G. T. STALLINGS OF BASEBALL FAME IS DEAD

"Miracle Man" Of U.S. Pastime Dies After Game Fight Against Ravages Of Disease

MACON, Ga., May 12.—(INS)—George T. Stallings, baseball's "miracle man," is dead. With the umpire's court standing against him, he heard the third strike called this morning and slipped quietly into death at his large plantation at Haddock, Ga. called out at last after a gallant fight against the ravages of heart disease. George Stallings died as he had lived—the "miracle man" of baseball.

Only members of the family and intimate friends were at the bedside when he died. Death did not come unexpected because physicians had predicted that he could fight his malady with the same gallant courage that marked his brilliant career on the diamond, and that he would die a "game guy."

He had gone to his plantation in Jones County to recuperate following a long fight against a heart attack in a local hospital. There he was struck by a fatal stroke of apoplexy, which he had been fighting since he was 43 years old.

Stallings was afflicted with heart disease shortly after he took over the managerial reins of the Montreal club in the International League. Even then he would have been struck by his fatal stroke if he had not been so energetic in his fight against the disease. He chose Georgia as a location to fight the disease, and entered the hospital here. For weeks he battled the disease with a gallant courage that was the hallmark of his life.

Stallings had been active in baseball for 43 years. From a player to a manager, he was a star in each role.

Garage Operator Is Fined For Carrying Concealed Weapons

With one of the lightest Monday morning dockets in months, Judge W. E. White's Municipal Court saw few cases today. In all, only 10 cases were heard, and the dockets ended almost immediately after it had begun.

D. G. Holland, operator of a small garage on West First Street, had to take court on three charges, namely, carrying concealed weapons, and drunk and disorderly conduct. He was fined $100 on each charge, and $250 on the third charge, for carrying a concealed weapon.

Howard Robinson, 40, was fined $100 for carrying a concealed weapon. He was also fined $250 for carrying a concealed weapon. He was also fined $250 for carrying a concealed weapon.

Atlantic Solo Navigator Tells About Hand To Hand Fight With Hungry Sharks

HAVANA, May 12.—(INS)—Hand to hand encounters with several huge sharks, suffering from starvation all alone in mid-Atlantic, and being treated to phonograph music by a tribe of negroes with whom he could not exchange a word, were some of the thrills experienced by Paul Muller, German aviator, who has arrived in Cuba after a solo voyage across the Atlantic in a tiny cockleshell of a boat.

Muller, who is now in Cuba following his safe arrival at Oriente province after the voyage from Hamburg, told of his startling adventures in an interview with International News Service.

"In taking my daily swim on Feb. 20," Muller declared, "I was some distance from my craft when I suddenly encountered several huge sharks. I immediately struck out for my boat, but they gave chase, and I just managed to clamber over the gunwale in the nick of time. For they circled my craft, at times leaping clear of the water and often rasping the keel of the boat as though trying to overturn it. Six shots from my revolver into their midst finally did away with them."

Muller told of reaching Fortune Island, by which time his provisions had been exhausted, some of them having gone bad and been thrown overboard. "When I reached the beach," he said, "I was met by a large group of negroes who had been watching my progress, but to my consternation I found I could not understand them nor could they understand me. Only by making signs for some length of time could I convey the idea that I was starving. Then they brought me a large fish, which I devoured."

"The natives made me a great deal of noise, and a special mark of esteem they brought out an old, cheap phonograph from somewhere, fixed on a squeaky record and played a lullaby in a language, I could not understand, but it sounded like the best music I had ever heard."

STUDENT RIOT MAY PROVOKE RELIGIOUS ROW

President's Morals Is Primary Cause For Attack Upon Administration Building

DES MOINES, May 12.—(INS)—The state of Iowa today demanded that Des Moines University, closed following riots in a modernist-fundamentalist fight, reopen its doors. A temporary injunction restrains Dr. John B. Wayman, president, from carrying out the mandate of Dr. T. T. Shields, chairman of the board of directors in keeping the institution closed indefinitely. The case was heard by Judge Frank B. Shankland in district court. A court attaché left immediately to serve the writ.

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 12.—(INS)—Des Moines University's students today planned to follow their "egg and rock" riot with an injunction suit which promises to provoke a fundamentalist-modernist controversy rivaling the Dayton, Tenn., "monkey trial."

They were determined to go to court, spokesmen said. If when they appeared at the university at the regular opening hour, the classroom doors were not thrown open to them.

Meanwhile Dr. T. T. Shields, chairman of the institution's board of trustees and leading fundamentalist warrior in the Baptist church, arrived in Toronto, Ont., proclaiming the riot "nothing but a modernist conspiracy." Students said they contemplated snuffing Miss Edith Lehman, his secretary, over the border into her native Canada today unless she voluntarily quitted the university and the United States.

The two were wounded when guards opened fire. They were believed fatally shot.

DOLLY, ALICE SIT TOGETHER, STIR CAPITOL

Rival Social Leaders Enter Gallery Conspicuously As Senators Are Amazed

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(INS)—The staid and august Senate could hardly believe its eyes today when Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth and Mrs. "Dolly" Gann, rival leaders in the Capitol's great social war, strolled nonchalantly into the gallery together, sat down and proceeded to converse amiably.

An almost audible gasp went around the chamber, and the two immediately became the cynosure of all eyes from the floor as well as from the visitors galleries. Senator Smith W. Brookhart (R) of Iowa, was speaking at the time, but nobody paid any attention. All eyes were on Alice and Dolly.

Neither appeared embarrassed or coy when they were seated in the gallery together, although the tea tables of Washington have buzzed with nothing else for a week except the surprising conflict between the Vice President's half-sister and the speaker's wife over social precedent at official functions.

GERMANY TAKES STEPS TO CHECK 'RED' ACTIVITIES

The Five-Day-Week Inevitable

Fred T. Lay, prominent builder of Manhattan skyscrapers, declared recently that the five-day week is inevitable. This information, if true, will bring cheer to most classes of people, who find Sunday all too inadequate as a day of rest and recreation. We are not a student of economics but it sounds reasonable enough that the continued increase of labor saving devices has made the five-day week possible and practical in the same manner as it has brought about the eight hour working day.

An extra twenty-four hours every week in which to enjoy oneself would, we believe, do more for the promotion of happiness than any other thing. It would permit an indulgence in athletic amusements adding materially to the public health; it would give those who are inclined towards culture the opportunity of pursuing more effectively their penchant for literature, art, music or the drama; it would permit people to get out on the open road and to "go places and see things" and finally it would allow us one more day in which to forget business, to withdraw from the tediousness of work and the jolt of life and to thumb our noses at the world while we just sit and blow smoke rings.

But some will say that an extra day of rest would prove costly to business, that, while the same salaries would be expected to be maintained, the volume of business would diminish. But we are informed that such is not the case. It is said that under the shorter week plan, the same volume of trade could be carried on with little more effort. All that would be necessary would be a slight speeding up of the human machine which we believe would be easy enough to do considering the reward. It is further set forth that the additional leisure would give people more time to spend money, to buy pop corn, hot-dogs, amusement tickets; more time to burn up tires and gasoline and to wear out the automobile; more time to plan wardrobes, to think about new clothes and finally more time to do everything, which costs money, which means more business.

Some say he has his grandfater's grin,
And some his mother's eyes,
And there is that about his chin
The dead would recognize.
There's something in the way he walks
Recalls the rolling sea,
And we remember when he talks
A judge who used to be.

"His true he has his mother's eyes
And shares his father's mirth,
But round his still vague shadows rise

Of those long gone from earth,
For once there was a sorrow laid
Who laughed the storms to scorn
And loved a girl and lad
Before this boy was born.
And once there was a soldier bold,
Who wore his monarch's braid
And gained a medal cast in gold,
Which proudly he displayed;
And I have heard from women gray
Who vowed the truth they knew
That once a princel ran away
With a soldier boy in blue,
Though now a laughing lad is he
With manners all his own,
In him is something of the sea
peculiarly shown.
In moments grave a judge appears,
A soldier galls in gold,
For every child is old in years
With all that they supply.

It costs the taxpayers of this country $930,000,000 to enforce the prohibition amendment last year, and that doesn't include their liquor bills.

The recipe for whatever it was, calling for a couple of dashes of cream de mentha which was found in Herb Hoover's office may have been left there by an aid of Al Capone to discredit the administration's law enforcement campaign.

Sanford farmers should sign up with the celery association. Advertising is the best way to sell anything and celery is no exception. It would seem that after the sock the farmers took this year they would be willing to try anything which might improve conditions.

Harry Sinclair is in jail at last, but after figuring up the way his money stood off the law, we can't see where Justice has scored much of a triumph. We exclude soviet doctrine, but rich law breakers like Harry Sinclair are stacking up more material for a Moody revolution than all outside influences put together.

Palm Beach Independent. Says Benj. Cynical.

A Tampa automobile on the Tamiami Trail dived into a ditch and turned over. A woman was drowned and the accident was declared unavoidable. Practically all accidents are unavoidable if the investigators of them are to be believed. Not long ago a motorist, creared with liquor, drove his car into and killed a traffic policeman in Coral Gables. That was "unavoidable" too.

Ruth Bryan Owen, working for Florida farmers who live in the Oklawaha section, has secured an increase in the loan per acre from three dollars to twenty-five dollars. This will go a long way toward putting back on their feet those farmers who were sufferers from the storm last September. Mrs. Owen is not losing any time in missing any opportunities to come to the aid of her constituents.

The state legislature is entering the home stretch of this session and nothing has been done yet. At the present rate of progress it sure will take five places alongside of the 1927 legislature as a disgrace to Florida. It may even be necessary before another six or twelve months have passed to call an extra session to accomplish something toward tax reduction, a problem which should have been met by this legislature.

The Tax Bills

Speaking of Governor Carlton's tax bills, the Tallahassee Democrat takes the position that something must be done to relieve the financial pressure on many of the counties and districts of Florida and believes that the administration's measures are the best measures which have so far been suggested. The Democrat commends the legislature for its deliberation in acting on the tax bills and then goes on to say:

"We are not sure that the bills will become law, but are sure that Governor Carlton has framed them with the idea of best solving the financial problems of the state. He was nominated for governor almost a year ago. During his candidacy and after his nomination and election the matter of Florida's financial condition was his constant thought. The people elected him on the promise of financial and government reform, and as a true man he has tried to formulate the most effective means for this accomplishment.

"An exhaustive research has been made of the financial condition of every county in the state, and of the state as an entirety. These findings are presented to the legislature in a thorough and comprehensive way. No secrecy, subterfuge or haste is asked in the consideration or action on such bills as he thinks will solve the perplexed problems of taxation and finance.

"We are confident both houses appreciate his honesty of purpose, and his earnest desire to see his administration and this particular session of the legislature enact such laws as will not only meet present financial problems but place Florida in a condition for permanent growth and long time prosperity."

This seems to be the attitude of the majority of the newspapers in Florida which have expressed themselves definitely on the matter. It is generally recognized that the state is faced with an extremely serious situation and that the Governor is in possession of such facts and advice as to make his recommendations most practical in the solution of Florida's problems.

FLORIDA CAN'T AFFORD IT
TAMPA TRIBUNE

In an editorial protesting against the proposed confiscatory tax on motor buses, the Miami News calls attention specifically to the case of the Collier West Motor Lines, owned and operated by Barron E. Collier, one of the largest investors in Florida. This company, the News remarks, serves communities which have no other transportation facilities, its bus lines have opened up much new territory and have done much to break down the barriers of inter-city jealousies and misunderstandings that obtain because of conditions that fostered provincialism. This company, operating 50 buses pays now the gasoline tax and motor vehicle license and ad valorem tax which reaches the heavy total of $575 per vehicle. An additional tax of three cents a mile traveled by these buses would prove prohibitive as it would to those of other companies similarly situated.

Yet the Senate has voted and the House is now asked to vote a tax which would put these enterprising out of business and virtually confiscate their property and their investments.

Can Florida afford to take a drastic step like this at this time, when it is the desire of the forward-looking people and interests of the state to attract more enterprise, more industry, more capital? Assuredly not.

In a national aspect, affecting the attitude of business and finance in other states toward Florida, this is the most damaging proposition yet offered to the legislature.

prices for nubbins called peaches when the winter has kept them from getting fresh fruit for a comparatively long time. But they only pretend to enjoy the unripe woody stuff secured a week or a month ahead of the regular time for appearance, of good fruit, and positively shy at a second early purchase. They also wait longer than necessary, no doubt before trying again.

Florida oranges and grapefruit when ready for market are most delicious and healthful. They are recommended above almost anything else for their delicacy of flavor and general excellence for well people and sick people; for the humble home and the palace; a breakfast necessity—or should be so considered—and deserving place on the banquet board. But Florida oranges and Florida grapefruit should be mature, ripe, full of sunshine in liquid form and served without apology. Green citrus fruits are not desirable, in any circumstances. It has been said that people living on or near citrus groves sometimes eat the green peaches, with or without salt, but that is necessary to a breakfast event. Florida oranges and grapefruit

Florida Against Green Fruit Shipment
FLORIDA TIMES-UNION

In the state senate a few days ago a bill was passed which, by disallowing the tax to regulate the shipment of citrus fruit in such a way as to prevent the legal dispatch of any immature, green oranges or grapefruit. The matter has been discussed in Florida, and the time had apparently arrived when something definite and far-reaching should be done to prevent a few selfish and unreasonable growers from "spoiling the market" through delivery of fruit unfit for consumption. It was freely said last session that the state was damaged millions of dollars through this practice. It may be that the estimate of loss was extravagantly estimated. There can be no question at all concerning damage; it is only a difference of opinion regarding the amount; and it was altogether unnecessary and inexcusable.

Florida fruit is everywhere regarded as desirable and sells at a fair price when properly marketed. There is plenty of time for selling it after it has reached a saleable condition—salable through perfection and preparation. Naturally, there is a call for extra fruit. The world is everlastingly asking for them ahead of season. People pay big

THE SACRIFICED
JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II

Here once the embattled farmers

Embattled at Washington, the farm forces are using machine guns on the new tariff salients and eight-inch howitzers on the Hoover fort of farm relief. All of which suggests that if the farmer could find a "better deal" than the Republican party he would go to it. But the Democratic party will never offer such an asylum until it collects its thoughts on the whole philosophy of the tariff and the farm. At present it is merely wandering in the vicinity of the progressive Republican bloc in congress with no other apparent objective than political opportunism.

On the tariff, Christmas tree for Florida is a duty of ten cents a pound on oranges and grapefruit, three cents a pound on potatoes, five cents on cucumbers, and proportionate increases for sundry other fruits and vegetables. Also of interest to Florida is the increase in the tariff rate on Cuban sugar to 2.40 cents a pound and on other imported sugar to three cents. The Mediterranean (y) has apparently been left on the free list.

Included in the array of industries to be exempted from taxation in Florida for fifteen years of the proposed state constitutional amendment is passed are those engaged in the manufacture of steel vessels, automobile tires, fabrics and textiles, wood pulp, paper bags, fibers and rayon, silk, paraffin, aircraft parts and refiners of sugar and oil and by-products thereof. This is an interesting summary of the particular industrial estate to which Florida aspires.

Facts are facts and it makes no difference at all what private parties may have said. Governor Davis for assembling the vital vote has placed before the state it makes so little difference, indeed, that (once the legislature had raised the question) he would have done better to state exactly who did pay for the work.

Representative Matthews of Duval is of the opinion that the education of the youth of this state is more important than the rendering of assistance to bond holders which he thought Florida bonds "with their eyes open." The comparison is academic. Both are so important that Florida is resolved to neglect neither. The measure for a faithful carriage and retirement of county, municipal and district bonds in this state may mean the bond houses' happy but that is no more of an argument against such measures than for them. The important thing is that Florida's credit and the integrity of her pledged word be maintained.

To such an end it will profit nothing to say that these bonds are no affair of the state government since they were all issued by the political subdivisions of the state. That is a technically correct but not for a moment hide Florida from the world-wide disfavor a neglect of debt would bring.

"Young Teddy" Roosevelt may be appointed governor-general of Porto Rico. He is unfortunate in that he looks and talks like his great father without resembling him at all in force and originality. To physical resemblance induces more odious comparisons than might otherwise be made.

Apparently Deems Taylor thinks this business of napping at grand opera has gone far enough. The score of his next opus will include a part for an alarm clock.—New York Evening Post.

CELERY POINTS THE WAY
SANFORD HERALD

Celery producing in Sarasota county has come to be one of the outstanding developments of Florida. It is much talked about, not only all over this state, but throughout the nation. Three years ago, when celery first received attention as a major product here, no one would have thought that in so short a time it would have assumed the proportions of celery producing today. The second year saw a maximum of 25 cars a day shipped from the Palmer Farm. This year as many as 50 cars a day will be shipped. Where three years ago a mere handful of people were employed gathering and shipping celery, today more than 300 are employed and a payroll of more than $15,000 a week is paid out. It will readily be seen that celery has become the major industry of this community and has come to be an important factor in our economic development.

A very encouraging feature of the situation is that the production of celery in this territory is just in its infancy. Only a small part of the territory adapted to celery raising has been put under cultivation. The fact that two crops a year can be raised, one for the winter market and one for the spring market, practically makes celery crops a sure thing. It is not a question as to how much celery we can raise in Sarasota county, but the marketing of it. This proposition, so far, has found its solution and we are quite sure will continue to find its solution. The superior quality of the celery raised here, and the excellent condition in which it is placed on the market will always secure it a ready sale at good prices. The advertising campaign which has been inaugurated through the Gettchall-Humphrey Advertising Agency of Atlanta will prepare the way for the introduction of Sarasota celery into extensive markets throughout the nation and our shipments, however large they become, will be quickly absorbed.

Sarasota has, in the phenomenal success attained in the production of celery the key to a large increase in population and a consequent large increase in commercial importance. At the present time, hundreds of workers are brought by truck to the Palmer Farms from other localities, at considerable expense. Sooner or later, housing accommodations will be built for all the laborers required for the operation of our rapidly developing agricultural territory. At the present time the lack of housing facilities for these workers is the crying need of the hour. As demand usually precedes supply we take it that this demand will be met and we shall soon see hundreds of attractive, homes created in the agricultural territory. The people required to cultivate, gather and ship celery range all the way from United States inspectors down to cutters, graders and truck drivers. Next year there will be hundreds of acres in strawberries and other hundreds of acres in vegetables, all of which will call for additional labor. The outlook for a large thriving, prosperous farming community in Sarasota's back country is exceptionally bright. At most a few years will see its realization.

LIVING A LIE SUCCESSFULLY
BRADENTON HERALD

So they buried Dorettey Morton in the ruffles and lace she had worn in life. The last moments of her earthly existence found all the sham and pretense that she had spent years in building up swept aside. Born a girl she died a woman yet the best and most eventful years of her life were lived as a man. Even marriage which reveals the innermost secrets of one's soul was not enough to unlock her. Death alone disclosed the sham.

The case is one of the strangest on record although not infrequently one finds girls who resent the restrictions imposed by their sex and complain against the providence that shaped their lives. However, they usually confine their displeasure to expressed criticism of an unkind fate. Occasionally we learn that some girl has been masquerading as a man yet the number is small.

Perhaps no one has ever been more successful in an effort of this nature than was Miss Morton. As Peter Stratford she masqueraded for years as a man. Four years of married life was not enough to reveal her secret. This came out when she became and was told there was no hope for her recovery. The masquerading woman's wife deserted the impostor recently when she learned that her husband was a woman but for some reason she kept the secret, perhaps because she was unwilling to have the public know the hoax that had been perpetrated on her.

Few lives have been more misshapen than that of the woman who lived a lie in order to gratify a whim and it is unreasonable to suppose that her twisted existence knew more pleasure than would have been hers had she lived as Providence willed. We may scoff at the impossibilities of fiction yet truth is oftener stranger.

DEATH IN THIS STATE
DAYTONA BEACH NEWS-JOURNAL

Florida's mortality record for 1928, recently made public by the state board of health, bureau of vital statistics, is a story that bears poring over.

In this sunshine state, twelve and a half percent out of every thousand died in 1928. In the entire registration area of the United States (which takes in 96.4 per cent of the Country's population, all those districts in fact which are recognized by the federal government as having adequate death registration laws) the average per thousand for 1927 was 11.4 National figures for 1928 are not at hand.

Why is this? The obvious resort to the implied criticism of our state's record would be that our death rate is increased by the number of aged winter visitors who come here to end their days. It would be of interest to know whether these foreign deaths are included. The bureau of vital statistics does not elucidate.

It does give the cause of death, and in the order of their fatality they are diseases of the heart, chronic nephritis, tuberculosis, pneumonia and peripneumonia. The last named may well be said to be most serious of all, for it takes the lives of new mothers improperly cared for in childbirth. The state is actively attacking the question of maternity care, however, and has reduced the death from this cause by twenty per cent since 1927.

Thirty hundred and ninety seven deaths were caused in Florida by automobile accidents in 1928, more than were due to typhoid fever, smallpox, measles, scarlet fever and dysentery. The total is 30 less, however, than in 1927. Eighteen persons were killed by airplanes and there were 368 homiicides. Death by all accidents numbered 1855.

These vital statistics are fascinating; they also human life reduced to a common denominator. Birth and death, always indissolubly dramatic, lose none of their intense dramatic quality in a group. More, these figures of the ebb and flow of existence and the index of what specific legislation is necessary for the mitigation and betterment of life.

CONDEMNED due to an Undisclosed Restriction

A builder bought land for an apartment house. There was a covenant in a deed which required a building of five feet which the builder's architect examined and missed. The builder had had the foundation to the front line and was up to the second story when the neighboring property owners convinced an attorney. The builder was convinced, consented to demolish and rebuild his structure and so a result was put to a loss of thousands of dollars.

Title insurance would have prevented the loss.

CELERY POINTS THE WAY
SANFORD HERALD

Celery producing in Sarasota county has come to be one of the outstanding developments of Florida. It is much talked about, not only all over this state, but throughout the nation. Three years ago, when celery first received attention as a major product here, no one would have thought that in so short a time it would have assumed the proportions of celery producing today. The second year saw a maximum of 25 cars a day shipped from the Palmer Farm. This year as many as 50 cars a day will be shipped. Where three years ago a mere handful of people were employed gathering and shipping celery, today more than 300 are employed and a payroll of more than $15,000 a week is paid out. It will readily be seen that celery has become the major industry of this community and has come to be an important factor in our economic development.

A very encouraging feature of the situation is that the production of celery in this territory is just in its infancy. Only a small part of the territory adapted to celery raising has been put under cultivation. The fact that two crops a year can be raised, one for the winter market and one for the spring market, practically makes celery crops a sure thing. It is not a question as to how much celery we can raise in Sarasota county, but the marketing of it. This proposition, so far, has found its solution and we are quite sure will continue to find its solution. The superior quality of the celery raised here, and the excellent condition in which it is placed on the market will always secure it a ready sale at good prices. The advertising campaign which has been inaugurated through the Gettchall-Humphrey Advertising Agency of Atlanta will prepare the way for the introduction of Sarasota celery into extensive markets throughout the nation and our shipments, however large they become, will be quickly absorbed.

Sarasota has, in the phenomenal success attained in the production of celery the key to a large increase in population and a consequent large increase in commercial importance. At the present time, hundreds of workers are brought by truck to the Palmer Farms from other localities, at considerable expense. Sooner or later, housing accommodations will be built for all the laborers required for the operation of our rapidly developing agricultural territory. At the present time the lack of housing facilities for these workers is the crying need of the hour. As demand usually precedes supply we take it that this demand will be met and we shall soon see hundreds of attractive, homes created in the agricultural territory. The people required to cultivate, gather and ship celery range all the way from United States inspectors down to cutters, graders and truck drivers. Next year there will be hundreds of acres in strawberries and other hundreds of acres in vegetables, all of which will call for additional labor. The outlook for a large thriving, prosperous farming community in Sarasota's back country is exceptionally bright. At most a few years will see its realization.

The Five-Day-Week Inevitable

Fred T. Lay, prominent builder of Manhattan skyscrapers, declared recently that the five-day-week is inevitable. This information, if true, will bring cheer to most classes of people, who find Sunday all too inadequate as a day of rest and recreation. We are not a student of economics but it seems reasonable enough that the continued increase of labor-saving devices has made the five-day-week possible and practical in the same manner as it has brought about the eight hour working day.

An extra twenty-four hours every week by which to enjoy oneself would, we believe, do more for the promotion of happiness than any other thing. It would permit an indulgence in athletic amusements adding materially to the public health; it would give those who are inclined towards cultural things the opportunity of pursuing more extensively their interests in literature, art, music or the drama; it would permit people to get out on the open road and to "go places and see things" and finally it would allow us one more day in which to forget business, to withdraw from the tediousness of work and the jolts of life and to thumb our noses at the world while we just sit and blow smoke rings.

But some will say that an extra day of rest would prove costly to business, that while the same salaries would be expected to be maintained, the volume of business would diminish. But we are informed that such is not the case. It is said that under the shorter week plan, the same volume of trade could be carried on with little more effort. All that would be necessary would be a slight speeding up of the human machine which we believe would be easy enough to do considering the reward. It is further set forth that the additional leisure would give people more time to spend money, to buy pop corn, hot-dogs, amusement tickets; more time to burn up tires and gasoline and to wear out the automobile; more time to plan wardrobes, to think about new clothes and finally more time to do everything, which costs money, which means more business.

The Tax Bills

Speaking of Governor Carlton's tax bills, the Tallahassee Democrat takes the position that something must be done to relieve the financial pressure on many of the counties and districts of Florida and believes that the administration's measures are the best measures which have so far been suggested. The Democrat commends the legislature for its deliberation in acting on the tax bills and then goes on to say:

"We are not sure that the bills will become law, but are sure that Governor Carlton has framed them with the idea of best solving the financial problems of the state. He was nominated for governor almost a year ago. During his candidacy and after his nomination and election the matter of Florida's financial condition was his constant thought. The people elected him on the promise of financial and government reform, and as a true man he has tried to formulate the most effective means for this accomplishment.

"An exhaustive research has been made of the financial condition of every county in the state, and of the state as an entirety. These findings are presented to the legislature in a thorough and comprehensive way. No secrecy, subtlety or haste is asked in the consideration or action on such bills as he thinks will solve the perplexed problems of taxation and finance.

"We are confident both houses appreciate his honesty of purpose, and his earnest desire to see his administration and this particular session of the legislature enact such laws as will not only meet present financial problems but place Florida in a condition for permanent growth and long time prosperity."

This seems to be the attitude of the majority of the newspapers in Florida which have expressed themselves definitely on the matter. It is generally recognized that the state is faced with an extremely serious situation and that the Governor is in possession of such facts and advice as to make his recommendations most practical in the solution of Florida's problems.

FLORIDA CAN'T AFFORD IT TAMPA TRIBUNE

In an editorial protesting against the proposed confiscatory tax on motor buses, the Miami News calls attention specifically to the case of the Collier West Motor Lines, owned and operated by Barron G. Collier, one of the largest investors in Florida. This company, the News remarks, serves communities which have no other transportation facilities. Its bus lines have opened up much new territory and have done much to break down the barriers of inter-city jealousies and misunderstandings that obtain, because of conditions that fostered provincialism. This company, operating 60 buses pays now the gasoline tax and motor vehicle license and ad valorem tax which reaches the heavy total of $875 per vehicle. An additional tax of three cents

Florida Against Green Fruit Shipment FLORIDA TIMES-UNION

In the state, senate a few days ago a bill was passed with but one dissenting vote to regulate the shipment of citrus fruit in such a way as to prevent the legal dispatch of any immature, green oranges or grapefruit. The matter has been discussed in Florida, and the time had apparently arrived when something definite and far-reaching should be done to prevent a few selfish and unreasonable growers from "spoiling the market" through delivery of fruit unfit for consumption. It was truly said last season that the state was damaged millions of dollars through this practice. It may be that the estimate of loss was extravagantly estimated. There can be no question at all concerning damage; it is only a difference of opinion regarding the amount; and it was altogether unnecessary and impracticable.

Florida fruit is everywhere regarded as desirable and sells at a fair price when properly marketed. There is plenty of time for selling it after it has reached a salable condition—salable meaning perfection and ripeness. Naturally, then, it is a fall for early fruit. The world is everlastingly asking for things ahead of season. People pay big

"Here once the embattled farmers stood and fired the shot heard 'round the world."

Embattled at Washington, the farm forces are using machine guns on the new tariff salient and eight-inch howitzers on the Hoover fort of farm relief. All of which suggests that if the farmer could find a "better job" than the Republican party he would go to it. But the Democratic party will never offer such an asylum until it collects its thoughts on the whole philosophy of the tariff and the farm. At present it is merely wandering in the vicinity of the progressive Republican in congress with no other apparent objective than political opportunism.

On the tariff Christmas tree for Florida is a duty of two cents a pound on oranges and grapefruit, three cents a pound on tomatoes, five cents on cucumbers, and proportionate increases for sundry other fruits and vegetables. Also of interest to Florida is the increase in the tariff rate on Cuban sugar to 240 cents a pound and on other imported sugar to 180 cents. The Mediterranean is apparently been left on the free list.

Included in the array of industries to be exempted from taxation in Florida for fifteen years of the proposed state constitutional amendment is passed are those engaged in the manufacture of steel vessels, automobile tires, fabrics and textiles, wood pulp, paper bags, fibre based automobile parts, aircraft, aircraft parts and refiners of sugar and oil and by-products thereof. This is an interesting summary of the particular industrial estate to which Florida aspires.

Facts are facts and it makes no difference at all what private parties may have said. Governor Daws for assembling the vital ones he has placed before the state it makes no little difference, indeed, that (once the legislature had raised the question) he would have done better to state exactly who did pay for the work.

Representative Matthews of Duval is of the opinion that the education of the voter is more important than the rendering of assistance to bond houses which bought Florida bonds "with their eyes open". The comparison is academic. Both are important that Florida is relieved to neglect the voter. The measure for faithful carrying out of settlement of county, municipal and district bonds in this state may make the bond house happy but that is no more of an argument against such measures than for them. The important thing is that Florida's credit and integrity of her pledged word be maintained.

To such an end it will profit nothing to say that these bonds are not a part of the state government since they were all issued by the political subdivisions of the state. That is a technicality which would not for a moment hide Florida from the world-wide disaster a neglect of debt would bring.

"Young Teddy" Roosevelt may be appointed governor-general of Porto Rico. He is unfortunate in that he looks and talks like his great father without resembling him at all in force and originality. Too physical resemblance induces more odious comparisons than might otherwise be made.

Apparently Deems Taylor thinks this business of napping at grand opera has gone far enough. If the score of his next opera will include a part for an alarm clock.—New York Evening Post.

know the Florida orange as it goes out under the full assurance of maturity and weight. New markets are needed for increasing crops. To secure a hold on regular markets, the fruit must be good; the first fruit sent out should be real samples of the "finished product" and not sour, pulpy, green globes that have perhaps been detoured and certain to bring discredit upon the state.

A law that will deal heavily with those who endeavor to "quack" the market by shipment of immature citrus fruit may check the impulses of those who have in the past undertaken to get ahead of growers who are not willing to send anything out that cannot be recommended. The few extra dollars gathered by the ahead-of-time shippers costs the legitimate fruit producer a lot of money. They cannot really sell the market for long, but they interfere with the sale of the good fruit when it comes and take time to restore confidence. Florida fruit is worth waiting for; it is the best grown and worth the price asked when actually ready for the market.

CELERY POINTS THE WAY SARASOTA HERALD

Celery producing in Sarasota county has come to be one of the outstanding developments of Florida. It is much talked about, not only all over this state, but throughout the nation. Three years ago, when celery first received attention as a major product here, no one would have thought that in so short a time it would have assumed the proportions of celery production today. The second year saw a crop of 25 cars a day shipped from the Palm Springs. This year as many as 50 cars a day will be shipped. Where three years ago a mere handful of people were employed gathering and shipping celery, today more than 800 are employed and a pay roll of more than $15,000 a week is paid out. It will readily be seen that celery has become the major industry of this community and has come to be an important factor in our economic development.

A very encouraging feature of the situation is that the production of celery in this territory is yet in its infancy. Only a small part of the territory adapted to celery raising has been put under cultivation. The fact that two crops a year can be raised, one for the winter market and one for the spring market, practically makes celery crops a sure thing. It is not a question as to how much celery we can raise in Sarasota county, but the marketing of it. This proposition so far, has found its solution and we are quite sure will continue to find its solution. The superior quality of the celery raised here, and the excellent condition in which it is placed

LIVING A LIE SUCCESSFULLY HARRINGTON HERALD

So they buried Dorothy Morton in the ruffles and lace she had turned in life. The last moments of her earthly existence found all the sham and pretense that she had spent years in building up swept aside. Born a girl she died a woman yet the best and most eventful years of her life were lived as a man. Even marriage which reveals the innermost secrets of one's soul was not enough to unlock hers. Death alone unlocked the sham.

The case is one of the strangest on record although not infrequently one finds girls who resent the restrictions imposed by their sex and complain against the providence that shaped their lives. However, they usually confine their displeasure to expressed criticism of an unkind fate. Occasionally we learn that some girl has been masquerading as a man yet the number is small. Perhaps no one has ever been more successful in an effort of this nature than was Miss Morton. As Peter Stratford she masqueraded for years as a man. Four years of married life was not enough to reveal her secret. This came out when she became and was told there was no hope for recovery. The masquerading woman's wife deserted the impostor recently when she learned that her husband was a woman but for some reason she kept the secret, perhaps because she was unwilling to have the public know the hoax that had been perpetrated on her.

Few lives have been more misshapen than that of the woman who lived a lie in order to gratify a whim and it is unreasonable to suppose that her twisted existence knew more pleasure than would have been hers had she lived as Providence willed. We may scoff at the impossibility of fiction yet truth is oftener stranger.

DEATH IN THIS STATE DAYTONA BEACH NEWS-JOURNAL

Florida's mortality record for 1922, recently made public by the state board of health, bureau of vital statistics, is a story that bears poring over.

In this sunshine state, twelve and a half persons out of every thousand died in 1922. In the entire registration area of the United States (which takes in 98.4 per cent of the Country's population), all these districts in fact which are recognized by the federal government as having adequate death registration laws the average per thousand—Jan. 1927 was 11.4. National figures for 1922 are not at hand.

Why is this? The obvious reason to the troubled critic of our state's record would be that our death rate is increased by the number of aged winter visitors who come here to rest their days. It would be of interest to know whether these foreign deaths are included. The bureau of vital statistics does not include.

It does give the cause of death, and in the order of their fatality they are diseases of the heart, chronic nephritis, tuberculosis, pneumonia and purpural state. The last named may well be said to be most serious of all, for it takes the lives of new mothers improperly cared for in childbirth. The state is actively attacking the question of maternity care, however, and has reduced the death from this cause by twenty per cent since 1927.

Three hundred and ninety-seven deaths were caused in Florida by automobile accidents in 1922, more than were due to typhoid fever, smallpox, measles, scarlet fever and diphtheria. The total is 50 less, however, than in 1927. Eighty-six persons were killed by airplanes and there were 368 homicides. Death by all accidents averaged 1922.

These vital statistics are fascinating; they are human life reduced to a common denominator. Birth and death always indelibly dramatic, how some of their human elements, especially group. More, these figures of the life and death of existence, the index of what specific information is necessary for the prolongation and betterment of life.

Britt-Waller Nuptials Are Solemnized Here

A marriage which comes as a surprise to their many friends both here and elsewhere was that of Miss Iris Britt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Britt, 1231 West Second Street, to Frank Waller, son of F. C. Waller of Mobile, Ala., on Friday afternoon at the Baptist Church with the Rev. E. D. Brown officiating. In the presence of the immediate family and intimate friends of the couple, the marriage was solemnized at a wedding party and reception on Friday evening at the Little Grey House on the Orlando Road by Mrs. S. D. Sabbitt and other teachers of the Sanford Grammar School.

The bride is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Britt and came to Sanford 10 years ago from Atlanta, Ga. where she was born. She attended the public schools here and later graduated from Stetson University in DeLand. For the past four years she has been teaching in the Sanford Grammar School.

The bridegroom is the son of F. C. Waller, retired business man of Mobile, Ala. He has lived in Mobile the greater part of his life where he attended the public schools and later graduated from college. At present he is connected with the Waterman Steamship Co.

The couple are enjoying a honeymoon at points in Florida but will return to Sanford for a short time before going to Mobile to make their home.

The dinner guests were seated at a large table which was decorated in a pink and white color scheme with quantities of pink roses and other Spring flowers which were arranged in vases and placed at intervals along the table. The announcements were in the form of scrolls held in place by wedding rings, and were used as place cards. Dinner was served in four courses immediately after the announcement was made known. The following guests were present and presented the honor guest with gifts as mementoes of the occasion: Mrs. W. H. Britt, mother of the bride, Mrs. Ruth, Mrs. S. D. Sabbitt, Mrs. Hopkins, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Durden, Mrs. Mint and the Misses Mildred Mitchell, Ethel Riegar, Maxine Young, and Maude Lake.

A profusion of roses, carnations and polka dots ferns were placed about the rooms where the guests were entertained and late in the evening the bride was presented with a large white cake, which, when cut, revealed the many gifts which were given her by the guests.
