

The German Problem

The firebrand of European politics has withdrawn Germany from the disarmament conference, has severed notice of Germany's retirement from the League of Nations, and has called a special election for November 12 to determine whether the German people approve his acts.

In fact already German newspapers have been unanimous in endorsing Hitler's defiance of the disarmament conference. What else could they do? If they ventured to criticize the action as being a trifle hasty or dangerous to world peace, the plants would be closed, possibly their editors shot at sunrise.

If anyone could say in Germany what he is probably thinking, he might ask Herr Hitler why he is so anxious to re-arm anyway. The chancellor himself has repeatedly emphasized to the German people that the Treaty of Versailles has already deprived Germany of her colonies and of every particle of integral German territory which any of her neighbors desired.

In the old days, when Hitler was little better than the mean, box orator, he added to his popularity by emotional appeals to the Germans to drive the French armies out of the Rhur district. When he came into power last year, he found that the French had already withdrawn from the Rhur. And he used to tell the people that if he were the "big man" of Germany he would tell the Allies where to get off on reparation payments.

Now he ascends the throne only to find that his predecessor has beaten him to it. Reparations in Germany are a dead issue. The Lausanne conference scaled the payments down to a negligible sum, and nothing has been paid under the new set up. No effort has been made to collect anything.

But arbitration seems to be useless in revising these boundaries. Poland is as anxious to keep her outlet to the sea as Germany is to get rid of this thorn which is constantly sticking in her side. There seems to be no peaceful way of reconciling these differences.

So Germany wants to re-arm. To start another war. And gain control of the Polish Corridor.

Why Do We Laugh?

To define what is funny in one of the most difficult things to do. If we see an elderly man slip down on an ice-covered sidewalk we do not laugh but are moved by the greatest feeling of compassion and sympathy.

The two occasions described are essentially the same, yet our reactions are diametrically opposite. Why does any one laugh when comedians in the films throw pies at each other? What's funny about expressions like "says you," or "so's your old man," or "so what?"

Americans have always been critical of Englishmen because we think they are unable to see the point of a joke. As a matter of fact, the British sense of humor is just as keen as the American, but we certainly can't expect an Englishman to break out in long guffaws when some one comes forth with a "says you."

There was a time when Scotch jokes were considered very funny, but they have been told so much that people usually turn the other way when someone begins one of them. Running used to be a mirth provoking but if you want to get a real good "rasberry" just tell one like this: "Why does Jean Harlow remind me of a tower? Because she's an eye full!"

Incongruities are responsible for many of the things which we think are funny. This was true in the case of the professor who tripped and fell. We expect a professor all ways to be on his dignity, and when he isn't, as in the instance when he was sprawled on the floor, we cannot help but laugh, even though the situation may be tragic and call for tears instead.

Humor is a very intangible sort of thing. No one can exactly describe it adequately, and about the only thing we know for certain about it is that the best way not to be funny is to try to be.

D., physician and surgeon, whose offices were at R. B. Rich & Company's Drug Store and by Dr. L. M. Moore, dentist, who, according to his advertisement, "was prepared to execute all work in his line in the most skillful manner for a reasonable charge."

Among the items of interest in the pages of the weekly paper was an obituary notice of Arthur Ginn, who died on Aug. 14, 1876. He was the husband of Mary Lucas, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who moved with him to Georgia shortly after their marriage. Their only child, a daughter, married Dr. A. S. Speer and settled with him where the magnificent Speer orange grove was in 1876. Dr. Speer was the father of Algernon S. Speer and Arthur Speer and of the wives of M. J. Doyle and Hon. G. C. Brantley.

J. N. Whitner, Jr. had an advertisement in the paper saying that he specialized in Florida lands and would buy and sell lands in Orange County by special contract. Among the properties he had for sale were banana plantations, guava groves, and orange groves.

Evidently the most important lawyer in town in 1876 was T. E. Wilson, state's attorney for the seventh judicial district, who resided at Sylvan Lake in the home which is now occupied by his widow, Mrs. Lizzie Fox Wilson, her sister, Miss Katherine Fox, and their nephew, John E. Fox.

Among other lawyers practicing in Central Florida were: E. K. Foster, Jr., whose office was at his home on Lake Jennie; C. B. Buckner, of Enterprise; H. C. Harrison, of Orlando; Alexander St. Clair Abrams, of Fort Meason, Orange county; and Price & Cuts, of Enterprise.

An indication of the variety of articles carried in the various stores in the district is the advertisement of the T. E. Wilson & Co. Sylvan Lake Store, which dealt in dry goods and notions, coats and shoes, groceries, hardware, queens-willow ware and other things.

There were four churches in and near Sanford in those days. The Rev. W. B. Telford was pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Fort Reid; the Rev. L. Phelps was rector of the Church of the Holy Cross in Sanford; the Rev. H. H. Barnett had charge of the Methodist Church at Fort Reid; and the Rev. J. H. Johnson was pastor of the Methodist Church in Sanford.

One of the news stories in the paper read as follows: "On the 31st ult., accepting a seat in the buggy with Col. N. A. Hull, general agent, we paid a visit to General Sanford's famous Belair grove, 3 1/2 miles southwest of Sanford. It was the day on which Mr. F. G. Lindburgh, who has had charge of the grove for the past two years, was to turn it over to the new overseer, Mr. John B. Stirling. The grove was started by General Sanford in the spring of 1872, 30 acres being cleared and planted. This old grove thrived wonderfully and 75 acres are now cleared and planted and 25 more are being rapidly cleared for planting."

Still another item in the paper was written thus: "Judge John R. Mizell, on his way to the Second District Convention, showed us a second-crop orange from William

This equality, he said, has consistently been denied the Reich. He challenged powers represented at the Geneva conference to agree on a mutual disarmament, claimed the British foreign office had misrepresented Germany's attitude to Washington, and pledged anew that Germany would assist in any project to rid the world of the arms burden.

"The cardinal question around which the entire politics of the present day turns," he maintained, "and concerning which the unequivocal answer must be given, is: 'Shall the division of nations into victors and vanquished be eternalized or is, at last, the principle to receive recognition that all states are members with equal rights in the community of nations?'"

"The recognition and realization of this principle is decisive for every form of international co-operation. The more evident the political opposition to the execution of general disarmament because, the more earnestly did Germany warn that the league of nations' fate was sealed if it failed to fulfill the task of bringing about a general disarmament and thereby the restitution of Germany's equality."

"When we re-entered the conference we learned with disappointment that the foundations of the conference discussions no longer existed. There was but one answer to make, namely to leave

Why Germany Quit

Vital facts concerning Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and the World Disarmament conference: Germany became the fourth major nation absent from the league. Others: United States, Soviet Russia and Japan.

Members of league: Fifty-two, not counting Germany and Japan, both of which have announced withdrawal. Two years' notice is required before withdrawal becomes effective. Germany joined the league in 1926 and was one of five—France, Germany, Britain, Italy and Japan—permanent members of the league council.

Under the Versailles treaty Germany was: 1. Assessed a vast sum in reparations. 2. Rigidly restricted as to arms. 3. Forced to permit former allied troops to occupy the Rhine. 4. Deprived of various colonies and territories.

These four points, most vigorously protested by Germany, now stand: 1. Reparations virtually have been cancelled. 2. Germany has signified her intent to re-arm, unless other nations disarm. 3. Allied troops evacuated the Rhineland. 4. German officials, in recent years, have frequently suggested that colonies and territory be restored.

passed the standard tests. The packing house has had its annual overhauling and is in a position to meet all the requirements of the season.

"That is understandable, since the recent negotiations were conducted confidentially, but the participating statesmen were in no wise surprised. 'With satisfaction, I observe that during these last negotiations the representatives of the United States and Italy left no effort untried to mediate. All the efforts, however, failed, an account of the efforts of the other powers to erect a united front against Germany, to which Germany could do nothing but yield. This united front failed to develop.'"

Osaka School Subject Of Missionary Study

The Lambuth Training School for Christian Workers at Osaka, Japan, was the subject for the monthly literature meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Methodist Church held yesterday afternoon at the church with the Mary Lambuth-Circle in charge of the program. The church was decorated for the occasion with a profusion of autumn flowers.

The history of the school and an account of the activities of the teachers and students were given by Mrs. Paul Johnson, Mrs. M. Ruper, Strickland, Jr., Mrs. O. K. Godd, Mrs. E. H. Laney and Mrs. H. D. Caswell.

Mrs. W. S. Thornton concluded the meeting with an announcement of the zone meeting to be held Wednesday at the church. A social period was then enjoyed with the members of Circle Number Two serving as hostesses. Refreshments were served in the church annex by Mrs. P. D. Parker, chairman of Circle Number Two, Mrs. L. P. Hagan, Mrs. T. W. Williams, and Mrs. C. E. Hagan.

MARKET TRENDS

Stocks weak; leaders slump in renewed liquidation.
Bonds heavy; secondary issues weak.
Curb weak; list breaks shortly.
Foreign exchanges irregular, dollar erratic.
Cotton weak; lower sterling exchange; weak stock and grain markets.
Sugar lower; poor spot demand.
Coffee largely steady; European selling.
Wheat semi-demoralized; heavy eastern selling.
Corn lower; sympathy with wheat.
Cattle weak to 25 lower; top steers $6 45.
Hogs 10-20 lower; top $5.
NEW YORK, Oct. 17 (AP)—Fresh futures of liquidation in the wheat, wheat and cotton markets yesterday hammered prices down to the lowest levels since the end of May.

Wall Street was confused and perplexed by the heading plunge of quotations, which centered in wheat, and further rumors were heard in brokerage quarters of forced selling out of overextended speculative positions.

The dollar rose abruptly in relation to foreign currencies in the early dealings, which tended temporarily to diminish further speculative and inflationary hopes, and may have been a factor in the early selling. By the time stocks were back, however, the dollar had fallen back, losing most of its gain, particularly against the gold currency.

Wheat again tumbled the full five cents a bushel permitted in one day's trading in the Chicago pit, which depressed the December delivery slightly under 70 cents a bushel, or more than 50 cents under its July peak.

Cotton in New York dropped $2 to $2 40 a bale. The December delivery, which topped 12 cents a pound last July, closed at 8 77 cents. Among other staples, silvers futures lost about a cent a ounce at New York, copper futures, among one-third of a cent a pound, tin about one-half cent, and rubber approximately two-thirds of a cent. Raw silk lost four to seven cents a pound.

Star Goes Dramatic In Coming Milan Film

In her first dramatic role since "The Trespasser", Gloria Swanson comes to the Milan Theater on Wednesday in "Perfect Understanding", her latest United Artists film. And this time she will be afforded an opportunity of viewing one of the strongest supporting casts the star has had in several years.

"Perfect Understanding" is a story with an English locale, much of its action occurring in London and on the Continent. And for this reason Miss Swanson has been at great pains to select her supporting players with an eye to placing an Englishman in an English part, and so on. The result is a highly specialized cast of players.

The story concerns an American girl who falls in love with the son of an English peer, and the two are afraid of marriage because of the obvious unhappiness of several of their married friends. However, they do become man and wife, and the pitfalls occur almost immediately. The marriage drifts perilously near to rocks, but in the end a perfect understanding is reached and happiness is attained.

RFC REPORTS ON ADVANCES IT HAS MADE

in that period and repayments of $878,985,793, or 28 percent.

Returns on the various classes of loans into which the Corporation has gone have varied from an average of 47 cents on the dollar given to going banks to an average of two-tenths of a mill on the dollar given to banks in the process of re-organization.

Because all the money disbursed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has been added to the public debt that part which is not recovered through repayments must come out of taxes and general revenues.

Operating banks, farmers and agricultural financing institutions are three types of borrowers from the huge corporation credit pool which thus far have made the best record on repayments.

On the other hand, borrowers for self-liquidating projects, states borrowing for relief and banks in the process of re-organization have returned only small amounts of their government money. $10,000,000, other agencies such as the Federal land banks, the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, and the Home Loan Banks, have been given outright grants of money which the Corporation borrowed from the Treasury.

Banks which are operating have been the heaviest borrowers, to a total of $1,234,000,000. They have also made the best record on repayments, returning $410,794,251, or an average of 47 cents on every dollar.

The next two largest borrowers, however, have not mentioned similar records on repayments. States borrowing for relief have taken $465,000,000, the second largest amount, and repaid only two-tenths of a cent on a dollar. Railroads, obtaining $382,000,000, have repaid 13 cents on the dollar.

Farmers, who in the 1932 season arranged seed loans from the Corporation through the Secretary of Agriculture, rank next in the operating ranks as the most prompt to repay. Obtaining a total of $240,000,000 last year, they have repaid 40 percent. This season they borrowed $57,000,000 and have returned 15 cents on the dollar thus far.

Agricultural financing institutions borrowing $290,000,000, have repaid 16 percent, achieving the third best record.

U. S. Will Remain On Sidelines As Europe Debates

"vital importance" to world peace, the administration decided definitely to remain on the sidelines of forthcoming consultations between European combatants as to whether conditions were favorable for continuing.

There was some inquiry last night among capital officials over the United States' continued refusal to join in the ten-day armistice of the Geneva arms talks, following Secretary of State's withdrawal.

Secretary Hull and Undersecretary Phillips conferred with President Roosevelt upon this country's best course.

The attitude of the United States will be stated definitely later in its coming upon the stand that American representatives had gone to Geneva solely for disarmament rather than political purposes.

It was assumed by observers that word had gone to Norman H. Davis, the American ambassador at large, regarding him of this country's desire to remain aloof from political entanglements.

Officials here felt that the conference regarding the re-organization of the world peace on Oct. 17 could not proceed, because of the political implications, and that Davis' absence should be maintained.

It has been stated here that the country, but he made a significant statement.

"He said that there is a fly in the ointment, gentlemen. What is your criticism? You know the government can make mistakes and this program is too vast an undertaking for any one man to set of mind. Be sure of what we are certain to make blunders. I rely on you newspaper men to check us."

"If you see us going wrong to good, make us see it out loud. There is no fondness in that terming a wrong cause. I want your criticism as well as your support. If in the last word of backing and the only word I make is that you be present about it."

In concluding, speaking of coming, Mr. Dew said that the one thing American officials feared above all others was news exposure of their crimes.

Mr. Dew said:

"Without newspapers of opinion, leadership, criticism and truth to democratic government can stand. These institutions stand definitely apart and justifiably free of all restraint free even to go wrong. They are our only free speech and free press. The leading newspapers and magazines are unswerving advocates of social progress."

Referring to a recent visit to the White House by a group of newspaper men, Mr. Dew related how President Roosevelt had invited newspapers to be critical of his administration and its possible faults.

"I heard the President say that he was dumfounded by the almost unanimous support given to his program by the American press."

Mr. Dew said, "He graciously acknowledged this as of infinite value to the administration and the proclamation, which the governor formally signed at 5:30 p. m. after a series of conferences.

Gov. Langer took his action under authority granted him by the 1932 legislature. Use of national guardmen would be permitted to enforce the terms of the embargo if he deems it necessary.

Gov. Langer said he will ask governors of all other spring wheat producing states to join him in the embargo plan.

The proclamation, which was filed formally with the secretary of state today, said the producers of North Dakota hold a large amount of wheat "which in quality and weight is the finest wheat this state has ever produced" and "is a prime wheat that is in great demand throughout the U. S. for the making of superior flour."

The "new deal" has not reached the farmer and Gov. Langer, who added "it is hardly possible that the embargo alone can raise the world grain markets."

He asserted, however, his action in invoking a new state law for the first time "is a legal and legitimate manner in which to call the plight of the northwest farmer to the attention of the nation."

PICK THE WINNER

Deeper into the season advances King Football, and along with the season comes the more and more difficult task of selecting the winners of The Herald's Pick-The-Winner contest which has for prizes six tickets to the Milane Theater, offered through the courtesy of Jos. L. Marentette, theater manager.

Listed below are names of teams which will participate in outstanding games in the nation next Saturday. The first three persons sending in the nearest number of winning names will be awarded two tickets each.

Clip this list, place a "W" in the column opposite the name of the team you think will win and send it to the Sports Editor of The Herald before noon on Saturday, Oct. 21. If you think the teams will tie, write the word "Tie" opposite the teams listed.

of tonight's contest. With memories of the vicious battle furnished last year by the team the Tars meet tonight, McDowall is keeping his fingers crossed and refuses to take anything but a pessimistic view of the season-opener.

"We may win by one touchdown," he admitted, with his back to the wall, "but if we do I'll be the most surprised man on the field. Those Georgia boys are tough and they know their football. We have a green line and anything may happen. Coach Mike Herndon is a smart coach and our boys will have a hard fight on their hands from start to finish."

That McDowall means what he says is indicated by the announcement that Rollins will take the field with the strongest line-up the coaches can pick after trying out numerous combinations during the past four weeks. No shock troops will be used at the start and the first-string backfield composed of Myrtle Miller, Dick Washington, Dave Schrage and Johnny Doyle will run out on the field for the kickoff.

South Georgia State, which will be playing its fourth game of the season tonight, held the Tars to a 20 to 13 score last year and nearly spoiled an unblemished record for Rollins. The Tigers, heavy and fast, will outweigh the Tars about five pounds to the man on the average and will hold a bigger weight advantage in the line in the backfield, however, Rollins will have the edge not only in weight but in experience.

Fans are showing keen interest in prospect of tonight's game. A lot of people want to know who is going to fill Will Rogers' shoes and who is going to be called upon to make those off-tackle sprints, a Will Rogers specialty which won more than one game for Rollins during the last three years.

Dave Schrage, a member of the team in 1931, who has not in college last year, has been nominated as the chief open-field threat but there are still a lot of football fans who would like to be shown. "Will was good," they say, "because he always got by that last man." Whether Schrage or any other back on the Tar squad has yet learned the trick of "getting by that last man" is something that has the fans guessing; and tonight may provide the answer.

Murray Balks Giving Nedy Cod Liver Oils
OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 17.—(AP)—There'll be no cod liver oil among the foodstuffs distributed to Oklahoma's needy this winter if Gov. W. H. Murray has his way.

He also omitted grapefruit. The governor said children probably "ought to have" cod liver oil, but expressed doubt they would take it.

As for grapefruit, he declared: "It's a tropical fruit and ought not to be eaten in winter. It will ruin your stomach."

Murray, who advocates more extensive use of pot liquor and corn bread and often limits his meals to cheer, onions and coffee, announced he had omitted the two items from requests he presented Jacob Baker, director of commodity relief for the federal surplus relief corporation.

Jack of All Sports

WINTER PARK, Oct. 14.—According to McDowall, the job can not be done. Facing the hardest schedule in many years, and without the services of such brilliant stars as Will Rogers, Danny Contini, Ed Cruger, and Flop Morris, veterans who saved and won many a game during the past three years, the Tars are up against it this season.

Despite the availability of such competent gridders as Ray Miller, Dick Washington, Dave Schrage, Charles Seaver, Linton Malone, and several other lettermen, McDowall is making no secret of his pessimism in forecasting the season's result. "If we win half our games this year," he says, "we will be doing well."

Even in the opening game against South Georgia State the Tar coach fears the worst. It was this team that almost ruined difficult situation.

McDowall has been making it tougher for himself each year since he took up the task of guiding Rollins out of the doldrums in things athletic. In the last three years, the Tars have dropped only two football games, and last season the squad was undefeated. This year the fans are expecting a natural development that Rollins will again go through the season undefeated and in that respect McDowall faces a the season for the Tars in their last game in 1932, when the Douglas led the undefeated Rollins squad to a 20 to 13 score and threatened throughout the battle to upset the apple cart. One of the strongest small college teams in the Southeast last season, reports have filtered through that the Georgians are even tougher this year and are primed to give Rollins a real tussle.

McDowall came to Rollins after making a remarkable record as an all-round athlete and as a coach in North Carolina high schools. At N. C. State, he won eleven letters in four sports—football, baseball, basketball, and track. In football he was named all-North Carolina back, all-Southern back, and all-the North Carolina back, and was selected to play on the all-Southern team that defeated the all-Western team in Los Angeles on Christmas Day, 1927. He was captain of the North Carolina State basketball team and was first baseman on the championship baseball team at State. In track, he held the Southern Conference record in the high jump from 1925 to 1931 and he still holds the North Carolina State record.

At Rollins he coaches football, basketball, golf and tennis. He has the distinction of being something of a scholar, spending his summers at Duke University working towards a master's degree. His assistant at Rollins is his former team mate, Robert K. Evans, who played tackle on the North Carolina State team when McDowall's name became a by-word among sport fans throughout the South.

As for grapefruit, he declared: "It's a tropical fruit and ought not to be eaten in winter. It will ruin your stomach."

Murray, who advocates more extensive use of pot liquor and corn bread and often limits his meals to cheer, onions and coffee, announced he had omitted the two items from requests he presented Jacob Baker, director of commodity relief for the federal surplus relief corporation.
