The protest filed by Flagship requests the Federal Reserve Bank disapprove the proposed acquisition of control described in the notice on the grounds the notice was deficient in several respects.

Home Builders Expo To Be Sept. 24-25

Small and large builders from throughout Central Florida will display their latest designs and floor plans at Central Florida's annual Open House at Orlando's Expo Center, 500 W. Livingston St., Sept. 24-25.

The new home show is sponsored by the Home Builders Association of Mid-Florida and is free. On Sept. 24 the show will be open to area realtors only. On Sept. 25 the show will be open to the public from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m.

"Central Florida's Open House is an opportunity for the builders to show the Realtors and the public their new residential designs," said Lester Zimmerman, chairman of the HCA's Open House Committee. "This is an annual event that has been open only to Realtors in the past. But this year we decided to share the information with the public."

Builders will have booths with brochures and literature on their latest residential communities and model homes. Photographs, renderings and floor plans will be available for the public to review. Builder representatives also will be on hand to answer questions from prospective home buyers.

"The concept of the Open House is to save time for the home buyer and the realtor. Rather than driving all over town looking at models and collecting literature, the home buyer can come to Expo Center for a day and get information about floor plans, elevations, building materials, prices and location," Zimmerman said.

The following builders have reserved space at Central Florida's Open House: Residential Communities of America, Catalina Homes, Bay Hill Village, Laurel Builders, Bel-Aire Homes, Rosemont Village, Kuhl & Brinkman, Florida Residential Communities, Greater Construction, Kensington Park Apartments, Viking Builders, Lloyd Homes, Trafalgar, Wingfield Reserve, Downs Properties, H. Miller & Sons and First Southern Group.

Realtors who will be representing several builders include Wall Street Co., Tusawilla Realty, Emerson and Herod and the Orlando-Winter Park Board of Realtors as well as the Seminole County Board of Realtors.

Cardinal Opens Eustis Complex

Cardinal Industries, Inc., Sanford, developers of the 50-unit Deerwood Apartments in Eustis, has announced the complex is now open. The multi-family residential project is being managed by Peter and Kathleen Spitz.

Deerwood is a seven building complex with 44 one-bedroom and six two-bedroom units. The $1.1 million development is financed by Equibank, of Pittsburgh, Penn.

Deerwood was completed from start to finish in approximately 100 days. It is the first apartment complex to be developed by Cardinal in Eustis, the second in Lake County and the 120th in Florida since the company began operating in Sanford five years ago. With these and some 400 other developments in Ohio and the Midwest, Cardinal is the largest factory-built code-conforming modular housing builder and developer in the United States.

Cardinal has developed complexes with the corporate limits of 50 Florida cities and in the unincorporated areas of another 12 Florida counties.

"Every Cardinal apartment is a ground floor garden type unit," according to Marilyn Wrobel, director of community affairs.

Construction began Sept. 9 on this $1.5 million, 16,000-square foot eye ambulatory surgery center in DeLand. The Neumann Eye Institute will serve as a research and teaching facility as well. The expansion project will be completed by June 1983. Matsche, Gordon and Associates of Mount Dora designed the facility.

DeLand Eye Center Construction Begins

Construction has started this month on a $1.5 million, 16,000-sq. ft. expansion of the Neumann Eye Institute, an eye surgery and medical research facility in DeLand.

The privately funded effort, which will include one of only three fully licensed eye ambulatory surgery centers in the U.S., will be among the most sophisticated of its kind in the world, according to founder and medical director Dr. Albert C. Neumann.

All surgery performed at the new facility, expected to be completed and opened next June, will be done on an ambulatory or outpatient basis, Neumann explained, which means patients will be encouraged to return home within an hour of the operation.

"Our research has shown that few patients require overnight hospital stays for even major eye surgery procedures," Neumann said. "Recovery is safer, faster and more successful at home where the patient can relax in comfortable surroundings, in the company of his or her family and loved ones." In addition, Neumann said, health care costs resulting from overnight or extended hospital stays will be eliminated. Traditional hospital operating room charges will be greatly reduced, he said.

The expansion project will allow a wide range of sophisticated eye medical surgery care on a regular basis. "Currently, we're offering most eye surgery procedures on an outpatient basis," Neumann said, "but we've outgrown our present facilities. The expansion project will give us enough room to continue our research work and to provide a much more expanded scope of patient care services."

Among the more sophisticated concepts to be offered will be perioperative care, Neumann said, by which patients and their families are given extensive educational and counseling services to complement the medical care.

AMERICA'S FAMILY DRUG STORE

Since retiring after 23 years with Florida Power and Light Co., George Pittard has filled his home with beautiful handmade country furniture.

Dream On

Artisan Turns Ideas Into Reality

By LINDA HOLI
Special To The Herald

George Pittard is a dreamer. Unlike most fantasies, George's dreams come true.

As a young boy, George visited at Lake Burton near Clayton, Ga. He dreamed of living in a cabin on that lake. He and his vivacious wife, Jean, spend their summers now in their cabin home on Lake Burton. The cabin is located seven miles off the Appalachian Trail near the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Born in Athens, Ga. 66 years ago, George was one of four children brought up in a Christian environment. He still lives by those principles learned at home and has tried to instill the same beliefs in his two daughters, Betty and Helen, now grown with families of their own.

A deacon in the church for some 30 years and a member of the Seminole Heights Baptist Church, he told his daughters, "Don't start any bad habits and you won't have a problem breaking them." George and his wife were always active in P.T.A. and centered their interests around the family.

Another dream materialized back in the early '60s when George personally built a camp for children in Osteen. While still a youngster, he salvaged building materials including some windows and stored them under the house of his parents. He envisioned building a boy's camp someday and later used those same windows from the past in the cabins at Camp Mok.

Every evening after work, he cleared the land and hauled old power poles to the site. The poles were cut into lumber for constructing the buildings. In the summers, George took extra vacation time and operated the camp.

The Pittard home, daughter Betty's home and a daycare center that Jean owned and operated for many years next to their home were all built by George. Since retiring, after 23 years with Florida Power and Light Co., he has been busy filling his home with beautiful handmade country furniture. He can be found almost every day in his workshop adjacent to the house.

In a showroom next to the shop, custom-made tables, china cupboards, shelves, decorative accent pieces, etc. abound. George has learned many crafts to accentuate and decorate the lovely wood he works with. There are stained glass panels in some cabinets, punched tin doors on a pie safe, and wood carvings on chests, all created by the artisan. He has also learned to make ceramics.

It all began with a corner cabinet and bookcase made in the early days of his marriage and still treasured by his wife. She marvels at the workmanship since the cabinet was made with the three or four basic tools George owned at the time.

In the planning stages now, a unique new store will be built by the Pittards in early 1983. Of country design, the store will be filled with all of the items George creates. It will be the fulfillment of another dream five years in the making.

The couple collected stones for the store fireplace, vines and many other natural items on the recent 6,000 mile trip this summer. They played in the snow in 40 degree weather at Yellowstone National Park, visited the Carlsbad Caverns in New Mexico, took in a rodeo and the Buffalo Bill Museum in Cody, Wyo., and went white-water rafting down a river near Durango, Colo.

They described the river raft trip as "so exciting" though the 38 degree water was freezing. They took two of their six grandchildren, Tim and Troy Deppen along in their Winnebago because, "We want our grandchildren to enjoy beauty and wanted to introduce this to them while they're young so that it might be a lifelong appreciation." The caverns and all of the other natural wonders they experienced in their words, "...just took our breath away."

George Pittard is never idle. He and Jean travel in their camper pulling a long trailer filled with his wood creations to weekend art shows all over the state. He's always been happiest working at something.

After high school graduation, George worked for the U.S. Postal Service and held another job in soil conservation for a year before going to the University of Miami in Coral Gables on a full football scholarship. He remembers hitchhiking to Miami from his home in Georgia on the back of a truck loaded with chickens and working in the college dining hall once he arrived. He also remembers ironing shirts for some of his roommates to earn extra money. He earned a B.A. degree in business administration from the university.

While still in college, he went shopping in the Duval jewelry store one day. He wanted to buy a gold chain for a little gold football charm that he intended to present to a girlfriend. The girl behind the counter was Jean and as George says, "She took the chain, then the football, and that was the end of the other girl!"

George and Jean returned to her hometown of Sanford soon after their marriage and have lived here since.

There is a reason for all of George's dreams becoming realities. "I give Jesus the credit for all my strength and any talents I may have. Without Him, I couldn't have dreamed the dreams or made them come true."

What are George Pittard's plans for the future? Whatever they are they are sure to start with a dream and be followed by plenty of hard work.

George Pittard is proud of one of the newer cabinets he has made featuring glass doors ornamented with a decorator's design.

Couponing, Refunding Serious Business For Women

Jane Ihndris, right, considers herself a professional couponer and refunder while Pam Walker says she is a semi-pro. The women show some of the items they have received from refund offers.

By DEE GATRELL
Herald Correspondent

"Before I started couponing I was depressed when I had to go to the grocery store. Now it's fun. I find it a real challenge to see how much I can lower my grocery bill," says Mrs. Jane Ihndris.

"I find it a fun, paying hobby," says Mrs. Pam Walker. Consumers read articles and watch TV programs where people claim they save a bundle of money on refunding and clipping coupons. Is this true?

Pam Walker of Winter Springs, and Jane Ihndris of Casselberry, both married and the mothers of three children, claim the savings are absolutely true. While Jane does refunding on a full time scale, Pam considers herself a semi-pro.

When one of the local supermarkets recently had triple coupon day to celebrate its anniversary, Jane and Pam both made two trips to the store. Jane purchased a total of $250 in groceries, but by using her coupons, she spent only $50. Pam arrived at the cash register with $165 in items and ended up paying $47.

"Let me tell you," says Pam, "that's the difference between a pro and a semi-pro."

Jane says her first experience with couponing was 13 years ago when she sent in baby food labels and received a baby sweater. She's only been in refunding "heavy duty" for the past three years, while Pam has been into it semi-pro for two years. Previously Pam had been into contests. Last November she won a $100 gift certificate from Winn Dixie, and in February she won $100 gift certificate from Albertsons. These were national sweepstakes, not local promotions.

"Along with the $100 gift certificate I used coupons. So instead of $100 in groceries, I ended up with $150 in groceries." Pam then turned around and sent in all her refund items and received approximately another $40. "Those were the months we ate nearly for free," says Pam.

Jane says the strategy she uses starts out by clipping coupons from the newspaper, magazines and back of packages. She also checks the bulletin boards in the stores to see if there are any in-store coupons and she sends away for large value coupons. (Those are the ones where you are usually asked to mail two labels etc. and receive coupons or items.)

"I don't pay much attention to the 10 and 20 cent coupons," says Jane. "I go for the $1 coupons."

"Next she goes through the paper to see what is on sale at which stores. She usually shops at three stores. She makes a list of what she'll buy from store No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3. Then she'll go through her coupon pile and pick out coupons for each product she'll purchase at each store.

She then paper clips the coupons to each list and has them ready so she don't have to resort them at the store. She says she spends about an hour and a half getting ready to go the grocery store.

"I have a map of the stores with me and that way I never spend more than 45 minutes in the store," says Jane.

Jane shops at store No. 1 where she gets double coupons, and will purchase their "good deals and sales items." Then she goes to store No. 2, which does not have double coupons, and turns in her free coupons. "Many times this store will have items on sale, and even though you'll only get a single coupon off, you'll end up paying less than at the double coupon store," says Jane. Last, Jane will shop at store No. 3 where the prices are not only lower, but they also have double coupons.

Pam does basically the same thing, but she carries a file box filled with her coupons with her when she shops "just in case I find an unadvertised special." Pam says people tell her they forget their coupons, she tells them it's best to carry the coupons with them at all times, even if it's in a coupon holder they can carry in their purse.

"Jane has a nose for finding refund forms in a store," says Pam.

"I'll ask someone who's coming out of the store if they found any forms. They'll say "no." I must have radar because I'll find them," says Jane.

While both women trade forms and "complete deals" through the mail with women from all over the country, Jane also attends conventions. She says she makes money by trading her extra complete deals. A "complete deal" is the refund form, plus the label of UPC that is required and anything else that is required to receive a refund, coupon or gift. They don't trade coupons at the conventions, just complete deals.

Both women feel they have more of a varied menu and can afford the luxury of using convenience foods occasionally. They usually try all new products because "they have big coupons along with refunds." They say if their families don't like the products, they don't use them again—coupon or not.

Jane taught a refunding and coupon course at Valencia Community College last year and says if there is a response for it, she'll teach it again this year.

On the third Friday of each month women throughout Central Florida gather together at Jane's house to discuss and swap complete deals. Anyone interested may contact Jane by calling her at 331-6270.

Mrs. Doris DeCook, a clerk at a local drugstore, says more and more people are using coupons on drug related items also. She says she never shops "unless I have coupons with me for extra saving." She gathers her refunds and sends them off about

Let Your Light Shine

Jesus put magnificent truths in simple terms we'll never forget. None among us wants to hide his light under a bushel!

But are we as quick to realize that Christ is really talking about setting the right example?

Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven.

Those whose light brightens life all week set an especially significant example in their place of worship. Apparently in the worship and work of God they recharge spiritual batteries.

today's. You are East. The game is rubber bridge and you have a typical hand with which you expect to pay off game and rubber. The bidding does nothing to encourage you except that they have not bid a slam. Your partner opens the seven of diamonds. You take your ace and if you are resigned to your fate you simply lead back your partner's suit. If you are an alert player you realize that there is some chance to beat this hand, but little or none if you lead back a diamond. Your partner probably holds the diamond king. If you lead back a diamond he will score it. He probably holds some other high card or cards. He doesn't hold ace-king of hearts. Could he hold ace-queen? Possibly he can. If he doesn't the heart shift may cost you a trick with his diamond king, but that will be a 30-point trick. Go for all the marbles. Lead a heart. Lo and behold! He takes two hearts and the king of diamonds and you have turned defeat into victory. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)
