Store robberies

LONGWOOD — Sheriff's deputies are investigating armed robberies of two Cumberland Farms convenience stores within 20 minutes time last night. The first occurred at 10 p.m., at the store on SR-436 and Academy Drive near Altamonte Springs. A man reportedly robbed the clerk at gunpoint before escaping on foot.

The second incident, at 10:20 p.m., was at the store on SR-434 and Champion Avenue near Longwood. Deputies believe the same man, armed with a handgun, robbed the cash register and fled in a metallic green Honda.

No one was injured in either robbery. The amount of money obtained in the two robberies was not immediately revealed.

The robber was described as a white male, approximately 18 years of age, five feet seven inches tall, 170 pounds, with brown hair. He was wearing a gray striped shirt, black shorts, and a Planet Hollywood cap.

Voters anniversary

SANFORD — In celebration of the 75th anniversary of the founding of United States League of Women Voters, the Seminole County chapter of the league has published a commemorative edition of "Georgetown — The History of a Black Neighborhood," by Sanford resident author Altermese Smith Bentley.

The book relates the eventful years from 1837 to the early 1920s, focusing on the history of the black experience as well as Florida history.

For information about the league or the publication, contact the league's President, Alice Friedman, at 260-6786.

Car found; four suspects held in custody

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

WINTER SPRINGS — Police say they have located a missing 1994 Ford Taurus owned by 84-year old Earl Francis Gallipeau, who was apparently murdered in his Winter Springs home Sunday. Four persons said to have been in the car when it was found are being held in custody.

Finding the vehicle has been one of the major concentrations in attempting to solve the case, as no other clues were immediately specified by police.

Winter Springs Police are being relatively secretive regarding their investigation into the case.

Police Captain Glenn Tolleson would not reveal where the vehicle had been located or anything about the four persons other than identify them as adults. "All we're saying at the present time is that we are working with an out-of-state agency on the car," he said, acknowledging that the vehicle and its occupants were located outside of Florida.

"We have found a definite connection between the victim and the suspect," Tolleson commented, but would not explain who he considered a suspect, or whether it was one of the four being held.

The case began to unfold when a neighbor reportedly found Gallipeau's wallet on the street Sunday evening and attempted to return it. See Murder, Page 5A

Longwood approves $$ for underground drainage pipes

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — After a 2 1/2 hour discussion Monday night and several failed votes, Longwood City Commissioners unanimously approved allocating over $30,000 for underground drainage pipes fronting two Wildmere residents' properties along the Longwood Canal Project.

The commissioners agreed to allocate $11,400 and $19,000 respectively to purchase underground piping along the ditch on the property of Rick Brecken and Bob Bonner in the Wildmere area. The money will come from the Stormwater Management Fund.

The city and county are working to improve conditions in the flood prone area. Longwood is purchasing some pipe for the project and the county is installing it along the utility easement. The ditch, known by the names Fairy Lake Canal, Longwood Canal or Wildmere Ditch, is county property. However, in emergency flooding situations, city crews responded to the area to help out the residents.

For years, property owners have been caught in a sort of Catch-22 situation. When seeking a remedy for the flooding, residents were told by both city and county officials the responsibility belonged to the other governmental entity.

The city contributed $30,000 for the engineering plans to help fix the problem and allocated $42,000 for its share of the cost.

Brecken has maintained and used an unimproved portion of right-of-way on Oak Street to access his garage for some time. Under the See Longwood, Page 5A

Prison programs

Citizens panel looks at recidivism efforts

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — State prison officials have programs designed to keep inmates out of trouble once they're released but don't keep track of how effective they are, a new report on recidivism has concluded.

The Department of Corrections lacks "an overall clear action plan" for its reform programs, according to a report by the Florida Commission on Government Accountability to the People.

The agency does list 15 strategies to reduce the number of ex-convicts returning to prison for new offenses but has no reliable way of evaluating whether the strategies work, the GAP commission concluded in a report issued Friday.

The commission is a group of 15 citizens appointed by Gov. Lawton Chiles to review the impact of state agencies on the well-being of Floridians.

"Most people have the expectation that those who graduate from our penal system will learn something that will discourage them from committing further crimes," Doby Flowers, chair of the performance review committee of the GAP commission, said in a release.

One of the goals in an agency plan the DOC issued last year was to reduce the recidivism rate of fiscal year 1990-91 10 percent by the middle of next year. Between July 1990 and June 1991, 48 percent of all criminals sent to prison were repeat offenders.

However, funding for education and vocational training hasn't kept pace with the increase in inmates, the GAP commission reported. And the department has had little say in the two programs. Education has been overseen by the Correctional Education School Authority and vocational training by Prison Rehabilitative Industries and Diversified Enterprises, commonly known as PRIDE.

Lawmakers returned authority of CESA to the Department of Corrections effective last month.

Drug education and treatment programs, which eight out of 10 inmates are eligible for, have spotty participation although there's some evidence they help keep ex-convicts out of prison.

Transition programs, intended to help inmates adjust to life outside prison, are funded only at Columbia Correctional Institution even though they've shown some success.

"If the defined role and scope of the department is indeed intended to extend beyond the warehousing of criminals during their punishment to that of reducing recidivism, then stronger policy direction is needed," the GAP report reads.

"The department should be given not only the necessary tools (including funding) with which to accomplish this goal, but also the necessary authority to implement those tools which are effective," the report reads.

Other recommendations include developing a system of monitoring the effectiveness of programs designed to reduce recidivism and a standard definition of recidivism.

Youngsters have a 'great time' at Soap Box Derby

By VICKI DeBORNEN
Herald Senior Staff Writer

The smiles are probably permanently affixed to their faces, Mike Kirby said.

The group of local youngsters, including Kirby's daughter Melanie, traveled to Akron, Ohio last week to compete in the All-American Soap Box Derby.

While none finished better than tenth in their category, the youngsters none-the-less had a great time, Kirby said.

"They had a lot of fun," he said. "They are probably going to be smiling for a long time to come."

Melanie Kirby of Longwood and Veronica Herman of DeLand each finished tenth in their divisions.

Kirby, 10, was entered in the Stock Car division. There were 117 entrants in that category.

The stock cars are ready-to-assemble cars favored by novice entrants.

Herman, 14, competed in the Super Stock Car division. She was among 67 entrants in that division.

The super stock cars also feature ready-to-assemble kits, but are more sophisticated than the novice category.

Kirby sped down the course with one of the fastest times in the contest on Saturday afternoon. For that, she received a special award.

Kirby said that her time was fastest in the first 47 heats of the day. Her fastest time was 29.11 seconds.

Jeremy Meyer, 11, of DeLand and Damien Daly, 12, of Mount Dora also represented Central Florida in the competition in Akron.

The four earned the right to travel to the national competition by winning the local contest held at Derby Park in Sanford in June.

proposed improvement, the area would be used as a detention area which would fill with water in times of flooding. Bonner was concerned the side slopes of the canal would be about one foot from his house. He also noted the open waterway would be a hazard for his two small children and neighborhood children.

City engineer and public utilities director Fernand Tibbler said the county did not object to installing additional pipe supplied by the city but might have to resubmit the change to the St. Johns River Management District for permit approval. That might delay the project up to 1 1/2 years.

Several Wildmere residents addressed the commission about the project which began in May. Some objected to trees being removed without prior notice, while other commented the county's utility easements were not properly recorded or shown on their property deeds. Still others voiced concern about the safety of neighborhood children playing near culvert pipes or unfenced portions of the rain swollen ditch.

Mayor Bill Winston said the city could not afford to address the flooding problem with all underground piping but was working with the county to help solve the problem creating a wider, sloping-sided waterway replacing the narrow, flood prone ditch.

"We've gotten what we've asked for and now we don't like it," Winston noted.

The commissioners approved the additional funding for the pipes but noted they would like the project to continue on schedule skipping over portions which may be reviewed by the SJRMD.

In other business, the commissioners received their first look at a proposed job classification and pay plan for city employees. A work session will be conducted in the near future on the plan.

The proposal was prepared by Municipal Advisors Incorporated.

The commissioners also conducted the first readings of changes to the comprehensive zoning ordinance. Nations Bank has applied to rezone the southeast corner of Wayman Street and Bay Avenue from C-2 to RP (residential professional). A staff analysis shows the north half of the subject property is designated as Residential Professional on the City's Future Land Use Map. The RP land use designation permits residences, townhouses, some financial institutions, adult congregate living facilities and offices. However, the portion of the property was incorrectly zoned C-2.

The southern portion of the property is designated general commercial on the Future Land Use Map but is incorrectly zoned C-2. The general commercial designation requires a C-3 zoning.

"It is the City's position that a mistake was made in drafting the Future Land Use Map designation for this property," according to a memo from City Planner Carl Gosline via Planning and Building Services Director John Brock.

"It is logical that the drafters of the map would not have intentionally given two separate land use designations to one parcel of land. Therefore, the staff believes the property Future Land Use designation for the whole parcel should be Residential Professional," the memo continues.

Another rezoning of the northwest corner of Freeman Court and Palmetto Avenue from R-1 and R-1A to PUD is requested by Centrex Homes. The 40-acre parcel currently a vacant orange grove surrounded by wetlands and East Lake is designated Residential Activity Core (RAC) on the land use map.

The RAC designation permits a residential development with a density of up to 18 dwelling units per acre. Centrex representatives have proposed a subdivision with a density of 3.76 dwelling units per acre. Gosline notes in the memo, one of the purposes of the RAC designation in the Plan is to encourage development which is complementary and compatible with the Downtown Historic district. "Therefore, the proposed project is consistent with the Comprehensive Plan," he notes. The portion of the property containing a house and garage is zoned Downtown Historic district will remain unchanged.

what she was wearing," Nichelle said. "I would totally freak if she had on something different."

The duo are entering high school for the first time and are frightened by the prospect, but they intend to make the best of it.

"We have some really cool teachers," they told us. Shara said.

Kimball Daniels said he couldn't wait for classes to start.

"I love coming to school and learning new things," he said. "This is my key out of Sanford too. If I do well in school I could earn a college scholarship that'll get me a ticket to somewhere else."

The young man said it wasn't so much Sanford which dissatisfied him, but he needed to escape the place he had always lived in order to make a difference in his own life and in the lives of his family members.

"I want to make a difference," he said.

Standing among the tall weeds and grasses in an open field across Georgia Avenue from the east side of Seminole High, three young men turn their backs on the school and light their cigarettes. One hacks and sputters, but manages to maintain his cool while the other two blow smoke easily through their noses and laugh.

"Man, if you're gonna be cool you gotta do better'n that," one with the greasy pseudo-Mohawk said.

The two more experienced smokers continued to give advice to their protege while others filtered into the school around them.

"If you paid that much attention in class you'd be on the honor roll," one young man yelled out toward the group as he plodded toward the school.

As the first bell rang, the streets around the school emptied rapidly, hallways grew eerily silent and teachers took control in the classrooms.

From somewhere to the east of the school a hurried young woman, hair amiss and shirt buttoned askew raced around a corner and disappeared down a hallway.

"I can't believe I'm late on the first day of school," she shrieked, half to herself and half to anyone who might care and then she was gone.

When no one answered his knock on the door at the residence on Leopard Trail, the neighbor contacted a housekeeper who had the keys to the home.

When the two returned to the home to deliver the wallet, they told police they suspected Gallipeau was not at home, as his car was not in the driveway.

Gallipeau's body was not located until police were summoned to investigate what was believed to be a disappearance.

An autopsy to determine the cause of death has been scheduled for late this morning. Until the results are revealed, police are not saying how the man died. There was no immediate indication as to when the results will be officially announced.

Neighbors in the quiet Winter Springs community say Gallipeau lived alone, but was very friendly to them and had few visitors.

Battling the terror of panic attacks

DEAR DR. GOTT: What information can you provide on panic attacks? I've had several and medication doesn't seem to help. Can they be chemically caused?

DEAR READER: No one knows if panic attacks have a biochemical basis, but the possibility exists.

In many cases, panic disorder can be quite disabling. The patient suddenly (and for no reason) experiences periods of nameless terror, haunting dread and fear of imminent catastrophe, often associated with trembling, shaking, rapid pulse, sweating, dizziness, nausea, hyperventilation, and other symptoms.

Psychological counseling is usually required if the panic attacks are severe. Anti-anxiety prescription drugs, such as Ativan or Xanax, often reduce - or even eliminate - the severity of the panic disorder and are used for short periods in conjunction with counseling.

If you have continuing attacks despite therapy, you should seek the services of a psychiatrist, who may prescribe stronger medication, such as major tranquilizers.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a problem I hesitate to discuss with my family and friends because they may think I'm unstable. I've always had dark brown eyes, almost black, yet during the past three months, they've turned blue. Why? I'm 73 and have had cataract repair of both eyes.

DEAR READER: Our eyes have color because of pigment in the iris, the area around the pupil. The color is permanent. Thus, I cannot explain what's happened to you except to say that you must be misperceiving the color of your eyes, following your cataract surgery. What does your ophthalmologist say?

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is fifth disease? My niece came home from school with it and several children at her school have the same condition. DEAR READER: Fifth disease (erythema infectiosum) was so named because it once was the fifth childhood disease (after mumps, chicken pox, measles, and rubella). It is caused by a microorganism called "parvovirus B19." Within about two weeks after

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Yesterday, I featured a deal in which East, trying to get a good result, made a speculative double. Here's one where South made an even more speculative bid, but he had a sound reason. He was in the last round of a qualifying event for his country's national team, needing a big win to reach the final stage.

North's four-club rebid was a splinter, showing at least game values in spades with a singleton or void in clubs.

West led the diamond eight. Although this had all the aura of a singleton, South decided he couldn't handle a 5-1 diamond split. Also, maybe West was making a "clever" lead away from the king. So, South played low from the dummy. After winning with the king, East returned a diamond. South breathing a silent sigh of relief when West followed suit.

Assuming East had the diamond jack, South saw 12 tricks: five spade winners in hand, three diamond tricks, two club ruffs in the dummy and two hearts - yes, that finesse would have to work too.

South ruffed a club in the dummy, cashed the spade ace and played a spade to his king, noting that West discarded a club. The second club ruff in the dummy was followed by the diamond ace, on which South threw a club, and the diamond 10, covered and ruffed. South drew East's last trump, played a heart to the queen and claimed when the finesse succeeded.

North-South moved on to the next stage, but their luck ran out as they didn't make the team.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY Aug. 8, 1995

Greater independence could be in the offing for you in the year ahead. Instead of others telling you what to do and when to do it, you'll be in the catbird seat, issuing the directives.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today you might be subjected to some changes that you didn't implement. You mustn't let them scare you, however. Adjustments and shifts are moving in your favor. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

VIROO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) When formulating an important decision today, take adequate time to examine it from every angle. Careful surveillance will protect against oversights.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You should have the necessary stick-to-itiveness today to finalize an annoying task you've left half done. You can take pride in your achievement.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Unwittingly, you may be drawn into a competitive development today that makes you feel very uneasy. Fear not, you'll rise to the occasion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Conditions could take an interesting twist today when the person you're trying to help ends up doing more for you in return.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In your dealings with others today, lighten your approach with a bit of levity and humor. Others will be more cooperative once you get them smiling.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your chart indicates that you might derive long-range, personal gains today from a business involvement. It may be doled out in small installments, though.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may be in a gregarious mood today and be more talkative than usual. Listeners, however, will find what you have to say fascinating and educational.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you're in need of a small amount of money to tide you over, your best chance of getting a loan is from a relative. Keep your friends out of it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might be reluctant to attend a social function today because some attending will make you feel uncomfortable. Go anyway; something good might transpire.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It won't be necessary to keep others posted about your present achievements. Someone who likes you is already giving pals a play-by-play account.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your judgment will be better than usual today, and you might be called upon to make several quick decisions. Have faith in your ability to process information.
