Investigators from the Seminole County Sheriff's office Fraud and Forgery Unit are following up on the reported embezzlement of $100,000 in cash and video games, reported at the Game Trader in the Lake Howell Square near Casselberry.

According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, Robin Gagnon, owner of the Game Trader, reported yesterday that six current and two former employees took over 1000 video games from the store and re-sold them to other video game stores.

McDonough said the embezzlement is believed to have occurred during the past month.

Post office compounds an error

WASHINGTON — The post office plans to compound an error — on purpose — selling lots of loused-up stamps so the handful sold by mistake won't be so rare and valuable.

The Postal Service had planned to destroy all 5.2 million sheets of the Legends of the West stamps after it was discovered that the wrong person was pictured on the stamp honoring cowboy Bill Pickett.

But 183 sheets of the stamps were sold by error before they could be recalled. That created a stamp rarity and some of the sheets have already been sold at auction for $2,000 or more.

Study: Sanford-Lake Mary may be prime location

SANFORD — The Sanford-Lake Mary area may become the prime location for a Seminole County convention center if, and it's a big if, a major hotel is attracted to participate in the venture.

But that's all contingent on the county, and possibly the cities, willing to swallow a $2 million a year operating and construction debt shortfall. Tourist Development Council members passed

Farr said he will ask chamber leaders to decide whether to pursue the center next week.

Graduation: A new beginning

Lake Mary seniors now adults

ORLANDO — With all the drama of an opening night on Broadway, the high school careers of Lake Mary High School's senior class came to a glittering finale last evening.

Nearly 600 graduates, garbed in red and black caps and gowns, emerged triumphantly from the vomitoria at the Orlando Arena to the unbridled applause of family and friends.

A professionally-produced video flickered across the giant Dimanvision screens around the arena to the hoots and hollers of the graduates and their friends enjoying a moment in the spotlight before the ceremony began and periodically throughout the event.

Unafraid to express their love (and, in at least one case, their distaste) for faculty and administrators who had shaped their high school experiences, the graduates and their fellow students in the audience, were anything but quiet as VIPs were introduced and speeches were eloquently delivered.

Inmate testifies Meyers described slitting girl's throat

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

SANFORD — Anton Daryl Meyers described slitting a girl's throat after she fought during an attempted rape then watching her slowly die, a prison inmate testified Thursday.

Meyers, 34, is on trial for first degree murder in the disappearance of Lake Mary teenager Kathy Engels, 14, who vanished May 25, 1987. No body has ever been found. She has not contacted any family members or close friends since the night she disappeared. She was last seen in the company of Meyers and another man.

Meyers contends she disappeared from a convenience store parking lot where they stopped as he drove her home.

The inmate testified he and Meyers developed a kind of "father-son relationship" at the Sumter Correctional Institution in late 1988. The five-time convicted felon had been in the prison system about 10 years when Meyers entered Sumter after being found guilty in an unrelated case.

Inmates always know what fellow inmates are in prison for, according to the witness. "Word around the compound was he (Meyers) was a

Needy to get more help with utility bills

SANFORD — The city is targeted to receive $61,696 more money than planned this year for its Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP). Community Development Director Charles Rowe has received word that the state Department of Community Affairs (DCA) has increased the city's allocation for this year to $188,765.

The original amount allocated for Sanford was approximately $127,000. Rowe says the increase is similar to that given in 1993. "Last year," he commented, "they did exactly the same thing, allocating a certain amount of money to cities, then updating it later in the year."

Rowe said that is because the DCA doesn't know how much money they are going to receive from the Department of Energy with which to operate this LIHEAP program.

"This project used to be administered by HRS," Rowe said. "But last year DCA took it over, and this apparently is the way they will be allocating funds, a certain amount at first, then an increase based on what money is available.

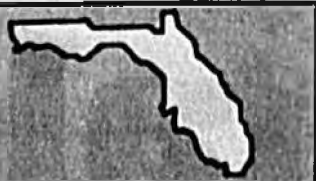

The money is used to pay utility bills for low income eligible clients, on an emergency basis. Making an electric bill payment through the use of LIHEAP funds, will prevent the utilities from being disconnected for lack of payments, and prevent people from being without electricity or heat.

The money would also be used to provide emergency assistance in crisis situations for payment of necessary services.

Volunteers sought to gather signatures

TALLAHASSEE — Backers of one of four casino gambling petitions circulating in Florida say they will no longer pay more than $2 apiece to collect voters' signatures.

Proposition for County Choice Gaming will drop its paid petition gatherers and rely on volunteers to collect the 430,000 signatures needed to put the measures on the November ballot, president Michael Levine said Wednesday.

Three other casino drives — Proposition for Limited Casinos, Safe Bet for Florida and Florida Locally Approved Gaming — are still paying to collect signatures.

Levine said County Choice still hopes to collect the needed petitions by the Aug. 9 for its proposal to legalize an unlimited number of casinos in hotels, on riverboats or at pari-mutuel sites if county voters approve.

He said the group has gathered 230,000 unverified signatures so far.

High court denies appeals

TALLAHASSEE — The state Supreme Court has rejected death sentence appeals in the 1991 stabbing of a woman near St. Augustine and the 1983 shooting of a St. Petersburg taxi driver.

One appeal was by John Christopher Marquard, 27, convicted of first-degree murder and armed robbery in the June 1991 stabbing and drowning of Stacey Willets in a deserted area near St. Augustine.

Among other claims, Marquard argued that knives and camouflage pants presented as evidence in his St. Johns County Circuit Court trial were found in an improper search.

The state Supreme Court said he consented to the police search of his room. "No coercive police tactics were used," Chief Justice Stephen Grimes wrote in a unanimous opinion Thursday.

The court also turned down an appeal by Derrick Tyrone Smith, 31, convicted of the March 1983 shooting of taxicab driver Jeffrey Songer in St. Petersburg.

Among other arguments, Smith said evidence was improperly admitted in his Pinellas County Circuit Court trial that he committed an armed robbery about 12 hours after the homicide.

Senators want aliens shipped home

WASHINGTON — Taxpayers could save more than $1 billion if other countries would take back 58,000 of their citizens who are imprisoned in the United States, say three lawmakers from states angry about illegal immigration's costs.

"It isn't fair to ask taxpayers to bear the costs of jailing illegal aliens who have broken our laws twice," said New Jersey Sen. Frank Lautenberg, referring to their illegal entry and subsequent conviction for another crime.

Under a bill introduced Thursday by Lautenberg and fellow Democrats, Dianne Feinstein of California and Bob Graham of Florida, countries must take back their jailed citizens to finish their jail terms or face up to a 10 percent loss in U.S. foreign aid.

The measure directs the president and the secretary of state to negotiate new treaties or renegotiate existing ones with about 30 nations. The legislation also recommends trade sanctions on non-complying countries that don't receive U.S. assistance.

Florida Gov. Lawton Chiles and the Cabinet on Wednesday approved the deportation of 113 illegal aliens housed in state prisons to ease prison overcrowding and allow homegrown offenders to serve more of their sentences.

Special session

Governors' health care reform defeated

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The special session on health care reform has ended with Gov. Lawton Chiles' proposal for helping hundreds of thousands of Floridians buy private insurance just that — a proposal. With a 4-4 vote in its Health Care Committee, the Senate blocked Chiles' proposal for the second time this year. The Legislature ended the special session a short time after the Thursday vote.

But the Democratic incumbent governor, who's seeking reelection, vowed he's not about to give up and warned he would haul lawmakers back to the Capitol later this summer for a second special session just a couple of months before Election Day.

"Maybe August, September, sometime in there might be more appropriate," Chiles said.

The governor's proposal calls for giving hundreds of thousands of needy Floridians a subsidy to buy private health insurance with money saved in Medicaid, a joint federal-state program that provides free coverage to people on welfare. Federal approval is needed, but Chiles has said the signals from Washington are positive.

Chiles accused the GOP of playing partisan politics with health care.

"The Republican Party turned a people's issue into a political issue," he told a room full of elderly supporters.

"We're going to continue to make this fight and we're going to win it," he added.

Chiles called this week's special session, which began Tuesday and was to last until Monday at a potential cost of $40,000 a day, to try to win passage of a plan the Senate blocked when the regular 60-day session ended in April.

But in the weeks leading up to the special session and in the days since it began, Senate Republicans warned there was no way they would support the plan, which they criticize as a huge gamble that would drastically expand welfare.

Before Thursday's vote, Republicans accused Chiles of refusing to compromise and of holding health care reform hostage to several provisions in current law that the business and medical community want repealed.

One, known as the tobacco liability law, guarantees certain courtroom rules to give the state a better chance at recovering from the tobacco industry hundreds of millions of tax dollars spent on sick smokers on Medicaid.

Florida's business community, which backs Chiles' health care reforms, wants the tobacco law repealed. Business lobbyists warn that the scope of the law, which Chiles signed last month, puts other industries and products at risk of unfair legal challenges.

On the opening day of the session, Democratic leaders tried to link repeal of tobacco liability to passage of health care. It didn't work.

Even the House, which has a 71-49 Democratic majority, rejected the tradeoff. Republicans in the Senate said they wouldn't budge either.

"Right now, health care is still linked to horse-trading," Sen. Alberto Gutman, R-Miami, said Thursday.

Sen. James Scott of Fort Lauderdale, a leading Republican, said there were far too many unanswered questions about Chiles' plan for it to be passed in a special session.

Scott agreed that politics were at work in the session — but by Chiles, not the GOP.

"There's no way anyone could think that a governor calling a session with no bill in the middle of a gubernatorial election with five opponents is not doing something political," Scott said.

Two of Chiles' five gubernatorial candidates are key players in the health care debate: Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher and Sen. Ander Crenshaw of Jacksonville.

On the other side, Chiles and Senate Democrats have accused the GOP members of knuckling under to pressure from the national Republican Party that

Racer-turned-candidate draws criticism with racially charged remarks

By Associated Press

CRYSTAL RIVER — Racially charged remarks by drag racing legend-turned-Republican congressional candidate "Big Daddy" Don Garlits have alarmed some GOP leaders, who have asked him to tone it down.

In interviews with The Tampa Tribune and Palm Beach Post, Garlits has said, "white people in this country are not the violent ones." Gun-control laws, he said, unfairly target law-abiding whites when statistics show the problem of violence largely rests in the black community.

"This is not racist," he said. "Those are the facts."

Garlits also said Haitians and all other would-be immigrants should be kept at Ellis Island — "like it was in the beginning" — until there are jobs available for them, and they should then be funneled out to states like Montana where they are needed.

Garlits, who grew up in north Tampa, said he is "absolutely not" racist and has had black friends since he was a child.

Still, some state GOP leaders have cautioned the political newcomer that he might risk blowing his chance of ousting first-term Democratic U.S. Rep. Karen Thurman.

Among his other comments was that multiculturalism — the teaching of different cultures — is "irrelevant" and shouldn't be part of school curriculum. He said it furthers gaps between groups rather than bringing them under the umbrella group called "American."

In a May 30 Palm Beach Post article, Garlits said: "We need to teach that America is great. The people that don't like it, we should have the FBI investigate them. Bring them before grand juries and charge them with doing subversive, traitorous activities. Have the FBI turn up the heat on them."

He later amended the remark, saying he was referring to the American Civil Liberties Union, which he calls "subversive to the American way of life."

Democrats, black groups and civil libertarians pounced on Garlits.

"He sounds like a cross between David Koresh and David Duke," said Mike Casey, a spokesman at the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

Robyn Blumner, executive director of Florida's ACLU chapter, said Garlits sounds like a throwback to the darkest part of the 1950s. "He certainly has the right to say it, but let the voter beware."

T.H. Poole, president of the Florida NAACP, said Garlits apparently doesn't appreciate how the many different cultures that have come to America have made the country as rich as it is. "I think he'll be his own worst enemy," Poole said.

Florida Republicans recruited Garlits to challenge Thurman. His status as an icon in the sport of drag racing gives him priceless name recognition. But now some party members are worried.

After the Post article, some state GOP leaders contacted Garlits and warned him to be more prudent. Still, Garlits spoke similarly when interviewed a week later by the Tribune.

"Sure, he's not being smooth and articulate, and he's blowing off steam," said Stuart Brown, spokesman for the state GOP.

While acknowledging Garlits makes remarks "he might want to replace at a later date," Brown called the Marion County candidate "an American patriot. He's a guy who represents a lot of frustrated people."

Garlits will face former Citrus County Judge Gary Graham of Inverness in the Sept. 8 Republican primary.

Friends remember 'mountain mover'

By MARVA HAWKINS
Herald Columnist

Lee Norris Rayam, "mountain mover," activist, writer and motivational speaker, left a legacy of peace and self-esteem to hundreds of young African American boys in the central Florida area.

Over 300 family members, friends and students gathered at St. Mark AME Church, Orlando to pay their final respects Thursday to a man remembered as a great leader and Christian.

Rayam, 32, was shot to death in Jamaica last week, while celebrating his second wedding anniversary with his wife Lisa Myers, Channel 2 news anchor. Myers was not hurt in the attack by two men who broke into the couple's rented villa, allegedly to rob them.

Helen T. Morris, outreach coordinator of Seminole County Full Service Schools, said Rayam spoke to many of the student groups in her program. He was often at Seminole High, encouraging those students who were deemed "at risk." He would instill in them that they could be "mountain movers," Morris said. He reached into many aspects of their lives, both good and bad, as he exhorted them to help themselves to become capable of meeting life's problems. He urged them to become productive citizens and excel in what they did. He would tell the students that "It is not important where you come from but have direction on where you are going," Morris said.

Friends often said the positive insight that Rayam had would seem to be coming from a man much older and more experienced. However, at an early age, he recognized that life can be a garden of beautiful flowers even though there may be thorns here and there.

Young men who knew him said they will always remember Rayam because he made a difference in their lives. They were touched by his electrifying voice when he walked into a room of restless students. When he spoke, the noise ceased immediately.

Charlie Farmer said that Rayam inspired him in many ways, most importantly, to believe in himself.

"I learned don't ever allow anyone to tell you what you can and can't do to make your life better," Farmer said. Rayam reminded him that through Christ all things are possible.

Lorenzo Tillman remembers Rayam as the man who was a friend to all. Tillman said Rayam encouraged him to pursue his dreams of becoming an actor/director. He said that Rayam often spoke of his friend and classmate, actor Wesley Snipes. He said they shared many ups and downs but they prevailed. "He told me, 'It doesn't matter where you came from, but what you do with your life.'" Tillman said Rayam's poem, "Mountain Movers," will always be a part of his life as he grows into adulthood. "Mountain Movers," he said, "will always be my spiritual guide."

Eddie Green, a student who was also inspired by Rayam, said he remembers Rayam told him to strive and achieve that goal he desired and wanted most. Green said the thoughts and advice that he gave really helped him and others, no matter what the problems were. "He instilled in me to make good choices in life, and if you make good choices, you will accomplish your goal."

Morris said she will always remember the special touch he had — the compassion, love, laughter, unity and victory he got out of helping the young 'at risk' students.

She said it didn't matter what time he arrived at the school, his presence was felt. The parents who had the privilege of hearing him when he spoke at the Family Resource Workshops will continue to allow his attributes to live on through their lives. He always encouraged parents to vote for programs that could rebuild communities and restore hope.

Lee Norris Rayam

His friends said Rayam promoted winners, and in order to become a winner, he encouraged youth to face challenges head on. He would tell youth who felt defeated in their endeavors to remember to be — "mountain movers. Check your strengths and say I'm ready to move that mountain out of my way."

Rayam said in his book of verses that killing is not the means by which success and popularity are derived, but is the avenue that takes them (the children) into prison, perhaps for life.

Phone book recycling successful

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — In reading this, local residents may actually be reading their own phone books from last year. That is, if they were recycled.

The Sanford Herald is printed on recycled paper from Bowater Incorporated, in Calhoun, Tenn., one of three companies that received telephone books recycled in Seminole, Orange and Osceola Counties, from Oct. 1993 through March, 1994.

The recycling collection effort for 1993-94 phone books has concluded, and authorities are calling it a huge success.

In Seminole County, phone books from Sprint/United and Southern Bell were collected in the recycling program.

From Seminole County, a total of 380 tons of phone books were recycled. In addition, there were 515 tons from Orange County, and 139 tons from Osceola County.

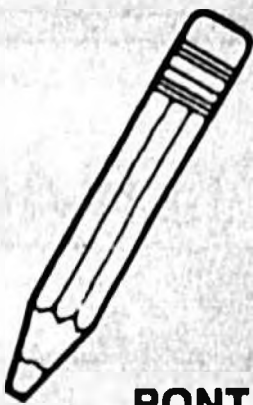

The overall Central Florida community collected 1,382 tons, or about 22 percent of the total number of directories which had been distributed by the two companies.

Kathy Hardman, spokesperson for the Central Florida telephone directory recycling committee said, "Some programs see a drop in the collection rate after the first year or two. But this is the fourth year, and our program is still bringing in large amounts of old phone books."

She added, "The Central Florida community should be proud of all it has done to make this special recycling program succeed year after year."

In addition to Bowater, other directories collected were transported to Southern Cellulose, Inc., in Atlanta, and United States Gypsum Company in Jacksonville.

Support effort for cons to serve more time

The Sanford Herald has continuously supported the activities of the organization called STOP, Stop Turning Out Prisoners. Members are presently working to bring about a public referendum this November.

If the voters approve it, it would force the state to stop turning out prisoners until they have served at least 85 percent of the prison terms given them in our courts.

At the present time, it is estimated the average prisoner spends slightly more than 40 percent of the adjudicated sentence time behind bars.

Judging from recent reports from Tallahassee, there are some who believe this referendum won't be needed.

The Deputy Secretary of the Department of Corrections, William Thurber, has announced he expects prison stays to increase to 75 percent by the end of this year. He says it's because of increased construction of prison beds, and 500 illegal aliens who are being taken out of our prisons to be deported.

This may sound encouraging on the surface, but it shouldn't be taken as a reason for reducing the efforts.

STOP is still striving to obtain a total of 430,000 verified signatures to get this on the ballot. Just because Seminole County is rated as having one of the highest percentages of signatures per population in the state, doesn't mean aren't needed.

If this referendum is brought before the people, we have no doubt it will pass. If we let our guard down now however, and hope this predicted jail-time increase will indeed happen by the end of the year, we will suffer the consequences.

Citizens realize the large amount of crime committed by career criminals.

The criminals realize being caught right now won't result in much of a punishment.

The two words "crime" and "punishment" have always been used together by our society. We have enough crime. It's time we started bringing the punishment back into reality.

Support the efforts of STOP. If you haven't signed the petition to bring this demand before the voters in November, do it now. In northern Seminole County, phone Sanford or Lake Mary police regarding the location of petition forms.

Join STOP. Let's force the state to Stop Turning Out Prisoners.

LETTERS

Remembering David

I am writing this letter on behalf of my nephew, David F. Merrill, who was killed in an auto accident on May 20, 1994 as described in some papers: "the 42nd death in Volusia County this year."

I want David to be remembered as more than a statistic for DMV (Department of Motor Vehicles). I want him to be remembered as a very special person who touched many people's lives during his short duration of 23 years on this earth.

Unfortunately, the interpretation of David in some newspaper articles describing this accident, was that he was reckless, hazardous, destructive, etc. I want to set people straight in this particular case. This was David's first auto accident. He did, however, obtain one ticket for "parking in the wrong spot on Daytona Beach." He was definitely a "real" hazard to the roads!

David was born on Feb. 3, 1971 in Annapolis, Md. to Sherry and Ronnie Merrill. He is survived by a brother, Jeff. He attained honor roll status throughout school, elementary included, and in junior high, was a member of the junior high Beta Club.

He played soccer in grade school and raced BMX bikes for four years. When he was 14 years of age, he placed first in BMX racing in the state of Florida. During high school, he was into skateboarding (designing his very own logo on some of his boards) and especially surfing. David had his surf boards made by Joe Peoples in Daytona. His interest in surfing was sustained even up to one last Saturday. He made the remark to his mother that on Saturday, just six days prior to his death, "it was the best surfing" he had ever done.

When he graduated from DeLand High School in 1989, he was in the top 10 percent of his class, a member of both the National Honor Society and National High School Beta Club. David received a full two-year scholarship to Daytona Beach Community College and graduated in 1991. He graduated from Flagler College Dec. 18, 1993 with a degree in graphic arts. Looking at the picture of him accepting his diploma, he proudly wore the honor tassels of red and gold draped around his neck over his black gown.

Russia edges toward democracy

SARATOV, Russia — It wasn't homesickness as much as a stubborn assertion of cultural sublimity. Barbra Streisand and Nancy Wilson occasionally flitted through my mind during my 10 exhilarating — and exhausting — days here.

Mytha die hard, but the ubiquitous Rusakaya dusha (Russian soul) has never yielded to mortality. It's as many-splendored as Walt Whitman's varied carols of America — in the Russian people's rambunctious humor, their overpowering warmth, their authoritative knowledge of their literary heroes, and in the sun-wrinkled faces of old Russian women, wearing their platoks (babushkas) and heavy stockings, walking alongside fashionable young women in thigh-high skirts. And, always, that blessed binding everpresence... food!

Russian families don't merely serve you a meal. They conduct a gastronomic symphony. You're lucky if you can escape with just the tantalizing national dish of borscht. Zdoravai (Great!)

Their affinity for vodka is legendary. I didn't mind toasting the populations of Moscow, Saratov and St. Petersburg. But when my hosts decided to pay tribute to Washington, D.C., Cheyenne, Wyo., and Chapel Hill N.C., my cup had runneth over. I wasn't about to abuse the 23rd Psalm.

In the Marquis de Custine's epochal "Empire of the Czar" (published only four years after his fellow Frenchman, de Toqueville, had published the definitive "Democracy in America"), de Custine lamented the Russian "tyranny of gospitalstvo (hospitality). Some 155 years later, it is alive and well.

So is the vibrancy of Russian life. In classrooms where English-speaking students engage you in dialogue about American journalism; on the streets where thousands of capitalist-minded vendors are selling everything but kitchen sinks; in the vast markets housed in city-block-long buildings; in the wooden, ramshackle houses that seem to be leaning back toward a prouder time; and in the eye-boggling number of apartment houses that march endlessly over Saratov's landscape.

Streisand summed it up: "People who need people are the luckiest people in the world."

Democracy is on a roll in Russia. Daily and weekly newspapers are springing up. An ad agency, which was founded by three young people a year ago, is now publishing a shopper's guide and a weekly newspaper for Saratov's "decision-makers." A radio station is in the works.

After decades of a centralized tyranny, Russians are decentralizing with a passion. Last Sunday elections were held and the publisher of a weekly newspaper, Mirror of Russia, and owner of a television station, Motophbin, ran for a regional deputy. "Your friend won," Galena Lashkov, my interpreter, told me when I telephoned for the results.

Russians are fascinated with America. My host, Dr. Konstantin Ryabinin, named his giant shaggy dog Phil — in honor of Phil Donahue!

Both countries have the mentality of gromadnost (vastness), but also share the quest for knowledge.

Prime minister harpoons U.S.

WASHINGTON — When the "Green Queen" feuds with the "Ozone Man," it's a strange day for the environmental movement.

That's what unfolded recently when Norwegian Prime Minister Gro Harlem Brundtland harpooned Vice President Al Gore over American hypocrisy on international whaling.

Norway has come under fire for allowing fishermen to resume killing whales within coastal waters. They're restricted to harvesting smaller minke whales, which Brundtland contends are no longer an endangered species. But environmental groups took out full-page ads in American newspapers blasting Norway as a "bloody" and "outlaw" nation — terms normally reserved for terrorists.

It's a strange day for the environmental movement.

With the Clinton administration threatening trade sanctions against Norway, a furious Brundtland sought a private White House meeting with Gore. "She had to show that we weren't going to chicken out," one of Brundtland's top aides told us. "She wanted to make our case to Gore even though she knew there was a risk of sanctions."

Brundtland, the former chairwoman of a U.N. commission on the environment, was offended at the assault on her credentials. The "Green Queen" — as she's known around the world — dug in against the "Ozone Man."

Brundtland perhaps could have bypassed Gore and gone straight to her friend first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton. The two women became fast friends during the Olympics earlier this year, when they dined at a 17th-century ski resort, clad in jeans and sweaters.

Brundtland fought her own battles against Gore. According to a transcript of the meeting, Brundtland exploded when Gore threatened sanctions. "By sanctioning Norway, it seems you view us in the same light as China after Tiananmen, or the former Soviet Union after Afghanistan, when we've done nothing wrong!" shouted Brundtland. "This is simply wrong!"

The Clinton administration backed off sanctions. "I had a long talk with the prime minister and she was very impressive," U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor told us. "In most cases we see eye to eye. But the Norwegians' insistence to continue to carry out whaling operations in violation of not only U.S. law but international standards is not acceptable."

Brundtland won't be bullied, and questions the right of the United States to moralize. In an interview with our associate Ed Henry, Brundtland said: "I do not believe any nation should be able to impose sanctions on a small, peaceful nation like Norway. These pressure groups can spread lies and push us out."

"I had to stick a pin in the balloon of these extremist environmental groups," said Brundtland, who noted that Americans hunt whales off the coast of Alaska. "These groups" somehow think whales are more important than humans."

Brundtland illustrated her point by citing a Norwegian who visited America recently and wrote Brundtland to describe a confrontation he had while in this country. A Californian indignant about Norway's whaling record confronted the Norwegian about the barbarism of the whale kills.

"Do you like hamburgers?" the Norwegian retorted.

He worked through college at Goodings in the produce department to help his expenses of college, room and board. Dave never asked his parents for anything, taking on the attitude if he couldn't provide it for himself, then he didn't need it. During these expensive years of his life, I remember how he'd shop for clothes in a thrift shop. When asked about it, he'd say, "why spend $50 for a pair of pants, when these that I'd paid $5.00 for are just as good."

Four weeks ago, he obtained a job as a graphic artist at Pacific Printing in Orlando. He was so well thought of by these people, after only four weeks, that a member of their company drove all the way to his house the day of the funeral, just to bring his last two paychecks and give his mother a sizeable love-gift to help with expenses.

He was such a responsible 23-year-old, that when his wallet was stolen in the evening of May 11, by the close of business on the 13th, he had replaced all of his bank cards, credit cards and his driver's license. Dave was really worried about going through a license check and not having a valid driver's license. Due to the act of responsibility, the FHP was able to use this license in breaking the horrendous news to his mother within two hours of his death...how long might it have taken, had he had no identification available?

Yes, as you can tell, our David was, as his mother put it, "not perfect, but as close as you could possibly get." This was a young man who weighed everything through. He thought everything out and there had to be a reason for him to do something, a purpose for his actions.

We know God has a purpose too and only time will reveal this and ease the pain and heartbreak that his family and friends feel. We will forever miss him because a big part of us died too in the accident on May 20.

Dave — we love you. Aunt Cindy, Uncle Jack and the boys.

Garbage plan

Homeowners in the Tanglewood Area Civic Association oppose new restrictions proposed by a Seminole County mandatory garbage tax district ordinance coming before the Seminole County commissioners May 10, according to Dick Telson, association president.

"Our 350 Tanglewood homeowners ask why our Seminole County commissioners plan to discriminate against those wishing back door garbage pick-up by taxing an additional $8 per month while residents in some subdivisions will be taxed only $4 per month. We feel all citizens should be taxed equally," Telson said.

"Failure to pay the garbage tax, especially those exempt from county taxes, could lead to the sale of a property deed which could result in the loss of a home," homeowner and active TACA member Ted Emery, a resident of Winter Park since 1935, said. "This is very troubling to me because I don't feel that a tax supporting a private business is the democratic way," he said.

Telson said TACA members also asked, "Why are our winter visitors who own winter homes in Seminole County required to pay a garbage tax for those months their homes are closed?"

Commissioners voting in February to support the establishment of a Seminole County garbage tax district were Dick Van Der Weide, Daryl McLain and Pat Warren, with Larry Furlong and Carlton Henley opposing the garbage tax.

Telson said that many parts of the garbage tax district proposal disturb him, that the postcard mailed by the county to all residents did not ask for a straw vote and that he doesn't feel Seminole County residents should subsidize private companies.

The term of the LIHEAP contract is from April 1, 1994 through March 31, 1995.
The DCA sent the information to the city early last month, and requested that a revised amendment to the original LIHEAP agreement be sent to Tallahassee.

The increase is scheduled to be discussed at the June 13th Sanford City Commission meeting, with a deadline for completing forms and the submitting the contract requested by June 15th. The DCA warns that contracts not returned on time stand a risk of losing funds.

In a letter to City Manager Bill Simmons, Lucy Shepard, community program administrator suggested, "Please revise your budget, budget details, work plan and work plan summary to reflect changes in allocations and number of households served."

Of the total allocation of $188,705, an amended LIHEAP budget listing has allocated $125,600 for home energy assistance payments, $18,876 for crisis payments, and $3,776 for weather related and supply shortage problems.

The rest, a total of $40,513 will be used for such items as salaries rent and travel for the program's subgrantee administration and outreach expenses. The consideration of the amendment to the LIHEAP program is on the agenda for Monday night's regular city commission meeting. City Manager Simmons has recommended the increase be approved.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue.

Graduation

Baumhofer addressed the class with the enthusiasm of the leader of a pep rally. Like most graduation speakers, she expressed confidence that the Class of 1994 would succeed. The class, she said, had entered Lake Mary four years ago, seeing themselves "as the coolest freshmen" ever to enter the school and were now ready to "begin our lives as, hopefully, mature, responsible adults."

Honor student speaker Katherine Shih was, like the others, confident that the class would go on to do great things. Her remarks were tempered with a "reality check," however.

"I don't want to burst anyone's bubble, but we alone are not the world," she said.

She challenged the students live by some simple rules (including "cherish each moment," "enjoy the finer things in life," "don't eat yellow snow" and "always wear clean underwear.") As such, they would be assured success and a fun time.

Most importantly, she told her fellow graduates, one must hold onto one's childhood. Children, she said, don't always find it necessary to color in the lines provided by a coloring book picture. Coloring outside the lines makes for "a bigger, messier, picture" and children have the ability to see the beauty in that.

"Don't lose your ability to see beyond the lines," she said. "And occasionally, live outside the lines."

As the thunder of an approaching storm rumbled outside the arena, the music inside built to a crescendo as the names of each graduate were called for that student to come and accept his diploma.

"Graduation should not be an ending," principal Raymond Gaines said. "It should be a beginning. Go out and enjoy."

tree-jumper. That's jail slang for rapist." Over a long period of time involving short conversations, the prisoner said Meyers revealed information that he'd killed someone.

According to the testimony, Meyers and a girl had gone to the woods next to the Cove to smoke some "dope" but when Meyers made sexual advances, the girl "fought against him, denying him." The inmate said Meyers told him he flashed a knife at the girl and although it wasn't his intention, he lost his temper and slashed her throat.

Meyers allegedly described in graphic detail the girl's death to his fellow inmate and said it was not quick, as such a death is portrayed on television, but took a long time. "It seemed like a half hour, but it was probably more like five minutes," the inmate testified Meyers told him.

Meyers and Engels were last seen, according to an earlier prosecution witness, walking away from a mobile home in Carriage Cove.

The witness also said Meyers became agitated when he learned of planned road construction near Carriage Cove and asked if he had a trusted contact outside of prison who could dig up a body and move it. "I told him I did, but I was lying," the inmate added.

At the time, a person could not be prosecuted for murder in the State of Florida if no body was found. In 1991, a state supreme court decision has allowed certain circumstantial evidence to be used to show a person is dead, even though a corpse is not found.

Another prison inmate testified Meyers made the comments, "he did it" and "no body, no case," to him in 1987 while Meyers was jailed on an unrelated case but did not report it to authorities.

In July, 1993, the witness saw a newspaper story about the unsolved Engels case and remembered Meyers' comments. He said he thought Meyers was in jail in 1987 for the Engels disappearance not another charge. Other inmates testified Wednesday that Meyers said he buried the body so it couldn't be found.

Trial testimony is expected to continue into next week. This morning Circuit Court Judge Alan A. Dickey is expected to rule on whether to allow testimony from an Episcopal priest and a rape victim.

business gatherings to the area. Based on surveys of meeting planners and promoters of concert and consumer shows, Real Estate Research Consultants Inc. found a 155,000-square-foot facility could host an average of 150 groups of up to 6,000 to 8,000 people.

With parking and drainage needs, up to 40 acres will be needed for the center, consultants found. In studying potential sites in the county, consultants found State Road 436 at Interstate 4 the prime location for the center because of available hotel rooms, traffic access and nearby shopping and dining. However, the consultants found there wasn't enough land close to the hotel rooms for the center.

The Seminole Towne Center site, followed by Lake Mary Boulevard at I-4 offer the next-highest potential for the facility due to available land and limited access problems, consultants found. The Towne Center has a hotel site capable of supporting up to 600 rooms. The mall site also has about 30 acres available for development, consultants found. Much of the land nearby is vacant.

A Sanford site at U.S. Highway 17-92 at the GreeneWay and one in Oviedo were found less desirable due to access and other limits.

The project would cost $26.3 million, excluding land costs. The facility would operate at a $298,700 deficit each year. It would generate $459,000 for the county and $112,000 for the seven cities each year. But with an estimated annual building debt payment of $2.6 million, the facility would operate at about a $2.4 million deficit. Even a 1 percent increase in the tourist tax would carve about $300,000 from that amount.

Consultants said the operating expense shortfall is typical of most convention centers. They suggested the county and cities might want to share in the construction debt for the general good of the community or as a spur to development.

penation claims judges is vested." Chief Justice Stephen Grimes wrote in rejecting one judge's bid to force Chiles to renege him.

The claims judge in Satellite Beach, John Paul Jones Jr., had cited a statute requiring the governor to reappoint the judges if they are recommended for retention by a statewide nominating panel.

Jones is one of about a dozen compensation claims judges who have been recommended for new four-year commissions by the panel but continue to serve without them.

Chiles stopped granting the commissions in 1992, balking at a system that required him to reappoint those the 15-member panel recommended regardless of whether he had concerns about their ethics or productivity.

Lawmakers revised the law in a special session last fall, requiring the commission to give Chiles two alternative names as well as that of the judge seeking reappointment.

Jones, a compensation claims judge since 1972, argued that his bid for a sixth term came before the change and he should be reappointed under the old law.

But the court said because it was declaring the old section unconstitutional, "We find that the governor is free to proceed under the new appointment procedure."

The justices disagreed with Jones' argument that the governor didn't have a constitutional right to appoint compensation claims judges because they exercise judicial powers and, as judicial officers, are governed by Supreme Court rules.

The judges are part of the Workers Compensation Division of the Department of Labor and Employment Security, an executive department under the governor's supervision, the court ruled. "The Legislature has chosen to place compensation claims judges within the executive branch."

Because of that, Grimes wrote, the old retention procedure "violates the separation of powers doctrine to the extent that it deprives the governor of his power to appoint and reappoint."

Spokesmen for both the state and national parties have derided Chiles' charge. Scott and other Republican leaders in the state Senate also denied it.

Health care wasn't all that died in the special session.

Proposals to strengthen state law to make it easier to prosecute cases of elderly abuse and transfer some of the aging programs still in the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services to the Department of Elderly Affairs were worked on in committee but never made it to the floor.

Other issues under consideration would have spelled out in state law a parent's right to spank and given the Department of Corrections more money for prison operations because expansions are coming on line faster than expected.

The justices disagreed with Jones' argument that the governor didn't have a constitutional right to appoint compensation claims judges because they exercise judicial powers and, as judicial officers, are governed by Supreme Court rules.

Lyman High School graduates Class of '94

Graduates at Lyman High School in Longwood were more than excited about getting their diplomas during yesterday's commencement ceremonies at Greyhound stadium. Diplomas were awarded during an early morning ceremony that was kissed by the sun. Graduates, such as Christopher Whiteside, left, and Denise Young choreographed exciting victory dances to celebrate the completion of their high school careers. Students were lauded by district and school administrators for their accomplishments and encouraged to look toward their promising futures. Nearly 450 graduates crossed the stage to accept their diplomas and bask, if only briefly, in the limelight before moving on to the next stages of their lives.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Firefighters can read Playboy

LOS ANGELES — Firefighters can read Playboy in Los Angeles County firehouses as long as they keep any comments to themselves and don't hang up the centerfold where unwilling viewers might see it.

U.S. District Judge Stephen Wilson ruled Thursday in favor of fire Capt. Steven Johnson, who sued to overturn the county's ban on sexually explicit material in firehouses. The 2-year-old ban was designed to prevent sexual harassment, but the judge said it violated Johnson's First Amendment rights.

"The clear message is that if you don't like what someone is reading, you don't have to look at it," the 49-year-old firefighter said.

Johnson — who works 24-hour shifts at a remote, all-male station in the Mojave Desert and testified that he had never worked with a woman during 27 years with the department — said he planned to bring his Playboy to work today.

The judge said his ruling didn't mean firefighters can make lewd comments or display pictures to unwilling viewers, because those acts are prohibited by other sections of the sexual harassment policy.

Businesses would buy health insurance

WASHINGTON — Businesses would be forced to buy health insurance for workers and their families beginning in 1998 under a version of President Clinton's troubled health care plan approved by a Senate committee.

But the measure attracted only one Republican vote Thursday in the Senate Labor Committee, and it was likely to encounter stiff opposition elsewhere in Congress.

At the same time, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, told the Democratic party line and offered a blueprint for health insurance as a basic benefit on the job.

Clinton called it "an historic day," saying, "While much work remains, today's actions prove that the job will be done."

Arms embargo may be lifted

WASHINGTON — Rejecting White House warnings of foreign policy disarray, Congress says the United States should defy its NATO allies and open the flow of arms to Bosnia.

A House measure to lift the arms embargo, passed 244-178 Thursday, amounts to a slap at President Clinton's foreign policy and a vote of no confidence in the ability of the United Nations to resolve the conflict in the former Yugoslavia.

"Let us be clear," said Rep. Susan Molinari, R-N.Y. "The United Nations have failed these people."

Last month, the Senate passed a similar measure but then muddled the waters by passing a contradictory proposal urging the administration to lift the embargo only if Western allies support the move, the position supported by Clinton. Further votes and negotiations between the House and Senate will be needed before Thursday's action becomes law.

Vets welcome bill's endorsement

MOBILE, Ala. — Dale Glover is afraid his next blackout will happen when he's behind the wheel.

"I blacked out day before yesterday in the middle of watching my little girl play ball. The blackout lasts about a minute, tops, but it seems like eternity," said the 31-year-old Army veteran and Baptist youth minister.

On Thursday, he and other veterans welcomed the Clinton administration's endorsement of a bill to compensate victims of the mysterious "Persian Gulf Syndrome." It would pay military personnel $87 to $1,770 a month, depending on the extent of their disabilities.

WORLD BRIEFS

Nuclear crisis fact of life

SEOUL, South Korea — When Pfc. Alan Bowen is busy repairing engines on Humvee vehicles, he doesn't dwell on the nuclear crisis in North Korea. He doesn't have to — it's always in the back of his mind.

"I never think about it," the 25-year-old Texan said quietly, turning a coffee mug in callused hands. "And I never don't think about it."

Across base, P.J. Fry, a colonel's wife, was making a quick stop at the commissary to buy sodas for her two sons. A small frown creased her forehead at the mention of North Korea.

"I'm just doing what I always do, looking after my family," she said. "I think if it were really dangerous, they'd get the dependents out of here."

But Yongsan is a company town, existing for one purpose: It's the headquarters of the U.S. 8th Army, home to 7,500 American soldiers, dependents and civilian employees.

U.S. forces in South Korea, numbering about 38,000, are a crucial line of defense against any attack by North Korea. The North says economic sanctions — which the United Nations is considering to force the Communist state to open its nuclear program — would mean war.

Smoke, smoke, smoke that cigarette

By HARRY P. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — In one of the few public places in America where smoking is permitted — nay, encouraged — hardly anybody lit up. The surgeon general would have been proud.

Oh, those devils made it so easy. Everything about the place beckoned: "Puff me." It was enough to make a reformed smoker cry.

Discreet small signs proclaimed, "Smoking permitted." Leggy young women in short skirts and black stockings offered packages of cigarettes and stogies. The combo played "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes," "My Old Flame" and lest the point get lost "Winston Tastes Good Like a Cigarette Should."

Marlin Fitzwater, the Reagan-Bush press secretary known for his love of cigars, was handed a big black one, sniffed it, and stuck it into a pocket.

"I'm so conditioned not to smoke inside a building, I don't bring them," he said. "They stay in my car, the last safe haven."

There was a 3-foot-high ice sculpture of a pack of Marlboros.

And, oh, the buffet table: smoked Norwegian salmon, smoked mozzarella, smoked Parma ham, five kinds of smoked fish — sable, sturgeon, trout, mackerel and halibut — smoked Gouda cheese, smoked sausage and, for desert, chocolate cigarettes and cigars.

The combo played "Puff, the Magic Dragon."

Still, a quick, unreliable survey of the 400 people there for a book party showed only four people with lit cigarettes and one woman drawing deeply on a cigar. Nobody, not one, wore the gas masks thoughtfully supplied at the entrance.

That was on the inside. Outside the Ritz-Carlton Hotel on Embassy Row, fog machines blew smoke out of an entrance and two second-floor windows. "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" could be heard from the ballroom.

The fire department had been alerted that there was a smoke-theme party to promote a new book but the word hadn't gotten to the evening shift. Four engines responded to a good citizen's alert with lights flashing, sirens blaring and blocked Massachusetts Avenue at rush hour.

The book publicity people swear they didn't engineer it. They said the same thing about the second set of fire trucks.

Hotel employees greeted startled firemen with "Go away, go away."

Inside, pianist Peter Robinson, belted the politically incorrect "A woman is only a woman, but a good cigar is a smoke."

The party was to promote a very funny new book (you've come to the plug) by Christopher Buckley, a satire called "Thank You for Smoking." It is published by Random House and sells for $22. (Second plug.)

Buckley's hero is Nick Naylor, chief spokesman for the tobacco industry who fends off attacks brought on by each new study of cancer risks.

He got the idea "from watching various talking heads from the Tobacco Institute manfully denying any link between smoking and cancer," Buckley said. "I'm drawn to people who lie for a living."

And the Robinson trio played on: "Smoke, Smoke, Smoke That Cigarette!" "My Old Flame" and the romantic "Two Sleepy People," which begins, "Here we are, out of cigarettes."

Graffiti artists nabbed

By The Associated Press

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Nearly four dozen suspected graffiti vandals proudly showed off their work for a documentary — or so they thought. The movie was really a police sting that sent most of them to jail instead of Hollywood.

"So does this mean I'm not going to L.A.?" one of the bewildered youths was quoted by police as saying.

The sting identified 48 "heavy-duty taggers" ranging in age from 11 to the late teens and believed to have caused at least $80,000 in damage in the San Jose area, police said. Thirty-one had been arrested as of Thursday.

The sting began in April when undercover officers distributed fliers looking for graffiti artists for a documentary. Those picked were promised a free trip to Los Angeles.

Applicants were directed to a storefront supposedly operated by Star-Comm Universal Productions. Graffiti artists filled out a questionnaire about the extent of their activity.

"This essentially weeded out the wannabes ... and allowed us to target the more serious offenders," Officer Louis Quezada said. The suspects also "auditioned" on easels in the storefront.

The bogus filmmakers asked if the suspects had handiwork in the area they could show them.

"The taggers of course said, 'Of course we do,' and would take the officers and the film crew to the locations where they tagged," Quezada said. "They were very proud of their artistic work, as they called it."

When they applied for the documentary, the graffiti artists signed a form saying they would refrain from vandalism during filming. But the lure proved just too strong for several suspects who took officers to a freeway underpass.

"The officers were conducting an interview only when one of the little taggers took out his paint," Quezada said. "The film crew was actually saying, 'Stop, don't do that, stop,' but the rest of them also started."

Duper pleads innocent

FORT LAUDERDALE — Former Miami Dolphins receiver Mark Duper pleaded innocent to drug charges at his arraignment Thursday.

Duper and his brother-in-law, Brian Briggs, remained free on bail after appearing before U.S. Magistrate Lurana Snow.

Duper, released by the Dolphins prior to last season, and Briggs were charged last month with possession of cocaine and conspiracy to possess cocaine with intent to distribute.

AROUND THE NATION

Pirates hold off Marlins

PITTSBURGH — Orlando Merced broke out of a slump with a two-run double and Zane Smith and two relievers worked out of a succession of jams as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Florida Marlins 3-1 Thursday night.

Smith (6-5) gave up nine hits in 6 2/3 innings and allowed at least two runners to reach in five different innings.

He was working on a shutout until the seventh, when Jesus Tavarez reached on shortstop Jay Bell's error and later scored on Jerry Browne's groundout.

Canucks avoid elimination

NEW YORK — Keep the cork in the bottle, the confetti in the can. The Stanley Cup Finals are going back to Vancouver.

The Canucks spoiled a huge Garden party Thursday night, blowing a 3-0 lead but beating the New York Rangers 6-3 by scoring three goals in a 3:33 span of the third period.

Vancouver, trying to become only the second team in finals' history to rally from a 3-1 series deficit, plays host to Game 6 on Saturday night.

Game 7, if necessary, would be Tuesday night at the Garden.

Sooners to face Georgia Tech

OMAHA, Neb. — Larry Cochell says he isn't much of a prognosticator, but his Oklahoma Sooners are getting close to proving him wrong.

"I told our kids in Austin that we'd win the national championship, and I'm not much of a predictor," said Cochell.

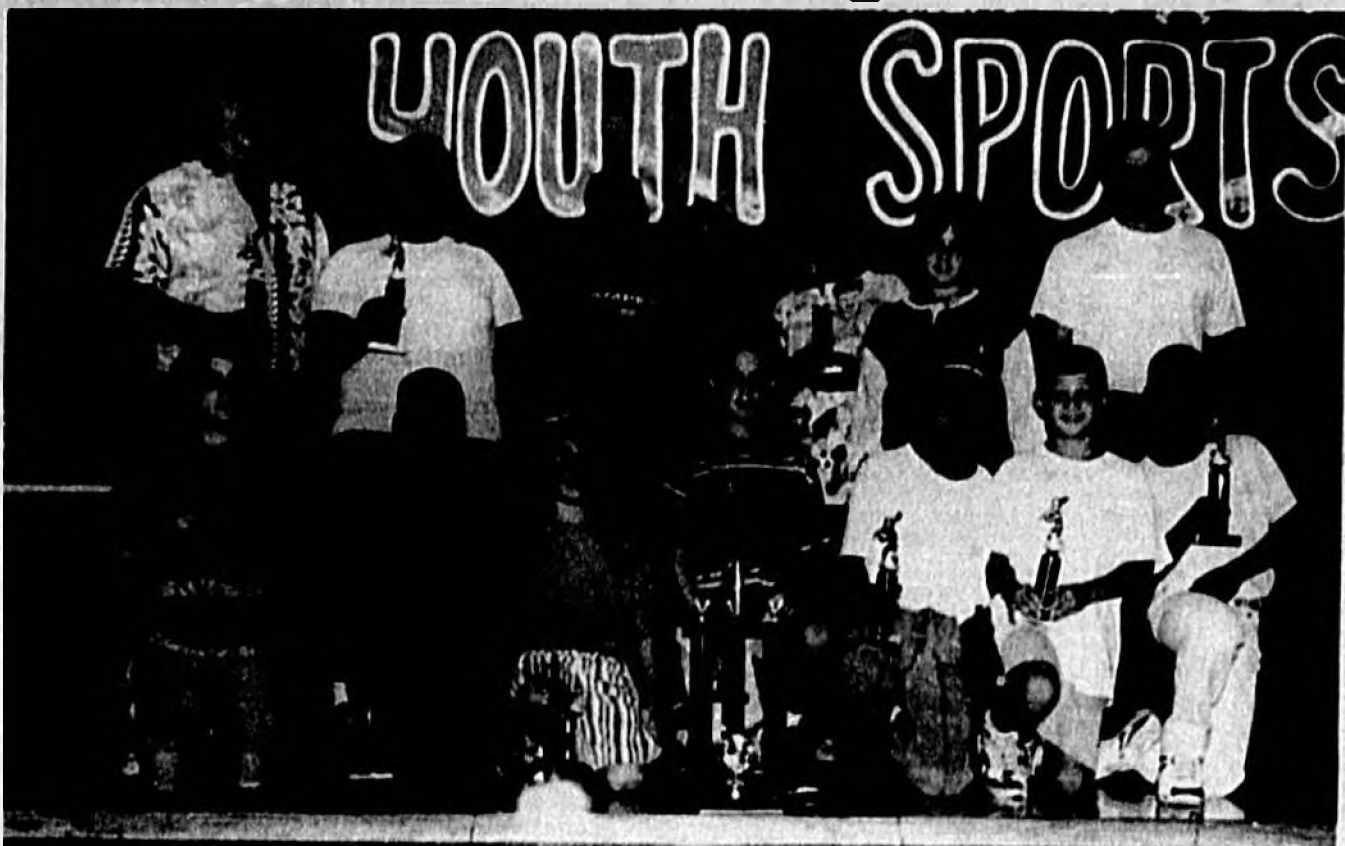

The Sooners advanced to the series championship game with a 9-1 victory over Arizona State Thursday. They will play Georgia Tech (50-18) for the title Saturday.

Red Sox receive 'hardware'

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Even though they won the championship on the field a week ago Tuesday, the Sunniland Corporation Red Sox were formally crowned the Sanford Recreation Little Major League City Champions at the league's awards banquet Thursday night at the Sanford Civic Center.

The festivities began with each player and coach in the league being introduced and presented a certificate commemorating their participation.

After that, trophies were presented to the league's top four teams: the Red Sox (City Champions, American Division champions), Disabled American Veteran Royals (City Championship and American Division runners-up), Railroaders Cubs (National Division champions), and Rinker Material Dodgers (National Division runners-up).

In the first round of the playoffs, the Red Sox swept the Dodgers and the Royals eliminated the Cubs. The Red Sox then swept the Royals, 8-3 and 9-4, to cap a 20-0 season.

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Roince/Florida Sport Wear's and Touchdown Pub's losses were Ken Rummel Chevrolet's and M.A. Erectors' gain.

It was a night of missed opportunities for the top two teams in the Sanford Recreation Thursday Men's Softball League at Chase Park. As a result, a two-team race is now a four-team shootout.

Second-place Touchdown Pub had the first shot at pulling away from the pack, but fell to Ken Rummel Chevrolet 12-11 on an unearned run in the top of the eighth inning.

Touchdown Pub's loss gave league-leading Roince/Florida Sport Wear a chance to open a two-game lead over the rest of the league with three weeks left. And it looked like that's what would happen when Roince/FSW took a 4-0 lead into the fifth inning over M.A. Erectors.

But a two-run home run by Octavio Torres in the bottom of the fifth ignited the M.A. Erectors' offense. M.A. Erectors scored a run in the fifth and three runs in the sixth to hand Roince/FSW its second straight loss, 6-4.

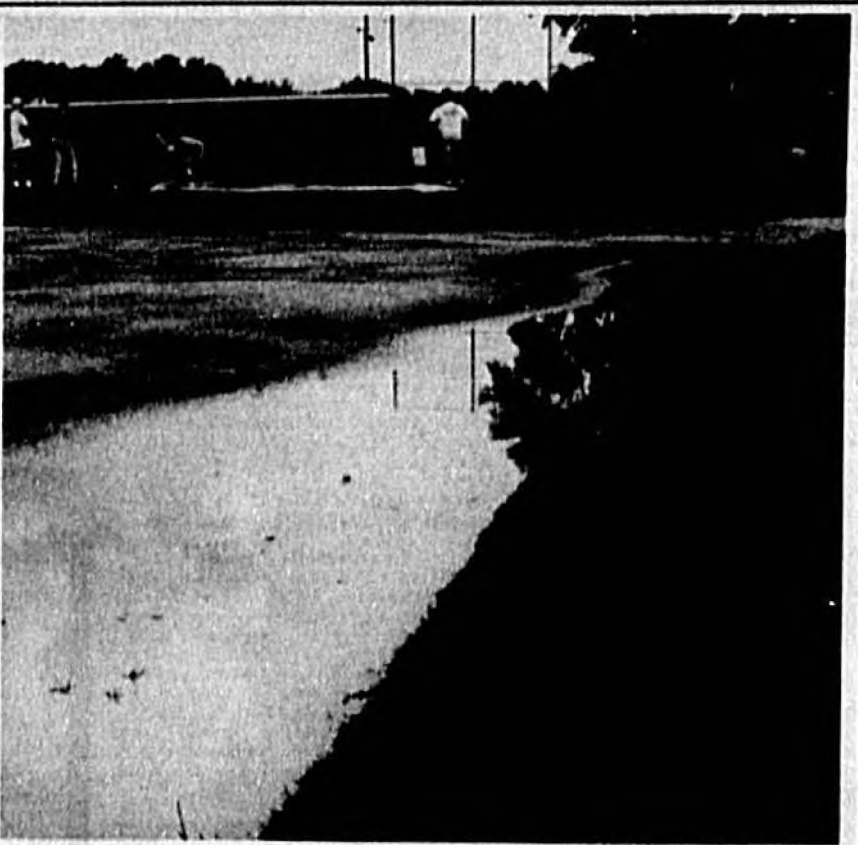

The final game also was a barn-burner, Desk-Mate breaking a 5-5 tie with three runs in the bottom of the sixth, then withstanding a Stiffey's Affordable's rally for an 8-7 victory.

Roince/Florida Sport Wear (5-2) holds on to the league lead but Touchdown Pub, M.A. Erectors, and Ken Rummel Chevrolet are all one game back at 4-3 records. Desk-Mate (2-4) moves into fifth ahead of Stiffey's Affordables (1-5).

Next week, Desk-Mate tackles Roince/Florida Sport Wear at 6:30 p.m.; Touchdown Pub faces Stiffey's Affordables at 7:30 p.m.; and M.A. Erectors battles Ken Rummel Chevrolet at 8:30 p.m.

Reflections of summer

Even though this week's rain left the Lyman High School field unplayable for Thursday's summer league game with Seminole, the Grayhound pitching staff still managed to get in some work.

Pinehurst game 3 on 'strange' streak

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Something strange always seems to happen in the third game of the Sanford Recreation Thursday Men's Softball League at Pinehurst Park.

The first week, the game was 'sprinklered' out. The next four weeks saw the winning team score at least 20 runs. Last week, there was a remarkable comeback.

This week was no exception. After the first two games ended with the league leaders winning by the 12-run rule after five innings, Mobilite and Briar Corporation took the field for a run-scoring marathon.

After the Wayne Densch-Budmen opened the night by whitewashing The Utter Guys 12-0 on five hits, Beer:30 overcame a 2-0 deficit to blitz Ryder-MLS 16-4.

Mobilite fired the first salvo in the late game, putting up five runs in the top of the first inning. Briar answered with six in the bottom of the first. Mobilite came back with seven in the top of the second, but Briar rallied to tie the score at 12-12 with two runs in the second and four in the third.

Mobilite took a 16-13 lead into the bottom of the fifth, only to have Briar appear to seize a 21-16 lead with an

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Some of the best high school basketball players to ever perform in Seminole County took the hardwood at the Crooms School of Choice Gymnasium as the Sanford Recreation Department Adult Summer Basketball League got underway Thursday night.

In the opening game of the night, Bernard Eaddy and Earl Williams led four players into double figures as the Nasty Boys dumped the Lincoln Heights Air Force, 54-38.

Eaddy poured in eight of his 10 points in the first half as the Nasty Boys took a 32-16 lead at intermission. Also scoring in double figures were Bobby C. with a team-high 11 points and Williams and Jerry P. netted 10 each. Reginald J. chipped in with nine points.

Gentry Charlton paced Lincoln Heights with 11 points.

In the second game, Merthie's Law used a 58-point second half to eight-run fifth. Once again Mobilite rallied, scoring six runs in the top of the seventh to go back on top, 22-21.

Briar put an end to the nonsense in the bottom of the seventh as Ruben Garcia singled and took third on a single by Beri Burgess, who went to second on the throw. Allan Truskaskas then ended the game with a two run single.

The game featured 45 runs and 50 hits, 21 of which went for extra bases.

With three weeks left in the season, Beer:30 is 6-1, Wayne Densch 5-2, Briar Corporation 4-3, The Utter Guys 2-4, Ryder-MLS 2-5 and Mobilite 1-5.

Next week, Briar Corporation takes on Ryder-MLS at 6:30 p.m.; Wayne Densch plays Mobilite at 7:30 p.m.;

Just the facts about FDA Proposal Aim is to provide labeling for dietary supplements

You may have heard some startling statements in recent months about a proposal from the Food and Drug Administration regarding vitamins. Maybe you've heard this one: "All vitamins will now require a prescription." Or this one: "My vitamins are no longer going to be available, thanks to the FDA."

There is a great deal of misinformation surrounding the FDA proposal. Here are the facts.

On June 18, 1993, the Federal Register, the daily record of congressional activity, carried a 61-page proposal from the FDA. The goal of the proposal is to ensure safety and proper labeling of dietary supplements while protecting the consumer's freedom of choice.

The FDA defines "dietary supplements" as products containing vitamins, minerals, amino acids, herbs, and other similar nutritional substances. Vitamins and minerals comprise approximately 80 percent of all dietary supplements.

Vitamins and minerals are not the target of the FDA-proposed regulations, however, so long as they are being sold at reasonable potencies and without disease-fighting claims. The primary focus of the FDA proposal is the regulation of sale of high-potency amino acids, herbs, and other related nutritional which often express or imply disease-fighting claims and have little or no scientific support of effectiveness and safety.

CONSUMER FOCUS

BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

The FDA came forward with the proposal because of changes in the dietary supplement market. Antioxidant sales have skyrocketed in the wake of claims they may lower the risk of chronic disease; amino acids are an increasingly popular product with bodybuilders; herbal products that are promoted as cures for disease and weight loss are selling well.

Another concern of the FDA is the wide availability of these products. Dietary supplements can be purchased not only at drug and health food stores, but also at grocery and convenience stores as well as by mail order.

Coupled with these concerns are reported cases of death and injury from products other than vitamins and minerals. A familiar case occurred in 1989 with L-Tryptophan, an amino acid marketed as a sleep aid, was pulled from the market after 38 reported deaths and more than 1,500 cases of eosinophilia myalgia syndrome (EMS). Other reports within the last year link herbs such as ginseng, comfrey, and chaparral with liver toxicity and an herbal powder weight-loss regimen with kidney failure.

The FDA succeeded last year in lobbying Congress for passage of the Nutrition Labeling and Education Act, which mandates nutrition labeling for almost all processed foods, limits health claims, establishes reference Daily Values for certain nutrients, and defines serving sizes. The law goes into effect this July, but many manufacturers have already begun to comply; the new label is easily recognized because it carries the words "Nutrition Facts" instead of "Nutrition Information."

FDA wants to require dietary supplements to comply with these regulations with respect to the use of health claims. It also wants to remove hazardous products from the market and restrict products that are marketed as drugs — such as amino acid-containing supplements — to comply with the provisions of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act.

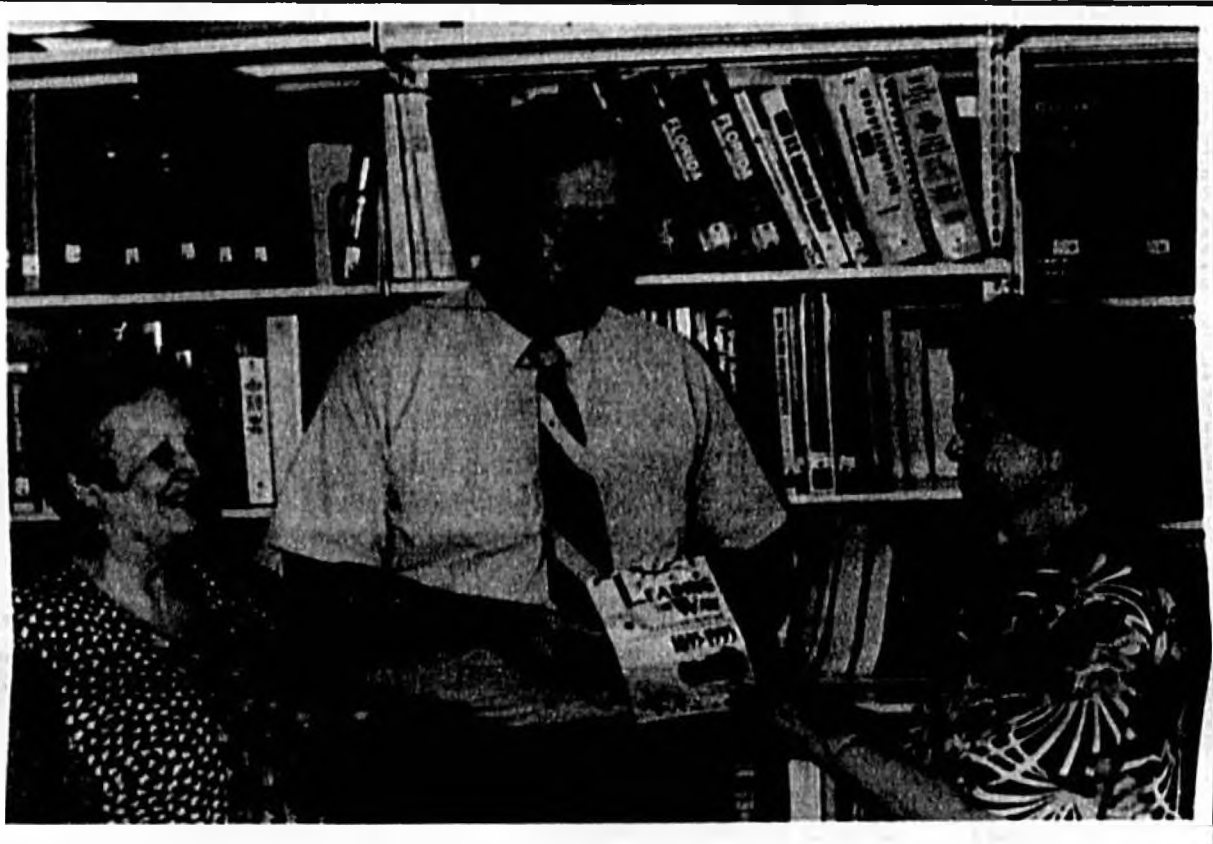

FDA is not attempting to remove the consumer's right to choose dietary supplements; it merely wants to make that choice a safer and more well-informed decision. A few dietary supplements, such as high-dose amino acids, may be considered for prescription status, but the FDA will have the burden of first proving that such designations are necessary.

He wore pants, but too short

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I vacationed in Europe last July, and we did all the things tourists do — lots of sight-seeing, etc. It's very warm in Europe that time of year, so my husband insisted on wearing shorts. His came about four inches above the knee.

I thought it was in poor taste — that a pair of trousers would have been more appropriate.

Well, Abby, we are still arguing about whether shorts are appropriate for sight-seeing in Europe. He said your advice will rule for future trips to Europe, and I agreed to go along with your advice. So?

ELLEN IN ATLANTA
DEAR ELLEN: I don't know who wears the pants in your family, but if your husband does, they should be long. (Most churches and museums in Europe will not admit people in shorts.)

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend and I are very much in love and want to get married, but there are several problems. The first is, her mother does not like me.

The next problem is my age. I won't be 18 until this October. My girlfriend won't be 18 until December, which means her mom can prevent our getting married — which is what she has done so far.

By the way, I'm in jail right now — but I will be out in September.

I am now in the process of starting a new life. A minister came by recently and he "saved" me. You see, I took Jesus Christ as my personal savior, which means now I am born again and delivered from sin.

My girlfriend's mother is not convinced. What should I do?

SAVED IN SOUTH CAROLINA
DEAR SAVED: You will have to wait until you and your girlfriend are both of legal age before you can marry without parental consent. However, I suggest that you both have counseling from your clergyman before you consider anything as permanent as a marriage.

DEAR ABBY: A 17-year-old neighbor girl baby-sits our 3-year-old when we go out for an evening. Her boyfriend (he's 18) comes over to keep her company. I imagine they do a certain amount of necking and petting because all the lights are out when we come home; they look embarrassed and their clothes are in disarray. My husband doesn't think our sitter should have company while she's baby-sitting.

I say, it's none of our business. What do you, say, Abby?

THE LADY OF THE HOUSE

DEAR LADY: I say, since it's your house, it's your business. Your sitter is paid to take care of your child, and she should not have her boyfriend there to keep her company.

SURPRISING QUOTE: "Errol Flynn died on a 72-foot yacht with a 17-year-old girl. Walter always wanted to go that way, but he'll have to settle for a 70-year-old wife."

Drinking problem may actually exist

DEAR MARY: I'll bet you've never heard of something like this before. For years I have allowed myself to have a drink at 5 p.m. to help me relax and "unwind" after work. I really look forward to that time. In fact, even if I need to go somewhere else when I get off, I always make sure I'm home in time for my "cocktail hour." If I don't get home by 5 p.m., I get kind of shaky and weak and begin to get light-headed. I try to only allow myself two drinks in the evening and four each day on the weekend, but sometimes I get a little carried away.

LOOK FORWARD TO 5
DEAR LOOK FORWARD: If you have some suspicion that you have a problem with alcohol, there's an excellent chance that you do. You may also be headed toward more serious problems. People who have a drinking problem tend to think about when, where and how they'll drink quite often. They plan how they're going to get it and when they are going to use it. A person with an alcohol problem also tends to repeatedly drink more than they intend to. From what you have told me, it sounds like you have reason for concern. You can receive an assessment for free or little charge from any treatment facility in the area. I suggest you give one a call.

COFFEE, TEA AND CORNPLASTERS...

There aren't many of us left who remember Sixbey's General Store. It was more than a store; it was a gathering place, a new bureau, a bright spot in a child's summer afternoon. You would come in from the hot dusty street, and the shaded store was cool. Immediately you encountered a tantalizing blend of scents—apples, licorice, spices and smoked ham. Grown-up conversation enhanced your feeling of excitement as they viewed and reviewed town happenings. You always took a long time to decide between a chocolate or a lemon drop, so that this exciting visit could be prolonged.

Our town has changed since then. For those of us whose memories linger in Sixbey's Store, it hardly seems the same place.

Yet, one thing's the same. At the corner of Elm and Main, St. Mark's steeple still points skyward. Our need for God never changes. And the Church remains constant as it teaches the truths of God's love and presence. Why not see for yourself this week?

LAKE MARY — St. Peter's Episcopal Church's second medical mission to Honduras leaves Orlando International Airport, on Aero Costa Rica, Saturday at 4 p.m.

The first highly successful mission to Quince de Enero, Honduras was organized last year by church members Steve Israel and John Millonig. The medical mission followed the building of a church in the village of Quince de Enero, entirely funded by St. Peter's, in 1991.

On this second mission, 41 team members expect to supply medical treatment and minister to more than 1000 patients from 11 villages, based on last years records. In August 1993, two doctors, two dentists and 16 support staff worked four 9-hour days, at four stations, seeing an average of 25 patients an hour.

There are four medical doctors on the team this year, and a Honduran doctor will join them in the country. One of four dentists, Lake Mary dentist Bobby Sharp is making his second trip to Honduras.

Other treatment stations will include worming, delousing and a pharmacy. Medications may be administered and prescribed by the team, under the guidelines set up by the Honduran government. This was one of the time consuming responsibilities of the trip planners. All medicines and credentials must be approved by the government prior to the team entering the country.

The Quince de Enero Medical Mission team gathered Sunday, at St. Peter's, for a special "send off" service. Father Beverly Barge (center

In addition to the medical treatment, the team members are expanding the scope of their contact with the local population. Educational materials and videos, in Spanish, have been procured and part of the team will be teaching health education to the villagers. Ten well-stocked first aid kits have been prepared with donated medical supplies, and a Red Cross first aid manual in Spanish, will be given to 10 villages where representatives have completed the required first aid courses, which will also be taught by the team.

Simple eye exams will also be given and eye glasses prescribed.

The needs of the animals of the village will also be tended to this year. Winter Park veterinarian Lee Gibb will join the team in Honduras. Gibb left earlier this week to travel to the Talanga Valley, outside of the capital, Tegucigalpa. He has been involved, for 10 years, in an ongoing project at the Home of Love and Hope, a haven for abandoned boys. Episcopal missions have built a technical school and a dairy at the home. There are only two commercial dairies in the whole country. Honduras imports $50 million in powdered milk from the United States each year. Gibb says the local cattle do not produce well, only 6-8 pounds of milk per day. Gibb was part of a team that brought 20 Holsteins to Honduras several years ago. Holsteins produce 65-75 pounds of milk a day. In Quince de Enero, Gibb will treat horses and mules, the backbone of the agrarian economy, for worms, ticks and saddle sores, and will administer vaccinations.

The Home of Love and Hope is how St. Peter's rector, Father Beverly Barge, first became connected with the Diocese of Honduras.

Barge will be honored on Sunday, June 12, at the El Buen Pastor Cathedral, in San Pedro Sula, by the Right Reverend Leo Frade, Bishop of Honduras, with the title of Honorary Canon for the "fervent work you and your congregation have done in Honduras."

Grace Christian begins 'Reach Our World' campaign

By MARY ROWELL
Herald Columnist

To introduce their "Reach Our World" Campaign, Grace Christian Church of Lake Mary held tent services, June 5, on their new property. They dedicated the site and announced building plans. Groundbreaking for the new church is tentatively scheduled for August of this year.

Sunday, June 5 was also a big day for the youth of the church. It was the kickoff of Vacation Bible School.

Since Grace doesn't yet have the facilities to have week-long Bible school, the curriculum and activities for VBS are spread out every Sunday over the summer. Grace tried this approach last year for the first time and it went over extremely well.

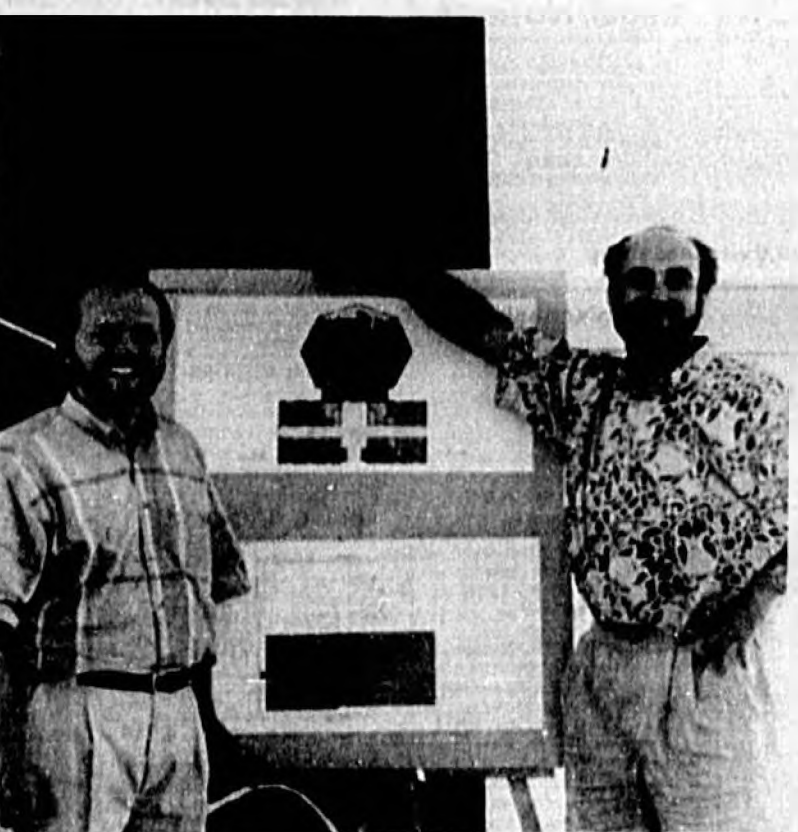

The tent services and Sunday School were followed by a barbecue. The congregation enjoyed a meal of barbecue beef and chicken, baked beans, salad and desserts. After the feast, members enjoyed a few games of volleyball beside the tent.

Grace Christian Church began meeting in April 1987 at the Altamonte Springs Holiday Inn. In June 1987, the congregation had expanded enough for their first move to the Seminole Family YMCA in Lake Mary. Grace outgrew the facilities at the YMCA and moved to Wilson Elementary in August of 1990.

After a lot of prayer and fund raising, Grace Christian Church purchased a site near Wilson Elementary in January of this year. The "Reach Our World" campaign is designed to raise funds for building the church. In late August, the church will be selling bonds to help with the campaign.

If you would like more information about the church or the bonds, please call Dr. Steve Graham, pastor, at 321-7660.

Treatments for bronchial asthma

DEAR DR. GOTT: About a month ago I had a cold and now have developed a wheeze that is being controlled with antibiotics and inhalers. What else can I take to assist this aggravating occurrence?

DEAR READER: Bronchial asthma often follows relatively trivial upper respiratory infections in people who are prone to this condition. As the infection moves downward into the bronchial tubes, wheezing, coughing and difficulty breathing may appear.

Bronchial asthma is treated with antibiotics and inhaled sprays, such as prescription Ventolin or over-the-counter Primatene Mist. Other drugs can also be used. These include pills to dilate the bronchial tree, cortisone (in pills or inhalers), and other medications. Once the infection has run its course (usually one or two weeks), the medicine can be discontinued. If your symptoms are controlled by your present medicines, follow your doctor's advice about how long to take them. If you continue to wheeze, despite your therapy, ask him about the other treatment plans -- especially cortisone -- that I mentioned.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm very concerned about fat and cholesterol in my diet. Therefore, my question is: which is better -- real butter or margarine?

DEAR READER: For people on low-cholesterol diets, margarine is superior to butter. Remember to use the softest brand available, because the harder the margarine at room temperature, the more saturated fat it contains.

Of course, if you wish to reduce your total dietary fat (not just cholesterol), you'll have to go easy on the margarine and other oils in your food.

Much to the delight of the dairy industry, some medical studies have suggested that, from a statistical perspective, people who substitute margarine for butter don't live any longer.

Nonetheless, most nutrition experts recommend that people with high cholesterol levels avoid foods rich in that fat. Such foods include butter, cheese, iced cream, whipped cream, and whole milk: In other words, what most of us like to eat.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Edwin Meese III, the former White House counsel, described an expert as someone who is "more than 50 miles from home, has no responsibility for implementing the advice he gives, and shows slides." Maybe that's true in the political arena, but when did you last see a bridge expert with a slide projector under his arm?

Strange as it sounds, in bridge it is often easier to play against an expert than against a beginner. You can trust the former's play; the latter's is less reliable. A good example is today's deal, which occurred in the Macallan International Pairs, held last January in London.

In the second seat, a preemptive opening should guarantee a good suit, because you are as likely to be pre-empting your partner as the opponents. In third seat, South would be more inclined to open four spades. West cashed two diamond tricks before switching to the club three. East won this trick with the jack and cashed the club ace before exiting with a trump. How should South continue?

Having lost four tricks, declarer can't afford a trump loser. Considering this suit in isolation, he does better by four percent to take a first-round finesse of the jack than to play off the king and ace.

All the declarers in London knew this, yet none finessed. Why not?

Because they realized that if the trump finesse was working, East would have led a third club, forcing the dummy to ruff and killing the finesse. All the declarers won trick five with the spade king and were gratified, but not surprised, by the appearance of the queen.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
June 11, 1994

Partnership arrangements could work out desirably for you in the year ahead if they serve a mutual material need. If their purpose has a frivolous foundation, this might not be the case.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This is a good day to start implementing common-sense corrections in your health habits. If your life has been sedentary recently, begin with an exercise program. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4485, New York, N.Y. 10163.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your charm and good humor will make a favorable impression upon others today, so just be yourself. Affections or extravagant gestures won't have the same impact.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Let compassion govern your behavior today. Do things out of the goodness of your heart, even if persons with whom you're involved think they are foolish and ineffective.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will not be easily deceived by others today, because you'll be well aware of their frailties and shortcomings. However, much to your credit, you'll focus only on their virtues.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do not let insignificant matters distract you today if you have your sights set upon something that could add to your material well-being. Personal gains are probable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you're trying to promote something today, desirable results are likely if you use a "here's what it can do for you" presentation. Instead of a hard sell.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Others won't mind doing favors for you today if you don't outline what you want them to do and how they should do it. Sow the seed, and let their response come spontaneously.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan.

19) Socially, you have more influence with your peers today than you might realize. A friend who is a trifle jealous may try to upstage you, but he or she will come off second-best.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You can outdistance your competition today, provided you are truly motivated to win. If your interest is only lukewarm, we may find you back in the pack.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Others will emulate your behavior today if you first lead by example. Don't expect them to do what you can't or won't do yourself.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You can rise to the occasion today if you're motivated by unselfish desires. Do something constructive for others that you feel they can't do for themselves.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today, in matters where your aims and those of your mate are in harmony, significant results are indicated. The key is to be totally supportive of each other. Copyright 1994 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
