Car dealer charged

DELAND — Kenneth D. Seely, 49, manager of Auto Store, 1636 E. New York Ave., DeLand, was charged Tuesday with stealing over $18,000 in sales taxes paid by his customers.

He was arrested at the business by Volusia County sheriff's deputies. Prosecutors charged Seely with third-degree felony theft of state funds, which could mean up to five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

According to Department of Revenue investigators, Seely kept $18,035 in sales taxes paid by his customers from June, 1992 to November 1996, instead of forwarding the money to the state.

The department is seeking a total of $51,462 which includes unpaid back taxes, interest, penalties, and investigative costs.

The Revenue Department says, with sales obtaining a total of $22,149 in taxes, he turned in only $4,113.96.

County commissioners ask public to 'bare' with them

By RUSS WHITE
Herald Staff Writer

The five highest-ranking, elected officials of Seminole County have decided not to enact a public nudity ordinance. Too many glitches, they said after a 4-hour-plus public hearing Tuesday night.

They have chosen to wait three more months to revise a better law. Time for the county attorneys to eliminate the glitches.

Wait, there's more. The public may make the call. The whole shebang placed on a 1998 ballot for referendum.

4-to-1. That's how the Board of County

Commissioners voted Tuesday, dumping a law modeled after one enacted by St. John's County. Commissioner Grant Maloy, who supported this ordinance for better or worse, was the nay vote.

3-to-2. That's how the board voted to look at a revised ordinance in 90 days or so, and possibly get it on a referendum vote. Chairman Randy Morris and Commissioner Daryl McLain were the nay votes.

5-to-0. That's what the commissioners insist is their feeling about regulating the adult entertainment industry, which was well represented at the Tuesday hearing. "The lions outnumbered the Christians tonight," Morris than 800 people participated in the event that included a party complete with barbecue and live music. The donations are still being totaled, but a check presentation, to Humane Society officials, is planned for later this week.

School Board OKs plan for desegregation in Sanford

By MARIA OREM
Herald Staff Writer

After much debate, the Seminole County School Board voted 3-2 to accept a desegregation plan for Sanford area schools.

The main point of contention among board members at Tuesday's meeting seemed to be whether the school board abided by the Florida Sunshine Law when drawing up the plan for admission criteria which affects seven elementary schools: Goldsboro, Wilton, Idylwild, Wicklow, Midway, Hamilton and Pine Crest.

Parents had been complaining for months that the board had met in executive session, making decisions behind closed doors. At its work session last week, the board was accused by parents of not giving the public adequate notice of proceedings dealing with the desegregation plan. One parent, Kathy Hoffman, filed a report against the board with

Cops seek clues in British mystery

She was a typical soccer mom. He has a future as a professional soccer player.

Concerns were raised, however, when the pair left England for Sanford last week and no one has heard from them since.

She's 34. He's 14. She's his best friend's mother. British newspapers, devoting plenty of space to the story, speculate further.

Tracy Whalin of Nottingham, England and Sean Ian Kinsella of Chilwell, England were last seen when they arrived in Sanford on July 15 on a charter flight from Manchester.

According to police investigators, those left behind in England suspected nothing was amiss until after the pair was gone.

According to police in Sanford, the young man's mother told them Sean left for school with Whalin on July 15. When he didn't return home that afternoon, she went to his room and discovered he had taken much of his clothing when he left.

She said she believed he had taken some

Lake Mary to discuss Timacuan street lights

By NICK PFELPAUF
Staff Writer Emeritus

LAKE MARY — Discussions on establishing street lighting assessments in Timacuan will be among the major issues facing the Lake Mary City Commission at this Thursday night's meeting.

Prior to the regular meeting, the commission will meet in a work session at 5 p.m., to discuss revenue projections, general fund programs and special revenue funds, in preparation for eventual approval of the fiscal year 1997/98 city budget.

At the July 10 commission meeting, City Manager John Litton made his annual budget message presentation. He explained that while ad valorem revenues generated approximately $1.8 million in 1994, growth had been so rapid and is still continuing, to the point where revenues are now projected at almost $2.4 million by 1998.

The tentative millage rate expected to be approved for Lake Mary for the coming fiscal year is 3.7648, the same as it has been for the past years.

As soon as possible following the work session, the regular meeting is scheduled, for about 7 p.m., at which time the initial budget/millage tentative approvals are to be brought forward.

Prior to that, street lighting assessments for Timacuan Unit 16 subdivision will highlight the new business to face the commission.

Following a public hearing in which citizen input will be heard, the commission will adjourn and reconvene as the Equalizing Board to hear complaints regarding the special assessments.

The Equalizing Board will then adjourn and reconvene as the Deputy locates missing 3-year-old Lake Mary boy

From staff reports

LAKE MARY — A Seminole County sheriff's deputy from District 3 located a 3-year old boy Tuesday, who had been reported missing from his family home near Lake Mary for several hours.

Deputy Sheriff Eric Bryant found 3-year old Eric Truehl in the parking lot of Lake Mary Centre on Lake Mary Boulevard at approximately 7:15 Tuesday morning. The boy was wearing only a diaper, was said to be dirty, and bitten by insects.

Bryant took the boy to the sheriff's service center at Lake Mary Centre, gave him food and a beverage, and took photos which will be included in the incident report.

Approximately 15 minutes after the boy was located, sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough said the boy's uncle and grandfather came to the Lake Mary Centre office to report the boy missing. The boy immediately recognized them. The uncle and grandfather said they had put the child to bed at approximately 11 p.m. Monday, then retired for the evening.

When the family awoke at approximately 7 a.m. this morning, they realized the boy was missing.

McDonough said he is believed to have simply got up and walked out the front door during the night. He then either walked or crawled about one quarter mile from the family's home in the Hidden Village Condominiums to Lake Mary Centre.

The child was in good health except for the insect bites. He has been returned to his uncle and grandfather.

According to Deputy Bryant, a followup investigation may be undertaken into the incident.

Here comes Leo, the Lion and the wild horse.

In the early 1950s, television viewers thrilled each week at the adventures of the singing cowboy, Gene Autry, whose CBS-TV show had its premiere on July 23, 1950.

Autry and his horse, Champion, battled the bad guys for six years on TV - assisted by Autry's wonderful sidekick, Pat Buttram. Naturally, Autry (who will be 90 in September) sang a few songs.

Champion died not long after Autry became the owner of the Los Angeles Angels baseball team in 1961.

When he was asked if he would like to have the horse stuffed as Roy Rogers did with Trigger, the ever-thrifty Autry asked, "what would it cost?"

Told it would be $20,000, Autry replied, "bury the SOB."

The first swimming school in America opened in Boston on this date in 1827. Its pupils included John Quincy Adams and James Audubon.

Did you know there is a town in Michigan that is named Pigeon?

Pigeon is located in what is known as the state's "thumb area."

Today is the start of the five-day Pigeon Farmers Festival. We're not sure what they farm in Pigeon, but whatever it is these farmers do they deserve a feather in their caps.

In the astronomical/astrological zodiac, which divides the sun's apparent orbit into 12 segments, the period July 23 - August 22 is identified, traditionally as the sun sign of Leo, the Lion. The ruling planet is the sun.

Leos in Pigeon began celebrating at midnight.

There's going to be plenty of wild horse chasing the next three days in Japan. One-thousand horsemen clad in ancient armor compete for possession of three shrine flags shot aloft on Hiharigahara Plain, and men in white costumes attempt to catch wild horses corralled by the horsemen.

It's known as Soma No Umasoi.

Gene Autry and Champion loved Soma No Umasoi.

There are a handful of birthday parties that sound interesting - actress Gloria DeLaven is 72 today, radio talk show host Don Imus is 49, actress Belinda Montgomery is 47, actor Woody Harrison is 36, basketball player Gary Payton is 29.

Birthday girl Gloria DeLaven is 72

Had he lived Baseball Hall of Fame pitcher Don Drysdale would have been 60 today. He passed away on July 3, 1993 while on a broadcasting trip to Montreal.

Drysdale and fellow Hall of Fame pitcher Sandy Kousser once held out together to get better contracts from the Los Angeles Dodgers in the 1960s. They also signed each other's autographs - and few if anyone knew the difference.

"We'd get letters that would say how much we were liked and that it would be nice if we would sign a picture," Drysdale said one day a few years ago during spring training in Florida. "I'd get letters asking if I would sign and also get Sandy to sign. He got similar letters, so we started signing for each other."

Lions take pride in their members and leadership

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

The Sanford Lions Club has been busy wrapping up another year of service to the community and getting ready to start off a new year.

The club has been in operation in this city for over half a century and officials said the members have always been very loyal, with attendance at nearly 100 percent at most meetings.

At a recent dinner, the group honored those who have served in leadership roles over the last 12 months and those who will take over the top positions in the year to come.

Though they take their work in the community seriously, the Lions also like to have fun when they get together.

The group says they want to celebrate the fact they will "continue to be a blessing to our community."

The club officers for the next year have been announced. They are:

President Dave Hall
First Vice President Colin Russell
Second Vice President Metty Broach

Third Vice President Lenore Hammock
Secretary Matt Altomose
Treasurer Tiffany Altomose
Tul Twister Sam Loper
Lion Tamer Sandra Loper

The board of directors added several members. Among the new directors are (One year directors) Alva Russell, Bettye Smith and Cecil Taylor.

(Two year directors) Charles Hammack, Harold Highsmith and Bernie Fitzgerald.

(Membership committee) Chairman Joyce Fitzgerald and members Charles Hammack and Sandra Loper.

The club meets on Tuesdays at noon in the Colonial Room Restaurant on First Street in Downtown Sanford.

Lions directors Bernie Fitzgerald, Joyce Hammack, Cecil Taylor, Bettye Smith and Fitzgerald, Harold Highsmith, Charles Alva Russell.

African-American and Hispanic residents sought for new board

ORLANDO - An opportunity awaits African and Hispanic-American citizens who want to work actively to protect the rights of people served by Central Florida's social service system.

The Human Rights Advocacy Committee for Osceola and Seminole counties aims to diversify its membership and wants African and Hispanic-Americans to fill vacant positions. The committee acts as an objective, third-party council with a goal of protecting consumer rights. It investigates allegations of human rights violations generating from inquiries and complaints about services provided by the Department of Children and Families.

HIRAC members are appointed officially by the Governor following a local application and interview process. They serve four-year terms and usually meet once monthly.

Anyone who wants membership information and more background on the committee should call Wendy Jordan, HIRAC staff liaison, at (407) 245-0400 ext. 153.

Currently, the state has 31 HIRACs, with some focusing particularly on serving the developmentally disabled and recipients of substance abuse and mental health treatment.

The idea of citizen advocates developed in 1972 as a reaction to abusive conditions at the Miami Sunland Hospital. Today, there are more than 300 HIRAC volunteers advocating for better treatment of individuals under the care or custody of Children and Families, or private vendors and service providers under contract to the department.

The Statewide Human Rights Advocacy Committee (SHIRAC) consists of 15 volunteers who serve as the appellate body for district HIRACs. SHIRAC handles appeals on complaints that are unresolved at the district level and other issues affecting two or more districts.

Boys and Girls Club aims for a large membership target

From staff reports

ORLANDO - Boys and Girls Clubs of Central Florida, Inc. is in the middle of a record breaking summer. "And," said Gary W. Cain, president and chief professional officer of the Orlando based charitable organization, "it's just going to get better."

Cain has said repeatedly that he expected the 11 Boys & Girls Club facilities throughout Orange, Seminole and Osceola area to host 1,100 to 1,200 youngsters per day during the busy summer months. So far attendance is running 35-40 percent higher. "We're seeing an average of 1,600 young people every day," Cain said.

Boys & Girls Clubs target the area's 84,000 disadvantaged young people with a variety of programs, and heavy summer traffic hasn't kept club activities directors from creating new ones. Cain said, "At our Osceola branch, we've put about 50 area youngsters to work at part-time summer jobs in hotels, fast food restaurants and attractions."

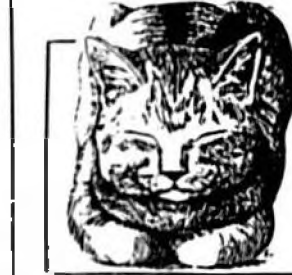

Cain explained "At the Downtown branch located at the Coalition for the Homeless, young people are learning to read thanks to the generous volunteers and financial support of Harcourt Brace, and in Pine Hills, we started a girls photography class and a swimming program."

But the growing popularity of Boys & Girls Club facilities and programs is putting a strain on resources. Boys & Girls Clubs raised a record $160,000 at this year's Steak and Steak Banquet, but most of those funds are already spent," Cain said.

Boys & Girls Clubs of Central Florida is launching its third annual "Campaign for Kids" on August 9. The goal is to raise $150,000 to provide ongoing operating support. "With all the news about crime, drug and alcohol abuse and teen pregnancies, we're just not going to turn young people away from what might be the most positive influence in their lives," Cain said.

Over the next three years Cain predicts attendance will double to 3,000 kids every day. Boys & Girls Clubs of Central Florida target young people aged 6-18. The organization's 11th area clubhouse opened in June in Winter Garden.

Cool off in the Original Florida

Pet of the Week

Sam is a one-year old beagle mix. He is very friendly and a good family dog. To adopt Sam, call the Seminole County Humane Society at 323-8685.

Hot days in Florida lead to searching for new ways to cool off. The Original Florida, an 11-county region stretching from Perry to Lake City to Gainesville, has nearly one hundred crystal clear springs, many cool rivers and lakes, as well as, other ways to beat the heat--here is just a sampling.

Ichetucknee Springs State Park--canoe or tube (a true "sport" of the South!) this National Natural Landmark, one of Florida's purest spring-fed rivers (located in Fort White).

Steinhatchee Landing--take a pontoon boat ride or canoe trip on the Steinhatchee River beside this contemporary nineteenth-century design resort with Victorian cottages, fine dining, horseback riding, hiking and swimming (located in Steinhatchee).

Miller's Marine Campground and Suwannee Houseboats--cruise "way down upon the Suwannee River" in a fully-equipped houseboat with up to eight friends and spend the week-end, a week or longer floating on the famous river (located in the town of Suwannee).

Big Shoals--tast Florida's only white water on the Suwannee River and visit nearby Stephen Foster State Folk Culture Center to learn about the man who immortalized this river (located in White Springs).

Jet Tour Adventures--take a jet ski to explore the Santa Fe and Ichetucknee rivers, then shop at nearby Webb's Antique Mall, the largest in the south and visit the Florida Sports Hall of Fame (located in Lake City).

Santa Fe Canoe Outpost--enjoy a canoe trip on the Santa Fe River and catch a glimpse of otters, turtles and other wildlife then visit nearby High Springs to have tea, antique or shop in galleries (located in High Springs).

Madison Blue Springs--learn why cave divers from all over the world come to dive this first magnitude crystal clear spring (located in Madison).

Spring Diving Capital of the World--visit Branford, a "mecca" of spring diving with its multitude of crystal clear springs to dive.

Starke--swim, fish, sail or ski the many lakes of this town, perfect for outdoor enthusiasts.

Glinnie Springs--discover why this pristine diving location was ranked the favorite freshwater dive in the world (located in High Springs).

Jim Hollis River Rendezvous--canoe, tube, swim, pontoon or dive at this off-the-beaten-path place (located in Mayo).

Lake Butler--join the locals on three lakes and two rivers to fish, swim or just relax.

Crime on videotape

Many of the crime reports in the Sanford Herald are provided through information supplied by the Seminole County sheriff's department.

In writing one of the reports for publication one day last week however, several words originally written by sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, stood out like the proverbial sore thumb.

The story was about the armed robbery of a major grocery store near Casselberry. The words were, "the store has no security cameras." Well aware of the crime problems in Seminole County, it mentally hurt just to write this.

We can see where smaller stores, perhaps operating on a shoe-string budget, can't afford a video system, but larger stores? We are surprised.

Hopefully, this particular store had a video security camera which may have been broken at the time. We also hope it wasn't a case where someone forgot to turn it on.

But time after time, law enforcement officers have been able to apprehend suspects in robberies or burglaries, based on learning their identity through video surveillance.

When law officers make presentations (and they do on a regular basis) about maintaining crime free workplaces, video surveillance is one of the first things they suggest.

Yes, years ago, we didn't have any such gadget. But now, they are not only common, they are within the price range of almost anyone who has enough capital invested to have a retail business.

At a particular department store last year, a department manager, concerned about constant shoplifting of video tape players, walkmen, and similar electronic appliances, finally persuaded his boss to allow the installation of two video cameras, just in that one department.

Rather than apprehending one or two shoplifters per week as store security guards had been doing, he found as many as 10 thefts per day from that one department, often done by the same person.

Cameras are now installed in that particular store in all areas, and shoplifting has dropped drastically while arrests have increased.

Needless to say, the more items shoplifted in a store, the higher the cost is for people buying it honestly. Stores have to recoup their losses. Therefore, shoplifting, where the thief is not apprehended, costs all of us.

Officials at this particular store say they automatically add a certain percentage increase to retail prices to compensate for what they expect will be stolen during the shelf-life of a particular item.

We don't know for certain, but we would suspect that businesses do (or they should) pay more in insurance premiums without having cameras installed.

Crime fighting must be everyone's business and everyone's responsibility.

Crime statistics may indicate a drop of a small percentage of one point, but that by no means should anyone, including business owners and managers, let down their guard.

EEOC has overstepped its bounds

It's a small federal agency. Its budget is tiny. Its five-member commission is virtually unknown to the public. Yet the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission is one of most powerful independent bodies in all of government.

Its mission was to ensure equal treatment in the workplace. To bring the full weight of law against employers who discriminated on account of race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

In recent years, the EEOC has gone far beyond its original mission. It no longer is sufficient, in the commission's view, for employers to treat all their workers equally. The EEOC now insists that certain categories of workers be accorded special treatment.

Of course, the EEOC's commissioners will deny this. But the proof is in the lawsuits they've filed:

-- This past May, the commission charged U.S. Airways with violating the rights of one of its employees, Anjum Smith, because the carrier refused to allow her to wear a Muslim headscarf, called a hijab.

The EEOC has decided to sue U.S. Airways under the Civil Rights Act of 1964 on grounds that its uniform policy fails to accommodate Smith's "religious beliefs and practices" and therefore amounts to "religious discrimination."

But there are any number of "religions" in America, some of which have unusual beliefs and practices. It is unreasonable to suggest that employers should accommodate them all.

Indeed, given the EEOC's expansive

"It's a small federal agency. Its budget is tiny."

definition of religious discrimination, the Heaven's Gate cult members could have accused an employer of violating their rights for refusing to allow them to wear purple shrouds and Nikes.

-- The EEOC continues to pursue litigation against Exxon on behalf of two of the oil company's former employees, flight engineers who had been demoted to mechanics under the company's alcohol and drug use policy.

The two former Exxon workers were recovering substance abusers. As such, they were deemed unsuitable to hold down jobs as flight engineers, one of 1,500 positions that Exxon has designated as "safety sensitive."

Exxon's substance abuse policy was put in place in 1989, after a drunken captain grounded a company tanker, the infamous Exxon Valdez, in Prince William Sound, Alaska, spilling more than 10 million gallons of oil. Exxon was prosecuted for the spill and spent more than $8 billion on clean-up and compensation of victims.

Now the EEOC is telling Exxon that its substance abuse policy is unfair because of its blanket application to all recovering alcoholics and druggies. The commission would have the oil company assess each recovering substance abuser individually to ascertain whether there is a possibility of relapse.

But Exxon argues, correctly, that there is no way to predict which substance abusers will suffer a relapse. Therefore, it is logical to keep them out of the 10 percent of Exxon jobs that are safety sensitive.

-- In 1995, the EEOC charged the American Red Cross with discrimination for requiring that employees of its Rockville, Md., infectious-disease lab speak English. The commission argued that the Red Cross demonstrated no justifiable "business necessity" for insisting that all its workers communicate in the same language.

The EEOC apparently has no problem if workers speak all kinds of languages while they do their jobs. But in states like California, for instance, with numerous large immigrant populations, this would almost certainly lead to balkanization of the workplace.

BOXING MUSEUM...

JOSEPH SPEAR

"God may forgive them. This curmudgeon will not."

Loony conspiracists are dug in deep

The Vince Foster conspiracy theorists are like the Japanese soldiers who continue to crawl out of Pacific Island jungles. The war will never be over for them. Never.

On July 15, even the right-wing's hand-picked independent counsel, Kenneth Starr, concluded that the deputy White House counsel died by his own hand. The U.S. Park Police came to the same conclusion -- as did a previous prosecutor and two congressional committees headed by credentialed conservatives.

But, alas, this is inadequate evidence for the motley collection of extremists, flakes, irresponsible jerks, mad dogs, politicians, preachers, blabberjacks, right-wing scribers, sleazoids, carny barkers in search of suckers, and Internet sewer dwellers who circulate loony tales of dire collusions. Foster was an Israeli spy, they say. Foster had Swiss bank accounts. Foster was an intricate part of an "octopus" of conspiracies.

"I will certainly be one of many who will continue to ask questions," said Reed Irvine, chairman of the right-wing group Accuracy in Media, to an Associated Press reporter. Added Irvine: "We are not conspiracy theorists; we are people who have examined the evidence and recognize there are serious problems."

Irvine, the non-conspiracist, is one of several prominent disbelievers who have been touting the notion that Starr himself is now part of a cover-up because he allegedly would not give his staff free rein to probe the homicide angle.

If the Foster fanatics were drooling in the wilderness, their rantings would not be worthy of note. But they have found allies in the media, on Capitol Hill and behind the pulpit.

"Did Foster Kill Himself in White House Parking Lot?" screamed a New York Post headline on Aug. 7, 1995. One of the things Senate investigators would try to find out, wrote Washington Times editor Wesley Pruden in a May 19, 1995 column, was "how Vincent Foster could blow off the top of his head and then lay himself out neatly, with a minimum of disruption of either himself or the pastoral tranquility of Fort Marcy Park, as if trying to save the undertaker the trouble."

In July 1994, Rep. Dan Burton, R-Ind., took to the House floor with a rambling statement that included this description of a re-enactment: "I had a homicide expert come out to my home. We built up something that was similar to a head and we put a four-inch barrel of a gun, a .38, the same kind of weapon we are talking about, into the mouth of this head-like thing we created. We had people stand 100 yards away... You could hear the bullet very clearly." Yes, this is the same Dan Burton who is now conducting a thoroughly objective investigation of Democratic fundraising activities.

"Suicide or murder?" demanded Parson Pat Robertson on his television show. "That's the ominous question ... concerning Vincent Foster's mysterious death."

BEN WATTENBERG

It's who's selling, not who's buying

Two important statements -- one mumbled into what was believed to be a dead microphone and one very much on-the-record -- sketch the parameters of what's going on in the Senate hearing investigating campaign-finance abuses in the 1996 election. The statement-makers were Canadian Prime Minister Jean Chretien and Sen. Fred Thompson, R-Tenn.

Not realizing that his mike was turned on and that his words were being recorded, Chretien chatted in French with his Belgian counterpart at the NATO meeting in Madrid, Spain. He condemned the American position allowing only three new members into NATO in the current season of NATO open admissions. Chretien said the Americans acted only to deliver a political payoff to Czech, Polish and Hungarian voters in America. Chretien said: "All this is for short-term political reasons to win elections. ... In fact, they are selling their votes: You want me to vote for NATO? Don't forget the bridge in my district." Sacre bleu! Chretien then continued: "It's incredible. In your country or in mine, all (those) politicians would be in prison." [The political virginity of European democracies has escaped most observers.]

Put politicians in prison!
Cut now to the opening statement of Sen. Thompson, chairman of the investigating committee. Unlike Chretien, he knew his mike was live. He led off this way: "The committee believes that high-level Chinese government officials crafted a plan to increase China's influence over the U.S. political process. The committee has identified specific steps taken in furtherance of the plan. Implementation of the plan has been handled by Chinese government officials and individuals enlisted to assist in the effort. Activities in furtherance of the plan have occurred both inside and outside of the United States. Our investigations suggest that the plan continues today. ..."

A communist semi-superpower trying to buy an American presidential election!

Outer-directed vs. Inner-directed. Thompson stressed that bad guys in China were trying to subvert American democracy. Chretien said that American politicians regularly subvert American democracy.

The first score goes to Chretien. The ultimate root of the Thompson hearings will, and must, evolve toward the question Chretien raises. After all, China is not the only country in the world that tries to influence American elections or politics. There should be an Olympic event for it at the Sydney Games. The key question is: Do American politicians purposefully act illegally for political and personal gain?

"Two important statements sketch the parameters of what's going on."

Chretien has the right question and the wrong answer. No, Virginia, most American politicians don't act illegally, and don't sell their votes to communist dictatorships or anyone else, and don't belong in prison. Do the Democratic spinners realize how damning and dangerous their statements are when they say "Everyone does it," and "It's old news." This, from the avatars of democracy?

It is because Chretien is wrong, not right, that Thompson's inquiry is so important. Of course, Thompson understands that. He only misemphasized the problem; he did not ignore it. His list of allegations was substantial and perhaps staggering: money laundering; influence peddling; and violations of the Ethics in Government Act, the Hatch Act and conflict of interest laws. He knows the central question was not who was buying, but who was selling. (If anyone.)

So stay tuned. There are important issues at play. At a time when America is trying to lead the world toward democratic values, will we allow Chretien's ugly view to prevail? Did the Clinton campaign purposefully act in an illegal manner to raise money? If so, can they be rightfully accused of trying to buy a presidential election? (Money helps get votes; illegal money helps get functionally illegal votes.) If so, what sorts of punishment are appropriate, and for whom? Does such activity question the legitimacy of the Clinton second-term administration?

Ordinance

"We're trying to get a hold of an animal called adult entertainment," Morris said. That's what it was all about. Okay, let's go to the people. Open, public input. First, those for the ordinance.

Mark A. Lombardi, identifying himself as an Indian who is a disc jockey at Club Juana in Fern Park, stepped forward.

Some winced. "This guy's for the ordinance?" they whispered. Lombardi spoke his mind. Obviously, not for but against the ordinance. Marked the wrong box for or against. Hey, it's confusing.

Joyous McElvoy's sentiments were poignant and exact. "I'm 49, an old lady now but when I was young and wayward, I danced at Club Juana. I do not want to see this happen to my daughters or other young women."

Janet Hawkins, representing the Libertarian Party of Central Florida, said no, no government. And asked, "what will the deputies do. Strip search offenders?"

"It's a 'hey' ordinance. Bill Green said. 'Hey, my neighbor is nude. Come arrest him.'"

"When's the last time anyone in the county was arrested for being nude?" someone asks.

Bearded Attorney David Wasserman, a natural for a role in a new John Waters movie, had good news to share. He and the adult industry folks who employ him were in "good faith" dropping all the law suits against the cities in the county and the county itself.

Working things out, nicely, he said. Zippity-do-dah.

Dancer Cheryl Fisher from Club Juana said she wanted to remain topless. Pasties are unhealthy, she said. Irritate her you-know-what. Makes them bleed.

It's 10:28 p.m. Morris says public input is over.

Now, the commissioners listen to Joseph Cochiarella, Orange County's representative in the State Attorney's Office. He's asked if people from Orange County come to the Seminole adult clubs because they get full nudity. Sure, they do, he said. Would covering up the girls send these folks back to Orange. Probably.

The commissioners decide the ordinance before them isn't at all what they want. They're going to sap it.

McLain makes it clear he wants county to concentrate on fine tuning the new adult entertainment ordinance - and finding a better industrial area - not in Sanford - to relocate the existing nude bars.

McLain says he'll go along with the others if they want to put the public nudity issue on a ballot for the people.

No, no, no says Morris. Too confusing. There would be a free-for-all by the lions and Christians. Has to be a better solution. The board should make the decision.

It's 11:06 p.m. the board is through for the night.

"The board did what it had to do," Groot says.

"We'll work with the commissioners and do what's appropriate," says Sheriff Eslinger.

"Government is a process," says Morris.

"Is it nude or lewd?" asks Commissioner Win Adams, lingering a few more minutes outside the government building.

There's an almost full moon. It's clear and comfortable.

There's no other nude news.

Whalin, the mother of three, including Sean's best friend Ross, took $5,000 plus whatever she made by selling the family's new car and her clothes.

The two got their passports in Petersburg, England prior to their departure.

Police have been unable to track down the pair since they left the Orlando-Sanford Airport last week because they were allowed to go without completing the required Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) paperwork. The INS asks those who arrive in this country to detail where they will be going when they are in this country.

The woman has not rented a car, at least using her own name, since arriving in this country.

The return tickets Whalin and Kinsella purchased would require the pair to return to England next Tuesday.

Sanford Police say they'll be looking out for them at that time and throughout the next week.

Neither family would speculate on why the woman and the boy might have run off together to this country. Officials are not saying why they believe the two traveled alone to the US without telling anyone of their plans.

Anyone with any information about the whereabouts of Kinsella or Whalin is asked to call Sgt. Pat Smith at the Sanford Police Department. He can be reached at 323-3030.

Whalin is 5'6" and has a slim build. She has brown hair, hazel eyes and fair skin. The young man has a medium build, dark brown hair and a spotty complexion. He has a scar on the back of his head.

Charges are expected to be filed soon in England against Whalin for taking the boy out of the country without the permission of his family.

the Sanford Police Department and the state's attorney for violation of the Sunshine Law.

Board member Larry Furlong was the first to vote against the desegregation plan saying, "if a court finds the meetings were in violation of the law what impact does that have on the validity of the consent decree...I'm not sure we should proceed further until we can contact the federal court to see where we stand."

I'm not comfortable with going forward...we erred," Furlong said.

Furlong later proposed an amendment to the decree which would allow phasing in of students beginning with new kindergartners moving in to the school zone. The board seemed receptive to the idea and voted to table the issue until its next meeting on August 12.

Ned Julian, attorney for the school board, said he felt comfortable about the process and the integrity of the consent decree. Julian assured board members that proceedings had been legal.

Under the plan, Goldsboro would become a magnet school. Midway, Hamilton and Pine Crest would form the northeast attendance zone; Idylwild, Wilson and Wicklow would form the northwest zone.

In most cases, a family lottery would be used to determine attendance eligibility. Students meeting the following criteria would get priority: • Immediate trimeters, granddaughters, fifth graders and their siblings, students living within a half mile radius of the school, children of employees, and incoming fifth graders and their siblings. At least 15 percent of the students must come outside of the cluster zones.

Members Barbara A. Kuhn, Jeanne Morris and Board Chairman Sandra Robinson voted to approve the plan which would be implemented in the 1998-99 school year in accordance with the consent decree agreed upon earlier this year by the school district and the U.S. Justice Department. "The public has not been deprived of getting information," Kuhn said. "We had meetings, we made ourselves available. I'm very comfortable that we have done everything we can to let people know."

When asked what the ramifications would be if the board did not proceed with the negotiated decree, Julian said the board risks being in contempt with the Justice Department.

Voting no on the plan, board member Bob Goff said giving desegregative transfer students priority, as outlined in the consent decree, would deprive students in the cluster zones.

School Superintendent Paul J. Hagerty said the plan was good and minimally intrusive in the community because it only affected seven out of the county's 50 schools. Hagerty told the board, "Once you get the desegregation implemented, then you are in a position to get things done."

"I think we have a very good desegregation plan," he said. "It brings quality education to Sanford schools in the least intrusive way."

Family Fun Festival planned for Friday

By MARVA HAWKINS
Herald Columnist

On Friday, July 25th, the West Sanford Boys and Girls Club will hold its annual Family Fun Festival. This is a community-wide festival, fun day that is free to the public.

Organizers encourage all to bring your family and all of your children. Free fun, games, music, food are featured, and 25 social service agencies will provide information. Prizes and back-to-school packs will be provided free of charge.

There will also be a moon walk, a dump tank...come and showcase your talent. All kinds of talent is welcome. Kids will perform hourly, sack races, a watermelon eating contest and Drug Prevention News are also featured.

Walt Disney's 45-minute puppet show, a special presentation, will begin at 3 p.m.

There will be fun filled events for the entire family from 1 p.m. until 6 p.m.

Nelson names new advocate for insurance consumers

Special to the Herald

TALLAHASSEE--A top consumer official in the Department of Insurance was selected by Florida Treasurer and Insurance Commissioner Bill Nelson to succeed Steve Burgess as the state's chief consumer advocate.

Elsie B. Crowell, a veteran public servant known for her work in the field of consumer services and her two-year tenure as chair of the Florida's Commission on the Status of Women, becomes the state's Insurance Consumer Advocate. Ms. Crowell, 51, will represent consumers in all insurance regulatory matters, including rate cases.

Nelson, at a news conference held in Tallahassee to introduce Ms. Crowell, said he wants a consumer advocate who will be deeply involved in all aspects of insurance industry regulation. The commissioner has asked, among other things, that Ms. Crowell speak for consumers during reviews and consideration of all rate filings.

"I want the consumers' advocate present for every important discussion and decision," Nelson said. "In other words, I want Florida's insurance consumers to have input at every step in the regulatory process."

The Florida Legislature created the Insurance Consumer Advocate's post in 1990 under then-Commissioner Tom Gallagher. Gallagher appointed Mr. Burgess to the job. Mr. Burgess is the only other person besides Ms. Crowell to hold the post, leaving in May to return to his former position in the office of Public Counsel Jack Shreve, who represents consumers in utility rate cases.

Ms. Crowell has been with the Department of Insurance since 1989 and currently oversees the department's Division of Consumer Services with 11 regional offices around the state to help residents with any kind of insurance problems. She's been in that job since 1991. Before joining the insurance department, she served in a variety of key management jobs at state Department of Professional Regulation, now called the Department of Business and Professional Regulation.

In 1991, she was appointed by the governor, state House speaker and Senate president to serve on the 22-member Florida Commission on the Status of Women. She was elected to chair the commission in 1993. That same year, she also served on the Florida State University Presidential Search Committee.

Boring Sundays are over, the NFL is back

SANFORD Finally. After six months without inside the NFL, pre-game shows, half-time reports, fumbles, touchdowns and penalties, it's finally here. On July 27, FOX will broadcast the first football game of the season.

I, for one, have been going nuts. Sure, there's been baseball. Until the Yankees finally closed the gap with the Orioles (thanks more to the Orioles bad playing than the Yankees good playing) I didn't have much interest.

There's tennis. I've already told everyone how I feel about the game now that there isn't any personality to it.

Golf is still going strong, if you're a huge Tiger Woods fan. I, myself, like Greg Norman and the Shark isn't showing me much this year.

Men's basketball, hockey and soccer are over. Not many people are ice skating right now. I'm really hard pressed to find something to watch on Sundays.

Not a moment too soon, football is back. At last, my favorite sport is back for another season.

Back are the personalities. The coaches and players we all know and love/hate but watch all the same.

Once again the football world will be off and running. Emmitt Smith will be running up the field, Jerry Jones will be running his mouth, Mike Ditka is back to run a team and Danny Weirffel will be running over Heath Shuler on his way to the position of New Orleans' starting quarterback.

In my opinion, this is the best time of the season, before the season. Everyone's team is the next Super Bowl Champion, even the Bucs. All of the players are healthy, all of the coaches are refreshed and every fan is planning their vacations around their team's schedule. The office pools are forming, the parties are being planned. This is the most wonderful time of the year (with the exception of the week before college football starts. More on that later.)

Football has become more American than baseball, Chevrolet and maybe even apple pie. No other sport pits families against each other, starts brawls in bars or enrages wives quite like football can. People are hard pressed to name their favorite bowler or beach volleyball player. But they sure can name not only their favorite football team, but player, coach and play. On Monday nights, fans fill the bars and living rooms of their cities to watch Monday Night Football. Few track and field events have drawn the same crowds.

In terms of excitement, only the last two minutes of a basketball game can even come close to the level of an entire football game. Most sports are dull. People watch car racing for the crashes, boxing for the knockout and hockey for the fights. People watch football for the catches, the rushing, the beautiful passes, the personalities and, okay, maybe the occasional bench clearing brawl. But the entire game is exciting, from kick off to the final play.

I can't wait for the first game. Just hearing that the players were reporting for training camp stirred me. You know where to find me on Sunday. See you at the sports bar.

Sanford Prep 16 finish fourth

OCALA — A fast start was no match for a hot team and overconfidence as the Sanford Recreation Department Prep 16 All Star team finished fourth in the Florida Babe Ruth Baseball Prep 16 State Tournament at Central Florida Community College in Ocala.

Andrew Brown and Tug Daniels combined on a two-hitter and a late offensive surge produced 12 runs over the final three innings as the Sanford All-Stars turned a close game into a 15-1 thrashing of an always strong Sarasota All-Star team.

But the excitement of that victory did not carry over as the Sanford All-Stars dropped a 6-1 decision to Royal Palm Beach, which went on to win the tournament with an undefeated record.

The Sanford All-Stars had plenty of chances as it collected seven hits and had 11 base runners, but could not come up with the big blow to knock off the Royal Palm Beach All-Stars, who broke open a 3-1 lead by scoring three runs in the top of the seventh inning.

The Sanford All-Stars then let the memory of the first game get the OCALA — Who stole the bats? That must have been the question the Sanford All-Stars were asking after they ran into a pair of awesome pitchers in the 10-team Florida Babe Ruth Baseball 16-18 Senior League State Tournament at Jerry Gnatf Park in Ocala.

Tallahassee Baseball Club pitcher Kevin Coker struck out 12 and walked only two as he hurled a no-hitter in a 16-1, five-inning victory over the Sanford All-Stars.

Coker was so strong that he only allowed three Sanford All-Star batters to hit the ball, two infield pop ups, one to third base and one to first base, and a ground ball back to the mound.

The only two Sanford All-Star batters to reach base were Aaron Knight, who led off the bottom of the first base and stole second base but was left stranded and Nathaniel Cline, who led off the fourth inning with walk, stole second and came around to score on an error by the Tallahassee Baseball Club shortstop and another error by the Tallahassee Baseball Club center fielder.

Can you halt damage of osteoporosis?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am quite stooped because of osteoporosis. Three months ago, I began taking Fosamax. To date, I have not noticed any improvement in my posture. Considering the expense of the medicine, should I continue to take it?

DEAR READER: Osteoporosis, the age-related loss of calcium from bone, is associated in many cases with vertebral fractures. One or more of the spinal bones may virtually collapse, leading to a stooped posture ("dowager's hump"). These changes are permanent and cannot be reversed by any current therapy.

The degree of osteoporosis is defined by a bone density measurement, which is determined by means of an X-ray examination.

Fosamax is a prescription drug that causes bones to absorb more calcium. The process is a lengthy one, however, and may take several months, even years.

I agree with your doctor's decision to prescribe Fosamax. Nonetheless, you will probably feel no beneficial effects from it, nor will your posture improve significantly. The purpose of therapy is to arrest (or even reverse) calcium loss from bones. You will continue to be stooped, yet the drug will in all likelihood prevent further damage and may prevent future fractures (in hips and spine) from occurring. Such fractures could severely hamper your independence.

The only reliable way to judge the beneficial effects of Fosamax is to repeat a bone density test in about a year's time. The new test should prove that your bones are gaining calcium — or, at least, not losing it as rapidly as before.

Meanwhile, you might be helped by physical therapy and special exercises. Follow your physician's instructions with respect to your condition.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am an educated 43-year-old woman who gained 30 pounds after having had thyroid surgery. Therefore, my blood boiled when I read your answer to the woman with hypothyroidism who had gained weight; you said the weight wasn't caused by her thyroid deficiency. I know better, even though my physicians discount this. You must know that the medical profession has a lot to learn about the effects of glands on our bodies. I don't know why doctors don't listen to their patients.

DEAR READER: I agree with you that the medical profession has much to learn about the effects various glands exert on metabolism — and, as you imply, hypothyroidism certainly reduces the metabolic rate.

Nonetheless, most endocrinologists could change, as future researchers investigate the complex thyroid-metabolism interaction. When new information becomes available, I and other doctors may alter our views. However, at present most experts agree that the weight gain of hypothyroidism reflects an imbalance between the calories consumed and the calories burned.

MEDICINE

Remember that hypothyroidism — of any cause — can be treated rather effectively and inexpensively with thyroid hormone supplements. If the overweight persists after such treatment, it cannot be related to the thyroid.

I recommend that you and others in a similar position modify your diets (reduce caloric consumption to 1,200 calories a day) and increase your exercise.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Another sign of the times

By Phillip Alder

The Long Island Rail Road waiting room in Penn Station has a sign that includes the following: "There is a three-hour waiting limit." Now, if only the trains would run more often...

In bridge, though, taking one's time is often a good idea. There is an old saying that if you watch a beginner playing in three no-trump, he will win the first four and lose the last five, whereas an expert will lose the first four and win the last nine.

With that unsible hint, how would you play in three no-trump here? West leads the heart six: four, queen, king. Over to you.

West's two hearts showed a decent six-card suit and some 6-10 high-card points. Why do players use the weak two rather than the strong two? Because it comes up much more often. And it supplies a good balance between offensive and defensive bidding. The opponents are more likely to be inconvenienced than partner.

North was right to make a takeout double. His hand is playable in three suits, not the one that overcalling three clubs would suggest.

After grabbing the first trick with his heart king, South crossed to dummy with a spade and took the club finesse. However, West happily won with the king and cashed five heart tricks: two down.

North wasn't amused: "Why didn't you duck at trick one?" he asked. "From the bidding, you know East has played a singleton queen. Win whatever he returns and take the club finesse in safety, still having every suit under control."

"Sorry, partner. I will find a coach to train me to play more slowly."

HOROSCOPE

Your Birthday
Thursday, July 24, 1997

A considerate, loyal friend might be of great help to you in the year ahead in strengthening your financial position. He or she will look out for your interests without having to be asked.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It behooves you to be a good listener when talking to a bright associate today. He or she could furnish you with several considerations you've been overlooking. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Substantial time and effort can be saved today by figuring out new techniques to complete old tasks. Do not put limitations on your imagination.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today, while others will be trying to grasp the essence of a problem, you'll be the one who'll come up with several satisfactory solutions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually it's not to your advantage to work under pressure today, however, the more you have to do, the better you're likely to perform.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try to get as much completed as early in the day as possible, so you'll have open hours in the afternoon. A favorable option might arise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Lady Luck could be your ally today and she might help you turn a losing situation into a winning one. Make your move when you sense her presence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In order to satisfy your restlessness today, participate in involvements that allow you to move around mentally and physically.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You are still in a cycle where you could derive benefits from situations initiated by someone else. The payoff might not be immediate, however.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This is a fortunate period for you to establish valuable, functional contacts. Today, move to where you'll have opportunities to meet new people.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An important career objective is achievable today, but it might require a second or third effort. Do not give up if contending with rejection.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Something long-awaited might finally come together for you today, but this is not likely to occur in the manner you've planned. Flow with events.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Bravado and brawn aren't the tools required to achieve success today. You can, however, scale the heights by using your ingenuity and resourcefulness.
