Bank robbery gang strikes

SANFORD - A gang of bank robbers, which in at least two Seminole County cases, are suspected of creating diversions to cover robberies in progress, are suspected of striking a Longwood bank Tuesday night, according to a Seminole County Sheriff's Department report.

In this hit on the NCNB Bank on Wekiya Springs Road, Capt. Al Sanchez, of the sheriff's department, said no diversion was created, but other methods of the two robbers match those of the diversion gang.

The same robbers are suspected in a Lake Mary bank robbery Dec. 31, that occurred at the time of an arson to Lake Mary Elementary School. They are believed to have robbed an Altamonte Springs bank Nov. 17, while public safety workers delt with a bomb scare and a related traffic tle up on the interstate. In at least one other local robbery the same gang is suspect of striking without a diversion, according to FBI reports.

Search unfounded

SANFORD - This morning, at the request of the Civil Air Patrol, Sanford officials searched the airport area here for an airplane that might have crashed.

Police Chief Steven Harriett said at about 9 a.m. the search had proven fruitless and there have been no reports of an overdue plane in the area. The Illinois air base that monitors signals transmitted by downed planes reported to the Civil Air Patrol a signal late Wednesday night in the Seminole-Orange County area, prompting the extensive search, Harriett said. It appears to have been a false alarm, he said.

5-year-old saves mom

JACKSONVILLE - A 5-year-old is being called a hero by rescue workers after he dialed 911 to summon help after discovering his mother unconscious.

Although it is not unusual for children to call 911, "this is the first case I've had where the patient was completely unconscious, and the child had to act completely on his own." Lt. Greg Miller of the city Fire Rescue Division said of Tyrone Jones' call. The call came in about 8:30 a.m. Wednesday. When rescue worker arrived, they found Martha Jones unconscious on her kitchen floor.

Mrs. Jones told rescue workers that because she was prone to seizures that she had taught her son to call 911.

"He was scared but he did the job right. The kid did good," Miller said.

LAKE MARY - Lake Mary city commissioners will meet in a special session tonight to determine whether to accept Seminole. County's proposal for the beautification of Lake Mary Boulevard or whether to allow the city to solely finance the enhanced intersections.

The interlocal agreement between Lake Mary, Sanford and the county was revised in 1989 when Sanford commissioners voted not to commit to the costs involved in the beautification.

Lake Mary City Manager John Litton said the agreement went back to the city commission, where it was approved, but Seminole County then attempted to amend

Panel: House open-minded on proposal

TALLAHASSEE — Lawmakers will keep an open mind about creating a separate Department of Elderly Affairs, one of Gov. Lawton Chiles' top priorities, the head of a House panel said.

"It is an open concept right now and they want to work with the Legislature in order to find the best way to deliver services to the elderly." Rep. Lois Frankel, chair of the Health and Rehabilitative Services Committee, said Wednesday before her committee heard testimony on the tesue.

Frankel. D-West Palm Beach, said Lt. Gov. Buddy MacKay told her earlier Wednesday that creation of a separate Department of Elderly Affairs is the No. 1 priority of the Chiles administration. Frankel said she told MacKay the House would work with the governor's office on the idea.

Rep. Peggy Simone, R-Bradenton, asked the executive director of the Southeast Florida Center on Aging if he supported or was neutral on the subject of a new agency.
"I believe the Department of Elderly Affairs is going to be a reality." Max Rothman respniled.

He told Rep. Ben Graber, D-Coral Springs, that the "strong political leadership" behind it was the most encouraging thing about the proposal to move programs for older Floridians out of the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services into a separate, independent agency.

Women's coalition supports Chiles

Chiles told the group he wanted to reinstate the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women, the Florida Women's Hall of Fame and work to tackle the problem of comestic violence.

"We want to do this, but we have to do it within our existing, means," said Chiles, referring to the state's budget problems. Chiles resimmed his support of a woman's right to choose an abortion but said he hopes to reduce the number of abortion in Florida through education and preventative means.

Chiles also said he doesn't necessarily support parental consent for minors to obtain an abortion but does think young girls need advice before making such a decision.

Poor 'held harmless' in Cabinet's second round of slashing budget

By JACKIE MALLIFAX Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - The $270 million in proposed budget cuts before Gov. Lawton Chiles and the Cabinet today will mean bigger classrooms, longer lines at big-city hospitals and fewer state workers

"It will not be done without some pain," Doug Cook, Chiles' budget director, warned Wednesday before going over the recommended cuts with Cabinet aides.

Advocates praised Chiles for holding the poor harmless but said the cuts were still grievous.

"We want to first try to protect the people who are least able to protect themselves and then try to avoid massive layoffs." the governor said Wednesday. Hopefully we can do that without destroying the fabric of what we have out there."

The proposal calls for cutting nearly 1,000 positions from state government. But since most are empty, fewer than 100 and possibly no workers will be laid off, Cook said.

Child killer death penalty is proposed

Accordated Frees

BRANDON - A state egislator has drafted a bill calling for the death penalty for people con-victed of killing children under their care.

Rep. Chris Corr. R-Apollo Beach, plans to introduce the measure later this week. Corr said state law specifies killing a police officer or government official is a crime punishable by death, and he wants the same protection for children. Laws to punish child abusers are on the books, said Rep. Tom Mims, D-Lakeland, who doesn't think Corr's proposal is needed.

Mims considered recommending a similar change last year but said he was told by his staff the law already provides the death penalty for murders that are "especially hei-nous, atrocious or cruel."

The 1969 potty-training death of Bradley McGee in Polk County inspired Corr. The 2-year-old died after repeatedly being plunged head first; into a tollet for soiling his diapers. Stepfather Thomas Coe was convicted of first-degree murder. The jury did not recommend the death penalty and Coe, 23, was entenced in August to life in prison.

Although prosecutors no longer have to prove a child killing was intentional for a first-degree murder conviction, Florida appellate courts generally have said death sentences aren't appropriate for uninten-tional killings.

And most parents acchildren say they didn't intend to kill them. Coe's defense was that he was only trying to punish — not kill — Bradley. Leonard Lee Smalley was sentenced to death in the killings of his live-in girifriend's daughter.

Three decades ago, President John Kennedy made the Berlin Wall a symbol of the failure of communism. To understand why the Soviet economy is in shambles, one need only examine the problems of the Tula Combine Factory - a 1990s symbol of communism's shortcomings.

Tula, a city 150 miles south of Moscow. reflects the same quiet desperation that is common throughout the country. Sullen workers go to work each day, wondering whether there will be enough food to feed their families and enough coal to get them through another brutal winter. As detailed by "The Economist" magazine, the combine factory is struggling to make the transition to Mikhail Gorbachev's market economy. (A combine is a machine for havesting grain.) Making the transition to capitalism will be especially difficult because the factory's managers do not know what is expected of them.

The concept of a free-market system is completely foreign to a generation of managers caught up in a Markist time warp. Soviet factories have been run by bureaucrats in Moscow since 1917 and this sufficating presence has virtually destroyed the work ethic. Inefficiency, lethargy and sloppy workmanship are rampant, as illustrated by the Soviet workers' aphorism: "They pretend to pay us and we pretend to put in a full-day's

The Tula Combine workers have no incentive to be more productive, because private initiative is almost never rewarded and often scorned. Instead, their production quota is set by the state, which in turn pays them with rubles that are essentially useless goods. Either there is nothing on the shelves to buy or the quality of the goods is so poor that workers refuse to part with their money. Disaffected workers can slack off on their jobs because managers such the power to hire and fire. Minus carrots or sticks, frustrated Tula managers exhort their charges to no particular avail. On doctors' discontent

Aging doctors are a discontented lot, if you believe a random telephone survey of 150 age 58 or older in all 50 states. The survey was conducted by Merrit, Hawkins and Associates, physician search consultants, of

Well, that's a heavy message. It would seem that the doctors are as discontented with the national health-care system as most people are. The share of the gross national product devoted to health care has risen sharply. But the money doesn't seem to be buying much satisfaction at either end of the doctor-patient

This telephone survey is no more reliable than any aging doctor is likely to be when interrogated by a stranger on the telephone about his pet peeves.

Despite that, the survey is disturbing. Cantankerous though they may be, these doctors deserve a hearing.

Budget still looms as key problem

WASHINGTON - When the 102nd Congress gets down to business later this month, it will face almost the same problems that confronted lawmakers before they adjourned for the 1990 election. As was the case during the final months of the last congressional session, the No. 1 problem — after the Persian Gulf crisis — will be the federal budget deficit.

In case you thought the much-heraided five-year deficit reduction plan — hammered out over months of tortured negotiations and a weekend-long shutdown of the entire govern-ment — solved anything, think again. Not only didn't the plan really solve the problem, the deficit situation is much worse now than when Congress adjourned in October.

The plan, you may remember, calls for $500 billion in deficit reduction over five fiscal years. To start towards the goal of a balanced budget by the end of the '90s, the plan calls for the deficit to be cut by $45 billion in the current fiscal year to around $145 billion. However, things have changed radically in the months since the agreement was hammered out:

First, the economy has gone sour. Even though most economists predicted a recession, budget negotiators stuck their collective heads deep in the sand and created a budget based on tax income from a steady economy. However, tax income in fiscal '91 will be down at least $30 billion, and perhaps billion.

Then, too, negotiaoverestimated how much income would be derived from the increased "sin" taxes on liquor, tobacco products, etc. It seems like people are not sinning as much as they used to — not smoking nearly as much, or drinking as much — and the income projections from these new taxes are now much lower. Then there is the S&L ballout. Negotia-tors decided to ignore the experts while figuring in the cost of the ballout during fiscal '91. It seems now they were at least $16 billion

The best estimate is that the 1991 deficit, instead of being a manageable $145 billion and heading down, will be a record $245 billion and probably heading up.

Tex income in fiscal '91 will least $30 billion, and perhaps as much as $45 billion.

The upward direction is the result of the crisis in the Persian Gulf, which is costing about a billion a week. No one budgeted for it, and no one really knows how much it is actually costing or how much will be paid ultimately by our various allies. What is clear is that the cost will be used block.

in addition, The United States will not be able to make the kind of military cuts that had been planned over the next five years. Those cuts were going to be the single greatest contributor to the $500 billion in reductions over five years.

As Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., chairman of the Senate budget committee, notes, "Probably the most important thing to actually come out of the negotiations is the agreement that in the future, if we vote to increase spending anywhere, there will have to be equal cuts elsewhere. It, at least, give us a start for the future."

The first shots in the new budget battle are already being fired. One of the biggest problems is the sharp cutback on unemployment insurance that has quietly taken place over the last several years. In an expanding economy this Reagan-Bush man-dated cutback did not make much impact. But with unemployment lines growing every day, the situation has changed and new billions may have to be appropriated.

Additionally, we might all be praying as well for sane and reasonable thinking by the leaders of nations that all may lay saide personal ambition, pride, and greed. Priorities are wrong

An appeal is frequently heard on our radios and televisions from the Black community saying "A mind is a terrible thing to lose—support your Negro colleges."

How are priorities placed when we learn that $200,000 was given to Nelson Mandela in South Africa by Bishop Cousin in behalf of the National Council of Churches of Christ.

Thousands of lives have been lost between the warring tribes in South Africa since Nelson Mandela and Bishop Tutu have merged into the limelight. That money and other money sent to South Africa could be wisely spent here at home.

Watkins' merry band not all bad

WASHINGTON — Energy Secretary James Watkins didn't like some of the people he got stuck with when he took office in 1989. The crew assigned to monitor the safety of nuclear weapons plants had been producing unreliably rosy information. Watkins, a nuclear buff himself from his days as an admiral in the nuclear Navy, is no raving environmen-talist when it comes to nuclear issues. But even he was skeptical enough about the people he inher-ited from the Reagan administration that he made some changes, Watkins recruited his own band of faithfuls - a team of sleuths to unearth chronic safety risks at nuclear weapons plants. It is one of the few encouraging moves Watkins has made to get a handle on nuclear safety.

At the tail end of the Reagan administration, reports surfaced of lax safety precautions, poor management, inadequate training and poor equipment throughout the network of 17 plants. Many of the facilities had to be shut down.

Watkins formed a new Office of Nuclear sefety and charged it with the responsibility of protecting the public and the nuclear plant workers from radioactive materials.

Before Watkins created the team, he went to Congress and testified that some of the people he had inherited from the previous administration had no technical skills to supervise weapons plant operations. He complained that the lack of expertise made it complained that the lack of expertise made it difficult for him to solve the highly publicized safety problems at the plants. Watkins said he was forced to involve himself in every decision because he was getting unreliably optimistic information from his staff.

Watkins' new safety office is headed by Steve Blush, formerly with the National Academy of Sciences. Congressional sources who oversee the Energy Department say Blush was a good choice. Under his leadership, the National Academy of Sciences produced a report that was highly critical of safety in the nuclear weapons plant complex. So Blush is no good of boy.

His nuclear safety office has already started taking some swings. The investigators found

The investigators found that Energy Department contractors knew for nearly 13 years about a hydrogen buildup in nuclear waste tanks at the Hanford plant in Washington and falled to take action. The findings, submitted to a Senste panel headed by Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, said that the risk of an explosion at Hanford was one of the biggest problems staring the Energy Department in the face for years.

The safety problems have not gone away inder Watkins. Employees are still exposed needlessly to radiation. Security checks have been inadequate. Serious crimes, including drug dealing and theft of classified documents, are all too common at nuclear weapons plants. So Blush's staff has its work

And Watkins has a lot of work to do to restore the credibility of the Energy Department when it comes to nuclear , safety. Congressional overseers complain that some Congressional overseers company about sharing information with Congress on nuclear safety issues. And there is some indication that Watking lets aggressive staffers run all over "The man himself has his heart in the right place and has considerable integrity," one congressional source told our mesociate Scott Sleek. But I think he's just not able to control his department.

Van Der Weide named to commission

SANFORD - Seminole County Commissioner Fred Streetman ended months of speculation Tuesday and appointed Republican Party stalwart Dick Van Der Weide to the county planning and soning commission. Van Der Weide will replace Harry Hagie, who resigned last summer.

Van Der Welde, president of Kids Stuff Child Care Inc., ran for the District 27 seat in the Florida House of Representatives in 1966 and District 5 county commission seat in 1968, losing both efforts. He recently said he is considering a 1992 bid for either a county commission seat or a state representitive or senate sest.

Van Der Weide has been active in several campaigns, including those for Bob Martines, Bobby Brantley and George Bush. He is also active in the Seminole County Republican Executive Committee and the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce.

He has also served on several county positions, including the Charter Advisory Committee that drafted the county charter adopted by commissioners and approved by voters in 1988.

"The peace talks collapsed in Geneva and that means war is more likely. If war to more likely I think that tends to strengthen the hand of the president. So my guess is that he's in a very strong position." Hamilton said.

"It's infuriating," he said of the refusal by Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Axiz to accept a letter from Bush to Saddam Hussein, "For the foreign minister of Iraq not even to accept it just is a very madden-

The AP also saked what the United States should do if it succeeds in getting Iraq out of Kuwait.

A possible source of confusion for those following gulf polls is that differently worded ques-tions have varying results. Rep. Dante Fascell, DeFta., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, was blocked by Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., from pushing the Bush-backed plan through his panel Wednesday. But Fascell predicted it would win on the House floor.

Troops fight personal battle before shooting

Associated Press Writer

IN EASTERN BAUDI ARABIA - Before anyone goes into battle, there's an internal war that must be waged, a fight to control the fear that churns

It's an age-old personal conflict shared by jet pilots, grunt infantry, tankers in their metal shells and sailors on their warships.

The question asked by lowly privates in their fighting holes to generals in the war rooms is:

"Combat is so violent that you can't describe it. You can only talk around the periphery. They've got to go through the black hole and experience it themselves," said Col. Jerry "Gunner" Laws, commander of the Army's 75th Artillery Brigade.

"The fear of the unknown is the biggest factor," said Laws, a 25-year Army veteran who flew helicopters in Vietnam.

"Before the fight, you're going to be afraid. During the fight, you get angry and the sdrenalin starts flowing. Then after, you're so afraid your knees are knocking so bad you can't hear anybody talking to you. That's all right if soldiers understand that," he said.

The U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia have only a smattering of combat veterans to reassure the green troops they have been training, and soldiers who have never seen combat have sought out the old hands for counsel.

"You're supposed to be scared to death. That's the way it works," said Capt. Brent Smith, 33, commander of a Marine infantry company in

No shortage of heroes in Oviedo's upset of Lake Mary

From staff reports

OVIEDO - There were so many subplots in do's 3-2 upact of Lake Mary in a Seminole Athletic Conference boys' soccer match at Oviedo High School's John Courier Field on Wednesday night, it's hard to know where to begin.

For starters, the Lions came into the game without leading scorer Rod Mentus, who is out sick. In his place, Coach Dave Jekanoski started Craig Ruebusch, a defender who had never played striker before.

He responded with the Lions' first two goals. giving Oviedo leads of 1-0 and 2-1. Derek Sweeney and Hector Mejia combined to create the first goal while Rob Guggenheim had the assist on the second Rebusch goal.

Scott Klavins tied the score at 1-1 for Lake Mary with a penalty kick.
In the second half, the Rams retied the game at 2-2. Brian Caduto scoring after taking a pass from Justin Walker.

With 15 minutes to play in the game. Steve Hoffman scored the game-winning goal for Oviedo on an assist from Jeff Carson, who is the second interesting subplot. Carson, the Lions' team captain, suffered a badly broken leg during the indoor soccer season in November. Wednesday night's match was his first game back.

Hoffman also deserves a nod. After scoring the go-ahead goal, he moved back on defense and covered Caduto, Lake Mary's leading scorer. That made it easier for freshman goalie Rob Fluhr, who made a pair of tremendous saves to preserve the lead. Fluhr is starting in place of senior Ryan Pass, who went down with an injury

Lake Mary outshot Oviedo 17-13 and had a 7-4 edge in corner kicks. Fluhr made nine saves for the Lions while Kevin Tyll and Jason Redditt combined for six saves for the Rams.

in Wednesday's junior varsity game, Lake Mary won 3-2.

The Lions, now 4-6-2 overall and 1-3-2 in the SAC, will host Seminole in another conference match on Friday night. Lake Mary, 8-5-2 overall and 4-1-2 in the conference, travels to Miami this weekend for a pair of games, playing Miami Sunset Friday night and Miami Killian Saturday afternoon. Bee Boccer, Page 2B

Moose Club pampers kids, elderly

By LACY DOSEM Herald People Editor

SANFORD - When Sanford and De-Land Moose and Women of the Moose members finished their work, over 200 needy children and 110 elderly residents of Hillhaven Health Care Center knew somebody cared about them.

Lodges 1851 and 1128 pooled resources for the second year in a row to bring Christmas to orphans, needy families, and often-forgotten senior citizens. Chairman for the event, Gary Almond, said its success could be attributed to the hard work and dedication of everyone who participated.

"I personally want to thank Lodge members and the Board of Officers, the Women of the Moose, all the merchants who donated clothing and toys and my mom. Ann Almond, who helped more than I even asked her to," Almond said.

Almond said the Moose will immediately begin planning next year's party. He hopes it will be bigger and better than

"There are so many children for us to help," he said.

Moose and auxiliary members cooked hams, turkeys and all the trimmings for a holiday meal. They collected money and donations of gifts and clothing from area residents and merchants. They made sure every child and senior had a gift, with his or her name on it, to open on Christmas

"So many people opened their hearts." Almond said.

One teenaged resident of the United Methodist Childrens' Home was stunned when he opened his package. A Lodge member had donated exactly what the boy had wished to receive: a trumpet.

"He couldn't believe it. He never thought he'd get a trumpet, but the list we asked them to fill out was a wish list, and he thought, well, why not?" Almond

Ed Sullivan, director of the childrens' home, later wrote to thank Moose mem-

"May the love each of you sent our way come back to you ten-fold," he wrote.

Sanford Fire Department displayed trucks and rescue equipment at the party. The city of Sanford donated 60 bicycles. Mayor Bettye Smith stopped by to join the fun.

After entertaining the children for several hours, Moose and auxiliary members loaded food and presents into vehicles for the drive to Hillhaven.

"Although we all think of Christmas as being for kids, we didn't want to forget our elderly," Almond said.

After a year of planning, the Christmas party is a fond memory for Sanford Moose Lodge members and the Women of the Moose. Members, however, are never idle for long. They are planning a big barbecue for needy children to be held this summer, Almond said.

Perhaps it never occurred to "Shocked" that this young high school student who made so many mistakes in his letter may

As a parent of a child with a learning disability, it was very easy for me to understand what the writer was trying to say. Perhaps one should not be so quick to criticise how a person eparesses himself, but be thankful instead that the child took the time, effort and courage to write to a service member in the Persian Gulf.

Should MS patient use amphetamines?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've had MS for 24 years, and 1 am thoroughly convinced that am-phetamines have stimulated my nervous system and kept me going so long. I had no trouble while on them; however, once I stopped, I began having attacks time of the hysterectomy, the that keep getting worse. Would surgeon removed your cervix, it be so terrible to continue taking the amphetamines?

DEAR READER: Multiple sclerosis is a slowly progressive neurological disorder of unknown cause, marked by varied symptoms that include numb-ness of the extremities, clumsiness, weakness, double vision, dizziness, depression, apathy, poor judgment and difficulty concentrating.

The diagnosis is usually made using magnetic resonance imaging (a picture of the brain o'b tain ed by using electromagnetic waves). This symbol

I am not aware that amphetamines (brain stimulants) help the disorder, although I can understand how these drugs could relieve some of the mental complications (fatigue and apathy) of MS. This neurological disorder is incurable with present means: symptoms are treated as they arise.
Amphetamines are dangerous because they cause euphoria, over- stimulation, high blood pressure, paranola and delusional states. The drugs are addictive. Since they have not been shown to alter the unpredictable cause of MS, I believe you are better off without them.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have had a hysterectomy but retained my ovaries. My concern is pre-gnancy. Do I have to be worried about this?

DEAR READER: No. you don't. Pregnancy can only occur in the presence of a uterus, an organ you are lacking because of the hysterectomy.

Nonetheless, some post-hysterectomy women fear that they might experience a tubal pregnancy, when the fertilized ovum attaches to the lining of a Fallopian tube and grows. Again, this is impossible because, at the

It's easy to see why defense is the hardest part of the game. A defender sees only his own hand and the dummy, and he often has to use a lot of guesswork to find the best way for his aide to take tricks. But there are some common-sense guidelines. Since the early days of bridge, it has been accepted practice to lead high cards from apparently worthless suit holdings. ("Top of nothing" is the term.) The con-verse is that the lead of a low card would be away from some decent strength. This rather standard agreement has even more validity in the later stages of many deals. Here is what happened with today's deal. West led a low spade, from his longest suit. Declarer won dummy's queen and took a diamond finesse. West won the no future in the spade suit, he switched to the three of hearts. East took the ace and then perhaps you have guessed it—he returned a spade. East thought that West had led from an original holding of A-J-x-xx.

Why was this wrong? If West did hold good spades, and therefore a weaker heart suit, he would have led a higher heart than the three-spot. Switching to the jack or eight or even nine of hearts, if he held it, would have an-nounced lack of interest in the heart suit. But playing the three, his lowest, should have sug-gested to East that the chance for taking setting tricks against three no-trump rested in hearts rather than in spades.
