The secretary, in a report on the re-employment of 1,000,000 unemployed men, said that the number of men who had returned to work in July was 600,000, or 29 per cent more than in March. He said that the purchasing power of all products in manufacturing had increased about $100,000 in weekly wages compared with March.

Local Unemployment

Some slighting remarks have been made regarding the success of the local NRA campaign to increase employment because early reports on the drive, compiled at the close of the first week's operation under the President's Agreement, failed to show a large reduction in unemployment or a tremendous increase in local payrolls. What the reports did show was that 37 persons had been put back to work and that payrolls had been increased by slightly more than $500.

This still leaves something like a thousand persons, who have registered at the Re-Employment Agency, looking for jobs. Undoubtedly some of these have been put to work since the questionnaires, on which the first report was based, were filled out. Another report will be compiled early next week when the Re-Employment Coupons on this week's payrolls have been tabulated. It is expected that a much better showing will be made in this second report than in the first one.

However, local citizens should be careful not to anticipate too much from the re-employment drive in this city. They should not expect jobs to be found for a thousand unemployed at the slowest season of the year. In many communities, the size of Sanford, but differently situated, the mere shortening of working hours would make this possible, but a number of exceptional circumstances affecting this city, combine against any large scale re-employment at this time.

A large percentage of our population, and a very large proportion of our laboring classes—we do not know how large but probably more than 50 percent—are directly connected with farming, citrus growing, and other agricultural pursuits. This entire class is specifically excluded from the provisions of the NRA. Another large proportion of our population consists of railroad men, employees of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, who are also exempted from the recovery act.

These two classes together probably make up 75 percent of all the people residing in this community. That leaves only the merchants and a comparatively small number of local industries—certainly not more than 25 percent of the total—which come under any of the provisions of the NRA campaign and which are expected by some to absorb all the slack in local unemployment.

Furthermore, a very large percentage of the unemployed in this section are in reality farm laborers. They are unemployed now because the farms are idle, as they always are at this season of the year, and will be put back to work—at least, many of them—during the celery season. Most of these people are entirely unsuited for the kind of work which local merchants and local industries, under the NRA, are prepared to offer. The large majority of our unemployed could neither be clerks, salesmen, stenographers, accountants or machinists, if the jobs were offered them.

We do not mean by this that there should be any let-up in the local drive to supply jobs, or that those who do come under the NRA should be any less vigilant in the performance of their duties. We simply mean that it is not reasonable to expect a handful of downtown merchants to furnish jobs to all the unemployed in this section. They must do their part. They must comply with the terms of the President's Agreement or the special codes for their particular trades.

But no spectacular results in the reduction of unemployment or the increase of payrolls in this section can well be expected until the farmers are again ready to put in their crops. In passing judgment on the success or failure of the local NRA campaign, it is essential to keep this fact in mind.

What A Relief

We have become so used to considering only news of economic or governmental flavor as important these days that the great significance of a story concerning the National Association of Retail Clothiers convention in Chicago is likely to escape the reading public.

Information has been disclosed at this convention which will mean more to the male population than all the NRA codes, balanced budgets, commercial treaties, monetary conferences, the gold standard and other matters which are perplexing the brains of the nation.

At last, so the tailors say, there has been devised a suit of clothes which will hold its crease. It is called the "living suit," and it is claimed that it will spell the doom of baggy trousers and bulgy places at the elbows. What happier or more pleasant news could be heard by the men of this country, especially those of us who sit in a chair all day with our elbows propped up on a desk, than that hereafter we will not be troubled by getting a formation of cloth at the knees, elbows and other places, not to be mentioned here, which resembles the balloon spinnaker of a sailing schooner?

According to those responsible for this far-reaching discovery the secret lies in the elastic wool used in the necessary areas, and what is more the elastic idea will be available soon in other materials.

With the adoption of this system in men's clothing the many problems which we are confronting will appear much less troublesome, will, in fact seem to be unworthy of any considerable worry, what with the assurance that we can sit down, and cross our knees, and bend our elbows without feeling that we must go immediately to the pressers.

MILL ACTIVITY IN COTTON SECTION NEARING RECORD

Condition Is Much In Contrast With Situation 1 Year Ago

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Mil activity in the cotton industry was described as approaching a near record with government effort stimulating an optimistic sentiment in the annual report of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange recently.

The report declared this condition was much in contrast with low ebb activity and pessimistic feeling at the start of last season. It was prepared by Henry G. Hester, secretary emeritus of the exchange, and Henry Flauche, secretary.

The commercial crop, including seed, and totaling 15,053,000 bales of cotton marketed during the last season was valued at $596,389,751 as compared with $548,806,533 the previous season, the report said.

The average price of lint cotton last season was 6.95 cents a pound, as compared with an average price the preceding season of 5.89 cents a pound.

"The crop was not quite up to last year in grade," said the report, "averaging about 10 points better than middling, with fairly good to staple and a minimum of high and low grades."

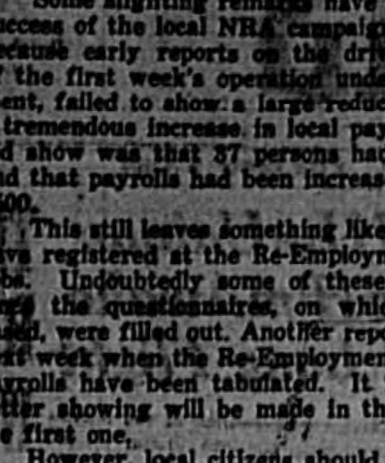

"The season for the most part has been one of uncertainty and dissatisfaction during the latter months by reason of governmental efforts to better the situation. These have helped the market and aided in obtaining improved sales and increased activity in marketing and consumption."

"We are still left with an excessive carryover which the government is laudably endeavoring to reduce by the unusual effort of partial cancellation of acreage for the coming season. The result of the experiments is said to be phenomenal, but it is meeting with hearty accord from the trade."

"The story of American mills is encouraging," the report went on. "At last year's closing conditions were at as low ebb almost as had been witnessed in the annals of the industry, and while there was an underlying feeling that any change must be for the better, there was a preponderating sentiment of uncertainty. This has been gradually changed, until at present conditions are just the opposite."

"From August to March, inclusive, there was a moderate change for the better, while from April on the improvement was such that most mills worked to full capacity, operating night and day shifts, consuming, as stated by a leading authority, more per day, south and north, than ever before."

Octopus Wrestled By Young Girl For Movie Cameraman

MENLO PARK, Calif., Aug. 17.—(AP)—A girl has to have the proper scientific spirit—or maybe just plain spunk—to dive into a tank with an octopus and stage a wrestling match for a periscope underwater movie camera.

But Florence Douglas, 17, did just that for her father, Leon Douglas, inventor of a periscope camera and enthusiast about deep sea science.

Douglas decided a spectacular reel would be one of a "death" struggle with an octopus. He got the octopus—a vicious specimen of the leatherlike breed stretching 12 feet from arm to arm—from some Italian fishermen near Monterey. It took four men to get the devilfish into a huge hoghead of salt water for shipment to the Douglas swimming pool here.

But who would do the wrestling act?

"I'll take him on," volunteered 17-year-old Florence.

It was an anxious moment when the slim girl dived into the tank, and the slimy tentacles of the ocean monster wrapped around her, fastening their suction cups wherever they touched her flesh.

Douglas ground his camera as long as he dared, then signaled the "actors" it was time to stop. But the devilfish was unused to stage directions, and kept right on sucking. Men stationed about the edge of the pool dived in, and it took the combined strength of several to extricate Florence.

Edward G. Robinson Starting At Milane

Edward G. Robinson, who first became a cinema prominence as a gangster in "Little Caesar" and "Smart Money," comes to the screen of the Milane Theater today as an ex-gang leader in the first National picture, "The Little Giant."

Miss Wilson has the part of a society adventuress who Robinson regards with ludicrous awe because she represents all he would hope to be. He awakens to his social lesson in 1929 when the social plans to leave him for her moments after she and her father have taken him over for several hundred thousand dollars through a phony bond deal.

And the strangest lesson of all is given by Mary Astor, as the real society girl, posing as his secretary, who really falls in love with the smooth, though gutter-born, hoodlum, before he proposes to her. The girl played by Helen Westcott.

As part of this hilarious picture, a comedy-drama, Robinson, Thomson, Russell, Churchill and Del Ruth directed.

Ickes Order Won't Affect Survey For State Canal Route

OCALA, Aug. 17.—(AP)—J. W. Blair, engineer in charge of the federal survey in this section in connection with the location of a route for the proposed cross-state canal, yesterday said the work here will be continued unaffected by Secretary Ickes' order in Washington for a special study of the project. The survey, which is being made on land and from air, is along a proposed route from Jacksonville on the Atlantic Ocean, to the mouth of the Withlacoochee River on the gulf coast. At present the engineers are working in the Ocklawaha River valley between Sharpes Ferry and Welaka.

If this proposed route is used for the canal, engineers said the water for the locks necessary to raise ships to the required level would be obtained from Silver Springs and Blue Springs in Marion county.

W. F. Knotts, of Yankeetown, for many years an advocate of the cross-state canal project, yesterday told the local chamber of commerce the Jacksonville-Withlacoochee route was the only possible one for a ship canal.

Business Houses In Daytona Beach Told To Obey Code

DAYTONA BEACH, Aug. 17.—Business establishments here have been warned by Graham Weisiger, NRA campaign general of this trade area, against reducing the time their places of business are kept open in order to evade the re-employment objective of the recovery program.

His warning applied to establishments having two or more employees as of July 1, which are required under the Presidential agreement to remain open a minimum of 52 hours, unless they had maintained shorter shop hours prior to July 1, and in the latter case not to reduce further the weekly duration of operation.

General Weisiger's warning, based on a bulletin from Washington, is to be backed by a campaign enlisting consumer support of business places displaying the blue eagle and keeping faith with the covenant of which it is a symbol. Calling attention to the fact that the purpose of the NRA campaign and the President's agreement is to increase employa buying power through shortening the hours of labor and lengthening shop hours to increase employment, General Weisiger declared the blue eagle would be withdrawn from business places that attempt to frustrate or evade the NRA objective.

Italian Liner Rex Sets New Record In Ocean Crossing

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Italian liner Rex arrived yesterday from Gibraltar claiming a new record for trans-Atlantic crossing by ships.

The Rex made the trip from Gibraltar to Ambrose lightship, at the entrance to New York harbor, in four days, 13 hours and 58 minutes, at an average speed of 28.92 knots. The distance given was 3181 miles.

The fastest previous crossing was made by the North German Lloyd liner Bremen, sailing the westward course from Cherbourg breakwater to Ambrose lightship, in September 1932 in four days, 15 hours and 56 minutes. Her highest average speed, however, was made on the eastward trip from Ambrose to Cherbourg over the long summer course of 3199 miles June 30 last. On that voyage her average speed was 28.51 knots.

The Italian line said yesterday that the performance of the Rex made her the fastest ship afloat. The fastest single day's run of the Rex was recorded as 29.61 knots, while records for the Bremen show her fastest single day's run was 29.43 knots.

U. S. Marshal For Northern District Will Not Resign

PENSACOLA, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Department of Justice in Washington has requested the resignation of Will Harrison, United States marshal for the Northern District of Florida, but Harrison yesterday said he would not resign.

No reason was given in Washington for the requested resignation. It was announced that the request was sent to Harrison on July 10.

"I was appointed for a four year term, little more than a year ago," Harrison said yesterday. "I don't feel like I should be called upon to resign. The Republicans, when they came into power, did not ask Democrats then holding office to resign. Instead they were allowed to serve out their terms and many even received jobs from the Republican administration."

Lindberghs Plan Last Hop Of Trip To British Shores

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh expect to remain in Iceland until at least Friday when they may fly to England. The couple will await their base ship, the Jelling, due here Friday morning with supplies. Meanwhile, they will continue their northern aerial route mapping activities with flights in this vicinity.

Colonel Lindbergh said Tuesday night that England might be their next destination. (The distance to North Scotland is about 600 miles and to England about 850). The Lindberghs slept Tuesday night in their flying machine, lying off Vidley, where they landed Tuesday after a flight from Greenland. They were expected to sleep in the plane again last night.

Entering Reykjavik by automobile yesterday, Colonel Lindbergh went direct to the postoffice to deliver a small postal sack. Only a few people saw the Lindberghs enter the building but soon traffic on the streets was blocked and they had to make their escape by a back door. Later they conferred with the minister of communications and the mayor.

Colonel Lindbergh cleared up questions concerning the flights he has made since leaving North America. On a Greenland map, he marked the route he followed from Labrador to Godthaab, Holsteinborg and Unamak and back to Holsteinborg on the west coast of Greenland. Then he showed his flight to Ruffin Land and then from Holsteinborg across Greenland to Ella Isle, in Franz Joseph Ford, and via Scoresby Sound to Angmagalik. He pointed out how he flew across the ice cap again to Godthaab and Julianehab, rounding Cape Farewell to return to Angmagalik. He flew from Angmagalik to Iceland.

Mrs. O. T. Pearson has returned from Fort Valley, Ga. where she spent several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Smith and children have gone to points in North and South Carolina to spend a few weeks.

U. S. Takes Steps For Prosecution Of Harvey Bailey

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 17.—(AP)—The federal government took the first steps yesterday in the prosecution of Harvey Bailey and four others charged with the kidnaping of Charles E. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil millionaire, by ordering them held on bonds totaling $300,000.

Each pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Lee R. Smith, United States commissioner, in the Dallas county jail where they had been since their arrest early Saturday morning at a farm house near Parakee.

Bonds were set as follows: Bailey, $100,000; R. G. Shannon, Wise county farmer on whose land Bailey was captured; Mrs. Shannon, Armon Shannon, his son, and Mrs. Oleta Shannon, Armon's wife, $50,000 each.

Federal agents pointed out that even though Bailey were to make bond, they still would not release him since he is an escaped convict from the Kansas penitentiary at Lansing and charged with murder in connection with the Kansas City union station massacre.

Bailey and the Shannons will be held here pending possible removal to Oklahoma City on federal warrants. Bailey is expected to be taken to Kansas City to stand trial for murder.

Police at Denver, Colo., yesterday increased their guard over Albert Bates, held there as another of the kidnapers of Urschel.

Tattoo Marks Upon Husband And Wife Identifies Them

BALTIMORE, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Tattoo marks covering a husband and a wife from head to foot served yesterday to unite the couple at a hospital here, where the woman lies critically ill from pneumonia.

The woman was admitted to the hospital last Monday, after a policeman had discovered her in a semi-conscious condition in a cafe, shaking with chills. There was no way to identify her, but among the intricate designs on her body was the name "Kate Summers."

Yesterday a policeman noticed a man standing in a doorway. The man's chest and arms were a mass of tattooing. The policeman remembered the story of the tattooed woman and accosted the man, learning later that the woman was the man's wife.

The man, Robert Summers, said he had married Kate three years ago and tattooed her completely, advertising her as the only woman in the world to receive the complete tattooing in three months.

Their business, however, had not prospered and after their last engagement in York, Pa., Kate started for Baltimore. She had little money so she hitch-hiked. They were to meet at the "Museum" where they planned to begin showing.

When he reached Baltimore Tuesday, Summers was puzzled. His wife could not be found. Not until the policeman told him about the sick woman yesterday morning did he have any idea where she might be.

She is delirious and has not recognized him.
