Mob godfather faces charges

NEW YORK — Reputed Gambino godfather John Gotti and two of his associates faced charges Tuesday they ordered the shooting of an uncooperative labor leader who was seriously wounded at his union headquarters.

A swarm of 50 police officers grabbed Gotti on Broadway in Little Italy at 5:30 p.m. Monday and arrested him on a grand jury indictment charging him with felony assault and fourth-degree conspiracy.

Prosecution sources said the sealed indictment charged Gotti, 40, with ordering the May 7, 1986, shooting of carpenter's union leader John O'Connor by two alleged members of a notorious Irish gang, the Westies.

Employees sentenced in scam

LOS ANGELES — Three former managers of an aerospace firm were sentenced to prison Monday for their roles in a scheme that supplied faulty guidance components used in Navy missiles and other military equipment.

Werner Brinkshulte, 50, of Simi Valley, former general manager of Genesco Technology Corp.'s Transducer Products Division in Simi Valley, was sentenced to 4 1/2 years in prison and fined $40,000 by U.S. District Judge A. Andrew Hank.

Daniel Evans, 34, of San Val, production manager at the facility, was given 2 1/2 years in prison and a $20,000 fine, and Robert Kersnick, 51, of Sepulveda, the quality assurance officer, received 366 days in prison and $2,000 in fines.

Bush agrees with protesters

WASHINGTON — President Bush, declaring "God bless life," told about 65,000 anti-abortion demonstrators Monday the Supreme Court decision making most abortions legal is "wrong and should be overturned."

Bush, speaking through a telephone hookup to a cheering, almost festive crowd of activists gathered on the Ellipse — still decorated with hunting and other remnants of last week's inaugural celebrations — called for a "human life amendment" to the Constitution that would overturn the controversial 1973 Roe vs. Wade ruling — a decision the court is currently reconsidering.

Winfield goes to arbitration

NEW YORK — Attorneys for New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner and slugger Dave Winfield have agreed to go to arbitration to settle their dispute over money allegedly due the Winfield Foundation.

The New York Daily News reported Tuesday that the two sides had agreed to submit their cases to Michael Armstrong, a New York attorney who rose to prominence as counsel for the Knapp Commission.

City overrules P & Z, approves housing development

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The city commission last night on a split vote approved a controversial zoning request for a proposed 572-unit housing development, overturning a decision made last week by the planning and zoning commission.

After more than two hours of hearing heated argument for and against the project, the commission voted 3 to 1 to approve rezoning from agricultural to planned unit development for 72 acres between Celery and Brisson Avenues.

Lon Howell, who cast the only vote against the request, said the proposal to include low-income housing in the development disturbed many of the residents in his district.

"I committed myself before the election," he said, "and I plan on keeping my word on that."

The first phase of the proposed development calls for 150 apartments, with 30 percent of the units offered to low-income individuals and families. Amelia Geuka of Oasis Development estimated the first phase will cost nearly $6 million. The total project, including townhomes and single family homes, is estimated at more than $50 million, he said.

Last week, voting 4 to 3 against the recommendation of city planner Jay Marder, the planning and zoning commission denied the zoning request.

Geuka blamed racism for the planning and zoning denial and residential opposition to the development. "The remarks that 'We don't want another Third Street in our vicinity' speaks volumes about why residents oppose low-income housing," he said.

Geuka said the development company was named for the desire to make the fallow land, once part of the Chase and Company celery operation, an "oasis flowering in the desert."

"Not everyone in the city of Sanford has such warm nostalgic reminiscences" of the land on

Bundy runs out of time

Execution brings end to 10-year legal battle

United Press International

STARKE — Serial killer Ted Bundy was executed Tuesday in Florida's electric chair, ending more than a decade of legal battles for the nation's most notorious death-row inmate.

Witnesses to the execution emerged from the death chamber at 7:15 a.m., 15 minutes after the switch was thrown, and several hundred spectators who had arrived in carloads at the rural prison cheered under a full moon at the news Bundy was dead.

"It's taken 10 years too long," a man shouted from a roadside.

Several had been chanting "burn baby burn" and singing "On Top of Old Sparky," a reference to the nickname of Florida's electric chair.

Bundy confessed in his final days to 28 murders in Washington state, Utah, Colorado, Idaho, California, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Vermont.

The rowdy crowd outside the prison yelled insults at a small clump of anti-death penalty demonstrators standing nearby.

Dennis Ray of Graceville, Fla., carried a sign that read: "Chi-O Chi-O it's off to hell I go," referring to the Bundy murders of two Chi Omega sorority sisters at Florida State University.

"We're dealing with an animal here," he said. Another sign read, "Roast in peace," and several spectators waved sparklers to compete with candles held by members of the small group opposing capital punishment.

Bundy refused a final breakfast of steak and eggs after a night of prayer with a minister. His head was shaved and he was led to the electric chair shortly before dawn to die for the sex slaying of a 12-year-old girl.

"He didn't want any breakfast," said Bob Macmaster, a spokesman for the Florida Department of Corrections. "He spent the night with a Methodist minister (Fred Lawrence of Gainesville) in his cell and spent part of the time praying."

Religious broadcaster James Dobson, who interviewed Bundy the night before his death, said the prisoner "talked at considerable length about the process of desensitization" he underwent during his series of sex slayings of women across the country.

"After he killed the first woman, he went through a six-month period where he was in great distress. He was extremely guilty. He was frightened. He was going through — he couldn't believe that he had

Court ruling won't affect county

From staff and wire reports

A Supreme Court ruling Monday rejecting a minority construction set-aside plan does not have an effect on Seminole County government, one official said this morning.

Seminole County does not have a set-aside program so the ruling would not affect what the county does. We just bid them (contracts) out — Acting County Attorney Bob McMillan said this morning.

Officials in various Seminole County cities, including Sanford and Lake Mary, were unavailable for comment this morning.

"I honestly don't know if it (the decision) affects Longwood, not to my knowledge," said Longwood City Attorney Richard Taylor. From a personal standpoint, affirmative action sometimes constitutes reverse discrimination. That's my personal opinion and by no means the city's point of view.

In a major defeat for affirmative action programs, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled 6-3 Monday that solid evidence of racial discrimination is necessary before plans can be enacted to help minority businesses.

The Supreme Court's rejection of a minority construction set-aside plan disappointed the program's backers, prompting one observer to predict a "chilling effect" on future such efforts to end discrimination.

The decision resulted from a Richmond, Va., case involving municipalities that are trying to end discrimination in the construction business. The ruling likely will upset minority set-aside programs nationwide.

Commission split on house purchase vote

By SANDRA BOUCHAHINE
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — City Commissioners could not decide last night whether to buy a historic building and land adjacent to city hall. The city faces a Wednesday deadline.

The commission divided 2-2 in favor of the purchase of Clouser Cottage on West Church Avenue were Deputy Mayor Gene Farach and Commissioner Carol Odum. Against the purchase were commissioners Ted Poelking and Richard E. Bullington. Mayor Hank Hardy was not present.

Freedom Savings bank, which acquired the property through foreclosure, recently gave the city the opportunity to purchase the land, a 100 by 100-foot parcel, and the structure at its appraised value of $50,000.

City Clerk Donald Terry told the commissioners last night that they had until Thursday to tell the bank whether they want the house.

Terry said this morning the bank has other offers and he will call to see whether this is the city's last opportunity to purchase the site.

It wasn't debated or passed. The city's attorney will determine whether it should have to come back for the commission, Terry said.

Prior to a special meeting, commissioners held a work session with the Longwood Historic Commission. Present at the meeting were

Irrigation contract awarded

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN

SANFORD — The city has taken one further step toward implementing a plan to use reclaimed water for irrigation on city properties, reducing ofluent discharge into Lake Monroe.

The commission last night tentatively awarded a $136,156 contract to Sanford Irrigation and Sprinkler Inc. for constructing lines for irrigation on the city golf course and parks. The contract will go into effect when the city receives ERIE approval in about 45 days, Director of Engineering and Planning Bill Simmons said.

The irrigation project will be supported by a $6.7 million grant from Florida Department of Environmental Regulation.

Neighbors fight over deed restrictions

DADE CITY — The 90 residents of a New Port Richey condominium village are paying $100 apiece after they unsuccessfully tried to force a homeowner to get rid of her sheltie puppy.

The Wedgwood Village residents in west Pasco County are paying Hermina Becker's attorneys fees. The condominium association took Becker to court for violating rules last year that forbid a resident from acquiring a dog after the resident moves in.

In September, Circuit Court Judge Lawrence Keough ruled Becker could keep her dog, which she said has been her only companion since her husband died, because previous action by the association created a loophole in the rule.

Keough also ordered the association to pay Becker's attorneys fees.

Homeowner and condominium association members in the Tampa Bay area said they light deed restriction cases because of the principles involved, although the emotions involved in cases like Becker's sometimes make them look heartless.

"We don't want to be spiteful," John Nicolazzi, former president of Orchid Lake Village Homeowner's Association in west Pasco, said Monday. "We want a beautiful, prestige community."

Nicolazzi and others active in associations say they want to protect the value of their property, and are doing no more than enforcing rules all residents have agreed to follow.

Rosary beads lost for 9 years

SANIBEL ISLAND — A Pittsburgh nun left brokenhearted after she lost her late mother's silver rosary beads nine years ago on a Florida trip said Monday a man who found and returned them to her restored her "faith in humankind."

Incredibly, the beads survived nine years in the ocean and a bout with Hurricane Keith on Dec. 6, 1988, said Sister Margaret Mary Wagner, principal of St. Bonaventure Elementary School in suburban Glenshaw.

The principal said she believed the sterling silver rosary beads were gone for good after police could not locate them for years. She lost the beads given to her by her deceased mother when her purse was stolen while visiting her sister, Elizabeth Wagner, on a vacation to Sanibel Island.

"The police said they'd hold it up to three years, and it never was returned," the nun said. "I just thought, 'Well, it wasn't to be.'"

But actually, the beads eventually made their way back to Sister Wagner. On Dec. 6, 1988, Tom Dirst of Fort Myers, found her purse near the lighthouse on Sanibel where it washed up on the beach after Hurricane Keith, she said.

Dirst wrapped up the beads, now blackened from sea water, in paper towels and two envelopes and shipped them to her, along with some keys and an identification card, at the Divine Providence Mother House in suburban McClelland, her permanent address.

"I always hoped for it," Sister Wagner said. "As I say, it's a miracle. And I believe in them."

"He wrote me a note saying, 'Enclosed are the only recognizable contents of your purse,'" she said. "It restores my faith in humankind."

Geriatrics chair endowed at USF

TAMPA — The Saunders Foundation of Tampa, which was established in the 1950s by financier William N. Saunders, has given a $600,000 gift to the University of South Florida for establishment of an endowed chair in geriatrics, it was announced Monday.

The money will be combined with $420,000 from the state to create the chair which will be called the William N. and Ruby Lee Saunders Chair in Geriatrics in honor of the memory of Mr. and Mrs. Saunders who were longtime residents of Tampa.

USF officials said the gift will allow the university to recruit a top professor in the field of geriatrics. That person will have a joint appointment in the USF College of Medicine and the College of Public Health.

Trident successfully launched

WASHINGTON — A Trident I ballistic missile was successfully launched from the submerged submarine USS Benjamin Franklin off the coast of Florida Monday as part of a series of demonstration tests, the Navy announced.

The firing from the Poseidon submarine at 5:40 a.m. EST was the 31st launch of the Trident I as part of the Navy's Demonstration and Shutdown Operation, or DASO, the purpose of which is for each assigned crew to demonstrate their ability to safely handle, maintain and operate the weapons system.

After each DASO is completed, the submarine is then certified for deployment.

Additional underwater launches of Trident I missiles are scheduled in the months ahead, the Navy said.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Miami police officer charged

United Press International

MIAMI — The Hispanic police officer who shot and killed a black motorcyclist last week, triggering race riots in the city's black neighborhoods, was arrested Monday and charged with two counts of manslaughter, police said.

Officer William Lozano was charged in the deaths of Clement Anthony Lloyd, 23, the motorcycle driver who was shot once in the head Jan. 16 during a police chase, and Allan Blanchard, 24, a passenger on the bike who died the next day of injuries suffered when the vehicle collided with an oncoming car.

Lozano was relieved of duty with pay after the shooting, and will probably be suspended without pay, a police spokesman said. He was arrested on two counts of manslaughter by fellow Miami police officers and posted a $10,000 bond.

His lawyer said Lozano is being made a scapegoat for the rioting.

"Clearly this is a political decision and not a legal decision," Roy Black said. "Obviously, he (Lozano) is very upset. He has been a police officer for four years and he has dedicated his life to law enforcement."

Ellis Rubin, a lawyer for Blanchard's family, said the family was "disappointed and in fact flabbergasted that only manslaughter has been filed against this police officer. This was a case of at least second-degree murder."

Rubin said the family is negotiating with the city in a wrongful death claim, and will file a case if a settlement is not reached.

Lloyd's father, Lee Lloyd, said the charges were brought "to keep the community quiet. I don't think they're going to keep the community quiet."

Another police officer began chasing Lloyd and Blanchard about 6 p.m. Jan. 16 after observing Lloyd driving at a high rate of speed on an Overtown street.

Black said Lozano, who was taking a crime report at the time, fired in self-defense as Lloyd approached on his motorcycle. Lloyd was struck once in the front of the head, near the left temple.

The shooting triggered rioting in Overtown last Monday that spread to the Liberty City area and a black enclave of Coconut Grove Tuesday, marring the city's celebration for Super Bowl XXIII, played Sunday at Joe Robbie Stadium.

The violence, which left one person dead, 11 injured from gunfire and more than 25 buildings burned, began subsiding Wednesday.

The Dade County state attorney, Miami police, the FBI and an independent review panel created by the Miami City Commission have been investigating the shooting.

City leaders had promised a quick investigation to soothe anger in the black community and control the violence. Members of the black community had called for Lozano to be charged in the deaths.

Dade County State Attorney Janet Reno said the charges arose from the joint investigation conducted by her office and the Miami police.

"Based on the evidence and applicable Florida law, manslaughter is the correct charge," she said. Reno said her office will prepare the case for prosecution and proceed to trial. Lozano faces a possible sentence of 30 years on each charge if convicted, she said. Black criticized Reno for not holding an inquest into the shooting before a judge. Black said Reno had agreed after an earlier police shooting to hold an inquest in police shootings.

The procedure calls for cases to be taken to the grand jury only when a judge makes a determination of probable cause, Black said.

The lawyer said Reno declined to follow the procedure in this case, although she has done so in other police shootings since 1982.

Although Reno was not obligated to follow the procedure, the "purpose of all that was to insulate the process from politics," Black said.

Court

"We're disappointed in the Supreme Court's decision," said Robert Bobb, Richmond's city manager since 1986. "Suffice it to say, when the city back in 1983 enacted its legislation, less than two-thirds of 1 percent of the city construction work was awarded to minority firms."

For two years after the ordinance went into effect, nearly 40 percent of Richmond's construction contracts were awarded to minority firms, Bobb said. But when the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals struck down the ordinance in 1986 and the city returned to a voluntary program, minority work fell to about 2 percent.

"We don't believe it was a rigid racial quota because minority firms still had to compete among themselves for the awarding of a sub-contract," said Bobb, who suggested the city may try to draw up another ordinance meeting the standards of the court.

Many set-aside programs, such as the one in Richmond, were enacted on a general assumption of past discrimination rather than specific findings of evidence.

The court's ruling illustrated the legacy of the Reagan administration, which repeatedly urged the court to overturn such affirmative action plans. Reagan appointees made up the core of the majority in the ruling.

"While there is no doubt that the sorry history of both private and public discrimination in this country has contributed to a lack of opportunities for black entrepreneurs, this observation, standing alone, cannot justify a rigid racial quota in the awarding of public contracts in Richmond, Va.," Justice Sandra Day O'Connor said for the majority.

She said an "amorphous claim that there has been past discrimination in a particular industry cannot justify the use of an unyielding racial quota."

O'Connor was joined by Chief Justice William Rehnquist and Justices Byron White, John Paul Stevens, Antonin Scalia and Anthony Kennedy.

Justices Thurgood Marshall, William Brennan and Harry Blackmun dissented. Marshall called the decision "a deliberate and giant step backward in this court's affirmative action jurisprudence" and Blackmun said,

"The court today regresses." Those involved in the case and court watchers were quick to speculate on the long-term significance of the court's decision.

Clyde Murphy, a lawyer with the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund, said the court's decision will limit the goals of any minority business set-aside programs that survive the ruling.

"It's likely to have a chilling effect on cities trying to establish these programs," said Murphy, whose group filed a friend-of-the-court brief in the case.

Murphy said he was not surprised by the decision, given the court's record on civil rights issues in recent years.

"I had hoped that the decision would be more narrow," he said.

Bundy

done that.

"That gradually subsided and this sexual frenzy that he would go through occurred again and he killed another woman. Only this time, the intense agony was a little easier to cope with and it lasted for a shorter period of time. He did that so many times he got to the point that he could not feel any more. He got to the point that he didn't have that remorse," Dobson said.

Late Monday, appeals by the former law school student were denied by the U.S. and Florida Supreme Courts. His final chance to escape the electric chair, being declared mentally incompetent by psychiatrists, also failed.

Gov. Bob Martinez ordered the prison's warden to perform the execution, saying, "On behalf of the countless victims of Ted Bundy, both dead and living across the state of Florida and the nation, I direct you to carry out the court-ordered sentence."

Jon Peck, a spokesman for Martinez, said the governor was

"subdued. The mood in the governor's office was somber, but there was a firm resolve this was carrying out justice."

Peck said Bundy was officially pronounced dead at 7:16 a.m. EST.

Bundy visited Monday with his lawyers and a psychiatrist they brought in to examine him and was interviewed by Dobson.

"He wept several times while talking to me," Dobson said. "He expressed great regret, remorse for what he had done, for the families that were hurting."

"He was quiet most of the time (Monday)," said Macmaster. "He seemed a little depressed most of the time."

Bundy was sentenced to die for the 1978 murder of Kimberly Diane Leach, 12, of Lake City. He is under separate death warrants for the 1978 murders of Margaret Bowman and Janet Lisa Levy, two Florida State University students clubbed to death as they slept in the Chi Omega house at Tallahassee.

U.S. District Judge G. Kendall Sharp, refusing one of Bundy's many appeals, called him

"probably the most competent serial killer in the country ... a diabolical genius."

Bundy was led into the death chamber shortly before 7 a.m., wearing a light blue short-sleeve shirt and dark blue trousers. He did not struggle as he was manacled with leather straps on his wrists and chest.

He sat in the wooden chair, glancing nervously around the room. His complexion appeared pasty and his eyes looked sunken and dark as guards attached an electrode to his leg.

The condemned killer stared at the rows of witnesses in the chamber, with his jaw firmly set.

Prison Superintendent Thomas Barton asked Bundy if he had any final words.

"I'd like you to give my love to my family and friends," he said firmly and clearly before a mask was draped over his face.

An electrode was then attached to Bundy's shaven head, and the superintendent got on the telephone with the governor to await orders to proceed.

Barton then nodded to the hooded executioner, who pushed a button that sent current surging through Bundy's body.

Bundy's head snapped back and his body went rigid for surges of 30 and 60 seconds. One official nodded to the executioner, who then cut off the power.

Officials then checked Bundy for pulse and heartbeat and called in the prison doctor for confirmation of the death.

The doctor, Frank Kligo, raised the leather veil over Bundy's face, dropped it back, checked again with a stethoscope, and pronounced the prisoner dead.

When the doctor finished, Lt. Don Davis of the Corrections Department stepped to a microphone and said, "The sentence of the state of Florida against Theodore Bundy has been carried out at 7:16."

Bundy confessed during the weekend to several additional murders, apparently in an effort to delay his execution. Most of the women he killed were of college age with long hair.

POLICE BRIEFS

Bank manager choked for cash

SANFORD — A man, who allegedly choked an assistant manager at Freedom Bank when she refused to cash a check that had a stop payment order, faces charges of attempted robbery and battery.

George A. Ewing, 44, of 1410 Hilltop St., Casselberry, was arrested at the bank at 201 N. Park Ave., by Sanford police at 11:17 a.m. Monday. He is accused of attacking Virginia Simmons after returning to the bank a second time to try to cash a check. Bond is $2,000.

Couple: Boyfriend drove them down

SANFORD — The ex-girlfriend of a Sanford man and her new boyfriend reported to Sanford police Monday that the ex-boyfriend ran the couple down and hit them with his car.

That brought a charge of aggravated battery against Anthony Roker, 23, of 39 Castle Brewer Court, who was stopped by police as he drove from the scene. Roker was arrested in his car behind 69 Castle Brewer Court. The victims, Madlyn Boston and Heratio Robertsons were not seriously injured, police said.

They said they were arguing with Roker, when he backed up his car and drove toward them and hit them as they stood in the road on Olive Avenue. Bond is $5,000.

Suspect hospitalized after arrest

SANFORD — A man whom Sanford police said apparently swallowed some of the cocaine they found in a bag in his mouth was hospitalized after he became sick, following the arrest.

Leethon Smith, of 205 Academy Ave., Sanford, was charged with sale and delivery of cocaine, possession of cocaine, and possession of cocaine with intent to distribute on W. 13th Place at 5:05 p.m. Monday. He was arrested after allegedly selling crack cocaine to a police agent.

Police said that after his arrest, they found a bag of cocaine in his mouth. He is believed to have swallowed some of the crack cocaine, and police recovered more crack cocaine when they took the bag from his mouth. He became ill and was transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital for observation before he was booked into the Seminole County Jail. Police recovered the $20 they said they paid Smith for cocaine, and also said he had $150 which was confiscated.

Brothers stopped after alleged robbery

SANFORD — A man whom police said drove a getaway car after his brother allegedly stole beer from a Sanford convenience store, drove that car into another vehicle as he was leaving the store, police said.

The theft occurred at the Circle K, on Celery Avenue, at about 9 p.m. Monday. Police said they pursued the getaway car, which was traveling east on Celery Avenue with two flat front tires, which were damaged in the collision.

When police found the car stuck on the roadside at Celery and Brisson Avenues, they charged the driver, Jonathan Patrick Murphy, 22, of Magnolia Avenue, Sanford, with leaving the scene of an accident with property damage. His brother James Mason Murphy, 18, of Meadowhill Drive, Sanford, was charged with retail theft. Police reported recovering two six packs of beer at the arrest site.

WNSI may face foreclosure

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A former owner of WNSI-AM (1400) said Monday he will foreclose on the $279,543 owed him by the current owners River Country Broadcasting, Inc., setting the stage for possibly two courthouse auctions of the financially-troubled station.

William Masi, president of Metro Orlando Broadcasters, Inc., said he hasn't been paid since May on his first and second mortgage of the 1516 E. Celery Ave. radio station, the only licensed station in Seminole County.

And though Seminole Circuit Judge Kenneth M. Leffler signed a default statement against River Country Broadcasting and River Country president Walter J. Bowen on Dec. 14, Masi's attorney, Carmine Bravo, continued negotiating with River Country and prospective station buyers Bennett Broadcasting Corp. rather than pursue an auction of the station to satisfy the debt.

Bravo said in December a negotiated agreement was preferable to a court action to protect the image of the station and prevent the possibility of it going "dark" — off the air.

Bravo said Monday the move to ask Leffler to sell the station to collect the debt was to have the date set only in case negotiations break down. He described discussions with Bob Bennett as "amicable." Bravo said Bennett does not have an attorney and he has been negotiating with Bennett directly.

But Masi, who owned the station for little more than a year between late 1983 and 1984, said he seems to be left out of the River Country-Bennett negotiations.

"Nobody seems to be coming up with any money," Masi said. "(Bennett) is being very aloof and not only aloof, but indifferent."

Masi said he would prefer not to take over operations of the station if a suitable bid is not received at an auction, but he will if he has to.

"I'm not looking forward to it, but if I have to protect my interests, I will."

On Dec. 30, the Federal Communications Commission approved transferring the station's license from River Country to Bennett Broadcasting. An FCC spokesman said the two parties have until the end of February to close the deal. Bennett said recently he expects to conclude the sale by the end of January.

But another former owner, owed over $31,000 in an unpaid debt and legal fees, has established another auction date to collect their claim. On Jan. 12, Seminole Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis allowed Seminole-Orange Broadcasting Co. to hold an auction on Feb. 21 at 11 a.m. to collect their debt owed by River County.

The auction was originally scheduled for Dec. 6, but Seminole-Orange attorney Laurence Pino failed to properly advertise the auction and it could not go on. A Seminole County circuit court clerk said Monday advertisements for the Feb. 21 auction have been purchased, according to court files.

Sharon Wright of the historic commission, and John and Fred Bistline, whose great-grandfather, Josiah B. Clouser built the cottage in 1881 as a temporary place to live after he moved to Longwood from Pennsylvania because of his wife's health.

Several commissioners along with Terry and Building Inspector B.L. Helms took a tour of the building last week.

"It could very well hold some historical value," said Farach, a structural engineer. Farach said that he looked at the building and it is in good shape. He donated all services for the structural work needed to restore the house to its original condition.

"It could be a community project. It could be something everyone could get involved with," Farach said.

Contract

has been contracted by the city to Speegle Construction. The $3 million construction project began in late fall of last year.

In an interview, Simmons said he hopes that the program will be offered to the public after the first phase goes on line this fall. Reclaimed water would be offered for lawn irrigation at substantially lower rates than potable water, he said. Reclaimed water could be offered at a rate of five cents for 1,000 gallons, he said, compared to $2.83 for 1,000 gallons of potable water.

"We're not blazing any new trails," he said, "but just doing what more cities ought to be doing."

St. Petersburg has operated a reclaimed water program for 10 years and Cocoa Beach for three years, he said.

Whether the city can offer reclaimed water subscriptions to city residents will depend on the cost of constructing lines, Simmons said. Preliminary studies indicate that costs will vary depending on soil types and locations, he said.

The city is working to meet a 1990 consent order by FDER to end discharge of effluents into Lake Monroe. Simmons said the city now dumps six million gallons of effluent into the lake daily.

The city will open bidding for reclaimed water storage tanks Jan. 25.

Celery Avenue, he said. Residents who spoke against the development cited poor drainage and congested roadways in the area. Others argued that Sanford cannot support more apartment housing, and suggested that low-income housing take the form of single family homes.

Paula Tinkin of Celery Avenue argued, "People who own their own homes take more pride in where they live."

Mayor Bettye Smith reminded the public that the commission was granting approval only for the zoning change.

Hirohito and the role of an emperor

Hirohito, the 124th Japanese emperor, died the other day at the age of 87. It touched off a period of ritualistic mourning in Japan and resurrected an academic debate over his role in World War II — and the role any future emperor will assume in this economic powerhouse of the Orient.

Hirohito, who reigned over Japan for 62 years, was a quiet man trained as a marine biologist. He rarely appeared in public. But he reigned during a remarkable period in Japanese history, sitting on a Chrysanthemum Throne that commanded the respect of his people.

Was Hirohito a passive figurehead who secretly disapproved of Japan's aggressive military goals? Or did he actively take part in Japan's war effort, perhaps even approving of the bombing of Pearl Harbor? Scholars disagree, though most believe he was on the fringes of Japanese decision making.

His authority, however symbolic, was in evidence after the war and probably helped hasten the nation's peacetime recovery. He urged his countrymen to accept military defeat. Then he surrendered his claim to divinity and much of his family's imperial estate. More important, he approved a new constitution that instituted democracy and governmental reforms.

Like monarchs in other parts of the world, Hirohito seemed to busy himself with the ceremonial aspects of his position in his later years.

Now that his son, Crown Prince Akihito, will reign as emperor, some are worried that extreme conservatives will try to rally nationalist fervor around him. But Akihito is a sophisticated man, educated by an American Quaker. He is likely to assume a role similar to Britain's Prince Charles. It's a symbolic role that, in significant ways, nurtures the national psyche.

Our kids, our potatoes

When it comes to food, adults are becoming more conscious these days of the link between health and diet. Witness, if nothing else, the phenomenal takeoff of any food containing oat bran, the miracle ingredient of 1988.

But children are a different matter. According to an ABC special, "America's Kids: Diet of Danger," a whole generation of sedentary youngsters is filling up on foods poor in nutrition and high in fat, salt and sugar — and is much the worse for it.

If the problem could be laid at one door, solving it might be easier. But as the television program notes, a number of factors seem to conspire against any easy fix to the dietary deficiencies of children.

School lunches are little help. As ABC notes, "schools have become a dumping ground for high-fat whole milk, high-fat meats and high-fat cheese" from government surplus stocks. Even when parents try to choose wisely, buying foods purporting to be high in fiber, full of fruit juice, "natural," or "light," the products don't always live up to expectations.

Getting kids back on a proper nutritional track won't be easy, but a start could be made with Congress trying again to pass a bill limiting commercials during children's programming — a bill passed last session but vetoed by President Reagan. Just as important, parents should pay greater attention to what their children consume.

George Bush begins his presidency

How long has it been since you heard anybody call George Bush a "wimp"? At least five months, I'll bet. That poisonous little piece of propaganda, based on a widespread but wholly inaccurate perception of the man, disappeared from journalistic radar screens around the time of the Republican convention in New Orleans last August and hasn't been seen since.

As a matter of fact, Bush's transformation, in less than half a year, from a widely perceived wimp into a relaxed, sure-footed national leader is one of the most striking political developments of recent times.

In the Reagan White House, Bush inevitably took on some of the aspects of a fifth wheel — an ancient problem that has now assumed its new roost on the shoulder of Dan Quayle. But nobody ever emerged into the sunshine of selfhood more quickly or more confidently than Bush did after he was nominated in New Orleans.

What's more, the process has actually accelerated since the election. In the wake of Michael Dukakis' defeat the media were in a surly mood, and the congressional Democrats could hardly wait to shove those words "no new taxes" down the incoming president's throat. It began to appear that George Bush's "honeymoon" would be one of the shortest on record.

But Bush kept his cool and his sense of humor, refused either to panic or retract, and began naming to his Cabinet a series of old Washington hands who were widely known and respected.

Both among the media and on Capitol Hill, slowly it began to dawn on observers that the Bush administration was going to be a place act in its own right, and not merely a lame follow-on to the Ronald Reagan Show.

As a matter of fact, it has been a little amusing to note the Washington press corps' open relief that so many of Bush's top appointees "live inside the Beltway" or have already spent years in government service.

This merely testifies to the human fear of the unknown. There are plenty of able men and women outside the Beltway, as both Carter and

"nobody emerged into the sunshine of selfhood more quickly or more confidently than Bush"

Reagan demonstrated by naming a number of them to high posts in their administrations. But then the media, and the all-but-permanent grandees up on the Hill, must go to the trouble of getting to know them, setting up lines of communication, exchanging favors, etc. At least Bush has, in most cases, spared them that trouble.

As a result, it is fair to say that George Bush has shown the presidency more clearly than any clear as in the nature of things, political skies ever get. He is the successor and legate of the most popular president of modern times. He has surrounded himself with men and women whom he knows well and who, collectively, are the possessors of formidable expertise in the arcane arts of politics and government.

Domestically, the nation is entering an unprecedented seventh year of prosperity, with the federal budget deficit declining, both in absolute terms and (far more significant) as a proportion of the gross national product.

Internationally, it is slowly becoming apparent that the Free World, after 40 years of grim persistence, has in fact won the Cold War — and (even more important, if possible) that the Soviet Union and the rest of the world know it. This is certainly no time for the West to let down its guard.

Reagan leaves a legacy of hokum

WASHINGTON — After being tested for eight years, supply-side economics has proven to be neither the disaster its critics expected nor the panacea its promoters predicted.

President Reagan fervently embraced the concept when he entered the White House, insisting that drastic reductions in personal income taxes — especially for the very wealthy — would actually produce more revenues for the federal government.

Supply-side advocates argued that slashing tax rates would eliminate the need for the rich to shelter their income and would provide them with an incentive to earn even more, thus generating additional income that could be taxed.

The proponents even argued that their strategy would lead to such a vast expansion of personal income that taxes levied upon it would provide enough government revenue to eliminate the federal budget deficit. The concept's detractors were equally convinced that it would lead to economic calamity.

In fact, neither a depression nor a bonanza materialized. Federal revenues, measured as a share of gross national product, averaged about 19 percent throughout Reagan's tenure — precisely the same as during the tenures of Presidents Nixon, Ford and Carter in the 1970s and 1980s.

While revenues remained relatively constant, expenditures did not. The result is that national debt grew more under Reagan's stewardship than during the term of any other president in the nation's history.

Although he ceaselessly promoted adding a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution, Reagan never came within $90 billion of that goal in the annual budgets he proposed to Congress.

Indeed, the eight budgets he submitted to Congress, covering the fiscal years from 1983 through 1990, called for a cumulative total of $1,114,100,000,000 worth of deficit spending. That's one trillion, one hundred and fourteen billion, one hundred million dollars.

In the president's nationally televised farewell speech, he only gave a passing mention to the debt burden he played a major role in creating.

In that address, the president left the White House as he arrived — a politician with the perfect pitch in communicating with the electorate and an irrepressibly optimistic salesman uniquely capable of making others feel good about themselves.

As in the past, however, his charm and amiability obscured his penchant for playing fast and loose with the facts. For example, Reagan claimed that "real family income (is) up"; but it stands today at the same level as in 1973.

He boasted that 19 million new jobs had been created; but he did not mention that many are low-income substitutes for better paying jobs that disappeared while he was in office.

He claimed that the country was experiencing "an explosion in research and new technology." But a growing share of research and development funds and scientific talent have been diverted from civilian applications crucial to economic growth into "Star Wars" and other military projects of dubious value.

He boasted of "the longest peacetime expansion in our history" and of "the American miracle," but failed to mention that much of it was financed by foreign investors.

He spoke of "the moral way of government," but offered no explanation of the greed and selfishness that have flourished in the absence of presidential leadership on ethical values.

Judging Nancy Reagan's 'term' as our first lady

BOSTON — Eight years ago, as Ronald Reagan was being inaugurated President of the United States, the woman beside him caught the eyes of a dear friend in the crowd. At that second, she remembers, "both of us were thinking the same thing: Nothing would ever be the same again."

She was right. Nancy Davis Reagan wasn't sworn in. She never held a public office. She wasn't paid a public salary. Nothing in the Constitution gave her power or place in the government. But from 1981 to 1989 she played the most public of private roles imaginable. She was the President's wife and the country's first lady.

Now Nancy is going home with the guy who brought her.

What are the images she will leave behind, the photographs in our national scrapbook? The devoted wife staring in fixed adoration as her husband spoke. The fashion plate in Adolpho dresses and borrowed jewels, a second-hand Rose. The activist against drugs who drove home a three-word message to American parents and kids: Just say no. The fiercely loyal warrior and star-gazer who made her husband's enemies her own.

Ronald Reagan will be judged as President. Nancy will be judged — as women often are — by a much more elaborate set of criteria: wife, mother, presidential adviser, activist, woman.

From the very beginning, this first lady had little of the Teflon coating that protected her husband's surfaces from the painful scratches of public criticism. She was labeled frivolous one year and intrusive another. She was called a clothes horse in the first term and a dragon in the end. She was criticized for caring about China and for caring about Russia. For being X-ray thin and for being power hungry.

In an era when all the images of women were in flux, the opinions about this woman were more than ambivalent. Those who admired her independent efforts against drugs often parodied her protective defense of her husband. Those who lauded her as a wife often lambasted her as an inner-circle adviser.

It is understandable if she looked out of that White House window and said, "Some days I have the feeling that if it's raining it must be my fault."

Every first lady has felt the heat of the White House lights. Dolley Madison was criticized for her snuff. Mary Lincoln for extravagance. Mrs. Roosevelt was called a busybody. Mrs. Truman reclusive. Our expectations are unrealistic, says Sheila Tate who was Nancy Reagan's press secretary for four years. "There is a sense that everything the first lady does is subject to discussion. Most first ladies go through the baptism by fire. I don't care how well prepared they think they are."

Not even private problems stay on hold in the White House, nor do they stay private. A simple chronology of the life events in this first family reads like an entry on a stress chart.

In her time in non-office, Nancy Reagan had a husband shot and diagnosed with colon cancer. She lost her father and her mother and a breast to cancer. As a stepmother, she was for a time estranged from her stepson. As a mother, she has been alienated from a daughter whose novel was a thinly veiled attack through it all, she was expected to perform perfectly as hostess and wife and drug czarina.

We can leave it to the historians to divine her influence on the governing of America in these years. All she says is this: "It's silly to suggest that my opinion should not carry some weight with a man I've been married to for 35 years."

We can let the sociologists determine if she had a lasting influence on the use of drugs in America. The one thing the first lady has is the ability to focus attention. Now we will see how short our attention spans is.

But we don't need experts to assess what credit is due to the woman who married her job and carried it out under the hot, white lights that bathe Pennsylvania Avenue. She too has completed a term — what Martha Washington once called, "the lost years" — in a role of enormous influence and little freedom.

There is no official transition term for first ladies, just boxes and moving vans passing in the driveway. The spotlight has already shifted from the Reagans to the Bushes, from the size and style of one woman's family and dress to that of another.

"Nancy will be judged by a much more elaborate set of criteria"

Stock prices open slightly higher

United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened slightly higher Tuesday in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 18.07 Monday, was up 5.00 to 2223.39 shortly after the market opened.

Advances edged declines 283-251 among the 936 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 6,053,000 shares.

Stock prices ended sharply lower Monday as jittery investors bailed out after failing to reinvigorate a nine-week advance that stalled late last week; when the market was unable to pierce a key technical barrier.

Analysts said the market was struggling against a psychological hurdle at 2250 on the Dow — the half-way point between the index's Aug. 25, 1987, closing peak at 2722.42, and its low point of 1738.74 following a 508-point plunge two months later.

An early surge carried the blue-chip indicator above the critical 2250-level as the session began but skepticism soon overshadowed traders' traditional exuberance at the National Football Conference victory in Sunday's Super Bowl XXIII. An NFC victory in the past has heralded an up year on the stock market.

Stock prices have advanced around 170 points on the Dow since mid-November.

Dollar lower, gold mixed

United Press International

The dollar was lower Tuesday on major foreign currency markets. Gold was mixed.

In Europe, the dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.8285 West German marks, down from 1.8390 West German marks at Monday's close.

The dollar began the day in Zurich at 1.5455 Swiss francs, down from 1.5615 Swiss francs. In Paris, the dollar opened at 6.2255 French francs, down from 6.2860 French francs on Monday.

The dollar opened in Brussels at 38.40 Belgian francs, down from 38.86 Belgian francs, and began the day in Italy at 1,340.50 Italian lire, down from 1,353.50 Italian lire.

In London, the British pound began the day at $1.7920, compared with $1.7755 at Monday's close.

In Tokyo, the dollar dropped sharply against the yen, closing at 126.95 yen, down 1.25 yen from Monday's close.

Dealers said market players were confused by recent movements of the yen-dollar exchange rates. They said the dollar basically remained unchanged in view of higher U.S. interest rates and crude oil prices.

Currency dealers also said the U.S. currency's downswing in Tokyo was partly due to selling by speculators and institutions to test its strength.

In cautious early trading in New York, the dollar began to inch upward against key foreign currencies.

Silver opened 15 cents higher in Zurich at $6.20 an ounce and opened 0.5 cents lower in London at $6.105 an ounce.

Japan's finance minister resigns

United Press International

TOKYO — Japan's economics minister resigned Tuesday, the third member of Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita's Cabinet in 45 days forced out in connection with the snowballing insider stock trading scandal.

Ken Harada, 69, director general of the Economic Planning Agency, submitted his resignation after admitting that he and his political support group received large sums of money in gifts and donations from Recruit Co., the firm involved in the affair.

The scandal erupted last spring when it was revealed that Recruit Cosmon Co., the real estate arm of Recruit, had offered unlisted shares of its stock to prominent politicians and business leaders at bargain prices in 1986. After the shares were listed over the counter, the beneficiaries, many of whom bought the stock with loans provided by Recruit, reaped huge windfall profits.

Harada, who was appointed to Takeshita's 20-member cabinet Dec. 27, had been the chairman of the government's lower house committee investigating the Recruit affair.

He becomes the third member of Takeshita's cabinet to step down in disgrace over the affair in a month and a half. Former Finance Minister Kiichi Miyazawa resigned Dec. 9 after failing to clear his name in the scandal.

Takeshita reshuffled his cabinet on Dec. 27 in a bid to restore public confidence in his government, but only three days later his new justice minister, Takashi Hasegawa stepped down after revealing that his support group also received donations from Recruit.

"The authorities are now investigating any bribery or other violations of stock exchange laws in connection with the case," Harada told a news conference announcing his resignation.

"For future Diet (parliament) proceedings, I would not like to be an interference as a Cabinet member," Harada said.

Memorial held for slain children

STOCKTON, Calif. — Grieving relatives, Buddhist priests and state officials including Gov. George Deukmejian joined nearly 2,500 other mourners at a memorial Monday for the five children slain at their elementary school by a suicidal drifter. A dozen chanting Buddhist monks in orange robes presided over a simple ceremony for the victims at a citywide memorial before the burials of the four Cambodian children killed.

Bush backs abortion protestors

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Bush, declaring "God bless life," told about 85,000 anti-abortion demonstrators Monday the Supreme Court decision making most abortions legal is "wrong and should be overturned."

Bush, speaking through a telephone hookup to a cheering, almost festive crowd of activists gathered on the Ellipse — still decorated with bunting and other remnants of last week's inaugural celebrations — called for a "human life amendment" to the Constitution that would overturn the controversial 1973 Roe vs. Wade ruling — a decision the court is currently reconsidering.

Four hours later, after a march to the Supreme Court and Capitol Hill, the demonstrators dispersed peacefully in late afternoon.

Police reported no arrests at the court as the protesters abandoned — for the time being at least — their strategy of civil disobedience. In years past, they have held non-violent pray-ins on the court steps.

Police estimated about 65,000 gathered for the rally and march to the Supreme Court in balmy, almost spring-like weather.

Senate panel approves Darman to head OMB

United Press International

WASHINGTON — A Senate panel, in a unanimous vote Monday, approved Richard Darman to be President Bush's budget director and sent the nomination to the full Senate for final action expected on Wednesday.

The Governmental Affairs Committee voted 9-0 in favor of Darman after two days of confirmation hearings during which he said that only war or some economic crisis would prompt him to recommend that Bush break his "no new taxes" campaign pledge.

Approved by the Senate on Wednesday, as expected, the Harvard-educated Darman, 45, a former deputy secretary of the Treasury, will be the point man in the Bush administration's battles with Congress over how to reduce the huge federal budget deficit without increasing taxes.

Darman told the Senate panel Monday he has made some preliminary decisions about what spending cuts to recommend to Bush, who early next month is scheduled to offer his alternative proposals to the final budget President Reagan submitted Jan. 9.

"I have what amounts to an extremely long laundry list of possibilities," Darman said.

But he declined to be specific about cuts he will recommend, saying it would be unfair to risk angering several constituencies that would be affected by the proposed cuts before Bush makes the final decision.

Darman said that while Social Security benefits remain exempt from any budget cuts, savings must come from other federal entitlement programs, such as Medicare.

"It's inescapable," Darman said of probable recommendations of cuts in some entitlement programs. "The burden cannot be borne solely on discretionary (spending) programs. I've said that I thought the savings ought to include attention to entitlement programs."

He also said he believes defense spending "can't grow at as rapid a rate as President Reagan has proposed." Reagan, in his final budget, proposed 3 percent real growth in defense spending, after inflation, for fiscal 1990, which begins Oct. 1.

Darman said he would oppose disallowing the $60 billion surplus in the Social Security trust fund from being used to make the federal budget deficit look smaller than it is.

Lawmakers are allowed, under terms of the 1985 Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law, to offset the size of the deficit, which would be over $200 billion if the Social Security surplus could not be used.

Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., labeled that "fiscal fakery" and a "shell game" and said it should be prohibited because it deceives the public about how large the deficit really is.

Darman said that while Heinz's view "is sound," he opposes any accounting change now because "the burden is already heavy enough" on Congress and the administration to comply with the deficit-cutting mandate of Gramm-Rudman.

Asked about Bush's pledge in first presidential campaign debate to fund fully a $1 billion bill aiding the homeless, Darman said Bush hopes he can live up to that and other campaign promises even though they will cost extra billions of dollars at a time of federal belt tightening.

"I can't yet guarantee that we can squeeze it all in," Darman said.

IN BRIEF

BASKETBALL

Indiana finally wins 10th game

As far as Denver Coach Doug Moe was concerned, the lowly Indiana Pacers might as well have been the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Nuggets dropped their seventh game in their last eight outings Monday night, allowing the Pacers to post their 10th victory of the season with a 117-102 triumph.

"Everybody who has played against us has had a career night," said Moe, whose team also has lost eight straight games on the road. "All the other teams look the same to me. I don't care if it's Indiana, Little Sisters of the Poor or whoever. We are just playing awful."

In Monday night's only other NBA games, Cleveland ran over Golden State 142-109 and San Antonio stuffed Miami 119-101.

BASEBALL

Tourney opens Patriots' season

Lake Brantley High School will open the 1989 baseball season with one of the state's toughest tournaments. Three of last year's final four teams will be represented in the tourney, which starts February 17, along with five other state powers.

Jacksonville Sandalwoods, last year's class 4A state champion, will be in the tourney along with last year's state runner-up Sarasota, Miami Columbus High School, who made the state tournament last year in class 4A, will also be in the field.

Gonzalez Tate from Pensacola, Sarasota Riverview, Lake City Columbia, St. Augustine and Brantley round out the eight team tournament.

Brantley will also receive some exposure when it travels to New Orleans to play Jesuit High School on Friday night and Arch Bishop Shaw on Saturday.

TENNIS

Edberg beats Cash, bad back

MELBOURNE, Australia — Stefan Edberg routed Pat Cash in straight sets Tuesday to reach the Australian Open quarterfinals in a match heated by a sweltering sun, bad feelings between the competitors and a late back injury to Edberg.

Edberg of Sweden won the fourth-round match over the Australian 6-4, 6-0, 6-2. Edberg, the 1988 Wimbledon champion, will meet Austrian Thomas Muster in the quarterfinals. Muster earlier Tuesday defeated unseeded Magnus Gustafsson of Sweden 6-3, 6-2, 7-5.

Cash walked off the court in Memorial Drive Adelaide two weeks ago at 6-6 in a tiebreak final against Edberg. Cash said he had suffered an injury to his right elbow.

Edberg stung Cash before the match when he accused the Australian of not trying in the fourth set of his third-round match against American Richey Reneberg. Cash, hurt by the charges, snapped at the media and refused to make additional comments on the allegations.

The Melbourne newspapers heralded the showdown as "Grudge Match" and "Shootout at Flinders Park."

HOCKEY

Calgary scorches Montreal 3-1

The Calgary Flames evened their hypothetical NHL championship series with the Canadiens at one game apiece by avenging an earlier home loss with a victory in Montreal.

Joe Mullen scored the go-ahead goal with eight seconds left in the second period and Nieuwendyk contributed two goals Monday night to give Calgary a 3-1 triumph that ended the Montreal Canadiens' home winning streak at 18 games.

In other games, Hartford shellacked Quebec 5-0, Minnesota crushed New Jersey 7-2 and the New York Rangers edged Edmonton 3-2.

'Smaller' crowd celebrates 49er victory

United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO — Thousands of jubilant San Francisco 49ers fans poured from skyscrapers lining the city's bustling financial district Monday, disrupting the flow of business in the Pacific Rim hub to greet the Super Bowl champions during a victory parade.

The sea of red-clad fans — estimated at 100,000 — descended on the streets to show their affection for the 49ers, who scored a last-second, 20-16 victory Sunday over the Cincinnati Bengals for their third Super Bowl title of the 1980s.

The crowd was far smaller than the estimated 900,000 who rocked the city after the 49ers' first Super Bowl victory in 1982. Three years later, the crowd had dwindled to 400,000 fans, who trashed the Civic Center to celebrate the club's 1985 Super Bowl victory.

Memories of the violent 1985 celebration moved authorities not to have any formal welcoming of the team at City Hall.

After a night of celebrating in Miami, the 49ers boarded their chartered "49er Liner" United Airlines DC-10 early Monday and arrived at San Francisco International Airport at 4:30 p.m. EST. The flight was met by a few family members and friends under the watchful eye of a nearby police contingent.

Quarterback Joe Montana, who tossed a 10-yard strike to John Taylor with 34 seconds to play for the go-ahead touchdown, broke into a big grin as he walked away from the plane and his 2-year-old daughter Elizabeth came running up and gave her father a big hug.

It was Montana's first post-Super Bowl parade through the city. He missed the first two celebrations because of a commitment to the Pro Bowl.

"The most important thing was that Montana was here," said fan Jesus Romero, a San Francisco native who has been following Montana since he played for Notre Dame. "The other two years he had to go to the Pro Bowl right afterwards so he didn't show up. He's a god around here so the fact he made it to this parade made it real special."

Tackle Steve Wallace, who fractured his ankle on the game's first series, stood at the doorway of the plane for several minutes, unsure of how to climb down the stairs on his crutches. He was then assisted to the bottom of the stairs.

The team headed to buses, which transported the players downtown for a motorized cable car parade down Market Street. Though out of heart of the city, thousands of screaming, chanting fans lined the parade route, which was guarded by baseball-capped police officers stationed every 50 feet along the 1 1/2-mile route.

The officers led the fans — 15 to 20 deep at some points — along the sides of the streets in alternating cheers of "Go!" "Niners!" Other 49er faithful hung out of windows trying to catch the attention of the players passing by.

The parade followed a night of celebrating throughout the city, touched off by Taylor's reception.

Unbeaten Illini now No. 1

United Press International

NEW YORK — Illinois, benefiting from a pair of Duke losses, Monday became the first college basketball team in almost three years to be voted No. 1 unanimously by United Press International's Board of Coaches.

The Illini, at 17-0 the nation's only major undefeated team, collected the 41 first-place votes cast and 615 points. One coach did not vote this week. The last consensus No. 1 team named by UPI was North Carolina in the 11th week of the 1985-86 season.

Duke, which had held the top ranking since the preseason, fell to No. 7 following losses last week to North Carolina and Wake Forest. The Blue Devils had won their first 13 games before the losses.

Georgetown was No. 2 followed by No. 3 Louisville, No. 4 Oklahoma, No. 5 Arizona, No. 6 North Carolina, No. 7 Duke, No. 8 Missouri, No. 9 Seton Hall and No. 10 Michigan.

Rounding out the Top 20 were No. 11 Florida State, No. 12 Iowa, No. 13 Syracuse, No. 14 Indiana, No. 15 North Carolina State, No. 16 Nevada-Las Vegas, No. 17 Ohio State, No. 18 Stanford, No. 19 Georgia Tech and No. 20 St. Mary's (Calif.).

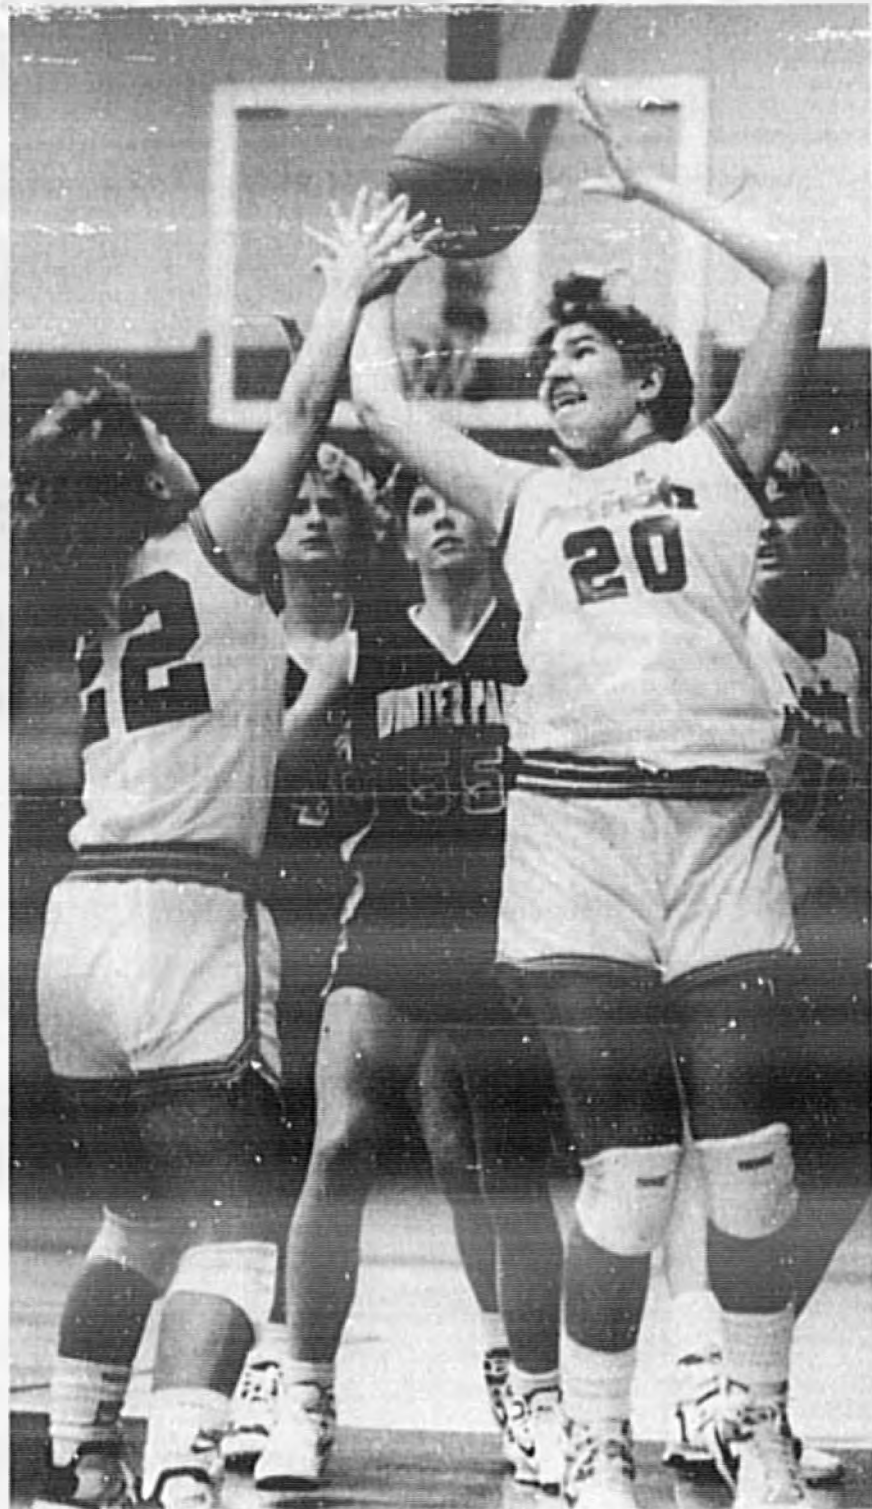

Knowing the No. 1 ranking was theirs to lose may have put pressure on the Illini Sunday against Georgia Tech. With a packed home crowd at Champaign and a national TV audience watching, Illinois fell behind by 14 points to the Yellow Jackets. Kenny Battle and Kendall Gill led a comeback and the Illini won 103-92 in double overtime.

"We had them on the ropes and we let them get away," Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins said. "But they play hard. They're quick and they've got great athletes."

Holding onto the No. 1 ranking as long as Duke did will not be easy for Illinois. Gill, a standout junior guard, broke a bone in his foot Sunday and is expected to miss the rest of the season.

"It's going to be a challenge to play the same kind of ball we've played prior to Kendall's injury," Illinois Coach Lou Henson said. "In the last week, we've lost two of our best perimeter shooters and we're down to just eight recruited players."

Lady Pats win 50-38

By TONY DeSORMIER
Herald sports writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Monday night's high school girls basketball game between Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots and the Winter Park Lady Wildcats could not be confused by anyone with a hoop masterpiece.

Over 40 turnovers slowed the already sluggish action, making the Lady Patriots' 50-38 win pass by with frustrating slowness.

"Mondays are tough to play ball on, after the weekend," said Lake Brantley coach Cindy Frank. "And you always play to your competition. It happens all year."

Against Winter Park, the Lady Pats faced an undermanned (only seven players) and inexperienced (mostly sophomores and juniors) team. Saddled with the same sluggishness that plagued Lake Brantley, the Lady Wildcats' play was predictably sloppy.

And just as Frank feared, her Lady Pats followed suit.

In fact, Lake Brantley didn't really get things going until almost midway through the third quarter. The Lady Patriots had built an eight-point lead twice in the second quarter before Winter Park cut it to five, 21-15, just before halftime.

The Lady Wildcats continued the surge, scoring the first four points of the second half to cut the lead to one point, 21-20. Frank then called time out and gave her team an emotional jump start.

"We have a problem about standing around in the third quarter," said Frank. "They stand around and let things slip away in the third quarter. They don't realize it, they think they're working hard, but they're just standing around."

"They have to get fired up."

Over the final 5:22 of the period, Lake Brantley outscored

Oak Ridge survives Winter Park

By JIM RICKENBACKER
Herald Correspondent

WINTER PARK — Willy Daunic sat in on-court solitude during a brief break early in the fourth period of Monday's Metro Conference boys basketball game.

Exhausted from trying to carry the offensive load and being harassed defensively, Winter Park's senior point guard and team leader picked himself up and knocked in a free throw before Orlando Oak Ridge (19-1) delivered the final blow to the Wildcats (11-6).

The Pioneers, seeking a spot in USA Today's Super 25, showed why they're Florida's third-ranked Class 4A outfit in the twinkling of an eye. Buoyed by four of Alonzo Harris' game-high 22 points, Oak Ridge outscored the 10th-ranked Wildcats, 10-2, to turn a 54-45 advantage into a 64-47 bulge with 3:44 left. Not many of the 751 fans left Winter Park's gym after the Pioneers sealed their 11th consecutive victory and sole possession of first place in the conference standings with a 9-0 record. ## Winfield, Steinbrenner go to arbitration

United Press International

NEW YORK — Attorneys for New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner and slugger Dave Winfield have agreed to go to arbitration to settle their dispute over money allegedly due the Winfield Foundation.

The New York Daily News reported Tuesday that the two sides had agreed to submit their cases to Michael Armstrong, a New York attorney who rose to prominence as counsel for the Knapp Commission.

Winfield filed suit Jan. 6 against Steinbrenner, accusing the Yankees owner of reneging on a 1980 pledge to pay $3 million to the Winfield Foundation over a 10-year period. The slugger claimed Steinbrenner had not made quarterly payments to the foundation since Sept. 1987 and owed some $450,000.

Steinbrenner filed a countersuit Jan. 9, asking the charity be placed in receivership because its funds were routinely used for the personal expenses of Winfield. That lawsuit also asked that Winfield pay some $380,000 he allegedly owes the foundation under the 1980 agreement. Steinbrenner said the disputed money has been placed in an interest-bearing account until the matter is resolved.

The Winfield Foundation is a non-profit organization designed to fight drug abuse and help underprivileged children.

Daily News columnist Mike Lupica submitted a proposal last Wednesday, suggesting the two sides submit their cases for arbitration before Theodore Kheel, a labor mediator for nearly 50 years. But Winfield's attorneys balked, noting Kheel's father is a partner in a law firm that represents Major League Baseball.

After using the first half of the season as a training exercise, the Lady Greyhounds of Lyman High are on the prowl. Lyman, a team that consists of only two seniors, four juniors and 15 sophomores and freshmen, has come a long way in a short time and the Lady Greyhounds are not finished yet. The season record stands at 9-6-5 overall, but Lyman has played superb soccer since returning from the Christmas break and will be a team to be reckoned with in the district tournament in games after the Burger King Classic. Lyman has a 4-1-3 record with ties against three state-ranked teams in Lake Mary, Lake Brantley and Lake Howell.

Probably the biggest victory for the Lady Greyhounds in their recent hot streak is a 3-0 whitewashing of Tampa Leto at Tampa. Leto is no slouch as it proved that by being the only team this season to defeat sixth-ranked St. Petersburg Seminole.

In the eight games since the Burger King tourney, Lyman has scored 15 goals while allowing only three. The victories include 4-0 over Seminole, 3-0 over Leto, 3-0 over DeLand and 3-0 over Deltona on Monday night. The ties are 1-1 against Brantley and Mary and 0-0 vs. Lake Howell while the only loss was a 1-0 decision vs. Lake Mary.

The only two seniors on the Lyman roster are forward-midfielder Pam Wise and sweeperback Julia Callarman, an all state candidate. Juniors on the team are leading scorer Tammy Fulsang, midfielder-magician Kerry Musante, defensive stalwart Jennifer McAvoy and midfielder Rebecca Brock.

There are seven sophomores on the Lyman squad led by goalkeeper Becky Carr who has recorded 11 shutouts this season. Forward's Tracy Sher, Beth Robinson and Amy Eubanks are three more soph playing big roles for Lyman while other 10th graders include midfielder-defender Amy Meyers and defenders Lisa Salvadorini and Angie Pfaff.

Laura Rountrio has her Lyman High Lady Greyhounds playing their best soccer heading to the stretch run of the 1988-89 season.

The freshmen who have stepped in and immediately helped the Lady Greyhounds are midfielders Kristina Musante and Amy Smith, forwards Jill Mott and Ann Brewer, defender Cindy Kirkconnell, midfielder-defender Heather Rogers, midfielder-forward Jessica Martinson and goalkeeper Melody Hillman.

Lyman High School ran its unbeaten string to seven games Monday night when it whipped Deltona, 3-0, in girls prep soccer action at Lyman High School.

"We played real well tonight and we seem to be coming along," Lyman coach Laura Roundtree said. "We've been playing much better as of late and we hope to continue playing well."

Fulsang opened the scoring for the Lady Greyhounds, taking a flick pass from Kerry Musante and drilling a shot into the upper right hand corner. The score came 20 minutes into the opening half and was the only goal in the first 40 minutes and Lyman led 1-0 at the intermission.

Sher ipped the lead to 2-0 10 minutes into the second half when she took a beautiful cross pass from McAvoy and netted the ball to give Lyman some breathing room. McAvoy completed the scoring when she managed a breakaway and sent in a shot to up the lead to 3-0 with 20 minutes to play.

against a team that many feel has the talent to capture a state title was worth viewing even after the verdict was rendered.

"The big turning point was the start of the second half," said Daunic, whose offensive rebound and bank shot sent Winter Park into intermission trailing, 34-31. "We get the second half tip, go down and the shot goes in and out. Then they go down and hit a three-pointer. That's a five-point swing.

"We have to stay away from their 6' and 8' point runs. We believe we can beat them, but we know we have to play a great game. They're just too explosive."

Oak Ridge guards Greg Hall and Brian Dixon, along with Harris, propelled the Pioneers to a 48-33 cushion midway through the third quarter. Winter Park's senior center Danny Rubin (team-high 18 points) retaliated with six unanswered points, and Andre Ringqvist hit two free throws to slice the deficit to 48-41 with 3:00 remaining in the quarter.

Then came the fourth period avalanche that buried the Wildcats.

The 10 points scored by Lake Brantley's Tracy Brandenburg (No. 11) were second only to teammate Lori Bunce's 20 in the Lady Pats' win over Winter Park on Monday night.

their visitors 14-4 to take control, once and for all, of the game. In the last quarter, Winter Park never got closer than 10 points.

"We've had some injuries, some illnesses, some dislocated shoulders," said Winter Park coach Hank Daviero. "We're in the process of moving up some young kids from the junior varsity."

"We have a young team with a lot of 10th and 11th graders playing. And we don't have much of a bench, so they play a lot and don't get much of a rest. We're inexperienced and young and it shows. Hopefully, we'll work on our shortcomings and try to get better."

Lake Brantley now 10-5, was led by Lori Bunce's 20 points and 10 from Tracy Brandenburg. Only four players scored for the 6-10 Lady Wildcats — Kim Hall had 18, Jewel Woodard and Emily Grimm each had nine and Shay Peterson was sidelined Jan. 14 with a blood clot in his left arm. He is not expected to return this season.

The Illini, part of the competitive Big Ten, do not play another non-conference game in the regular season. This week they are at Minnesota Thursday and Saturday host Indiana, which took a 12-game winning streak into Monday night's game at Michigan.

"Being No. 1 will make it harder for us to win the Big Ten," Henson said. "Everyone will be shooting for us. We have a long way to go. We'll have to take them one at a time."

Said Cremins: "They're in a vulnerable position. If they can escape a few more, they can get better. Then again it might be good for them to get knocked off a couple of times. In the end they'll make a run at it. Right now, Louisville looks strong and contributed two.

The Lady Patriots get right back to work tonight when they travel to Seminole for a Seminole Athletic Conference contest.

"Hopefully, we loosened up for tomorrow night," said Frank on Monday night. "We have to come out and play a little bit better defense. We have to work harder on defense. We give away too many easy baskets."

In Monday's junior varsity preliminary, Lake Brantley defeated Winter Park 38-16.

WINTER PARK (3): Hill 18, Woodard 9, Grimm 9, Peterson 2, Russell 0, Burdge 0, Richards 0. Totals: 13, 12, 19, 36.

LAKE BRANTLEY (10): Bunce 20, Brandenburg 10, Mull 3, Blimyer 4, Tufford 4, Keith 3, Sturdivant 2, Gibson 2, Miller 0, Rabala 0. Totals: 19, 12, 20, 30.

Halftime: Lake Brantley 21, Winter Park 15. Three-point goals: None fouled out. Burdge Mull Total fouls: Winter Park 12, Lake Brantley 17. Technicals: None. Records: Winter Park 6-10, Lake Brantley 10-5.

Michigan fell from fifth to 10th after losing to Wisconsin-Superior, which opened the week with its fourth loss in five games, fell two places. Nevada-Las Vegas tumbled six notches after losing to Louisville.

St. Mary's, 16-1, of the West Coast Conference was the only new Top 20 team. Providence, which was ranked 19th and Tennessee, co-No. 20, dropped from the ratings.

Reading wives thought rude, victims of rudeness

DEAR ABBY: Although I don't always agree with you, rarely have I disagreed with you so vigorously as I did when I read your reply to "No Town" concerning the daughter-in-law who always brings magazines along to read whenever she and her husband visit his parents. "No Town" thought her daughter-in-law was being inexcusably rude. Your comment "Your daughter-in-law may not be rude at all, she could be very shy and insecure. Instead of judging her by reaching out to include her so that she will feel more comfortable, etc."

Abby, although the daughter-in-law may in fact be shy and insecure, she should have the common sense and good manners to leave her reading material at home. If she's so shy and insecure that she can't face her in-laws without resorting to "reading," perhaps she should seek counseling.

Also, what kind of son would allow his wife to treat his parents so shabbily? Ignoring her in-laws' company to do her own thing is, in my opinion, the height of rudeness.

So, who is the injured party here? "No Town" or her daughter-in-law?

Thanks for your consideration, Abby. As you know, opinions are like noses. Everybody has one.

SOUTHERN GENTLEMAN,
RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR GENTLEMAN: True. And here's a letter from someone whose nose is out of joint claiming her in-laws are rude.

DEAR ABBY: I'm another daughter-in-law who always brings something to read when my husband and I visit his parents. I don't always read, but the magazines are always there if I need them, which is most of the time. You see, my husband's family members always discuss the family business, which they are all into. Don't tell me to take an interest in their business—I've tried that, but they don't listen to outsiders, and it's very uncomfortable to try to get into the conversation when nobody seems interested in what I have to say. So what am I supposed to do?

ADVICE

The mother-in-law should examine the topics of their family conversations before criticizing her daughter-in-law.

BEEN THERE IN TEXAS

DEAR BEEN THERE: Meet another daughter-in-law who has "been there," but her first line of defense is a needle instead of a magazine.

DEAR ABBY: I know exactly how that daughter-in-law feels because when I visit my husband's family, I always take some needlework along. It gives me something to do while everybody else gossips about the neighbors, whom I do not know or about "old times" that go way back, years before I married into this family.

I've tried to get a conversation going that concerns issues or something that is in the news, but nobody seems interested, so I just reach for my tote bag and bring out my needlepoint to keep myself occupied. I wouldn't call that rude. I may as well do something productive. I think people who make no effort to include everyone present in the conversation are the rude ones. When I'm the hostess, I do.

NO NAME OR TOWN, PLEASE

Crown to go, memories to stay

Sanford girl is to pass on pageant title

By BRIAN HEDBERG
Herald People editor

SANFORD — Shanan Stewart is ahead of her time. As the reigning Miss Florida US Teen, Shanan, 16, of Sanford has never let age, or lack of it, keep her, for shooting for her goals.

She placed eighth in the 1988 Miss US Teen Pageant. At age 16 she was the next to youngest out of 52 contestants.

Winners who attain the national title typically are 18 or 19 years old, Shanan said. She said the judges told her they'd rather that she was older.

But that doesn't bother Shanan. Although she may not be eligible for the Miss US Teen title again, there's the Florida National Teenager competition in Orlando in April in which she plans to compete.

Much has been made of the fact that a Sanford teen qualified as tops not only in beauty and poise, but in leadership, academics, involvement and responsibility.

"I learned that this young woman from Sanford been named Miss Florida Teen," said Doug Stenstrom, a Sanford attorney. "That was quite an achievement. We've got 13 million people in this state. And I don't know how many of them are teens."

This Saturday, the daughter of Roger and Gail Stewart will hand over the Miss Florida US Teen crown to her successor at the 1989 pageant at Daytona Beach. Mrs. Stewart is to be one of the judges.

When folks heard last year that Shanan had won the title, "I think a lot of people were proud of me," Shanan said. "It wasn't jealousy. Seminole High gets such a bad rap all the time."

There were four Lake Mary girls in it. To say that Seminole beat Lake Mary was really neat.

Wherever Shanan's friend Julie Nye would go with her, Julie would tell anyone and everyone Shanan had won.

It was an honor, Shanan said. But it's not hard to keep my head down. My two brothers keep me humble.

And what does the title holder do in her capacity over the past year?

—The Seminole High School junior was ambassador for her school at a Hugh O'Brien Youth Foundation seminar.

—She has been ambassador for city of Sanford at various ribbon cuttings.

—She spoke to Junior Women's Club of Sanford on leadership.

—She rode in Sanford's Christmas parade, waving from a Corvette.

—She gave lectures and talks about leadership ability at middle schools throughout Central Florida.

—She participated in fashion shows for First Presbyterian Church in Sanford and the Seminole County Chapter of American Heart Association.

—She was recognized and commended by both houses of the state legislature in Tallahassee and was presented with a resolution.

Perhaps she most enjoyed meeting people and inspiring middle schoolers to strive for their best.

"When I went into the pageant, I just wanted to get a scholarship and the experience. I didn't expect to win," Shanan said.

Anyone who knows Shanan might wonder what a sweet girl like her was doing in the rough and tumble world of pageantry.

"I'm not really a pageant-going person," she said. However, her pageant was not like an all-out roller derby, she said.

In my Florida pageant, everybody was really happy for everybody. You always have a few sticklers who are out for themselves. But most of them are in them for the experience, not just to win."

Many of Shanan's competitors had already been in pageants for years, she said, and acted as such. The Florida competition judges appreciated her freshness in style and attitude.

That was something the judges told me I was me and I wasn't trying to be somebody that I'm not," Shanan said.

In the state pageant, the names of the top 10 contestants are called, they in turn are supposed to stroll down the runway, do a model turn and let an escort take them to their seat. When Shanan's name was called, the heat of the moment got to her and she went straight to her seat.

"Everybody was waiting for me to model, and I didn't. I just sat there."

At another point in the pageant, she stepped on the crinoline hem of her dress. A strip ripped and dangled as she walked off.

Shanan stands 5 foot 4 inches. She has the blond hair and blue eyes of her father, but inherited her mother's facial features. She owes her lovely teeth to the loving care of her father a dentist. She was born in Lakeville, Ky., and moved with her family to Sanford at age 2.

After five years of competing in an oratorical contest sponsored by the Optimist Club, Shanan won the state contest—and consequently a $1,000 scholarship—in eighth grade. Naturally, she was the youngest to ever win the contest.

"I really encouraged me to go on to bigger and better things when I won the Optimist speech contest. If you can speak in front of a crowd of 100 people, you can do anything," she said.

Shanan was president of her class at SBS in her freshman year. Also in her freshman year, she was captain of her cheerleading squad and this year is a varsity cheerleader.

She belongs to the National Honor Society and Math Honors

Club, and is proud as punch about her high school.

"I'm very loyal to Seminole High School. I wouldn't go to any other high school."

Shanan works as a dental assistant for her father and models part time. She would like to attend the University of Florida and is thinking about studying engineering.

She received more than $1,000 in cash prizes for winning state title as Miss Florida US Teen.

Lisa Sundvall of Sanford, also an SBS student, is a contestant for the 1989 pageant, and Shanan wishes her the best of luck.

It's been an exciting year, Shanan said of her own reign.

Hopefully one day I'll be able to go all the way. One day I may go on to Miss USA.

Cheesecake may crack regardless

DEAR POLLY: How can I prevent my cheesecake from cracking on top?

S.K.

DEAR S.K.: We've talked about this before, but I get this question so often that it must be one that's bothering a lot of people. I'm glad to hear that there are so many dedicated cheesecake bakers out there since it's one of my absolutely favorite desserts!

The bad news is that cracking is not totally preventable. Sometimes no matter how much care you take, the cake simply cracks and that's it. There will be nothing you can do about it except to accept the fact that a crack in cheesecake is natural and that's the way it naturally is. If you're not particularly beautiful or if you cover up the top with a luscious fruit or sour cream topping!

To minimize cracking, bake the cake in a moderately slow oven (300°F) and use a water bath. That is, put the cake pan in a larger pan with water until it comes up the sides of the cheesecake pan about 1 inch. This helps the cake to bake evenly, keeps things moist and helps to prevent cracking. Never open the oven door while baking the cake, since sudden temperature changes can cause cracking, too.

And remember, you can't taste the crack!

DEAR POLLY: I have the tops of discarded pantyhose or strapless bras to wear under my summer tops and swim dresses. Just cut the legs off, pull up and presto! Very supportive bra.

CONNIE

DEAR POLLY: To soothe a dry, irritated skin, take an oatmeal bath. To dry, oatmeal up in a cloth, then let it soak in your warm water bath.

WILLIE

POLLY'S NOTE: You should be soaking in the bath along with the oatmeal. I presume!

HOMEMAKING

POLLY FISHER

Thanks for this soothing tip.

Argentines battle gunmen at military base

United Press International

LA TABLADA, Argentina — Troops backed by tanks, artillery and helicopters stormed an army base near the capital Monday and battled unidentified gunmen who seized the facility. At least 24 people were killed and dozens wounded in the fighting, officials and the military said.

Authorities said the gunmen holed up in an ammunition dump inside the La Tablada infantry base, 12 miles south of Buenos Aires continued battling soldiers into the night, more than 9 hours after army tanks smashed into the installation at 11 a.m. (9 a.m. EST).

Around midnight Carlos Becerra, general secretary of the Presidency, said the fourth outburst of rebellion at military installations in Argentina during the past two years was "a finished episode." The previous incidents had badly shaken the democratic government of President Raul Alfonsin.

Becerra said 20 gunmen perished during the fighting, and the Defense Ministry said four soldiers had died. A military spokesman said at least 20 people had been killed and that "dozens of others" had been wounded.

But it was not immediately clear if all of the estimated 80 armed men who had seized the base had surrendered or been flushed out. The army said the men were left-wing insurgents, but a government spokesman said they apparently were renegade ultra-rightist military officers.

Shortly before midnight, a local bar owner delivered about 50 empty bottles to army officials, who loaded them into a jeep. A sergeant said the bottles would be made into firebombs to "root out the last rats that remain" holed up in the dump.

Early Monday, soldiers fired 20mm mortar rounds and 105mm artillery shells onto the buildings held by the gunmen. The shells caved in at least one building, and the regimental cafeteria, cells and guard post were in flames.

Witnesses said dozens of people in civilian clothes, police agents, army soldiers and raiders roamed around the base shooting at each other.

A body of a sharpshooter who was killed during the fighting burned near the main gate of the base. A corpse of a young gunman had his head crushed by a tank. "It was flattened like a steak," a photographer said.

Military and police operations, first focused on 3rd Infantry Garrison inside the base, extended later to neighboring streets in a residential area outside the installation.

Rifle fire, along with the blasts of mortar and artillery shells, were heard throughout the afternoon, interspersed with shouts asking for ambulances or exchanging insults.

A white flag was hoisted from a window in a building where the civilians were holed up, but police units kept on firing.

A young, long-haired man, presumably a member of the group that seized the facility, was dragged to the street by soldiers to be handed over the police. Police officers and some bystanders attempted to lynch the suspect and the soldiers had to intervene to prevent him from being killed.

A truck carrying the attackers, all of whom were dressed in black, burst through the gates of the La Tablada base at 3 a.m. (1 a.m. EST), radio reports said.

Police and troops cordoned off the area and an army tank rolled into the base eight hours later after pushing aside a pickup truck that blocked the main gate. A second tank tore through a wire fence and entered the base from another side.

Dispatchers in police cars outside the base requested emergency donations of blood for the wounded. Hundreds of onlookers gathered around the base, and some broke into hysterical sobbing.

An army spokesman identified the attackers as rebels from the Marxist Popular Revolutionary Army and the Montoneros, a group linked to the opposition Peronist Party. Both groups waged a guerrilla war in Argentina during the 1970s.

However, presidential spokesman Jose Ignacio Lopez said police found leaflets identifying the group as the "New Argentine Army in Operations." The leaflets praised two military officers who led earlier mutinies against the government.

The renegade officers, Lt. Col. Aldo Rico and Col. Mohamed Ali Seinedin, led unsuccessful rebellions in April 1987 and again in January and December 1988.

The two-day December rebellion, which left four civilians dead and 35 wounded, was led by Seinedin, a staunch Roman Catholic who demanded changes in the military's leadership, a larger budget and amnesty for jailed officers accused of human rights abuses.

Army commander Gen. Jose Dante Caridi reached an accord with Seinedin that ended the uprising. Seinedin is now in prison, and Caridi retired in mid-December, days before a military pay raise was ordered.

Alfonso said Friday's government may face new rebellions but he said Argentina's elected democracy would prevail. Alfonso took power in 1983 restoring elected civilian democracy after eight years of military rule.

The 3rd Infantry Regiment at La Tablada normally maintains a contingent of 300 soldiers, but it was not known how many were at the base when it was seized.

The staff of the Human Services and Resources Center can help you with problems that come your way. They are Tony Triano (left), Robert Tango, Mary Goodman, Phyllis Oliva, and Pat O'Brien

Human Services and Resources Center helps with counselling

Phyllis Oliva offers the residents of Seminole County affordable, quality counselling at her Human Services and Resources Center, 127 W. Church Ave. Longwood.

People of all ages, with a wide variety of problems, can be helped by the licensed and certified counselors on staff at the center.

Ms. Oliva, who for many years was employed by the circuit court, went into private practice in the hopes of providing a more thorough brand of service to the people of this area. Her experience taught her that Floridians (who have the greatest access to illegal substances) had an inordinate amount of drug and alcohol related problems.

Oliva has a staff of varied professionals who offer different services. Her associates include Patricia O'Brien MS, CAP, Mary Goodman RN, MA, CAP and Robert Tango PhD.

The Human Services and Resources Center offers specialized programs for chemical dependency including intensive primary outpatient programs for adolescents and adults, educational groups, co-dependency groups, D.U.I. treatment groups, women's recovery groups, cocaine outpatient treatment and real motivational adolescent programs.

Additionally, the Human Services and Resources Center offers marriage counseling, multi-phase psychological testing, individual and group counseling, a women's growth group and family counseling.

Phyllis Oliva and her staff at the Human Services and Resources Center are prepared to help when the problems become too much to handle on your own.

The Human Services and Resources Center is open Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and on Saturday mornings until noon.

If you think you need help, call the Human Services and Resources Center at 767-0039 any hour of the day or night.

Soviets search for quake survivors

MOSCOW — Rescue teams dug Tuesday through tons of sand and clay that buried at least four villages after a strong earthquake in Soviet Central Asia triggered huge landslides that killed an estimated 1,000 people.

The tremor, measuring 5.4 on the Richter scale and centered about 30 miles southwest of the Tadzhikistan Republic capital of Dushanbe, struck at 5:02 a.m. Monday as many residents were asleep in their homes.

The official Tass news agency said tons of earth jared loose from surrounding mountainsides smashed through a string of farming villages, killing an estimated 1,000 people.

"Distant villages have not been checked yet," Tass said, indicating the death toll could be higher.

The quake's epicenter was near the village of Sharora, where the devastation was reminiscent of a massive earth quake that struck Armenia less than two months ago.

Cries and wails can be heard everywhere, Tass said. "Some are lamenting and burying their relatives while others try to find the few survivors beneath the thick layer of sand and clay."

Landslides crumbled the tin-roofed houses built of earth in the agricultural region in Soviet central Asia, burying many people in their homes as they slept.

Caffeine addiction a matter of the mind

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have developed a physiological addiction to caffeine. When I try to eliminate it from my diet I become tired, depressed and have terrible headaches for weeks. I also crave sweets. How do I kick this socially acceptable drug?

DEAR READER: Fortunately for most people, caffeine is not nearly as physically addictive as many other drugs. This is not to say that some caffeine-users are not (in a strict sense) addicted. However, the physical need for the mild stimulant is far below the craving that drug-habituated patients have for other compounds, such as nicotine, alcohol and narcotics.

In my experience, the primary addiction to caffeine is psychological. People come to need and expect the "lift" given by caffeine. Patients who are naturally depressed, for instance, may crave caffeine. When the drug is withdrawn, such people suffer symptoms of fatigue, lassitude, irritability and feeling unwell and "undercharged." These symptoms, like many others, should be addressed as a health issue by medical professionals, because they are probably not due to caffeine withdrawal.

In addition, drinking caffeine-beverages establishes a mind-set: If you expect to experience a feeling from a mild mind-altering drug such as caffeine, you will — even though the drug may not be the cause of the feeling.

This observation was brought home to me several years ago when I read a study in which doctors investigated the way caffeine causes wakefulness and insomnia. Two groups of college students were tested. The first group was given decaffeinated coffee at bedtime; the subjects were told that they were drinking regular coffee. Predictably, many of the students complained of insomnia. The second group was given warm milk at bedtime. The milk had been laced with caffeine, a tasteless compound. You guessed the result: The students given the caffeine milk slept like babies. The investigators concluded that the subjects' expectations were a more valid predictor of insomnia than was the caffeine.

Many people drink too much caffeine. The easiest way to overcome this habit is to drink one less caffeine-containing beverage (soda, coffee or tea) per day, substituting a decaffeinated liquid. By cutting down by one drink a day, you will soon find yourself consuming only one or two caffeine servings daily; this is a reasonable amount for most adults.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

There were plenty of high-card points for the no-trump game, but the nasty opponents began proceedings by running the first four diamond tricks. On the last diamond declarer threw a spade from dummy and a club from his own hand, while East shed a spade. West next led a spade, declarer winning the king in dummy. He played a heart back to his jack and then cashed the king and ace of clubs. Alas, East had the clubs stopped and the heart king protected. Declarer cashed two more high spades, hoping a miracle would happen, but East simply discarded the same suit as dummy.

Declarer's error came at trick four. Rather than discard a low club from his hand, he should throw the three of hearts. The play will then go as before, declarer taking the heart finesse and then playing king and ace of clubs. Now, however, when the remaining two high spades are cashed, declarer will let go the 10 of clubs from dummy. If East throws a club, declarer plays a club to the queen and a heart back to his ace, and his last club is a winner. If East throws a heart, declarer cashes his heart ace, and East's king falls, making dummy good.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharus Books.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
January 25, 1989

In the year ahead you are likely to initiate a number of changes in order to advance your personal ambitions. They should work out favorably for you, provided you give them adequate time to develop.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's best not to be unduly angry with anyone today, but if you feel you must vent your temper, take it out on the party who made you mad, not an innocent bystander. Aquarius, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may have a few extra responsibilities to contend with today. Don't make matters worse by blowing them out of proportion in your mind.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

When dealing with a sensitive friend today try not to let anything of a monetary nature become an issue. If it's just petty costs, suffer the loss.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Career conditions could be a little more competitive than usual today and the race is likely to go to the quick-witted rather than to the strong.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone you may have to deal with today knows all the right buttons to push in order to get your goat. Don't play Charlie McCarthy to his Edgar Bergen.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try not to use anything belonging to friends today unless you have their approval. Bitter feelings could result if what you borrow is misused.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Guard against inclinations to push too hard today when attempting to make your points with others. This tactic will increase resistance, not lessen it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't be afraid to say no today if you feel someone is imposing upon you to take care of something this person should be handling alone.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Usually you're not a possessive person, but today you could step out of character if someone you like is more attentive to others than to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Disagreements between you and your mate over trivial issues could lead to something more serious today if they are not quickly resolved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It may be wise not to attempt tasks today that require patience and concentration. If you handle them poorly, it might be quite some time before you pick up where you left off.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You are apt to be reasonably prudent where major expenditures are concerned today, but you might be more extravagant than necessary regarding smaller expenditures.
