Hilter Is Absolute Ruler Of Germany As Von Hindenburg Dies

Grand Old Man Came Out Of Retirement At 67 To Become Military, Civic Hero

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Emerging from retirement at the age of 67, Paul von Hindenburg, in the years that followed, became the most conspicuous figure in the military and civil history of Germany.

He had earned his retirement by long and notable service, which included two wars, in the army of the former German Empire. His greatest work in behalf of the Reich was, however, as still to be performed and the opportunity for it came with the World War in the days when he was 67.

When he was 67, he was called to the office of the Reich President by the German people. He had been in the office of the Reich President since 1925.

His death was a great loss to the German people. He had been a great leader and a great patriot.

A Modern Feudal Baron

An interesting figure in the recent dispatches from Vienna, relating the somewhat gory details of the attempted revolution, is Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg. In Venice on a short vacation at the time of the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss, von Starhemberg, the vice chancellor of Austria, hurried back to Vienna to assume control of the government as Acting Chancellor and head of the Heimwehr, an organization corresponding somewhat to the National Guard in this country.

Born in Efferding, Upper Austria, in 1899, the Prince thus, in spite of a career which might ordinarily have consumed an entire lifetime, is only thirty-five years old. He comes from one of the oldest and richest families in Austria whose ancestors date back to 1150, and many of whose estates were originally granted as rewards for services rendered the government in the wars of the Middle Ages. One of von Starhemberg's ancestors commanded the Austrian army, which drove the Turks out of Vienna in 1683.

A child of 15 when the World War broke out, von Starhemberg continued his studies at the universities of Innsbruck and Munich, but by the time he was 18, he answered the call to the colors and served in both the Russian and Italian campaigns with the Austrian dragons. The war did not end his fighting, as he participated as a volunteer against the Poles in the Upper Silesian outburst, and, as a close friend of Adolf Hitler, he took part in the abortive "beer cellat putsch" against the German republic in 1923.

However, his friendship for Hitler did not last long, as he considered Hitler too ruthless, and the Prince gradually became one of the strongest advocates of an independent Austria. Shortly after the failure of the Munich revolution, von Starhemberg's father died, and he, a young man of only twenty-five, took over the management of the estates, consisting at that time of most of upper Austria, and at least thirteen enormous castles.

He could not forget his military training or his love of adventure even with all the work involved in managing his vast properties, and soon began the organization of the Heimwehr which in recent years has played an increasingly important part in the destinies of Austria. Calling together 700 of the best shots in the country, he drilled, trained, and developed them into one of the crack regiments of Europe.

Supporting this small army himself, in much the fashion of the old feudal barons, he gradually increased its numbers until now it is the most potent force of the government in Austria. It was this Heimwehr organization which held in check the revolt of the Nazis following the assassination of Dollfuss. It was this same organization which put down the attempted socialist revolution with such wholesale slaughter last winter.

Somewhat of a swashbuckler, the Prince does not bother much about the conventions. Into the most polite gatherings of social Vienna, into the staid atmosphere of the austere parliament, he often strides much after the manner of a medieval pirate, in rough boots, riding breeches, and hunting jacket, where he makes one of his characteristic speeches in behalf of the workman.

"The employers are chiefly to blame for the fact that so many of their hands are in the Marxist camp," he says. "The workers must be given confidence that they will receive from their employers what is due to them."

Hay Fever

According to Dr. Reuben L. Kahn, director of the clinical laboratories at the University of Michigan, the close human contacts of our civilized life which cause the defenses of the body to react against things other than actual disease germs, may be one of the main causes of hay fever. Dr. Kahn's theory is based on four years of research by which it is shown that the skin, muscles, brain and other solid tissues of the body, are no less active in resisting infection than is the blood.

"The operation of this solid tissue defense," says Dr. Kahn, "involves first, the anchoring of the attacking bacteria at the point of entry, to prevent their penetration into other tissues of the blood. Next the body attempts to destroy the bacteria. The destruction is a process of inflammation, which means that the fluids and phagocytes, or 'soldier cells' with their digestive ferments, have been brought to the site of the infection, where they aid in the killing and dissolution of the foreign organisms."

Exposed surfaces such as the skin and the mucous membranes of the nose and throat have a special responsibility in preventing bacteria from gaining a foothold, and Dr. Kahn has found that their germ anchoring capacity is unusually high.

"It is conceivable," he states, "that the allergic individual suffers from some disturbance of the immunity-regulating mechanism. Modern civilization, with its group of contacts in crowded homes, factories, classrooms and theaters, may lead to overstimulation of exposed tissues by a bombardment of micro-organisms."

In the case of the ear, for example, Dr. Kahn pointed out, stimulation by continuous loud sound may result in temporary or constant ringing of the ears, instead of fatigue or deafness. Similarly, the heavy and constant stimulation of the membranes of the respiratory tract may keep these tissues so keyed up that, like overzealous policemen, they may spring into inflammatory action against hay fever pollen which are actually harmless to the body.

An interesting observation was made by County Agent C. R. Dawson yesterday when he was called on the telephone by R. F. Monsevalva, commercial chemist with offices in the Sanford Atlantic National Bank Building. There were quite a number of insects on the windows of the sixth floor of the building. Mr. Dawson identified these insects as Florida flies of thrips, and he said that this was a question asked by many people as to how insects get around so quickly. During a high wind, they were blown to the height of the sixth floor, and no doubt much higher. The thrips do some damage to ornamentals and the insect found on onions and celery; for the onion and celery thrip is claimed by many to injure celery in the early stages of growth.

Slavia Church Bible School Ends Season

The closing exercises of the Daily Vacation Bible School of St. Luke's Slovak Evangelical Lutheran Church at Slavia were held during regular morning divine services on Sunday.

The exercises were conducted by Rev. Stephen S. Tully, who also preached the sermon. The school was held for eight weeks, and 15 pupils attended.

During the afternoon, members of the Bible School gave an entertainment in the grove near the church. Refreshments were served by members of the St. Luke's Slovak Luther League Society. Many Slovak folk songs were sung by the children, which two of the songs were composed by Pastor Tully.

Five of the poems recited were composed recently by the guest pastor, Rev. Joseph Kolarik of Hartman, N. J. After the program, games and contests were enjoyed, the feature of which was a tug-of-war between married and single men. A diamond ball game also was played.

Old Man Calls Out Of Retirement At 61 To Become Military, Civic Hero

Paul Ludwig Hans Anton, von Bonaparte, and von Hindenburg was born at Posen, formerly in Prussia, now Poznan in Poland, Oct. 2, 1847, the son of a Prussian army officer and of a family most of whose sons had for over 300 years adopted a military career.

Young Paul went to the army as a matter of course, and when at 22 he received his commission as a captain on the general staff, he married Gertrud von Sperling, a girl of 18. The union was a happy one, the youthful bride becoming an "ideal officer's wife." She died in 1921. A son, Oscar, and two daughters, Irmeagard and Amalie, were born to them.

AS FRIEND TO FRIEND

Kay Francis gives Jean Muir a "kiss" in this scene from "Doctor Monica," the Warner film at the Milano. Others in the cast are Warren William, Verree Teasdale and Philip Reed. The picture was adapted from the well known stage play of the same name.

Von Hindenburg's actual experience in battle previous to the great world conflict was gained in the Austro-Prussian and the Franco-Prussian wars.

In addition to the national honors for his great victory at Tannenberg in the World War, von Hindenburg received honorary degrees from nine German universities and was made a freeman of so many university towns.

Tannenberg was followed a week later by the battle of the Masurian Lakes which definitely disposed of the Russian menace to Germany's border. Then by a series of skillful moves, he defeated the Russians again at Lodz, Poland.

German hopes rose high when, in 1916, placed in supreme command of the German armies, he turned his attention to the western front, where he was to meet his master. His name was given to the famous "Hindenburg line," a system of communicating trenches and concrete fortifications which long withstood assaults by the allied armies. But the American support of the Allied offensive after four years of attrition made resistance hopeless. On Oct. 3, 1918, von Hindenburg was called to Berlin and attended the Council at which Prince Maximilian of Baden was made chancellor. Three days later, the victor of Tannenberg presented the facts that resulted in the armistice proposal to the Allies by Germany, and it was he who conducted the difficult task of withdrawing the dispirited German forces back home and placed the army at the disposal of the revolutionary government.

There has been much gossip about personal friction between von Hindenburg and the ex-kaiser. A kinsman, Herbert von Hindenburg, in an article, admitted that there was little love lost between the former War Lord and the people's idol.

The old field marshal spoke his mind in plain language which did not always please the "all high" but he never shirked responsibility. An example of this was his dispatch to President Ebert "The signing of the Peace Treaty gives me occasion for declaring that I was responsible for the decisions and acts of Great Head-quarters since Aug. 29, 1918 and also that all proclamations and orders of his Majesty, the Emperor and King, concerning the warring of war, were issued upon my advice and upon my responsibility. I beg you, therefore, to inform the German people and the Allied governments of this declaration.

Von Hindenburg resigned command of the German army in June, 1919, and once more retired, at 72. No one, least of all himself, had the faintest notion that he would ever be called upon to succeed Ebert, the sadder president, who died in February, 1925.

After the parties of the right had been convinced by the primary election returns in March, 1925, that their candidate, Lord Mayor James of Dusseldorf, could not win in the final, Admiral Alfred von Tirpitz insisted that the only man in Germany who could defeat Wilhelm Marx, the candidate of Centrists, Socialists, and Democrats, was "der Alte"—the Grand Old Man of Germany. Von Tirpitz was commissioned to look him up at Hanover.

On Apr. 9, 1925, Germany was confronted by the news that von Hindenburg had consented to run for the presidency. All sorts of dire predictions were made—that Germany was again headed for monarchism, that militarism would take a new lease of life despite the Treaty of Versailles.

A week before the election, the first popular balloting for president under the republican constitution, the aged field marshal received the representatives of the German and foreign press at Hanover. They saw a vigorous, impressive personality, who made it plain that it was only from a sense of duty to his Fatherland that he abandoned the quiet of his home, and that he hoped that this example of devotion to duty might contribute to the unification of a Germany sadly torn by factional strife.

As in the charge of warlike intentions, he told the newspapermen in a touching, fatherly tone of the horrors he had witnessed during the World War, and how at the end of an eventful life, there was no thought further removed from him than that of sanctioning or preparing for a new war.

On Apr. 26, 1925, at the election, 14,539,399 Germans cast their votes for Hindenburg, who thus became the second president.

BLUE EAGLE IS AT CROSSROADS ON 1ST BIRTHDAY

Next Congress To Get Unenviable Task Of Deciding Future

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—The Blue Eagle, one year old today, is at a crossroads. Its future is still to be determined.

Changes are in the making. Suggestions have ranged from Hugh S. Johnson's idea that a board, instead of one man, should manage the job, to a demand by Senator Hays (R.-N. D.) that NRA be deprived of price fixing and other "un-American" powers and be placed under the Federal Trade Commission with the anti-trust provisions in effect.

The next Congress, which meets in January, will have the task of determining NRA's future.

The Blue Eagle is slightly younger than the NRA. It was born Aug. 1, 1933, and quickly became the best-known emblem in America.

It started life as a merit badge to employers who signed President Roosevelt's re-employment agreement (PRA) for shorter hours, higher pay and no child labor.

Today, as it turns one anniversary, it symbolizes the vow of countless industrial code signers to comply with NRA's rules of fair competition.

When the PRA was announced by Johnson to speed unemployed to jobs, it was pending more business and industry, he set up the Blue Eagle to guide the consumer in his buying.

An army of 1,500,000 volunteers—probably the largest volunteer host in history—joined in carrying PRA and Blue Eagle from door to door. NRA estimates that 2,000,000 employers signed.

The original PRA lapsed from Aug. 31 to Dec. 31, but later was extended to allow more time for contracting. Today, all but about 100 pending agreements have been filed into the code structure of nearly 500 industries.

They are giving away books at the Chicago International Exposition in Chicago. Just push the button and you get a book! This is not a trick, a procedure as it sounds, however. It is merely one of the manifestations of an exhibit of the largest manufacturer in the world of its own and those allied products—the American Can Company.

The exhibit of giving away these books is to demonstrate before the eyes of the public exactly how the cans are hermetically sealed and all the wholesome goodness of the food they contain kept in.

They are made in the form of a small tin can with a slot in the top, and are filled out by a cutting machine exactly like those operated in a canning factory.

The design on these cans shows a colorful panorama of the sky-line of the Fair and the background, and they have proved so popular that there is always a long line of people waiting to push the button which sets the cutting machine in motion and delivers to the purchaser a completed book. Careful statistics which have been kept show that more than twenty per cent of all the people who visit the fair come to this American Can Company exhibit.

They come because they are attracted by the vast signing of the cans and metal products against an exhibitor's credit. The colorful gold figure of Labor and Commerce with pinpoints at its base representing the harvesting of fruits and vegetables and the careful cultivation of vegetables.

Five people realize how many products are shown in this exhibit in a can, clean, wholesome condition in various forms of the cans. These range all the way from cigars and cigarettes, metal and glass bottles, paint, pills and proprietary medicine to razor blades, knives, small, tubular powder, tape, to name a few. There are also typewriter ribbons, pens, and other articles which are also shown in these cans.

The general public is being taught by this exhibit to realize that they can get in cans such products as coffee, tea, fruit, soups, bread, candy, fruit cakes, marshmallows, whole chickens, whole ham and whole quail, as well as such ready-made dishes as beef à la mode, beef steak with onions, chicken à la King, chicken curry, chop suey, Hungarian goulash, Irish stew, kidney soup, liver with bacon or onions, lobster Newburg and omelette with mushrooms.

New products are constantly being introduced into cans. Coffee, for instance, is now almost exclusively sold in retail in vacuum packed cans which keep it permanently fresh.

Then there are the other objects made of metal and tin such as advertising novelties, salt and garbage cans, boxes of all sorts, display racks for stores, bed pads, by stick holders, watch cases, jewelry boxes, and a host of other things.

In addition to these cans and other products, a chromium plated closing machine, conveyor system and runway have been installed to put the tops on the cans which are being given away, and a small fountain display in front of the exhibit.

Booklets describing the canning industry are being given away, and thousands of questions about it are being answered by those in attendance at the exhibit. Finally, a new type of can opener for liquids, known as the quick and easy can opener is being demonstrated all day and given away to those who ask for one.

Youth Gives Up To Face Murder Count In Death Of Beauty

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Facing murder charges in the death of Miss Marian Mills, former University of Oklahoma beauty queen, Neal Myers, young pharmacy student, surrendered to his attorney here today after pleading guilty to three weeks.

Three and a half years ago, the 21-year-old university student appeared at the home of his attorney, W. F. Thompson, and disclaimed any responsibility for the death of Miss Mills at Norman, Okla., July 10.

"I committed no crime, just couldn't face the charges," he said.

Young Myers fled from Norman following the death of the girl at the apartment of Mrs. Hazel Brown, fraternity house cook.

Mrs. Brown told authorities the girl had been taking quack medicine in an effort to avert motherhood.

Give Relief For Malaria!

Don't try home-made treatments or unproven remedies! Take the old and reliable Groves' Taster's Chill Tonic. Soon you will be shivering again. Groves' Taster's Chill Tonic not only relieves the symptoms of malaria, but cures the infection itself.

The malaria quinine in Groves' Taster's Chill Tonic kills the malaria parasite in the blood while the iron it contains builds up the blood to overcome the effects of the disease and thereby prevent further attack. The tonic effect is absolutely necessary for the overcoming of malaria, which being a dependable remedy for malaria, Groves' Taster's Chill Tonic is also an excellent tonic for general use. It is especially beneficial for children, and absolutely harmless to give children. Get a bottle at any store. Buy two for 1-2 times as much as the one and give you the best value for your money.

A Popular Exhibit

Thousands of these cans are given away with the colorful labels of those who purchase them and put them and other products into them, and thousands more are given away in all the lanes of the exhibit. The design and lithography on these latter cans reveal the tremendous progress that has been made in recent years in developing them to make them attractive to the public, and much comment is heard on the color harmonies of the exhibit, particularly as viewed from the West balcony of the building.

Economic Basis Of U.S. Adjusted To Require It, Survey Shows

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 2.—The economic structure of the United States has been developed and its productive capacity adjusted to a type of output that is dependent on foreign markets, and these markets depend almost entirely on the country's willingness to accept foreign goods and services in exchange for its own, says the Commerce Trade Commission of New York in the current issue of "The Commerce Survey."

"Our concern in international trade is not merely a matter of the refusal of other nations to purchase our goods if we are not willing to buy theirs; it is an economic impossibility for foreign countries to take our products unless we, by accepting imported commodities, provide foreigners with the means to pay," it continues.

"While there is an abundance of irrefutable statistical evidence that the physical volume of trade in most of the nations of the world has shown an appreciable increase during the last several months, and while clear evidence has been reported for some time that the general tone in foreign business quarters has been unmistakably better, there are some who hold a less optimistic view."

"It seems difficult for many American business men not directly engaged in dealings in commodities and services with foreign nations to comprehend fully the relationship between their profits and conditions abroad. To obtain the water supply, the individual business man becomes involved in developments abroad in order to constitute part of a domestic economic system that is highly concerned with international factors. Any occurrence abroad that either improves or retards our economic progress in general will affect his profits in a similar manner.

"The 'stake' that our general economic organization has in developing trade abroad, while at times somewhat indirect, is by no means obscure. First, and without a doubt, the most important, is a sure method of easing political tensions in many parts of the world by bettering economic conditions and improving the standard of living. Business confidence, on which actual business commitments are based, would be greatly fostered by a cessation of political disturbances in some parts of the world.

"Second, an improvement in world economic conditions would be almost automatically followed by a greater stability in international monetary conditions and by a clearing up of the currency difficulties that have seriously disrupted the normal flow of international trade. This, development, in turn, would greatly facilitate international currency stabilization and the elimination of destructive trade barriers, with highly beneficial effects on international trade, including that of the United States.

"Our third source of interest in foreign affairs lies in the fact that this country since the war has grown into one of the leading creditor nations of the world. Disregarding the war debt, foreign countries are indebted to the United States to the extent of billions of dollars, including short-term credits.

"A broad economic improvement there, would go far in unloading the present crushing spite of foreign trade and exchange; that, by clearing the way for a reduction in the foreign trade barrier that have been imposed

PARIS SEES BID FOR ANSCHLUSS AS PAPAN'S AIM

French Ready To Ve-to Move For Austro-German Union

PARIS, Aug. 2.—A battle of diplomacy to prevent negotiations between Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany and the successor to Chancellor Engelbert Dollfus of Austria for a union of Germany and Austria was foreseen by French officials.

The danger of a new Nazi campaign of diplomatic persuasion for an Austro-German alliance through a customs union would be revived, said authorities, if the new Austrian government should accept Franz von Papen as German minister to Austria.

Although Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria is expected to continue the Dollfus policy of opposition to the Nazis, von Papen is regarded here as a clever diplomat, who might "play his Catholic cards in the Anschluss game"—Anschluss being a union of Austria and Germany.

French quarters suspect that von Papen's mission might be primarily the negotiation of a customs union between Austria and Bavaria.

"France and Italy naturally would not accept that," a French spokesman said.

The French, consequently, are continuing their policy of watchful waiting on the side of Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy, who is "ready for any eventuality."

The French hope that Schuschnigg will be able to maintain the "fight to keep Austria independent." They expect that the Austrian socialists will be less hostile to him than they were to Dollfus.

Paris, Aug. 2.—The last of the bridges washed out during the flooding on the old Kissimmee-St. Cloud highway was replaced Tuesday and the road opened to traffic.

Reports of Superintendent Campbell show nearly all other county bridges had been rebuilt, and that work of repairing damage to roadbed, culverts and drainage channels generally is progressing.

Long Aide Refuses Service Of Order To Demobilize Troops

Adjutant-General Defies Court By Telling Men To Fortify Barracks Position

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Surrounded by the guns of a mobilized National Guard at Jackson Barracks, Adjutant-General Raymond Fleming today replied to the Civil District court order for the dismissal of the troops by directing his officers to fortify their positions.

Entries at the gateway of the barracks refused a civil sheriff access to the Commander of the State Militia when he sought to serve the court order on him, and Fleming over the telephone told newsmen "I shall carry out the Governor's orders. I have given my officers orders to fortify their positions."

The court order, calling for the demobilization of the troops summoned to duty in a bitter factional dispute between the political forces of Senator Huey Long and Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans was secured late yesterday by city attorneys.

The civil sheriff and chief of police served Long as "A conspirator," with a court summons last night, but they are unable similarly to serve the Adjutant-General.

Meanwhile, National Guard officers sent a fresh detachment of militia into the city voting registration office held by the forces of Long since last Monday night, and unloaded additional machine guns at an office just across the narrow street from the city hall where Walmsley has massed scores of heavily armed men.

Long yesterday with "Napoleon complex," the Mayor said.

This usurpation of the assessor's office will not be recognized by the City of New Orleans.

Governor Allen, lieutenant in the Long organization and usually a background figure in the major disputes between Senator Long and Mayor Walmsley, answered by "wailing" New Orleans officials "to desist from advertising delinquent tax property," which he charged was being done in violation of moratorium resolutions passed by the last legislature.

While the leaders wrangled in public statements, the city maintained an outward calm, the only public sign of the bitter factional dispute being the two more National Guardsmen standing duty with full arms in the registration office, across the street from the city hall. Machine guns which the militiamen had kept trained on the city hall entrance for two days were temporarily out of sight.

U. S. TO CURB GAMBLING ON FOOD SUPPLY

Government Strikes Out At Speculators Who Would Attempt To Corner Markets

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The government disclosed plans today to thwart wild cat speculation or "corners" in the nation's food in the aftermath of the drought disaster.

Perhaps the most potent weapon is the power under AAA to buy surpluses of farm commodities for future use thereby striking a blow at any attempt to kite prices because of a relative scarcity.

Foodstuffs bought by the government could be distributed to the needy, reloaded through commercial channels, or shipped into drought areas where needed.

For the immediate future, officials predict the supplies will be ample and prices relatively low.

The Russian debt and claim parleys were resumed between Secretary Hull and Alexander Tsyganovskiy, the Russian ambassador.

The Secretary of State said Wednesday an agreement over the debt matter took precedence over other questions involved between the two countries.

PROUTS NECK, Maine, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The restraining hand of the late President von Hindenburg of Germany was laid on the recent anti-Semitic campaign in that country, Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, former ambassador to Germany, said yesterday.

Dr. Schurman recalled his first meeting with von Hindenburg in 1925 and his last, in 1933. In the first instance, when he went to Berlin as ambassador, serving until 1930, the subject of discussion was war hate of Germany by other nations.

CONTINENT WONDERS 'WHAT NOW?'

Europe Believes That Hitler Has Become 'Executive Of The Divine Will' Of God

LONDON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Europe's mighty nations gazed on a little man today and asked "What now?"

The governments, figuratively a lit pale, wondered where Germany was headed under the rule of Adolf Hitler, erstwhile alien, house painter, and army corporal.

Uncertainty is noted in all of Europe's capitals.

The first foreign-born ruler in Germany's history since he is a native of Austria, Hitler has shown so far he can make the grade.

He has climbed to a point where he holds the peace of the continent in his hands.

Europe believes now that he has become what one Berlin newspaper called "Executive of the Divine Will."

Dread for the future underlines French comments on the question whether he will seek the goal of friendship or assume a belligerent attitude.

Pope Pius, XI, is disturbed by fears that the sudden change in German rule may add to Europe's myriad difficulties.

Russia wonders what's ahead in uncertain relations with the Reich.

Britain is anxious. So, too, are lesser nations.

In every land yesterday there were expressions of regret that Germany's sturdy oak, President von Hindenburg, has fallen and almost invariably the expressions (Continued On Page Three)

CITY BRIEFS

Local weather yesterday: High 92, low 73.

Officials of the Florida League of Municipalities advised City officials today that as the result of a resolution passed by members of the Sanford and Arcadia City Commission, the League has called a state-wide meeting, to be held in Orlando Aug. 22 and Aug. 23, for the purpose of discussing the policy which should be pursued by cities seeking relief under the terms of the Wilcox bill.

Representative J. Mark Wilcox is expected to be a principal speaker at this meeting.

The influence of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation is held by City Clerk F. S. Lamson as being a prime reason why tax collections for 1933 to Aug. 1, 1934, were more than 12 percent better than were collections for 1932 to Aug. 1, 1933. Records this morning revealed that $81,976.46 or 33.97 percent of the 1933 assessment (Continued On Page Four)

DeLeon Springs Youth Who Plans Solo Boat Trip Over Atlantic To Be Feted

DELAND, Aug. 3.—This city will be the home port Saturday of Alfred A. Lastinger, DeLeon Springs youth who sets sail from Daytona Beach Sunday afternoon next for a port in Northern Spain.

At the insistent request of hundreds of friends in this section, Lastinger and his backer, F. M. Ford of Deland, have consented to bring the craft here Saturday for an overnight stay. The vessel will be placed on display in the uptown section, and Lastinger will say farewell to his friends.

The youthful mariner, who already has crossed the Atlantic Ocean 28 times and who hopes to make the total 29, received yesterday morning from Governor Dave Sholtz, a personal letter conveying good wishes for a successful voyage.

The letter reads: "Just a note to express to you best wishes for a successful crossing and to enclose letter of credentials which may be of assistance to you should occasion arise."

The letter of credentials reads: "This will introduce Alfred A. Lastinger, of Deland, Fla. He is undertaking a three-months' voyage to the North Spanish port of San Sebastian in a 10-foot boat. He carries with him the best wishes of the people of Florida. Any courtesies granted him will be greatly appreciated."

Lastinger, busy in putting the last minute touches to ship and cargo, paused long enough yesterday morning to express his appreciation of the Governor's action.

"It was mighty nice of the Governor to think of me," he said, "and I appreciate his letter a lot."

Former Corporal Has Unprecedented Dictatorial Power To Fight Complexities

BERLIN, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Germany gazed across the bier of her dead president today into the uncertain future of super-Hitlerism.

Complexities within the Fatherland and without confronted Adolf Hitler, corporal who by the death of the aged Paul von Hindenburg yesterday has become the master of the destinies of 65,000,000 Germans.

His weapon for successfully overcoming these problems is a dictatorial power without parallel in all Europe.

The "free plebiscite" he has ordered to be held Aug. 19 to determine the successor to von Hindenburg is, as all Germans recognize, but a ceremony.

It will rubber stamp Hitler's assumption of Presidential powers in addition to those he exercises as chancellor.

Many Germans seem bewildered over the suddenness of events even though nothing unexpected has occurred.

Nazis, however, moved with a nice regard for public reaction, Hitler's declaration of the title, President is regarded as a decision calculated to retain public support.

Once again the Germans showed they are a disciplined people, trained to obey. The change from a country governed at least theoretically by constitution to absolute dictatorship seemed to cause no ripple.

I was another incident in Hitler's consolidation of his position of power.

Dirk whisperings that the Reichswahr, which worshipped the aged President von Hindenburg as a hero, might refuse obedience proved unfounded—as unfounded as had been reports of a general strike when Hitler became chancellor.

By nightfall, the propaganda ministry announced, the entire Army and Navy had taken the oath.

It was administered wherever detachments happened to be or wherever ships lay at anchor or moved through the seas.

Though everything thus far has gone smoothly, Hitler is known nevertheless to realize that a terrific task confronts him.

It was impressed on him by various advisors who visited him today that the world looked on von Hindenburg as the last brake on impetuous, unbridled radicalism in Germany.
