Contributor list released

LAKE MARY - All records of the First Baptist Church Markham Woods, including the names of contributors and the amount they donated. will be turned over to two former church members. Pastor Dr. Bob Parker said the records are being released because the church faced a $10,000 contempt of court fine issued last week by circuit court Judge O.H. Eaton. Although most church records requested in a civil suit by a former church member were turned over in June, 1994, the names of individual contributors and amount donated, were not. Ann Haynes sued in 1993 to get access to church records to see if the pastor mishandled funds including getting interest free loans from the church.

Armed robbers strike Employees threatened at 2 Sanford businesses

Hereld Staff Writer

SANFORD - Armed robbers awiftly struck two businesses in Sanford Tuesday, leaving police speculating if they were done by the same persons.

According to Sanford police Commander Dennis Whitmire, the first incident occurred at 7:50 p.m., at Hair Emporium, 2657 Park Drive. Store owner Susie Meltin and Kelly Evans were reportedly in the store at the time.

"Two black males entered the store, brandishing what were de-acribed as old looking silver handguns." Whitmire said. "They demanded the clerk give them all the money from the cash register. and took an estimated $500 in currency and personal checks."

Whitmire said the two men reportedly warned the store personnel not to call the police, before fleeing on foot northward, on Park Drive.

The first robber was described as 15 to 17 years of age, five feet, six inches tall, 130 pounds, wearing blue jeuns and a green and blue ski mask.

The second robber was said to be 18 to 20 years of age, five feet, eight to 10 inches tall, 150 pounds, wearing a dark jacket and dark

Both of the men reportedly wore gloves. The second armed robbery occurred at 9:16 p.m., at Napoli's Pizza and Italian Restaurant, 3108 Sanford Avenue.

County eyes modifications to business sign ordinance

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - Businesamen in unincorporated parts of the county may have to replace on site signs sooner than they expected if Seminole County commissioners approve modifications to their sign ordinance.

Under a proposal by commission Chairman Randy Morris, commissioners will consider requiring sign owners to replace older, non-conforming structures with those meeting county requirements if they change the face of a sign or the ownership of the sign changes. They will also consider using a business expansion as grounds to impose requirements on sign owners.

"I'm trying to bring the signs into compliance faster."

Commissioners agreed businessmen shuld not be required to change their signs unless they meet the criteria. Commissioners will also drop their pursuit of a county-wide sign ordinance with CALNO.

John and Grace O'Brien dig sweet potatoes in their vegetable garden.

Commissioner Dick Van der Welde, although reluctant to support the face-change trigger, did request commissioners to consider a size limit on lower signs. Van Der Weide sald some businesses have lowered large signs, causing traffic safety problems.

Commissioners will meet with sign industry representatives and home builders next month to discuss billboards and other "offsite" signs.

Money sought for Child Abuse Hotline changes

By SANDRA ELLIOTT Herald Staff Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Changes in the state's swamped Child Abuse Hotline have reduced the number of lost calls but officials of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services are seeking legislative approval to spend federal dollars on more staffing and technology.

HRS Secretary Jim Towey this week is outlining for legislators improvements in the system and time saving options aimed at ready access for professional callers, such as doctors and law enforcement officers. These callers can now report suspected abuse by fax or can leave a message in the hotline's phone mail system.

"We've made great strides in convincing people to call when they believe a child is at risk." Towey said. "The money to pay for improvements we need is in the bank. We convinced the federal government that this is a worthwhile investment. Now we need legislative authority to Changes made within the existing budget resulted in a 60 percent drop in lost calls to the hotline during the first quarter of the fiscal year. The drop is due in part to a telephone prompt which allows people calling for purposes other than to report child abuse to select other options and move out of the system.

In addition, HRS has reassigned hotline staff to better cover peak reporting hours. The hotline is operated by 86 counselors and 10 supervisors. who staff the lines in shifts providing services 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Last year, the hotline handled more than 426,000 calls.

Teens injured in drive-by shooting

MIAMI - One teen-age girl was killed and another wounded during a drive-by shooting at a popular high school hangout in a north Miami neighborhood, police said.

Arlen Sequeira, 15, and Heidi Cortes, 14, were struck by shots fired from a car as it sped by the parking lot of Miami Discount Meat and Fish.

"The target may have been someone else in the parking lot. But they were not the target," said Miami police spokesman Angel Calzadilla. Sequeira died after she was shot in the throat and Cortez, who was shot in the head, was in critical condition. Many students from Miami Jackson Senior High School gather behind the store at lunchtime. Both of the girls were supposed to have been back in class at the time of the shooting, the principal said.

Police were looking for the occupants of the car, possibly two men, Calsadilla said.

Palmer airs new network

ORLANDO - The Golf Channel, an Orlando-based 24-hour network devoted exclusively to golf programming, is on the air. Arnold Palmer, network co-founder and chairman, flipped a switch Tuesday at a special ceremony that broadcast the first program, a one-hour show called "The Approach."

This included taped segments in which former President George Bush and other personalities sent their best wishes. The Golf Channel, which is being made available through local cable and satellite systems, will have complete coverage of more than 70 professional golf tournaments a year that are not available through the major commercial networks. In addition, there will be a series of instruction shows by David Pels and David Ledbetter, call-in talk shows with golf pros, interviews with top personalities, profiles of PGA Tour players, video tours of golf course layouts and resorts and a home-shopping show for golf equipment.

Video camera ban lifted

VALPARAISO — City commissioners have agreed to lift their ban on video cameras, but police physically blocked television news crews from taping their decision.

The commissioners also decided Monday night to videotape meetings themselves and telecast them on a city-owned cable system, saying they were afraid their comments might be taken out of context by the news media. Police Chief Lomax Donaldson told at least four camera operators to place caps on their lenses or else remove the cameras from City Hall. A plainclothes police investigator stood between the cameras and the commissioners and put his hand in front of a camera lens.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Home inspections on rise Group warns of unqualified inspectors

By ICE PLONES
Associated Press Writer

ORLANDO - An increasing demand by home buyers for independent home inspections is drawing many unqualified people into the inspection field, industry officials

Few states have licensing laws, and the "qualifications" for some can be as simple as a clipboard and a printed business card, according to the American Society of Home Inspectors.

"Every few months we hear of a new organization that claims to certify home inspectors, but ... all they really require are dues, without any proof of experience or technical qualifications," says ASHI President Alan Carson.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader, who delivered the keynote address at the ABHI convention in Orlando on Tuesday, said home buyers are increasingly breaking through "realtor-and-seller cartels" by getting their houses professionally inspected before buying.

A pre-purchase inspection ensures safety. and an inspector's report can be used to bargain down the final price, Nader said. The "local cartels of sellers" - realtors. bankers, mortgage finance companies, title companies and attorneys — don't like it, he said, but about 40 percent of home buyers are now requiring independent inspections.

The reason for the opposition, Nader said. is that "there's big money involved, from $20 billion to $30 billion in commissions

Inspectors may drive down the price of a house by pointing out needed repairs, or necessary replacements of such things as roofs, furnaces and stairways. This reduces commissions for real estate representatives and other selling agents.

The number of home inspections has doubled in the past 12 years because seller-disclosure laws have put buyers on alert and the news media is giving more attention to problems, Nader said. This creates "a new dimension of consumer protection."

Many states are considering legislation that sets standards and licensing require-

Licensing isn't the whole answer, howev.

Some of the standards being proposed are very low, even lower than the voluntary standards of professional inspectors," Nader

ASHI contends that consumers could be misled into thinking that a state license indicates professional competence when, in fact, the requirements may have been

The group suggests that consumers carefully research the technical competence and experience of several home inspectors before they find the house they want. That way, they won't choose an inspector in haste.

A co-worker looking for Karrie Lee Rhodes, 30, contacted police Tuesday when no one answered the door at her rented home.

Police broke in and found Jessica Fowler, 13, on the floor of the living room with a gunshot wound to the back, said police Lt. Tom Langford. Jessica's 10-year-old brother, Adam, who was shot through the neck, was in a bedroom next to the mother's body.

Police estimated they had been there at least four days.

"We were all amesed that the children made it," said 5gt. Mike Holloway. "They talked to each other, they prayed together, encouraged the other to hang on. It was their faith in each other and their faith in religion."

Ma. Rhodes, a registered nurse, died of a self-inflicted gunshet wound to the head from the .357-caliber Magnum, Jessica managed to turn on the television and play the volume loudly to attract attention, and Adam, who had movement in one arm, was able to being a telephone against the bedroom wall. The phone was disconnected, although police don't know if that was intentional. "Some people did hear the banging noises and loud television and just thought it was neighborhood noises," Holloway

The exact day and time of the shooting had not been de-termined pending a medical examiner's report.

Both children were in stable condition today in the pediatric intensive care unit of the Arnold Palmer Hospital for Children and Women, said nursing coordinator Kim Neuman.

The co-worker, identified only se Mrs. Stevens in the police report, told police she was concerned because Ms. Rhodes had not shown up for work for several days. She was last heard from when she called in sick Thursday at Orange County Medical Clinic.

"She left a lengthy suicide note indicating there were some financial problems, some personal needs and a relationship that had gone sour.' Langford said.

Mother digs up nine puppies buried by owner

By The Associated Press

OAKLAND PARK - At least 25 people have offered to adopt nine newborn pupples who were buried by their owner in a 2-foot-deep grave. The pupples' mother reacued them the next day, digging them out of the hole.

All nine puppies survived. The owner admitted "intentionally burying the pupples in order to kill them because it was a litter of pupples he did not want." said Sgt. Sherry Schlueter, chief of the animalabuse unit of the Broward County sheriff's office. "He doesn't believe in spaying or neutering, but he does believe in burying his dogs alive and killing them."

The state attorney's office will determine whether to file charges. The owner could face felony aggravated animal abuse counts.

The puppies were born Sunday morning and buried in a brown paper sack a short time later. The owner "tamped down the earth with a shovel," Schlueter said. She believes the mother, Sheba, was watching the burial. When Sheba got off her chain Monday, she unearthed her pupples as a neighbor watched. The neighbor, realizing the puppies had been buried alive, called police.

1994 was wet year

By J. (SARK SARPISES Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - 1994 was a wet year.

Really wet. More than 2114 inches of above-normal rainfall was recorded in Sanford, making the area one of the top three soggiest locations in the 19-county area in the St. Johns River Water Management District. Only rainfall recorded in Orlando and Vero Beach was higher, according to a district report. A total of 21.53 inches of above-average rain fell on Sanford during the year. All the rain caused water levels to rise in wells throughout the district. Despite increasing demands on the Florida Acquifer, which supplies Central Florida with drinking water, wellwater levels were higher in December 1994 than they were in December 1993. The drinking water supply has increased since 1989, but are still lower than 1981 levels, according to the year-end report.

Even December was a wet one. A total of 5.47 inches of rain was recorded at a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration gauge on Celery Avenue. That's more than double the monthly normal of 2.4 inches. The district determines monthly normals based on the average rainfall between 1961 and 1990. The Wektva River declined slightly between November and

All that water is replenishing the underground drinking-water supply. A monitored well in Geneva reached a new record high in December, the third record high this year. The district has collected data from the well for 13 years. The water level in the well rose 0.11 feet during December and 3.74 feet during the year.

December, dropping 0.31 feet.

A Longwood well monitored by the U.S. Geological Survey dropped more than a foot during December, but rose 6.43 feet during the year.

Despite the currently rosey conditions, district water officials fear the abundance may not last. Barbara Vergara. director of the district's Needs and Sources Department, said if current water demand continues to increase, there will be shortfalls by the year 2010.

'Our concern about a shortfall of supply is a concern for the future, not for today," said Vergara.

The current living arrangements for the other residents of the home is unclear at this time. but it is certain they cannot return to the pile of rubble that was once their home, investigators said.

Buying stolen merchandise

We suspect many burglaries are committed after a great deal of planning. Judging from items being stolen these days, there must be some large-scale fencing operations un-

Local police and sheriff's reports indicate we continue to have the usual thefts of TV sets, VCRs, microwave ovens, stereo equipment and power tools. These can readily be re-sold to anyone who doesn't care where they came from, so long as they can be purchased at a cheap price.

The burgiar then takes the money and makes drug purchases or uses it in some other way.

But what about the big items? We doubt if many of them would be stolen unless the burglar knows exactly how they get rid of the items at, of course, a profit.

Since the first of this year, the Sanford Herald has reported on thefts, right in Sanford and nearby areas, of at least two mortar mixers valued in the thousands of dollars, (from separate locations), fire hoses, pressure washers, paint sprayers, spools and bundles of metal, and many other items including a two-ton air conditioning unit, which one would think would be difficult to pawn or fence.

Some businesses are having similar equipment stolen during burglaries within merely days of each other.

Many law enforcement officials believe these large items are hauled off to some other city or state, where they are re-sold without raising suspicion. If that is the case, then we can expect some items stolen elsewhere around the nation are being brought into.

Seminole County for re-cale as well.

There is one way to help reduce the number of these large equipment thefts. That is to report any suspicious person who attempts to sell something without proper paperwork, or at what may be considered an unbelievably

If these matters were reported to law enforcement officers, there would be many more arrests for smuggling, dealing in stolen property and actual them and burglaries.

People just aren't going to do that however. If many people can buy something at a ridiculously low price, they would jump at the chance rather than concern themselves about where the property originated.

Others would fear retribution if they were found "ratting" on someone.

The purpose of today's editorial comments is not to solve this problem. It is, however, to bring these facts to light. People generally won't steal something if they can't unload it for a few dollars.

Those who are participating in buying such items therefore, are doing almost as much to perpetuate the crimes as those who actually commit them. It's food for thought. What is the solution?

Residents fight

Re: Your article on the Florida Hotel, Dec. 30,

I find it disheartening to read comments such as Mr. Dan Florian's (Sanford building inspector) wherein he declares a city code "unenforceable." Buch a statement is defeatist at best and seems to imply that he is a legal authority. It is his job to enforce codes such as Section 18-13 (prohibiting maintenance of a "disorderly house") not to pass judgment on code suitability.

Also, when Cmdr. Whitmire of the Sanford Police Department states that trouble calls concerning the Florida Hotel are not all that frequent, I wonder just how tuned in he is to problem areas of our city. The police have been at the hotel on at least three occasions since the article and, in fact, arrested a burgiarly suspect at the hotel whose picutre was featured on the front page of the Herald on Dec. 30.

The residents of the Florida Hotel are very aware of the growing hostility of the neighborhood. Since New Year's Day, there have been at least three verbal confrontations between tenants and residents/home owners of Fifth Street. One of these events was serious enough to involve a police report and a complaint being filed for utterance of a verbal threat. One hotel tenant walked by my home and muttered "You're that guy causing us all this trouble..." My response was an aggressive Neighborhood dissatisfaction with the Florida Hotel's continued operation is not diminished by 'ho hum" responses of police and code enforcement officials. We will continue to write letters, make formal complaints, contact state/county/city agencies or whatever it takes to see that this public nuisance is closed.

Kemp kindles conservative compassion

There has been speculation recently that Jack Kemp may choose not to compete for the 1996 Republican presidential nomination. Should he not run it will harm his party and America.

I reached Kemp in Jerusalem. When will he decide? What will determine his deciden? The former quarterback said he will decide by Super Bowl Sunday (Jan. 29). He says it depends on whether he has "the political and economic resources." Remember that quote.

Kemp was in Israel to participate in a conference sponsored by the Henry M. Jackson Foundation on the occasion of the 20th anniversary of the Jackson-Vanik Amendment. That legislation linked free trade to free emigration and pushed the Soviets to allow some Jews, Pentecostals and others to leave the old USSR.

In his tribute to Jackson in Jerusalem, Kempand he was a "Jackson Republican," and saluted Jackson for his "legacy of idealism without illusions." In the context of Jackson's career, Kemp quoted Victor Hugo thusly: "An invasion of armies can be resisted, but not an idea whose time has come." During the 1970s I worked for Sen. Scoop Jackson. He was a great American. and Kemp's words captured his

Which brings us back to whether Kemp will run for president, and why it's important.

Right now, it's easy to see what ails Democrats for 1996. The party and the president are seen as too liberal for the voters.

But Republicans have problems too. Consider their recent history. At the 1992 GOP convention in Houston they were painted as "extremiat," "exclusionery" ist," "exclusionary" and "right-wing." The charge stuck leven with little evidence to support it). The anti-Republican rhetoric will likely be harsher still in 1996 as Newtolds try to shrink government and are attacked for lack of compassion (and probably racism and nativism).

Should he not run it will harm

his party and America.

Only one Republican back in Houston seemed immune from such criticism: Kemp. Notwithstanding his long-held conservative views, he was seen as "inclusionary," "tolerant" and "idealistic." Moreover, those alleged extremand "idealistic. Moreover, those singled extremist, exclusionary and right-wing 1992 delegates were polled regarding their choice for 1996. Amazingly, a vast plurality choice Kemp. (According to a Washington Post/ABC News survey: Kemp, 39 percent; "no preference," 27 percent; Phil Gramm and James Baker, 6 percent each; Dan Quayle, 4 percent; and everyone else, below 2 percent.) Kemp also gave the best major speech at the convention. It showed Republicans how to deal with the values issues, as ideological conservatives, without blaming the victims. He said:

"For 50 years the Democratic Party has dictated most of the policies governing our cities. Higher taxes. Redistribution of wealth. A welfare system that penalizes people for working. discourages marriage, punishes the family and literally prohibits savings. It's not the values of the poor that are flawed; it's the values of the welfare system that are bankrupt."

There are highly competent people among the current crop of potential Republican candidates. But none can make the case of inclusionary Republicanism with Kemp's credibility, gained partly from his years in the interracial environment of professional football, and as Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

Real winners on common ground

BOSTON - Maybe I'm feeling too mellow this morning, although not quite mellow enough to invite Mrs. Gingrich to tea. But from my post outside the infamous Beltway, the first sight of partisans spotling for another fight is surprisingly unwelcome.

We're not even two weeks into the new that's new, not Newt and publeeze trash that headline! — Congress. We've already had the ethics flap: the $4.5 million dollar book advance. We've already had the appointment disaster: the hiring and firing of historian Christina Jeffrey. We've even anointed the new media villain: Connie Chung. The Republicans are now behaving like insiders, the Democrats are behaving like outsiders. The majority is barreling down the policy highway — if this is Tuesday, it's time to amend the Constitution - and the minority is readying a counterattack. In theory I should be pleased if things don't go smoothly. I am after all a registered non-fan of the Gingrich crowd. The only contract I would recommend anyone signing with Newt is a prenuptial one. Among the few joys of being a minority is that you get to bite the ankles of the party running over you. But I can't help noticing how easy it is for opponents to forget or deny what they agree on. How easy it is to try and land a blow so the other guy won't look like the winner.

Two years ago when the Democrats won the White House, the Republicans were outraged that Clinton had won on "their issues, most notably crime, welfare reform and values.

They went on a search and destroy mission.

Now the Republicans have won the Congress and the Democrata are appalled that Gin-grich's folk have stolen "their" issues. Change, the middle class, welfare reform and, yes,

We're either going to get a scorched-earth policy out of Washington or find some common ground. So in this mellow moment, I am reminded of the optimist who was given a room full of horse manure for Christmas and said excitedly. "Wow, there must be a pony in there somewhere."

Somewhere in the morase of political fights and policy wrangles, there are points that most of us in the non-partisan, bipartisan middle actually agree on - especially in the worry about kids, welfare and unwed mothers. Before we're blinded by partisanship, we should keep an eye out for the ponies.

Feny 1: Eide. OK, Gingrich bounced off the wall in fantasizing about orphanages for non-orphana, for the kida of the teens he'd cut off the welfare rolls. You shouldn't lose your baby because you're poor.

What do we agree on here? That some families are irreparably broken down. That the kids should come first. That some young mothers living alone with their babies aren't happily independent: they're abandoned. That group living - call it a kibbuts, call it an extended family or a boarding school or whatever — for parents and their kids is worth encouraging.

Peary 3: Welfare Reform. A tough Clinton plan balanced a two-year welfare deadline with the promise of training, day care, jobs. Now the Republicans want to show they're even tougher. They want to cut the funds, give the program over to the states, and wipe their hands of it all.

What do we agree on? That promising a teen-ager money - a pittance but more than she's ever had — for having a baby ien't a great idea. That leaving her and the baby broke isn't either. The common wiedom favors work over welfare, and common decency rejects the idea of starving poor kids. We agree on the fix we're in if not how to

Among the few joys of being a minority is that you get to bite the ankles of the party running over you.

fix it. Peny Si Unwed toen-age methers. Just because it's the Republicans, backed by a strong right-wing choir, chanting about the evils of unweddedness, doesn't mean that the Democrats should lose their voice again. Remember rolling your eyes at the glorification of unwed pregnant movie stars, groaning at the words of pregnant girls who can't plan for the weekend let alone for their children's Peny 4: Values. Here we go again. A core of Republicans is saying that poverty is a matter of morals or to be more precise, the lack of them. A core of Democrats is saying that poverty is a matter of jobs, or the lack of them. What do we agree on? That jobs make an enormous difference. That individual grit, gumption, willpower does too, It's a matter of internal resources and international forces.

Somewhere in here there's gotta be a whole herd of such ponies. In the months shead, there will be a lot of honest disagreement about policy. There'll be an enormous temptation to do unto others as was done unto you: attack. And there'll be a lot of, um, pony waste.

What else do we agree on?

Peny B: The good ideas den't belong to one side or another. The real winners are the ones who ride the common ground.

GOP rhetoric is at odds with program

WASHINGTON - On the eve of the 1984 celebration of Dr. Martin Luther King's birthday, a young congressman from Georgia offered what might be called the Republican "Contract With Black America."

"It is in the interest of the Republican Party and Ronald Reagan to invent new black leaders, so to speak." Rep. Newt Gingrich said in December 1983. "People who have a belief in discipline, hard work and patriotism. the kind of people who applauded Reagan's actions in Grenada." Inventing black leaders was a cynical solution to a de-cades-long GOP effort to woo black voters. Nevertheless, Gingrich did see into the future. Black conservative Clurence Thomas now has a seat on the Supreme Court. Two black Republicans have been elected to the fill is in the House since 1990, including freshman J.C. Watta of Oklahoma, who is being actively promoted by Gingrich.

Gingrich was merely one in a long line of public officials who had a dream of December 1983 finding black leaders to suit their own tastes. Late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover tried to "invent" a new black leader in the 1960s to replace King, whom Hoover despised and tried to destroy. As first reported in this column. Hoover tapped King's phones, kept him under constant surveillance and maintained a voluminous file of gossip and half-baked accusations against King.

Party to invent leaders, so to speak,' Rep. Newt Gingrich sold in new black

In his delusion, Hoover even believed that he could invent a successor to King. His plan was to secretly use FBI contacts inside and outside the civil rights movement to build support for his candidate. Hoover died without ever telling his "nominee," future Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Samuel R. Pierce, about the plan.

Like Hoover, Gingrich should have known that great black leaders like Dr. King are born of circumstance, not created by others. And Gingrich's "contract" with black America, just like the real Republican "Contract With America." should be judged by action — not rhetoric.

In his first address as House speaker. Gingrich said he had "seldom been more shaken" than the morning shortly after the election when he had breakfast with two members of the Congressional Black Caucus: 'One of them said to me, 'Can you imagine what it's like to visit a first-grade class and realize that every fourth or fifth young boy in that class may be dead or in jail within 15 years, and... you're helpless to change it?' ! mean, that personalized it. That made it real..."

Despite Gingrich's olive branch to African-Americans, the new chair of the black caucus expressed diamay at the conflicting signals blacks have received from GOP lawmakers.

Rep. Donald Payne, D-N.J., notes that the same day of Gingrich's address, he named Christina Jeffrey to be House historian. But Jeffrey was sent packing after it was disclosed that she had once objected to a course on the Holocaust, noting that it failed to include the views of Nazis and the Ku Klux Klan. Gingrich claimed to be unaware of her controversial comments, which made headlines in 1986.

"What side could the Ku Klux Klan angry white men who went out and lynched and burned helpken black men and women — have offered?" Payne saked our associate Ed Henry. "He says he hates to see that one in four (black youth) may go to prison or be killed. And then he puts a person who wants to understand angry white men in the era of the Klan into an important position of the 15 feet. Initially, the county required businessmen to make the change by December 1992, but when the county received dozene of appeals to set saids the deadline, they did so in June 1993.

A new May 1994 deadline was set, but when that date arrived, commissioners simply chose not to enforce their own requirement.

Since 1989, the sign code required owners to meet the ordinance height provisions if they change the structure of the signs or the business name changes. Also, if more than 50 percent of a sign to damaged, it must be replaced to a conforming sign.

Hardin said most businessmen have complied with the requirements when they met the ordinance provisions. About 100 or more signs have been ied, but anywhere from 100 to 300 have not. Hardin

To speed up the modifications, Morris suggested additional criteria to trigger the changes. Under his proposal, business-man would be required to meet the height limits if they:

Obuy an existing business with a sign, even if the name doesn't change. The sale of a fast food franchise from one group to off one face and replacing it with "Each community is unique." another might trigger the change, even if the franchise is the same. Omodify structures or property by 25 percent or more. "If they can afford to change their property by 25 percent, they can afford to change a sign," said

Omake any changes to the face of a sign. Morris explained he wasn't talking about changeable signs which feature the sale of the week, but signs with removeshie plastic faces. Some businesses have skirted the height limits by simply popping

Robbery -

"Two black males, both wearing dark pants and baggle sweat anirts, and carrying small caliber handguns entered the store," Whitmire said. "The men reportedly held guns to the heads of the employees and demanded the money in the coon regioter.

An estimated $600 was taken in the robbery.

The two clerks in the restaurant were identified as Robin Louise Lewis and Thomas Wallace Sr. Neither was reportedly injured.

"During the robbery," Whit-mire continued. "a third black man came in and told the other two it was time to leave. The three then left the restaurant. and were seen driving off, south on Sanford Avenue, in a dark colored Bronco.

Ponce reports did not indicate that there were any customers in either of the two businesses during the robberies. No shots were reportedly fired.

Whitmire said at the present time, the two robberies, even though they occurred in the same area of the city over a relatively short period of time. are not being considered as related.

"While there is some similarity in descriptions from wit-nesses," he said, "no vehicle was mentioned in the earlier incident, and there were some differences noted.

Whitmire said a thorough investigation into both robberies began immediately.

a new one, Morris said.

Van Der Weide added his own suggestion, that lowered signs meet a size limit as well as a height restriction. The county ordinance does not restrict the aise of a sign based on its height.

Van Der Weide cited two signs in the Wekiva area where business owners have met the requirement by simply placing their signs on lower poles. As a result, traffic vision is restricted at some market accesses, he

At Morris' urging, commis-sioners will drop an effort to have a unified sign code throughout the county. Morris said many cities simply won't comply.
"I don't think the county or cities should look to each other for direction," said Morris.

"Don't you think there is some commonality," saked Commissioner Pat Warren, past CALNO chairman. "Wouldn't it be nice if the whole county had some similarity in sign codes. We'd all look better and feel better."

"You lead by example," responded Morrie.

Lottery -

schools this fiscal year. Lottery sales are down over the last quarter or two, Khatri said. Consequently, the money the district sends to the schools le down.

"No, we are not soins to mount a campaign to get peo-ple to buy lottery tickets." Khatri said. "We want there to be some changes."

Though it was touted as a savier for the schools, Khatri said, the lottery dollars have not supplemented the general revenue funds spent of the schools, they have supplanted them. "For every dollar we get in lottery money, we lose a dollar in general revenue money," he explained.

School districts across the state stand to lose 829 million for which they had budgeted this year.

Increased holiday sales created by a college acholarship givenway program are expected to bring revenues from the lottery up a bit. Still, the school district wants changes. They will return to Tallahassee and lobby lators to change the way in

"We're going send Mr. (Ken) Bovio (the district's legislative lobbyist) to Tallahasses with this issue at the top of his list of priorities again." Khatri said. Khatri added that the district will probably not need to make any drastic cuts this year because of the decrease in lottery funding, but things will remain status quo for most

Some additional unanticipated revenue, from source such as investment income as collected tax revenue, should provide the cushion the schools need to avoid leases in jobs or programs.

"Things are not rosy by any means." he added."
The school district has fought the state's handling of the lottery revenue disbursement. almost sizos the first benefits were received.

The bistest problem. Khatri said, is that the schools have become too dependent on a source of income that is not Situated on a corner lot in an established Sanford neighborhood, a large portion of the O'Briens' backyard is surprisingly natural, compared to the manicured lawns that surround it. He wouldn't notice one more stick, more or less.

The O'Briena moved into their home in 1967. "This was all barren back here," O'Brien said. This is our creation," Grace added.

Anchored around several large pine and oak trees and an bave-ground pool, the O'Briens' vard is as diverse as it is versatile. Bromeliade, heliconia, hibiscus, orchids, ferns, papyrus, palms and perennials share space with citrus, banana. pear, fig. pecan and papaya trees and a vegetable garden, that is planted with sweet potatoes, proceeds, cauliflower and green

The O'Briens are big on natui soil augmentation. "We firmly believe that everything that comes out of the soil goes back into it. We compost everything." Grace said. They also depend on nature to control the growth in their landscape. O'Brien said most of the plants in his yard are dependent on the cycles of nature to keep growth in check. "If you look through the yard, you'll see things. " Grace said, "they just grow, We don't prune things back too much. Most of the time we hope the good Lord will do it for us with a light freeze. "We want to attract the birds and the wildlife. They like it where they can hide." O'Brien said. He pointed out a red salvis. situated near the back porch, that often attracts hum-

O'Brien has been involved in the Master Gardener program since 1989. "I was working for the city of Casselberry (as superintendent of lift stations) and deciding that I was going to retire and said what I am going to do when I retire."

"He needed something to oc-cupy his time." Grace said, "because I was still working (as the manager of Lyman High School cafeteria)." Grace has the actual gardening background. being the daughter of a landscape contractor, and she had wanted to be a horticulturist and was the first female member of the Future Farmers of America in Pennsylvania. The gardening they do is a team effect, something they both enjoy.

O'Brien spends most of his volunteer time doing soil testing, helping with 4-H and doing some videolaping of special events. O'Brien has been trained to test soil for pH and soluble salts. Soil testing is done Monday and Thursday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. A pint of soil is needed and the cost is $1.50 per test per sample.

The Master Gardener program is sponsored by the University of Florida Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences through the Cooperative Extension Service. The Seminole County Cooperative Extension Service offers services to residents ranging from home economics to youth programs.

There are Master Gardener programs in 39 countles. Master gardeners are trained by the University of Florida to voluntarily provide education and research-based information to Floridians about gardening and urban horticulture. Once a year, new candidates receive 50 hours of basic horticultural training and volunteer 50 hours in return. Master gardeners perform coil tests, answer gardening questions daily from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m., conduct plant clinics Mondays from 9 a.m. to noon, and make presentations to garden clubs, schools and homeowners' according to the ciations. Tricis Thomas, urban horticulturiet, oversees the program and coordinates with other Cooperative Extension programs, such as 4-H. ## Chechen officials meet for peace talks

GROZNY, Russia - While their troops fight, Russian and Chechen officials have taken tentative steps toward a cesse-fire in the five-week-old war that has killed thousands of people and cast doubt on Russia's future as a multiethnic federation.

Prime Minister Viktor Chernomyrdin met with two envoys from Chechen President Dahokhar Dudayev in Moscow on Tuesday, a day after making a televised appeal for immediate talks and an end to the bloodshed.

The Chechen officials said the two sides agreed to stop using heavy artillery by this evening, in a first step toward a full cease-fire. The Russians have been bombarding Grosny with rocket and artillery fire for days.

"We think there's an agreement in principle from both sides," Usman Imayev, Dudayev's prosecutor general, told a

But many on both sides were skeptical the agreement would be kept. A cease-fire last week broke down after just a few hours.

"Only a step has been made toward cease-fire," Russian government spokesman Valentin Rumyantsev told The

In a terse statement carried by Russian news agencies, the government said the brief meeting was held at the Chechens' request, and was a "last chance" for Dudayev to cooperate. Yeltsin's chief of staff, Sergel Filatov, told the ITAR-Tase news agency he doesn't believe Dudayev's envoys can control the situation in Chechnya. And in Grozny, Chechen fighters scorned Chernomyrdin's appeal for peace. Chernomyrdin is saying this just to impress the international community, but at the same time the Russian army has been ordered to seize the city," said Chechen officer Vakha Algumov.

Pope sees changes in Australia

SYDNEY. Australia - Pope John Paul II said today that the end of the Cold War hasn't improved the world as much as expected, leaving people with a yearning for "moral and spiritual renewal.

In a statement after arriving from Papua New Guinea, the pontiff said much has changed since he last visited Australia in 1966, with less tension between East and West and the fall of ideology-based totalitarianism.

"Yet the benefits which could be expected from such enormous transformations have not always been forthcoming." a weary-looking John Paul told a crowd of more than 3,000 at Kingsford-Smith International Airport.

"At the very heart of modern culture, there is a growing sense of the need for a moral and spiritual renewal." The pope also sent his condolences to the victims of Tuesday's earthquake in Japan. Let us pray for them and may God give strength to all those affected and involved in the rescue work," he said. John Paul was greeted by Prime Minister Paul Keating, a Roman Catholic, along with a Navy brace band, a 21-gun salute and a military honor guard.

Security was tight. Some people recited the resary and held crucifixes as they waited to walk through metal detectors.

Four people carried a 5-foot-tall statue of the Virgin Mary adorned with Vatican, Australian and Polish flags, the latter in honor of the pope's Polish roots. Others carried banners, including one that read "Don't Be a Dope, Follow the Pope." Police removed one man from the crowd following a scuffle during the pope's address. As many as 50,000 people were expected to attend an evening celebrations in a park adjacent to the city's main

The News of the World quoted Ken Stronach as saying Charles turned off the security system in the bedroom of his country home so that his purported mistress, Camilla Parker

Jeeven, the creation of humorist P.G. Wodehouse, would have been outraged at Stronach's indiscretion.

But publicist Max Clifford, who has represented other kiss-and-tell valets, said Tuesday it simply means: "You can't trust anyone."

The London Evening Standard said Stronach received $158,700 for selling his boss' secrets, more than eight times his annual salary of $18,800. Stronach looked after the prince's clothes and travel arrangements for 15 years.

But he cautioned that "perhaps it's too early to ring the bells."

There were $941.5 million in bids for the offering, showing stronger-than-expected interest. At a similar auction last week, investors bought only $63 million of the $400 million of bonds.

Mexico's sudden economic slide led the Clinton administration last week to propose the loan guarantee program to assure businessmen that investing in Mexico was safe.

Foreign reserves had fallen to about $6.15 billion early this month from $24 billion in March as the government spent dollars to buy peace to support the value of the currency, which has lost one-third of its value since being devalued last month.

The bond news boosted the peso on Tuesday. It opened at 5.43 to the dollar and closed at 5.28. The stock market index, which opened at 2.243 points, rose to 2,270 after news of the bond sale, but fell back to close at 2,209, off 1.5 percent, as investors took profits.

Many phone lines were still down, and friends and family struggled to find each other. People left notes tacked to what was left of their homes, telling each other where they had taken shelter.

White smoke rose from the rubble and blackened debris, which extended for miles through the center of the city.

Throughout the city, leaking gas hissed from ruptured pipes, raising the threat of explosions.

Fleeing residents packed the main road out of Kobe. Some, bandaged and limping, looked like war refugees as they picked past collapsed buildings and piles of rubble.

The death toll from the quake, the worst to strike a Japanese city in modern times, climbed to 2,423 by this evening. At least 13,060 were hurt.

More than 1,000 people were still listed as missing, but hopes faded of finding more victims alive in the rubble.

In the quake zone, life in a high-tech country was suddenly reduced to the most basic and primitive level. Telephone service, power, gas and train service were still largely knocked out.

In Kobe, which had been a thriving, cosmopolitan city of 1.4 million, people crouched around camplires and used water from ruptured pipes.

"It's like hell here," Satoko Kawase, 26, who lives on the city's outskirts. "It's like World War II again."

Hundreds of aftershocks rattled the region. Many people were too terrified to sleep indoors and spent the night in the open, huddled in blankets. More than 120,000 people sought shelter Tuesday night.

Most oil consumed in U.S. wasimported

WASHINGTON - For the first year ever-more than half of the oil used in the United States in 1994 ame from foreign sources, with total imports for the year setting a record, a trade association reported today.

Nearly 8.9 million barrels of oil a day were imported last year, or 50.4 percent of total domestic denind, while U.S. oil production fell to a 40-year low, the Arrican Petroleum Institute said

The statistics were expected to provide arrumition for those in Congress tayoring tax breaks for domesti oil producers and for new oil and gas development in the Unitel States, including in controversial areas such as the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge in northern Alaska

Sen. Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, chairian of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, already has promised a broad review of U.S. energy piteies, including a hard look at the growing imports and wha should be done to boost domestic production.

Murkowski has been a strong advocate a drilling along the coastal strip of the Arctic refuge. Environmentalists have flereely opposed it, arguing it would lead trecological damage in a pristine region that should be preseved in its natural state.

The API said the nearly 8.9 million barels of oil imported daily in 1994 eclipsed the previous high for inports recorded in 1977 by 109,000 barrels a day. This occurred even though Americans used 800,000 fewer barrels a do last year than in

"Overall, U.S. (domestic) crude oil profuction fell to 6.6 million barrels a day, its lowest annual level since 1954," said the report by the API, which represents the major oil companies.

MIAMI - Montreal Expos center fielder Marquis Orissom and pitcher Ken Hill plan to aign offer sheets with the Florida Marliris. The Palm Beach Post reported Tuesday.

The Post said it was told by multiple sources that Hill and Grissom have agreements in principle with the Marlins. The paper reported that deals will be completed as soon as the players' association ends its signing bo yeott. The ban will continue at least through the end

Lubick doesn't want Miami job

MIAMI - Colorado State coach Sonny Lu bick withdrew Tuesday as a candidate for the Mi'ami Hurricanes' vacancy, throwing the job securch

"Certainly Miami has its attractive lure of a great university and its football tradition." Lubick said at a news conference in Fort Collins. Colo. "But CSU is a place that's treated the tremendously over the last two years. I fit in here - that's the basic 'why.'

Lubick's announcement provided a twist that fit a trend, because the Miami vacancy has produced widespread lack of interest among potential candidates.

Duke's Fred Goldsmith, who grew up near the Miami campus, became at least the second coach to turn down an interview invitation from Hurricanes athletic director Paul Dec.

Other coaches who have ruled themselves out of consideration include Glen Mason of Kansas. North Carolina's Mack Brown, Wisconsin's Barry Alvarez and Brad Scott at South Carolina.

No. 12 Virginia tops FSU

TALLAHASSEE - Wendy Palmer scored 28 points to lead No. 12 Virginia to a 76-60 win over Florida State on Tuesday.

Virginia jumped out to an 8-0 lead and never trailed in the Atlantic Coast Conference matchup, it was the 10th straight loss for Florida State (4-13, 0-6), which has never beat Virginia

Senior guard Allison Peercy paced Florida State with 19 points as the only Lady Seminole in double digits. Carla Williams had 11 rebounds.

According to Seminole High School baseball coach Mike Powers, Cincinnati Bengal quarterback Jeff Blake (seen here as a freshman on the 1965 Seminole team) hopes to be able to play in the alumni baseball game.

Ex-Seminoles invited to play in alumni game

Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — If you're an almnus of the Seminole High School baseball program, dust off your cleats and oil up your glove: it's time to show the youngsters how the game of baseball is supposed to be played.

On Saturday, Feb. 4. Seminole High School will hold an alumni baseball day at Alumni Field in the Seminole High School Baseball Complex starting at 11 a.m.

Everyone who ever played or had anything to do with baseball while at either Sanford or Seminole high - as a player, coach, student manager, or scorekeeper - is invited to attend. Whether you can play in the game or not, you are invited to attend so that you can be recognized at the introductions.

"We would love to see some of the old, old players, like a Buddy Lake, come out," said Tribe head coach Mike Powers. "It would nice for them to come on out and see how much the facilities and playing field have been improved."

if enough former players show up, two games will be played, one before lunch and one after lunch. All players will get lunch for free.

Since most almni haven't been playing lately. Powers plans to use a pitching machine on the mound instead of a live pitcher.

Current Chicago White Sox star and 1977 Seminole graduate Tim Raines has already committed to attend. Cincinnati Bengala star quarterback Jeff Blake, who was a very good baseball player while at 8HS, is trying to arrange his schedule so that he can play.

Other early committments include former SHS coach and allstate player Mike Ferrell (currently the head coach of the Sanford Ice women's pro team), former Mets farmhand Robert Smith, Minnesota Twins and Califonia draftee Trent (Terry) Smith, University of Florida star pitcher Bobby Lundquist. Donnie Williams, Rod Turner, Billy Griffith, Ken Brown and Tony

There is also a possibility of an autograph session.

Players must confirm with either Lundquist at (407) 323-4352, ext. 100 or Williams at (407) 425-7577, ext. 103, before Tuesday, Jan. 31.

The cost for spectators to attend the event will be $3 for adults and $1 for children. Proceeds will go toward the purchase of new un-

LONGWOOD - However the Lyman High School wrestling team does on the rest of its nine-week exams, the Greyhounds collectively received a passing grade for their test against the tough University Cougars Tuesday night.

While the Greyhounds came out on the short end of a 54-21 decision with the Cougars, who have built a reputation as one of Central Florida's top programs, Lyman coach Andy Dyer could find little fault with his team's effort.

"On the whole, we wrestled tough," said Dyer. "There were a couple guys who didn't wrestle as well as they could, but for the most part, we scrapped with them.

"We have a lot of young kids who have had to step into the varsity lineup for one reason or another. Tonight, a couple of them were over their heads, but they hung in there as best they could. You can't ask for anything more."

One of those youngsters. freshman Joey Giols, turned in one of Lyman's four wins during the dual meet, pinning his opponent at 152 pounds in 2:52.

'Joey's been doing a great job." said Dyer. "He's been scrapping and winning. He's really done a good job for us, especially for only being a freshman.

Pete Whittington (125 pounds) and Alex Hannah (Heavyweight) also won their matches with pins for Lyman, Whittington sticking his opponent in 1:59 while Hannah's pin came at 5:19. For Hannah, it was his 10th pin of the season. Completing the scoring for the Greyhounds was 171-pounder John Guerra, who scored a 8-1 decision. University also won the junior varsity match. Lyman will return to action this usternoon, traveling to Kissimmee for a 5:30 p.m. dual meet at Clateway High School. On Friday and Saturday, the Greyhounds will join 11 other teams including those representing the at her five Seminole County schools - in competing in the Tournament at Champions at Lake Mary High Sc hool.

Courier, Sampras roll In Australian Open

By Denime Pagea Associated Press Writer

MELBOURNE, Australia Floridiane Pete Samprae and Jim Courier, who owned the Australian Open for the past three years, played today as if they had something to prove. Bampras, the defending champion and top seed, and Courier, who won this Grand Slam tournament in 1992 and 1993, steamrolled through straight-set victories and into the third round.

Boris Becker's loss to Patrick McEnroe in his first-round match Tuesday appeared to send a warning out to other top seeds: Don't take anyone for granted.

Samprae (from Tampa) and Courier (a former resident of Sanford) took heed, Samprae beating Slovakian qualifier Jan Krosian 6-2, 6-0, 6-1 in 76 minutes, and Courier taking just four minutes longer to beat Italian Cristiano Caratti.

"Everyone can lose to anybody if the other guy is playing really well," said Courier, who watched the Becker-McEnroe match. "Patrick just played a great match, so that was a tough draw for the first round."

Others also learned from the Becker upset, plus losses Tues-day by fourth-seeded Goran Ivanisevic and fifth-seeded Cabriela Sabatini. Seventh secid Michael Stich beat American Alex O'Brien, and women's No. 2 Conchita Martinez advanced, as did No. 3 Jana Novotna, No. 6 Lindsay Devenport and No. 7 Kimiko Date.

Martina Hingie, the 14-yearold playing her first Grand Stam tournament, lost in the second round to Kyoko Nagatsuka, 6-3,

Sampras and Courier said the relaxed atmosphere and friendly crowds around the tournament have helped them play better.

"It's always nice to have that support when you are playing." Sampras said of the warm reception he's accorded sit the National Tennis Center: His parents are Greek-American, and no city outside Gree ce has more Greeks than Melbourne's half-million.

Courier, meanwhile, It kee the quietness in the locker room and lounge.

"There's a lot less trusiness going on." said Courier. There's a lot fewer agents and tournament directors and what ticularly in New York. As we there's much less family here the cither players. So for around the restaurant an louns to, it's a lot more relexed.

"The U.S. Open, I call the place; the shark tank. For ever one player there's three othe people in there, so it's tough." Courier is so relaxed that he' fourtd time to appear with sever al other players in a pickup band feat uring reggae and classic rock 'n' roll. "On Monday night, I went to a studio and played some drums with a few of the fellows and that wras a blast," Courier said of the group that included Carlos R irmayr and Ronald Agenor. "I'm a professional tennial player and probably a B blub cirummer.'

Courier has moved out of the A ranks of men's tennis, from No. 1 at the end of 1992, down to third in 1993 and 13th at the end of last year. It's been a test of his resolve and could have been a test of some of his friendships.

"I think that I'm fairly difficult to befriend," Courier said. "I'm pretty cynical, I don't let people get too close to me that I feel are going to get close to me because of who my ranking says I am. "I tend to stay around the same people, whether I'm ranked 15 or whether I'm ranked 1. I've got a lot of life to live after tennia and I hope my friends now are going to stay the same later."

Courier, looking relaxed at a postmatch press conference. said he and Andre Agassi are becoming more alike.

"We both started at opposite ends of the spectrum and we're probably each coming more into the middle," Courier said, bringing his index fingers together to make his point.

"He's working a little bit harder, I'm taking a little more free time. I think we're both trying to come to a middle ground."

Courier, the ninth seed who is in Sampras' half of the draw. could meet Agassi in the final. In the meantime, he's happy to have a lot of attention directed at Sampras and Agassi. "Whether the focus is on me or not, I tend to go about my business." Courier said. "I think that the focus is deservedly on those two guys. They had great seasons last year and it is an exciting, hopefully a budding, new rivalry for the game that we

New or improved stadium will keep Bucs in Tampa

AP Sports Writer

TAMPA - Although Malcolm Glazer's acquisition of the Tampa Bay Buccineers will keep the team from moving to Baltimore, the city's fight to save its franchise is not over.

The Palm Beach financier paid a record price for the club on Monday, and every one from the trustees who sold the Bucs to civic leaders agree it'il take a new stadium to make his investment worthwhile.

The St. Petersburg Times reported that Glazier paid $175 million plus bonuses — an extra 810 million if Tarnpa Stadium is renovated and 87.7 million if the 27-year-old facility is replaced. There is also a stipulation that Glazer would have to pay a $35 million penalty if the team moves within 10 years.

City and county officials estimate it could cost between $50 million and $70 million to necessary changes to the 74,301-seat stadium that has hosted the Super Bowl twice. Building a new stadium could cost up to $175 million.

Despite the new owner's contention that the team will remain in the area "forever," Tampa mayor Sandy Freedman and others say its unrealistic to expect Glaser to stay if a new stadium ian't built.

Freedman has proposed exploring a 1 percent tax on meals in Hillsborough County, which she says would generate $7 million to $8 million a year. Another proposal backed by county commission chairman Jim Norman would increase the sales tax from 6.5 percent to 7 percent for 10 years — raising an esitmated $400 million for a stadium and other projects.

It's the season for hardy stew and tasty casserole meals

make good family fare for this season of the year. Our weather is much cooler, making these hardy, filling foods more appropriate than when the thermome-priate than when the thermometer is nearing 100 degrees.

These "meals in a dish" can incorporate many types of cubed meats such as beef, pork, turkey, chicken, lamb or firm-textured fielt. Beef is the one that requires the longest and slowest cooking to become tender.

Slow simmering makes stews ideal for preparing on busy days. Start early in the day and reheat if necessary for serving. Some stews include potatoes and are complete with an assortment of other vegetables. Others are better served with rice or pasts. better served with rice or pasta. ## AP Television Writer from his movie career to host a talk show that began last week. Live from Fort Lee, "Charles Grodin" can be seen at 10 p.m. EST Monday through Friday.

NEW YORK - You take a

CNBC picks up his mileage, but he sounded serious anyhoo. course. On Grodin's opening show, only hours before the Snyder, would begin his own new talk show in the uptown neighborhood of CBS, Orodin

Paris, where they are decoded and sent to researchers in Florida. Scientists know that following each Florida nesting season, the turtles migrate to distant locations rich in seagrans or algae beds. Likely destinations are the Bahamas, Nicaragua, Honduras and the Caribbean Islands. Sea turtles have few natural enemies but face many manmade threats. They include poaching, the loss of habitat, pollution and the risk of hatchlings becoming disoriented from beachside lighting during their mad dash to the sea. Many of the newborn die before making it to the

A major threat has been the development of prime turtle nesting areas and feeding sites into beachaide homes, condominiums and resorts. Some environmentalists contend development poses a greater threat to sea turtles than commercial net fishing.

"The net ban will not solve the problems of poliution, habitat destruction and alteration problems which in many cases are much more insidious and long term," said Paul Johnson, director of the Florida Center for Marine Conservation. And what good is protecting the endangered turtle along Florida's coasts if little is known about where they go when they leave here?

'Until we know where they're foraging most of the year, we can't adequately protect all the habitats used by Florida green turtles." says Llew Ehrhart, a University of Central Florida biologist. Ehrhart is one of the principal researchers in the satellite "tagging" project being carried out by UCF, the Marine Research Institute of Florida's Department of Environmental Protection and the National Marine Fisheries Service. Researchers attached the small Walkman-sized transmitters to the backs of the three female green turtles that nested in the 20-mile-long Archie Carr National Wildlife Refuge along Florida's East Coast last July. The turtles are being monitored daily, and researchers hope the satellite signals will give away their final destinations. Conservation groups are trying to raise awareness of the sea turtles' endangered status by publicizing the research. The Sea Turtle Survival League is promoting the project with a contest that offers prizes for those who correctly predict the final destination of the turtle of their choice, and the time it took for the creature to get there.

Many interested people have "adopted" one of the satellite-tagged turtles for $25, said David Godfrey, director of the Gainesville-based league. The adoptive parents receive a sea turile fact sheet, decal, one-year subscription to the league's newsletter, Velador, and a personal profile of the chosen turtle.

"Most people don't fealize that 90 percent of sea turtle nesting occurs in Florida, and the protection and conservation activities here have a major impact around the world," Godfrey says.

But sea turtles must be protected in every area they spend their lives - not just in Florida, he Florida is the most important sea turtle nesting area in the United States, and the endangered green turtle la of particular concern to federal and state agencies.

In the November general election, Florida voters approved a ban on most not fishing in the state's waters in part to protect sea turtles who sometimes get caught in fishing nets and die. As part of their efforts to better protect the turtles, scientists want to identify the feeding grounds where the air-breathing reptiles spend most of their lives. They hope to learn what routes the turtles take to get there each summer. And they want to find out how the females get back to Florida before lumbering ashore to deposit hundreds of thousands of eggs each year. To help answer those questions, scientists have outlitted the three adults with transmitters that

HIV prevention is the best rout

your recent column about HIV, I your recent column about HIV, I suggest you become better informed than you are. The traditional medical community has a long history of refusing to acknowledge alternative medical procedures that have proved to be successful. You seem to have fallen off the banana boat on this

DEAR READER: I'm always eager to become better informed eager to become better informed than I am. However, with respect to the "alternative treatment" of HIV, the purported cause of AIDS, no reputable study has shown any benefit whatsoever, unlike standard therapy with drugs such as AZT.

HIV infection is a scourge, an international epidemic, for which "unfortunately" no treatment has been shown to be consistently effective. Therefore, consistently effective. Therefore, prevention ... using safe-sex practices ... remains the single, most appropriate public health measure, along with avoiding blood transfusions whenever

If you are aware of studies that show success for "alternative" show success for "alternative" therapy. I urge you to submit them to the Food and Drug Administration or the National Institutes of Health for verification. Until then, I'll continue to side with the medical authorities that condemn the use of untried, untested, and unproved treatuntested and unproved treatments for HIV infection.

DEAR READER: What is your feeling about taking Tagamet for stomach ulcers? I am on this regimen. However, 1 recently experienced an irregular heartbeat following medication. Is this a side effect or something unrelated?

DEAR READER: Tagamet, like other drugs in its class, has been reported to cause slow pulse. rapid pulse and certain forms of heart block. These reactions are extremely unusual, however, and the reason is unknown.

Ordinarily, Tagamet is an excellent treatment for peptic disorders, such as ulcers.

We have all seen magicians who offer a deck of cards to a "victim." The person takes a card, any card. At the end of the trick the magician will name the card. There are many variations on this theme.

matter of deciding not which card to pick, but which suit to pick. Sometimes this happens in the bidding and sometimes in the play. Today's deal is an example of the latter.

At the bridge table, it may be a

After North had made a limit raise of three spades, South, who might have opened two notrump, took a shot at the slam.

West led the club king. South won with the ace and cashed his top trumps, learning that he had a loser there. Now South's only chance was to discard both of his club losers before West could ruff in and cash the club queen.

As he had so few diamonds,

Your ambitions have a good chance of being fulfilled in the year ahead, provided you carefully select your objectives. Do not waste time on unreachable goals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Although you might want to level a few flery comments at an annoying person today, it would be better to leave your ire unexpressed. Trying to patch up a broken romance? your mate by backing off from volatile issues today. If you atrongly disagree about a particular topic, steer clear of it.

ARISS (March 21-April 19)

South attacked that suit first.

However, West ruffed the third round and cashed a club trick:

'And you need West to have at least three hearts to make the contract. So you should play hearts before diamonds. And when West turns up with four, you take that discard first. Then

You might have to contend with additional difficulties today. These problems will be the result of other people's ineptness or interference.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

An acquaintance of yours might have a bite today that's as bad as his/her bark. Try not to do anything to further antagonize this individual. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Do not be overly assertive today at home or at work. If you start bossing others around, you could create a nasty problem for yourself. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Subdue the impulse to overreact when others express opposing viewpoints today. Keep in mind that everyone is entitled to his/her opinions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Entrusting others to make finan-cial commitments on your behalf could prove unwise today. You might end up paying for their mistakes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will become frustrated today if you work with an individual who doesn't appreciate teamwork. If you see these signals, it would be best to go it alone.
