Spurned lover turns killer

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. — A 70-year-old man infuriated by a woman who spurned him killed a man and slightly wounded two policemen Sunday, holding officers at bay more than three hours at a rooming house before surrendering, police said.

The injuries to the officers were not life-threatening, authorities said.

A fellow boarder said suspect William McFadden, 70, told him before the siege that he was angry at having spent his Christmas shopping money on a woman who later jilted him.

Quake relief planes crash

LENINAKAN, U.S.S.R. — Seven crewmen were killed when a Yugoslav plane carrying medical supplies for Armenian earthquake victims crashed Monday near the city of Yerevan, a day after a Soviet cargo jet on a similar mission went down with the loss of 78 lives.

The two plane crashes came as rescuers raced to reach people still trapped beneath tons of rubble six days after the earthquake devastated a wide area of Armenia, killing tens of thousands of people.

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said the Yugoslav airplane, a Soviet-built An-12 propjet, crashed at 2:23 a.m. Monday.

Bears clinch NFC Central

Chicago and Minnesota entered Sunday expected to beat up on weak sisters from their NFC Central. That would set up a showdown between the Bears and Vikings in the season finale for the division title and NFC's best record.

But something funny happened on the way to Week 16 — the Detroit Lions pushed the Bears to the limit, and the Green Bay Packers pushed the Vikings out of contention for the division title.

At Chicago, Kevin Butler kicked a 32-yard field goal with four remaining to lift the Bears to a 13-12 triumph over Detroit and hand Chicago its fifth straight NFC Central title.

Howell: 'No debate'

Sanford candidates plot different courses

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — James Sweeting III, the top vote-getter in the three-way race for District 1 city commissioner, challenged Lon Howell, his opponent in the Dec. 20 runoff, to two debates but Howell rejected the proposal today.

Sweeting also suggested a plan for development of the Lake Monroe waterfront.

Referring to the debate challenge, Howell said, "I received all my votes in the (Dec. 6) election by knocking on doors and that's what I am continuing to do," Howell said today.

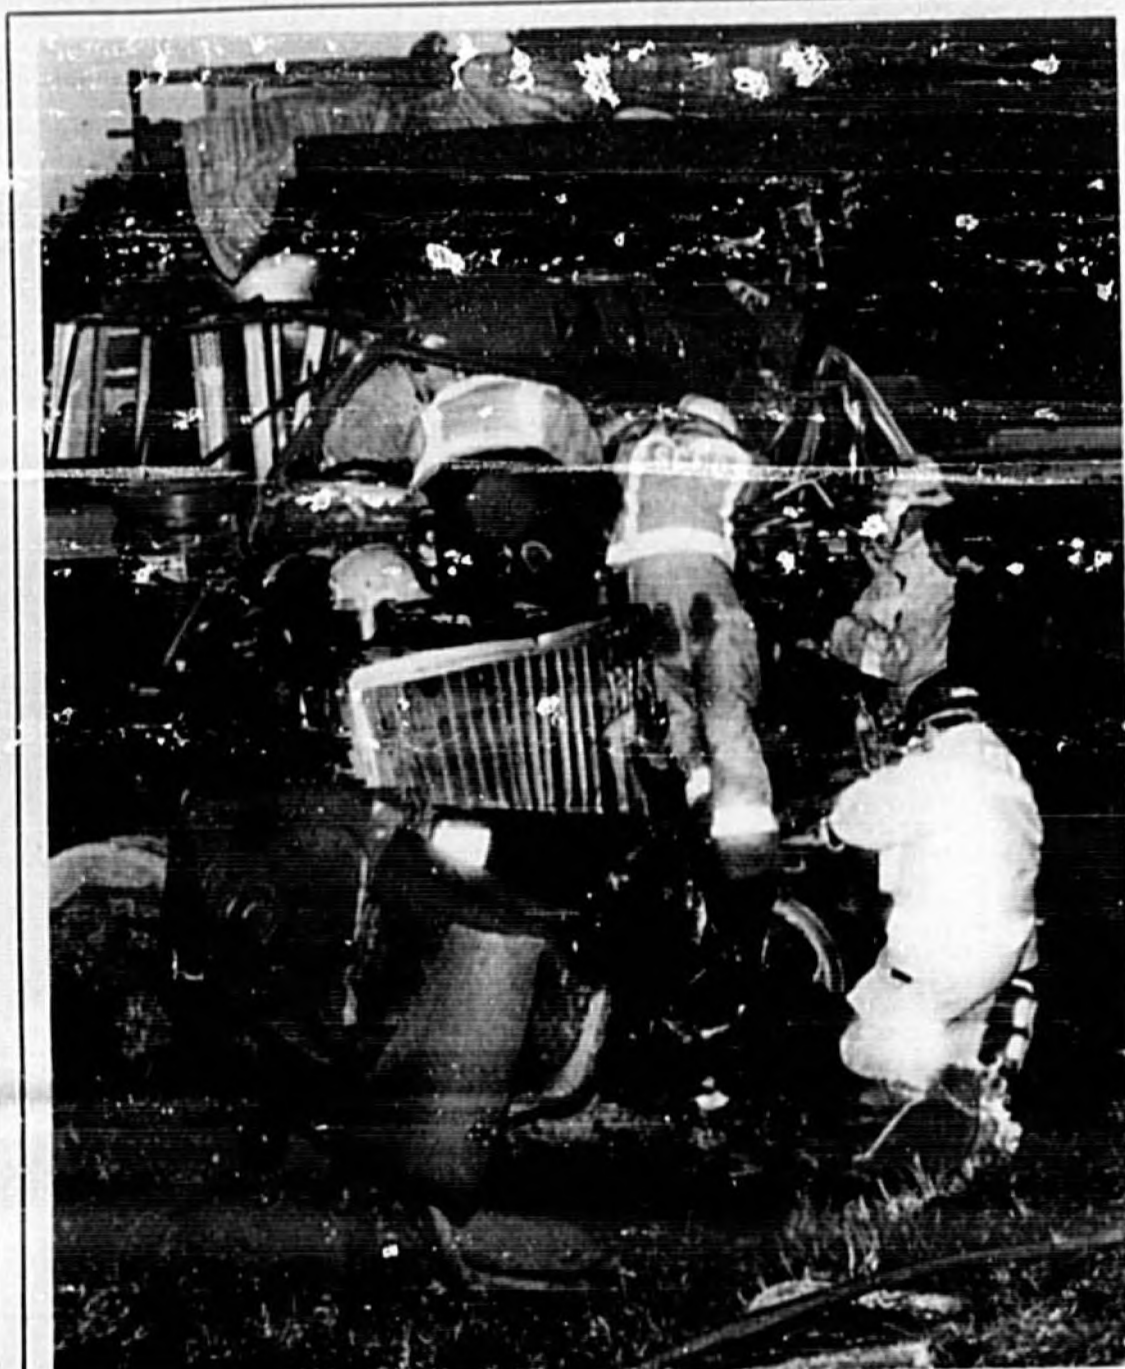

Sweeting said he has reserved the chamber of commerce building for 7 p.m. Wednesday and Friday nights for a debate on the issues, but that he is willing to debate Howell at any time or place. He said he would welcome invitations from any organizations or civic groups in District 1 to discuss the issues, with or without Howell.

"Howell said, 'I've been getting the issues across to people face to face. I've got to make a living, and I've got to meet the people,' he said in response to Sweeting's invitation to debate.

Sweeting promised to issue daily statements on issues concerning the district until the day of the runoff.

"I am proposing that the city commission, the downtown merchants council and the chamber of commerce form a joint committee to look at what can be done to improve the waterfront between Interstate 4 and Mellonville Avenue," he said.

City manager proposes staff reorganization

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — City Manager Frank Faison wants to reorganize part of the city government staff.

Faison's recommendations, described as a tightening of the staff, is partially necessitated by the retirement on Jan. 27 of Henry Tamm Jr., longtime city clerk and finance director.

The proposal, which includes splitting six positions of city clerk and finance director, will be presented to the city commission tonight.

Besides splitting those duties between two people, Faison recommends transferring part of the administrative services department to the finance department under the direction of an administrative services chief. The remainder of the administrative services department would become a personnel department headed by a personnel director.

All positions would be filled by current city employees under the proposal, and the result of these and other proposed reorganizations would be a reduction in costs of $7,441, Faison said.

He proposes that the current deputy city clerk and secretary to the city manager, Jan Donahoe, become city clerk and also remain secretary to the city manager.

Carolyn Small, now the city's chief accountant and a Certified Public Accountant, would become finance director. The finance department would have three divisions: the director, with a secretary and a clerk-typist; the accounting division, consisting of chief accountant, budget analyst and two accounting clerks; and the administrative services division.

Heading the administrative services division would be Kim Smith, who is now administrative services director. The move would be a voluntary reduction in position for Smith.

Faison is recommending that Tim McCauley, who was hired recently as a personnel technician, become personnel director, in charge of two secretaries, a benefits technician and a personnel technician. Faison said McCauley has 16 years of experience and is familiar with the regulations that must be complied with.

Faison said the personnel department's functions, now contained in the administrative services department, have expanded greatly, mostly as a result of federal regulations.

Longwood Health Center may relocate

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Longwood Health Center may be moving to more spacious quarters in the Live Oak Center on Live Oaks Boulevard in Casselberry.

Dr. Jorge Deju, director of the county Health and Human Services Department, has proposed moving the south county health clinic from its current cramped quarters at 174 W. Church Ave., Longwood, to more spacious quarters in the Live Oak Center on Live Oaks Boulevard in Casselberry.

His recommendation is to be considered by Seminole County Commissioners during their meeting Tuesday.

Moving the center would allow the clinic to expand from its current working area of 2,718 square feet to 6,220 square feet, Deju said. People waiting for service at the existing Longwood facility now frequently overflow into the parking lot.

The new location would be equally accessible for Altamonte Springs, Longwood and Casselberry residents, the principal users of the south county facility, Deju said.

Monty Beamer, assistant county administrator, said the Live Oak facility would cost up to $5,400 a month. The current building, owned by the county and appraised at $160,000 is being eyed for purchase by Longwood for city offices, Deju said.

Attention all bell-ringers; Salvation Army wants you

By GLORIA BUCCO
Herald correspondent

SANFORD — Signs of the holiday season are scarce in Florida.

You won't see snowy landscapes, frosty windows, steamy breath or wool mittens. But one familiar sight will greet Christmas shoppers rushing from store to store — bell ringers representing the Salvation Army already are soliciting donations for their kettles.

That's true again this year even though a shortage of bell ringers exists and the Salvation Army has had to resort to advertising to hire enough of the workers.

Beginning the day after Thanksgiving and lasting until Christmas Eve, nearly 200 bell ringers will take turns staffing 14 different locations in the Sanford area. Mostly volunteers, the Salvation Army depends heavily on civic clubs that provide the men who do the ringing.

Last year, according to Lt. Sam Flanigan, commanding officer of the Salvation Army of Seminole County, 52 people from the Kiwanis Club alone helped with the bell ringing. Ringers range in age from 12 years, to one gentleman in his 70s who sits rather than stands near his kettle in the same location year after year.

Flanigan hopes to raise between $30,000 and $35,000 from his kettles this season. "We raise about one-third of our total operating budget at Christmas," Flanigan

Delray Beach ticket wins jackpot

TALLAHASSEE — Somebody bought a Lotto ticket in Delray Beach worth $28 million dollars, Florida Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul said Sunday.

"The holiday season is going to be really exciting for someone in Palm Beach County," she said.

The Delray Beach ticket was the only one to match all six numbers drawn Saturday in the weekly Lotto game. The winning numbers were 8, 12, 13, 18, 36 and 44. The owner has 180 days to claim the prize.

An absence of winners the last two weeks, plus strong sales in the early part of the week boosted the jackpot to an estimated $28 million.

The prize is the largest since two sisters from Indiantown, Mary Ellen Snipes and Maxine Johnson, split a $31.52 million jackpot on Oct. 25. Since then winners from Jacksonville, St. Cloud, Winter Garden and Miami claimed a combined total of $34.76 million in prize money.

The recent pair of rollovers broke a five-week winning streak in the LOTTO game. Paul estimated this week's jackpot at $8 million.

Bundy to die next year, experts predict

MIAMI — Death penalty experts are predicting the U.S. Supreme Court will deny Ted Bundy's latest appeal, clearing the way for Florida to execute him in the electric chair in 1989.

"The word is that Ted will go early next year — late winter or spring," The Miami Herald quoted Michael Radelet, a University of Florida sociologist and expert on capital punishment, as saying.

Common wisdom among death penalty experts is that the Supreme Court will deny the 62-page petition delivered to the court 12 minutes before the designated filing deadline Dec. 15, the newspaper reported Sunday.

Bundy, now 42, was convicted in 1979 of bludgeoning to death Florida State University students Lisa Levy and Margaret Bowman at the Chi Omega sorority house in Tallahassee. He was convicted in 1980 of kidnapping and murdering 12-year-old Kimberly Leach of Lake City.

Bundy received three death sentences for those murders and remains a suspect in the murders of 33 other women, mostly in the Pacific northwest.

The Supreme Court petition claims Bundy was mentally incompetent to stand trial, that witnesses against him should not have been hypnotized to "refresh" their memories, and that Bundy was not represented by competent legal counsel.

If the court rejects the petition, Gov. Bob Martinez is expected to immediately issue a new death warrant. It would be Bundy's fourth.

Audit: DPR may have broken law

TALLAHASSEE — The state Department of Professional Regulation may have broken the law when it agreed to lease space in a private office park, according to a preliminary report from Florida's Auditor General.

When lawmakers learned of the lease last spring, they passed a law prohibiting DPR from moving out of an existing state building into Innovation Park and ordered the auditor general to investigate.

An analysis presented to the Legislature at the time said the lease at the office park in Leon County would have cost taxpayers $8.9 million more than comparable space in a state office building.

The analysis also said that a construction manager, bond lawyers and a private leasing firm earned another $1.5 million under the complex financial arrangements.

The auditor's preliminary findings, released this weekend, said elements of the lease "may have created an improper restriction" on the use of state money, DPR has until Friday to file a written response to the auditor's tentative findings.

DPR Secretary Larry Gonzalez declined comment on the preliminary report, saying he had not yet read it.

Arson suspected in K mart fire

HALLANDALE — Arson investigators today were trying to determine the cause of a fire which forced the evacuation of more than 100 people at a K mart filled with Christmas shoppers.

None of the shoppers were injured in the fire Sunday at the store in the Diplomat Mall. Two employees were treated for smoke inhalation and another suffered a broken foot after being knocked into a counter by another worker, and a Hallandale firefighter with debris in his eye was treated at the scene.

Most of the people left the store without panicking after smoke began billowing from a back corner of the store, officials said.

"They seemed to be fairly calm," said employee Linda Goodman. "Most people wanted to pay for their stuff. Most customers didn't want to leave their carts."

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

17 Florida thrifts broke

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Seventeen Florida savings-and-loans have gone insolvent at a potential cost to taxpayers of $2.25 billion, a newspaper reported Sunday.

Those 17 Florida thrifts owe more than they are worth, and continue to lose even more money, the Tallahassee Democrat reported. As of June 30, they owed a combined $759 million more than they were worth, according to the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Ten of the thrifts have been taken over by federal regulators, but all are still open for business.

In the past, federal regulators would fire a failing savings-and-loan's managers and merge or liquidate the thrift. But because so many thrifts are failing nationwide, regulators are postponing liquidations until they figure how to cover the costs.

Regulators say it will cost between $50 billion and $100 billion to sell, merge or close all the insolvent thrifts in the United States. The longer the government delays those shut-downs, the more expensive they become.

Regulators say it will cost between $50 billion and $100 billion to sell, merge or close all the insolvent thrifts in the United States.

The problem is worst in Texas, where the oil bust has hit the state economy hard. But Florida, even with its relatively sound economy, has more than its share of troubled thrifts.

"After Texas, as far as the problem goes, Florida is one of the three or four other states where there is a cluster of problems," said L. William Seidman, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Commission. The commission insures the nation's bank deposits, not thrifts.

Because the federal government guarantees individual deposits up to $100,000, thrift customers have not suffered any damage from the crunch. But the cost of that guarantee must be borne by the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Commission, the deposit insurance system for thrifts which is itself bankrupt, or by the U.S. Treasury.

Industry analysts and Florida savings-and-loan managers said many Florida thrifts had been hurt by poor management, and in some cases outright fraud. They warned that, because the federal government uses very liberal standards when determining whether a thrift is insolvent, the problem may actually be worse than the government claims.

There are 147 thrifts with headquarters in Florida.

The 17 insolvent Florida thrifts are Freedom S&L of Tampa, which owes $209 million more than it has; Beach FS&LA of Boynton Beach, $84.6 million in debt; and Broward FS&LA, Sunrise, down $100 million.

Also, First FS&LA, Largo, down $75 million; First FS&LA of Florida Keys, Key West, down $42.4 million; Cypress SA (renamed Secor Bank), Plantation, down $27.4 million; Financial Security Delray Beach, $16.1 million; and Southern Florida Banc, Boca Raton, $109 million in debt.

Jetliner hijacking foiled by alert crew

United Press International

MIAMI — A Mariel boatlift refugee claiming he had a bomb tried to hijack a TWA jetliner from Puerto Rico to Cuba Sunday, but the plane landed in the Turks and Caicos Islands, where he disembarked apparently thinking he was in Cuba, an airline official said.

No one was injured and the suspect, Felix Sanchez Rodriguez, 26, of Miami, was arrested, said TWA spokesman Robert Blattner.

TWA Flight 469, with 121 passengers and seven crew members, left San Juan at 11 a.m. EST en route to Miami, but landed in Grand Turk around an hour later, Blattner said, adding that reports indicated Rodriguez walked off the plane thinking he was in Cuba.

Shortly after taking off from San Juan, Rodriguez gave one of the stewardesses a letter demanding to be taken to Cuba, said FBI spokesman Paul Miller in Miami. The suspect claimed to be able to detonate an explosive device stored in an overhead baggage compartment using his wristwatch.

Rodriguez, who doesn't speak English, relied on another passenger to communicate with the crew, Miller said.

One witness said she saw tears in the eyes of Rodriguez, who reportedly wanted to go to Cuba to see his sick mother.

The pilot landed the Boeing 727 at Grand Turk in the Turks and Caicos Islands because it was the closest airport at the time, Blattner said.

The Turks and Caicos Islands, 560 miles southeast of Miami, became a British possession in 1766 and a separate British colony in 1973 and is a geographical extension of the Bahamas. The islands have only 8,000 inhabitants.

Rodriguez was despondent over the poor health of his mother in Cuba, Blattner said. "That was his aim, to get to Cuba."

Blattner said Rodriguez arrived in the United States from Cuba during the 1980 Mariel boatlift.

Passenger Tom Patri of Vero Beach, Fla., said the pilot announced over the intercom system that the plane would have to make an emergency landing in Cuba and descend from 31,000 feet in seven minutes.

Rodriguez refused at first to believe he was in Cuba, but got off the plane after the crew insisted they were there, Patri said.

"We feel the crew handled it flawlessly," Blattner said of the ordeal.

The TWA pilot, whose name was not released, pressed charges against Rodriguez in Grand Turk, about 250 miles east of Cuba, Blattner said he was unsure what the charges were, but that Rodriguez was being held by Bahamian officials.

Miller said the FBI is continuing its investigations into the matter and will discuss with the U.S. Attorney's Office whether to file air piracy charges.

Lidia Vasquez of Puerto Rico, said she saw tears in Rodriguez's eyes. She said he was careful saying he would not threaten the passengers and that they should keep calm.

"I told him to take it easy," Vasquez said.

Patri said he didn't believe Rodriguez, who was wearing a tight T-shirt, was carrying a bomb. "He made no personal threats to the passengers."

After authorities searched the plane, including the passengers' luggage, it left the Turks and Caicos at 5:15 p.m. EST and arrived at Miami International Airport at 6:46 p.m., where family members and friends of passengers aboard the flight waited.

"They said they had mechanical problems. So I waited. They said that they have sent the mechanics down," said Maria Torres.

Geneva man shot, killed by friend

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

GENEVA — A 34-year-old Geneva man was shot to death by a lifelong friend who is dating the victim's estranged wife. Seminole County sheriff's investigators said today.

The deputies said they believe the shooting was in self-defense, but the investigation continues.

Carroll Christopher Smith, of Retreat Road, died at 3627 Harper Lane, Geneva, at about 1 a.m. Sunday. He suffered a single 22-caliber rifle shot to the chest, sheriff's investigator Janice Walthers said.

Smith was killed at the house of Robert Craig, 26, Craig, according to investigators, said Smith came to his house about four times last week. Craig told deputies that Smith made threats against him during those visits.

Walthers said Smith's estranged wife, Valerie Rae Smith, 25, of 992 Sharon Court, Ovido, was at the scene when Smith was killed. Mrs. Smith, who has been estranged from her husband for about six months, has been dating Craig, Walthers said.

Smith and Craig were described by Walthers as "lifelong friends."

According to Craig's account to deputies, Smith drove up to his home at about 1 a.m. Sunday but didn't get out before driving away. Smith returned to Craig's house about five minutes later, Craig and Mrs. Smith met Smith at the door.

They told investigators Smith had a knife in each hand.

Craig, who was armed with a loaded rifle, according to his account to deputies, fired a single shot into Smith's chest as Smith made threats against his life and also made threatening gestures with the knives.

Investigators recovered a buck knife and a long blade boot knife from Smith. They also confiscated Craig's rifle.

Craig's sister, Deborah Ann Craig, 29, of Geneva, was asleep in Craig's living room at the time of the shooting, Walthers said.

The shooting, at this point, appears to have been in self-defense, Walthers said. But the investigation continues. An autopsy was performed for Smith in Sanford Sunday night.

Smith, Walthers said, was an equipment operator for Oviedo Material Co.

Government recommends nuclear changes

United Press International

WASHINGTON — A classified government report recommends spending $50 billion over 20 years to move two plants in the nuclear weapons complex, build five new reactors and clean up the worst damage from 40 years of bomb-making. The Washington Post reported Sunday.

Known as the "2010 Report," the Energy Department document, delivered for review to the National Security Council last week, could serve as a blueprint for a wholesale restructuring of the nation's nuclear production system.

The Post also reported that in a separate report, the department recommended the spending of an extra $34 billion to $65 billion over 40 years for long-term environmental cleanup at its 17 major production plants.

The Energy Department runs the nation's nuclear weapons production.

Among the recommendations in the "2010 Report":

- Closing the Rocky Flats Plant near Denver and the Feed Materials Production Center near Fernald, Ohio — both of which have been linked to massive environmental contamination. Rocky Flats makes plutonium triggers for bombs and processes waste to extract plutonium. The Ohio plant is a uranium foundry.

- Building four small reactors, instead of the one the department proposed earlier this year, at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory near Idaho Falls and one large reactor at the Savannah River Plant in South Carolina.

- Moving plutonium activities out of two facilities.

Disciplinary programs studied for area students

From staff and wire reports

SANFORD — Next fall three Seminole County schools will begin programs to curb the disproportionate number of black students receiving suspensions and expulsions. According to a national report released today, that program cannot begin soon enough.

The report, prepared by the National Coalition of Advocates for Students, cites southern states as an area of particular concern. It is based on information from the U.S. Department of Education. Some 20 percent, or 3,378 of the nation's school districts are represented.

Robert Gray, core programs coordinator of the association, said the study includes 31 school districts in Florida.

Based on 1986 statistics, the national rate of corporal punishment is 3.11 percent of the students, with the punishment rate for whites being 1.79 percent and for blacks 12.05 percent, Gray said.

"Those figures are still very, very staggering," Gray said.

In essence, black students comprise less than 20 percent of the nation's public school students but account for a much higher rate of suspensions and other forms of discipline, according to the coalition, based in Boston.

The updated study concerns an educational issue that has been hot for the past few years.

Dr. Hortense Evans, an administrative assistant, said today that the Seminole County School Board is concerned about the issue, and especially how it relates to the state's high percentage of student dropouts.

Last year the board formed a citizen task force known as the Suspension/Expulsion Task Force. Evans said they meet monthly to discuss plans for Lake Mary Elementary, Lakeview Middle School and Seminole High School.

"Our main concern now is to come up with workable suggestions," Doris Thomas, task force co-chairman said this morning.

The committee is focusing on the implementation of reading specialists at schools where at least 25 percent of students are reading two or more years below grade level, according to Thomas. Other ideas include a funded community mentor program, and the further encouragement of black students.

Joan First, director of the coalition that focuses primarily on minority student issues, said, "Public school discipline fails disproportionately upon any child perceived as different, including ethnic and religious minorities, poor or handicapped children, or those who have limited English proficiency."

To reduce the rates of discrepancy, the coalition suggested that school officials implement a clear, documented disciplinary policy that is understood by students and teachers. Schools also should compile data on student race, gender and ethnicity to identify trends and help uncover problems.

Researchers reported that black students receive 31 percent of corporal, or physical punishment, and 30 percent of suspensions, compared with 60 percent and 59 percent respectively for white students.

Although the percentages for suspensions and corporal punishment are lower for black students, blacks make up only 16 percent of the nation's public school population and whites 70 percent.

Because males account for 80 percent of corporal punishment and 70 percent of suspensions, black students are at higher risk for disciplinary action than whites, researchers said.

"These very disturbing statistics — collected after most school excellence reforms — provide strong evidence that black students, especially males, have not reaped a fair share of the benefits," said First.

Mr. Reagan wisely rejects pardon plea

President Reagan has wisely rejected pressure from a handful of conservative senators to pardon Oliver L. North, the prime defendant targeted by the special prosecutor's criminal investigation into the Iran-Contra affair.

For Mr. Reagan to have done otherwise would have buried for history a raft of unanswered questions about the sale of U.S. arms to Iran and the possible illegal diversion of profits to the Nicaraguan resistance. Indeed, there is still no clear record of precisely who was responsible for many of the dealings that engulfed the Reagan administration in its worst calamity.

The President has stressed that he was unaware of the diversion of funds to the Contras and other acts. But did Mr. North and his co-defendants Joan Poindexter, Richard Secord, and Albert Hakim, act entirely on their own initiative, or with tacit approval from senior administration officials, such as the late CIA Director William Casey? The pending trials in federal court in Washington will shed new evidence on these and other still-unresolved questions.

A presidential pardon for Mr. North at this early juncture, before any evidence has been presented or a jury has reached a verdict, also would have made a mockery of the 18-month probe by special prosecutor Lawrence E. Walsh. It was, after all, Mr. Reagan who requested the independent investigation in the first place in order to restore public confidence in the administration of justice.

Still to be settled, however, is the potentially decisive matter of how much classified material will be made available in an open trial.

Mr. North's lawyers have demanded the release of 3,500 secret documents totaling 40,000 pages. Although the special prosecutor asserts that defense attorneys are deliberately seeking highly sensitive material that is irrelevant to the case, U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell has hinted that some of the classified document may be essential to a fair trial for Mr. North.

The White House, however, has rigidly held out to nearly all of the classified information. One of the reported reasons for the administration's reluctance to cooperate in the North case is the concern that release of many of the documents would identify how friendly countries such as Saudi Arabia and Israel participated in the arms scheme. Such concerns are legitimate, of course, but the White House ought to make a distinction between papers that merely embarrass other nations or the United States and those which truly could compromise national security if made public.

Unless the issue of classified material is resolved between the defense attorneys and the administration, some or all of the charges against Mr. North and the other defendants may be dismissed before trial. Such an outcome in this monumentally important case would short-circuit justice and the historical record.

"Shopper burnout!"

ARNOLD SAWISLAK

Out with the old, in with the old

WASHINGTON — There is an old Washington story that illustrates why many of the same old faces seem to be running the federal government no matter who wins the elections.

Sen. Herbert Lehman, D-N.Y., retired in January 1957 after serving as chairman of the Senate Banking Committee. Lehman kept a close and critical eye on the U.S. Treasury, frequently demanding detailed answers to highly technical questions about its operations.

"Where are you working now?" the reporter asked.

"At the Treasury," the aide replied.

"The Treasury? I would have thought one of Lehman's guys would be the last person they would hire. What are you doing there?"

"Do you remember that long list of questions about Treasury policies the senator had me prepare just before Congress adjourned last fall? Well, Treasury hired me to come down there and answer them."

Several conclusions could be drawn from that anecdote. One is that a lot of "old" goes on in Washington. Another is that the business of government requires skills so specialized that it is almost impossible for anyone to do the work right without a long apprenticeship.

There has been plenty of debate on the latter point. Presidential candidates as far back as Andrew Jackson and as recently as George Bush have vowed to apply "a new broom" when they move into the White House.

All large organizations, private and public, develop bureaucracies and are rife with politics. Good public officials, like good business executives, know how to use both to make things work. But because a person knows how to turn wheels in a corporation does not mean the same results can be achieved with the same methods in government.

Because so many successful people from the private sector have arrived in Washington with great expectations and left with small results, the promise of "new faces" from an incoming president is taken as seriously as "no new taxes." So it was no real surprise when the majority of Bush's first top appointments were old hands in Washington.

Apply "a new broom" when they move into the White House.

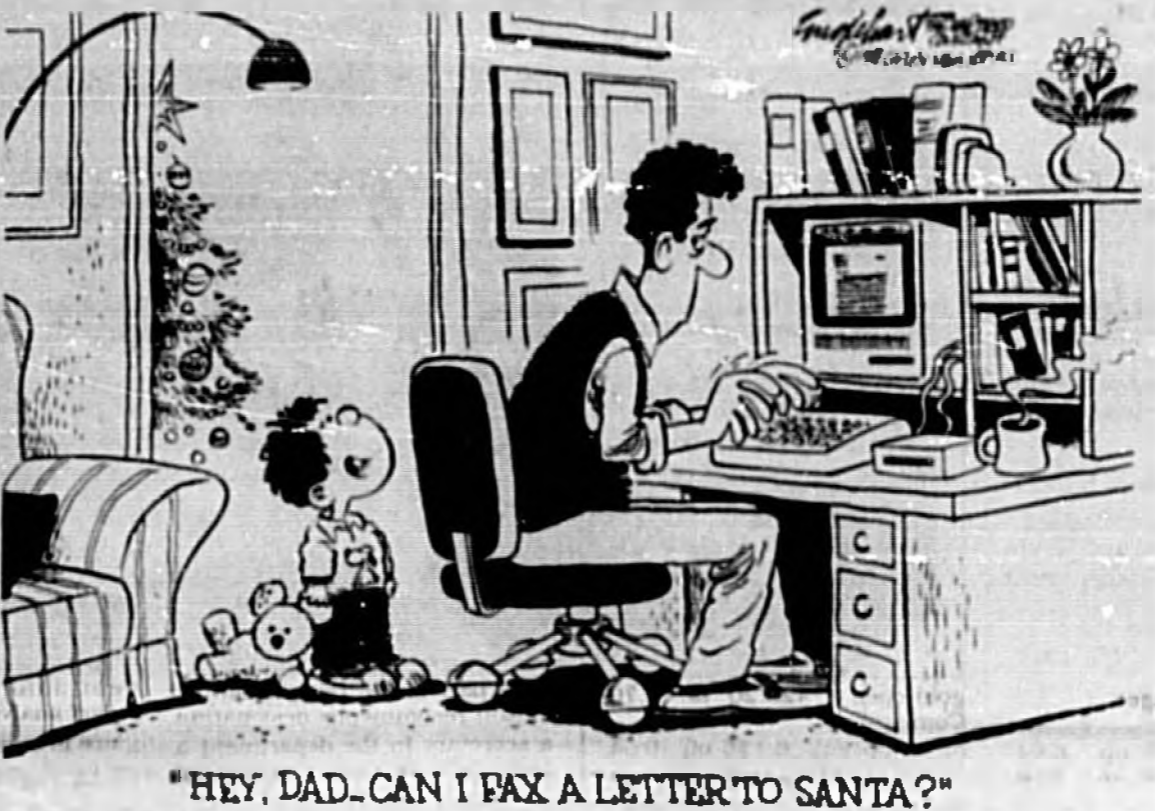

Secretary of State designate James Baker has been around Washington a dozen years, much of the time in top jobs. Budget director-to-be Richard Darman is a Baker protégé. Nicholas Brady served in the Senate and got a head start as Baker's replacement at the Treasury earlier this year. CIA Director William Webster is a holdover who learned the Washington ropes as FBI chief.

Attorney General Dick Thornburgh and Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos also got time to break in during the last months of the Reagan administration and Carla Hills, to be U.S. trade representative, ran the Department of Housing and Urban Development for President Ford.

Just about the only real greenhorn named by Bush was Robert Muesbacher, who as commerce secretary will be talking more to fellow businessmen than to lawmakers and bureaucrats.

Bush still has plenty of vacancies for new faces, but if he follows the trend he set with his first appointments, the "new faces" in Washington between 1989 and 1992 will not have to use a map to find the way from the White House to the Capitol.

Gerrymandering begone

WASHINGTON — Robert H. Michel has a distinction he would like to shed. The House Republican Leader has represented Peoria in Congress for the last 32 years, and never once has he been in the majority. Party record-keepers say that he "has the dubious distinction of having served longer without interruption in minority status than any other Republican in the history of this country."

Michel told the House Republican caucus on Monday, "I wouldn't wish that on any of you." But changing the makeup of Congress—especially the House—is a more daunting challenge for Republicans than breaking the GOP's grip on the White House is for the Democrats. By the time George Bush finished his first term, Republicans will have held the White House for 20 of the last 24 years. But in 1990, Democrats will have controlled the House for 36 straight years and the Senate for all but six years of that span.

While five of the last eight Presidents have either failed of election or withdrawn in the face of strong political opposition, the success rates for members of the House have increased to the point that 98 out of every 100 seeking re-election are routinely returned for another term.

The Constitution envisaged the House as the most sensitive barometer of changes in political mood, but the "incumbent lock" makes it a barometer at all. Realistic Republicans know that to increase the competitiveness of House races, at least three major changes must be made.

First, distinct lines would have to be redrawn to encourage competition, not protect the maximum number of safe incumbents. The reapportionment following the 1990 census will provide an opportunity, but Republicans' persistent weakness in the legislatures cripples their chances of winning many clearly partisan battles. So they must work with nonpartisan groups, including those seeking to enhance the power of under-represented minorities, in litigation aimed at challenging the sweetheart districting designed by incumbents of both parties.

Michel is launching his own redistricting task force, but a crucial role can be played by the Justice Department if Attorney General Dick Thornburgh orders it to take an aggressive stance in opposition to pro-incumbent gerrymandering, whichever party is responsible.

The second area is campaign finance. Competition will remain rare until the parties or public financing provide most challengers enough money to get their names known and their messages heard. Even then, challenger victories will be uncommon unless some way is found to curb the gross advantage incumbents now exploit in collecting money from political-action committees (PACs) and other access-seeking contributors. In this year's House races, 85 cents of every PAC dollar went to incumbents—a huge barrier to political change.

In the past, many Republican incumbents have opposed rules changes aimed at helping challengers. But Michel told his colleagues he wants a thorough review of the party position on campaign finance, including the role of PACs. And Rep. Newt Gingrich (R-Ga.), who will play a crucial role in shaping Republican campaign finance proposals on the House Elections Subcommittee, is committed to the view that increased competition is the main goal of any reform.

The third area involves issues. Republicans are planning a major challenge to the welter of rules and procedures, including the allocation of committee seats and staff positions, which they believe deny them a fair shot at presenting their alternatives to Democratic legislation. Their goal is to gain a larger voice in shaping laws or sharpening issues for the next campaign.

The Democrats will undoubtedly smother the Republican rules changes, and that will be the end of the matter—unless President-elect Bush is persuaded to enter the fray. Some Republicans, like Michael J. Horowitz, the former general counsel in the Office of Management and Budget under President Reagan, and OMB director David Stockman, are advocating that Bush threaten to veto the legislative branch appropriations bill unless the Democrats deal seriously with the rules, staffing and campaign finance laws which give incumbents their enormous advantages in securing re-election.

Horowitz argues that if Bush denied Congress the money for all the mass mailings and district-office staff positions which bolster the incumbents' re-election machines, the Republican minority could sustain the veto and the issue could be dramatized for the whole country to see. Bush is not likely to embrace that radical an attack on the so-called principle of comity between the branches. It would clearly invite retaliatory assaults from Capitol Hill on the White House and OMB budgets.

distinct lines would have to be redrawn to encourage competition.

Beauty aids can do harm

WASHINGTON — Americans spend $18.5 billion a year for beauty that goes only skin deep, without considering the ugly side effects of vanity. Some of the chemicals used in cosmetics and hair products have been linked to cancer, birth defects, nervous system disorders and other illnesses.

The dangerous ingredients are rarely banned. In fact, the Food and Drug Administration has no authority to test cosmetics for safety before they are marketed. It can only investigate them after complaints are made. The products you spread on your eyelashes and spray on your hair carry no FDA seal of approval.

This lapse in scrutiny is a disgrace in a country where people assume that the government protects them from faulty and dangerous consumer products.

Thousands of people have been treated in hospital emergency rooms for cosmetic-related conditions, according to congressional investigators. Hospitals reported 47,000 such cases last year alone. The injuries were caused by soaps, hair straighteners, lotions, facial masks and other products, whose functions are to improve on the looks Mother Nature does out.

In one case, a woman's hair ignited when she lit a cigarette. She paid a high price for the slick look promised by a hair-glossing cream — severe burns and permanent scars. An Oregon cosmetology student was diagnosed with chronic and irreversible asthma after she worked for several months around hairspray, dyes and acrylic fingernail resins.

Two wig stylists who worked in a San Francisco salon developed chest pains and severe neurological problems, including memory loss. They blame the small, poorly ventilated room and hairsprays containing methylene chloride. The government recognizes methylene chloride as a cancer-causing agent, yet it is still found in some hairsprays.

Cosmetologists appear to be more at risk than the consumer because they are constantly exposed to chemicals. "A lot of these people have to leave the business because they just can't deal with the products," AFL-CIO safety expert Debbie Berkowitz told our associate Scott Sleek.

Frequently, the workers are ignorant of the dangers. Federal law requires labeling on cosmetics that are sold retail, but wholesale products shipped to salons do not have to carry a list of contents.

Even a product that is harmless by nature can be dangerous when it isn't preserved adequately. For example, mascara may be safe when purchased, but the preservatives in it don't always keep it from being tainted in normal use, according to Dr. Heinz Eiernann, an FDA chemist. He said vision can be damaged if a dirty mascara wand scrapes the surface of the eye.

The face and hair are not the only primping places at risk. Severe reactions were reported in the 1970s from fingernail builders and some were recalled. New nail builders came on the market, but no data exists to prove they are safe.

The Cosmetics, Toiletry and Fragrance Association represents 240 companies and says those companies are taking steps to protect customers.

Market moderate, prices up

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened higher Monday in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rose 51.21 last week, was up 4.80 to 2148.29 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 442-313 among the 1,267 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 9,680,000 shares.

Analysts said market activity should be relatively calm in the first few days of the week as participants await the latest data on the economy.

The key report on the week — October's U.S. merchandise trade deficit — is set for release Wednesday morning.

The other reports will cover industrial production, capacity utilization, housing starts, business inventories, producer prices and retail sales.

Besides the economic reports, a meeting of the Federal Reserve's Open Market Committee, its policy-making arm, was also scheduled this week.

Dollar drifts higher; gold, silver mixed

United Press International

The dollar drifted slightly higher Monday in light trading as most major foreign currency markets as traders began securing their positions ahead of Wednesday's release of the U.S. merchandise trade report. The dollar was mixed.

Most traders expect the Commerce Department report on the nation's trade picture to show little change from September's deficit of $10.46 billion.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar strengthened against the Japanese yen closing 0.49 yen higher at 122.92 yen.

Dealers said the dollar was buoyed by the impending announcement of Japan's November trade surplus which traders estimated will exceed $0 billion.

The Finance Ministry later announced the nation's trade surplus grew to $4.55 billion from $4.75 a year ago.

Currency dealers noted the Seibu Saison group purchased more than $700 million during the morning session to finance its planned acquisition of the Intercontinental Hotel of Britain.

In Europe, the dollar began the week in Frankfurt at 1.741 West German marks, up from 1.733 marks on Friday.

The dollar began the day in Zurich at 1.4665 Swiss francs, up from 1.4605. In Paris, the dollar opened at 5.947 French francs, up from 5.9395.

Silver opened unchanged in Zurich at $6.15 an ounce and opened unchanged in London at $6.16 an ounce.

Pillsbury rejects new offer

United Press International

MINNEAPOLIS — Food giant Pillsbury Inc. has rejected a new, higher tender offer of $5.49 billion from Grand Metropolitan PLC following weekend discussions of the proposal by top officials of both companies, a Pillsbury spokesman announced.

The British company raised its offer from $60 to $63 a share but Pillsbury Chairman Philip L. Smith rejected the new offer. Pillsbury spokesman Johnny Thompson said Sunday.

Thompson said Pillsbury considers its stock should be valued up to the $68 range.

The British company first offered $60 a share in early October for Pillsbury shares in a $5.2 billion takeover bid for the Minneapolis-based food company. Grand Met specializes in a number of brand names, including several well known liquor brands.

Group warns against pension financing of takeovers, mergers

United Press International

ALBANY, N.Y. — The nation's public employee pension funds, worth nearly $600 billion, are increasingly "aiding and abetting" corporate takeovers that may do them more harm than good, a business think tank said Sunday.

Moreover, some of the funds are using lawsuits and proxy battles to force companies to drop defenses against corporate raiders, the Public Policy Institute said in a report. The Albany-based institute is an affiliate of The Business Council of

New York state, a business lobbying group.

Pension funds run by state and local governments have assets approaching $600 billion, said the report, titled "The $600 Billion Burden."

The funds own as much as one-third of the stocks of private corporations in the Standard & Poors 500 index, the study said.

The report argued that in the past five years, government pension funds more and more "have been aiding and abetting corporate takeovers," in part by accepting tender offers for shares they own from corporate raiders who can offer higher prices than the market value.

Defenders of such mergers and acquisitions have said they can provide shareholders with managers more responsive to their interests. Critics have said the spate of takeovers have burdened many of the resulting corporations with huge debts, forcing some to sell assets and lay off workers to pay for their loans.

In addition, "a vocal and active faction" of public pension fund trustees are waging campaigns to strip some companies of defenses they have built to fight off takeovers, the study maintained.

Di Mita to meet with Reagan

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Italian Prime Minister Ciriaco De Mita arrived in the United States Sunday for a Los Angeles seminar marking the 40th anniversary of the Marshall Plan and a meeting in Washington with President Reagan and President-elect George Bush.

De Mita, 60, making his second visit to the United States in six months, will be the first Western leader to meet with Reagan and Bush since Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's announcement Wednesday to the United Nations of a reduction in Warsaw Pact troop and tank strength in Eastern Europe.

De Mita, who arrived in Los Angeles late Sunday afternoon, called Gorbachev's move "a positive decision" that will encourage negotiations on arms control in Europe. De Mita cautioned, though, the objective is for a "substantial equilibrium of armed forces and their reorientation in a defensive direction."

Italy and the United States are among the 16 members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, counterpart to the seven-member Warsaw Pact alliance.

Differences over Middle East policy also were expected to figure in the talks in Washington.

De Mita said in an interview last week he will tell U.S. officials that refusing PLO leader Yasser Arafat an entry visa to address the U.S. General Assembly in New York "doesn't seem to me to be an intelligent act."

A county space committee in October recommended including another 3,000 feet in the new south county site for the Environmental Health section of the health department, now located in the main Sanford Health Unit at 240 W. Airport Blvd. in Sanford. But Deju recommended moving that section to the nearby county Environmental Services building at Southgate Drive.

Because the proposed expressway may eventually eliminate the county environmental services building, Deju said the environmental health section might be moved to the Live Oak offices.

The Environmental Health move would free additional space in the Sanford Health Unit for expansion, Deju said. He said the health department will need the additional space for expanded programs this year, including five additional staffers to provide primary care service.

The committee recommended expanding the Sanford Health Unit to consolidate the Longwood services, but Deju discouraged that option. He said the county needs to offer health services to all areas of the county, not just the northern, Sanford area.

Deju said the health department currently provides services four hours a week at five locations in churches and community centers throughout the county. Deju recommended looking to opening more satellite offices throughout the county rather than expanding the Sanford office.

As part of the reorganization, Falson recommends designating a secretary in the department a benefits technician, designating a current data entry clerk as a personnel technician, and creating a secretarial position.

Another personnel change recommended is not replacing budget analyst Juan Perez who recently resigned. A current computer operator-programmer will be reclassified to management information systems, budget analyst to combine experience in budget, accounting and computer systems into a single classification. The person filling the position would report to the finance director.

Falson said the savings from not replacing Perez will be used to hire technicians for computer work.

Budget information was programmed into the city's new computer by Oct. 1 and payroll is to be handled by the computer by Jan. 1, with utility billings being added later in January.

Falson said the proposed changes represent a "tightening up" of the staff, a procedure he said should be undertaken every few years to make sure the city staff is efficiently organized.

Actor Richard Castellano dead at 55

United Press International

NORTH BERGEN, N.J. — Character actor Richard Castellano, who was nominated for Tony and Academy awards for his performances in "Lovers and Other Strangers," has died of a heart attack, a report said Monday. He was 55.

Castellano, who specialized in overweight characters and was noted for his portrayals of Italian-Americans on stage, screen and television, died Saturday at his home in North Bergen, N.J., The New York Times said.

Castellano, who won praise for his portrayal of the mobster Clemenza in "The Godfather," Francis Coppola's 1972 film, earlier was nominated for the stage and movie awards for his performances in both productions of the comedy "Lovers and Other Strangers" by Renee Taylor and Joseph Bologna.

The Broadway veteran, and onetime construction worker, was the main character in the 1972 TV show "The Super" and played the title role in the 1975-76 sitcom "Joe and Sons." He also portrayed a Prohibition era Malloso in the 1981 television drama "The Gangster Chronicles."

Although Castellano often played overweight characters, his wife, actress Ardell Sheridan, told the Times that his normal weight was only near 200 pounds, but producers always insisted he gain at least 50 pounds for his roles.

The Bronx-born Castellano ran a construction company in New Jersey until he took up Method acting in 1961, studying with Brett Warren and touring in plays staged for the elderly and physically handicapped, the report said.

New York Post editor John Canning dead at 56

United Press International

NEW YORK — John Canning, managing editor of the New York Post, died Sunday after a heart attack while on vacation in Mexico, the newspaper said. He was 56.

Friends said Canning died of complications from a bleeding ulcer after suffering the heart attack in his hotel room in the city of Ixtapa, the newspaper said.

"John Canning was a great editor and beloved friend to all of us," said Jane Amsterdam, editor of The Post. "His contribution to this paper was enormous. John's intelligence and wit were displayed to our readers each day on Page One. He will be sorely missed."

For the past several years, Canning has been responsible mainly for the design and layout of the front page of the Post, known for its eye-grabbing headlines.

He was appointed managing editor of the Post in November 1980 after a quarter-century reporting and editing for papers in Australia, where he moved to in 1955 after getting his start in journalism in his native New Zealand.

Canning worked on the Sydney Sun before joining the opposition Sydney Daily Mirror, owned by Rupert Murdoch, in the 1960s.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

explained during a recent interview. "The money is used for Christmas assistance to people in need and we also assist them throughout the year."

Some of the money also is earmarked for building operations and community service activities at the army offices, located at 700 W. 24th St., Sanford, Flanigan said.

Salvation Army kettles have been familiar holiday sights in the United States since the turn of the century. According to Flanigan, kettles were first used to raise donations for hungry fishermen.

"The fishermen in San Francisco were hard hit and a Salvationist had the idea of putting out a pot to raise food and money for food," Flanigan said.

The plan worked and kettles have been a part of Christmas ever since. Flanigan said his average per-kettle income so far this year is $136. For the same time period last year, the per-kettle income was $126.

But these numbers are deceiving as Flanigan explained. "Our total kettle income for this year is down about $1,500 because we have fewer locations," he said. So far, only eight of the 14 stations have been staffed due to insufficient volunteers.

Flanigan has placed a newspaper ad searching for help. "We will hire people to stand," he said. "Some need extra money for Christmas and others have no job and seasonal work is better than no work. Still others just want to try something different."

This year's ranks also will be supplemented by a group of 12-year-olds from the Salvation Army church.

"I don't think the waterfront is being used to its full potential. We should look at what Savannah, Jacksonville, Tampa, Miami and smaller cities have done to with their waterfronts and see what is applicable here."

Sweeting said he is not proposing a large expenditure of local tax money to improve the waterfront, but suggests cooperation between the city and private interests, and investigating what federal grants might be available for such improvement.

Sweeting said the waterfront should be something that draws people to downtown Sanford and suggests attracting more regattas and other events on the lake.

He also said Sanford officials should make themselves aware of the proposals for shopping center in the I-4, State Road 46 area and how they would affect the city.

"City officials need to meet with these developers and know what their plans are and how they will affect the city," he said. Two proposals for shopping centers in the area have been made and developers are preparing more specific proposals for submission to the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council. Homart, a subsidiary of Sears, Roebuck & Co., has proposed a shopping mall northwest of the I-4-S.R. 46 junction, and Melvin Simmons & Associates of Indianapolis has proposed a shopping mall on the east side of I-4 near the County Road 46A (25th Street) overpass. A third proposal, by the Hahn Company of California, is for a shopping mall in the proposed Camelot development just north of Heathrow.

Sixth body is ruled homicide victim

DARTMOUTH, Mass. — A woman whose skeleton was discovered in a gravel pit during the weekend was a murder victim whose death may be related to five others in southeastern Massachusetts, officials determined Sunday.

Forensic tests on the remains showed the woman was murdered, said Bristol County District Attorney Ronald A. Pina, who classified the discovery as "similar to the others" but stopped short of connecting the killings.

A hunter discovered the remains Saturday off Route 195, the same general area where the bodies of five women, all apparent homicides, have been discovered within the past five months, police said.

The discovery was made at about 3:30 p.m. buried in a gravel pit near the Reed Road exit ramp, state police said. The body was probably buried there last spring and the hot summer accelerated its decomposition, Pina said.

He declined to say how he knew the woman had been murdered.

Nixon prognosticates Giants victory

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Richard Nixon, who fancied himself the nation's No. 1 football fan when president, Sunday watched the New York Giants defeat the Kansas City Chiefs and pronounced the Giants' ready for the playoffs.

Nixon, who lives in Upper Saddle River, N.J., went to the Giants locker room after their 28-12 victory to congratulate them.

"If you look at the teams across the country there are a lot of tough ball clubs," Nixon said. "The way the Giants have played in the last three weeks, you have to give them a real good shot."

The Giants will win the NFC East if they defeat the New York Jets Sunday.

"The Jets are going to be tough," said Nixon, ever the politician. "The Giants have to stop the Jets' run, and get a good pass rush on the quarterback."

Nixon, who resigned from the presidency Aug. 9, 1974, in the wake of the Watergate scandal, said he would stop short of playing offensive coordinator for the Giants.

Golden Apple Awards given Sunday

LOS ANGELES — Talk show host Morton Downey Jr. beat out Geraldo Rivera to win the 1988 Sour Apple award for the least newsworthy and/or most taken by his own publicity at the 48th Annual Golden Apple Awards ceremony Sunday.

Downey, who has been sued four times and has received 35 death threats for on-air remarks since launching his career, did not attend the ceremony at the Regent Beverly Wilshire Hotel and sponsored by the Hollywood Women's Press Club.

Downey began his career as a talk-radio host on WDBO-AM in Orlando, Fla., and was fired in 1963 after throwing a punch and epithets at a supporter of abortion rights. He is best known for his television talk show.

"The Morton Downey Jr. Show" made its debut on New York's independent television station WWOR-TV in 1987, bringing Downey national attention for his abrasive style. The show became syndicated nationally on Memorial Day 1988.

The show, in which Downey typically hurled abuse at his guests while bullying them to defend their opinions or lifestyles, ranks No. 1 in its time slot despite the comments of critics from coast to coast. Joyce Millman of the San Francisco Chronicle, for example, castigated him as a "foul-mouthed, arrogant, sexist, racist, xenophobic... basic all-American lout."

Rivera, the only other person nominated for the Sour Apple, recently made the cover of Newsweek for a story on "Trash TV." The graduate of Brooklyn Law School was an investigative reporter before hosting his nationally syndicated talk show, "Geraldo."

Fans buy Liberace mansion for $325,000

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — A retired oilman and a housewife purchased Liberace's lavish 14-room mansion at auction Saturday for the bargain basement price of $325,000 and announced plans to turn the 10,549 square-foot villa into a memorial to the late entertainer.

James H. Sedger, 52, a retired oilman from Calgary, Alberta, Canada, and Lorna Burroughs, 49, a housewife from Phoenix, Ariz., both fans of the late flamboyant pianist, said they have formed a partnership to preserve the home, turn it into a museum, and open it to the public.

"We want to preserve it as a tribute to Liberace," said Burroughs. "We want to preserve it and open it for the enjoyment of the public."

The home, which features mirrored-marbled rooms, Tivoli lights and ceiling frescoes, was originally listed on the open market at $2.8 million but failed to sell at that price.

Sedger, who now resides in Las Vegas, and Burroughs said they are not sure yet if they will open the museum as a business or operate it as a non-profit attraction.

An estimated 300 people attended the Saturday evening auction, held on the 26th floor of Bally's Hotel-Casino on the Las Vegas Strip. Thirty-two people registered to bid on the home. Six bids were submitted during the five-minute auction.

Auctioneer Eric Nelson of Eric Nelson Auctioneering, of Las Vegas, opened the bidding at $1 million, failed to receive an offer, and lowered the opening price to $500,000.

Nelson finally settled for an initial bid of $200,000 and four other offers followed before Sedger submitted the winning amount.

Sedger, who was doing the bidding for the partnership, threw his white cowboy hat in the air and let it fall to the floor as Nelson proclaimed him owner of the home previously belonging to the man affectionately known as "Mr. Showmanship."

Second arrest made in boarding house deaths

United Press International

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Police investigating the mysterious deaths of seven elderly people who lived at the same boarding house said Saturday they have arrested a second person and linked an eighth body to the bizarre case.

Ismael Carrasco Florez was arrested on charges he built the pine box in which the eighth body, that of an elderly man, was placed. The man was put in a pine box and dumped in the Sacramento River nearly three years ago, police said.

Police declined to furnish Florez' age or address. They said a news conference will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Authorities had previously dug up seven bodies in the heavily landscaped yard of the boarding house on F Street not far from the state Capitol.

The operator of the boarding house, Dorothea Montalvo Puente, 59, was arrested last month after the gruesome discovery, charged with one count of murder, and is being held without bail at Sacramento County Jail.

The boarding house catered to hard-to-place welfare clients and alcoholics, and police charge she continued cashing the welfare and other checks of missing boarders.

Puente is an ex-convict who had served time for drugging and robbing elderly bar patrons.

Florez is accused of building the pine box casket at Puente's request and helping her dump it in the river from a levee 20 miles north of Sacramento in late December 1985. The casket and a plastic-wrapped body were found on New Year's Day 1986 in the river in neighboring Sutter County.

The plastic wrapping was similar to that used to enshroud the bodies unearthed at the Sacramento boarding house.

Sutter County officials said the cause of death of the man has not been determined.

"The suspect was arrested sometime this afternoon by the Sacramento Police Department for being an accessory, and he told them he built the box in the F Street residence and that he assisted in transporting the box and dumping it," Sutter County sheriff's detective Steve Sizelove said.

Florez insisted he didn't know what was in the box, Sizelove said.

Sacramento police may have a tentative identification of the victim, who was believed to have lived out of state until shortly before his death, he said.

Doctor: Heavy metal music is 'religion' to some youths

United Press International

ATLANTA — A psychiatrist who treats drug-addicted youths says rock music with "heavy metal" themes of violence, sexual deviation and occult symbolism is increasing and becoming a "religion" for some troubled teenagers.

Dr. Paul King said in an interview that youngsters are listening to music with lyrics even more aggressive and violent than those of heavy metal.

The new music with more destructive themes is known as "black metal" or "speed metal," he said. King cited one song, "Angel of Death" by Slayer, which talks of Dr. Joseph Mengele, the Nazi doctor who conducted grotesque medical experiments on Jews in Adolf Hitler's death camps.

"Attention to negative images in the music field is increasing," he said.

King, one of the speakers at a recent Atlanta conference on drug and alcohol addiction, has just published a book, "Sex, Drugs and Rock 'N' Roll," with an entire chapter devoted to the destructive, violent themes of heavy metal music.

"The word 'religion' is not used lightly," King said in an interview last week. "For a troubled youngster who views the world through dark glasses, heavy metal is a theology of chaos, violence and rebellion expressed in thunderous rhythm."

The chemically-dependent youngsters in treatment, he said, tell him they listen to messages that "tell it like it is. You want to know something about us? You better listen to our music."

King, who has been treating drug and alcohol addicted youths for 12 years, is director of adolescent services at Charter Lakeside Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. Charter Lakeside is one of 55 hospitals specializing in addictive disease care operated by the Charter Medical Corp.

He wrote the 132-page book over a three-year period because "I'm a parent. What I find out there as an adult, we still don't understand their world — that spiritual struggle between good and evil."

"The values for school, home and church are weaker today than they were 20 years ago," King said. "Children who do not identify with the values with which they were raised must identify with something. All youngsters, whether they say so or not, believe in a higher power. Troubled youngsters believe the highest power is evil. Heavy metal affirms this theology and puts it to music."

Drug addicted youngsters "are so far removed from society, the music makes them feel strong in a negative way."

Thirty-two Rhodes scholarships awarded

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Thirty-two students from American colleges and universities were named Sunday as recipients of prestigious Rhodes scholarships for study at Oxford University. Harvard led with five and Yale had four.

The winning undergraduate and graduate students, 22 men and 10 women, were selected from 1,200 applicants attending 300 colleges and universities nationwide.

David Alexander, American secretary of the Rhodes Scholarship trust, said recipients were pursuing studies ranging from medicine to social concerns.

"This year's recipients showed particular concern about domestic problems such as hunger, the homeless and AIDS," he said. "Many also were involved in literacy programs and as tutors in the inner city."

Students from 24 colleges and universities were selected, led by Harvard's five recipients and Yale's four. Last year, Harvard claimed 10 winners and Ivy League rival Yale had none.

Three schools, the College of William and Mary, Regis

College and New College of the University of South Florida had winners for the first time, Alexander said.

A total 30 states were represented, with two each from Ohio and Oklahoma. The two from Ohio, Christopher Ford and Blaire Hoagy, are both from Cincinnati and both attend Harvard.

California schools had the largest number of recipients with two students from Stanford and one each from the University of California, Berkeley, the California Institute of Technology, Whittier College, Occidental College and the University of Southern California.

The Caltech student, Gregory Dubois, from Sarasota, Fla., entered New College of the University of South Florida at 12 and is about to receive his doctorate in physics at 23, Alexander said.

Vice President-elect Dan Quayle's alma mater, DePauw University, had its first winner since 1948 in Douglas Diemer, from Florissant, Mo., and Baylor University had its first winner since 1934 in Brad Carson of Tulsa, Okla.

Police crack down on cocaine couple

United Press International

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. — A couple accused of giving their 17-year-old daughter cocaine and teaching her how to make crack told police they figured the girl would be exposed to drugs anyway and "wanted her to be exposed at home," authorities said.

Victor Hupman, 36, and his wife, Patricia, 34, were booked on four counts each of furnishing cocaine to a minor, police said.

The 17-year-old girl told her school counselor about her parents giving her cocaine and even "teaching" her how to cook the drug to produce crack, a highly addictive derivative that is smoked.

State child abuse laws required the school to inform police.

Mountain View police Lt. Steve Gray said Victor Hupman, who was arrested Friday night, told investigators he figured his daughter would be exposed to cocaine anyway, and "wanted her to be exposed at home."

Gray said there was no evidence the couple offered cocaine to their four other children, who range in age from 6 to 14. But two of the younger children were aware their parents used the drug, Gray said.

"It's not uncommon for kids to find their parents' drugs and ingest them," Gray said.

Belgian shot dead in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Gunmen shot and killed a Belgian national Monday as he walked along a Muslim west Beirut street near a Syrian army checkpoint, police said.

The victim, identified as George Arthur Jan Van Newerborg, 65, was walking in the city's Manara neighborhood when he was attacked by three assailants and shot with a gun equipped with a silencer, a police spokesman said.

"The man was killed at 11 a.m., but still we have no details on his murderers or his status," the spokesman said.

Neighbors said Van, a teacher at the Muslim-run Ras Beirut cultural center, is divorced and lives with his son in the area.

Philippine military on alert

MANILA, Philippines — Military forces have been placed on alert after intelligence reports revealed that coup leader Gregorio "Gringo" Honasan was plotting to destabilize President Corason Aquino's government, a security official said Monday.

Brig. Gen. Rodolfo Blazon, chief of the capital's military defense command, said in a radio interview military forces were on alert and that directives had been sent over the weekend for troops to check intelligence reports that Honasan had joined right-wing forces "to undertake destabilization actions."

But Blazon denied reports that the military had been placed on red alert — the maximum state of readiness.

"The messages were sent out to warn the troops and for them to be vigilant. We cannot disregard these intelligence reports," Blazon said.

Blazon played down the potential threat of Honasan, an army lieutenant colonel, and National Police Maj. Reynaldo Cabanatan, who heads a right-wing group loyal to exiled President Ferdinand Marcos.

Blazon did say Honasan's forces could resort to "assassinations, bombings and raids."

North Korea names new premier

TOKYO — North Korea announced Monday the appointment of Communist Party Secretary Yon Hyong Muk as the nation's new premier, replacing Li Gun Mo who resigned for health reasons.

The official (North) Korean Central News Agency said Yon's selection, made by the party Central Committee Sunday, was approved Monday by the Supreme People's Assembly, North Korea's parliament.

The agency, in a dispatch monitored in Tokyo, said Li submitted his resignation because "he found it difficult to carry on economic organization and external activities for health reasons."

The dispatch said Li also stepped down from the Politburo.

The agency said Han Song Ryong succeeded Yon as party secretary.

It also said Hyon Jun Guk was named editor-in-chief of Rodong Simun, the party's official newspaper. Hyon was replaced by Chu Gyu Chang as a member of the Central Committee, it said.

Scandal prompts minister's resignation

BERN, Switzerland — Swiss justice minister Elisabeth Kopp resigned Monday in the wake of allegations linking her husband's former company with a $1 billion money-laundering operation.

Kopp, 52, said she would leave office at the end of February.

She was elected in 1984 as the first ever woman minister on the seven-member Federal Council or governing cabinet, and her resignation was a major political sensation in normally tranquil Switzerland.

It followed the disclosure by authorities in November that around $1 billion had been "laundered" in Switzerland by a so-called "Lebanon Connection" international drug ring run by Lebanese and Turks.

Narcotics were smuggled from the Middle East to Western Europe and the United States while the proceeds were deposited in Swiss bank accounts by couriers flying from Beirut to Zurich via the Bulgarian capital, Sofia.

Police said a Zurich trading company named Shakarchi had been investigated in connection with the money-laundering operation although no charges have been made.

Hans Kopp, a leading Zurich lawyer, was on the board of the Shakarchi company but resigned Oct. 27.

Labor, Likud to begin coalition talks

JERUSALEM — Israel's two major political parties vowed to work quickly and "listen to each other" in talks Monday on forging a coalition government that has eluded them since the divisive Nov. 1 elections.

Labor Foreign Minister Shimon Peres and Likud Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir met Sunday to lay the groundwork for formal negotiations aimed at creating a new government, and both sides were hopeful that the current impasse would soon be resolved.

The talks between Shamir and Peres added another level to the political dealing Israeli politicians have been engaged in since the elections failed to give any political party a majority in parliament, the Knesset.

Nearly six weeks have passed since the elections, and four weeks since President Chaim Herzog asked Shamir to try and form a government.

But in a possible stumbling block to compromise, Peres is still insisting that Labor would not join any government that intends to build 40 new settlements in the Israeli-occupied territories in the next four years and give a lot of money to Orthodox religious parties, Shahal said.

Those two conditions were written into agreements Likud signed with smaller right-wing and religious parties in negotiations to form a coalition involving those factions without Labor.

Ariane 4 rocket successfully launched

KOUROU, French Guiana — A towering French Ariane 4 rocket hurled two communications satellites into orbit Saturday, 24 hours late, in a record launch marking the commercial debut of Europe's most powerful rocket.

The 195-foot Ariane 4, equipped with four strap-on boosters for extra launch power, roared to life at 7:34 p.m. EST, lighting up a cloudy night sky as it climbed away from the European Space Agency's jungle launch complex on the northern coast of South America.

Frederic d'Allest, president of Arianespace, the European consortium that markets Ariane boosters, said the launch of two satellites set a record in the international commercial launch market.

Lift-off had been planned for 6:56 p.m. but the countdown was stopped at the T-minus 26-second mark because of concern about a fuel valve in the rocket's third stage. The concern proved groundless, however, and the launch proceeded 38 minutes later, a day behind schedule because of bad weather and technical problems Friday.

Twenty minutes after lift-off, a British military communications satellite called Skynet 4B, the first military payload ever carried by an Ariane, was placed in its preliminary orbit and four minutes after that, a European direct broadcast television satellite called Astra 1A followed suit.

Two jets crash in Armenia

Seven Yugoslavs, 78 Soviets killed while flying supplies to quake victims

United Press International

LENINAKAN, U.S.S.R. — Seven crewmen were killed when a Yugoslav plane carrying medical supplies for Armenian earthquake victims crashed Monday near the city of Yerevan, a day after a Soviet cargo jet on a similar mission went down with the loss of 78 lives.

The two plane crashes came as rescuers raced to reach people still trapped beneath tons of rubble six days after the earthquake devastated a wide area of Armenia, killing tens of thousands of people.

The Yugoslav news agency

Tanjug said the Yugoslav airplane, a Soviet-built An-12 propjet, crashed at 2:23 a.m. Monday about 10 miles from the airport at Yerevan, the capital of the Armenian Republic.

Tanjug said the plane, which was hauling medical supplies to the devastated region, normally carries a crew of seven and that all aboard died in the crash. It did not give a reason for the crash.

As President Mikhail Gorbachev ended a grim tour of the stricken region Sunday, the official Tass news agency reported that a four-engine Il-76 jet transport loaded with troops and relief supplies crashed on approach to the Leninakan airport.

Tass said nine crew members and 69 soldiers were killed in the Sunday crash. It did not say what caused the crash, how many people were aboard, or if there were any casualties on the ground.

Sunday's edition of the military newspaper Red Star carried a warning of such an incident, saying the skies over some of the ravaged areas had become dangerously crowded with the arrival of scores of supply planes.

Several planes are circling at one time, waiting for the signal to land. In these conditions, we need precision and rigid coordination," the daily said.

About 300 Soviet transport planes are flying around the clock to bring emergency supplies to the region, and international flights continue to arrive with urgently needed medical equipment.

Officials in Moscow Saturday put the death toll from the Wednesday earthquake at 45,000, but Armenian government spokesman Vartan Vaskanyana said in the republic's capital of Yerevan that an estimated 50,000 to 60,000 died.

Half a million people were left homeless in several cities nearly destroyed by one of the worst quakes in Soviet history.

52 dead in fireworks accident

United Press International

MEXICO CITY — An explosion in a fireworks vendor's booth sparked a massive blaze that raced through several buildings in a crowded Mexico City shopping district, killing at least 52 people and injuring 100, police said.

The Sunday afternoon fire spread to several other fireworks stalls in the central La Merced market and engulfed nearby apartments and stores before it was finally brought under control, authorities said. At least 14 of the dead were children.

Mexico City Mayor Camacho Solis, after visiting the fire scene, said the government would soon enact laws banning the sale of fireworks from makeshift stands such as the one where the explosion occurred.

The homemade stands traditionally spring up throughout the city with the approach of the Mexican holidays Day of Our Lady of Guadalupe and the Posada Christmas festival. Many Mexicans celebrate the holidays with fireworks.

We have discovered 52 bodies so far and we are still searching for more bodies," Eduardo Cruz Sanchez, a firefighter involved in the rescue operation, told United Press International. "There may be more bodies."

A fire official who insisted on anonymity said many of the injured were critically burned, and said the death toll was expected to climb much higher.

The explosion and fire occurred about 3 p.m. (4 p.m. EST) at one of the temporary fireworks booths and quickly spread to other fireworks shops, five blocks from downtown and one block from the La Merced market, one of Mexico City's major commercial centers, fire officials said.

The fire also spread to the Ampudia market, which houses several apartments and sweet stores, before it was extinguished three hours later, authorities said.

A column of dark smoke rose high over the wooden and concrete shops, many of which had been jammed with holiday shoppers.

"I lost everything I have nothing left," said 55-year-old Araceli Garcia as she looked at her gutted sweet shop in the Ampudia building. "This is going to be the worst Christmas of my life."

At least 80 temporary fireworks shops were set up in the area when the explosion occurred "and most of them were set up illegally," said Domingo Echeverria Avila.

Anti-Moroccan rebels shot down U.S. plane

United Press International

RABAT, Morocco — Anti-Moroccan rebels claimed responsibility Saturday for the downing of a U.S. aircraft chartered by the Agency for International Development, saying the plane was misidentified.

A communique by the Polisario Front rebels said the aircraft, shot down while flying in a Morocco combat zone on Thursday, has been found and that the bodies of the five American crew members will be turned over quickly.

The guerrillas expressed "profound regret" for the accidental shooting and its "deep-felt sympathy and condolences to the families of the deceased."

They said one of its reconnaissance patrols operating near the Morocco's desert defensive wall and the Western Sahara oasis of Gueliat Zemmur had been under constant attack by the Moroccan Air Force before Thursday's incident.

When two DC-7 planes chartered by U.S. AID were seen at 11:05 a.m. Thursday, the patrol thought they were C-130 Moroccan Air Force planes and fired at the aircraft, the Polisario communique said.

The DC-7s, on a flight from Dakar, Senegal, to Agadir, Morocco, carried no national or military markings.

"It is to be noted that the reconnaissance unit had been under constant bombing by the Moroccan Air Force and in this state of mind reacted and opened fire on the planes," the communique said.

"The destruction of one of the two (U.S.) planes was not premeditated," the communique said. "It was the result of a coincidence of war circumstances that pervaded in the area. The planes surprised the reconnaissance unit which had no means of identifying them."

The second chartered plane

also was damaged but landed safely.

Polisario, which has waged a 12-year war against Morocco over a territorial dispute in the Western Sahara, had vigorously denied the rebels downed the DC-7 Thursday.

The communique said Polisario had sent a team to investigate the downed aircraft and on Friday, found the DC-7 and its crew members.

U.S. officials earlier said missiles were fired at the plane, which were owned by an Arizona company.

They speculated that a case of mistaken identity was involved. The aircraft were flying in international air space, but in an area controlled by heavily armed guerrillas, deputy administrator Jay Morris with the U.S. Agency for International Development said Friday.

The crash site of the DC-7 was about 30 miles from Western Sahara-Mauritania border. Western Sahara was a Spanish colony until the mid-1970s when it withdrew and handed over its fate to the United Nations. Before the international body made any decision, however, Mauritania and Morocco occupied parts of Western Sahara.

Weight Loss Pill Approved for U.S. Gov't. Patent

'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight Already Sweeping U.S.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)—An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" you steady fat loss and calorie reduction by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

The U.S. government has just approved the doctors' claims for a hard-to-get patent that confirms there has never been anything like their fat bonding pill process before. "It's a totally new major scientific breakthrough and is revolutionizing the weight loss industry."

You Can "Eat Normally"
Best of all, "you can continue to eat your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat and reduce calories from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight you desire without exercising."

Flushes Fat Out of Body
The new pill is appropriately called the "fat magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles. Then, all the trapped fat and calories are naturally "flushed" right out of your body because they cannot be absorbed.

Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated.

"Automatically" Lose Fat
According to one of the inventors, Dr. William Shell, heart specialist and associate professor of medicine at UCLA medical school, "the new fat bonding process is a 'lazy way' to lose weight because the pills alone 'automatically' reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat. It is 100% safe and not a drug."

The fat magnet pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slimmer, trimmer and more attractive again.

Now Available to the Public
If you are trying to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these "no risk" highly successful fat magnet pills directly from the doctors' exclusive manufacturer only (includes optional calorie reduction plan for even better results). Send $20 for a 90 pill supply (+ $3 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+ $3 handling) to: Fat Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W246, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) Gulf ministers confer on summit agenda

United Press International

MANAMA, Bahrain — Persian Gulf Arab foreign ministers, hoping to solidify a fragile cease-fire in the Iran-Iraq war, conferred in Manama Sunday to prepare for their first summit since the truce took effect last August.

Foreign ministers of Bahrain, Saudi Arabia, United Arab Emirates, Kuwait, Qatar and Oman posed for photographers before meeting in a closed-door session under the chairmanship of Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud al-Faisal.

The meeting was a preliminary to a Dec. 19 summit of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council, established in May 1981 to coordinate regional defense and economic policy in light of the Persian Gulf war which began in late 1980.

"The halt of the Iran-Iraq war has encouraged the efforts of GCC member states to strengthen security in the gulf," said Sheikh Mohammad Bin Mubarak al-Khalifa, Bahrain's foreign minister, who opened the meeting.

Arab government officials and Western diplomats said the Dec. 19 summit, the first since the Aug. 20 cease-fire took effect, would be aimed at converting the fragile truce into permanent peace.

Both Iraq and Iran, who are not members of the GCC, still maintain massive armies facing each other along the 750-mile international border nearly four months after the U.N.-sponsored cease-fire took effect.

The officials and diplomats also said oil-rich GCC states, which bankrolled Iraq's war efforts during the eight-year conflict with non-Arab Iran, wanted to improve ties with Iran.

"The gulf Arabs don't want to see Iraq and its powerful army dominating their affairs in the post-war era," a Western diplomat said.

"They want to improve ties with Iran to ensure a balance between the two regional superpowers, but they don't want to antagonize Iraq. It's an extremely delicate diplomatic task."

The officials also said gulf Arab leaders at the upcoming summit also would discuss ways to curb oil production after last month's OPEC meeting in Vienna. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries at that meeting decided to cut production to stabilize oil prices.

The GCC leaders were also expected to discuss the latest developments on the Palestinian issue, the situation in Lebanon and greater economic coordination in the gulf region.

Gulf-based diplomats said Saudi Arabia was spearheading efforts among GCC states for greater cooperation and coordination of defense and security to thwart perceived threats from Iran and Iraq.

Kuwait, though a staunch Iraqi ally during the gulf war, still has not solved an outstanding border dispute with Baghdad.

And U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, who authorized this year the dispatch of some 350 U.N. peace-keeping troops along the Iran-Iraq border, said the potential for fresh hostilities remained strong.

U.N.-sponsored peace talks have stalled, in part over Iraqi insistence on sovereignty over the Shatt al Arab waterway between Iran and Iraq which leads into the Persian Gulf.

And while Baghdad said it has ordered a part demobilization of its army, Iranian leaders have continued to call for "more volunteers to the war front" while pressing the Iranian military to remain "on alert."

Neither side has yet fulfilled other conditions of the U.N. cease-fire resolution, such as withdrawal of troops behind international frontiers and an exchange of all prisoners of war.

An agreement to exchange sick and wounded prisoners of war collapsed after a few days when Iran, complaining that Iraq was not returning the agreed number of POWs, halted the Red Cross-sponsored operation.

Pakistan legislators vote for president

United Press International

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Legislators voted Monday in presidential elections expected to confirm veteran politician Ghulam Ishaq Khan in the office he assumed on the death of President Mohammad Zia ul-Haq four months ago.

Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto later was to face a vote of confidence in the National Assembly. Bhutto was nominated Dec. 1 by Ishaq Khan as the first woman leader of a moderate Muslim country and Pakistan's youngest head of government.

Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party won the largest bloc of National Assembly seats in the Nov. 16 elections, the first democratic polls in the country in 11 years. But she failed to gain an absolute majority and must rely on smaller parties and independents for support.

Under the constitution, she must seek a confidence vote within 60 days of taking office.

Bhutto's father, Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, was overthrown by Zia, then army chief of staff, in a 1977 coup and was hanged two years later for his alleged role in the murder of a political opponent.

Zia ruled for 11 years, eight of them as head of a military government, until his death in a mysterious Aug. 17 plane crash. Ghulam Ishaq Khan, then Senate chairman and Zia's constitutional successor, immediately assumed the office of head of state.

Members of both the national houses of Parliament and the four provincial assemblies Monday voted in presidential elections, which must be held within 30 days of general elections. The term of office for the president is five years.

Although four candidates were standing for the office, Ishaq Khan is virtually assured of retaining the post, as both Bhutto's party and the Islamic Democratic Alliance, a coalition led by former Zia associates and the second largest political grouping in the country, have pledged to support him.

His nearest rival is Nasrullah Khan, a veteran politician who is the sole National Assembly representative of his right-wing Pakistan Democratic Party.

The election is held by secret ballot by an electoral college in which all the provincial assemblies have equal voting strength irrespective of their size. Polling began at 10 a.m. (midnight EST) and the result was expected to be announced in the evening.

During his long career as a civil servant, Ishaq Khan, 73, has seen the rise and fall of all governments in Pakistan.

Troops patrol Tibet after killings

United Press International

BEIJING — Truckloads of paramilitary police patrolled the streets of the Tibetan capital of Lhasa Sunday, a day after reports there said police fired at Chinese demonstrators, killing at least three Tibetans and wounding a Dutch tourist.

The deaths brought to at least 14 the number of people killed in demonstrations for independence in the restless Himalayan region since the fall of 1987.

Lhasa was quiet Sunday but security was tight as truckloads of paramilitary police rumbled down the streets in a show of force, according to foreigners reached in Lhasa by telephone.

Foreigners who witnessed Saturday's incident said at least three Tibetans, including a Buddhist monk, were killed and one tourist was wounded by gunfire when demonstrators encountered police in front of the Jokhang Temple — the holiest shrine in Tibet's Buddhism and site of similar protests.

Unconfirmed reports said as many as 12 people may have died.

The China Central Television evening news broadcast said one monk died and 13 people were wounded, two seriously, in the "riot."

"As the troublemakers refused to listen to persuasion and kept throwing stones and liquor bottles at the police on duty, the police were forced to fire warning shots," the television report said. "In the ensuing chaos, one monk died and 13 people were injured."

Voice from under collapsed building: "I can see the light"

United Press International

LENINAKAN, U.S.S.R. — For five days since a powerful earthquake virtually destroyed Armenia's second largest city, residents using shovels, hammers and their bare hands have been digging through tons of rubble in a desperate search for their loved ones.

As sunset approached Sunday, a voice cried out from under the ruins of what used to be a nine-story apartment building in Leninakan. "I can see the light."

"Seven people are here and dust is falling in on us," the voice said.

As a light rain began to fall, at least 50 men, pulling on a rope, tried to haul away a massive slab of concrete to free the survivors. Their fate was not immediately known. (The UPI reporter at the scene was cut off from Moscow when the telephone line crackled and went dead.)

"What a shame my daughter is lying under that pile of rocks, and there is no equipment," said Anayid Masuyan, 43, crying with five other women gathered around a campfire — blankets around their legs.

"They say the whole world is helping us," Masuyan said. "Where are the cranes from the entire world?"

Appeals for more equipment to speed up the slow pace of the rescue effort were heard everywhere in the disfigured city.

The mayor of Leninakan pleaded for cranes to take away the rubble to save those still struggling for life under the heaps of prefabricated cement slabs, glass and twisted metal of their collapsed high-rise apartment complexes.

"Where is the equipment to dig them out," screamed a survivor huddling around one of the dozens of fires dotting the city's rubble-strewn streets.

The first Western correspondents to visit Leninakan, one of cities hardest hit by the earthquake that struck the southern republic of Armenia last Wednesday, found many people milling about in a daze of shock and mourning.

"It is already the 6th day and we are going around like mad people," said Agasi Manukyan. "So many people have died."

Relatives from outside the city, about 50 miles north of the Armenian capital of Yerevan, trying to enter and find out what happened to their loved ones clogged the roads into Leninakan, which once had a population of 230,000.

IN BRIEF

BASKETBALL

Humphries sinks Lakers

The Los Angeles Lakers left only a small crack in the defense, but Jay Humphries squeezed through for the first game-winning shot in his five-year career.

Humphries hit a 15-foot jumper as time expired Sunday night, giving the Bucks a 95-94 victory over the Lakers and snapping Los Angeles' seven-game winning streak.

Humphries, who scored a season-high 18 points, sank the basket after receiving the inbound pass from Paul Pressey. He drove past A.C. Green and hit the jumper from the free-throw line.

"When you've got a one-point lead, with three seconds to go, you just want to contain," Humphries said. "We had two guys converge, and there was a little gap and he got a good look at the ball."

Magic Johnson, who had 11 points and 12 assists for the Lakers, said Humphries "just pushed in between us and went up with it."

In Sunday's only other game, Philadelphia snipped past San Antonio 128-123 in overtime.

Oilers stun Bengals, 41-6

United Press International

HOUSTON — The newest chapter of the Cleveland Brown fan club resides, strangely enough, in Houston.

The Houston Oilers routed Cincinnati 41-6 Sunday. That prevented the Bengals from clinching the AFC Central title. It also means the Oilers will clinch a playoff berth if one of their most heated rivals, the Cleveland Browns, defeat the Miami Dolphins Monday night.

"I never thought I'd pull for a team from Cleveland, Ohio," Houston Coach Jerry Glanville said. "But tomorrow night, I'll be pulling for the Browns."

"People have been painting us dead, done, over and finished every year, but here we are again."

The Bengals, who already have a playoff spot guaranteed, fell to 11-4. Cincinnati can still clinch its first AFC Central title since 1981 if it beats Washington next weekend. But, with Buffalo beating the Los Angeles Raiders Sunday to improve to 12-3, the Bengals lost the inside

Pats chill Bucs, 10-7

United Press International

FOXBORO, Mass. — Jason Staurovsky connected on a 27-yard field goal 3:08 into overtime Sunday to keep the New England Patriots' playoff hopes alive with their first-ever overtime triumph — a 10-7 victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

New England had lost all 10 previous overtime games. The Patriots, 9-6, play at Denver on Saturday and could reach the post-season depending upon the outcome of the remaining Houston and Cleveland games.

Two weeks ago, Staurovsky missed a 27-yard field goal in the final seconds to cost the Patriots a game in Indianapolis.

Tampa Bay won the coin toss before the extra period but decided to keep the wind at their backs. New England's Sammy Martin returned the kickoff 34 yards down the right sideline to the 35.

Wildcats steal the show

Lake Mary winds up 3rd

By DAVID CORCORAN
 Herald correspondent

LONGWOOD — Before the start of the 15th annual Lyman Christmas Tournament, the big question was, "Can anybody stop the Lake Mary Rams?"

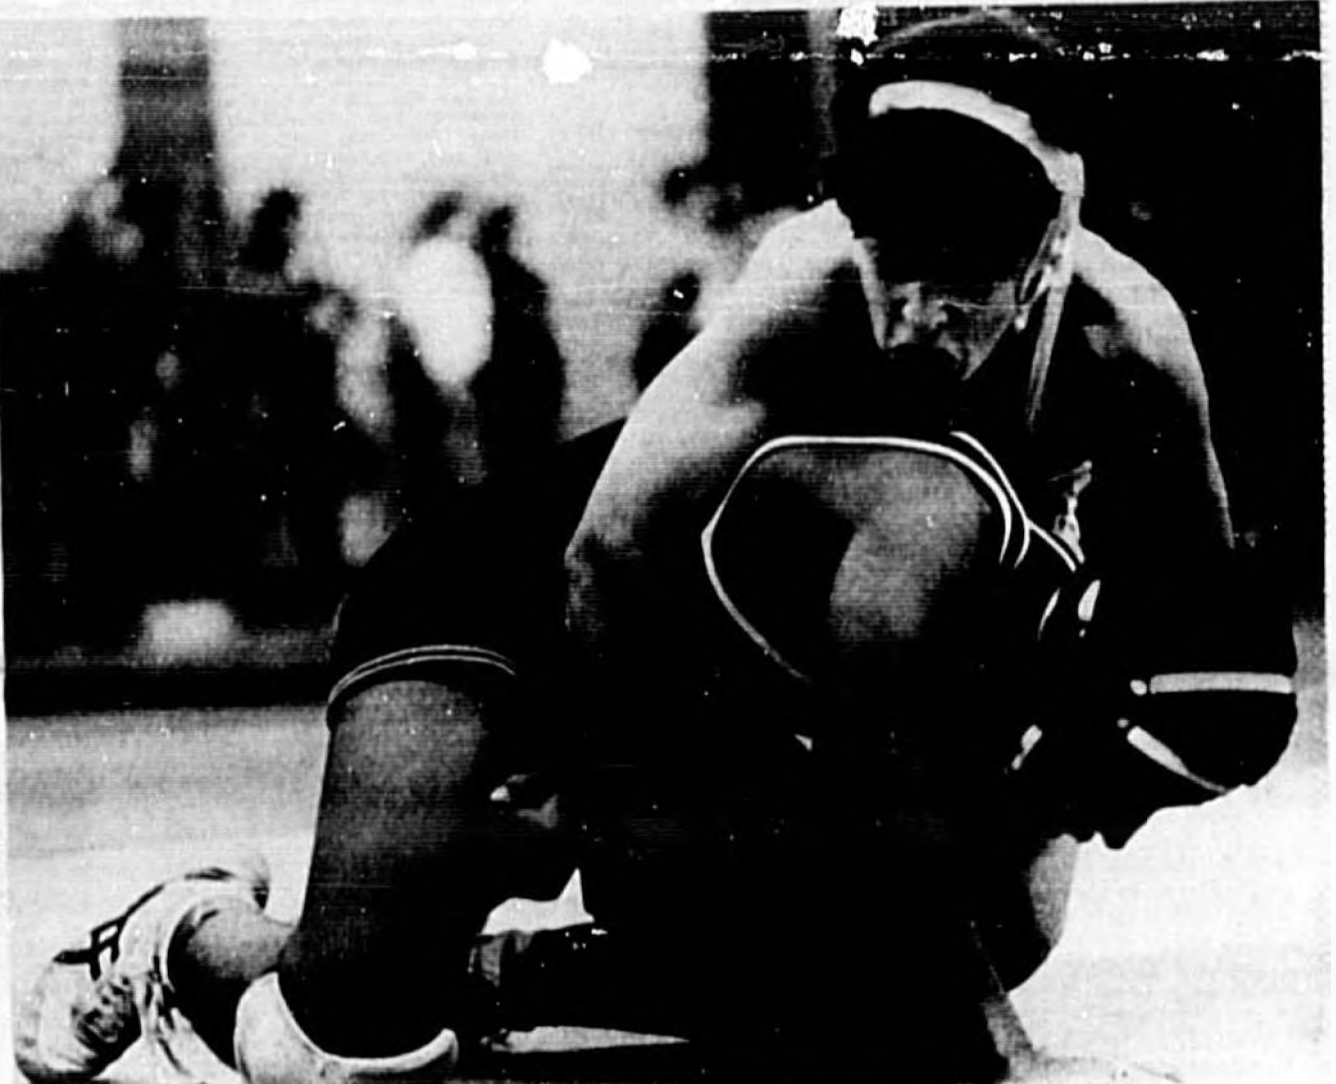

And the answer was yes as the Wildcats of Winter Park High School, having four of their wrestlers winning in the lower weight classes, won the tournament for the first time since 1977 (their fourth overall), just edging out Flagler Palm Coast by just 4½ points, 144-139½, with Lake Mary a disappointing third with 130.

"This is more special than winning in 1976 when we had six of our wrestlers win single titles," said a very pleased Wildcats coach John Rouse. "The three other times that the team won the tournament, I was an assistant coach. So this is my first as a head coach."

And how does Rouse feel about his Wildcats defeating the Rams and their coach Doug Peters?

"Last! I think that Lake Mary has a great team, and winning this tournament is a big feather in our cap. The relationship that I have with Doug (Peters) is very close since I coached Doug at the University of Central Florida as an assistant under Pat Cursi. It's no longer a teacher-student relationship, but a personal relationship. Doug's been a real asset with promoting high school wrestling in Central Florida."

As for the Rams, the loss is another of continuing disappointments at the Lyman tournament, especially to Peters.

Lyman's David Mengel attempts to take Cocoa Beach's Emory Bullard to the mat.

"We're (Lake Mary) very disappointed that we didn't win this tournament, because we thought we had an excellent chance to win it coming in," Peters said. "I thought going in that the best team would win it, and Winter Park won it. So they are the best wrestling team in this area at this time. Flagler Palm Coast also should be commended for having an outstanding squad, and four individual winners. We may just be jinxed or something, but we're going to win."

Czechs win Federation Cup

MELBOURNE, Australia — Czechoslovakia, led by Helena Sukova, upset the Soviet Union 2-1 Sunday to win the Federation Cup, the fourth time in six years it has won this women's team tennis tournament.

Czechoslovakia has captured the Federation Cup five times overall, with previous victories in 1975, 1983, 1984 and 1985.

Sukova, ranked No. 8 in the world, received excellent support from Radka Zrubakova, a 17-year-old making her Federation Cup debut. She lost only one set and 30 games in her five singles matches, while Sukova swept her five matches, losing only 27 games.

"This is the first time I have been number one on the team and it is a little different this time," said Sukova, a member of all four previous winning teams. "I don't feel the pressure."

SOCCER

World Club title decided

TOKYO — Nacional de Montevideo of Uruguay, behind two goals from Santiago Javier Ostolaza, defeated PSV Eindhoven of Holland on penalty kicks Sunday to win the Toyota Cup World Club Championship.

In a game matching South American and European champions, Nacional and PSV Eindhoven drew 2-2 through regulation and 30 minutes of overtime before the Uruguayans won 7-6 on penalty kicks.

Ostolaza's second goal came with a minute left in overtime, forcing the shootout that gave Nacional its third world title in the club's 89-year history.

Before a crowd of 62,000 at Olympic Memorial National Stadium, Nacional opened the scoring in seventh minute when Ostolaza headed in a corner kick by William Adrian Castro. Eindhoven tied it in the 75th minute on an own goal. Romario headed in the ball when a long pass from Brick Gerets spilled in front of Nacional's net.

Canucks skate past Jets

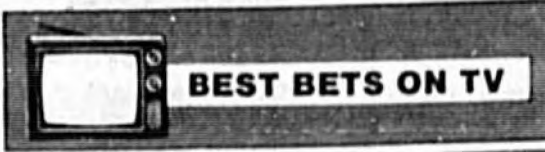

VANCOUVER, British Columbia — Rich Sutter scored the tying and winning goals midway through the third period Sunday night, leading the Vancouver Canucks to an 8-6 victory over the Winnipeg Jets.

Vancouver scored four unanswered goals over the final eight minutes of the game for the victory.

With Vancouver trailing 6-4, Trevor Linden banged in a rebound on the powerplay at 12:24 to bring the Canucks within one. Sutter tied the game 22 seconds later, and put Vancouver up 7-6 at 15:27, scoring on a slap shot on a 2-on-1 break.

Stan Smyl added an empty-net goal for Vancouver to close the scoring at 19:21.

Lady 'Noles host Mainland

From staff reports

Two of the most highly regarded teams in the state will collide tonight as Daytona Beach Mainland's Lady Bucs come to Sanford to take on Seminole High. Tipoff is 7:45 p.m. at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium.

Seminole, which hopes to crack into the top 10 in the state in Class 3A sometime soon, stands at 5-1 overall with its only loss to 3A power Orlando Jones. Mainland is 4-0 thus far but has yet to play a team with as much firepower as the Lady 'Noles.

The SHS girls have talent at every position and also have a good deal of bench strength, something Seminole teams have lacked in the past.

Junior center Sherri Reddicks has been playing superbly in the early going as she averages 18.3 points per game and 11.8 rebounds per game. She is shooting 56 percent from the floor and also has blocked 26 shots.

Senior guard Adrian Hillsman is also playing well for SHS as she averages 12.3 points and leads the team in assists with 51 and steals with 24 and she also averages 6.7 rebounds per outing.

Adding strength inside for the 'Noles is senior Chineta Gilchrist (7.5 points, 7.8 rebounds) while the top outside threats are senior Liz Long (8.7 points) and sophomore Koscia Kennon (7.3 points).

Emily Anderson has come through with some quality performances off the bench as she averages 4.8 rebounds per game while Aretha Riggins, Cindy Lyon, Meechelle Toombs and Yolanda Baker are other key reserves for the Lady 'Noles.

Mainland's Lady Bucs possess two of the most talented offensive ballplayers around in seniors Kristi Austell and Segena Mackerrey.

Lyman lecture

Lyman coach Laura Rountree gets her point across to her team during halftime of Friday's game vs. DeLand. Rountree had plenty to talk about. The Lady Grayhounds look 41 shots on goal and only managed to score once. Fortunately, DeLand didn't score. For a wrapup of the weekend's game, see Page 3B.

Herald sports writer

After years of painstakingly building the program, the Oviedo High School boys soccer team has finally gained some respect and his handing out some beatings of its own this season.

The Lions, 4-1 and ranked sixth in class 3A, moved up from 10th in the rankings this week as they tripped Seabreeze, the previously fourth-ranked team in 3A, 2-1, on Saturday. Seabreeze was one of the final four teams in 3A a year ago.

Oviedo took quite a few beatings until three years ago when coach Dave Jekanoski showed up and turned the program around. Jekanoski, who has a record of 31-15-4 since taking over at Oviedo, came to the school from Massachusetts where he coached both high school and college soccer.

"When I first came to the program, we just wanted gain some respect and play near the better teams," Jekanoski said. "Now we've improved to where we're at the level that we can beat any team in the state on a given night. I'm not saying we're the best team in the state, but we're not afraid to play anyone."

Jekanoski is more than happy with the turnaround and hopes the Lions can continue their strong play. Oviedo is also happy to be in the Seminole Athletic Conference, a conference which plays some of the state's best soccer.

"I can't be anything but happy with our improvement," Jekanoski said. "This is a very tough conference with a lot of quality players. There are tremendous coaches and a tremendous amount of talent and we're glad to play with these teams night in and night out."

Jekanoski also feels the youth soccer programs in Central Florida have played a key role in making this area a soccer stronghold. For the past three years Seminole County has had a team reach at least the final eight in class 4A and last year the Lions reached the regional playoffs for the first time in the school's history. Oviedo dropped a heartbreaking 1-0 region playoff game to Land O' Lakes in a game that Oviedo completely dominated.

The Lions will look to re-write the record books again this season by winning more than 12 games, which would set a school record, and go past the regionals.

"We feel, realistically, that we can reach the final four this year," Jekanoski said. "In our district the team to beat looks like Bishop Moore, then the winner of the Land O' Lakes district who we feel we can play with. If we get by that then it will likely be Seabreeze coming from the east and we've already proven we can play with them."

Jekanoski has a veteran team, with 12 seniors, and he hopes he can lead this team, that has been together for quite some time, to the state tournament. With the exception of two transfers, the 10 seniors have been together for 10 years or more on the soccer field and Jekanoski feels that helps his team.

"We've used to each other and we know if we lose we lost together, and if we win that we won together," Jekanoski said. "The kids help each other real well, and communicate real well. They're a fun group and they seem to enjoy being around each other."

Leading the way so far for the Lions this season has been defensive stopper back Derek Bates. Bates has been with the Oviedo soccer since his freshman season and has become one of the area's top players.

"We feel, overall, he's the best player in Central Florida," Jekanoski said. "He doesn't get that much recognition, I'm not sure why, but he does a heck of a job on the soccer field."

The Lions have had three players who have got the offense going this season in Tim Waisanen, Jeff DeRose and Al Balanda. Waisanen, a junior, has played on the varsity since his freshman year and has proven himself time and again to be a leader on the field for Oviedo.

DeRose is a transfer from Bishop Moore and he's made a smooth transition to the Lions style of play so far. Balanda, who returned from Argentina for his senior year after playing at Lake Howell in his sophomore season, has also fit into the Oviedo scheme well so far this season.

The Lions will now go up against some of their toughest competition when they go against Lake Mary and Lyman in the upcoming weeks. Oviedo, though, can look forward to playing these teams now more than in the past when it was being ripped by these teams.

Oviedo will get a chance to prove itself again when it competes for the first time ever in the prestigious Pizza Hut Tournament, widely considered the top prep soccer tournament in the state.

"We were pretty far down in the beginning," Jekanoski said. "Then we gained some respect and started playing better and better until we reached the plane we're on now. We honestly feel we can play with anyone and beat anyone in the state when we play our game."

One for 41 still enough for Lyman

From staff reports

One for 41 shots is not a very good goal-scoring percentage — it's actually pretty darn awful — but it was still enough for Lyman's Lady Greyhounds on Friday.

Lyman came up with a goal just 1:44 into the game and made it hold up as it downed DeLand, 1-0. Friday night in girls soccer action at Lyman High School.

The Lady Greyhounds, 2-3-1, return to action Wednesday at Winter Park. DeLand fell to 0-4 and will play again Wednesday at Oviedo.

Lyman totally dominated the Lady Bulldogs as it outshot them 41-1 on the night. The Lady Hounds were just unable to find the net on their last 40 shots.

Tracy Sher, though, came up with all Lyman would need when she scored on her team's first possession. Sher broke long and was fed by Jennifer McAvoy who was playing the center wing. Sher then leaped up and headed the ball into the goal for the only score of the night from five yards out.

HORNETS WIN 2

Bishop Moore's Lady Hornets came up with a pair of victories this past weekend to run their season record to 7-2-1.

On Friday, four girls contributed two goals each as the Bishop Moore pounded Oak Ridge 10-0.

On Saturday, Stephanie Gringer scored two goals and Amy and Jill Geltz had two assists each in a 6-0 rout of Orlando Evans.

Gringer, Stephanie Feulner, Jill Geltz and Amy Geltz each scored twice in the romp with Jennifer Hannigan and Andrea Dowd contributing single scores in the win over Oak Ridge.

The scoring started when Feulner, who also had three assists, led Gringer to the eventual game-winning goal. Before the first half was over, Feulner, on an assist from Nikki Souza, and Jill Geltz, assisted by Gringer would score.

In the second half, Gringer struck again, this time on an assist by Missy Borrero. Then it was Feulner's turn, assisted by Gringer. Amy Geltz got into the scoring column, converting a pass from Hannigan. She scored again a few minutes later on an assist from Feulner.

Jill Geltz, on an assist from Feulner, then got her second goal. Hannigan (on an assist by Jill Geltz) and Dowd (assisted by Amy Geltz) then followed with their scores.

Lyman goalkeeper Becky Carr gets off a punt in action vs. DeLand. Most of the action was away from Carr as DeLand only had one shot on goal compared to 41 for Lyman.

The Lady Hornets outplayed Oak Ridge in every facet of the game, outshooting the visitors 48-2. In goal, Bishop Moore's Suzi Strazzula needed to make just two saves to notch the shutout while Oak Ridge's 'keeper made 22 saves. Bishop Moore also took eight corner kicks while Oak Ridge didn't take any.

On Saturday, Bishop Moore scored three goals in each half. Behind Gringer's two goals, Feulner, Jill Geltz, Amy Geltz and Jennifer Doherty all had one goal while single assists went to Karen Butz and Nikki Souza.

Bishop Moore fired 36 shots on goal compared to two for Evans. Strazzula made one save in recording the shutout.

Seminole matmen squash pair of foes

By CHUCK BURGESS
Herald correspondent

The Seminole High matmen opened their season in fine fashion this past weekend in a quad match at Auburndale by slamming Lake Wales, 59-21, and then pounding Ocala Forest, 56-26, to take two of the three matches.

With the two wins, the balanced Seminoles opened the season with a 2-1 record and will host county rival Lake Howell this Tuesday. The "Nole" grapplers will then participate in a tournament this Saturday at Sebring.

"We did a good job for it being our first match of the year," Seminole head coach Glen Malolini said. "A lot of our kids are young and hadn't had a match yet, but they did a great job. Our young kids were learning on the mat what we do in practice and there was definite improvement throughout the later matches."

Scott Gipe, Julius Bennett, Larry Nathan, and Troy Rollins were all triple winners for the Tribe with most of the wins being pins. With the veterans taking the leadership role right off the bat in the early going, Malolini feels that this year could be a good one for the Seminole wrestling program.

"We've got an excellent group of returning kids," Malolini said of his upperclassmen. "Larry looks awesome right now and Troy said that he feels stronger now than he did at the state meet last year."

"Julius is an extremely physical wrestler and will help us at the upper weights and Scott, through hard work, has had a complete turnaround and has really come on strong."

The only thing that didn't go the Seminoles' way was a 48-19 loss to Auburndale as they racked up 24 total victories which included 14 pins. Malolini felt that the strong early showing will be good as his team builds up confidence and steam going into the heart of the season.

"Right now we've got at least three or four bonified state-class wrestlers," Malolini said. "If we keep going the way we are then we're going to have a real good season."

Double winners for the Seminoles included Karl Gipe (125), Thomas Brendle (130), Trent Schake (140), and Kevin Nathan (152).

"We lost a couple of close matches against Auburndale that could have made the score a little closer if they would have gone our way," Malolini said. "Kevin Nathan had his guy beat (10-3) and went to finish him off with a cradle, but the guy got his head out from under Kevin and ended up pinning him."

"Then another match had Mitch Wiggs going at it with the guy from Auburndale and he pinned him, but the referee said he pinned him after the buzzer. The guy came back in the next period and pinned Wiggs, so that kid of hurt us a little."

From the 130 and up weight classes, Malolini sees things solid, but he would like for his lighter weight athletes to get some more experience and some wins under their belts for the latter part of the season when it all counts.

Raiders take 3rd place

From staff reports

COCOA The Raiders of Seminole Community College overcame a disappointing loss to Miami-Dade Community College South and the absence of four regulars, to post an 60-79 victory over Cincinnati Technical College to win the consolation game of the Brevard Community College/Greater Cocoa Chamber of Commerce Christmas Tournament before 151 fans at Brevard Community College. Brevard won the tournament with a victory over Dade-South.

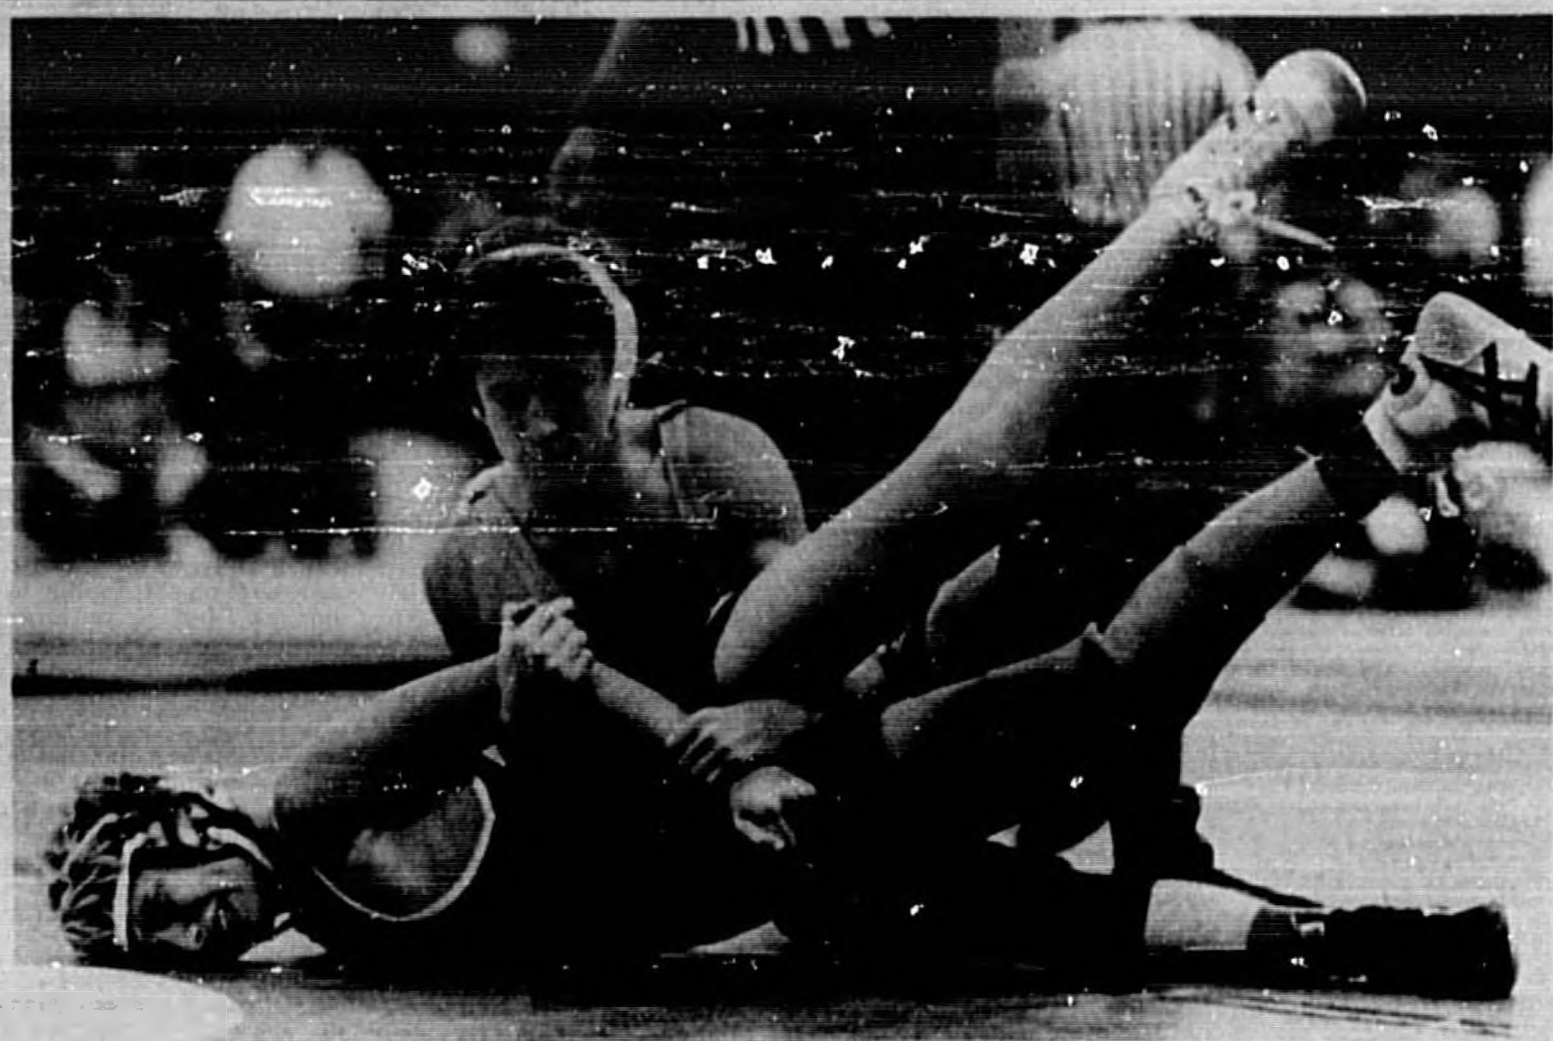

The Raiders now take off for the holidays and then have three straight non-conference home games before returning to Mid-Florida Conference play. On Thursday, January 5 the University of Wisconsin Center from Waukegan, Wisconsin comes to town, on the sixth its Waukegan County Technical College of Pewaukee, Wisconsin, and on the seventh it will be Indian River Community College of Fort Pierce, Florida coming to town. All three games will start at 7:30 p.m. at the Health and Physical Education Center on the Seminole campus. Seminole returns to conference play on Wednesday, January 12 when they travel to Palatka to take on St. John's River Community College.

Four free throws in the final 0-20, two each by T.J. Scaletta and Terrell Barnes, overcame a 77-76 Cincinnati Tech. lead and give Seminole its ninth victory of the season against five defeats. Tech. drops to 5-5 on the season.

Seminole played without starters Vincent Erickson (disciplin) and Richard Brown (late for team bus) and top reserves Mike Gaskill and Stephen Blackmon (late for bus). 6'2" freshman Tom Logan filled in at one forward and scored 12 points and grabbed a co-team high eight rebounds and 5'11" freshman Johnell Coco, while only scoring two points, came off the bench and grabbed six rebounds. Both did a great job defensively covering men six to seven inches taller than them. Cincinnati's two 6'8" front court players, Pat Washington and Ray Lawson, were held to five points and zero points between them in the first half.

All-Tournament performer Terrell Barnes scored 13 of his game high 19 points and Lyman High School graduate T.J. Scaletta came off the bench to score 10 of his 16 in the first half as the Raiders took a 37-32 lead and out-rebounded the much longer Cincinnati team 20-16 and held them to 40% shooting.

Two jumpers by Nick Milidakis and a 3-pointer by Lyman grad, Robert Thomas offset field goals by Lawson and Chris Williams to make the score 77-76 Cincinnati with 0:35 to play. A missed 3-point attempt by Cincinnati's Taylor was rebounded by Thomas. Seminole worked the ball around until Scaletta was fouled with 0:20 to play. Scaletta made both free tosses to give the Raiders a 78-77 lead. On the inbound play Thomas came up with a steal and Seminole called time out with 0:18 left. After the time out Barnes was fouled and made both free throws to make it 80-77 Seminole. Lawson's attempted long pass was intercepted by Barnes who was fouled by Keith Daniels with 0:13 left. Barnes missed the free throw and Cincinnati ran the ball down court looking for the tying 3-point shot. A pass by Jerry Naber found Williams open at the top of the key and he made the jumper with 0:04 left on the clock, but Williams' foot was on the line and was only a 2-pointer and Seminole ran out the clock to garner their eleventh win of the season.

Lake Howell's John White looks to get Cocoa Beach's Bill Housmann in a pinning position.

this tournament one of these days."

There were several key factors in the Wildcats' victory.

First, the Wildcats used their superior depth and the luck of the draw to take a 114-100 lead over FPC, with the Rams in third with 79.

Second, Winter Park avoided the upset bug that affected other teams as nine of the Wildcats advanced to the semifinals. The Rams on the other hand, had several of the top wrestlers upset in the early rounds, with Dan Sacco (130), Mike Larkin (145), Justin Naumovitz (171), and Elliot Israel (117) expected to at least reach the semifinals and give the Rams much needed points, which would have made the difference in Lake Mary winning the tournament.

And third, the Rams could have been emotionally drained after the big 61-13 win over arch rival Lake Brantley on Thursday, as Lake Mary looked like they were just going through the motions, and by the time the Rams got their act together, it was too little, too late.

While everyone expected a Winter Park-Lake Mary showdown, the team that impressed everyone was the Bulldogs of Flagler Palm Coast. The Bulldogs made their first ever visit to Central Florida. The Bulldogs, a Class 3A power in Flagler County the past several years, usually compete in the Jacksonville Forrest Invitational, but decided that they needed some better competition as the Bulldogs are expected to be one of the favorites to win the Class 3A title in the spring.

"We're pleased with the way we finished (2nd)," said Bulldogs coach Steve Draughtino. "When you step up in class (3A to 4A) and go against teams like Lake Mary and Winter Park, and ending up losing by just 5 1/2 points, then you have done a hell of a job."

Fresno St. triumphs in Cal Bowl

United Press International

FRESNO, Calif. — Fresno State traveled just 300 yards to play the California Bowl Saturday, a geographical fact that turned the tide in the Bulldogs' 35-30 victory over the Western Michigan Broncos.

When the FSU defense could not unravel Western Michigan, the vociferous home crowd of 30,000 did, forcing quarterback Tony Kimbrough into a crucial turnover.

With 10 minutes left in the third quarter, the Broncos, leading 24-21 at the time, had marched to the Fresno State 15. After a first down incompletion, Kimbrough approached the line only to have his signals drowned out by the partisan crowd. Kimbrough turned to the referees for help and was told to take as much time as he needed.

The crowd grew louder and Kimbrough once again turned to the referees for help. But instead of sending the teams back to their respective huddles, Kimbrough was called for delay of game.

"The referee (Jack Baker) admitted he made a mistake," said California Bowl president-elect John Wallace. "He said he told Kimbrough to take however long it took to run the play, but he inadvertently dropped his arm and the people on the sideline started the clock. Then the penalty was called."

The Broncos, now at the FSU 20, broke their huddle again only to encounter an even louder crowd. Kimbrough decided to go ahead with the play and never got the snap. The ensuing fumble was recovered by Fresno State's Terry Cook, killing Western's last major drive.

"I was worried about the crowd noise," said Western Michigan coach Al Molde. "I felt we should have been allowed stoppage of the clock. That was a big factor in the game."

Fresno State coach Jim Sweeney, who visibly encouraged the FSU partisans from the sidelines, defended his actions after the game.

"The crowd was a big factor," Sweeney said. "A crowd should be hostile and our crowd did good. Those people in the east stands (behind the FSU bench) were incredible. The crowd was at least a 7-point advantage."

Fresno State, inspired by the crowd, marched 80 yards in 10 plays to take the lead for good 28-24 on a 4-yard Darrell Rosette scoring dash. Myron Jones then added a 26-yard touchdown run to make it 35-24.

Western rounded out the scoring with 17 seconds left in the contest when Kimbrough ran in from 6 yards out on a keeper. The Broncos then failed on an onside kick, allowing FSU to run out the clock.

The victory was Fresno State's seventh straight as the Bulldogs finished the year with a 10-2 record, Western Michigan, meanwhile, dropped to 9-3.

Linebacker Tracy Rogers recovered fumble at his own 8-yard line to set up FSU first scoring drive early in the first quarter. After an 11-yard pass to Dwight Pickens and a personal foul, Mark Barotti dropped back and fired a bowl record 55-yard touchdown pass to Andre Alexander to give FSU a 7-0 lead.

That margin climbed to 14-0 when Barotti teamed up with Alexander once again, this time on a 38-yard bomb. But then the Bulldog offense was stalled by three interceptions and numerous penalties. FSU was flagged for a California Bowl record 20 penalties.

WMU rallied and closed to within 14-7 just 1:35 later when Kimbrough — who completed 24 of 57 passes for 368 yards — hit flanker Robert Oliver with a 31-yard scoring strike.

From a seat on the Ferris wheel, the lights of Brevard County's Fair have an almost Christmaslike beauty.

Fairs turn men into boys

Going, going, gone! Sadly, the fall county fairs are gone for another year.

Having attended two fairs this year, I consider myself fortunate. I never tire of them, ever since my first fair experience as a small boy got me hooked.

The common denominator of all fairs, since the days of medieval village fairs, is how, regardless of the era, every fair has been a festive reflection of the local people and their economy. People come together to show off their skills at agriculture and ranching, and to display the latest in technology. To spice things up, there are rides, midway games, sideshows and food.

A farmer's zoo

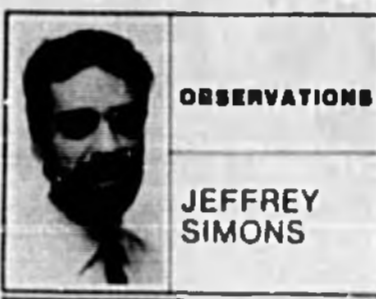

When I go to the fair, I must experience the whole thing and nothing but the whole thing. Having some background as a farm boy, I can't resist starting out at the animal sheds to check out the variety of fancy chickens, ducks, geese, turkey and game fowl on display. Being partial to the guinea hens and ring-neck pheasants, I can't help noticing the kind of folks who stop to admire them.

Often, a woman who is dressier than most will coo over the guinea hens. She usually wears a pair of fancy shoes or boots, and speaks fondly of the hens' feathered feet.

"We wouldn't need shoes if we had those," one woman declared.

The "dudes" in their feathered cowboy hats, pearly-buttoned shirts and snake-skin boots invariably stop at the ring-neck pheasants. They observe the brilliantly colored male and smile in admiration. Usually they strut away telling their girlfriends how and why the male is the flashier one of the pair. The story of machoism always comes out the same.

Favorites with the wee folk are always the rabbits and baby chicks. It must be an unwritten international law. As for the bunnies, the longer the ears, the more they're adored. Proximity to the holes at the front of the cage is a factor, too. Kids adore warm, soft and fuzzy—in any order—just as long as they can touch it. You'd never think a rabbit could be so tolerant.

OBSERVATIONS

The fair officials must be pretty tolerant, too. Though there were several signs asking everyone not to touch the baby chicks, an incessant flow of people handled them. Why would officials put them in an open ring within easy reach of everyone? Hundreds of downy, yellow chicks are irresistible. Instead of scolding their children for picking them up, parents showed them how to be gentle. I admit to scooping up a chick myself, despite knowing what they feel like.

In perusing the stock in the pig shed, one will overhear interesting comments from the young ones. Perhaps the two choicest were, "I didn't know pigs got this big!" and "Mommy, howcum they aren't all muddy?"

Though I too am in awe of the baby pigs, I had first-hand experience with a 4½-foot sow when I was a kid. I'm aware of their potential. As for the mud, I learned back then of pigs' preference for cleanliness and that they only roll in the mud to cool off.

The clean sheds at the fair were probably more to the liking of the hogs than most people realized. I might add that passing comments on the odors in the sheds told me who had or had not experienced farm living.

On the way out of the domestic menagerie, I can't miss the cattle shed. There is some quaint charm to staring eye-to-eye with a cow that doesn't run from me. In the pastures they would never stand still. And another fair advantage: You can stare down a bull without fearing for your life.

The local rodeos show off the talents of those who breed or handle these cattle. Thank goodness this remains one of the unspoiled elements of the fair. Rodeos are living relics of Americana. Talk about roots!

Then, who could resist the agriculture exhibits with their prize-size pumpkins, squashes and melons? It makes you wonder if the growers use fertilizers with steroids. And it seems impossible that there could be a food shortage with produce that size.

Less popular but interesting to me are the flower and plant exhibits. Gardeners from all around compete for ribbons for the best mum, rose and orchid. I like to compare the tropical plant entries to the ones in my yard. Every year, I scoff at the winning plants and swear to enter my finest into next year's competition.

Rides, games, eats

Between animals, plants and exhibits (I like to check them all out before riding any) comes a slow stroll down the midway. This unhurried gait is often due to the attempt to eat simultaneously. Practice has taught me how to get that first bite out of a candy apple: Start at the flat top. I also learned it's best to remain stationary while trying to consume a sausage sandwich with the works. This is when I investigate the games of the midway.

The prizes may change a little, but the games stay pretty much the same. You'll always find the balloon-dart, and ball and bottle games. Fair-goers always will take home cheap glassware from the nickel-pitch booths. The only difference in the prizes from year to year might be according to the latest stuffed-animal fad.

While I don't play any of these games, it is great fun watching others try their luck. Players run the gamut from a kid and her mother trying to "bomb" goldfish with ping-pong balls to whole families trying to whack "moles." There's always some single guy boosting his ego at the rifleshoot next to the fellows trying to impress their girls. Of course, the young men are ever striving to win prizes for the girls on their arms. It never fails: She wants the biggest prize in the booth and he winds up saying dearly for it.

Wandering some more, I come across more food favorites: elephant ears of sugared dough, curly fries, and the ever-popular cotton candy. At least you can eat these on the move.

You wouldn't want to miss the 1,000-pound sow in the sideshow (my grandma had one bigger; it took six bullets and the whole Simons family to kill her). Or how about the "headless" woman. She is reputed to be alive despite losing her head in an accident. Can you believe it?

Another kind of show may replace the sideshows within a few more years. Over the years, major bands are featured more and more.

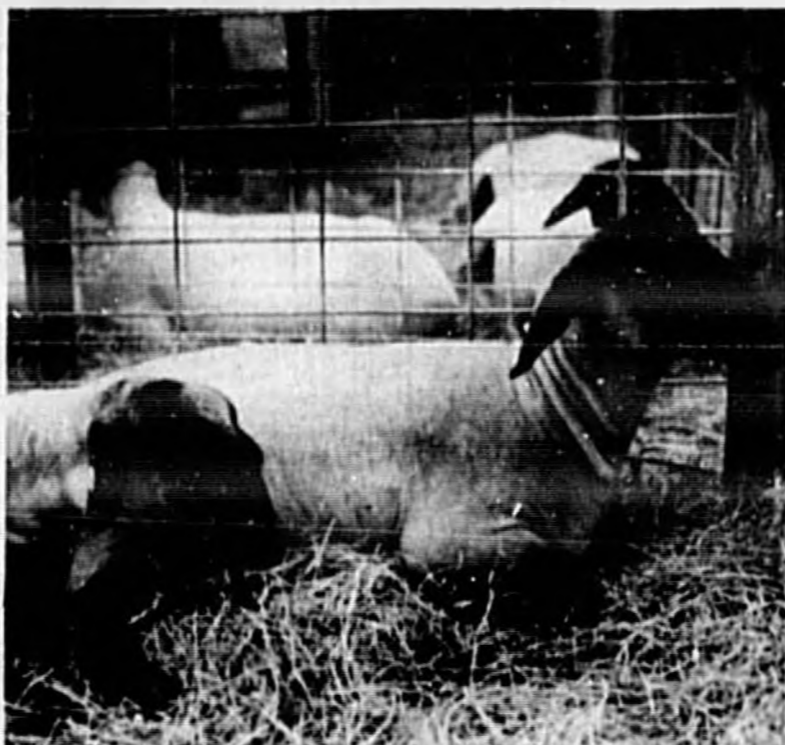

Even the rides use music as a drawing card nowadays. You could leave off the music, though, and I'd still ride. I love them! Strap me in, whirl me around, turn me upside down and I'm in heaven. Any true-blue rides fan has favorites, but I'd be hard-pressed to name just one. All I can say is, the best cheap thrills have one or more of the following elements: fast-spinning, sharp up-and-down, or upside-down movements.

Ever since I was a little kid needing someone who'd let me ride with them, I've craved the scariest rides. Usually, no one in my family was game. Consequently, they would pawn me off on a stranger standing in line. This year, I got to repay the favors of those kind folks.

At the request of his parents, a brave little boy rode one of the most frightening rides with me—"The Zipper." At first, he was yelling his head off, but when panic took over, he clammed up and froze. However, he got off shaky but smiling.

Something I noticed is that the "carnies" seem to be aware of the fastest moving or most rapid tumbling cars on the ride. They

The fair's midway appeals both to one's stomach and to the love for prizes.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Avid tournament players are quick to try out new ideas in bidding, but what about social and rubber bridge players? One reader writes that in his game, any suggestions for new uses for bids are branded as "highfalutin nonsense suitable only for duplicate nuts." Of course bridge is a fascinating game even at the basic level. But suppose I can show the players in your regular game a useful bid they can understand and remember? Cut this article out and show it to your friends.

The recommendation is called a splinter bid, and here's how it works. After you have opened the bidding and your partner has responded, a double jump in a new suit by you (the opener) shows a singleton or a void in that suit. It also shows four-card support for responder's suit and a hand strong enough to insist upon playing game. Obviously responder must bid at least game in the agreed suit.

In today's deal the jump to four clubs was a splinter bid. Although responder's hand was not powerful, he knew that opener's hand was very strong, so along the way to four spades it cost him nothing to show that he had a useful card in the opener's diamond suit. That was all that was needed for North to ask for aces and bid the cold small slam.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.

Bleaching may damage hair

DEAR DR. GOTT: I go to a tanning salon. I also bleach my hair. Recently I've noticed my hair is falling out. Is there a connection?

DEAR READER: Yes, the hair loss is probably connected to the hair bleach you are using.

Bleaching the hair affects the protein in the hair shaft; the process may also affect the growing hair follicle. This can cause hair loss. At best, the process depletes the normal levels of lubricating oil on the scalp. Bleached hair can become dry and brittle; it may break easily.

I suggest that you stop bleaching your hair or change to a coloring agent that is not so hard on your hair.

Also, remember that tanning salons are not healthful. The synthetic light is associated with an increased incidence of skin cancers in susceptible individuals.

DEAR DR. GOTT: When my husband sweats he smells like vinegar. Is there something out of whack in his system?

DEAR READER: Malodorous perspiration can indicate the presence of liver or kidney disease. For the most part, however, bad-smelling sweat is the result of aromatic oils that are excreted by the skin's pores.

Your husband should have a medical examination to make sure all's well. But I suspect that he will find that all he needs is plenty of showering followed by the liberal application of deodorant.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've read about a cat disease called Cat B which is often misdiagnosed and mistreated as emphysema in humans. I have two cats and my husband has emphysema. What should we do?

DEAR READER: To my

MEDICINE

knowledge, only three important diseases are spread from cats to humans: intestinal worms (hookworm and roundworm), toxoplasmosis and cat scratch disease.

Worms are spread when the eggs from the cat's intestine are inadvertently swallowed by a human. The worms grow and cause symptoms of anemia or anal discomfort.

Similarly, toxoplasmosis is an infection carried to humans via the fecal-oral route. It is marked by enlarged lymph glands, fever, pneumonia, heart inflammation and — in children born to infected mothers — severe fetal developmental problems.

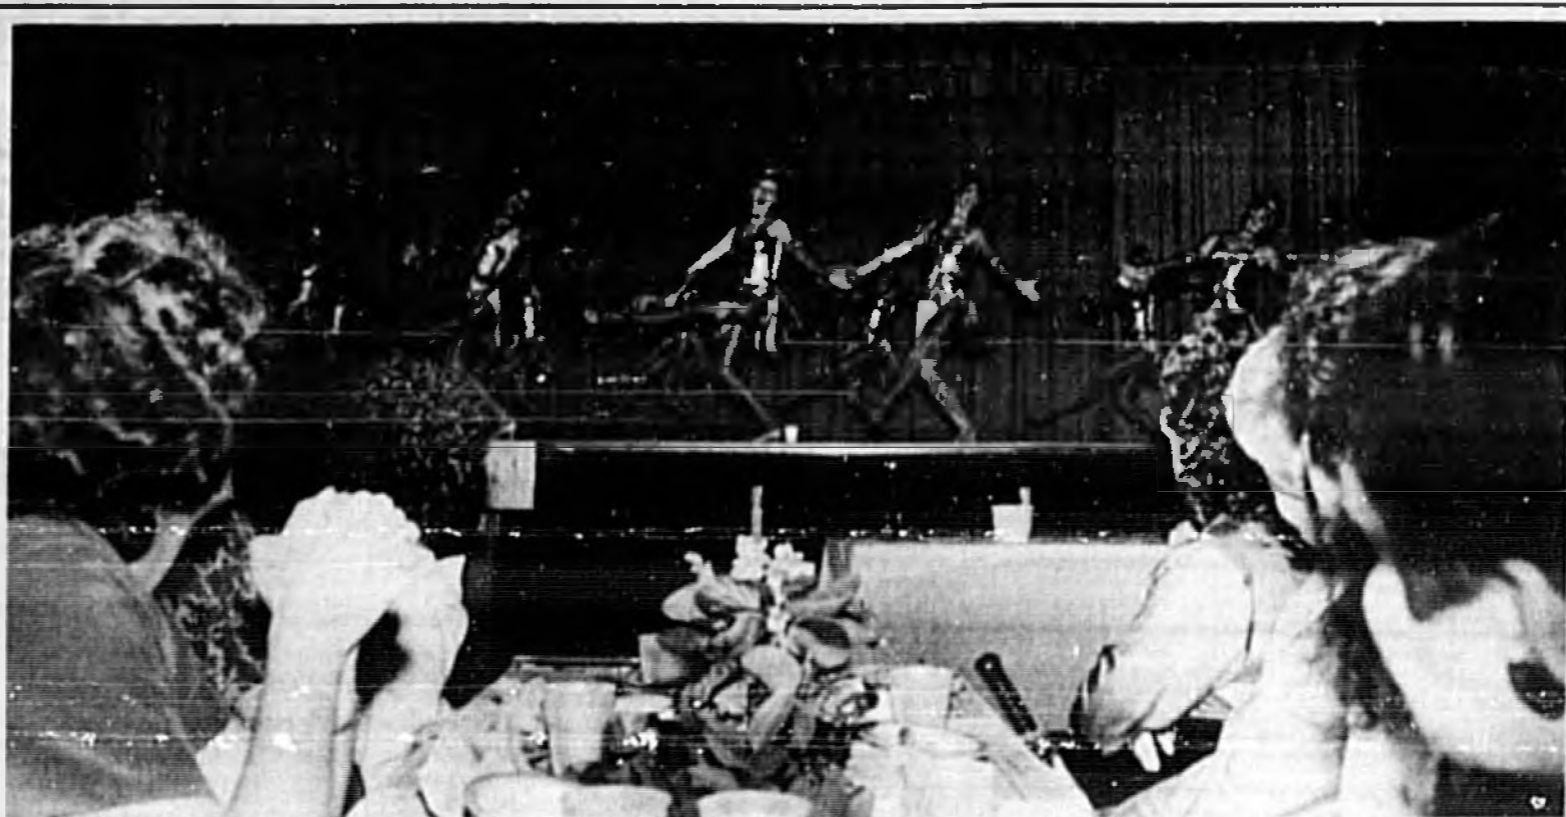

Cat scratch disease is an annoying but usually harmless lymph gland swelling following a cat bite or scratch.

I am not aware of any cat-borne ailment that mimics emphysema. However, I'd be grateful to receive enlightenment from any of my readers.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is Endep a psychotropic drug? What's the normal dose?

DEAR READER: To the extent that it affects the brain and alters feelings, Endep (amitriptyline) is a psychotropic drug. It is an antidepressant whose mechanism of action is unknown. The usual dose is 25 milligrams three times a day.

Deadline near for Christmas contest

There's a philosopher in each of us waiting for a chance to break out.

It's your chance. Thursday, Dec. 15, is the deadline for entries in the Herald's Christmas contest on the topic of "What I'd Like to Give the World for Christmas" and why.

What do you see as the world's greatest need? If you had a bag as big as Santa's with something for everyone, what would you give mankind that it is lacking?

Is there some fond aspect of the Ghost of Christmas Past that modern times won't allow you this year?

We invite our readers to mail us or bring us their thoughts, in 50 words or less. Please type or write legibly.

Address your perspective to "Gift to the World," Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, FL 32771. Include your name, city, age and daytime phone number.

Entries must be received at the Herald by 1 p.m. on Thursday.

Selected responses will be published in our Dec. 25 Sunday edition.

Library isn't free past county line

DEAR ABBY: You encouraged your readers to use and support the public libraries, saying, "Our libraries are filled with knowledge and joy, and it's all there — free for the taking."

Abby, it's not all there — free for the taking. Near my home is a small branch library that my children and I visit frequently. Recently, I needed more in-depth information than was available in our small library, so I went to the main library downtown to research further. There I was told that before I could check out materials from the library, I must pay $15 for a library card that was valid for one year!

As a teacher, I have often assigned projects requiring students to use the public library, thinking I was doing them a favor, not only in requiring them to learn to use the library, but hoping to introduce them to the wealth of materials available there. I never dreamed of the financial burden I might be putting on them! Fifteen dollars may not seem like much, but to single parents or poor people, $15 could be one week's grocery money. I was appalled to learn that not all tax-supported, public libraries were free to everyone.

I am going to write to Gov. Campbell about this.

A SOUTH CAROLINA TAXPAYER, TEACHER AND SINGLE PARENT

DEAR TAXPAYER, TEACHER, ETC.: Please don't bother Gov. Campbell. I checked with the main library in Columbia, S.C., and was told that residents of the county pay nothing for a library card, but non-residents are charged $15 a year. The cost varies; in Beverly Hills, Calif., the charge is $50 a year for non-residents who are not members of certain reciprocal libraries.

DEAR ABBY: Let your readers know that in some states a divorce can be annulled, thus reinstating the original marriage. There are some advantages to having a divorce annulled, especially where children are involved.

Couples wanting to annul a divorce should consult with an attorney in the state where the divorce was granted to find out if this procedure is available to them as it is in Kentucky.

RUSSELL L. CORLEY, KENTUCKY LAWYER

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR LAWYER: Annuling a divorce? That was news to me. Thanks for the valuable information.

DEAR ABBY: This letter concerns "Angry Parents" who were upset because the welfare department named their son as the father of a young girl's child.

1. You were correct to say that the welfare department did not name the boy as the father — the girl did.

2. In many states, a welfare agency is entitled to reimbursement for monies paid on behalf of the child, and whoever the woman names can and should be subject to legal proceedings and blood testings.

Those parents should be grateful that the blood test showed that their son was not the father, and he will not be liable for 18 years of child support.

Abby, please inform your readers that if they have a child born out of wedlock and wish to have paternity established in order to obtain a child support order, they should call their local child support enforcement agency. It is usually located in the county attorney's office. This legal service is provided free.

Abby, if your readers would like more information, tell them to contact their local child support agency. We also provide free services for women/men who are divorced and have been unable to obtain court-ordered support monies from their ex-spouse.

ALAN K. POLLEY, COCHISE COUNTY ATTORNEY, JAN WOODFILL, CHILD SUPPORT COORDINATOR, BISBEE, ARIZ.

Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's possible you may be thinking that money is a little easier to come by than it really is. Continue to be hopeful, but also be prudent.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Take pains to give credit where credit is due today, especially if it was an associate's cooperation that made your achievement possible. Good manners assure you of this person's continued help.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) More opportunities than usual are still hovering about you. Do not take these conditions for granted, because they could be subject to change.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do not act against your own best interests today in order to placate a selfish associate who never thinks of anyone else. Be fair, but not foolish.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It may not be wise today to accept compensation or praise for an achievement that is not yet complete. Delays could occur that might embarrass you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you have arrived at a decision that is predicated upon careful study, don't deviate from it today. You should get the results you anticipate if you follow through on plans you've outlined.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Resources you have earmarked for essentials should not be diverted to frivolous channels today so that later you won't come up short when bills are due.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today you may be tempted to renege on a promise you've made to another. It's best that you don't, since this person will be counting on you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Pressing assignments or tasks should be attended to as early in the day as possible. Your determination could wane considerably if they are left to the last minute.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your chances for success will be substantially enhanced today if you don't make what's in it for you your primary consideration. Selfish thoughts will restrict your thinking.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be sincerely appreciative of one who will treat you generously today, even though you might not get all that you hoped for. This person will be doing the best that can be done for you.

Canvas sneakers are stylish again

United Press International

BOSTON — Old-fashioned canvas sneakers, threatened with extinction by high-performance "athletic shoes" during the fitness revolution of the 1970s, are enjoying a classic comeback in the waning days of the 1980s.

While Reeboks, Nikes and other popular brands evolve yearly with new designs that include the latest high technology, the old canvas standby has changed little, except for new colors, since the turn of the century. And some experts say that may be the key to their reborn appeal.

"They're classic. They look cool, they're comfortable and they don't cost much at all," said John Burton, 28, who remembers, as a child, his father wearing Converse Jack Purcell's on Saturdays to cut the lawn and otherwise "putter around."

Converse print advertisements for the Jack Purcell model fuel the sentiment that old is not necessarily square. Pictured lounging in a pair of the bullet-nosed sneakers is James Dean, the oh-so-cool "Rebel Without a Cause" actor who died in a 1955 car crash and became a cult legend.

Purcell, a world-class badminton player in the 1920s and '30s, helped design the sneaker with H.F. Goodrich engineers.

Analysts do not expect canvas to replace leather models at the top of the sales charts, but say many consumers have rediscovered canvas classics as an inexpensive shoe for casual sports like walking and cycling.

also are skilled at operating the motor controls so that those cars get extra doses of speed at crucial moments. All of this is usually preceded by strategically strapping in a couple of teenage girls ripe for screaming. Of course, the more screams and hollers emitting from a ride, the more people will want to ride it. You mean you didn't realize that when you paid to ride, you also sold the use of your lungs? Next time, take note of the fact that the ride-master keeps the ride going until the screams draw a crowd large enough to fill the ride again.

Having arrived at the fair in the afternoon, I'm usually reaching the exhaustion stage around mid-evening. However, this is not before I've watched the fair transform itself from playland to fantasyland. With dusk comes an eye-popping display of colors, lights and movements against the sky. I can't help but revert to being a kid again at the sight.

Since I was a small boy, this twinkling sight has been my final glimpse of the fair. With such a magical image in my heart for the year to come, it's no wonder I return annually. Isn't a fair coming up this spring?
