Accidents produce one fatality

SANFORD — A traffic fatality in Longwood and an Interstate 4 accident kept area law enforcement officials busy Wednesday.

Shortly before 11 p.m. yesterday, a 1978 Chevrolet Camaro driven by Gary W. Leigh Jr., 18, 1031 Eighth St., Casaberry, ran a red light on County Road 427 at Dog Track Road, struck another car and hit a utility pole 200 yards away at Charlotte Street, said Longwood Lt. Butch Yelvington. The vehicle was cut in half from the impact, Yelvington said. Leigh died shortly afterwards of massive head injuries at South Seminole Community Hospital, said Yelvington. The driver of the second car was uninjured. No charges have been filed and an investigation is continuing.

At about 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, Peter Roy, 18, of Deltona, lost control of his 1978 Datsun while westbound on I-4, according to a Florida Highway Patrol spokesman. The Datsun crossed the median and into the eastbound lanes where it was struck by a tractor-trailer driven by Allen Miller of Louisiana. Roy was taken to Central Florida Regional Hospital for treatment. Roy was charged with careless driving, the spokesman said.

Voter registration in Lake Mary

LAKE MARY — A voter registration will be held Friday at Barnett Bank of Central Florida, 704 W. Lake Mary Blvd., from 11 a.m. until 3 p.m.

In Longwood, residents may register to vote at the residence at 209 Duncan Trail, beginning Friday and continuing through Oct. 3. Registration will be held each day from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. Another registration will be held Oct. 5 from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Unemployment claims jump

WASHINGTON — The number of Americans filing first-time claims for unemployment insurance jumped to 400,000 in early September, the highest level in four weeks, the government reported today.

Analysts had said in advance the increase would reflect in part the impact of a strike at a General Motors parts plant and the loss of jobs caused by Hurricane Andrew.

Train depot closing

SANFORD — A plan to close the Auto Train depot in Sanford and move it to a new location has shocked some local officials. Others say they have known about it, but only as rumors.

Officials in other areas, such as Sumpter County, already are laying plans to convince Amtrak to relocate in their communities.

The Auto Train runs between Sanford and Lorton, Va. It allows passengers to ship their automobiles in freight cars that accompany the passenger cars. Local officials say the train is good for the local economy because annually it brings more than 200,000 passengers, including "snow birds" through the area.

Mayor Smith said she had heard rumors of the move for several weeks. City Commissioners Bob Thomas, A.A. McClanahan and Whitley Eckstein said they had not heard anything about it.

Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Dave

Farr also reported knowing about the planned move. "I've been attempting to make contacts to verify it," he said.

Auto Train public affairs officer Howard Robertson said Wednesday that a lack of space for expansion at the present Auto Train location on Perimmon Avenue is the reason for the new plan.

"By 1995," he said, "We will have double decker Superliners in service, which will increase

Scholars

40 students in county are merit finalists

By VICKI BOESCHNER

SANFORD — Lake Mary High School had seven of its seniors named as semi-finalists in the National Merit Scholar program recently. Seminole High in Sanford had none.

According to Elaine Detweiler, public information director for the Illinois-based National Merit Scholarship Corporation program, the test is not designed to compare one school to another or even one student to another.

"We are simply seeking out the most academically talented students in the nation for the purposes of providing scholarships for them to continue their education," Detweiler said.

More than 15,000 students nationwide who qualified as semi-finalists in the academic competition. Of the 1,800 or so seniors in Seminole County, 40 made it to this round of the contest.

Detweiler said that nationally about one half of one percent of seniors make it to this level of the contest.

Semi-finalists have the opportunity to compete for some 6,500 Merit Scholarships, worth over $25 million. The scholarships will be awarded in the spring.

The semi-finalists were among 1 million juniors in 19,000 high schools to take the 1991 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test (PSAT), which is the screening tool used by the National Merit Scholar program.

From this point in the competition, students must be recommended by their high school principals and must have an outstanding academic record to be considered as a finalist.

About 80 percent of the semi-finalists are expected to become finalists.

The Seminole County semi-finalists are:

Lake Mary High School in Lake Mary: Ryan P. Dekey, who plans to major in political science; William W. Dougherty, who plans to major in chemistry; Alyssa A. Haun, who plans to major in pre-medicine; Mark L. Neri, who will major in computer science; Angela M. Thompson, who is undecided on her major; Eric A. Welsh, who will major in

Lake Mary fire won't stop game

By VICKI BOESCHNER
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — A fire at Lake Mary High School's Don T. Reynolds stadium yesterday evening may force the district to put the home team supporters on temporary bleachers for tomorrow night's football match between the Rams and the Lake Brantley Patriots.

The fire, which required four units to extinguish, is being called "auspicious" by Seminole County fire inspector Ken Roberts.

Roberts explained that the fire is under investigation because there is no electrical power around. He said no flammable materials are kept in the wood storage shed that was destroyed in the fire.

"There is nothing there that would start a fire," Roberts said.

Lake Mary sets tax tonight

By NICK PFEIFAU

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary homeowners may see a drop in their tax rates next year. The City Commission is scheduled to adopt a millage rate tonight during the final reading of the fiscal year 1992/93 $4.4 million budget.

Although there had been discussion during previous workshops and meetings that the rollback millage rate of 3.78477 might be adopted, the ordinance to be presented tonight calls for 3.8991 mills. City Manager John Litton had estimated the difference in rates would bring an additional $61,000 into the City's revenue.

If the millage is approved as presented, the owner of a home valued at $60,000, with a $25,000 homestead exemption, would pay $136.47 in taxes next year. The owner of a $120,000 home, with the same exemption, would pay $370.41.

If the rollback rate recommended by the Seminole County property appraiser would be accepted, the $60,000 homeowner would have paid $131.77 and the $120,000 homeowner would pay $357.85.

During the first reading, Commissioner George Duryea voted against the ordinance calling for the higher rate. Commissioner Paul Tremel also voiced his preference for the rollback rate. With Mayor Randy Morris not on hand during the first reading, Tremel said, "I'm in favor of the rollback rate, but with only four of us here, a split vote would kill it, so I'll vote for the higher amount so we can vote again at the second reading."

The millage rate could be reduced tonight. Statutes allow a reduction in millage to be made during the second reading, but had the rollback been approved, no increase would have been allowed.

Also scheduled for tonight's meeting is final reading and public hearing of the proposed $6,745,279 budget for the City. The amount includes $4,416,936 in the General Fund, plus other special revenue and capital projects funds. The $6.7 million dollar amount to be presented tonight, includes changes that have been made since hearings began. The original amount proposed was $6,585,227.

Property purchase cancelled

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The St. Johns River Water Management District will not pursue purchase of the 1,300-acre Jessup's Landing property on the north shore of Lake Jessup.

Jack Eckdahl, district director of land acquisition, said the property's owner, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., has a sales contract pending from a private individual. FDIC salesman Ray Kennedy refused to name the individual but said a contract has been executed and a closing date has been set.

"We won't interfere with that," said Eckdahl. "Once these folks close, we might talk to them, but I don't think we'll be as interested."

The district and the county have an agreement to share the cost of the property, located east of the Seminole County boat ramp at Lake Jessup Park. The Seminole County Expressway nearly divides the property. The property is largely diked and drained wetlands which served as pasture.

Jessup's Landing has been the subject of preservation interest since 1989, when the Seminole County Expressway Authority considered buying it to replace wetlands that would be destroyed for the construction.

Big-name jazz concert Friday

By VICKI BOESCHNER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — To celebrate the opening of the new exhibit, entitled The Florida Jazz Connection, at the Fine Arts Gallery at Seminole Community College, there will be a special concert at the college on Friday night.

The exhibition of jazz memorabilia owned by Central Florida residents was first opened to the public on Sept. 8, but the official opening is not until Friday evening.

The big-name performers, including Nat Adderly, Panama

Francis, Nathan Page, Sam Rivers and Noble "Thin Man" Watts, all live in the Central Florida area.

The memorabilia in the exhibition is owned by several well-known black Central Florida musicians who have made their mark on the national and the international music scene.

The exhibit will remain open through Oct. 1.

In addition to the memorabilia, the Florida Humanities Council will be presenting an exhibit called "The Little Broadway Era of Miami's Overtown."

On Friday night at 8:30 p.m. there will be a gallery reception prior to the 8 p.m. all-star concert.

There is no admission charge for either the concert or the exhibition.

The concert will take place in the Fine Arts Concert Hall which has about 300 seats. College officials are suggesting that those who wish to attend the concert arrive early.

To view the exhibit at times other than during the opening, visitors can go to the show during regular gallery hours from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Evening hours have been added only for this exhibition from 5 to 7 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Federal dropout stats disputed

From Staff and Wire Reports

TALLAHASSEE — Education Commissioner Betty Castor said there are problems with the latest federal dropout statistics, including use of census data the U.S. Education Department refused to use to issue grants.

Across the country last year, 11.2 percent of people from the age of 16 to 19 had not completed high school and were not enrolled, according to figures released Wednesday by the U.S. Department of Education.

U.S. Department of Education figures show Seminole County's dropout rate to be 10.2 percent.

Florida had the 88th highest rate of 14.2. The 1991 statistic reflects the total number of people in that age group who have dropped out anytime within the last four years.

"It's four years of life, a snapshot," Castor said.

According to Castor's department, 5.6 percent of Florida's high school students dropped out of school last year. That's based on a count of the actual students and shows an improvement from the 6.5 percent a year earlier, she said.

The federal report issued Wednesday said 4 percent of the nation's students in grades 10 through 12 quit last year without completing high school.

Castor said the federal government's statistics were based on the 1990 Census, "the very census that the federal Department of Education refused to honor in distributing the funds for Chapter 1 programs this year."

She cited a low dropout rate calculated for Leon County as an example of how the numbers were skewed.

The county has Florida State University, Florida A&M University and Tallahassee Community College, and the students attending those three schools from elsewhere in the state inflated the pool of the age group so that the number of dropouts constituted a smaller percentage.

But the commissioner said there were also good things about the federal report primarily a recognition that poverty is the most important factor in whether a child stays in school.

Also Wednesday, Castor kicked off the start of a statewide public awareness campaign designed to encourage parents and business people to become involved in school improvement. The campaign is being paid for with corporate donations.

Jailer suspended

CRESTVIEW — A jailer has been suspended for five days without pay for trying to keep the news media from finding out about her mother's felony arrest for marijuana possession.

Jo Lundy began the suspension Monday, Okaloosa County Jail deputy administrator Larry Caskey said Tuesday.

An internal investigation concluded she violated jail policy by trying to keep a report about the Sept. 6 arrest of her mother, Sarah L. Davidson, 53, from being placed on a jail clipboard for reporters.

Caskey said the investigative report has been forwarded to the state attorney's office with a request to determine if any laws regarding public information had been violated.

News anchors changed

MIAMI — A Miami television station has changed news anchors after a sportscaster filled in for a newscaster who went home to be with his family the night Hurricane Andrew was approaching.

But the executive producer for WTVJ-Channel 4 said Wednesday that Tom Randies was not yanked because of going home the night of the storm.

"A lot of people had concerns about family," said executive producer Bill Burke. "The notion that is the reason we made this change is incorrect. It's a strategic move based on (sportscaster) Tony Segreto's performance."

"We gave everybody in the building that option (to go home)," he said. "That was not a factor in this decision."

The station, WTVJ-Channel 4, also promised an expanded news role for weathercaster Bryan Norcross, who became a hero of the storm.

Dispatcher may be disciplined

PENSACOLA — Authorities say an Escambia County sheriff's dispatcher may be disciplined over the department's slow response to a call for help from a man who reported shots being fired at his home.

It took 19 minutes for a deputy to arrive last Friday and then the SWAT team had to be called out to arrest a neighbor, apparently suffering from delusions, who fired 50 shots inside his mobile home.

One bullet put a hole through the window of Michael Trimble who lived next door, according to a tape recording of his call for help.

A sheriff's review board will meet Monday to determine if dispatcher Lucille Boswell should be disciplined for classifying the call as a priority three "shooting in the area" complaint.

Trimble's neighbor, Korean War veteran Albert C. Charles, 60, was charged with shooting into an occupied dwelling and discharging a firearm in public.

College head says she was pressured

GAINESVILLE — A community college president said she rehired a professor who has been accused of sexual misconduct because a state lawmaker pressured her to do so.

But Lake City Community College President Kay Heimer said she didn't discuss the allegations against Michael Wright with state Sen. George Kirkpatrick.

Kirkpatrick, D-Gainesville, said Tuesday he didn't intend to put undue pressure on Heimer by asking her to consider rehiring his duck-hunting buddy. He also said he doesn't know much about Wright's difficulties.

Heimer said Kirkpatrick told her to find Wright, a social studies and economics teacher, a job — even if it was just mowing the lawn. She said she didn't think she could say no.

Wright's initial dismissal was part of a mass layoff as the college tried to cut its budget. But Heimer said she had been planning to fire Wright anyway.

Allegations of sexual misconduct were aired last week during a hearing to determine whether Wright should be fired again. The hearing will continue later this month.

Forfeiture practices scrutinized

TALLAHASSEE — The practice of forfeiture is a time-honored one going back to biblical times, an attorney told a group created to look at Florida's law.

Forfeiture essentially refers to the government seizing items used in felonies.

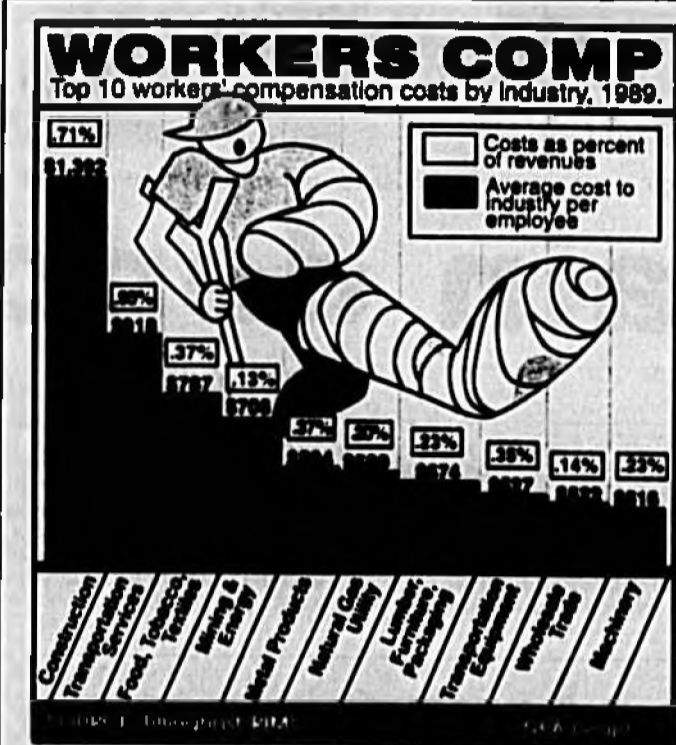

Wednesday's meeting was the first of four scheduled to be held by the panel, appointed by Gov. Lawton Chiles to examine whether law enforcement has abused the law.

The nine-member group is to recommend if legislative changes are necessary "to ensure that Florida citizens are assured of having the right to travel on the interstate," said John Fuller, Chiles' public safety policy coordinator.

A newspaper story earlier this year reported that most of the nearly $6 million that the Volusia County Sheriff's Office seized from motorists on Interstate 95 over three years was taken from people never charged with a crime.

More than 90 percent of those people were black or Hispanic, according to the Sentinel.

From Associated Press reports

It costs the construction industry by far the most per employee for workers' compensation — about $1,400 a year. The wholesale trade, by contrast, spends an average of $522 per employee for workers' compensation.

Insurers: Raise workers' comp rate 18.5 percent

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles says a requested 18.5 percent increase in the workers' compensation premiums businesses must pay shows legislators need to re-examine the system.

Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher will hold a public hearing this fall on the request filed Tuesday by commercial insurers, department spokeswoman Jill Chamberlin said.

The 18.5 percent average increase, which would start Jan. 1, was less than some business groups expected for the coverage for workers injured on the job, but Chiles said it showed a need for reform.

"The Legislature must be prepared to address the workers' compensation issue during next year's session because Florida businesses cannot take much more," Chiles said.

The House passed a workers' compensation bill in the 1992 Legislative session aimed at curbing rates through measures such as medical cost controls and workplace safety and anti-drug abuse programs. The bill died in the Senate.

"Our proposal for reform will reduce rapidly increasing medical costs, reduce administrative costs by streamlining the system, and reduce litigation costs," Chiles said.

Gallagher approved a 24.9 percent average increase in workers' compensation rates last year after the industry's National Council on Compensation Insurance asked a 39.3 percent rise.

The latest rate request is primarily because of spiraling health care costs.

William Hager, president of the industry council, had said insurance companies selling workers' compensation coverage in Florida paid out $1.44 for every $1 they received in premiums in 1991.

Disaster studies piled up unheeded

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Florida legislators have received, and ignored, four sets of recommendations over the past 13 years to ease the impact of natural disasters like Hurricane Andrew.

Gov. Lawton Chiles has commissioned another study, to be presented to lawmakers next year, that may end on the Legislature's library shelf next to the earlier proposals. None has ever been checked out.

The studies, in 1979, 1985, 1988 and 1990, called for stricter enforcement of building codes, stronger safety standards for mobile homes, adequate food and beds for shelters, and money for immediate relief for storm victims.

Though foreshadowing problems that when the 1990 report came out, opponents "thought it was a great idea but it shouldn't cost anybody anything — which is kind of the traditional Florida approach to disaster management."

In 1979, Rep. John W. Lewis of Jacksonville reported to fellow legislators that state and local officials "were not taking any significant actions to mitigate the potential disaster of a major hurricane."

"Frankly, the situation is embarrassing," wrote Lewis, who was chairman of the House Natural Resources Committee.

He said poor construction and lax enforcement of building standards would cause problems and recommended banning coastal construction until codes were strengthened and evacuation plans were improved.

After Hurricane Andrew, engineers found that tens of thousands of South Florida homes were damaged because builders used short staples in roofing rather than the nails called for in Dade County's construction code.

In addition to stricter building codes and better enforcement, a March 1995 report by the House Community Affairs Committee called for tougher laws on construction and installation of mobile homes.

Thousands of mobile homes virtually dismantled during Andrew, and the city of Homestead may ban them now.

Beach cleanup

Volunteers' pitch in Saturday

By Associated Press

COCOA BEACH — Cruise lines, sloppy beach-goers and pleasure boaters are the main culprits littering Florida's 1,200 miles of coastline with tons of garbage and junk, environmentalists say.

This Saturday, some 20,000 volunteers will pick up after them — and collect information used to pinpoint sources of trash to, hopefully, prosecute violators.

The fifth annual effort to pick up trash and focus attention on coastal pollution is making little headway.

"It seems to get worse," said Rita Alexander of the Environmental Council of Volusia and Flagler counties.

Other environmentalists have the same lament.

"The amount of garbage is about the same now as five years ago," said Heidi Lovett of the Center for Marine Conservation in Tampa. "I realize it takes time for public attention to take hold."

Under federal law, anyone convicted of disposing plastic trash anywhere at sea or other trash within three miles of shore can face fines up to $25,000.

Last year, 250 tons of garbage, litter and junk were picked up in one day by volunteers. Some 450 sites are scheduled for cleanup this year.

"Each year, I keep hoping that we're not going to have anything to pick up, but unfortunately that's not the case," said Ms. Alexander.

●A $175 pool pump filter unit was reported stolen from the home of Shirley Sivils, 475 Holbrook Court, Lake Mary, Monday or Tuesday.

●$1,000 in cash was reportedly taken between Saturday and Tuesday, from the bathroom at the home of Warren Steaks, 1720 Sunact Drive, Longwood.

●Four tires and four wheels, valued at $970, were reportedly taken Tuesday, from a vehicle owned by Glenn Millard, 254 Lake Breeze Circle, Longwood. The vehicle was parked at Seminole County Fire Station #41, 3355 E. S.R. 48 at the time of the theft.

False-alarm cost rises

SANFORD — The Sanford police and fire departments will now be charging fines for responding to false alarms. The City Commission passed ordinances approving the charges Monday night.

The fines will be levied after a third false alarm at the same location, within a six month time period.

During previous discussions on the ordinances, representatives of police and fire departments as well as City Commissioners determined that there should be a number of false alarm calls allowed without charging a service fee.

"We would hope, after several false alarms," said Fire Chief Tom Hickson, "that a person would have the alarm checked to be certain it's in proper working order to prevent them from accidentally sounding."

Police Capt. Ralph Russell said, "The majority of the alarms have battery backups, but people forget that batteries need changing. This is a way to force businesses to maintain their safety systems."

A fire alarm or burglar alarm, whether in a commercial business or private residence, is often activated because of lightning storms or power fluctuations.

For both police and fire false alarms, a charge of $35 will be made for a fourth incident in a six month period, $50 for a fifth case, and $150 for each subsequent response over a six month period.

False fire alarm systems may also bring about additional costs to a home or business owner. While annual fire inspection charges are $30, if a second reinspection is required, it will cost $45, and third and subsequent reinspections will cost $75 each, or an amount equal to the time spent by the inspector including travel time.

City Manager Bill Simmons had originally determined that the cost to the police and fire responses to false alarms cost the City an estimated $59.58 for the police and $682.40 for fire units.

'Babes' arrested

FERN PARK — Seminole County Sheriff's deputies arrested six persons Tuesday night, following an undercover check at House of Babes, 6400 Highway 17-92, Fern Park.

Plain clothes deputies reported seeing three separate incidents of illegal dancing by employees, and arrested the three, as well as the three men involved in the incidents.

Fence straddling

On the crucial subject of free trade, George Bush and Bill Clinton are pursuing divergent paths — in tone, at least, if not in substance.

This issue is significant because both candidates claim to be free traders, yet the contrasting way in which each handles the issue in the heat of the campaign shows a great deal about his potential performance in the Oval Office during the next four years.

President Bush backs the North American Free Trade Agreement unequivocally and has pledged to fight for its approval in Congress. Clinton either is having trouble making up his mind or, more likely, is trying to play both sides of the street.

Seeking to appease those at opposite ends of an issue is hardly an unheard-of trait in a candidate. In a president, though, it can be a catastrophe.

During the primaries, Clinton distinguished himself from some of his Democratic opponents by declaring his support for free trade with Mexico. Now that the Bush administration has wrapped up the negotiations, however, Clinton has purposely declined to endorse the trade treaty.

Instead, the Democratic nominee told the Detroit Economic Club he isn't sure the accord is "the right kind of agreement." Before deciding whether to support it, he said he wants to review the text carefully. "When I have a definitive opinion, I will say so," he declared, without indicating just how soon he might reach a conclusion.

Clinton's waffling would not be so troubling if he had not already been pandering to labor unions, protectionists on Capitol Hill and other traditional Democratic special interests that oppose the treaty.

For example, when House majority leader Richard Gephardt of Missouri called for a tax on cross-border transactions to pay for worker training programs and environmental clean-up, Clinton took time to "applaud" Gephardt's efforts. He stopped short of advocating Gephardt's anti-trade tax, but he clearly was trying to finesse this fundamental issue by playing to the Democratic Party's protectionist gallery. Such hedging helps illustrate why Clinton has a reputation for political sickness.

At the same time he is paying lip service to free trade in the abstract, he is attaching a number of reservations to the concrete agreement with Mexico and Canada.

Clinton echoes the views of the treaty's opponents when he calls for "transition strategies" that will take care of American workers and the environment. This approach inevitably would mean more, not fewer, barriers to free trade.

Clinton also has stoked resentment toward foreign corporations that do business in the United States by asserting that they do not pay their fair share of taxes. His solution is to raise $45 billion over the next four years by tightening tax rules for foreign firms.

The biggest losers in Clinton's plan would be the 4.5 million American workers employed by foreign-owned enterprises whose profits would be eroded by higher tax payments. The move also could spark retaliation by other nations against U.S. firms operating abroad.

The paramount issue to free trade poses a key test of leadership for Clinton. Either he can surrender to the protectionists in his own party or he can stand up to them and fight openly for the North American Free Trade Agreement. As a candidate, he can attempt to have it both ways. But the next occupant of the White House won't have that luxury.

Bush vs. Clinton is a heated race

The presidential campaign is now under way and no fooling, and it's hard to avoid feeling that George Bush hasn't yet shown the stuff that would ward off the Clinton threat.

For one thing, he has failed to demonize the Democratic Congress and make its replacement by a Republican Congress the central rallying cry of his campaign. Instead, in acknowledging that his attacks on Congress are modeled on those of Harry Truman in the 1948 campaign, Mr. Bush has allowed himself to be pictured as wanting to be "like" Truman. That would be impossible, and is in any case unnecessary and counterproductive. It is only Truman's strategy that he needs to borrow — not his personality or his policies.

In the second place, Mr. Bush's proposal for a tax cut, while welcome (and a striking contrast to Gov. Clinton's plan for a tax increase), is woefully belated. If he has truly repented of his 1990 collaboration with the tax-thirsty Democrats, why did he wait until the last two months of a presidential election campaign to come forward with a tax cut plan?

On the other hand, Clinton isn't exactly burning up the track either. His glib lie about never having heard of his uncle's efforts to save him from the draft caught up with him in a matter of days. Worse yet, the media — perhaps embarrassed by their own recent sycophancy, which has prompted even the pro-Clinton New Republic to run a "Clinton Suck-Up Watch" in every issue — got their teeth into the story and wouldn't let go. Thereupon, Clinton lost his temper, and wasted precious days (and forfeited the offensive) trying to defend the indefensible.

It seems probable that a good many Americans are inclined to give the Democrats a chance this time around, but aren't yet convinced that Clinton is mature enough — presidential enough, if you will — to be up to the job. He still looks like Joe College, and that permanent grin on his face just makes matters worse.

Much, therefore, is likely to depend on how

Gov. Clinton comes across in the coming presidential debates. In some ways, the situation is reminiscent of the 1980 election. Most voters were ready to oust Jimmy Carter, but the media had told them that Ronald Reagan was a madman eager to get his finger on the nuclear button. In the one debate that was held between Carter and Reagan, however, the voters saw only a good-natured, self-assured challenger whose most savage blast was "There you go again." Within weeks, polls showed Reagan millions of votes ahead.

And there is one other factor, beyond the control of either Bush or Clinton, that may play a large, even decisive role in the 1992 election. This is that joker in the deck, Ross Perot.

Perot, with the memory of his astonishing pull-out still fresh in everyone's mind, can no longer hope to win the election himself. But he will be on the ballot in almost every state — perhaps in all 50 — and, therefore, will undoubtedly receive a good many votes from people dissatisfied with both Bush and Clinton, even if he doesn't lift a hand to encourage them. That alone might be enough to determine the outcome in certain key states.

But what if Perot actively solicits votes, as a protest? Or what if, talking Mr. Bush as much as he apparently does, Perot endorses Clinton?

Bush has failed to demonize the Democratic Congress.

Call for outrageous personages

Nominations for the 1992 Outrageous Personage of the Year Award are now being received, and I have to tell you, the chore will be in the choosing.

The landscape in this political year is strewn with teeming ponds of wriggling hypocrites and charlatans. Dip your net and see what manner of bottom-dwelling scavengers you can come up with and send their names on to the Spear Foundation, the tiny but tireless think tank that sponsors the OP contest.

We do not discriminate. We will consider politicians, preachers, performers and yes, even priests. The only rules: Foreign nationals, dead OPs and groups are not eligible (there are too many live, domestic, individual rogues to consider).

No cash award goes with the honor, but the winners will receive Quaylies, small statuettes of Vice President J. Danforth Quayle in the act of demonstrating his insane grin. (Due to fiscal constraints, busts of MAD magazine's Alfred E. Neuman are being used as substitutes, but no one has complained so far.)

Where in this second year does one even start? With Ross Perot, who led us on with talk of dealing honestly with the budget and then chickened out? With the chicken hawk in the Republican Party — Newt Gingrich, Phil Gramm, Pat Buchanan, Dick Cheney — who never served in the military but are not the least bit shy about criticizing Bill Clinton for dodging the draft? Or with Budget Chief Dick Darman, who has personally presided over a $1 trillion increase in the national debt but doesn't hesitate to trash Clinton's and Perot's economic ideas as "phony"?

Or with J. Danforth Potatoe Heade, who gets outspelled by 12-year-olds; or with his press spokesman, David Beckwith, who refuses to talk to journalists who report it? (Can a Quaylie get a Quaylie? We'll have to check the rule book on that.) Or with George Bush, who screeches about Congress' pork barrel spending one week and tries to buy the election with $33 billion of federal largesse the next? Or with Country Club George pretending to be the reincarnation of Homegrown Harry?

How about if we begin the contest in this year of big names and ballyhoo with a few selections from down in the ranks:

FBI Director William Sessions, who has asked Congress to force telephone companies to build systems that can be easily tapped — and to pay for any new required designs by adding the costs to our monthly bills.

Maurice Greenberg, chief executive of the American International Group, a global insurance company, who informed his subordinates on the same day that Hurricane Andrew slammed into Florida that the storm presented "an opportunity to get price increases now."

Rev. Pat Robertson, who disparaged the "feminist agenda" as "not about equal rights for women" but "about a socialist, anti-family political movement that encourages women to leave their husbands, kill their children, practice witchcraft, destroy capitalism and become lesbians."

The minister of a Baptist church in Houston who was ousted by his congregation last month and took the church organ, fans.

The meterperson in Washington, D.C., who watched as a thief stole a license plate from a car, then left the vehicle's owner with a ticket for a missing tag.

Keith D. Bjerke, administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, who flew 900 employees to Washington for an honorary gala and boarded them at the Capital Hilton. Congress had informed him to cut the amount he spent last year for the annual event — $667,000 — so he came in at $492,000. In an interview with a Washington Post reporter, Bjerke said he had trimmed his costs to "an absolute minimum." He added: "People don't mind working long hours without compensation, on weekends and holidays, if they are praised."

So remember to thank a bureaucrat today. And submit his name for an OP award tomorrow.

No cash award goes with the honor, but the winners will receive Quaylies.

Bush has dodged the war on crime

We cheered our quick victories in the wars of Panama and the Persian Gulf. But there can be no ticker tape parades, no confetti celebrations of the bloodiest war of the Bush presidency — the war our commander in chief repeatedly declared but won't fight to win: the War on Crime in the Streets.

Timidity, trepidation and tragic abdication of leadership left us with a Bush administration that has dodged the much-needed war to take back our streets from the drug gangs and the drive-by killers with their assault weapon arsenals.

George Bush, ever-fearful of offending the Far Right, chose the political expedient of leaving our cops out-gunned.

It has been more than three years since the nation was stunned by the horror of those pictures from a schoolyard in Stockton, Calif. — five children lying dead, 30 more wounded by a deranged man with an AK-47 assault weapon that squeezed off 100 rounds in just two terrifying minutes. And in those three years, 250,000 new assault weapons were manufactured in America (according to a congressional analyst who tracks gun company records) — weapons that can be fitted with large-capacity magazines, flash suppressors, silencers, folding stocks and pistol grips so they can be fired from the waist a la Rambo.

Those pictures from Stockton prompted prominent conservatives to urge curbs on these weapons so easily available to street thugs. Ronald Reagan spoke out. Even Barry Goldwater, who'd posed with his rifle in the National Rifle Association's "I'm the NRA" ads, drew a bead on guns made for human slaughter. "I'm completely opposed to selling automatic rifles," the Conservative of the Washington Post in 1989. "I don't see any reason why they ever made semiautomatics ... I've never used an automatic or semiautomatic for hunting. There's no need to. They have no place in anybody's arsenal. If any S.O.B. can't hit a deer with one shot, then he ought to quit shooting."

And Bush's 1988 campaign adviser on crime, then-police chief Daryl Gates, demanded a federal ban on the sale and import of assault weapons after two of his Los Angeles officers were killed by them: "I do not want any more officers to be spray-gunned to death by street punks armed with high-tech killing machines."

But Bush, bowing to the NRA, chose a bizarre split-the-difference policy on assault weapons: Buy American. He banned 43 weapons made overseas (German Uzis, Soviet and Chinese AK-47s, et al.), but OK'd the manufacture and sale of identical guns — if they are made-in-the-U.S.A. Think of it: A protectionist assault weapons policy is making us safe from the trade deficit.

Understand the depth of Bush's cynicism. His own Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms had reported to him: "... The ultimate conclusion is clear and compelling. These semiautomatic assault rifles were designed and intended to be particularly suitable for combat rather than sporting applications."

What happened next could have been predicted by any free-marketeer. Three weeks after Bush's announcement, the Shotgun News, bible of the gun industry, carried the first ad: "New! MADE IN U.S.A. AK-47-STYLE RIFLES." American gun companies rushed their AK-47 knockoffs complete with all the not-so-sporting options, including bayonets.

George Bush, ever-fearful of offending the Far Right.

the train capacity by at least 25 percent.

"I've heard about it," the Mayor said this morning, "but I haven't done anything about it so far, because it has only been in the rumor stage." She added, "I have discussed it with Dave Farr at the Chamber and asked him to have the Chamber dig into it."

Commissioners Eckstein and Thomas both expressed deep concern about the move. "I've just found out about this," Thomas said. "I wish it had been brought up before so we could have started taking some action earlier."

Eckstein said, "I haven't heard about this before and I wish I had. This is going to have an effect on employment as well as the tourist industry."

Thomas added, "I don't know if they want to move to get closer to Disney, or if they really need more room, but if it's a room they want and the City can help, I'm ready to do whatever possible to help them stay here."

This morning, both Smith and Farr suggested a possible alternative would be for Auto Train to relocate to the area known as the Rand Yard. "The CSX Railroad owns the actual tracks," Farr said, "but they would need to obtain surrounding property, which is owned by a number of private individuals."

Syd Vihlen, Jr., who owns 40 acres of property in the Randa Yard area said, "For the past three months, real estate people have been contacting me anonymously, asking about survey maps, utility lines and other things about the property, but they would never say who they were representing."

Vihlen also manages an adjacent 88 acres of land owned by Kastner Properties. "These agents have been asking about both areas," Vihlen said, "and I have had a hunch they were looking at some rather large project." He said, "I don't have any proof however, that they were representing the Auto Train people."

Farr said he had heard rumors about the planned move for several months. "I kept hearing about it," he said, "but every time I tried to check, people have told me it's just a rumor, that the Auto Train has no intention of leaving."

He added, "Now that we have talked with some of the same people, we are finding that it is apparently true, and I'm still contacting Auto Train officials to see what the Chamber and the City might be able to do to keep it here."

"As late as yesterday," he said, "I was talking with one Amtrak spokesperson and was told there was no truth to the rumor, but when I said that I had reason to believe the move was being planned, she admitted stored in the shed.

According to Walter Meriwether, director of risk management for the school district, a portion of the stands will have to be replaced before it will be safe for spectators.

"We're not going to put people on unsafe seats," Meriwether said. "We'll have to put up temporary bleachers."

Meriwether said there was nearly $50,000 in damage done to the stadium and the equipment. A licensed inspector from the district and from Gallagher Bassett Insurance was to have arrived this afternoon to assess the extent of the damage.

Don Smith, principal of Lake Mary High, said he believes that about one-third of the stands are unusable.

"I'm just appreciative that no one was injured in the fire," the move is under discussion."

City Commissioner A.A. McClanahan was also unaware of the move. "I'm shocked," he said, "with the present economic condition, this will be a further loss to our area." He added, "I don't know if we can keep Auto Train in Sanford, because this is probably an Amtrak corporate decision that has already been studied, but if there is something the City can do, I'll be supporting it."

Robertson said yesterday, "We will be trying to locate somewhere between Sanford and possibly Kissimmee, somewhere near an Interstate highway."

Auto Train presently employs 150 persons. "We would like to eliminate that many people," Robertson said, "hopefully most of them will be able to move to wherever our new facility will be."

Auto Train will have new double decker Superliner trains in service by 1995.

Smith said.

He said that the stadium was empty at 5:15 p.m. when the fire broke out. The football team, the band and the cheerleaders had been practicing on and around the field but had left the area just a few minutes earlier.

"As it is now, this is just a little bit of an inconvenience," Smith said.

He said that he has conferred with Supt. Paul Hagerty and Darvin Boothe, principal of Lake Brantley High School, and they agreed that there would be no reason to postpone the game which is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday.

"It's not something we can't deal with," Smith said.

Robert said the investigation would continue through today and then be turned over to the Seminole County Sheriff's Department.

tion of the tollroad. At the time, the property was owned by Jessup's Landing Partnership, a company comprised of a Daytona Beach man and a south Florida couple.

According to expressway files, the property was marketed for $13.5 million in 1989, although an expressway appraisal pegged the value at less than $2 million. Documents show First American Bank and Trust, which issued a $3.7 million mortgage on the property, failed and was taken over by the FDIC. The federal agency then foreclosed on the mortgage and assumed ownership of the property.

Jerry Brinton, executive director of the authority, the ownership was clouded during a legal battle between the previous owners, so plans to purchase Jessup's Landing were dropped and the authority bought the Futch property further west for about $1.4 million. The authority is restoring the diked pastureland to its former wetlands state.

Currency crisis worsens

By ROBERT J. WIELAARD
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS, Belgium — In yet another shock to the drive for European economic union, Italy today joined Britain in abandoning the European currency system and allowed the lira's value to be dictated by market forces.

After Britain's failed attempts Wednesday to prop up a plummeting pound by raising interest rates, the European Community's central bank directors met in emergency session to try to salvage the system that binds their countries' currencies.

EC financial officers, after a six-hour overnight meeting, announced the moves by Italy and Spain and stressed their "unanimous commitment to the European Monetary System as a key factor of economic stability and prosperity in Europe."

The system sets maximum fluctuation rates for EC currencies and forces members to raise interest rates and buy large amounts of their own currencies in order to stay within the allowable range.

But Britain's leaders decided that doing this was just too damaging for their recession-ridden economy. The same held for Italy, which had already devalued the lira by 7 percent over the weekend.

The result was a further erosion in the value of both currencies.

The pound turned upward this morning after tumbling Wednesday. At 11 a.m., the British currency was quoted at $1.7830, up sharply from an early-morning low of $1.7385. The pound was also quoted at 2.8724 German marks, up from 2.8412 marks earlier in the day.

The lira, which was 1,248.50 to the dollar on Wednesday, dropped to 1,288.50 in London.

Stock indexes rose in Tokyo and London, and prices for gold, a traditional haven in times of turmoil, were higher. The Nikkei Stock Average in Tokyo gained 171.82 points, and by midday, London stocks were up more than 94 points.

In Frankfurt, the German Bundesbank said today it was leaving its key interest rates unchanged, despite the turmoil that high German interest rates have caused in the European currency system.

The decision was made at the Central Bank Council meeting, a Bundesbank spokesman said. In response to European pressure, the Germans had lowered the key Lombard interest rate slightly to 9.50 percent on Monday and the discount to 8.25 percent. However, the move did not stem the flight from other European currencies to the German mark.

In London, government officials pointed fingers at Germany's central bank, accusing it of undermining confidence by persistently leaking indications that the pound was overvalued.

"Because of the Bundesbank view that had gone around the markets that devaluation was necessary, all of the pressure ... was against" the pound, said John Watts, the governing Conservative Party's chairman of the parliamentary treasury committee.

Britain Prime Minister John Major met with his Cabinet in emergency session, and a senior official later said the ministers stood behind Chancellor of the Exchequer Norman Lamont, despite demands that he resign.

Britain has given no indication when it might return to the exchange system. Italian officials say they will return the lira on Tuesday.

Cable TV may be regulated soon

By DIANE DUSTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Congress is likely soon to send President Bush a bill that responds to a multitude of customer complaints about the cost and quality of cable television.

The legislation was expected to be approved today by the House, followed shortly by the Senate.

The cable industry has campaigned relentlessly against the measure, saying in newspaper and cable channel ads that it would raise costs that would have to be passed on to customers.

"Some in the cable industry must feel that if you tell the big lie often enough and loudly enough, somebody will start to believe it," said Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., sponsor of the legislation in the House.

He and a group of other House members and consumer and labor representatives called a news conference Wednesday to counteract cable's media campaign against their bill.

"We created a monster in 1984 and now we are paying the price," said Rep. Christopher Shays, R-Conn., in a reference to the year cable was deregulated to help it grow.

The cable industry now is a multibillion-dollar business that enjoys monopoly conditions in the overwhelming majority of communities.

The re-regulation bill would hold monopoly cable companies to Federal Communications Commission rate standards on basic service and foster competition, which is seen as ultimately the best way to control prices.

The FCC would determine "reasonable" rates and ensure that equipment such as converter boxes and remote control devices are not too costly.

The FCC also would set service standards to protect against chronic outages and guarantee that customers get quick telephone response to questions about billing, refunds and service problems.

The commission would have to streamline its complaint procedures so customers can get quick regulatory response if they feel they are being overcharged or underserved by the local cable company.

The bill also has various provisions designed to help other television systems compete with cable to give consumers more choice.

Regan to stay with Dodgers

MIAMI — Los Angeles Dodgers scout Phil Regan has withdrawn his candidacy for the Florida Marlins' managerial job because of personal reasons.

Regan, 55, was scheduled to interview with the Marlins on Friday.

"I've made a decision to stay with the Dodgers," Regan said. "It has nothing to do with the Marlins."

Marlins general manager Dave Dombrowski instead will interview Atlanta's Triple-A manager, Chris Chambliss, on Friday.

Four Marlins head down under

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Florida Marlins will send four of their minor league players to play in Australia this winter, the team announced Wednesday.

Catcher Mark Skeels, outfielder Pookie Wilson and pitchers Barry Parisotto and Don Lemon will play for the Melbourne Monarchs, according to a statement released by the Marlins.

The Australian league begins play Nov. 7.

Heat, Bulls to raise money

MIAMI — The Chicago Bulls will play the Miami Heat in an exhibition game on Oct. 19 to raise money for the rebuilding of hurricane-devastated South Florida.

Proceeds from the benefit game, which the teams hope will raise $500,000, will go to the coalition We Will Rebuild. Heat managing partner Lewis Schaffel said Wednesday.

"Having this game is the best and most immediate way we know to help those who were affected by this tragic storm," Schaffel said. "This is something we feel good about. ... This is something we believe we must do."

The league and the NBA Players Association had to approve the game at the Miami Arena since the Bulls already had the maximum eight exhibition games allowed, Schaffel said.

Gators' Bates sidelined

GAINESVILLE — Florida linebacker James Bates watched Wednesday's practice on crutches and is listed as doubtful for Saturday's game at Tennessee because of a strained tendon in his foot.

Freshmen Matt Pearson and Jason Bartley will be Bates' backup if Bates can't play.

Gators coach Steve Spurrier said he didn't know if Bates would be ready.

Also, Tre Everett missed his second straight practice because of a pulled hamstring and is doubtful for Saturday's game.

Sophomore Aubrey Hill, who missed the first game with a pulled hamstring, returned to practice and will be ready to play. Starting center Gantt Crouch sat out practice Wednesday because of a sore neck, but Spurrier said Crouch should be able to play against Tennessee.

Tribe nets second win

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — After suffering through a winless season a year ago, the Seminole High School boys' volleyball team is off to a 2-0 start this year.

On Wednesday night, the Fighting Seminoles needed three games to turn away the visiting Edgewater Eagles, 15-6, 6-15, 15-9, to win their second match in as many outings.

"The guys are playing pretty hard and playing with a lot of confidence," said Seminole coach Sylvester Wynn. "They're playing together as a team and that's making a big difference."

"We're just going to take it one game at a time. We're gaining more confidence each time. As long as we keep playing hard, we'll pick up some more wins along the way."

Leading the Seminoles past Edgewater were Dan White, Trung Yong, Pat Wilson, Jon Williams and Jason Wildermuth.

In junior varsity action, Edgewater swept Seminole in two games.

Seminole will open its Seminole Athletic Conference schedule next Monday at home against Lyman.

Dan White (No. 18, in air) and the Seminole Fighting Seminoles hammered out their second win of the season, beating Edgewater in three games Wednesday. Seminole is 2-0 after going winless a year ago.

Lake Mary takes care of DeLand

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — Taking care of business in business-like fashion, the Lake Mary High School girls' volleyball team swept the visiting DeLand Bulldogs 15-4, 15-7 in a 4A-District 9 match played Wednesday night.

The Ram junior varsity didn't fare as well, losing to DeLand 7-15, 16-14, 15-13.

"We looked smooth and played well," said Lake Mary varsity coach Cindy Henry of her team's win. "We could have very easily fallen into their game, but we just set up and did our thing. We had a chance to play everyone a lot, which was nice."

Junior Nikki Preece served 13 of the Rams' 30 points and came up with six digs on defense. Senior setter Lorrie Boger collected 10 assists while directing the Lake Mary attack, which was led by Angie Snow's four kills.

Lake Mary (now 5-3) will open defense of its Seminole Athletic Conference championship when it plays at Lake Howell next Tuesday evening.

LYMAN NOW 3-0

ORLANDO — It took only three matches for this year's Lyman High School girls' volleyball team to match the win total of the 1991 squad.

A year ago, the Greyhounds were 3-0 under first-year coach Christy Tibbitts. On Wednesday night, the Greyhounds ran their 1992 mark to 3-0 with a 12-15, 15-5, 15-12 victory over the Bishop Moore Hornets.

Bishop Moore falls to 2-5. The Lyman junior varsity squad also won its match with Bishop Moore in three games.

"It was another good win for us," said Scott. "We're quickly approaching beating our record of last year."

Aside from the fact that the win extended Lyman's perfect start, Scott was exceptionally pleased

San Francisco citizen's group challenges indemnity agreement

By CATALINA ORTIZ

SAN FRANCISCO — A citizen's group has gone to court to fight the city's decision to legally shield local investors trying to buy the San Francisco Giants.

The Coalition for San Francisco Neighborhoods filed a suit in San Francisco Superior Court Wednesday that seeks to reverse the Board of Supervisors' decision to defend any lawsuits against potential investors and pay damages if they lose.

A lawyer for the coalition said the board's vote violates the city's charter. Attorney John Wahl also said taxpayer's money shouldn't be used to protect the wealthy investors who are trying to keep the team from being sold to would-be buyers from Florida and moved to St. Petersburg.

"These guys want to come out as heroes,"

Wahl said of the local group. "They want to emerge as the saviors of the Giants. And although they are millionaires at least ... they don't want to risk a damn dime of their own. They want the people of San Francisco to indemnify them. And that's craziness."

The local investors, led by NBA Charlotte Hornets owner George Shinn, said they needed legal protection before they could finalize their offer and submit it to National League president Bill White. White has asked for a formal order by the end of the month.

Giants owner Bob Lurie last month announced he had agreed in principle to sell the team to a group of Florida investors who want to move the team to St. Petersburg's Suncoast Dome.

City attorney Louise Renne, who has said that the risk to the city from the indemnity agreement was minimal, on Wednesday said the coalition's suit was completely without merit.

"We believe that the Board of Supervisors and the mayor were within their full legal authority to adopt the indemnity agreement," she said. Mayor Frank Jordan had urged the board to pass the agreement and signed it as soon as it did.

"The board and the mayor determined that the indemnity agreement served a valid public purpose," said Renne. Consequently, she added, their actions were within the law.

But Wahl said the supervisors' vote violates the city's charter in that it should have been an ordinance instead of a resolution. It also violates the charter in that there was no certification by the city controller that there is any money to pay for legal costs or damages stemming from any lawsuit against the investors, he said.

"There's also a problem of making a gift of public credit," Wahl said, adding that such a gift is forbidden by California's constitution. Such gifts are allowed only if they serve a public purpose.

"But I think [the supervisors] are hard pressed ... how our purpose is advanced by this gift," Wahl said.

Also on Wednesday, St. Louis Cardinals president Fred C. Kuhlmann said the baseball ownership committee has temporarily stopped its examination of the St. Petersburg group attempting to buy the Giants. The committee is waiting to hear if the NL is going to give the team permission to move to Florida.

"The ownership committee doesn't have anything set right now," Kuhlmann said.

"I don't think we should be looking into the conditions of buyers in Tampa-St. Pete until they have permission to move. We don't want to be raising people's hopes. Until we have some signal from the league, I think we'll basically stay put."

The sale of the team must be approved by 10 of the 14 NL owners and eight of 14 American League baseball owners before it can go through.

Junior hitter Carrie Scranton (right) and her Lyman teammates matched their 1991 win total of three by rallying for a 12-15, 15-5, 15-12 win over the host Bishop Moore Hornets Wednesday night.

with her team's effort because: (A) it came on the road; (B) it came against a taller team; and (C) it came against a well-coached team.

"They [Bishop Moore] are tough," said Tibbits. "They're big and they're disciplined."

Lyman received a scare when junior hitter Carrie Scranton had to go to the bench for a short period of time late in the third game.

"We had to take Carrie out when the score was 10-5 in the third game," said Tibbits. "We did OK when she was out. Amanda Lawrence went in for Carrie and did well."

Michelle Bishop also played a strong match for the Greyhounds, serving 18 points over the three games and contributing several kills. Scranton played what is quickly becoming her standard strong game at the net and on defense while Hope Kercher surprised Tibbits with some of her digs on the defensive end.

"She came up with some things that I didn't think were going to come up off the floor," said Tibbits.

Lyman will return to action next Monday in a 4A-District 9 match at DeLand.

Marino specializes in last-minute heroics

By STEVEN WINE
AP Sports Writer

MIAMI — Dan Marino gets a special thrill from pulling out a game in the final minute.

He did it again Monday night, engineering an 84-yard drive that produced the winning touchdown with seven seconds left as the Miami Dolphins won at Cleveland, 27-23.

"It was fun to accomplish that," Marino said. "After we scored, it was a great feeling. It's tough to describe, but that's kind of what it's all about. You don't want to be in the situation, but if you are, you want to make the most of it."

It was a remarkable comeback led by a quarterback known for fourth-quarter heroics throughout his 10-year career. Marino reversed the game's momentum after Cleveland had sent the crowd into a frenzy by rallying from a 20-3 deficit with eight minutes to go.

For the 19th time, Marino brought Miami from behind in the fourth quarter to win. He did it last season against Chicago and Green Bay. He has done it eight times on the road.

"The thing that has made him a great quarterback through the years is the ability to produce in pressure situations," Miami coach Don Shula said. "He's as good as I've been around. You've got Joe Montana and some other people that have had pretty impressive heroics throughout their career, but Dan is right there with them."

When Marino took the field for the final time Monday night, the Dolphins trailed 23-20 with 75 seconds remaining.

"Time for Marino to work his magic," Shula said later.

Marino began by completing passes of 19 yards to Mark Duper and 9 yards to Bobby Humphrey. That moved the ball to Miami's 44-yard line.

In the hurry-up offense, success on the first couple of plays is crucial, Marino said.

"It does feed on itself," he said. "You want to complete them all and get into a rhythm and get it going. You don't want a situation where it's fourth and

10. That's what makes it tough."

With 37 seconds left, Marino hit Fred Banks for 22 yards. When the Browns were penalized 15 yards for roughing the passer, Miami had the ball at Cleveland's 19.

Tachycardia dangerous depending on the type

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm on Tenormin, Vasotec and Lanoxin for supraventricular tachycardia. Please explain the difference between my diagnosis and ventricular tachycardia.

DEAR READER: As I mentioned in a previous column, the cardiac muscle contracts when stimulated by tiny electrical impulses. Normally, these impulses originate in the sino-atrial node (the natural pacemaker), spread into the low-pressure chambers (atria), then sweep into the high-pressure chambers (ventricle), which lie below the atria. In the healthy heart, these electrical events are finely tuned and coordinated, leading to contractions that pump blood.

Sometimes, however, the system can malfunction, especially when cardiac muscle generates impulses that interfere with the sino-atrial node. Such disturbances are commonly classified as ventricular (coming from the high-pressure chambers) or supraventricular (arising from the atrial muscles ABOVE the ventricle).

The competing impulses are often very rapid (called "tachycardia"), causing palpitations, lightheadedness, shortness-of-breath and other symptoms.

Ventricular tachycardia is ominous. It is frequently the result of arteriosclerotic heart disease, may herald a life-threatening runaway cardiac rhythm, and is treated with prescription medicine, such as procaine.

On the other hand, supraventricular tachycardia is not nearly as dangerous. It can be the consequence of an overactive thyroid gland, anemia or other medical ailments. SVT is usually treated with the drugs you mention.

Thus, you seem to be receiving appropriate therapy. If the medications fail to control your attacks of tachycardia, you should seek advice from a cardiologist.

To give you further information, I am sending you a free copy of my newest Health Report, titled "Heart Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91569, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be

Answer to Previous Puzzle

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

There are many contracts that declarers misplay without realizing it. Often they will make the contract and think nothing more of it. But once in a blue moon the opposing cards will divide so unfavorably that the declarer goes down. Then comes the grumble about bad luck. Yet there are some players who train themselves to find lines of play that allow for these diabolical distributions. Occasionally they have their moment in the sun.

Take today's deal for example. After a standard auction, in which North wisely did not mention his club suit, West leads the spade queen.

Most players win the first trick and without further ado lead a club to dummy's queen. When East discards, they stop dead in their tracks, the contract now equally lifeless. They can finesse dummy's club 10 for an eighth trick, but the ninth is long gone.

Slightly better declarers play a club to the 10 at trick two. This is an improvement, guarding against a 4-1 club break, but here it still results in one down.

The best declarers allow for West's having all five clubs. At trick two, they lead a club and finesse dummy's eight. When East discards, they smile contentedly. They return to hand in another suit and lead a second club, finessing dummy's 10. The result is one overtrick, not one undertrick.

If you wouldn't have finessed dummy's club eight, don't worry too much. West will have all five clubs less than two percent of the time. But you should allow for a 4-1 split, which will occur more than a quarter of the time.

Readers are invited to send card-play questions to Phillip Alder, in care of this newspaper.

They can be answered only through the column.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

Sept. 18, 1982

Your possibilities for achieving greater recognition in your field of endeavor look very hopeful for the year ahead. However, in order to fulfill your ambitions, there may be a price to pay.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Tasks you've been postponing because you felt they were too tough or distasteful can be managed with relative ease today - if you have the fortitude to take them on. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences governing you in the year ahead. Send for Virgo's Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Let the one you love know how much he or she is appreciated today, not by what you say, but by what you do. Deeds speak volumes that words cannot convey.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If things haven't been running quite the way you wanted them to in your household recently, positive changes can be made today. However, they must be done with everyone's best interest at heart.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Team efforts are likely to be much more successful today than those you attempt independently, especially when you and your mate are striving for a mutual objective.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be alert for an opportunity today that could produce a sustained earning rate over a long period of time. It's likely to occur within your field of expertise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Take serious matters seriously today and treat light matters as events which should be enjoyed. Be extremely careful you don't do the opposite.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There's a possibility you might be required to make a small sacrifice today on behalf of someone for whom you're responsible. Do it with a smile, not a feeling that you're being imposed upon.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you require a special favor, an old friend who has always come through when needed is the one to go to today. Just be frank about your needs.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A meaningful objective might not be too easily achieved today. However, if it is worth working for, be prepared to expend the effort. Motivation is the key.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your probabilities for success are very good today because of your ability to appraise matters realistically. Sound judgment will help you weave your way around obstacles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Instead of letting negative conditions dominate you today, make a concerted effort to induce positive change. If you work your will, the unworkable will work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A little extra patience and tolerance might be required today when dealing with a sensitive friend. Do what you can to help bolster this individual's ego.

Constitution discussed

SANFORD — Mrs. Anthony Dobrzanski, honorary Florida state regent, was guest speaker at the recent September luncheon meeting of Sallie Harrison Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution at the Chamber of Commerce Building, Sanford. She addressed members and guests on dual topics: the Constitution of the United States and DAR schools. In reflecting on the Constitution and its authors, she emphasized its unique success for more than 200 years. She also warned of inherent dangers in changing it by means of a second Constitutional Convention, rather than by the amendment process.

Mrs. V.C. Messenger, Constitution Week chairman of Sallie Harrison Chapter, DAR, reported to Chapter members about the recent ratification of the 27th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

First proposed by James Madison in 1789, there was no deadline for its passage. It became official upon its ratification by the Michigan legislature May 7, 1992 (203 years later!).

Dealing with congressional pay raises, the complete text reads: "No law, varying the compensation for the services of the senators and representatives shall take effect, until an election of representatives shall have intervened."

The DAR School Committee was established in 1903. Nationally, DAR members contributed more than $600,000 during the preceding year in support of six schools: Tamasee DAR School in South Carolina; Kate Duncan Smith DAR School in Alabama; Berry College, Georgia; Crossnore School, N.C.; Hillside School, Massachusetts; and Hindman Settlement School, Kentucky. The local chapter also collects Campbell Soup labels for the purchase of classroom and recreational equipment, a van, and audiovisual materials.

Tamasee DAR School is approaching its 75th birthday. State Regent Mrs. James McCarthy, has chosen for her three-year project the support of the Florida House at Tamasee. Sallie Harrison Chapter will donate the September luncheon table decorations to the children living in the Florida House. These include pencils, rulers, and large boxes of crayons.

During the business session Mrs. A.F. Anderson, chairman of the flag of the United States of America Committee, announced that the Chapter will present a flag that has flown over the Capitol building in Washington, D.C. to Seminole County's new Indian Trails Middle School when it opens later in the school year.

Man says no marriage in his future

DEAR ABBY: I am 32, and so is my boyfriend. We have been going together for two years and living together for the last eight months.

We have both been married. We eloped with our high school sweethearts. He had to get married because he got a girl pregnant. I got married to get out of the house. I had a friendly divorce. He was a mess. He was deeply hurt and says he never wants to get married again, and he doesn't want any children. I would like to have at least one.

Abby, I would like to have a ring and told him so. He says that he will give me a ring, but it will not be an engagement ring — it will be more like a "promise" ring. Would this be appropriate since we have both been married before?

I feel a little cheated. Should I? Please rush your response to me because my birthday is coming up soon and I think he's giving me a ring. If he does, on which finger should I wear it?

LIVING AS TWO,

ADVICE
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

BUT FEELING LIKE ONE
DEAR LIVING: If he gives you a ring, it doesn't matter on which finger you wear it, since he has made it clear that he doesn't want to get married again. You cannot consider this an "engagement" ring, but if he calls it a "promise" ring — what is he promising?

If you want marriage and children, you should look elsewhere, because he has already told you that he wants neither. Give him an "A" for honesty, but keep your options open.

DEAR ABBY: At age 43, I had almost given up on finding love. But now I find myself involved with a very loving man of 33. This will be the first marriage for both of us.

I've always wanted children, but now I wonder if I am too old. I would be interested in the opinions of your readers who have had their first child at age 46 or 47.

I worry that perhaps I would not be energetic enough, and wonder if it would be fair to a child to have a menopausal mom who looks more like a grandmother than a mother at PTA meetings.

Knowing what they know now, would any of your readers who have been down this road do it again?

FOUND LOVE LATE
DEAR LOVE FOUND LATE: Age is only a number. The condition of one's health is the important factor here. I wouldn't be too concerned about how my children "might" feel having a mom who looks more like a grandmother at PTA meetings. Many women have chosen to delay motherhood — so you could find yourself in the company of contemporaries.

DEAR ABBY: For the last year and a half, I have been in an exclusive relationship with a very fine widower. He has three grown children. His wife passed away seven months before we became involved. (My husband had been dead for eight years.)

Ours is a strong, loving relationship that I am sure will eventually end in marriage. We both had good marriages. His lasted for 23 years, mine 10 years.

Now the problem: Not only does he still wear his wedding ring, he also wears his wife's high school graduation ring on a chain around his neck. He never takes it off — not even to shower. This makes me uncomfortable in certain situations — for example, when we make love and the ring is dangling in my face.

I've mentioned this, but he continues to wear it. Since he has proclaimed his love for me, why is he still wearing those items?

Also, when he marries me, where will the wedding band I intend to give him be worn? We aren't just going steady; we have a lifelong commitment.

IN LOVE WITH A "MARRIED" MAN
DEAR IN LOVE: The man who has proclaimed his love for you, and with whom you believe you have a lifelong commitment, may not be as committed to this relationship as you are.

He's still wearing "those items" that symbolize his attachment to his deceased wife because he is not yet ready — or able — to let go.
