

Wilson Fought For Independence Of Czech Nation

War President Was Proud Of Work For Czech People

By PEYTON GROVER
WASHINGTON, Sept. 26. (AP) — An important factor President Wilson brought out of the World War was the League of Nations, which he regarded as the only way to secure the peace and independence of the world.

Czechoslovakia proudly pointed out as early as 1918, when writing on the Czech program, a slogan used by some of their wartime poets for L. D. Bismarck. It was: "No lapse of time, no defeat of hopes, seems sufficient to the cooperation with Austria."

That Wilson, during the period of wartime duties, could find time to champion their cause, endeared him as a Bohemian hero.

At the same time of the outbreak of the World War more than a million people of Czech and Slovak nationality lived in the United States. A large number were on farms in the Mississippi Valley but thousands more were concentrated in the Pittsburgh area. All contributed generously to the Czech and Slovak exiles in campaign for national freedom.

In 1916, President Wilson gave them major assistance when he called upon the belligerent nations to state their war aims as a possible basis for peace. One of the terms of peace the allies put forward was autonomy for subject peoples, with special reference to those in Austria-Hungary. That guarantee gave the Czechs a sort of official standing. Their freedom became one of the objectives of the war.

In 1918 President Wilson acted again in their behalf. All during the first years of the war, Czechs and Slovaks, particularly the former, deserted the Austrian army while regimented at a time, Czech units fought for the allies on the western front in Italy and in Russia. It was the Russian contingent which drew special Wilsonian intervention.

The Russian revolution which ended that nations participation in the war left these embattled Czech regiments stranded. They were not Russians, but neither could they return home, for Austria would have executed them as fast as they returned.

For the dual purpose of rescuing the Czechs and of forcing Russia back into the war, the United States, Japan and the Allies sent thousands of men to Siberia by way of Vladivostok. Ultimately thousands of Czech soldiers, after wandering more or less aimlessly about Central Russia completed the strange Odyssey around the world from the Austro-German front, across European and Asiatic Russia, the Pacific Ocean, the U. S. and the Atlantic, and took up fighting on the Western Front.

Others continued stringing across this country for or five years after the war ended.

At the peace conference Wilson's kindly feeling for the Czechs was even more evident. He sided with their demand for complete independence and had a large part in seeing that the nation was made big enough to give it some hope of economic existence. This meant merging of Czechs, in Bohemia, with Slovaks loosed from Hungary, as well as a contingent of Ruthenians once under Russia. It also included the Sudeten Germans.

Czechs and Slovaks in the United States, forecasting conflict between their long-stranded kinsmen in the old country, drew up in Pittsburgh an agreement assuring Bohemian self-government for the Slovaks, who were numerically inferior to the Czechs.

Less success came of efforts to unite the German elements in the government. These latter voted for affiliation with Austria rather than with Czechoslovakia but the council found this unfeasible, geographically, and so Czechoslovakia was formed.

As Wilson well knew, this international baby was secure only so long as it had a patron. He saw that a patron in the League of Nations. As the League weakened, Czechoslovakia leaned more and more upon France for support.

periodical announcements will be made over Station WDBO in Orlando tomorrow reminding freeholders to vote.

The referendum is one of the regulations of the IWA and requires the election to validate the issuance of the bonds. A majority of the County's 2,700 freeholders must participate in the election to make it valid.

In a special meeting today the Seminole County Commission met with the Supervisor of Registration W. J. Huggins to check the registration list which was approved before the Board adjourned. It was stated that everything is now in readiness for the tomorrow's voting.

The proposed hospital has been planned to care for the needs of Seminole County for a number of years, according to Architect John J. Huggins, who drew the plans for the institution, and it is so constructed as to require a minimum cost to upkeep, it was also pointed out.

The freeholders in approving the issuance of the bonds will be voting on a levy, not to exceed two mills, to pay these bonds, pay interest, and assist in the construction.

Last evening Sanford Doudney pointed out that the valuation of the property which is subject to the tax is $1,430,000. A levy of two mills on his property would net $2,860 annually. However, the law requires that all estimates be based on a 95 percent collection which would amount approximately $2,500 annually.

According to the terms of the bond, the bonds will be retired at the rate of $1,500 yearly. County Attorney E. F. Housholder, stated, and the interest for the first year will be $2,000 which leaves approximately $2,000 from the levy to be applied for maintenance of the institution. Mr. Housholder also pointed out that as the principal was reduced the interest will also be reduced annually so that in 10 years the interest will only be $1,400, just half of the interest for the first year.

The present hospital collected $18,392.20 from paying patients last year, according to T. W. Lawton, president of the Hospital board. In addition to this the County during the past 11 months has paid the present institution, $1,551.61 for the care of indigent patients. The City contributes $1200 annually for such patients. The disbursements of the present hospital for last year were slightly over $20,000.

Mr. Housholder pointed out that even with similar revenues the new hospital could be maintained with the additional amount available from the tax levy.

Proponents of the proposed hospital declare, however, that the increase in patronage at a new and modern hospital will greatly increase the revenues from paying patients.

that Hitler's proposal was "unacceptable" and a threat by Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy that he would take military measures if other nations continued mobilizing.

There was also the authoritative disclosure that Hitler had attached a map of his terms sent to Czechoslovakia, marking areas he demanded be handed over outright to Germany. This source said the map would place Germany's new frontier within 20 miles of Prague, Czechoslovakia's capital, and come within 30 miles of cutting the country in two pieces.

Sandwiched in between the British-French conferences were three meetings of the British cabinet.

As was the case in the close-guarded conferences, no word came out of what took place at the cabinet meetings.

"I can only say that it has not been bad," Premier Eduard Daladier, of France, said upon leaving No. 10 Downing Street.

Statesmen of Britain and France worked against time in London yesterday in quest of a peaceful solution to the Czechoslovak crisis amid reports from other old world capitals which gave little comfort to the last nerves of war-frightened Europe.

With European powers deep in preparations for war but hoping for peace, the premiers and foreign ministers of the two democracies adjourned shortly after midnight to meet again at 10 A. M., today.

Their hopes of finding the way to peace before expiration of Adolf Hitler's Oct. 1 deadline were clouded by a day of rapid-fire developments which included an unofficial though authoritative report that Czechoslovakia had rejected Hitler's final terms for ceding her Sudetenland to the Nazis.

Coupled with this disturbing news was the unanimous agreement of the French cabinet among their people as here. "The question that moves us most deeply today is known to everybody. It is not so much Czechoslovakia; it is the name of (President) Eduard Benes."

"In this name thus mentioned is all that which moves millions, which either causes them dejection or fills them with a political will."

"I will briefly restate my policy: 'We are not interested in oppressing other peoples. We want to be happy in our own nation.'"

"Our foreign aims are not admitted or changeable or determined by chance. "Their sole purpose is to be of service to the German people, to safeguard their existence."

"You know that weak Germany was crushed badly. The result was the Versailles Treaty with all its terrible consequences. Although Germany has now become strong and free, we feel no hatred of other nations."

"Only we object to international profiteers who seek at nothing to gain their ends."

"My first proposal was general disarmament to the last rifle, provided others did the same."

"What did they do?" "They rejected it."

"My second proposal was to limit the army to 200,000 men with the same weapons as others had. "That too was rejected."

"Third, I offered to surrender heavy artillery and other weapons, provided others did the same."

"I went further. I offered a 100,000 man army for all European powers."

"They wanted to restrict our means of defense but all in vain."

"Today we have an armed force the like of which the world has never seen."

"I offered the world to do without armaments, but when they rejected, I decided to arm. If they do not want to be without arms, all right."

"German people, now, you can tell you how I have taken billions right here for armaments. I saw to it the most modern army with the most modern weapons was established."

"I have created an air force that protects Germany against Paris and every attack."

"Hitler declared that 'I have decided that we shall place the Sudeten region under German sovereignty' and added that if President Benes 'does not want peace we will have to take matters into our own hands.'"

In reference to Premier Mussolini as a rare man whom the Italian people have the good fortune to possess, he was answered with applause. Our relationship has become a League of Hearts," he added.

He was sharing with Mussolini the credit for solving "still another problem" — German-Polish relations.

Hitler said Czechoslovakia was not a state capable of existing by itself and in it were included 3,500,000 Germans "in order to make it a complete state." This he declared was clearly against the principle of "self-determination."

"If we relinquish Alsace-Lorraine we have certainly the right to take care of the fate of 10,000,000 Germans outside our borders—that is one-quarter of France's population," Hitler continued. "The Democracies regard a plebiscite as unnecessary and superfluous when it is likely the result will not be one they desire."

In the Sudeten issue the Fuehrer declared to the cheering throng: "We now stand confronted which has to be solved and will be solved."

The Old World rushes along from crisis to crisis. Diplomats hasten from one conference to another. Munition plants hum at top speed and armies grow greater. What is happening now? What will happen next? On every news front in uneasy Europe, American-trained correspondents are alert every minute around the clock to report the swift march of events for this newspaper with vivid accuracy and speed. They are the staff reporters for The Associated Press and they have been in the midst of international trouble many times before.

DeWitt Mackenzie, who only recently covered the historic conference between Prime Minister Chamberlain and Chancellor Hitler on the momentous Czechoslovakian situation, was with The Allies in the World War.

Louis P. Lochner, constantly at Hitler's side to obtain minute-by-minute developments in Berlin, is the reporter who scored the great beat on the Nazi "blood purge" of 1934. He has covered German affairs for the past 14 years.

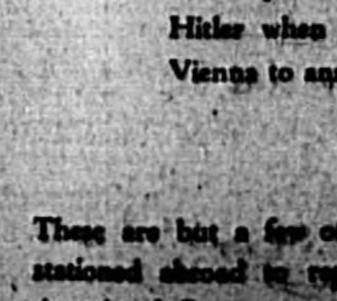

Richard Massock, at Mussolini's side to cover Italian developments, was stationed in Russia.

John Lloyd, with the French ministers to report the Paris angle of the Sudeten controversy, helped to cover the Spanish war.

Melvin K. Whiteleather, at Eger to report on Czechoslovakian mobilization, saw many years of service with the League of Nations at Geneva.

Alvin J. Seinkopf, who directed the activities of a corps of AP reporters at Prague, covered Hitler when the Chancellor marched into Vienna to annex Austria.

These are but a few of the dozens of Associated Press correspondents who are stationed abroad to report the news events of Europe. Among the Associated Press reporters, they were there, reporting, that are there today, and they will be there tomorrow.

Voters To Decide Numerous Projects At Polls Tuesday

Improvements Would Give Employment To Thousands In State

By Associated Press
Freeholders in a number of Florida communities will vote during the coming week on bond issues to finance their shares of proposed improvements to be undertaken with Public Works Administration loans and grants.

The projects, if approved by the taxpayers and funds allocated, will release several million dollars in the State. They include construction and additions to municipal sewer systems, power, gas and water plants, waterfront parks, yacht basins, causeway bridges and schools and other public buildings.

PWA regulations require a referendum to validate issuance of bonds or certificates against revenue to be derived from operation of the projects which constitute the political subdivisions' part in the financing. A majority of qualified freeholders must participate in the election to make it valid.

One of the largest proposed projects, a $4,470,000 sewer system and disposal plant, will be voted on Tuesday at Tampa. Freeholders will be asked to validate issuance of $2,934,000 in certificates. Proponents assert the improved system would clear Hillsborough River and Hillsborough Bay and allow establishment of beaches.

Other PWA projects to be voted on Tuesday include: Daytona Beach—$650,000 bond issue to build a causeway and repair three Halifax River bridges; $148,000 issue to enlarge and repair Peninsula district schools; $20,000 issue for school enlargement in Enterprise district.

West Palm Beach—$85,000 waterfront park-pier project on Lake Worth.
Winter Haven—$200,000 sewerage disposal plant.
Fahokee—$22,000 certificate issue for city hall, fire station and jail.
Fort Pierce—$94,500 certificate issue for $170,000 municipal pal gas plant; $88,000 issue for $160,000 causeway bridge across Indian River.

Clearwater—$270,000 certificate issue for $449,000 sewer improvements; $28,000 issue for $43,000 yacht basin project.
Coral Gables—$30,000 incinerator.
Vero Beach—$8,500 Wabasso school improvements. In Eustis approximately 400 freeholders are qualified to vote Tuesday to determine if the Eustis school district shall issue $77,000 worth of bonds in order to build a new high school here. The district has applied for a PWA project to build a $150,000 school. If the bond issue is voted, and the project approved, PWA will give the district $72,000 of the necessary amount in the form of a grant. District trustees have already obtained property on which to build the school. It costs about $75 a year on the average to keep a pupil in school in the United States.

State's Blind Case Load Is Listed At 2,200

JACKSONVILLE, Sept. 26.—Florida's total aid to the blind case load is expected to level off at approximately 2,200, according to estimates of the State Welfare Board statistical department. This number is largely in excess of the 1,280 on which legislative appropriations were based, following a social security survey of the state by the former State Board of Social Welfare, cooperating with the Works Progress Administration.

September checks totalling $26,608.00 will be mailed out to 1,958 blind and near-blind, it was announced today by State Welfare Commissioner Clayton C. Codrington. During August 302 applications for Aid to the Blind were acted upon, of which 218 were approved, 77 rejected and 7 disallowed for other reasons. There were 609 applications pending at the end of the month.

A marked difference has developed in the Old Age Assistance and Aid to the Blind categories, in that the Aid to the Blind rolls are less subject to change. This is attributed to the fact that the age range of the blind is much younger than that of the aged recipient. During the month of August, for instance, but 7 Aid to the Blind cases were closed, as compared with 263 Old Age Assistance cases.

The number of blind recipients now on the rolls is 60.11 percent of the total population of the state, which indicates that Florida has a relatively large blind population.
