Serving in the Mexican Border Incident and both World Wars Manuel rose from private to infantry colonel in the field. He was a member of the State Road Board before becoming Turnpike Authority chairman.

Ike Asks Lawmakers For Over $1 Billion For New Schoolrooms

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower asked Congress today to vote $1,300,000,000 over the next four years to help states build new schoolrooms.

The President's recommendation is part of a proposed $2,077,500,000 school program. It also includes funds for state planning commissions on higher education and federal loans for school bonds.

Mr. Eisenhower urged Congress in a special message to approve his school construction program "on its own merits, uncomplicated by provisions dealing with the complex problems of integration." An anti-segregation amendment was a principal factor in killing school aid legislation last year.

Enrollment Jumps

Urging speedy action on his program, Mr. Eisenhower said the task of educating the nation's youngsters is "unprecedented in its sheer magnitude."

The number of pupils in public schools has increased by 5 1/2 million (Continued on Page 9)

Speer Outstanding Young Man Of Year

George Andrew Speer, president of the Seminole County Junior Chamber of Commerce, and a local attorney, was named outstanding young man of the year and presented the Distinguished Service Award at a Jaycee social held Friday night at the Mayfair Inn Country Club.

Speer has headed the local young businessmen's club since the first of the club's fiscal year and has been responsible for spearheading many of the club's civic projects undertaken in a now 1956-57 program.

The local attorney was chosen by a group of eight past presidents of the Seminole County Junior Chamber of Commerce following a past president's luncheon held last Thursday. However, the choice of the group of past presidents was kept a secret and was not revealed until Friday night.

J. Bralley Odham, a past president of the local club and a past president of the statewide Jaycee organization made the presentation.

Auto Spins Out Of Control; Wraps Around Tree Trunk

A 1951 Mercury automobile spinning out of control last night on the old Lake Mary road less than 1/4 of a mile south of 25th St. leaped 12 feet into the air to crash into a much scarred pine tree.

The car, with its top wrapped firmly around the trunk of the pine, was considered a total loss with no wreckage thrown clear of the passenger and the driver pinned within the smashed top by his shoes.

Joseph Jones, a 22-year-old Negro, driver of the car owned by Albert Johnson, pulled free of his shoe and climbed out of the car with only minor injuries.

'Charley's Aunt' Here Tomorrow

Players incorporated appearing here tomorrow night at 8 p.m. at Pinecrest School Auditorium in 'Charley's Aunt' is recognized by critics throughout the country as one of the nation's outstanding repertory companies.

This is their eighth season on the road and their first appearance here in Sanford. Each year they trek approximately 25,000 miles through 30 states and Canada taking the best in entertainment to big cities and small hamlets.

'Charley's Aunt' brings to Sanford, under the auspices of the Seminole Mutual Concert Association, a cast of ten: William Callahan, Edmund Torrance, William Harris, Frank Fahn, Ken Lynch, Jr., Christopher Kotsching, Constance Schneider, Mary van Valkenburgh, Carole Macho, and Patricia Kern.

Graduates of Catholic University's famous speech and drama department, each member of the troupe has had professional experience, and was accepted for the company for exceptional ability and outstanding promise.

The presentation of 'Charley's Aunt' by this famous touring company will mark the first time a modern comedy classic has been offered. For many years this sprightly old lady has filled the theatres of the world with laughter and has, in that space of time, become everybody's favorite relative, the adopted aunt of every nation.

The acclaim lavished on the company in five seasons of nationwide touring—and the increasingly large audiences which turn out to see them each year—indicate the success of their venture.

MARY VAN VALKENBERG AND EDMUND TORRANCE will be seen in tomorrow night's presentation of 'Charley's Aunt' at Pinecrest School Auditorium at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Seminole Mutual Concert Association. Miss Van Valkenberg will be seen in the cast as "Amy," and Torrance as "Sir Francis".

Property damage estimated at over $2,000 resulted from a three-car collision Friday night shortly before 10 o'clock at the intersection of Sanford Ave. and 20th St.

Joel Field Is Still Sanford's Postmaster

"It's just like it was before they came here," Joel Field, Sanford Postmaster said today as he referred to the visit made by three inspectors of the Post Office Department's Inspection Service last Friday.

Even though Guy Allen was sworn in as Sanford Postmaster, all action in the transferring of the duties was stopped late Friday afternoon after The Sanford Herald went to press.

Joel Field said this morning "In the process of the attempted transfer the inspectors counted the main stamp stock, checked the bank account and all monies in the post office in the process of regular business and I asked each inspector how he found each account and they said they checked out to the penny and before they left, which was practically immediately I asked them point blank if there were any recommendations or suggestions we could use to better serve the patrons of this office and the Post Office Department, and they all shook their heads in the negative."

Shortly after 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, inspectors notified The Sanford Herald that a change of Postmasters was being made.

However, a call to one of the inspectors in the party of three, shortly before 3 o'clock, caused both Joel Field and Guy Allen to be called into the office of the local Post Office where it was explained that the transfer had been stopped in "an unprecedented action."

Postmaster Field said this morning "I requested the inspectors to make a complete and thorough investigation in addition to the checking of accounts as the post office had not been inspected since Feb. 6, 1955.

"I was informed," said Field, "that a complete suspension could not be made without instructions from the Post Office Department." Joel Field remains as Postmaster in the Sanford Post Office today following the complete stop in the transfer which was in the process of being completed Friday afternoon.

Guy Allen, Republican Chairman for Seminole County during the 1956 election campaign, said this morning, "I don't know what the status is at the moment."

Ground Broken Today For Manufacturing Co.

Ground was broken this morning for the construction of a new industrial building for Sanford Manufacturing Co. which will be located at the corner of W. First St. and Poplar Ave.

The building, estimated to cost in the neighborhood of $20,000 without equipment, will be erected by Carroll-Daniel Construction Co.

Architect for the building was Frank George who is associated with Frank White here in Sanford. This is the first industrial expansion in Sanford during modern times which has been accomplished through the efforts of local cooperation for the financing of the important building.

Marvin Meltzer, in charge of the local plant for Sanford Manufacturing Co. said this morning, this "could lead eventually to the moving of the entire manufacturing plant to Sanford."

Hyman Meltzer, president of the local company and president of Associated Mfg. Co. of New York City said "We certainly hope to make Sanford proud of our building and operation here."

At the ground breaking this morning were: Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Meltzer, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Meltzer, son of the president of both concerns, T. E. Tucker, president of the Florida State Bank, Volie A. Williams Jr., attorney; and Mrs. Morris Stotsky.

District Engineers who will probably attend include: H. M. Johnson, J. A. Brewer, G. L. Dickinson, Winston Carlton and Richie Green.

quarters and could not expand in its present facilities. Negotiations have been conducted throughout the two years period to obtain a local building. Offers from other cities were made but were turned down because of the company's desire to remain here.

At least 15 local citizens, because of "their faith in Sanford," and because of the concern's "wanting to grow here," cooperatively financed the building which was put under way this morning. "Progress is taking hold here," one of the citizens attending the ceremony this morning, said "and this is just an example of what can be done in the future for additional expansion and growth."

Advice To The Lovelorn

Miss C. Do you think a girl who has a high school education should marry a boy that doesn't?

My parents say I shouldn't because he isn't in my class as far as social and scholastic standards and that he won't be able to support me. But I love him very much.

Miss C. please help me.

Broken Hearted.

With a high school education you and your boy friend stand a much better chance of higher support and social standards—as no doubt your parents like most have in mind for your future. From the way your question is worded I understand your intentions are to finish school which is a good sign. By then, if you want to marry this boy maybe your parents will change their minds. Don't rush them into liking this but show by your actions and loyalty that he is the only one you could ever care for. Worrying so much about the future won't help things at all now. After all, remember "whatever will be, will be."

Miss C. I went with a nice boy for about a month and a half. During this time I got tired of him. I treated him terrible and he just wouldn't leave me alone. Finally I told him I didn't want to go with him. But he still comes

Unto The Halls

By WANDA GILBERT

Ouch! Ouch! Ouch! Watch where you're going. Doesn't that sound familiar? After each class we all face this problem. (If you can get out of class, that is. As the crowds stand in the middle of the hall you try to go around them. Just as you do someone coming from the opposite direction, unseen, slams into you. You immediately fall into the circle and everyone else gets a little practice with their equilibrium (balance).)

If you are on your way to your locker you stand a good chance of being late. If you have a top locker you're bothered with the person below you crawling over your foot. The poor unfortunate who have lower lockers really have to hand heads. There are always thick books falling from above.

And walking! That's another thing entirely. If you can get in to the stream of people you're getting good. You need either a pin, a strong arm, or the means to keep from getting squashed.

And still the teachers want their students to be prompt. The only way we can be prompt is to build an underground tunnel, install an escalator, or fly. Since these are highly impractical we need to show courtesy to our fellow students.

We could all keep to the right and curdle the water lines to the wall. Would that help?

If you are one who is being swept past the door of your next class, try hand signals if you can get your hand up. If not, try your best to get into the stream going the other way.

FTA Elects Two Confab Delegates

The T. W. Lawton Club, Future Teachers of America, at S.H.S. is really making "terrific" plans for this spring.

During the next week they plan to have the Future Teacher Clubs of Lyman and Oviedo Schools as guests of the local at a meeting. Then they will remain to eat lunch in the S.H.S. cafeteria.

On Feb. 18, Dr. Ballard Simmons, state co-ordinator of the Future Teacher Clubs, will be the guest at a county-wide supper. The group is looking forward to his visit as he is always an "interesting" speaker.

The S.H.S. Club has selected the two students who will attend the state convention, March 1. They are J. D. Stone and Ellen Vihlen, who will be accompanied to the University of Florida by Mrs. Kent Bateman, the sponsor. While there, they will meet future teachers from all over the state, attend a banquet held in their honor and hear many informative talks concerning teaching as a career.

The club is "anxious" to hear the reports of Ellen and J. D. when they return.

Question Of Week

By DALE LEWIS

Let's hope no one finds himself in this unfortunate circumstance. However, if you are the type that likes to live dangerously, or if you unwillingly get into jams like this, here are some ways that you might get yourself out of such a predicament.

"What would you do if you had two dates for the same evening?"

Kay Jenkins—"It would depend entirely on who they were with!"

Johnny Berry—"I'd like them both."

Richard Pagan—"Go with the one I liked the best."

Duke Schirard—"Go with the one that sounds like Murray Nasser."

Sylvia Price—"Well, since I'm not in the predicament, never have been, never will be, to tell you the truth I don't know what I would do because you see, I'm going steady!"

Henry Case—"I'd take both of them!"

Bobby Little—"I'd go to the Ritz theatre!"

Jim Warner—"I'd take them all! (All???) I only said two!"

Kay Ivey—"I guess I'd go with the one that asked me first."

Billy Babop—"I'd break one of them!"

Miss Robb—"I'm not going to answer that one!"

Delores Bailey—"First come, first serve!"

Philip Byrd—"Take them both and tell one that the other one was my sister!"

Lois Barineau—"I guess I'd just have to go with one that gets these first!"

Bets Ashby—"I'd break the date with one to go with the one I liked best."

Carol Nutt—"I don't like to live dangerously, but I'm always in a jam so... I just hope it never happens!"

Tommy Goebel—"I have too much trouble getting one date—I don't have to worry."

Pat Donohoe—"Bring them both along—the more the merrier!"

Pat Harrington—"I'd sayencie,encie, mo!"

Mary Jane Flynn—"I'd go with both of them and have a ball!" (I'm sure they both would love that!)

Johnny Williams—"I'd flip a coin."

Fads, Fashions

By WANDA GILBERT

Geel! What a change has swept over our nation in the past several years.

In our mother's day the skirts hardly ever got above their ankles. Their hats were big and gaudy. It was nothing unusual to see a stuffed bird sitting atop a woman's head; her sleeves were long and her collar high. Designs were worked in detail for front attraction.

Today the dresses have "ery short sleeves and sometimes you can find the collar. You have to look though! For the present time more attention is attracted to the back of the dress.

The hair styles are always changing along with dresses. In earlier times the women's hair was piled in ringlets of curls upon her head or in braids done in fancy swirls and figures.

Today women can't seem to do a thing with their hair. (Those who have enough to worry with) it's so short a man doesn't know whether to whistle or slap a girl on the back. He can't tell if she's male or female.

Those with long hair are changing to the "bouffant" look. The hair looks like it's only growing from the top and spilling over on both sides.

Getting back to clothes—The collars used, nowadays, are very bright and colorful compared to the more conservative of that time.

The bathing suits—should I stop or go on? Anyway, (when you find them) they have changed!

Let us go on. The accessories have changed to an extent. No longer do women carry dainty little purses for a handkerchief and comb. Some carry—as the expression goes—everything but the kitchen sink.

The shoes are much daintier now. Though they are still expensive.

Today a shirt, woman style, with cuff links and a tie of some sort is considered to be well tailored.

One thing hasn't changed. Girls still wear dozens of petticoats and crinolines to give a dress or skirt the soft affect. Some attempt hoops but oop! when you try to sit down.

As long as women have a mind they'll keep changing it! That's their privilege though!

Top Hits At SHS

By ANGELO COMPAIN

It seems that, in the music world, Elvis Presley hasn't had too much yet; particularly since he has had "Too Much" on platter. This one is strictly for playing loud, and, judging from its sales, a lot of people are playing it loud—either that or just buying it.

One of the cutest numbers I've heard in a long time is Margaret Whiting's rendition of the "Money Tree". For only a novelty number, it's had a huge success.

Pat Boone's "Don't Forbid Me" is another good buy, if you should have any particular liking for either Pat Boone or vocal gymnastics, or both. Just the same, I think it's much much better than "Friendly Persuasion".

Calyps music and Harry Belafonte seem to go as well as bread and butter. His latest, "Banana Boat Song", is a must for the recordwise.

Two more of the newest songs hits are Guy Mitchell's "Crazy with Love" and Frankie Laine's "Moonlight Gambler". You needn't play either or both of these loud; they're both loud at its.

Leaving the best till the last, I urge you, even if you aren't a record fan, to hurry out and buy Sonny James' "Young Love". If you should already have one, buy another—you'll need it as a spare!

Heading the Hit Parade this week are Jim Lowe's "Green Door", Elvis Presley's "Love Me Tender" ("Love Me Tenderly" as the English grammar teachers have it), and, of course, Guy Mitchell's "Singing the Blues".

On Farm Front

By GAYLORD F. GODWIN
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — The American farmer is enjoying a record export business for his produce, but there is no guarantee that present high levels will be maintained.

Other countries are trying to cut in on the business and are offering aggressive competition.

That is the outlook presented by the Agriculture Department in a study of the competitive position of U. S. farm products abroad.

"World trade in farm products is now more competitive," the department said. The volume of U. S. farm exports in the fiscal year ended last June 30 was the highest in 20 years. The department predicts the volume for the year ending next June 30 will be 25 per cent above that of a year ago.

"At the same time, however," the department said, "foreign production and exports of agricultural commodities are continuing at an accelerated pace. Exporting countries are pushing agricultural production widely. Major importing areas have been encouraging agricultural production to reduce their independence on imports of food and raw materials, and to free more foreign exchange for industrialization programs."

Purchasing Power Good

The department said the purchasing power on international markets for manufactured goods since the war has averaged about 50 per cent more than in 1938.

This change in terms of trade has encouraged importing areas such as Western Europe, India, and Japan to encourage agricultural production by every means possible to cut down the amount of foreign exchange required to buy food and raw materials," the department said.

In the early postwar period, when food throughout the world was relatively short, foreign trade in agricultural products increased along with production, the department said. During 1950-52, agricultural trade was very stable but since 1952, trade in agricultural products competitive with U. S. production has expanded more rapidly than world production.

The department said this reflects the intense efforts all exporting countries have made to market their surplus supplies. Many have subsidized extensively. Others have expanded exports through bilateral agreements or barter, exchanging their agricultural products for industrial products of importing countries.

Export Outlook

The department listed this outlook for exports and foreign competition by commodities:

Wheat: World import requirements during 1956-57 may reach the all time record of 1,100,000,000 bushels set in the 1951-52 marketing year. U. S. exports of wheat and flour are expected to reach 415 million bushels compared with 341 million bushels a year ago. This will result in a reduction of carryover stocks.

World wheat production this year is tentatively estimated at an all-time record of 7 1/2 billion bushels. The effect of increasing production in both importing and exporting countries will make it increasingly difficult for the United States to maintain its present share of the world import.

Feed Grains: World production of major feed grains—corn, oats, barely—reached an estimated all-time record of 330 million long tons this year. U. S. exports of these grains during 1956-57 are expected to be 25 to 30 per cent under the 1955-56 record of 7 1/2 million long tons. Main reason for the expected decline is reduced European demand.

Cotton: U. S. cotton exports this year may exceed 6 1/2 million bales—some three times the 1955-56 export total—bringing cotton exports to the highest level in 23 years. But the United States must face the fact that cotton is the most profitable cash crop of many foreign producing and exporting countries. They will be in there fighting for the export trade.

Tobacco: Exports of unmanufactured tobacco are expected to decline somewhat from last year's extremely high level of 578 million pounds. Higher prices for certain traditional U. S. export grades, larger stocks in several major importing countries, and increased supplies in competing exporting countries all point to lower U. S. exports.

Poultry products: U. S. exports of poultry products have risen from 1 million dollars in 1937 to more than 50 million dollars in 1956. This upward trend is expected to continue.

Foreign News Commentary

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

Last week's good and bad news on the international balance sheet: Soviet Russia warned free countries all over the world that they would risk attack by nuclear weapons in the event of war, if they let the United States station atomic units on their territory.

Vladyslaw Gomulka, Polish independent Communist leader, won a landslide victory in a national parliamentary election which was regarded as a critical test of the strength of his regime.

Defying the United Nations, Israel announced it would refuse to evacuate the Gaza Strip and positions on the Gulf of Aqaba which it occupied in its attack on Egypt. It was feared that Egypt, in turn, might stop the clearing of the Suez Canal which it blocked when Britain and France attacked the canal zone.

Warning

Russia's warning on establishment of American atomic weapon units in foreign countries mentioned specifically Great Britain, France, West Germany, Italy, Turkey, Iran and Japan.

President Eisenhower had said in his budget message to Congress on Jan. 18 that the United States intended to establish atomic bases abroad.

The Russian warning, issued through the official news agency Tass, was regarded as directed primarily against the new Eisenhower Doctrine to combat Communist aggression in the Middle East.

It was one of many such Russian blasts. But it showed the concern of the Soviet government over the doctrine and the vast system of American bases all over the world.

Communists

There was a threat that both Communists who oppose Gomulka's independent attitude toward Russia and anti-Communists who want a complete break with Moscow might boycott the Polish general election.

But 94.14 per cent of the eligible voters went to the polls. Of these, 99.4 per cent voted for Gomulka's candidates.

It was a singular situation in which the Roman Catholic clergy urged support of a Communist. Had Gomulka failed to get a big vote, his regime would have been dangerously weakened. As it is, he has been strengthened against attacks by those Communists who want to get Poland back under the thumb of the Soviet government.

Suez

The U. N. had given Israel until Thursday midnight to evacuate the Egyptian territory it occupied in its invasion of the Sinai Peninsula.

A few hours before the deadline, Israeli Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion announced that the Israeli forces would hold the Gaza and Aqaba Gulf areas unless he received guarantees that they would not be used by Egypt for attack.

Egypt had threatened that unless the Israelis got out it would stop the work of clearing the Suez Canal, and thus further delay resumption of oil and other shipments.

Bladder Control Problem

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

DON'T worry too much about your training attempts might hamper your youngster's bladder control.

As he matures, the problem generally will solve itself. Deep concern over nocturnal enuresis might do more harm than good.

Gradually, bladder control becomes conscious and voluntary. Many mothers make a big mistake when the child nears complete control. They become too anxious for him to stop bed-wetting entirely.

Harmful Effect

This anxiety—or ambition, if you will—on a mother's part may be harmful to the parent-child relationship. And it might have a profound effect on the youngster's personality.

There are some children who can be trained fairly easily and without any harmful effects. These are others who can't.

If your youngster can readily fall asleep again and shows no resistance to being awakened to answer nature's call, then he probably will not suffer from the training process.

Resists Training

If, on the other hand, he resists training, refuses to cooperate when you disturb his sleep,

DOUGLAS MACARTHUR H. recently appointed Ambassador to Japan by President Eisenhower, bears his arm as he answers the emergency call for blood donors issued by the Washington, D.C. Red Cross. "It is the nurse" was his "last donation" before leaving.

Arrival Of Bomber At SNAS Brings Sanford Closer To Jet Aircraft Age

The world entered the jet aircraft age a few scant years before it entered the atomic age, and Sanford has seen small glimpses of both.

The occasional jet aircraft that has flown into the Naval Air Station in the recent past, the occasional passing far overhead of a jet bomber from the Air Force Base at Pinecastle, and the knowledge that Sanford's heavy attack bombers are capable of carrying the devastating force that is contained in an atomic bomb, are all reminders that the jet age and the atomic age are very tangibly present and near.

Yesterday, the arrival of a new type jet bomber at the Sanford Naval Air Station brought Sanford even closer yet to the age of high-flying, fast-flying jet aircraft.

Jet powered Navy bombers are a real thing to Sanford now.

They are here among us, huge, high-flying, and astoundingly, powerfully fast.

In keeping with the progress of our future-sighted Navy, the squadrons based at the Sanford Naval Air Station are being converted to more modern aircraft, aircraft whose only relationship to the past is their purpose—to be constantly prepared to launch a deadly blow at a potential enemy whose technical progress in aviation is providing a threat to our own.

We've lived with the aircraft of the Sanford Naval Air Station as a part of our daily lives for quite some time now. We've perhaps been annoyed by them at one time or another, especially when our television has been disturbed for a few brief moments in the midst of "Love Lucy", and yet we have come to realize that their very presence is as comforting a reassurance as the sight of a cruising police car at night or one of the Sanford Fire Department's trucks standing as if poised to come to our aid.

Things are no different now. The men and airplanes at the Sanford Naval Air Station are still performing the same job—training and preparing for a day that we earnestly pray will never come.

However, they're using a different airplane—a new tool, so to speak. It's bigger, and faster, and makes more noise. Not a lot more noise, not nearly enough to cause concern, and definitely not enough to cause physical damage to windows by exceeding the speed of sound; the so-called "sonic boom" which has become a part of the daily living habit in other parts of our country.

Before we hastily curse the inventors of jet engines and the men who fly them, we should consider seriously the very reason for which they exist.

They exist—because they're needed. They exist because without them all that we see around us could soon cease to exist—there would be no "High Fever Follies" in America which wasn't prepared to meet aggression with an equal retaliatory blow. Everything would be dead—still—potmarked and blown to shreds from effects of a destroying force larger and bigger and more devastating than our imaginations would allow us to envision.

Our good neighbors at the Sanford Naval Air Station are seriously conscious of our concern and are concerned about our awareness of their new airplane.

As we've learned from experience in the past, they have exerted every effort to alleviate unnecessary disturbances to Sanford residents by establishing flight paths outside and over the more densely populated areas.

We are confident that they will continue to take all possible measures and precautions in the future to keep their very vital task as unobtrusive as possible.

The happy relationships that we have enjoyed with our Navy neighbors and friends in the past need not and should not be affected by the fact that they are now flying a new and different airplane.

The third crewman in that airplane you see over our city is still the one you meet pushing a cart at the supermarket, the pilot continues to sing in your church choir, and the bombardier is the talented lad you'll applaud at next month's performance of High Fever Follies.

Research, experiment, and innovation have changed just about everything in this country. That truism even goes for the meat we eat and the livestock it comes from. In other words, "pigs isn't pigs anymore!"

Nowadays, for instance, people want leaner cuts than they used to—and they're getting them. Farmers are producing strains of hogs and other livestock that, pound for pound, less fat.

Efforts to provide a more attractive product—and a better buy for the money—are not confined to the producers. The whole meat industry is in the act. The packers have found new, better, and more economical processing methods—and some of them are unusual indeed.

One that falls into that category is the wind tunnel, introduced as a rapid way to freeze meat by the use of high-speed fans. And such tools as electric knives and pneumatic needles now play roles in making packing and processing operations faster and more efficient.

Finally, the United States is the world leader in this kind of sausage in connection with the old world. But an American sausage maker who toured Europe recently said on his return: "I didn't bring back a single idea applicable to our business, hard as I tried. It was like going back to the food dispensing practices of fifty years ago."

Spoken words can travel a thousand miles without walking.

HOW ABOUT THE ONES BEHIND?

My New York

By MEL WEINER
NEW YORK—There is this much to be said for New York City, after the pros have been propounded and the cons condemned, and the deadwood cleared away: without a doubt it is the easiest city in America in which to lay hands on a bottle of champagne.

As a typical, chic, smart, cosmopolitan New Yorker (we all drink champagne here, you know, just before drifting into the Automat in our dinner jackets and cummerbunds) who lives by the bubbly and no doubt shall die by it, like the warrior with his sword—let me say flatly that other cities can be pretty frightening to a champagne drinker, at times.

More than once I have been marooned on a foreign strand, such as Akron, O., or Milan, Italy, and absolutely unable, my dear, to lay hands on a glass of Cordon Rouge '62. The whole thing can be pretty sickening, let me tell you.

New York, however, is different. The stuff virtually drips out of the facets in the sink. Starting in with Twenty-One, where there is on display in the dining room a complete display of all 11 sizes of bubbly bottles (from the split, or baby, up to the Nebuchadnezzar, which holds 20 quarts), there's hardly a smart saloon in town where you can't enter and order champagne.

IT MAY HAPPEN THAT the champagne center of Manhattan is the Pierre hotel at 61st and Fifth where, in at least one recent year, the sommelier has supervised the opening of 12 Nebuchadnezzars. One of these babies, incidentally, holds a hundred glasses of the wine that cheers, and is yours for the asking, or that is, for a token payment of two hundred bucks. It stands 37 inches high and can hang you over for at least a week. And we all know what champagne hangovers are like, now don't we?

Research discloses that the Waldorf does quite a rushing business in the grape, too, and like the Pierre, it makes a handsome production of opening one of the big Berthas, such as the Rehobotham (six quarts) or the Balthazar (12 quarts). The handsome, silver-bearded wine steward there has the bottle fetched up from a special refrigerator and then opened at table by a two-waiter attack patrol, who make sure the cork doesn't whang into a nearby dowager and kill her dead.

The Plaza, no slouch in the champagne-dealing trade, is particularly elaborate in its wedding party productions; the bottle is brought in with a ribbon around the neck, the color of the band matching that of the bridesmaid's gowns. On the other hand there always is the enough-of-this-silly-stuff attitude of the St. Regis, which when last I heard wouldn't carry anything larger in stock than a lousy little magnum (two quarts).

WONDER WHAT MAKES A MAN a champagne drinker, anyway? The most likely explanation is the association of ideas; it brings to mind lavish, special occasions when a man can drink long and openly at respectable occasions and not be condemned.

People usually just grin and cheer on a champagne drunk, whereas a more intelligent man who fights the battle with scotch or bourbon is considered nothing but an alcoholic oaf. I know, anyway, that it can't particularly be the taste; bubbly always tastes to me like a cross between ginger ale and cider, neither of which is for me.

The people who sell the stuff around here always are trying to get one to buy the king-sized bottles, claiming that the wine is better in them. This figure, actually, bigger bottles have less air than small ones, and it's air, you know, that makes champagne go flat and look like the morning

India To Play Unaccustomed Role

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent
India is about to play the unaccustomed role of a country that does not want to talk about the right of self-determination.

The United Nations Security Council meets Wednesday to discuss the future of the state of Kashmir, which has been in dispute between India and Pakistan since 1947.

Pakistan wants the U. N. to conduct a plebiscite so that Kashmir's people can decide for themselves whether to unite with India or Pakistan.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India is one of the world's foremost supporters of the right of peoples to self-determination. In this instance, however, Nehru is on the other side. He does not want a plebiscite.

Benson Nehru is Opposed
The trouble is Nehru knows that if a plebiscite were held, the Kashmiris would vote to join Pakistan. He said at a meeting of his governing congress party in New Delhi last Tuesday that the U. N. should confine itself to the question whether Pakistan has been the aggressor in the dispute over Kashmir.

So on Wednesday, the prospect is that V. K. Krishna Menon, India's chief delegate to the U. N., will argue that the plebiscite issue should not even be debated. When India and Pakistan were given their freedom in 1947, what had been British India was divided between them. The division was made on the basis of religion—Hindu areas to India, Moslem areas to Pakistan.

Kashmir is a Moslem area which has long been under the rule of Hindu maharajas. After the 1947 partition, both into the area. There was bitter fighting between India and Pakistani troops, and tribesmen who supported one side or the other, from October, 1947 to the end of 1948.

Cease-Fire Drawn
Then the U. N. drew a cease-fire line between the contending forces. India remained in occupation.

India and Pakistan moved troops after.

It was only a few years ago here that a Methuselah (eight quarts) selling for $83 exploded with splendid roar in the window of a Madison Avenue booze store, when the spring day became too warm. It was a shame to see it go, but it certainly was the most glorious explosion the city ever has seen. The tender, wispy smell of that heady afternoon is green in my nostrils to this day.

of two-thirds of Kashmir. Pakistan stayed in the remaining one-third.

The U. N. called for a plebiscite after both Indian and Pakistani armies had withdrawn.

Nehru agreed to the plebiscite at one time, but he started to specify conditions that blocked it.

Conning The News

BY VIRGINIA CONN

Every morning coffee at the B. J. Q. was well attended. The board members of the Officers' Wives Club served as hostesses. Katie Jackson and Betty Lemos poured the coffee. Small sweet rolls were passed, and the yellow chrysanthemums on the table reminded us that spring is not far away. Mr. Kenneth Rockwell, who is in town assisting Dean Reeder, the director of High Fever Follies, was a special guest, and met and talked to most of the girls, urging them to come to Couples night. There were a lot of new faces, and I met for the first time quite a few about whom I have written for months.

Among those attending were Ruth Norvell Lou Johnson, Mary Libbey, Betty Hazlett, Gene Fritz, Katie Cummins, Marge Martin, Pat Hanson, Muriel Gildewell, and her guest Dell Perkins from Winnipeg Canada, Betty Meyer, Sandra Ortmann, Evie Williams, Mollie Barlow, Jean Stetson, Doreen Killeine, Pat Todd, Shirley Ross, Peggy Tugwell, Geneva Quicker, Hazel Rowell, Marilyn Bailor, Berta Conn, Phyllis Graham, Elaine Bass, Virginia Johnston, Betty Lemos, Theresa Martin, Lita Peterson, Lola Nebal, Margaret Fennell, Dot Mann, Virginia Deremegio, Joan Fellini, Vi Mildhahn, Mary Muntz, Dot Leary, Jerry Hauspurger, Carol Cook, Jane Potts, Ruth Tully, Mike Stone, Spook Hook, Jackie Austin, Marge and Louis Hoop are old friends of ours who are reporting into VAIL-3. They have two little girls, Susan and Eugenia, and are at the Marenette at the moment. Know I shouldn't put in all this information, because HATU always drags them in off of a leave a few days early, and I'm in the soup for a few months. But, as you must know, it is not a novelty to me, so that's life. Anyway, the Hoops are looking for a house to buy, and we're glad they came to Sanford.

The After Five Club met at Carl and Jean Tegfeldt's home for cocktails before dining at the Imperial House in Winter Park. A conversation stopper occurred when, after we had discussed Ann Wiedel's new baby girl born in Washington six weeks early, both mother and daughter fine, Helen Griffin walked in, and when presented for details, declared that the baby hadn't been born and that Harry had seen Ann the day before. So, hold off on your cards etc. Ann is going to be rather amazed to see the congratulatory cards that have already gone out.

The After Fivers enjoyed roast beef dinners, and honored the other diners with several good old songs, one of which John Dooley composed on the way down. The company adjourned to a business meeting at Jean and Carl's. But since the Fittons, Dooleys and Conns didn't get there, I don't know what went on. Members present were Art and Lois Elmer, Bill and Mac Edwards, Helen and Harry Griffin, John and Jean Dooley, Betta and Doc Linker, Carl and Jean Tegfeldt, Mike and Treeta Michok, Red and Lib Cleveland, Cy and Jean Fitton, and Bob and Ginny Conn. There are a good many other After-Fivers who were unable to make it this time, but will be at future meetings to protect their own interests.

Last fall a door was opened to me when I took the Girl Scout Leadership course. It was the first time I had ever had any knowledge of the tremendous merit in Girl Scouting. One of the most inspiring leaders we met, who was going through the course for fun, since I'm sure she knew it all, was Eva Rae Robb. Eva Rae has had every kind of troop, from Brownies on up and she is full of excellent ideas on leading these girls. In addition to this, her family and many other things, Eva Rae gets up long before dawn to bake in the family bakery. Now I have some sad news to report. Nancy Robb, Eva Rae's seventeen year old daughter is in the Harryanna home for Crippled Children in Umattila, following a hip operation at Orange Memorial. Nancy is in traction, and her mother can only see her once a week. It gets dull and lonesome, and what Nancy needs is for a lot of good Girl and Boy Scouts of all ages to cheer her with cards or letters. In the next few weeks you will be hearing a lot about the Girl Scout program, as they move into the annual cookie sale and fund raising drive, but I can tell you right now, there

"The Moonlight Ball" an annual event sponsored by the SSS Glee Club was held at the Mayfair Inn Friday evening from 9 to 12.

"There was a big crowd and everyone had a wonderful time," said Miss Ollie Reese Whittle, glee club director. The starlighters furnished music for the dance held in the hotel's ballroom, which was "beautifully" decorated with blue and silver streamers. A large moon overlooked the dancers while smaller ones were placed over the windows. Individual place cards were marked with blue moons.

Miss Jeff Filby who was escorted by Johnny Barley was crowned "belle of the ball". Making up the court were attendants, Miss Dottie Metts, escort, Randy Lavender; and Miss Juanita Wynn and Gregory Walker. Miss Filby was crowned by last year's belle Miss Nancy White. The belle was presented with a bouquet donated by F. P. Donahue of Sanford.

Seminole Edged Out By Winter Park 67-53

Chiefs Club To Hold Auction, Fish Fry

Future High School Basketball Stars Show Improvement

Harold Heckenbach, principal of Sanford Grammar School, showed off his baby basketballers again last Friday night as the sixth graders collided in a rough and tumble set of games during the intermissions of the JV and varsity meetings in the Seminole High School auditorium.

The future stars of Seminole High School showed vast improvement in ball handling, ball handling, and play patterns, as well as marksmanship over their showing last week.

Heckenbach boys add a light note to the basketball evening, and the enthusiastic response from the audience is warm, friendly, and appreciative. Good shots are applauded with vigor, and efforts are rewarded with response from the spectators.

The solid Sanford Seminoles cage quintet put their vast improvement on sparkling display Friday night in the Seminole High School auditorium as they were edged out by Winter Park, only once defeated in Orange Belt Conference play, and then only by the point, by a tight 67-53 score.

Winter Park, whose only defeat in OBC competition was a one-point deficit at the hands of undefeated Leesburg, found their hands full as the scrappy and fired up Seminoles far mastered the running game. The Seminoles faced a team thoroughly drilled in marksmanship and lost the game from shots made by the Wildcats from near mid-court.

The game was a brilliant contrast over the other Seminole-Winter Park game that was played just before Christmas. At that fateful meeting Winter Park wild, finished ahead of the Seminoles by 61 points, and completely dominated the field of action for their 85-34 win.

But it was a different story Friday night. The Wildcats didn't empty their bench as before; they couldn't afford to. The Seminole defense was a formidable wall and the Wildcats had to shoot from a long way out, but this they did beautifully, and the Seminole ball handling was by far the outstanding point of the game. And at this meeting Jay Bergman and Bob Wacker, who ran up the one-sided score last time, were outscored by Seminoles' Ken McMurray, who hit nine baskets and two free throws for a total of 20 points.

Roberson Crooms' Best All-Around Football Player

Grady Roberson was awarded the Sanford Herald award for the Best All-around Football Player by Herald Sports Editor last Friday night at the Second Annual Football Banquet for Crooms Academy sponsored by the Seminole County Sports and Recreation Club, a booster club for Crooms Academy in the school cafeteria.

Roberson, a graduating senior, on learning that he had been selected by the Herald awarding committee as the Best All-around Player at Crooms Academy for the 1956-57 season said, "I will cherish this award cup until I die."

The Robson Sportings Goods Most Valuable Player award was presented to Clarence Lancaster a junior; Most Improved Player Award, presented by Kaeder Jewelry, was given to Louie Hardy; the Faust Drug Best Blocking Back award was presented to L. J. McFadden, and the Independent Jewelry and Luggage award for the Most Outstanding Linebacker was presented to Addy Lamb.

H. L. Douglas, athletic director for Crooms Academy presided at the banquet and informed the assemblage "Attendance wise this past year was our best."

J. Foster, Crooms Academy's first football coach was guest speaker.

Goldsmith To Again Try To Snare Top Honors In Race

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.—Word was received at Motorcycle Headquarters today that Paul Goldsmith of St. Clair Shores, Mich. will again try to snare top honors in the $7500 Daytona 200 Grand National Championship Race to be held here March 3, the final day of Motorcycle week, which for the fourth straight year will be sponsored by the Central Labor Union.

One of the truly great speed merchants in the country today, Goldsmith won the classic in 1953 and was well on his way to number two last year when the magnets on his machine came loose and he was forced to call it a day. It was a hard pill to swallow for the veteran as he was less than eight miles from the finish line and a new record over the 4.1 mile Beach-Road Course.

Although his 153 record-shattering speed of 94.25 mph on a Harley Davidson was broken in 1955 by David Anderson of San Diego, Calif., he is nevertheless still considered by many of the experts to be the fastest rider ever to appear on the unique race course. You will recall that it was in that same winning year that Goldsmith put an end to foreign machine supremacy that had lasted seven years and thus once again placed the American products in the foreground.

Wildcats Breeze By JVs 59-24

Sadly missing two starters, who were moved up to fill varsity vacancies Ray Lundquist and Wally Phillips, the scrappy Sanford Seminoles JVs made a reputable showing in holding down the score last Friday night in a preliminary game as the Winter Park Wildcats breezed past them in a JV game 59-24.

Outmanned and outclassed, the Seminoles kept their spirit flying throughout the one-sided affair and offered strong defensive opposition in holding down the score.

The team unity remained in evidence as the scoring was evenly distributed among the starting five and JV mentor continued his policy of free substitution throughout the game. All members of the squad who dressed out saw action.

When friends first meet...

You may not know it, little one, but you and your telephone are going to be real friends, all your life. You'll be able to call upon your phone to help you do a thousand-and-one things. And it will respond by bringing other friends to you... and by making your life easier and more pleasant.

Where earlier generations saw the telephone as a modern miracle, you'll come to take its faithful service for granted. Yet, as you grow, you'll see many new developments—even now taking shape—that will make your friend, the telephone, more than ever a part of better living.

On The BOOKSHELF

The Eric Stanley Gardner book has arrived at last. Case of the lucky loser is the name of his and Charlie Morrison pounced on it as soon as it came in the door. Another good suspense mystery novel is Rue the Reservoir by Anna Belle Melville.

Did you read Big Sky by A. B. Guthrie? He's written one just as good about the Cattle Kingdom in the development of the West. It's called The Thousand Hills and is about Lat Evans, who comes in to Montana on a cattle drive, and is determined to stay and build his own ranch. This is the story of how he succeeded against odds that seemed impossible. In showing the growing maturity of Lat Evans, Mr. Guthrie shows also the development of the West as it passed through a period of expansion and wild exuberance.

Liza Bove by Shirley Barker is a historical novel that takes place in the Elizabethan times. Liza serves as a barmaid in the Mermaid Tavern, and this is the story of how Liza attempts to save her aristocratic lover—who, with his friend Marlowe, is infatuated with the legend of Dr. Faustus—from selling his soul to the devil. Wonderful reading for those who like fiction stories about real people.

Literary Guild selection for February is Twilight for the Gods, by Ernest Gann (who wrote High and the Mighty); it is the story of the last voyage of an old sailing ship, the Cannibal. Gann says "Twilight for the Gods is not a sea story. It is a story of people and their struggle for survival against odds which are both spiritual and physical."

The Strucan, by Mika Waltari takes place over 2500 years ago in the mysterious Etruscans who dominated the Italian Peninsula before the glory that was Greece had not yet given way to the grandeur that would be Rome. Mika Waltari has created a civilization and a people, as he did in the Egyptian Turma, the hero of the novel, is a true son of his race, powerful in battle, gifted in the arts and profoundly religious. His adventures in piracy and love and war provide the fabric of a story that encompasses the known world during one of the decisive epochs of history. Events of intrigue and murder, war and religious strife, love and passion, come to life in a dramatic and colorful tale of the wonders of the ancient world.

New Florida book, Hurricane Road, by Nora Smiley is the story of the railroad that was built by Henry Flagler, down in the Keys. The Philadelphia by Richard Powell is about Anthony Judson Lawrence, top-notch Philadelphia lawyer and socialite. He is the product of three generations of striving—the great-grandmother who started out as a lady's maid and ended up as not quite a lady; the grandmother who had to settle for a poor schoolteacher husband; the mother who married money—for a few brief hours. In his own rise in his profession, Anthony had to battle the oldest, most firmly entrenched law firms, with their own weapons and on their own grounds—until a sensational murder trial involving Philadelphia's finest families provided his greatest success, and his wife.

Turnbull Is Chief Engineer For State Turnpike Authority

FT. LAUDERDALE, Jan. 27. Turnbull, a soft-spoken, pleasant man of 31 years, worked his way up through the Florida State Road Department to become Chief Engineer for the Florida State Turnpike Authority, builder of the Sunshine State's most ambitious highway project.

He began his highway engineering career 31 years ago as a roadman. He was quickly advanced to instrument man and continued to be promoted until he was named state highway engineer in early 1934 by Governor Fuller Warren.

Turnbull resigned that position in 1934, took a post as a consulting engineer on a Maryland expressway and came back to Florida when Governor LeRoy Collins appointed him top engineer for the Sunshine State Parkway.

Throughout his engineering career, Turnbull has been praised by newspapermen, government officials and co-workers as an honest and capable man. Editors frequently give him pats on the back in print for the quality of his work in the interest of the state.

He gained recognition as the "watchdog" of state road funds.

The Turnbull family migrated to Florida in 1823 and perpetuated the memory of their South Carolina homeland in new surroundings by naming their new county Jefferson and its seat Monticello.

Born in Thomasville, Ga., by ironic happen-chance, Turnbull grew up in Jefferson County. After high school and a year of business college, he plugged away at home on engineering study courses of the famed International Correspondence School. Working then on a $300,000 road program in Duval County, he raised his professional status by learning from his daily job.

The turnpike's Chief Engineer was out of the state's service for a year in the early 1930's, when he joined the Louisiana Highway Department under Governor Huey P. Long. It was there he met and married Miss Alice Callegari of Cottonport. (They now have three sons and two daughters, ranging in age from 23 to 6 years.)

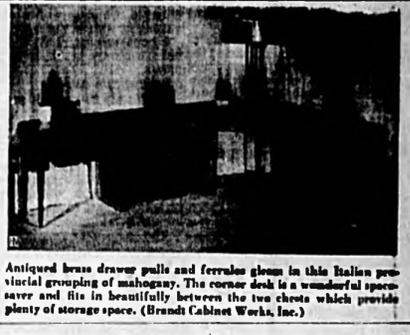

Turnbull's return to Florida was a test of his mettle, for he had to start again as a roadman with the State Road Department. But he didn't stop until he reached the top of the state's engineering pinacle, serving in turn as a project engineer, division location engineer, state drainage engineer, assistant division engineer, division engineer and then chief engineer.

He did take time out, however, to join the Army Oct. 16, 1942. The Army gave him credit for the equivalent of five years college, a tribute to him and his distant correspondence teaching.

Turnbull served with engineering troops attached to General Patton's famed Third Armored

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS

But why dost thou judge thy brother? or why dost thou set at naught thy brother? for we shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ.—(Romans 14, 10.)

If we will carry this thought always in our hearts, we will ever try to help the weak and erring instead of criticizing them; we will truly be kind and considerate—and ourselves be the stronger and better for it.

Thursday Deadline For Alien Reports

Joseph Savoretti, District Director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, reminded aliens in Florida today that Thursday is the deadline for filing 1937 address report forms as required under provisions of the 1932 Immigration and Nationality Act.

The Immigration official urged aliens who have not yet filed their 1937 address report to do so by tomorrow night to avoid possible penalties.

Failure to comply with the requirements can mean a fine, jail sentence and deportation for a willful violation.

Savoretti said the law requires that every alien except those having diplomatic status, foreign representatives assigned to the United Nations, and Mexican national contract laborers, must file the address report during January of each year at the nearest post office or Immigration and Naturalization Service office.

Savoretti said an estimated 35,000 aliens have filed address reports so far this January.

A total of 38,000 aliens filed address reports in Florida last year. Reports for 1937 are expected to total 60,000.

tered Sanford Ave. from the west.

Most seriously injured of the six taken to Seminole Memorial Hospital was Mrs. Elizabeth Crow, 42-year-old wife of the Sanford Fire Department lieutenant. She received a compound fracture of the right ankle.

Crow suffered from abrasions of the head and broken ribs.

The Ford car, stopped at the intersection, was driven by Dave Thomas Russi, 25-year-old Sanford man who was accompanied by his wife Edna. Neither were injured seriously and were dismissed after being treated at the Seminole Memorial Hospital Emergency Ward.

The Mercury sedan which failed to yield the right of way, was driven by Otis Alexander and accompanied by two other Jacksonville Negroes. None were injured seriously.

Occupants of all cars miraculously escaped serious injury in the smashup which attracted hundreds of spectators. Heavy traffic, sightseers and thrill seekers hampered police operations and investigations at the scene.

Damage to the Crow car was estimated at $800, to the Russi car at $250, and to the Mercury at $1,000.

Alexand was charged with careless and negligent driving, namely from failing to yield the right of way.

Investigating officers for the Sanford Police Department were: Chief Roy Williams, Capt. Arnold Williams, Lt. Joe Hickson, and Patrolman Carl Dodson.

21-year-old Negro, already with an injured leg in a cast, had only minor injuries.

Both Negroes were attached to the 1360th A. B. Group, Hq. Sq., at the Orlando Air Force Base.

They were taken to the Sanford Naval Air Station hospital by a Navy ambulance.

The car, according to Florida Highway Patrol Trooper T. Mark Mack, was traveling north at an apparently high rate of speed as it attempted to round a curve when it went out of control. The tree prevented the car from hurtling into a frame dwelling only a scant 30 feet from where the automobile crashed.

Coming to a stop on its side against the tree, the car's top was completely telescoped to the floorboard, the right door was completely torn off, and the seats crushed.

Charges will probably be placed against the driver.

Contralto Heard At Church Sunday

A new, "vibrant, well-trained" contralto voice was heard during the evening worship service at the First Methodist Church here last night when Mrs. William Lockard sang the old favorite hymn, "Blessed Assurance" by Fanny J. Crosby set to the melody of Stephen C. Foster's "Beautiful Dreamer."

Mrs. Lockard received her voice training at Marietta College, Marietta, Ohio where she was a member of the Oratorio Society, the Madrigal Singers and a soloist on many occasions. Prior to her recent moving to Sanford, she was contralto soloist at Rader Memorial Methodist Church in Miami.

With her husband and young daughter, Linda Louise, she makes her home at 2709 South Orlando Highway. "She will undoubtedly prove to be a welcome addition to the fine vocal talent of this section," a listener stated.

Gallaher, USN, as Commanding Officer of the USS Princeton (CVS-37). The change-of-command ceremonies, held in hangar bay number one, followed a personnel inspection by both the old and new skippers.

Adult dependents of all Princeton personnel were invited to view the event.

Among the special guests who attended the ceremonies were Rear Admiral A. M. Bledsoe, Commandant 15th Naval District; Rear Admiral W. A. Dolan Jr., Commander Puget Sound Naval Shipyard; Captain W. T. Jenkins, Assistant for Bremerton Naval Base Matters; Captain R. L. Shiff, Commanding Officer USS BADONG STRAIT (CVE-116); Captain B. M. Streat, Commanding Officer USS KENNETH WHITING (AV-14); and Mr. H. O. Donstard, Mayor of the City of Bremerton, Washington.

Captain Chittenden reports a board from the Headquarters of the Allied Forces, Mediterranean (Assistant Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations).

Captain Gallaher has been ordered to Washington, D. C., for duty on the Joint Staff of the Commander in Chief Atlantic as United States Liaison Officer to the Supreme Allied Commander Atlantic.

The Princeton has just finished a regular four-month overhaul and repair period in the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard, Bremerton, Washington. Following the on-loading of ammunition at the Bangor, Washington, Ammunition Depot, the big anti-submarine aircraft carrier will steam south to her new home port of Long Beach, Calif.

Chapter Members Attend Red Cross Meet In Leesburg

The Seminole County Chapter, American Red Cross was well represented at a regional Red Cross conference last Thursday in Leesburg.

Those attending included J. Donald Doyle, Red Cross Field representative, who called the meeting of ten central Florida chapter delegates to order.

Those attending from Seminole County were Major R. V. Brown of Lake Mary, chairman 1957 fund campaign, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Marx and Mrs. Jay Beck, members Seminole County Red Cross board, and Mrs. Mary D. Knox, executive secretary.

A work shop was held by eight groups dealing with specific problems of fund raising after which luncheon was served to the delegates, followed by an "inspirational" address by Ramone S. Eaton, vice president of operations of the American National Red Cross, Washington, D. C.

Sky Warrior

Sky Warrior, included was Douglas Representative Sam Day.

Third Crewman aboard the swept-wing bomber was John Richards.

A gigantic reception was on hand for the new plane with a contingent of Navy men carrying signs and displaying banners, some of which read "Take it back. We're getting the AJ3", "Hards off. This belongs to VAIL" and other similar quips.

No detail was left undone to carry out the welcome for VAIL's new plane with which the squadron will be supplied within a few weeks.

Months have been spent preparing pilots, co-pilots and crew members and maintenance groups for the arrival of the AJ3.

The big welcome came when, after details of the plane's landing were completed, the families of both Cdr. Horrell and Lt. Cdr. McBratnie had an opportunity to greet the returning pilots.

Crews were surprised by the plane's arrival when it appeared suddenly and whined low over the runways, flew out again and made another gesture over the group before coming in for its landing.

As the Sky Warrior, capable of carrying a varying bomb load, came in for its initial landing here, a new landing technique was demonstrated when its "braking" parachute was released. The chute is released by the pilot after touchdown to aid in slowing the aircraft.

The AJ3 Skywarrior, a twin jet attack bomber, is the Navy's largest carrier-based aircraft. Visible are two radar controlled cannons used for defense.

ENCHANTED HARBOR

By DOROTHY WORLEY

CHAPTER 20

Bill was used in a million m...
 Alvin Alvarez had said he would be very glad to show the visitors over the Silver Song. Bill had found him on deck, a pair of binoculars focused on the government boat.

Bill thought he detected a gleam of surprise in Alvarez's eyes, but it was quickly veiled. He said that he did not often take visitors aboard before noon, but he realized this was a special day and he would make a concession.

Bill thanked him, then said anxiously, "I heard you were moving out today. That's the reason I came early."

"On the contrary, I'm thinking of a party on board tonight."

"That's fine. You know, I suppose, that activities are pretty well planned for the day and that most of the people will go to the grand ball tonight."

"Of course. Perhaps I could make it a cocktail party beforehand, or a breakfast afterwards. I'd like to be hospitable. I may leave in a day or so. I've promised some friends a short cruise."

Bill thought, That's a blind. He wants to forestall every move he makes in order to eliminate conjecture. He doesn't know how near he is to disaster.

When the two government men, with Bill and Pete, were going over the boat a short while later, Alvarez said, "I don't believe I got your names correctly. I intend having a small party, and I'd like you to be my guests. Of course, my invitations must necessarily be limited and I must keep track of them."

The men repeated their names, thanked him, but said they would be unable to attend, as they would be showing off probably before time for his party.

Bill was watching. Was that relief that had leaped momentarily to Alvarez's eyes? The men had been clever to say that. It put them in the Harbor Day visitor category.

Alvarez was the perfect host. He was meticulous in showing them over the boat, explaining gadgets, opening doors and drawers. There was no part of the boat they didn't see. It was as if the man were saying, "See, I have nothing to conceal. If you're looking for anything, you won't find it here."

One of the men went back to the Coast Guard cutter. The other said he believed he would stroll around town, look the crowd over, and probably listen to some of the speeches.

When he had left them, Pete said to Bill, "I don't want to stick my nose into something that's none of my business, but I sense something out of the ordinary. Did those fellows have a purpose in going over the Silver Song?"

Bill hesitated. Then, "Pete, I've known you long enough to know you're trustworthy. I need a little help today. Something's going to break, something big, and there mustn't be any slip."

"Just let me know what you want me to do."

"See Red Gallagher's shrimp trawler out there? He's usually gone before this time of the day."

"Guess he's taking a holiday."

"Some of the fishermen have gone out. I want you to keep an eye on the Molly B and on Red Gallagher. Walk around as though you were taking a stroll to see all the visiting boats that have come in. If the Molly B moves out, let me know as soon as you can. Also let me know if you see anyone talking to Gallagher today."

"What are you, Bill? A detective?"

"Presumably I'm a writer on vacation who likes to fish. At first, I think Alvarez may have been suspicious of me. I don't think he is now, but he's a little nervous. It's a natural thing for that government boat to be here on Harbor Day, but he may not know it."

"He was very accommodating in showing us over the boat."

"Of course. He must be a good actor. Therein lies his protection. He seemed to me to overdo it a little."

"I wish you had let me in on this before."

"I've been watching him ever since I came to Apalachicola. I only got a definite tip a few days ago—after Rita and Priscilla came."

"Good grief! They're not mixed up in this thing?"

"No. But Lookout House is. My first tip came that night of the party on the Silver Song. I heard Lookout House mentioned to Alvarez quite innocently by Rita, and a light dawned. I got a hunch and I was right. It all falls into a pattern. Oh yes, you asked me if I am a detective—I'll tell you about it tomorrow."

Pete stayed around in the vicinity of Avenue E and Market Street, since all cars going through town passed that corner. The Molly B, Pete Gallagher's shrimp boat, was still tied up at the dock and there was no sign of life about her.

He noticed a man and a woman walking along the water front. They stopped near the Molly B. Pete's heart accelerated. He thought immediately, They're Harbor Day visitors, of course. But there was something about the couple that aroused his curiosity. He had promised Bill to help; he couldn't let any possibility go by.

He sauntered down to the wharf and stood looking at the Molly B, watching the couple without seeming to do so. The man was stocky, flashily dressed. The woman was dark, dressed in a trim dark suit. She reminded him of someone—why Rita, of course. Size, appearance, coloring.

Gallagher stepped out on the deck of his boat. Pete said lastly, "Hi, Red. Not fishing today?"

Gallagher shrugged. "Too many boats around. Thought I'd just stay in."

The heavy-set man came a few steps nearer. "That what you call a shrimp boat?"

Gallagher looked at the man with a bored expression. "I fish in it," he said briefly.

Pete looked at the couple. "If you're interested in boats, there'll be rides around the harbor later on today."

"Thanks." The man moved his cigar to the other corner of his mouth. "Lot of activity here today."

"It's Harbor Day."

"We hadn't intended stopping, but we asked why the town was all decorated and someone told us that. What's behind it?"

"Harbor Day? The channel to the Gulf is a sure thing now. At present boats have to move all around the islands to get to the Gulf. When the channel is cut through, the boats will put Apalachicola back on the map. They've been working on this a long time and they set aside the second Tuesday in November to celebrate Harbor Day."

"Sounds interesting."

"Why don't you stick around? Most of the activity today is over at the park. Tonight there'll be a big fish dinner, banquet and ball. Everybody's welcome."

"That so?" The man's voice was that of a polite, interested stranger. "Maybe we'll go over. To the park, I mean. We're just seeing Florida and are in no hurry." He thanked Pete and they moved on. The woman had not spoken. Her eyes were restless and not once did they rest directly on Pete or on Red Gallagher.

Fishing Popular

By DOC QUINN
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK — There were these two men who met on a sub-way train. Hadn't seen each other for years.

Well, well, what's with you? "Been doing a little experimenting in cross-breeding," said one. "Matter of fact, I successfully crossed a parakeet and a tiger."

The second man's eyebrows high-jumped a wrinkle on his forehead. "Good heavens, man! What kind of a creature was the off-spring?"

"Dunno. I can say," replied the first man. "But I'll tell you one thing—when he talks, I listen."

The Urge to Fish

QUEEN JULIANA of the Netherlands inspects the guard of honor at the Royal Palace in Amsterdam, as she arrived for the annual New Year's reception for the diplomatic corps. She is escorted by her husband, Prince Bernhard. The reception is usually held at the beginning of January, but this year the Queen and her consort were vacationing in the Austrian Tyrol. (International Radiophoto)

There are many voices crying in the wilderness of Manhattan, although few have the terrible imperative of the cross-breeder's tighest. But one of the most persistent is that which exhorts men to go fishing.

It comes from the Fisherman, a magazine published, naturally, in a midtown building called the Salmon Tower. In communications early and late it lays the lash to those who shirk the rod and line.

The most recent bulletin arrived by mail in the form of a baby blue announcement card. On the cover it depicted a stork carrying a baby which holds a fish net. Inside the card: "The Fisherman magazine proudly announces the birth of fisherman Douglas Trowbridge Cummings, 6 lbs., 1 oz."

The parents are announced as Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Cummings. But the key to the whole business comes out in a modest footnote at the bottom of the sedate card: "Mrs. Cummings is Joan Salavate, national professional women's fly and bait casting champion."

Secrets Divulged

Tantalizing tidbits of information cascade from the place. One discloses that "One of the world's best kept international secrets has nothing to do with treaties" — Queen Elizabeth is "a keen fisherman." No photographers or reporters are permitted when she puts on waders and goes after salmon in the Royal Dee in Scotland.

Another broadside is labeled "News Flash" to whom it may concern—and it may well concern

Henry Krajewski, Joe Smith, or anybody else who considers himself timber for president of the United States.

The cold and finny fact is simply this, and here we quote: "Never have more than three consecutive non-fishing chief executives been elected." Consider that, hopefuls for 1950.

Did you know that George Washington was a member of the first sport fishing club formed in North America? Well, get with it.

Fetch me some bait son, my mat is in the ring.

Here's a hot tomato and chesse dish your family will love as their favorite vegetable. Mix together 3 cups hot cooked rice, 1/2 cup shredded green pepper, 1 cup grated American cheese, 1/2 teaspoon black pepper, 1/4 teaspoon Tabasco sauce and 1/2 cup water. (Do not wash the rice before it is cooked. This wastes much food value.) Spread the rice mixture in a greased shallow baking dish. Cut 3 medium-sized tomatoes in half. Peel the tomatoes if desired. Arrange on the rice, cut side up. Sprinkle 1 teaspoon salt over the tomatoes. Top each tomato with 1 teaspoon mayonnaise. Place under the broiler for about 5 minutes or until the mayonnaise browns. Serve this immediately.

Final Arrangements Made For FHA Meel

Martin H. Moyer, Director of the Federal Housing Administration at Jacksonville, announced today that final arrangements have been made for an F. H. A. sponsored conference to discuss the Administration's new program of housing for the elderly. The conference is to be held in the main-floor auditorium, Prudential Building, Jacksonville, at 10 a. m. on Tuesday, Jan. 29, and all those interested are invited to attend.

Special financing to provide both sales and rental type housing for the elderly was written into the 1956 legislation. Under the new Act, among other provisions, the F. H. A. is authorized to insure 90 per cent of the replacement cost of a rental project designed specially for occupancy by elderly persons and owned by a qualified non-profit organization. Such liberal financing is expected to encourage labor unions, churches, fraternal organizations, charitable institutions and other non-profit member organizations to embark on a vigorous long range programing to provide specially designed housing for their elderly members.

LOOK!

... more than a car
 ... more than a truck

LOOK again!

IT'S THE NEW FORD RANCHERO

Looking at the boldly modern styling of the new Ford Ranchero, you may find it hard to believe that it's actually a man-sized truck, built to do a man-sized job. But it won't take you long to find there's a lot of left behind the Ranchero's glamour.

It carries more than half a ton. That's more capacity than many standard pickup trucks offer you. The all-metal body floor is over six feet from front to back. Loading height is less than any pickup. No matter how you look at it, the new Ford Ranchero is a real workhorse.

And it's a show pony, too! The Ranchero looks, rides and handles like a passenger car. Its low, crisp lines and distinctive profile have a wonderful way of saying how progressive you and your company are.

The new Ford Ranchero is surprising in many ways, not the least of which is its low price. Never before has so much style and luxury been packed into so rugged a vehicle at such a low price.

See 'em soon!

The Sanford Police Department will crack down on violators of the city ordinance requiring motorists to come to a full stop at stop signs throughout the city.

Commissioner A. L. Wilson, at last night's meeting of the Board of Sanford City Commissioners, said "I am concerned about the apparent disregard of stop signs and safety laws of our city."

"We need a crackdown on speeding and those who are not stopping at stop signs," he said. Sanford Police Department Chief Roy Williams agreed with commissioners who spoke in favor of a continual drive against traffic ordinance violators. However, Chief Williams said "What we need is manpower and cruisers."

"Whatever we need," Commissioner Wilson said, "should be provided to cut down on the terrific toll of injuries and property damage that we are experiencing now."

"I feel like something should be done about it," he said.

17-92 Deeds Are OK'd; Water Main Must Be Protected

Deeds and instruments transferring rights-of-way property to the State of Florida were approved last night by the Board of Sanford City Commissioners.

However, the approval for the signing of the instruments was stringently attached to it.

"Water mains from the city's wells in the 17-92 area must be sufficiently protected from heavy equipment," commissioners said.

"We will approve the signing of the instruments and deeds provided the city obtains assurance that these pipes will be properly protected," was the motion approved by the board.

City Manager Warren E. Knowles said that the mains are one-and-a-half, two and three feet deep. However, the shallow depth exists only in the ditches.

The Board of Sanford City Commissioners requested the cooperation of the press in publicizing the crackdown on motorists. "Let them know he meant business," the commissioners said.

A report from the Sanford Police Department for the month of January revealed this morning that 150 traffic cases were made during the first month of the year with only nine dismissals. "The City Judge is issuing heavy fines," Chief Roy Williams told the Board of Commissioners. He said "The judge isn't being lenient at all."

In addition to requesting a crackdown on traffic ordinance violators, Commissioner Wilson also requested that a traffic light be installed at the intersection of First St. and Sanford Ave., 20th St. and French Ave., and look into the possibilities of a signal light at 20th and Sanford."

Commissioner Morie Warner stated that "A flashing warning signal at the intersection of First St. and Sanford Ave. would be more effective."

The problem of "blind" intersection was discussed by the Board of Sanford City Commissioners. "There are many of them," it was reported.

Feasibility of signal lights and other signals was turned over to City Manager Warren E. Knowles and Police Chief Williams.

Man Proposes Archery School, Range In Sanford

The possibilities of locating an archery range and school in Sanford was discussed with the Board of Sanford City Commissioners last night.

Jim Scott told the board "My business is archery." Scott proposed that the city allow him to operate a range in an area designated as exclusive "park property."

Presenting a sketch of his plan in locating the range in a zone where traffic is heavy, Scott said "I will build the entire range and cover it with insurance."

Scott's answer came as commissioners questioned the archery expert about the safety of shooting the heavy bows and arrows within the densely populated section.

President Agrees To Study

WASHINGTON (UP)—Two Senate committees voted 30-0 today for a sweeping review of U. S. Middle East policy over the last 10 years.

The unanimous vote came on a resolution by Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.). The State Department revealed that it would "welcome" such a study if it does not "breach the confidence of other friendly governments."

Republican congressional leaders also said President Eisenhower has agreed to such a review. They relayed the President's approval after a White House conference this morning.

The department's position was outlined in a letter from Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to Chairman Theodore Francis Green (D-RI) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. It was not disclosed until after the vote when Green read the letter.

Military, Economic Aid
The vote came at a meeting of the Combined Armed Services and Foreign Relations committees, which are considering Mr. Eisenhower's proposed Middle East doctrine to provide economic aid and, if necessary, military force to the Middle East.

Meanwhile, the House prepared to begin actual floor debate on the doctrine expected Wednesday.

Fulbright's proposal states that the Middle East study will not begin until after the Senate acts on the resolution. It requests the state department to furnish in chronological form all documents which are "significantly" connected with developments in Middle East policy.

Board Requests Survey For New Post Office Here

A resolution adopted by the Board of Sanford City Commissioners officially asks the General Services Administration of the U. S. Government to immediately survey the immediate need for the relocation and new site for a Post Office within the City of Sanford.

The resolution adopted by the Board of Commissioners points out that the present U. S. Post Office is inadequate because of the tremendous growth in population and because of the traffic congestion in the center of the City.

It was requested that the survey be made in order that the City of Sanford will have adequate Post Office service.

In the presentation of the matter of obtaining a new Post Office for Sanford, Chamber of Commerce Manager John Krider told the Board of Commissioners at an earlier meeting that "It is possible that the new post office facility include offices for the number of government units stationed here in Sanford."

Other resolutions adopted by the Board of Sanford City Commissioners at last night's meeting requested that the State Road Board name State Road 415 the Campbell Thornall Memorial Highway and that Park Ave. be retained as alternate 17-02.

Wait, See Altitude Taken On Hiring Of City Planner

The Board of Sanford City Commissioners took a "wait and see" attitude last night when discussions came up regarding the employing of a Consulting City Planning Engineer and a City Planner.

The city's Zoning and Planning Commission had recommended that the Consulting Engineer be employed and that the City Planner be employed by the consulting engineer. However, the question from Commissioner Earl Higginbotham "Are we meeting with any favorable results from the Board of Seminole County Commissioners on re-zoning," started the wait and see stand.

City Manager Warren E. Knowles reported that he had met with the Board of County Commissioners on two occasions and once with the Seminole County Zoning Commission which produced "favorable results."

Commissioner A. L. Wilson said "I am not interested so much in the monetary assistance of the county commissioners as I am with whether or not they will go along with plans revolving around the fringe area."

No action was taken on the recommendation to employ the consulting engineer and the city planner until more favorable results are shown in the county's planning.

Legislative action is necessary," said City Manager Knowles "in order for the county to further its plans on both planning and zoning."

Boca Raton Area Will Be University Site

TALLAHASSEE (UP)—The Cabinet today accepted the recommendation of the Board of Control to acquire a 1,250-acre site at Boca Raton for a four-year university.

The airport site just west of Boca Raton on the Palm Beach-Broward county line was offered to the state free of charge. But the Cabinet and board recommendation provides it will be accepted only if a clear title can be delivered in 12 months. The Civil Aeronautics authority and Air Force both have leases on the property.

The Cabinet also left to the discretion of the Board of Control the question of whether a site for another prospective state university in the Pensacola area shall be accepted.

The action was swift and unanimous in comparison to the long battle which resulted when the Board of Control recommended a Temple Terrace site near Tampa for a university. The institution at Tampa will be the first of the new state universities built, provided the Legislature puts up the money.

The board is asking the 1957 Legislature to appropriate 12 million dollars to build a basic campus at Temple Terrace which could open by the fall of 1960.

Chairman Ralph Miller of Orlando said today, the board visited four other prospective sites in Palm Beach and Broward and "It was the unanimous opinion of the board at its last meeting that the Boca Raton airport be selected."

NEW YORK (UP)—King Saud of Saudi Arabia arrived today for a state visit with President Eisenhower. He was greeted with the full pomp of the U. S. Navy and diplomatic corps and a cold shoulder from the city of New York.

Speaking softly in Arabic on the pier to which he stepped from a U. S. destroyer, Saud said he was "very hopeful that my visit and discussions will produce a strengthening and reinforcement of the relations between our two countries and beneficial results for the Middle East and all mankind."

The King's 6-year-old son, Prince Mansour, carried in the arms of one of the Saudi Arabian party, appeared delighted with the welcoming hands and panoply. He raised his left hand solemnly in salute each time he saw a camera pointed at him.
