop revived a burning issue that has been kicked around for years — whether the county attorney's job should be taken out of the political arena.

The issue surfaced when Commission Chairman Mike Hattaway announced a study was underway to determine if the present system of appointing a county attorney is the most economically feasible one.

When the Democrats — like they presently do — hold a majority vote, the attorney is a Democrat. The opposite is true when Republicans gain that all-important swing vote.

But a declining economy and pressure from area residents may combine to change the present system. Since Hattaway is up for re-election, he cannot ignore demands from citizens to seek the cheapest method of providing legal service to county government.

Office of Management Analysis and Evaluation (OMAE) Director Pat Glisson said Wednesday Freeman has agreed $115,000 worth of legal services should suffice for fiscal 1978-79. Last year $85,000 was budgeted for Freeman's services, but the final bill is estimated to come in at $115,500.

Last year Republican Commissioner John Kimbrough and his colleague, Richard Williams, suggested creating a county legal department to provide cheaper legal services for the commission. At that time, the new department would have been required, also, to take care of labor problems.

Last year, about $90,000 was budgeted for legal fees for the labor attorney. About $70,000 is proposed in next year's budget. A total of $186,844 is being proposed for the county's legal services.

Williams said last year two attorneys can be hired for about $55,000, so a county legal department has the potential of saving $131,844.

Storm Disrupts Power In County

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Thunderstorms and possibly a small twister left $30,000 to $35,000 damage in their wake at the Flying Seminole Ranch near Chuluota Wednesday.

Gerald Lindsey, airport manager, said four gliders, one belonging to Thomas C. Chitty of Oviedo and the other three belonging to the Soaring Seminoles Gliding Club, were damaged in the storm.

A single-engine airplane, valued at $1,000 by its owner Altamonte Springs veterinarian John R. Athey, was a total loss.

Lindsey said it was raining so hard when the damage occurred that it was impossible to see whether a twister was striking. He added, however, with Hydrated Vegetable Oil Ground Beef with H.V.P. .69¢

The airplane were thrown around. It appears almost certain that a small twister hit the area.

Two other gliders and 10 planes anchored at the airstrip southeast of Oviedo were unharmed, Lindsey said.

Meanwhile electrical power was out for 1,500 to 2,000 customers of Florida Power and Light Co. (FPL) for a period of time late Wednesday afternoon as a result of the storm that dumped more than an inch of rain on Sanford and the immediate environs.

A FPL and L spokesman said that lightning struck transformers in isolated pockets and primary lines were down off Lake Mary Boulevard and going into the Grove View subdivision.

The spokesman said power went off at about 4 p.m., but was restored to 75 per cent of the customers affected within an hour, restored to all but 31 customers by 5:30 p.m. and the situation was cleared up by 7:30 p.m.

County School Board Weighs Employe Insurance Proposals

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Coffee-drinking school board members united Wednesday night in an attempt to save the school system $500.

The low bid for the approximately 750 pounds of coffee school personnel will consume during the next school year is $2.00 a pound — and board members thought that was too much.

The Evening Herald's marketbasket survey found coffee prices averaged $1.89 in a check of Seminole supermarkets earlier this month.

Even though Charlotte Whitmore, head of the food services division, said she expected to charge enough for coffee to make up for its cost, board members wanted to find a way to buy it for less.

"I'd almost be willing to establish some sort of petty cash fund so that we could buy it at the supermarket rather than pay that price," said Allan F. Keeth, a 10-year-veteran of the board.

Board member Pat Tolson said she knows the price of coffee and asked if it wouldn't be feasible to negotiate with some of the supermarkets individually or with the chain stores in an effort to purchase it at a lower price.

Ms. Whitmore agreed that the bid price was inflated, but pointed out that she had no cash reserve from which to purchase coffee off the supermarket shelves.

So Keeth suggested establishing a petty cash fund.

Ms. Whitmore was directed to look into the possibility of purchasing the coffee directly from supermarkets or chain store outlets in an effort to save money — perhaps as much as $500, based on an average of 50 to 70 cents per pound off the $2.00 bid.

Two Indicted By Grand Jury

The Seminole County Grand Jury returned two indictments — one for first-degree murder — in a short session Wednesday.

The defendant in the murder case was already in custody but Circuit Court Judge Kenneth Leffler noted that the person named in the second indictment had not been arrested and ordered the indictment sealed from public view "until he is in custody."

The charge made in the indictment against the unidentified man also hasn't been revealed.

Lee Jerry, 74-year-old Marker Street apartment house owner, was indicted for first-degree murder in the July 3 shooting death of a tenant, Fred Douglas Hendricks, 42.

Witnesses told sheriff's detectives that the shooting followed what was described as a quarrel between the victim and his landlord over the damage kept on in the dead man's apartment.

Jerry was arrested the night of the slaying and remains in county jail without bond.

According to sheriff's reports, another tenant, Bessie Lee Jackson, was in Hendricks' room shortly before 3 a.m. when Jerry came to the door and complained about the lights being on.

Deputies said Jackson told them that the two men argued loudly and Jerry left, returning minutes later, kicking open Hendricks' bedroom door and firing a shot from a pistol.

Blackburn Hearing Is Delayed

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

Circuit Court Judge Volie Williams today continued an appeal bond revocation hearing for former central Florida gambler czar Harlan "Colonel" Blackburn until Aug. 25.

Judge Williams said, "We need a full-blown hearing on this" and scheduled two hours for the August hearing.

State Atty. Abbott Herring's office claims Blackburn, free on a $10,000 appeal bond while defense attorneys try to get the U.S. Supreme Court to review his conviction and sentence in connection with a 1971 assassination attempt on gambler Clyde Lee, violated "the spirit of the bond" by being arrested in Orlando recently on charges of possession and delivery of nearly 40 pounds of marijuana.

Williams said last year two attorneys can be hired for about $55,000, so a county legal department has the potential of saving $131,844.

IN BRIEF Bus Kidnap Suspect Arrested In California

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — James Schoenfeld, sought in the kidnaping of 26 Chowchilla school children and their bus driver, was arrested today by Menlo Park, Calif., police.

His brother already was in custody in the case.

An early report said an Idaho-licensed van driven by Schoenfeld was chased north through Mountain View shortly after dawn on north-south U.S. 101, a major freeway, and caught by Menlo Park police. The site was about 25 miles south of San Francisco.

The FBI had said earlier today that it was searching for James Schoenfeld in the Menlo Park area after he was spotted there Wednesday night.

Court Blocks Gas Price Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals is blocking a $1.5-billion a year increase in natural gas price ceilings while opponents seek to cancel the new ceilings.

The court issued an order Wednesday to temporarily stop the higher rate ceilings approved on Tuesday by the Federal Power Commission. Opponents said the new rate ceilings are so close to rates charged for unregulated interstate gas that they amount to an FPC attempt to abandon its legal responsibility to regulate interstate prices.

A coalition of 16 petitioners challenged the FPC rate ceilings Wednesday, asking the appellate court to prevent collection of higher rates until the court hears the case. The order granting a delay did not say if the appeals court would accept the case for review.

Viking Analyzes Martian Soil

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The first sampling of Martian soil is in the Viking lander, nourished by light, water vapor and "chicken soup" as scientists search for life on the Red Planet.

When the robot lander's arm dug the sample and deposited it in three chambers Wednesday, it represented the first time that earthlings began to analyze substances on another planet for life.

The experiments will take weeks, and answers are not expected soon. But scientists displayed immediate joy that the project was underway.

Sanford police early today jailed a Lake Mary man who was arrested inside a burglarized auto body shop in downtown Sanford.

Patrolman Jack Fulenwider and Lt. Doug Bishop reported that John Daniel Smith Jr., 21, of 297 Third St., Lake Mary, was found inside the Empire Body Shop at 118 S. Myrtle Ave. after police received a midnight call from a citizen reporting he had seen a man go through a window.

Smith was held in County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bond on a burglary charge. Officers said he had been a man go through a window.

Blackburn Hearing Delayed

Defense attorney Edward Kirkland argued today in a brief appearance before Judge Williams that the state hasn't alleged in their motion to revoke Blackburn's appeal bond any of the grounds for such action as set out by state law.

Assault Charge

Kirkland claimed that Orange County Sheriff's reports concerning Blackburn's arrest earlier this month along with two women at an Orlando motel parking lot "contain lots of fabrications." He said there was never any possession and delivery of marijuana" by Blackburn.

taxpayers in the neighborhood of $130,000 a year. And that is difficult to ignore.

Freeman accords at the concept that the job can be done for less. He says government agencies "never perform" as effectively as private industry. And a legal staff would become an expense, another government agency. Hattaway said Tuesday citizens may be "surprised" to learn what surrounding governments pay for legal services. The chairman said he and Neuwander plan to make comparison studies as part of Hattaway's probe.

Logically, according to Kimbrough

"Logically," according to Kimbrough, "you've got to go to county legal department — you have to create your own department." Both Williams and Kimbrough say the cutoff point for paying a county attorney is $70,000. After that, they claim it's cheaper to hire a full-time professional staff.

But attempts to do just that failed last year. Failed because Democrats on the county commission refused to back the Republican job cut to Freeman.

Now, however, Kimbrough says a believes Democrats will have to do something. "It's sure to become a campaign issue," he says.

The question is: What will the Democrats do? Certainly they can't come along a year later and suggest exactly what Republicans have already asked for — a county legal department.

Probably it will be a more middle-of-the-road approach. Most likely Hattaway will suggest a change in the method of fee payment. Freeman presently earns $28 an hour for the first 100 hours of work. Any hours above that, the rate is upped to $35. All related litigation is tabulated at $45 per hour. About $23,000 has been requested next year to cover costs of litigation which came out of the jail fire.

Whether the job is taken entirely out of the political arena will depend, probably, on just how big a campaign issue the matter becomes.

Republicans, for sure, will capitalize on the issue. And Hattaway must respond to the heat. He made that painfully evident at yesterday's budget session.

For re-election, the chairman has promised to hold land taxes at last year's level. It may be difficult for him to do that and the department and fees paid an appointed county attorney.

Communist Bloc Now More Divided

Ever since Josef Stalin rose to eminence in the Communist world, the heritage of Marx and Lenin has been personified in forceful individuals — "dictators" in terms of ideology, party discipline and political power.

An era may be passing. It is hard to identify an omnipotent leader, an acknowledged prophet, at the top of the Communist pyramid today.

China's Mao Tse-tung, who made Peking a rival of Moscow as a form of Marxist-Leninist wisdom in the post-Stalin era, no longer appears in public. Even the ceremonial visit to Mao by foreign dignitaries visiting Peking have not been dropped. Age and disease have made Mao no more than a fixture in the Chinese government.

With the death of his old partner Chou En-lai last year, rankings in the Peking hierarchy have been a guessing game — some stars ascending, some descending, none in a fixed, commanding position. Maoism as an ideology is becoming detached from a real person. The thoughts of Mao are becoming only that — thoughts, not expressions of policy from a source of power.

There is even a pull over the supremacy of the Soviet Communist Party. Its feud with the Chinese is unresolved. When Brezhnev attended the recent party of European Communist leaders in East Berlin he was not the commanding figure that a Soviet party chairman would have been at such a meeting, say, a decade ago. He was in the position of letting Marshal Tito and leaders of other national parties declare that if their own fortunes demand an approach to socialism different from Moscow's, so be it.

Certainly no one can regret that men as ruthless as Stalin and Mao are not wielding power over the Communist world. Yet an international Communist movement without clear and powerful leadership is hardly commensurate to contemplate. This portends power struggles, foreign adventures and unpredictable changes of policy among the would-be Stalins and Maos whose ambitions now are germinating. The Marxist-Leninist revolutionary ideology remains a potent force in much of the world. Any struggle among those seeking to become its supreme prophet could be a bloody one.

Lesson In Thrift

Those many Yankees from Maine and Rhode Island demonstrated their New England frugality at the Democratic National Convention.

Forewarned of outrageous prices in New York City, the Maine delegation pocketed the money required for air fare and arrived in the metropolis by chartered bus. Rhode Island's Gov. Philip Noel urged members of his state's contingent to take advantages of parties hosted by candidates, labor organizations and the city itself.

"Accept all the invitations," he advised simply. "One thrifty member estimated the average cost of the convention to be associates at 'about $100' as compared to prevention forecasts of $1,000.

This startling claim was made in court testimony, which has been sealed. Company executives acknowledged behind closed doors that they had confiscated the long-distance records of a former employee.

"They were our records, and I wanted to see them," testified Chester Todd, the corporate official who sent for the records. The sealed testimony made clear that AT&T felt it also had proprietary rights to anyone else's telephone records. The company treated its erstwhile employee, according to the testimony, "like just any other customer."

This would seem to fly in the face of AT&T's proclaimed regulations, which specify that private phone records can be obtained only by court subpoena. Then the customer is supposed to be notified.

What AT&T proclaims in public and what it does in secret, however, don't necessarily coincide. This is apparent from the case of James Ashley, who was fired from his job as an assistant vice president for Southwestern Bell. After his abrupt departure, his telephone calls were inspected without subpoena and without notice.

AT&T, of course, pulls the corporate strings, which operate the vast Bell system. Ashley claimed he was fired by Bell for refusing to participate in its political corruption. He swore that he had been compelled to donate $50 per month to an illegal political slush fund.

Bell executives were also required, he said, to make other regular cash contributions to the slush fund. Afterward, the executives recovered the money by submitting false vouchers, he charged.

Around

The Clock

By BILL CURRIE

There ought to be some genuine fireworks in the city of Sanford sometime this afternoon or early evening — or maybe they will be put off until tomorrow.

And they won't be fireworks that require a long fuse to set them off, either.

The explosion should come at the bargaining table when members of the Seminole County School Board negotiating table clash with representatives of the Seminole Education Association (SEA) over many key articles that are a part and parcel of a contract between the two factions.

The salary issue was to be one of the primary topics of discussion at Tuesday's negotiating session, but the two factions never got around to it because most of the day was spent in trying to resolve two other issues — one dealing with an SEA request for bi-monthly pay and the other concerned cost-of-living increases for the teachers.

The salary debate will be centered around an SEA proposal for a $2,000 hike in the base starting salary, which would boost that figure from $8,100 to $10,100.

While the school board's chief negotiator, Ernie Cowley, says there is no way a cost-of-living increase could be incorporated into the contract, Steve Rosenthal, who heads up the SEA's negotiating team, says, "Okay, give us the $11,000 and we'll forgo the cost-of-living request."

Cowley countered with the idea that if the SEA is given the cost-of-living increase to be commensurate with the U.S. Department of Labor's Consumer Price Index, then it also ought to be able to give back some of the monies if the cost of living index goes down.

This didn't set too well with Rosenthal and his group and the entire matter was tabled until this afternoon's session when it's sure to get plenty of attention again.

And, if the salary topic does come up (discussion of it might get pushed back due to another marathon go-round on the cost-of-living issue), then you can look for the explosion.

The school board has already tentatively adopted a budget in excess of $52 million, and it's based entirely on the starting salary of $8,100. School officials say there isn't any money available for salary increases, but SEA representatives believe otherwise — and say they're ready to prove it.

Gene Grooms, executive secretary of the SEA, says he'll pinpoint exactly when the school board has money "pocketed" away that could well be used for pay raises, and then some.

There are approximately 1,500 teachers in the Seminole County school system. Grooms says it would take only $25,000 to give every one of those teachers a $100 salary boost and he says he can prove that the school board has that much — and much more — hidden away in its coffers.

Grooms isn't saying exactly where that money is tucked away in school board funds, but I'll bet we find out either today or at the next bargaining session.

By the way, these sessions are not closed to the public and anyone can sit in on them. So, if you want to see some fireworks that might make the Fourth of July celebration look like a slow-burning match you might take in these meetings.

Today's was scheduled to be held at First Federal of Seminole in Downtown Sanford from 1-4 p.m.

Credit Worries Unfounded

Installation buying has become such an accepted way of economic life for Americans that many may find it difficult to believe the extent of the controversy that raged over the question in the early days of the automobile industry, especially in the area of automobile financing.

The story is told in a recent book, "Full Faith and Credit," by William L. Wilson, a corporate biographer of C.I.T. Financial Corp., one of the nation's leading financial services organizations.

Installation buying was not a new idea when C.I.T. and its competitors began promoting the time-purchase of private motor cars after World War I. C.I.T. had been founded by Henry Huttleston in 1908 and people had long been accustomed to paying for such things as encyclopedias, furniture and vacuum cleaners on the installment plan.

But when it came to automobiles, the idea aroused strenuous opposition from a host of adversaries, Wilson notes — from economists, editorial writers, consumer spokesmen and, surprisingly, from the majority of auto manufacturers themselves.

"Before I permit one of my automobiles to be sold on installment credit, I will see this company in receivership," vowed Charles W. Nash, founder of Nash Motors.

"It has become a national industry," Henry Ford complained in 1926. "That is bad business for the dealer and bad business for the creditor also." His company, he said, would stick to its strictly cash policy. Only two years later, however, Ford established its own automobile financing subsidiary.

Some car makers foresaw a tidal wave of defaults in "every Tom, Dick and Harry" allowed to buy a car, which would dump enormous numbers of distressed vehicles on the market to be resold in competition with new cars. Other businessmen feared that with so much consumer income committed to paying for cars, people would be unable to purchase other products. Still others condemned the practice from a moral standpoint.

"Installation buying or urging the poor into debt is the vilest system yet devised to create trouble, discontent and unhappiness among the poor," said one corporation president.

"When deferred payment schemes encourage extravagance and excessive profligacy of future income for immediate satisfactions that are neither necessary nor important to proper living, they are a social as well as an economic danger," said another critic.

Despite such outcries, installment buying found growing acceptance and popularity among the public throughout the 1920s.

Ma Bell Snoops On Customers

WASHINGTON — American Telephone and Telegraph, the telephone colossus, has asserted the right to snoop into the personal records of its customers.

This startling claim was made in court testimony, which has been sealed. Company executives acknowledged behind closed doors that they had confiscated the long-distance records of a former employee.

Letter To The Editor

Heads' Efforts Praised

This is about two people who helped bring culture and drama to the city of Sanford. Their names: Foreman and Anna Lea. He started about three years ago when Foreman and Anna Lea, both graduates of LaGrange College and both two year veterans of Summer Stock at Calloway Gardens, came to the Youth of The First United Methodist Church and formed a group known as the Fellowship Players. Their first performance "Once Upon A Christmas" was a huge success. Then, thanks to the efforts of Foreman and Anna Lea, The Fellowship Players drew the attention of more people in the community.

Then, parents began to ask, "Who are these people known as Foreman and Anna Lea? Are they really as good as you say they are?" The parents found out for themselves after the play, "Take This Cup." People were heard to say that the play was so good and so touching, that tears formed in their eyes. Now, not only were the youth of the First Methodist Church involved, but people from all over the community were getting involved with The Fellowship Players.

Not only are the Heads good at directing religious plays, but they are also good at directing comedy such as the excellent performance of "Charley's Aunt" or drama such as "The Indiscreet Waitress," "The Miracle Worker." Then, along came the musicals and "No, No, A Million Times No" was found to be a huge success.

The result of this has been — organized by Henry Ford II, Edgar Brothman of Segram Ltd. Co., and Atlanta businessman J. Paul Austin, chairman of the board of Coca-Cola — was, surprisingly, a huge success.

Referring to himself as "a friend of business," Carter regaled the "captains of industry" with an assault on those who have unfairly been attacking Big Business.

"I think it's a very serious mistake when the President, or other leaders of our country, through incorrect knowledge or misapprehension, or because of political expediency, permit the turning of our people's opinion against the business community, of multinational corporations, or oil companies, just as a scapegoat," the Democratic presidential nominee observed.

He promised that as President he would do "everything I can" to keep the American people acquainted with the facts.

Warming to his subject, Carter made it clear that in doing right by the human race his devotion to a "complete overhaul" of our disgraceful tax system did not mean his reforms would be, well, completely complete. Declaring that foreign investment is "very healthy," he vowed to retain the foreign tax credit which allows the multinationals to reduce their U.S. taxes dollar for dollar by the amount of taxes they pay abroad.

"I would continue and strengthen, if possible, American involvement in foreign countries and vice versa," Carter promised, adding, "I would not do anything to subvert or minimize this."

The Carrie Nation of American tax justice, who had previously eschewed the go-slow approach to loophole closing, continued: "I would not make any substantive change in our tax law, or propose any as President, until at least a full year of very careful analysis."

Needless to say, the Carter performance was both, David Mahoney, a Republican contributor who heads Norton Simon Inc. and who supported Richard Nixon in 1972, said: "You have to be impressed." Mahoney said he would not be uncomfortable with Democrat Carter in the White House.

Others were not so amazed, however. One businessman said: "It was a peculiar speech. All he did was ask for our support and offer love."

Thomas Carroll, chairman of Lever Brothers, thought he knew soft-soap when he saw I. Carroll, who hasn't cast his ballot for a Democrat since FDR, said: "I thought this was a velvet performance of an iron-cast man. I learned more about the man than I did about the issues."

Carter Fuzzy On Taxes

WASHINGTON — All of us are, by now, thoroughly familiar with Jimmy Carter, born again Christian. But last week, we got a look at another reincarnation: Jimmy Carter, born again tax reformer.

Throughout his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination, there was no subject about which Carter breathed more fire than tax reform.

In January, he declared his support for removal of tax incentives "that encourage American multinational corporations to manufacture products in foreign countries when their own employees in this country are out of work."

In his statement before the Democratic Platform Committee in June, Carter's rhetoric heated up.

Attacking "carefully contrived loopholes," he extolled "some of our largest corporations with extremely high profits" who pay "virtually no tax at all."

Particularly irksome to Carter was the fact that a business executive can charge off a $50 lunch but a truck driver cannot deduct a $1.50 sandwich. In this is the case, he declared, what is needed is not a piecemeal approach but "basic tax reform."

Then, just a few weeks ago at the Democratic convention in New York City, in his acceptance speech, Carter let it all hang out. Denouncing an unnamed "political and economic elite," he brought down the house with a clarion call for a "complete overhaul" of our tax system which he labeled "a disgrace to the human race."

Well, now Jimmy Carter returned to the Big Apple last week where he spoke to 52 of the country's top business executives at a luncheon held in his honor in the third floor private dining room of the posh "21" Club.

The result of this get together — organized by Henry Ford II, Edgar Brothman of Segram Ltd. Co., and Atlanta businessman J. Paul Austin, chairman of the board of Coca-Cola — was, surprisingly, a huge success.

Referring to himself as "a friend of business," Carter regaled the "captains of industry" with an assault on those who have unfairly been attacking Big Business.

"I think it's a very serious mistake when the President, or other leaders of our country, through incorrect knowledge or misapprehension, or because of political expediency, permit the turning of our people's opinion against the business community, of multinational corporations, or oil companies, just as a scapegoat," the Democratic presidential nominee observed.

WORLD IN BRIEF

China Reports 'Great Losses' In Wake Of Earthquakes

TOKYO (AP) — The Chinese Communist party today admitted "great losses" of life and property from the major earthquakes in a heavily populated industrial area of northeast China east and southeast of Peking. But no casualty figures or damage estimates were given.

Aftershocks were reported continuing. Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency, reported "extremely serious damage and losses" in Tangshan, an industrial city of more than a million people 80 miles east-southeast of Peking and 40 miles northeast of Tientsin.

Hsinhua said the first quake was centered in the Tangshan-engan area and "comparatively strong shocks" were felt in Peking and Tientsin, China's third largest city with a population of 4.3 million.

"Since the quake was not predicted in advance, it is believed that many of the residents of Tangshan did not have time to escape," the Peking office of Kyodo, the Japanese news agency, reported.

Amin Calm After Ties Break

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — President Idi Amin appeared to be taking a relaxed attitude today toward Britain's break in diplomatic relations with Uganda. But one of his aides told a Nairobi newspaper that Britons retaining in Uganda "will become Ugandan citizens."

In a broadcast on Radio Uganda, Amin said he was studying the implications of Britain's move, announced in London Wednesday.

"British nationals who have chosen to stay in Uganda should follow the situation in its present perspective and not listen to the imperialist mass media," he said.

Evacuees Arrive In Athens

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The U.S. Navy transport Coronado brought 155 Americans and about 145 evacuees of other nationalities from war-torn Lebanon to Athens today after a smooth 46-hour journey.

The 10,000-ton amphibious transport was greeted at the U.S.-Greek military terminal at Keratiri, outside the Greek capital, by friends and relatives of the evacuees and officials of the U.S. Embassy.

Among the Americans were 25 officials from the U.S. Embassy in Beirut.

Proceeds from the affair will go to the Jaycees' general fund, which helps finance various charitable projects in the area.

Advance tickets, priced at $3 for adults and $1 for children 6 through 12, are available at Pizza Hut, Touchdown's Rexall Drug Co., Harold's Barber Shop and HHS Store for Men in Sanford. Tickets purchased at the door will cost $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for children 6 to 12. Children under 6 will be admitted free.

Headline artists include "Country Violinist" Archie Freeman, producer and promoter of the show; female vocalist Linda Osteen; 12-year-old singer Missy Freeman; and comedian Butch Williams, who bills himself as Sick Thigpen, the funniest man in country productions.

Raceway Not Dead, Despite Court Action

CASELBERY — City procedures to permit the construction of a mini-raceway on a 2.5 acre tract south of SH 436, between a new car dealership and an apartment complex, are continuing despite a new court action filed by the owners of the apartments, Monumental Properties.

Officials in the city's planning department said today, the planning board reviewed the site review plan for the mini-raceway being developed by businessman Thomas Radloff, and the city council has scheduled a workshop for 7:30 p.m. Monday on the matter.

Meanwhile, Monumental Properties has filed an action in the Seminole County Circuit Court against the city claiming it acted improperly when its board of adjustment held a third hearing in recent weeks and granted a special exception to permit the construction.

In a hearing before Circuit Court Judge Dominick Salfi this week, no decision was given on Radloff's petition to enter the suit on the city's behalf.

Radloff said if Monumental Properties are successful in having the board of adjustment action thrown out he will use the $300,000 invested in the project to date.

Monumental Properties had claimed that the proposed mini-raceway had caused it to lose tenants from its apartment complex. However, during the most recent hearing in Caselberry, Radloff's attorney, William Wack of Altamonte Springs, produced affidavits from tenants who had moved which gave other reasons for leaving.

Children Seem To Adapt Better Than Parents

Forced Busing Sparks Disputes In U.S.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — It's dark as 12-year-old Mark jumps toward his neighborhood school. There, he will join about 30 other youngsters on a yellow school bus which will take them across town.

Mark is white. His new school is in a predominantly black neighborhood.

About the same time, Babbette Norfleet, 12, leaves her home in a housing project on the other side of Louisville. Shortly, she will board a bus for a 25-minute ride through the rolling Kentucky countryside to suburban Middletown.

Babbette is black; Middletown is not.

Mark and Babbette are among 22,000 students, half of them black, who participated this past school year in the massive and often wrenching social experiment called forced busing. There were 119,000 students enrolled in the school district.

Their movements were dictated by the federal courts, which found Louisville's school system to be unconstitutionally discriminatory.

Busing is one of the most emotional and controversial subjects in the nation today. It turns law-abiding parents on a yellow school bus which will take them across town.

Their movements were dictated by the federal courts, which found Louisville's school system to be unconstitutionally discriminatory.

Just kids. Adults are a different matter. One white Middletown student, 8-year-old Kendra Bryant, wrote a letter to the Louisville Courier-Journal, saying, "I think busing is good because I've gotten to meet two new friends I would not have met before."

The Bryants received a flood of abusive telephone calls and hate letters as a result of Kendra's letter.

Gwen Bryant, Kendra's mother, said one of the letters was signed by the Ku Klux Klan and another by the National White People's Party. At least one of the callers identified himself as a member of the KKK.

Kendra, unconcerned about the names she was called in the hate mail, said, "You should have seen the writing on those letters. They write worse than I do."

Interviews with other children on Louisville's buses brought much the same reaction. For most kids, busing is no big deal. There are no traumas, no nightmares, no instant geniuses, no unexplained Parents should give busing a chance to see if it works. If it's bad, they can do something about it. But if it's going on, they should leave it alone.

Dr. Kenneth B. Clark, a psychologist and professor emeritus at New York City College, says parents who violently demonstrate against busing, "inflicting their children with their own racial bias ... are examples that tell the detriment of segregated schools."

Charlotte, N.C., began its fifth year of court-ordered busing last September with only one picket.

Walter DeVries of Duke University said a recent poll showed 2 per cent of 563 North Carolinians thought busing was still a serious issue.

"Nobody wants to go back to the way things were," DeVries said.

Mrs. Trowel, a black, said the parents "have leaned over backward" to make the new students and their parents feel welcome.

School officials also believe the chronic truancy of the past year maybe eased next year, too.

In the past school year, about one-third of the 300 white students scheduled to be bused into King were truant. "They just never showed," said Principal William Horan.

School officials say about 4,000 children were transferred from the public school rolls to parochial or private schools at the beginning of the 1977-78 school year, and an additional 2,000 are truant. Most of these students are attributed to the antibusing feeling among parents.

Dr. Marie Doyle, the system's director of public information, says she thinks that, "It's really unfair to ask if these programs are working. Overall, we could say within our own gut feeling that we've seen change but we can't really point out statistics and say this is so."

"We just know that the people we've worked with aren't out there throwing rocks."

Clubbers Give Tips On Buying Plants

Central Circle of Sanford Garden Club gives clues and cues on how to select a plant for purchase.

Ever bought a rubber tree, philodendron, ivy or any houseplant and showered it with lots of care only to have it die a few weeks later? It was probably because it was dying when you bought it — even though it looked pretty and superficially healthy. Next time you choose a plant, make these "health checks" before you buy.

First, look for two basic signs of good health — foliage that has a good green color and a firm, stiff stem. Are there new sprouts or new stems?

Next, check the stems and the underside of leaves for insects. Mealy bugs appear as cottony masses near the stem, and spider mites leave a webbing between leaves and the stem. If present, aphids, in a variety of colors will be visible. Since not all insects are visible to the naked eye, look for signs that even the tiniest leave on plants. If leaves have a light, dotted look, insects are probably sucking the juices out of them. Watch out for leaves that are curled, deformed or full of Finally, inspect the leaves. If they are turning black around the edges or have a gray look, chances are the plant is diseased.

Daylilies have been known for centuries, and for centuries they remained unchanged. But now, just within the last few decades, the hybridists have taken over and given them a new lease on life. They have become so popular that they even have their own fan club dedicated to their praise and advancement.

The prime difference between the new and the old Daylily is color. The old ones were so universally pure yellow that they were better known as lemon lilies. The new ones appear in an ever-widening variety of different and attractive shades both singly and of bi-colors. And the plant is as tough as ever, too.

As always, the Daylily grows almost anywhere, in rich soil or semi-shaded. And it keeps on growing in ever larger clumps, undisturbed by disease or insect pests. It is one of the very few flowering plants which has no serious fungus or insect especially attributed to it.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is married, has four children and was separated from her husband when she went to live with a divorced man (I'll call him John). She lived with him for 14 months, then he was killed.

After John died, my daughter claimed that she was his widow, and now she is receiving his Social Security, which amounts to a lot of money.

I am worried sick about this. Doesn't the Social Security Office check these claims? And if they do, and it becomes known that she was never married to John, what can they do to her?

NO NAME OR TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: The Social Security Office requires the birth certificates of all the children if the woman is claiming benefits for them, plus a marriage certificate to prove that she is indeed married to the man. Your daughter must have forged these documents.

If the S.S. office discovers a possible fraud, they turn it over to the District Attorney's office.

Hittell-Warren Wedding

Couple Exchanges Vows

Willie Mae Warren of Longwood and Thomas E. Hittell of Lake Monroe were married July 29 at the Central Baptist Church. Rev. Dave Baldwin was the officiating clergyman at the 2 p.m. candlelight and double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Bell of Morrison, Tenn. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hittell of Lake Monroe.

Mrs. Shirley Grieme, organist, played nuptial selections. Miss Carol Dowdy was the soloist.

Given in marriage by Winfield Crebs of Lake Monroe, the bride wore a floral print gown with a green chiffon overlay. Her headpiece was green tulle trimmed with matching floral print. She carried a nosegay of pink roses and baby's breath.

Ann Crebs of Lake Monroe attended the bride as maid of honor. She wore a blue dress and lace jacket ensemble and carried a nosegay of pink carnation and baby's breath. Claude W. Hittell served his son as best man. Usbers were Randy Warren, son of the bride and Richard Hittell, brother of the bridegroom.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church fellowship hall. Patty Warren, daughter of the bride, registered the guests in the guest book.

Following a wedding trip to the Florida East Coast, the couple will make their home at 125 Howard Drive, Longwood. The bride is an employee of Stromberg-Carlson and the bridegroom is employed by Yankelie Shell Station, 14 and SR-46.

Government Fraud Serious Risk

DEAR ABBY: When I was 19, I married a man who was 27, and we were so much in love we never thought of anything but our problems. We have been married two years, and I am miserable.

He is a professional man, and I never got past the ninth grade. He is always correcting my English and has even suggested I go back to school and graduate. There is no shame in not knowing — only in refusing to learn.

DEAR ABBY: I am going to give my girlfriend a diamond soon, but here's the problem: Her father is in the jewelry business, and I don't know whether I should buy the ring from him or not. I'm afraid if I go to him, he might think I'm expecting a better price which I assure you I am not.

If I buy the ring from a competitor, I'm afraid my girl will be hurt.

DEAR ABBY: I am going to buy a diamond for my future father-in-law. If he offers you a special price (and he probably will), don't be a school — accept it.

She's Rainbow Girls 'Grand Patriotism'

Patti Meyers Appointed To State Post

By DORIS DIETRICH Herald Correspondent

Patti Meyers was a surprised guest of honor at the regular meeting of the Sanford Assembly No. 25, Order of the Rainbow for Girls Monday night at the Masonic Lodge. Following the meeting Patti's sister rainbow girls, all bearing gifts, entertained her at a social hour.

Patti, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert (Camilla) Meyers, was appointed Grand Patriotism of the Grand Executive Committee. The local assembly nominated Patti for the coveted honor.

Wearing her personal honorary cross and a Grand Officer's pin which she will relinquish when her term of office expires, Patti said, "I have been traveling the state during July and will be traveling another week in August to the different Rainbow Districts. This great honor gives me a chance to represent my assembly throughout the state and learn more about patriotism."

Patti has come up through the ranks. A Rainbow Girl since she was 13 years-of-age, she has served as a line officer on through to Worthy Advisor. An Auto-Train Corp terminal hostess, Patti continues to serve the local assembly as recorder in addition to her state appointment.

During the meeting and social hour Patti was presented with a check for traveling expenses by Sharlee Johnson, Worthy Advisor of the Sanford assembly, and daughter of Judge and Mrs. Harold (Tommye) Johnson.

Patti is thrilled with her role as Grand Patriotism and especially good to fill this capacity during the bicentennial year.

Rainbow Girls Mother Advisor Mrs. Jesse (Ruby) Carter said, "We are so excited that our Patti received the appointment. I have 35 Rainbow Girls and they are all just beautiful, through and through. My own grown daughters would not take anything in the world for their wonderful Rainbow training."

Opening Up Restaurant Helps Cookbook Writers

By CECILY BROWNSTONE The Herald Services If you want to write a cookbook and publish it yourself, opening a restaurant! Do the cooking. You'll have plenty of chance to develop recipes and find out what people really like. That's what Marge Mitchell and Joan Sedgwick did. Marge was an executive in a public-relations agency and Joan was a college history professor. Three years ago, in the middle of successful careers in New York, they pulled up stakes. They moved to Middlebury, Vt., and opened a restaurant there — the Bakery Lane Soup Bowl. Marge does the cooking, Joan is the cashier and manages the business end. Although both women were realistic about the undertaking, the work is even harder than they imagined it would be. Fortunately success has come fast. First because they use only high-quality ingredients and the food is prepared and served as it would be in their own home to discriminating guests. This is well-versed in recipe-writing; she had a degree in home economics; had done a stint at a Souffler's restaurant; had handled food accounts in an agency; and was an inveterate reader of the best-written cookbooks.

Next came the format of the book. Both women wanted it to be in good taste; to be printed on excellent paper in 'clear type; to have attractive and interesting layout and illustrations. They had chosen brown, white and gold for the interior of their restaurant and decided to carry out this color scheme in their cookbook. The illustrations were pulled from illustrations were culled from collections of early herbs and seed catalogs. Because book design is not their field they turned to an artist who lives near them and credit the beauty of the book to her. Important in bringing out the cookbook was the matter of financing and printing. Their bank credit was good and there was a cooperative printer nearby, so that settled that. The Bakery Lane Soup Bowl Cookbook came out several months ago and it could not have more enticing recipes or be handsomer. When I talked to Marge on the phone, I said I thought a large publishing house would have been happy to publish it and asked why they had done so themselves. Her answer was, "We didn't want the hassle of finding a suitable publisher. Besides, we'll have any money it makes all to ourselves!"

So you want to write a cookbook? Marge Mitchell and Joan Sedgwick wrote and published a cookbook themselves.

Their cookbook is a success. It is selling at the rate of 150 copies a week (at $6.50 a copy mail order) and has just won a national award for graphic art.

Today's Brides Older

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's brides are slightly older than their counterparts five years ago, according to a survey of its readers by Bride's Magazine, which shows women are now marrying at an average age of 21.5 years compared with 20.5 in 1971.

They appear to be more traditional, with 81 per cent saying they used engraved wedding announcements and 61 per cent using the services of a wedding gift registry.

The general desire was for 12 five-piece place settings of fine china, silver and crystal as opposed to only eight settings of casual tableware previously. Brides also spent a third more on outfitting their first home — $4,808 average compared with $3,469. All expect to have stereo equipment and 80 per cent expect to have color television.

Of those responding to the survey, 86 per cent plan to work for four or five years after marriage. Five years ago the respondents expected to continue working for only three years.

Wild Horse Herds Putting Pressure On Rangelands

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A five-year-old federal law protecting wild horses has done its job too well, leaving government officials and horse lovers to try to figure out how to cope with a steadily growing herd of the animals.

The Bureau of Land Management, the federal agency responsible for enforcing the 1971 Wild Free-Roaming Horse and Burro Act, estimates that there are more than 60,000 wild horses across the nation with figure out how to cope with a steadily growing herd of the animals.

A New Mexico court ruled last year that the horse-protection law was unconstitutional and said states should have control over wild horses.

Mrs. Johnson and Rowland agree the adoption program is not limitless and eventually the saturation point will be reached where no more horses can be placed with individuals.

The only alternative, said Mrs. Johnson is destruction of the animals. "When the saturation point is reached and the time comes that some horses

Famed Hijacker Cooper Still Eluding Police

SEATTLE (AP) — It's almost too late to catch parachuting hijacker D.B. Cooper, assuming he's alive. Five years is the limit in which the anti-jacking law can be enforced.

Five years will be how long it's been since the hijacking when Nov. 24 rolls around. D.B. Cooper was the name given by a man who paid cash for a Northwest Airlines ticket to fly from Portland to Seattle.

Controversy Surrounds U.S. Program Seminole County Readies Swine Flu Shots

Each "Pedo-Jet" can administer some 1,200 inoculations per day. Meanwhile, a wire service story out of Washington Thursday reported that Dr. Anthony Morris, director of the Slow, Latent and Temperate Virus Branch of the Food and Drug Administration,

One of Morris' studies with the animals involved hypersensitivity to the influenza vaccine. One study showed that 54 per cent of those getting a flu shot in 1966 came down with severe cases of influenza during the next flu epidemic while only 25 per cent of those not taking the flu shot got the disease.

destroyed by the government. Dr. Vann Parker, a Sanford pediatrician and member of the local citizens committee, said today that while Morris' dire predictions of the effectiveness of the flu vaccine may be right "there is just as good evidence" that scientists who believe in the vaccine's effectiveness are right.

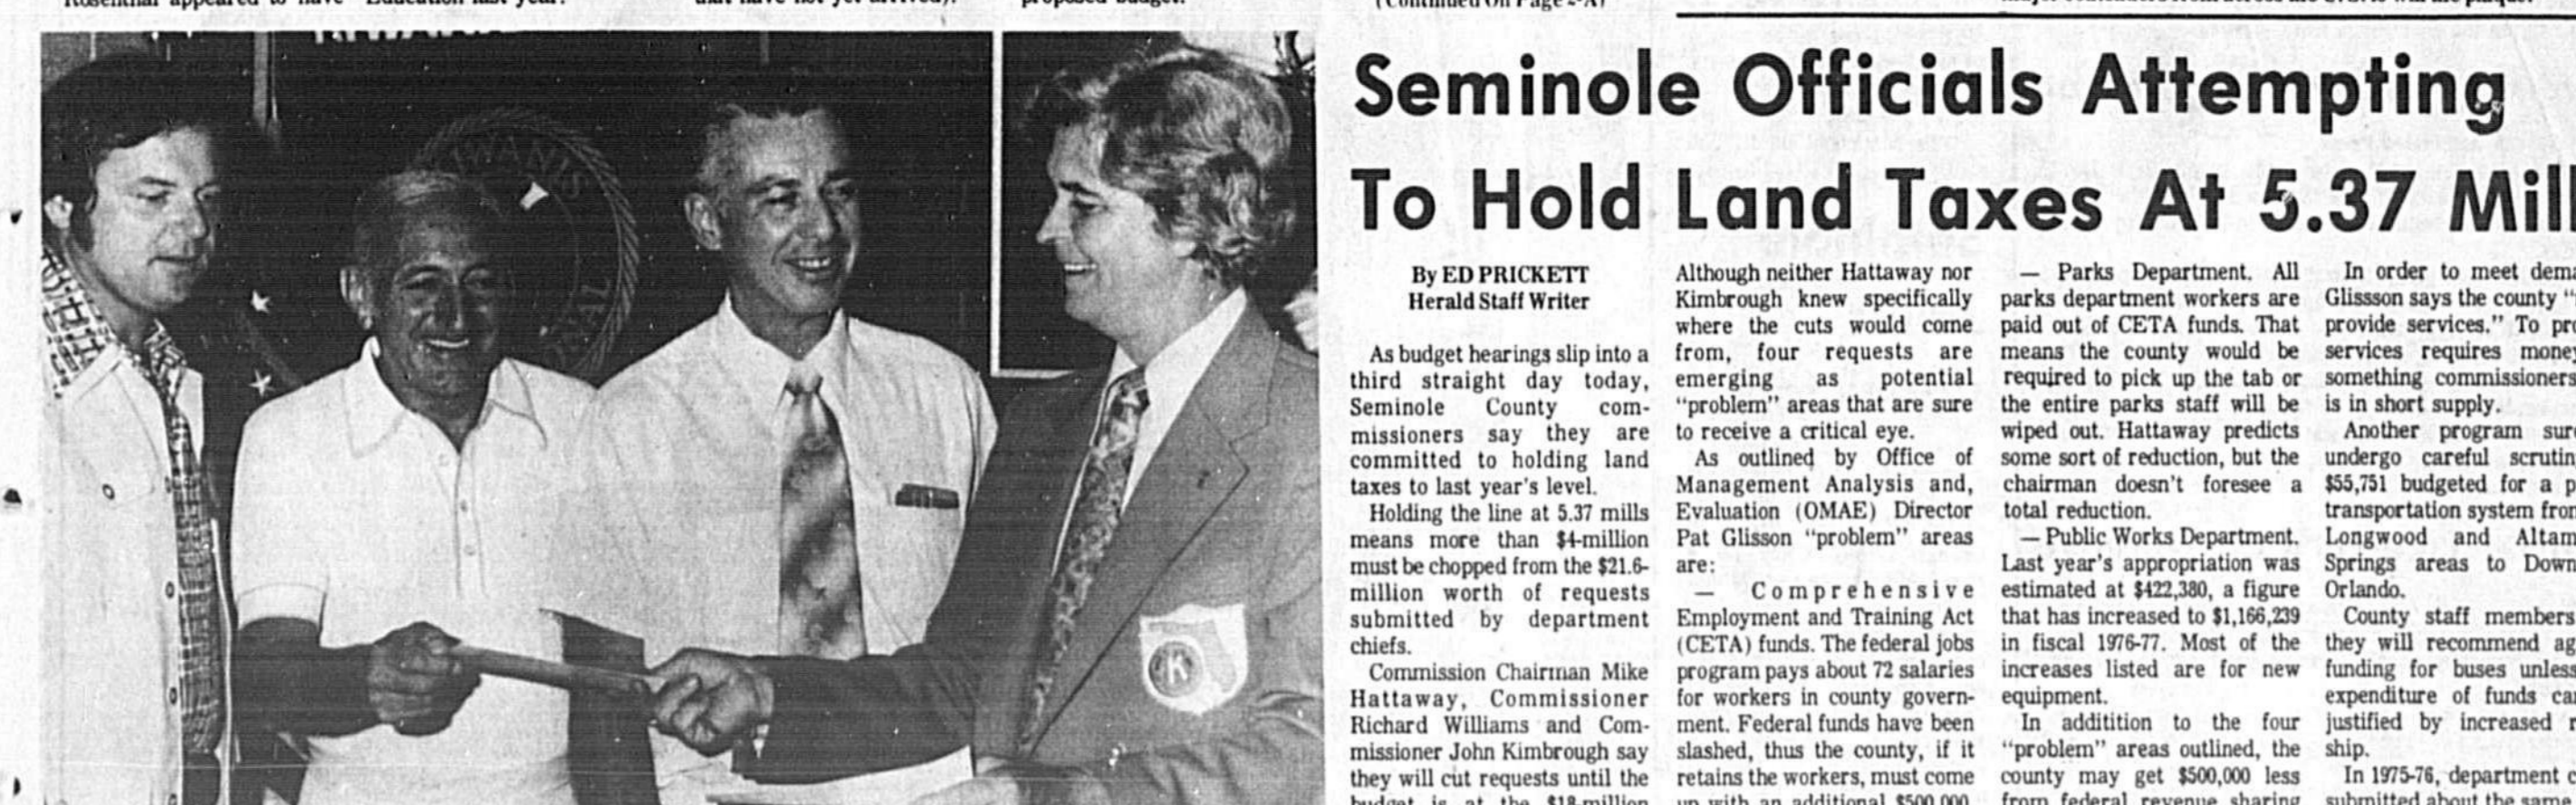

School Board, SEA Swap Proposals Teacher Salaries Issue Heats Up

By BILL CURRIE Herald Staff Writer. Although questions remain on the effectiveness of the swine flu vaccine, the Seminole County Health Department is gearing up to immunize some 14,000 local citizens this fall.

Dr. Orville Barks, director of the Seminole County Health Department, has announced the appointment of a citizens committee to coordinate the task force responsible for the massive program of immunization. Robert Daehn, Sanford city leader, has been named to head the committee.

Rosenthal agreed, saying "What happened to that carryover in the individual schools? When we ask for it, we're told by the principals that it's been taken back by the school administration. When we ask the administration for it, they tell us it's in the schools."

At this, Rosenthal pointed out that 60 per cent of the accepted portion of a school budget that should go to teacher's salaries, "yet Seminole County only spends 41 per cent of its total budget for teacher's salaries. Why?"

Seminole County Commissioner Chairman Mike Hattaway proudly holds an award from the National Association of Counties (NACCO). The award, which arrived here on Wednesday, is for recognition of Seminole County's reorganization which included adoption of modern management techniques. Seminole edged out major contenders from across the U.S. to win the plaque.
