Whoops!

LAKE MARY - The Building Department/Code Enforcement activity report submitted to the Lake Mary City Commission during Thursday night's meeting had a word missing. In the category of "Projects Completed," was the listing: "Hung past Commission in Citizens Workroom." Members of the audience joked that it might have been an idea worth considering. The word "photograph" had been omitted. Photos of former members of the city commission were recently placed on the wall in the workroom/meeting room at City Hall.

Congressman tours Midway

MIDWAY - Congressman John Mica, R-Winter Park, will tour Midway Monday to review conditions there. The drive-through was organized by community activist John Jackson. "We wanted him to see what grant money Seminole County has received and what has been done," said Jackson. "The county has received enough money to give everybody something," Jackson said he hopes Mica will be able to find federal development grants for the community. Jackson said he invited Congresswoman Corriene Brown, D-Jacksonville, but she did not respond. Brown is Midway's congressional representative.

Woodmere plans rally

SANFORD - Woodmere Park has a successful neighborhood watch program. Residents are making plans to gather in an appreciation day event. "The Neighborhood Watch Committee of Woodmere Park has been working together to stop the rising crime rate in our area," according to Ann Gilzke, secretary of the committee. "Our intentions are to take our neighborhood back from crime, and make it safe once again for our families and children."

Regarding the gathering, scheduled for May 22nd, she said, "We want our community to know that we are serious about ridding our neighborhood of crime and that we are all working together to achieve this goal."

Among events will be live music, food, a Karate exhibition by Menefee's Martial Arts Academy, an exhibition by the Sanford Gymnastics Association, security equipment displays, and demonstrations by the Sanford Police Department K-9 units and BAT-mobile.

The neighborhood party will be held from 3 until 7 p.m., May 22, on Empire Place, two blocks east of Sanford Avenue on 29th Street. For further information, contact Ann Gilzke, 324-5216.

Delinquency rises; few juveniles mend ways

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

Editor's note: This is the second in a series that will continue this week to explore the problem of juvenile crime in Seminole County.

SANFORD - Juvenile delinquency cases in Seminole County continue to increase according to statistics from several agencies including the clerk, Florida Department of Law Enforcement and Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

HRS figures show that between fiscal years 1982-83 and 1990-91, the Seminole County at-risk population (ages 10-17) increased 21 percent. The number of HRS delinquency cases for children residing in Seminole County peaked in fiscal year 1990-91, 80 percent higher than during FY 1982-83. Statistics were not available for 1991-92. Delinquency cases include both felonies and misdemeanors. (See graph).

Governor Lawton Chiles in his Safe Streets campaign has cited a 91 percent increase in juvenile crime during the past decade.

According to HRS data, in 1990-91 more delinquency cases were filed against 15 and 16 year-olds, followed by those 17 and older, then 13-14 year olds and 10-12 year olds. Only a small number of 0-9 year olds are charged with delinquency. Grouped by race and sex, white males in the county accounted for over 1,200 delinquency

Chiles signs bill focusing on prevention of teen crime

By JACKIE MALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Gov. Lawton Chiles signed a bill Friday that sets up local and regional councils on juvenile justice to focus on programs that prevent teens from getting into trouble.

The bill also directs that regional "managers" be appointed to oversee local efforts and that $3.5 million be set aside to fund local programs.

"This bill emphasizes three critical areas to make Florida's juvenile justice system work better," Chiles said. "One, by emphasizing prevention, it will help us reach out on the front end to stop troubled juveniles from becoming criminal adults."

The idea behind the councils, managers and grants is to build partnerships, generate community support and prevent crime.

"This is the first step in a long road ... to start saving the generation that's before us," said Rep. Elvin Martinez, a Tampa Democrat who sponsored the bill.

The governor also said he was appointing a steering committee to analyze the specific steps needed to help communities implement reforms.

He's asked Chief Justice Rosemary Barkett, Education Commissioner Betty Castor, Attorney General Bob Butterworth as well as some lawmakers and judges to serve on the board.

Leasing civic center may cost more

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Sanford commissioners Monday will address not only requests to schedule upcoming events in the city but will decide the fate of reduced rates given to some organizations using the Sanford Civic Center.

Several requests include temporary closures of First Street.

Florida's Hairplace, 309 E. First Street is requesting closure of East First Street between Palmetto and Sanford avenues on May 30th, from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. They plan to hold an art show, featuring paintings, posters and coloring books. The sponsorship would include Ethnic Art Gallery of Orlando.

The special event application indicates possibly 200 spectators would attend the art show.

The Sanford Historic Downtown Waterfront Association is asking for street closings for two events, May 15, from 8 p.m. until 11 p.m., SHDWA wants First Street to be closed from Oak to Palmetto, and Park Avenue from 2nd Street to Commercial Avenue.

The event is the Super Saturday Night - Celery Street Cruisers Car Show. SHDWA estimates 100 participants and 1,000 spectators.

Looking ahead, SHDWA also wants First Street closed from Palmetto Avenue to Park, and Park to Oak Avenues.

SHDWA and Broken Mold want to hold an Arts and Crafts show from 6 p.m. Friday, Jan. 28, to Sunday, Jan. 30. They expect 100 participants and an undetermined number of spectators.

City Manager Bill Simmons is recommending the commission approve all three requests.

Other items to come before the commission also deal with special events. They concern use of city buildings, Alcoholics Anonymous and the Sanford Fire Department are seeking reduced rates for using the Civic Center for special events coming up June 13 and July 31.

In a report to the commission, Simmons has

Goldsboro rallies for community involvement

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - A call for unity and community involvement was sounded Saturday as residents gathered for a health fair at Crooms School of Choice.

Although organizers were enthusiastic about the event sponsored by Seminole County's Full Service School's program and Therapeutic Community Enrichment Program (TCEP), attendance was sparse.

Turner Clayton, who heads the local NAACP, said it was a shame events designed to benefit the community do not draw more people. "We should be swamped (with people)," Clayton said, looking over the small crowd.

He urged the community to combat problems such as drugs and teen pregnancies. "We need to bring the kids back home where they belong," he added and get them off the streets.

"It's too bad we don't take advantage of events like this to come together and encourage the you are about to read is true. Names have been changed but that's all.

Getting out of the car was a nice looking lady in her mid-thirties, about six feet tall in her white high-heeled shoes. She was wearing a flowing, well-below-the-knee length, white dress. Even more noticeable was a large white hat with an extra wide floppy brim.

At the front counter "Mr. Salesman" couldn't help but notice she was quite attractive but somewhat far from being considered a "Southern belle." She said she was looking for a nice home preferably on a lake. Since this happened over 20 years ago prices were much lower but existing lakefront homes even then were few and far between.

In those days it was customary for some sales folks to show a potential customer at least two and preferably three properties. It still is an old sales procedure. For example, if real estate salesmen show a customer one property on the way back to the office, they can ask the client if he liked the home. The answer has to be "yes" or "no." But if you show a customer two or three properties, a salesman can ask which one they liked the best. Ninety-nine out of a hundred will tell you which home they preferred. This eliminates a "no" answer.

In this particular instance, "Mr. Salesman" showed the customer three possible homes. The one "Mrs. White" liked best was not on a lake but in one of Sanford's top subdivisions, a beautiful four-bedroom brick. The entire back yard was occupied by a large pool and patio. And she liked the price which was under $40,000. By the time she and the salesperson returned to the "Local Realty" office she had already decided the poolside home was the one she wanted.

"Mr. Salesman" began gathering all the forms needed to prepare a contract. There were many questions to be asked. First, she wanted to offer $3,000 less than the owner was asking. That meant the owner had to be contacted to determine if he and his wife would accept the lower offer. Also, "Mr. Salesman" had to ask about her husband, what he did for a living, what his income was, and the same information about her if she held a job.

"Mr. Salesman" was somewhat surprised when she told him she was a widow. Her husband she said had been a captain in the Air Force. As a pilot he had been killed over Vietnam. As for her, she said she was not employed. She explained she had just settled his estate and that she would pay cash for the home. She and "Mr. Salesman" completed the contract which provided the deal would close exactly 30 days later. When she asked how much of an earnest money deposit would be required, the salesman said $2,000. When the salesman asked for her check she explained that all of her money was in cashier's checks issued by "Roundhouse Savings & Loan" in Orlando. But she said she would like to establish savings and checking accounts in Sanford.

"Mr. Salesman" glanced at his watch. It was about five minutes to four and the "Oceanic Bank" in Sanford would be closed before he could drive her downtown. So he called "Jim Oarland" and told him about his customer. Oarland said to bring her on down to the bank, rap on the door, and he would let them in. When they arrived the salesman introduced "Mrs. White" to "Mr. Oarland" and left them to conduct their business in privacy. About 45 minutes later she had established a savings account and a checking account.

Out of the checking account she purchased a $2,000 cashier's check payable to "Local Realty" as the earnest money deposit. The check payable to the real estate office to cover the earnest money deposit was issued by "Oceanic Bank." Remember this. It is one of the "keys" of this yarn.

Back at the real estate office, the firm had a home it managed in "Annevar Park" for a pair of couples who used it several times a year when they came to Florida for "golfing vacations." A quick long distance phone call revealed "Mrs. White" could rent the house for a month while waiting to close on the purchase of her new home. It seemed everything had fallen into place.

But it so happened this particular Friday was the last day of the month. All the cashier's checks at "Oceanic" were included in a package the bank's courier service picked up that night and delivered to Orlando.

Over the weekend the cashier's checks were sorted and those belonging to "Roundhouse Savings & Loan" were packaged and delivered the following Monday morning to a "Mr. Goodheart." He took the package to one of the information clerks in the lobby. He told her to reconcile the cashier's checks with the carbon copies on file.

About an hour later the clerk summoned "Mr. Goodheart" and advised him there were about seven cashier's checks in the package for which there were no carbon copies or records about of any kind. To say that shook up "Mr. Goodheart" was mild. He really got concerned when he found out the total amount of those cashier's checks amounted to roughly $100,000 and had been made payable to "Ms. White."

"Goodheart" immediately called "Oarland" at "Oceanic Bank" in Sanford. "Oarland" immediately contacted "Local Realty."

It seems "Mrs. White" had applied for a job at "Roundhouse Federal" and was hired and put to work the same day. She worked two weeks. On Friday of the second week she was ready to go to lunch when she approached "Goodheart." She said she just had word that her mother in Mobile, Ala. had been diagnosed with advanced cancer. "Mrs. White" said she liked working for "Roundhouse" but she would have to resign and head for Mobile right away. "Goodheart" gave her the paycheck she had accumulated. "Mrs. White" headed north — but only to Sanford.

It was only minutes before a covey of FBI agents converged on Sanford. Some went to "Oceanic Bank." Some came to "Local Realty." Some went to "Annevar Park." Nobody was at home at the rental house but the kitchen and dining area were a mess and their luggage was there. It was obvious two adults

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Disaster insurance cap sought

By The Associated Press

MIAMI — State insurance regulators plan to unveil a state-run catastrophe fund that would cap insurance losses in a disaster as a way of encouraging insurers to keep writing policies in Florida.

Insurers big and small have cut back their business in Florida since Hurricane Andrew cost them $15.5 billion, and regulators believe a disaster fund is needed to restore the insurance supply.

State Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher is expected to announce details of the plan at a news conference Monday in Tallahassee. The Miami Herald reported Saturday.

The Legislature created a state insurance pool offering coverage to anyone who couldn't find an affordable private policy, but insurers are still announcing cutbacks.

A national disaster insurance cap was backed by many industry leaders after the 1989 California earthquake caused heavy losses and has gained even wider support since the hurricane produced the world's costliest natural disaster.

Lawmakers briefly discussed creating a disaster fund in the spring legislative session, but no insurance legislation passed.

State Rep. John Cosgrove, chairman of the House Insurance Committee, said Friday he had heard rumors about Gallagher's plan but has reservations about the idea.

As envisioned during the regular session, the fund would collect a portion of insurance premiums and hold them in a tax-free account. After a disaster, the fund would pay a portion of the catastrophe claims, essentially capping the insurance industry's maximum loss.

Under that scenario, Gallagher believes insurers would be more willing to write coverage in Florida because they would be able to calculate their maximum exposure.

Allstate, which plans to drop nearly one of four property policies due to its hurricane losses, says a state catastrophe fund would encourage it to do more business in Florida.

Gallagher may be facing an uphill battle if he wants the issue to be addressed this year. Gov. Lawton Chiles plans to call a special session this summer but wants it to focus only on prison construction.

Jurors again urge death in Evinrude girl's murder

By The Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG — Just as another panel did 11 years ago, jurors voted to send a convicted killer to the electric chair for his part in the murder of the teenage member of the Evinrude boat motor family.

Jurors voted 10-2 Friday for the death penalty for Alfonso Cave in the 1982 slaying of Frances Slater.

If Circuit Judge Thomas Walsh agrees with the recommendation at sentencing in Stuart next month, it will spark another round of automatic appeals that prosecutors said could last 10 years.

"This is an atrocious example of our justice system that it has taken 10 years to reach the same place and start the process all over again," Assistant State Attorney Richard Barlow said Friday.

Cave, 34, won the new sentencing hearing after a federal judge ruled his first lawyer didn't try hard enough to save the unemployed Fort Pierce fruit picker's life.

The murder attracted national attention because of Miss Slater's famous grandparents — famed outboard motor manufacturer Ralph Evinrude and entertainer Frances Langford, a singer who appeared in more than 10 movies.

Humane Society helped

Steve Underwood, general manager of Dorso's International Restaurant in Lake Mary, left, presents a $3,135.55 check to Norma Spivey, director of the Seminole County Humane Society shelter and Neil Stokes, a member of the Board of Directors for the shelter. The check was presented at a dinner hosted for several of the hard working members. Money raised was collected from an all day spaghetti feast held recently.

The murder attracted national attention because of Miss Slater's famous grandparents — famed outboard motor manufacturer Ralph Evinrude and entertainer Frances Langford, a singer who appeared in more than 10 movies.

Miss Slater, 18, was working the night shift at a store in Stuart when she was robbed of $134 and abducted by four men who forced her into the back seat of their car and drove about 13 miles.

She was stabbed in the abdomen and shot in the back of the head April 27, 1982. Authorities traced the car and arrested the men within a week.

Publicly forced their trials to be moved from the area. The four confessed to the robbery, but no one admitted firing the fatal shot.

Cave, John Earl Bush and J.B. Parker were all sentenced to death. Terry Wayne Johnson, who said he was asleep in the car during the holdup, was sentenced to life in prison with no chance of parole before 2008. Bush and Parker have lost all their appeals and remain on Death Row.

Defense conversion: Ammo crates to electric gates

By BILL BERGSTRON
AP Business Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Federal spending isn't the answer to shrinking defense dollars, said a Tallahassee entrepreneur manufacturing electric gate openers in a former defense plant.

The government is preparing to pour millions into defense companies to help them convert to civilian work. Gov. Lawton Chiles has named a panel to make sure Florida, which could lose more than 35,000 defense jobs, gets its share.

But ideas are needed more than money, said Lester Tabb, founder and president of GTO Inc.

Tabb cited GTO's Mighty Mule, an under-$500, install-it-yourself gate opener that has converted one dying defense plant to a growing company.

"The government couldn't come up with that gate opener," he said. GTO employs 60 people in a plant that until five years ago made metal canisters and loaders for 30mm ammunition used by fighter planes.

Howden Colony Co. had employed up to 200 people in the plant, but as military contracts dried up, it laid off workers and declared bankruptcy.

Tabb had thought of the gate opener in 1984 when he couldn't find an affordable one for a driveway gate in the picket fence at his home. He and his family were tired of stopping their cars in the street and the sloping drive to get out and open the gate and then close it behind them.

Gate openers on the market cost at least $2,000, had to be mounted on a concrete pad and required an electrician to install them, Tabb said.

At a Chicago home show where he went to market a ceiling-fan mount, he found a $400 gate opener. But he said that opener also had to be wired into an electric supply and had overheating problems.

Tabb started designing his own. About a dozen local investors, including certified public accountants, attorneys, businessmen and doctors, put up money to start GTO. That was an abbreviation of Tabb's first idea for a name, Gateway To Opportunity, which he rejected as sounding like a pyramid scam.

Looking for someone to build a prototype, Tabb talked to a friend, Howden Colony owner Wayne Colony, who recommended the head of his metal fabrication department, Wayne Payne.

Payne built Tabb a prototype gate opener about the time the ammunition container company was going out of business.

Tabb markets the gate opener under the Mighty Mule brand to Lowes, Scotty's and Home Depot stores and sells it as the EZ Gate at Sams Warehouse.

POLICE BRIEFS

Sunshine Liquors robbed

Jessie James Wheeler, 41, 1811 W. 15th St., Sanford, was charged with armed robbery with a firearm, aggravated assault, the use of a firearm in the commission of a felony and aggravated battery by Sanford Police on Thursday.

Police said he robbed the two employees of the Sunshine Liquor Store as they were locking up and leaving the business.

One of the employees was shot in the leg with an unidentified gun by Wheeler, police said. He requested that they hand over their money, police added.

They said Wheeler made both victims remove their pants before he left.

He made off with $350, police said, but was caught a short time later.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held without bond.

Grand theft charged

Jessie Joseph Lee, 26, 104 Three Oaks Lane, Sanford, was charged with grand theft by Seminole County sheriff's deputies on Thursday.

Deputies said that the victim reported that three checks had been stolen from her purse on April 26.

Lee, her grandson, was arrested and admitted to taking the checks. He was serving time at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility on forgery charges.

Two of the checks, totalling $788 had already cleared the bank, deputies said.

Lee was held on the present charges on $1,000 bond.

Cop's manslaughter retrial set

BY IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

ORLANDO — The manslaughter retrial of a suspended police officer gets under way in Orlando Monday, four years after the killing of two black motorcyclists triggered three nights of racial violence in Miami.

William Lozano, 33, was convicted of the manslaughter charges in 1989, but an appeals court ordered a new trial. It said the Miami jury may have feared that an acquittal would produce more rioting.

Since then, the retrial had been a hot potato, bouncing back and forth among Miami, Tallahassee and Orlando on the crucial issue of jury selection. Hanging up the proceedings was the right mix of black and Hispanic jurors.

After a series of rulings which moved the retrial from Miami to Orlando and then to Tallahassee, Circuit Judge W. Thomas Spencer was preparing to choose a jury in that North Florida city in March.

But in a surprising development, prosecutor John Hogan agreed with defense attorney Roy Black that Lozano's race should be the deciding factor in jury makeup. An appeals court agreed and returned the trial to Orlando, which has a larger Hispanic population than Tallahassee.

A jury pool of 1,500 people has been summoned, three times the usual number. Deputy Court Administrator Karen Levey said about half would remain in the pool after the usual excuses are granted.

A six-member panel, plus several alternates, will hear the case, which is expected to take several weeks.

Lozano fatally shot motorcyclist Clement Lloyd, 23, in Miami's predominantly black Overtown district on Jan. 10, 1989. Motorcycle passenger Allan Blanchard, 24, died of injuries in the crash.

Judge Spencer refused this past week to lift a ban on cameras in the courtroom during the jury selection process, saying he wanted to avoid "harassment" of the Lozano jurors. He has also ruled that reporters cannot identify jury members by name until six months after the trial.

Jurors will be sequestered for the length of the trial.

Increased courtroom security will be in place, and police agencies have formed a task force to coordinate activities and prepare for any possible violence.

City officials do not expect any problems, but they don't want to be caught unprepared.

"I said a long time ago that I needed the Lozano trial here like I needed another car wreck on Interstate 4," said Police Chief Tom Hurlburt. "But if I was picking a community in which to have a trial, I would pick Orlando."

"I feel comfortable that we don't have any racial tensions brewing under the surface, and we don't expect any problems along those lines. I've spoken to the leaders in the black community, government, churches, business, Hispanics, and they feel about the same way."

Orlando Mayor Glenda Hood agreed with that assessment.

"It's not a top-of-the-mind topic among the people of Orlando," she said. "People accept the fact that it's going to be here, but they view it as a local issue for Miami."

"There's no real concern. Even though we would have preferred not to have the trial here, we are willing to accept our responsibility as good citizens."

Uncertainty over the retrial site reflected concern not only over the 1989 violence but over a 1980 riot in Miami that claimed 18 lives. That was triggered by an all-white Tampa jury's acquittal of five officers in the fatal beating of a black motorcyclist. The 1989 unrest was Miami's fourth riot in a decade.

Also affecting Judge Spencer's rulings were the Rodney King trials in Los Angeles, the first of which resulted in deadly, widespread rioting.

No other Florida county has as sizable a Hispanic population as Miami. But the Colombian-born Lozano and his lawyer were happy with the selection of Orlando.

Hispanics make up 2 percent of the population in the Tallahassee area, compared with almost 10 percent in Orlando's Orange County.

Jury pools, which are chosen from voter registration lists, are about 20 percent black in Miami and Tallahassee, compared to 10 percent in Orlando. The Orange County black population is estimated at 15 percent.

W.D. Judge, a Baptist minister who has been at the leadership forefront of the Orlando black community for 25 years, said, "We know of no better place where justice will be served. We have no apprehensions."

Honor life's real heroes today: Moms

Today marks the 88th observance of Mother's Day. It's a time for a special showing of appreciation, honor and love.

We hope children, regardless of their age, will make a special effort today to give thanks to the person who gave them life. Some mothers may be honored by a family gathering, others by sending a card or gift, and some with a visit to the cemetery.

The observance originated in 1907 when Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia asked her church to hold a special observance for her mother. Within a short time, the movement expanded to other churches, more states, and eventually became a national observance.

Father's Day did not begin until 1910. It also required a number of years before it became a national event.

History reports Anna Jarvis did not ignore her mother. She gave her mother thanks in many ways. Her reason for asking the church to become involved however, was reportedly to focus on the need for everyone to give their own mothers some special recognition.

Since that time, various groups have attempted to start similar movements such as In-Laws' Day and Grandparents' Day. Few people are aware of these events except through promotional efforts.

Mother's Day however, on the second Sunday in May, is the one best remembered, although occasionally overlooked in this busy world.

Visit mother today, or at least communicate with her in one form or another.

You may have said thank you in the past, but it bears repeating, not only one day a year, but every day.

Commissioner speaks

A recent editorial asked the question whether the Seminole County Commission was bucking off its commitment to rid our county of abandoned, dilapidated housing. Speaking personally, the answer is an absolute, categorical "No."

We have given property owners a couple of extra weeks once a property has been condemned to fix it or clear it. The additional time was recommended by our Legal Department to make sure our time frame was reasonable. I do support that change.

Make no mistake, however, that I haven't any sympathy for most of these property owners. Many simply do not care about the condition of their property and the effect that these dumps have on a neighborhood. Some of these buildings have been in disrepair for years. My sympathies are with the unfortunate people who have to live near these hazardous eyesores. That is why I have strongly supported this program from its inception and will continue to do so.

I agree with your editorial position that the clearance program has been very successful. Nothing can have a faster and greater impact on property values in a neighborhood than eliminating abandoned, falling-apart houses. I will be working to make sure that the recent vacancy in our inspector position is filled as quickly as possible.

With property rights come property responsibilities. All we ask is that property owners respect the property rights of their neighbors. But if you plan to ignore your property responsibilities in Seminole County, then you can also expect to lose some of your property rights as well.

Church to discuss unity, sexuality

In less than one month the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church USA will be convening in Orlando. The Rev. Harvey Oster, the administrator in charge of local arrangements will be in consonance with Dr. Roger Richardson, executive presbyter and other staff members of the Central Florida Presbytery, will welcome the commissioners and their families.

Issues before the 205th General Assembly are some of the same issues confronting many mainline denominations. Two of the issues that will be presented are Christian unity and human sexuality.

During the past 33 years representatives of the following denominations have been meeting to formulate plans for the Church of Christ uniting: African Methodist Episcopal Church, African Methodist Episcopal Church, Zion Church, Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), Christian Methodist Episcopal Church, Episcopal Church, International Council of Community Churches, Presbyterian Church (USA), United Church of Christ and United Methodist Church. Advisory participating churches are: Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, Reformed Church in America and the Roman Catholic Church.

The 17th plenary meeting of the consultation on church union approved the document "Churches in Covenantal Communion: The Church of Christ Uniting." This was published Dec. 9, 1988.

SEMINOLE OPINION

LURLENE SWEETING

Covenanting by churches would commit themselves "before God and each other, to live henceforth in one covenantal communion even though they continue to exist as distinct ecclesiastical systems."

The human sexuality issue has been debated by general assemblies since 1978 and 1979. The general assemblies of the Presbyterian churches of the north and south officially barred the ordination of unrepentant self-affirming practicing homosexual persons. The reunited Presbyterian Church USA reaffirmed the 1978 and 1979 pronouncements.

The ministers are not the only ones that are not ordained. Deacons and elders are also included. The ordination of unrepentant homosexuals would be inconsistent with the Book of Order. "If admission of homosexuality is coupled with defiance, with an expressed determination to persist in that conduct," the manner of life section of the Book of Order is compromised.

Karen McDonald Johnson, associate pastor, College Hill Church, Dayton, Ohio wrote an article questioning the policy of Presbyterian Church USA.

Marion L. Soards, professor of New Testament, Louisville Seminary, wrote about "The Biblical understanding of Homosexuality." Professor Soards examines carefully Paul's messages in Romans.

One of the high points of the General Assembly will be the election of a new moderator on Thursday, June 3. The moderator serves as chairman of the General Assembly. The moderator's tenure is one year and is a volunteer position. Any elder or minister who is a commissioner to the general assembly, may be elected.

There will be a reception for the new moderator and his family immediately following Sunday evening's ecumenical worship service.

The General Assembly will hold its concluding session Wednesday June 8, with an 11 a.m. worship and communion service.

Wichita, Kan. is the designated site for next year's General Assembly. In order to economize, the General Assembly will be limited to six days in 1994.

'90s moms and Mother's Day

BOSTON — The marketing geniuses were sitting around their huge oval table. They were taking a meeting, of course, but not just any meeting. This was the Mother's Day Meeting. Mega-dollars were at stake on the 36th floor.

Spread out in front of these moguls were images of Motherhood that had inspired their predecessors to scale the heights of marketing success. They were of mothers and children, reproduced from famous museum walls. Mothers glowing with postpartum calm and children sleeping peacefully in their arms.

These classical models made the marketing geniuses feel nostalgic for sales-years past. Such motherliness had helped them sell a million bottles of perfume. Helped sell enough long-stemmed red roses to fill this entire skyscraper.

One year, the butterfat content of the whole nation had risen because of a single candy ad these folk had created. Another year, they had launched ten thousand white silk nightgowns off the racks and into the closets of nursing mothers. Mothers who were too sensible to wear them and too kind to return them.

The second Sunday in May had always provided what you might call the mother's milk of their industry. But somehow or other the old reliable soft images weren't working. The evocative portraits evoked...silence. A vacuum of ideas.

Finally, one woman slipped into the meeting some 35 minutes late. She had just left her daughter at day care and her son at school, and stopped to fix the run in her pantyhose with nail polish. Now, grimacing at the pictures of mother and child posing together like a classical vase with flowers, she said in an unmistakable voice, "Motherhood is no longer a still life!"

If they wanted proper inspiration for marketing motherhood in the '90s, she suggested, they should try a videotape of one young mother's life from home to work to market to housework, mothering along the way. Put the VCR on fast forward and label it "Hurry."

The chairman of the meeting threw up his hands. With all the exasperation of Sigmund Freud — only a Sigmund Freud with shareholders to please — he asked the assembled brainstormers the ultimate question: "Well, what do mothers want?"

As if on cue, the four mothers scattered around the table gave the same response. This is what they wanted for Mother's Day: Time.

None of them had enough of it. All of them wanted more of it.

No, not a watch. Not an alarm clock. They were already keeping time down to the last waterproof, shatter resistant, quartz movement split second, thank you very much.

And no, dear gawd, not another technological device to "save" time. They didn't need anything that would help them do what they had never done before, only do it faster. Hold the bread-making machine and the home budget software.

What they were talking about was generic time — time to have and time to spend and time to share and, rarest of all, time to savor. Even to savor their children.

The moms among the marketing moguls began to warm to their concept. A gift-box of an extra hour would be nice. So would a day off, placed carefully, of course, at the edge of the bed tray, next to the burnt pancakes and the hand-made card.

How about a coupon for the second shift at home? A gift certificate for the car pool or the laundry? Time for sleep or for that relic from pre-motherhood — solitude?

The beauty of time is that nobody ever returns it, said one marketing mom. The beauty is that time comes in one size that truly fits all and nobody cares if they get the same present again and again, said a second. It's multipurpose, said a third.

Suddenly, in the midst of this brainstorming, the chair interrupted. Looking across the expensive rosewood table, out of the 36th story window, he said darkly, "There is a problem. There is no profit."

He stormed out to the anteroom with his inner circle and re-emerged hours later. Now, he was glowing with the sort of pride in creativity that makes the work of marketing so rewarding. Yes, he told the group, he had found what every mother wanted.

Get the Home Shopping Network! Start the Infomercials! Line up the 800-number! The perfect gift for the '90s Mom? For only $14.95, THE MOTHER'S DAY HOME STRESS TEST!

The meeting ended in a rousing cheer. Back-slapping all around. Yet, at the curve of the oval table, one mother sat and watched the rip descend down to the ankle of her pantyhose. This is what she sighed: Time. Out.

Well, what do mothers want?

JACK ANDERSON

Leon Panetta: no more Mr. Nice Guy

WASHINGTON — Leon Panetta's immigrant parents advised him to avoid politics in favor of becoming a "doctor or dentist or something with a secure life."

Since speaking out publicly about his administration's floundering prospects on Capitol Hill, Panetta may be yearning for a more "secure life" — one safe from trips to the White House "woodshed." Panetta's recent outspokenness about the administration's legislative prospects has become front-page news.

In an interview with us three weeks ago, he said that Clinton must pare his agenda to a few key priorities, and then "fight like hell" for them.

As director of the Office of Management and Budget, Panetta's parachute into the executive branch has been the choppiest of any of Bill Clinton's Cabinet appointments, though not unpredictable. We found Panetta wrestling with his shift from Congress to the Cabinet, from free-agent to follower. Though he talked about the need for the president to effect the transition from candidate to president, Panetta was in the throes of his own tricky transition.

"There's no question that you view things differently," he told us. "(Capitol Hill is more than just a hill in geography. To some extent the hill gives you the opportunity to rise above. You don't have to get involved in the day-to-day implementing of issues. You can basically speak about issues, put out press releases on issues, pass a law here, pass an amendment there, and then really never have the responsibility to make the law happen. Down here it's a totally different ball game. What is produced up there joins the real world down here to some extent...."

In one telling anecdote reflecting his culture shock, Panetta describes how early in the administration a Cabinet colleague called to obtain his "clearance" of congressional testimony that would be delivered later that week. Panetta was aghast. Such prior review may be a traditional role for an OMB director, but it seemed unnatural for this former chairman of the House Budget Committee who spent so much time debunking testimony delivered by Republican OMB predecessors. The moral: Panetta knows he's now responsible for more than his own words and deeds.

"You have to carry basically the weight of whatever happens," he told us. "I can answer for my own actions. And I can answer for what I do on a day-to-day basis. But when you have to answer for what everybody else does in the administration, that's something else."

If Panetta's future in the administration rests on the personal relationship between himself and Clinton, the outlook is mixed. One senior White House official says that Clinton genuinely enjoys Panetta's company and sense of humor. Despite having bashed Clintonomics during last summer's campaign, Panetta seems to be a Clinton convert, lauding the president for the intellect and courage to take on the deficit.

With Ross Perot peering over the president's shoulder, the deficit has become Clinton's key leadership task, both economically and politically. That's why Panetta, whose mastery of the budget process is unmatched, will be tough to toss overboard.

It's equally clear Clinton had mixed feelings about Panetta, who wasn't expecting a job offer because of his aloofness from the actual campaign and his criticism of Clinton. Then came a call from Little Rock last December summoning him to a meeting.

Before it's over Panetta may wish he had heeded his parents' advice and enrolled in medical school.

Panetta's parachute into the executive branch has been the choppiest of any Cabinet appointments.

 and a child had occupied the place.
 The FBI learned "Mrs. White" over the weekend had purchased a brand new Buick from "Hill Hempbill Motors" on West SR 36, and paid for it with a check from "Mrs. White's" "Oceanic" checking account.
 Meanwhile the FBI staked out the rental home, "Mrs. White," her associate and the child, were nowhere to be found. Late the following day the FBI agents decided to check out the interior of the house. Lo and behold all the luggage, clothing and other items had completely disappeared — even with the FBI watching the place.
 "Goodheart" brought about the next event. He called "Local Realty" and said since it knew the money was stolen he felt the real estate office should return the $2,000 earnest money deposit. It sounded like a reasonable request until the realty firm's lawyer said it couldn't legally be done. Here's why: If a homeowner signs a contract to sell his house through a real estate broker and the buyer puts up an earnest money deposit, and the deal is to close within "X" number of days, the buyer, even if in jail but not yet tried, is still presumed innocent and could close the deal through the bars of a cell.

 On the other hand, if the deal is not closed within the time stipulated in the contract, the buyer forfeits the earnest money (as in this case). The $2,000 must be divided, according to the Florida Real Estate Commission, equally between the broker and the seller, each getting $1,000. Also, the broker has to divide his $1,000 with the salesman in his office who was handling the proposed sale.
 If that seems unfair, remember the "key" mentioned earlier? You see, the $2,000 cashier's check held in the broker's required trust account in this case was not issued by "Roundhouse Federal" but by "Oceanic Bank" of Sanford. And, that cashier's check was as good as gold. Even if the broker and the seller had decided to return the money to "Roundhouse" they would have had to pay federal income taxes on it.

 How did all this end? Almost as strange as it began. About six months after "Mrs. White" disappeared, one day she drove that Buick into the parking lot of the Pensacola Police Department. She went into the station and told them she was wanted by the FBI.
 You've heard it said truth is stranger than fiction? This story is true. I have an imagination, I'm told, but I don't think I could have ever dreamed up this yarn.
 But there's one question nobody's ever been able to figure out. How do you suppose "Mrs. White," her friend and that child ever got their belongings out of that house while the FBI had it under surveillance?

 reported. "The city has had a major increase in requests for reduced rate leases." In the past 12 months he determined there had been three requests for free use leases, and nine for reduced rate leases.
 During the workshop meeting of the commission Monday night, Simmons plans to recommend that the reduced rate fees be increased. "While the current charge for custodial overtime is in line with the city's cost, the current utility fee is not," he says. "Also, to offset the city's cost for maintenance and other major expenses it is recommended to charge a depreciation cost fee."
 He is also planning to recommend that the city revert back to a previous policy of not allowing a reduced rate for any function at which an alcoholic beverage lease is required.
 During the past year, Simmons has estimated the total operating costs for the civic center at $92,658. He is expecting an expenditure of over $26,000 in repairs and equipment purchases alone in the next 12 month period.
 The matter is scheduled on the agenda for Monday night's work session beginning at 5 p.m., in the city manager's conference room at Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue.
 Sanford is not alone in increasing demands for lower rates on facility rentals.
 This past Thursday, the Lake Mary City Commission also began discussions on fees for the leasing of city buildings. The discussion followed a request by the American Association of Retired Persons for a reduced rate at the Community Building. AARP members had been having free use of the old city hall, but have outgrown the facility.

 the tools to get their life on track, then we've done something for them."
 Since the first weekend in April, up to two dozen inmates of the center have joined with a dozen or so other folks, including Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith, in the effort to clean up and restore Page Jackson Cemetery. Last week, the volunteers were treated to barbecue lunches by Marion Matthews, said Sandra Gaines, cleanup organizer.
 The decades-old black burial ground has been victimized with numerous vandalism, some quite gruesome, for years. One person has been arrested so far.
 Kendricka, a resident of Sanford, said he read about the vandalism and learned about the effort to clean up the cemetery.

 "My whole family is here, my roots are here, and I saw an area where we could help," said Kendricka.
 Kendricka said he offered the assistance of trustees to the city. Most of the trustees sentenced to the "half-way house" are there on burglary convictions and non-violent drug-related charges, said Kendricka.
 Many of them earn furloughs from the center on weekends for good behavior, said Kendricka. But since the first cleanup last month, he said the trustees have become enthusiastic with the project. Several have volunteered to work Saturdays. Some participate before going to their Saturday afternoon jobs, he said.

 "When they went out there the first time, they saw the caskets busted open and bodies out in the open," said Kendricka. "They couldn't understand that, so they've been volunteering."
 Sandra Gaines, the organizer of the cleanup effort, said she was happy to get the help from Kendricka and the trustees.
 "Everybody has been so kind," said Gaines.
 Anyone wishing to join the effort is welcome. Volunteers meet at the cemetery each Saturday at 8 a.m. The cemetery is located on West 25th Street at the rear of the city cemeteries.

 cases, followed by black males at about 600 cases, then white females, 300, and black females, about 250.
 In the HRS data, a juvenile referred for several offenses on the same date, would be counted together as one case, by the most serious offense charged. If that juvenile is referred for one or more offenses on another date it is counted as another case.
 According to statistics from the Seminole County Clerk's office, 2,010 delinquency petitions were filed during 1992, compared to 1,781 in 1991; 1,194 in 1990 and 1,484 in 1989. Through March of 1993, 502 petitions had been filed.

 About 1,200 first-time offenders charged with misdemeanor offenses are diverted out of the juvenile court system through the PAY (Prosecution Alternatives for Youth) program, according to program manager Nancy DeLong. After any necessary restitution or damages are paid, the first time offenders must perform assigned tasks or duties, including community service hours, home chores, the counseling and classes. If they do not comply, they are referred back to the court, according to Seminole Circuit Judge Leonard Wood who presides in the juvenile court.

 PAY handled 1,234 cases from July 1991 until June 1992 and 1,051 from July 1990 to June 1991. Restitution paid in 1990-91 was $3,507 and increased to $6,808 in 1991-92.

 In an interview about juvenile delinquency last week, Judge Wood outlined some of the problems with the system and recalled some success stories about youth who were in trouble and turned their lives around.
 He said one boy who spent a considerable amount of time in the Juvenile Detention Center a few years ago, is currently attending the University of Central Florida on a full scholarship. Wood recalled two girls who refused to attend school who were placed in JDC. "But's back when we could put them there for that. Finally, they realized they had to go to school, and ended up on the honor roll."

 Another young man calls to check in with the judge. "There was a time when I never would have guessed he would get his life straightened out," Wood said, referring to the former drug user who received treatment and joined the Army. He is working with a youth group in Maine today.

 "It is very sad and hard to cope with the situations that do not turn out to be successful, which is the majority of the situations," Wood commented. "But many of those persons could be helped if we had a better system and programs available. In the long run, the legislature's failure to address these problems is costing the taxpayers so much more money over the future lives of those persons."

 community," he added.
 The health fair and community gathering began with a one mile walk through the Goldsboro neighborhood ending at Crooms. Dr. Roger Campbell explained the programs to benefit the health and well being of the community residents.
 A clinic at Crooms will be open to the public to serve Goldsboro residents offering health services, social services and educational services.
 Rev. Quinton Fatson, of the Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance, said he is looking forward to the opening of the health facility which will benefit the community.

 "I support the idea 100 percent," Fatson said. "We are making an effort to better our community." The program goes along with a challenge by Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith to make community changes for the better. He said the central location of the clinic will benefit residents who have little or no transportation to receive medical treatment outside the community. In addition, the counseling programs including drug services, will raise community awareness to combat drug problems.

Researchers use fireflies to find TB drugs

WASHINGTON — Researchers have borrowed the light of fireflies to create a rapid test that may make a life-or-death difference for patients with drug-resistant tuberculosis.

In a study in the Journal of Science, the scientists reported that they transferred the gene that makes fireflies glow into a virus, and the virus, in turn, was used to infect specimens of tuberculosis bacteria.

Within two hours, healthy TB germs in laboratory dishes were glowing while dead or sickly TB bacteria were dim or dark, said Dr. William R. Jacobs, a scientist at the Howard Hughes Medical Institute at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York.

Jacobs said the technique offers the promise of rapidly testing antibiotics against unknown strains of TB bacteria and allowing doctors to determine within a few days which would be the best drug to treat a patient's infection.

"Lives are being lost now because it takes so long to test drugs against drug-resistant TB," said Dr. Anne O'Donnell, a pulmonary and critical care physician at Georgetown University Hospital.

She said patients have been known to get sicker and sicker and final succumb before tests can be completed to determine the best drug to use against their disease. O'Donnell said a quick test would not only save lives of patients, but also protect health care workers from the infection.

Lymphocytes not sole marker of AIDS

PHILADELPHIA — Two new studies cast doubt on the common practice of evaluating AIDS treatment and the progression of the disease by measuring white blood cells.

Researchers said the results reported in the Annals of Internal Medicine could lead to drugs better designed to bolster the body's immune system before it is overwhelmed by the AIDS virus.

The first study, involving 1,075 patients at more than 30 hospitals nationwide, examined the effect of the widely used drug AZT on the immune systems of people who have the virus but no symptoms of the disease.

The second report, a study of Dutch gay men, proposes that the strain of HIV infecting a patient might determine the rate of the progression from infection to full-blown AIDS.

Taken together, the studies suggest evaluations should include more than one gauge, called "markers," just as AIDS infection is affected by more than just the virus, said Dr. Daniel Hoth, one of the directors of the government's AIDS research program.

Patients not told of radiation overdoses

WASHINGTON — Patients subjected to radiation overdoses as part of medical treatment often are never told of the error, contrary to federal requirements, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission said.

An NRC review of overdose cases covering the last three years found that in 28 percent of the cases, patients were never informed they had been subjected to improper amounts of radiation, the agency said.

"Furthermore, of the patients notified only 56 percent were given a written report, contrary to explicit and long-standing NRC requirements," NRC Chairman Ivan Selin told the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee.

The Senate hearing was prompted by newspaper reports, including a series of stories last December by the Cleveland Plain Dealer, that outlined the widespread misuse of radiation therapy, including some cases involving serious injury or death.

Implant cuts epilepsy seizure frequency

NEW YORK — Epilepsy patients showed a reduction in seizures after they were implanted with a device that periodically stimulated a nerve in the neck, a new study says.

The patients, who used the implant along with their usual medication to forestall seizures, reported reductions averaging 47 percent in frequency of seizures 18 months after the surgery, researchers said.

Results suggest that the nerve stimulator may be a useful addition to medication when drugs alone fail to prevent seizures, said Dr. Basim Uthman of the Department of Veterans Affairs Medical Center and the University of Florida Brain Institute in Gainesville.

He and Dr. Elinor Ben-Menachem of the University of Göteborg in Sweden presented the results recently in New York at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Neurology. Uthman stressed that the device is still experimental in the United States.

Dr. Ilo Leppik, a researcher at MINECEP Epilepsy Care in Minneapolis who was familiar with the study, estimated that perhaps 15 percent of people with epilepsy might be candidates for the device. Those are patients who desire better control of their seizures than drugs can provide and who cannot have brain surgery for a treatment, he said.

National Hospital Week observed

SANFORD — HCA Central Florida Regional Hospital is celebrating National Hospital Week, May 9-15, with a week full of events designed to thank its employees for their "lifetime of caring," according to Susan Prather of the public relations department.

"Our employees are dedicated people who really care about their work," said Roy C. Vinson, CFRH chief executive officer. "We want to thank them during National Hospital Week for all of their efforts throughout the year with some special activities to show our appreciation."

The week's activities include:

• A free meal, either breakfast, lunch or dinner, for all employees on Monday.

• Tuesday brings a Health Fair for the employees, physicians and auxiliaries with blood pressure, blood glucose and cholesterol screenings plus other health information.

• On Wednesday, department managers and nurse managers will be waiters and waitresses for a special breakfast for the employees. Those on the second shift will enjoy a subsandwich party.

• Thursday is Popcorn Day with free popcorn for employees, physicians and auxiliaries. Plus, a Seminole County voters registration table will be set up for those who need to register to vote.

• Friday, employees are saluted with a Banana Split Ice Cream Social.

On the weekends before and after the weeklong celebration, employees, physicians and auxiliaries can take advantage of two portrait programs that offer free family or reduced price glamour portraits.

Central Florida Regional Hospital, a subsidiary of Hospital Corporation of America, serves Seminole and southwestern Volusia County with over 760 employees and 190 medical staff members. The hospital is accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations and ranks in the top 10 percent of all accredited healthcare facilities.

Resusci-Baby donated to Red Cross

The American Red Cross hopes to train at least one person in every household in Orange, Seminole and Osceola counties on what to do in an emergency. The training program was greatly enhanced when the National Automobile Dealers Charitable Foundation and the Central Florida Auto Dealers Association presented a Resusci-Baby training manikin to the organization.

In presenting the CPR manikin, which is essential for cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) training, William D. Brown, secretary/treasurer of the dealers association said, "If the right kind of treatment can be given to the victim of a respiratory or cardiac emergency within seconds after he or she is stricken, the chances are good that the life can be saved. CPR training teaches individuals how to help sustain a victim until professional help arrives."

Marie Sheba, Water Safety Coordinator, for the Central Florida Chapter of the American Red Cross said, "In Florida the largest killer of small children is water. More children under the age of 4, die by drowning than die in motor vehicle crashes, and many more suffer permanent disability. The backyard swimming pool is most often the culprit."

In all cases of drowning or near drowning, early intervention by a parent or another trained rescuer is the key to a child returning to a normal life. Permanent brain damage can occur after only minutes without oxygen," Ms. Sheba, said that as more and more Americans have seen the need for training in CPR, there has been an increase in the number of long-term survivors.

There have been many cases when parents or care-givers trained in CPR have been able to assist a young victim of submersion injury who might have died otherwise. Often times, this victim is able to return to normal activities. Training in CPR normally takes between four and eight hours.

In accepting the CPR manikin, Ms. Sheba, said the American Red Cross has set a goal to train at least 7,000 persons in the next year.

The Resusci-Baby manikin will assist course participants in learning rescue breathing and obstructed airway techniques as well as cardiopulmonary resuscitation skills for infants. Proper training will help participants learn how to respond quickly and correctly in emergency situations.

Effectiveness of children's cold remedies unproven

By BRENDA C. COLEMAN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO — Preschoolers get virtually no relief from over-the-counter cold remedies, according to a review of 40 years' worth of studies.

The authors of the review, published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, looked at every study they could find in medical literature from 1950 to 1991 involving nonprescription cold remedies.

After eliminating studies that failed to use rigorous scientific methods, the authors were left with 27 they considered worth analyzing.

Only two involved preschool children, but both were very well designed and both "demonstrated no symptom relief, whereas two done on older children (through age 11) showed some benefit," the authors reported.

Adults fared best, with adult-strength remedies providing varying relief from runny noses, congestion and coughs.

Dr. Michael B.H. Smith, director of ambulatory care at Iszaak Walton Killam Children's Hospital in Halifax, Canada, wrote the review with Dr. William Feldman, head of pediatrics at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

The preschool studies examined the effectiveness of antihistamines and a decongestant.

The Nonprescription Drug Manufacturers Association, which represents 75 U.S. companies, criticized the analysis for omitting unpublished evidence.

"The study is incomplete, misleading, and inherently flawed," the group said in a statement.

Dr. Ruby Roy, a clinical instructor in pediatrics at Loyola University Medical Center, said the analysis was well done.

"Parents and maybe physicians alike tend to give medicines to think they're doing something, and I think with colds, which will go away by themselves, refraining is better," she said.

AIDS vaccine to be tested on infected pregnant women

By PAUL NEGER
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON — Pregnant women infected with HIV will be enrolled in a trial to test the safety of experimental AIDS vaccines and to see if newborns can be protected from the fatal disease.

Health and Human Services Secretary Donna E. Shalala announced plans for the vaccine trials on Wednesday.

She said the vaccines will be tested for their therapeutic value for the pregnant women and to find out if any anti-HIV action is passed on the babies the women are carrying.

Two vaccine trials will be conducted at eight different university research hospitals.

About 75 percent of babies born to women infected with HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, never develop the disease. It's unknown why some babies get HIV and others do not. It's believed HIV is transmitted to the infants late in pregnancy or during the birth process.

Babies will be examined at birth, at six weeks and then every three months thereafter.

Rate of fetal alcohol syndrome triples

By JOAN KIRCHNER
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA — The rate of babies reported born with health problems because their mothers drank alcohol during pregnancy increased threefold from 1979 through 1992, federal health officials said.

And the increase in fetal alcohol syndrome may be even higher because the disease is difficult to diagnose in newborns, officials at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said.

"It's likely that this rate that we're reporting is an underestimate, that the problem is of greater magnitude," said Dr. David Erickson, chief of the CDC's Birth Defects and Genetic Diseases branch.

But he added that he believes better reporting of the syndrome by doctors is primarily responsible for the increased numbers.

The rate of reported fetal alcohol syndrome cases jumped from one per 10,000 births in 1979 to 3.7 per 10,000 births in 1992, according to the CDC.

A total of 1,782 cases of fetal alcohol syndrome were reported among the 9.05 million births over the 14-year period, for an average rate of just under two cases per 10,000 births.

The symptoms of fetal alcohol syndrome include mental retardation, abnormal facial features, central nervous system problems, behavioral problems and growth deficiencies.

Newborns get the disease when their mothers drink alcohol during pregnancy, but health officials do not know how much alcohol harms the newborn, Erickson said.

Many doctors advocate no drinking during pregnancy, and there is evidence that even small levels of alcohol consumption can harm the developing child, he said.

Some babies, he said, "don't have full-blown fetal alcohol syndrome, but they may have other problems of a less pronounced nature."

Erickson attributed the increase in the rate of fetal alcohol syndrome mainly to better reporting of the disease by doctors. Increased drinking among pregnant women also may play a role, but Erickson said the CDC cannot be sure because investigators do not interview mothers of babies suspected of having the syndrome.

"Eliciting a valid history of alcohol consumption is difficult. It's not something that people like to talk about," he said.

Fetal alcohol syndrome was first described in the mid-1970s, and health officials have monitored it through hospital discharge records. Since then, aggressive education campaigns have increased awareness of the problem.

Clinton briefed by Christopher

WASHINGTON — President Clinton is promising that allied air strikes against Bosnian Serb targets would have "a beginning, a middle and an end" should he decide to order them.

Clinton was being briefed today by Secretary of State Warren Christopher, who was reporting on his six days of meetings with reluctant European allies.

The president sounded optimistic Friday on overcoming European misgivings about using military force in the Balkans — even though Christopher did not receive warm endorsements for the U.S. plan for military force on his trip.

"There is still some disagreement around the edges about what the overall specific tactical steps should be, but I think that there is a lot more agreement than you think," Clinton said at a joint White House news conference with top officials of the European Community.

Mrs. Clinton explains reform

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — Hillary Rodham Clinton is trying to reassure tax-wary corporate chief executives that the administration's health care reform proposal will save them money in the long run.

Even small businesses, which would be forced to contribute to health care coverage for the first time, would save money because the medical portion of workers compensation and auto insurance eventually would be included in reform, she said Friday.

"We believe, based on everything we know, that for the vast majority of businesses health care reform will be a net winner. Their costs will stabilize and go down," she said after meeting for more than an hour with members of the elite Business Council.

"For many small businesses, the same will be true because we intend to move to incorporate workers compensation and auto insurance in health care coverage and comprehensive health care reform," she said.

Lobbyists blast plan

WASHINGTON — Killing the tax deduction for lobbying expenses is unlikely to provide enough money to pay for President Clinton's campaign finance reform proposal, say the lobbyists who would be victims of the plan.

The centerpiece of the White House plan — limited public financing for House and Senate campaigns — would be financed by ending the deductibility of lobbying expenses. The administration views that as a politically attractive way to sell public financing, of which Americans have been wary.

But putting a new tax on lobbying would drive some trade associations and small businesses out of the influence business and prompt other lobbyists to find ways to avoid the tax, industry spokesmen say.

"There will be ingenious things worked out. I have no doubt of that," said Richard Kimberly, president of the American League of Lobbyists. "That's the American way."

Blacks tell stories after melee

BOSTON — Black students from South Boston High School trickled into a clubhouse to tell their stories a day after a melee that brought back scenes of the 1970s, when violence wracked the campus as it was being integrated.

"The white kids think they rule the school, you know," Lester Joyner, a black 18-year-old freshman said Friday.

As many as 100 people brawled outside the school the day before when black students were pelted with rocks and bottles by whites as they boarded buses for home. Earlier in the day, black and white students had walked out of classes to protest what they said were rising racial tensions and lax school security.

With classes suspended Friday to let tempers cool, officials said they would add more security officers to the campus, use hand-held metal detectors to search students for weapons, ban bookbags that might conceal guns or knives, and institute locker searches. Police officers will be stationed outside when classes resume Monday.

New warrants issued

STATESVILLE, N.C. — New warrants were issued against five young men charged with gang-raping a mentally retarded woman with a broomstick and other objects.

The original warrants, which described the 19-year-old woman as mentally incapacitated, were dismissed following a three-hour hearing Thursday after District Judge Samuel Cathey ruled the case couldn't go to trial with the way the warrants were worded.

By law, mentally incapacitated means a victim was unable to resist because she had been drugged or injured, prosecutors said.

The revised warrants described the victim as mentally defective. Lt. David Henson of the Iredell County Sheriff's Department said Friday. That description includes retardation, he said.

The North Carolina case has striking similarities to a widely publicized trial in New Jersey. In that case, three former high school football teammates were sentenced last month to up to 15 years in youth detention for raping a mentally retarded teen-ager with a broom, baseball bat and stick.

Ex-postal worker arrested in shooting

By LARRY GERBER
Associated Press Writer

DANA POINT, Calif. — A fired postal worker suspected of killing his mother and a mail carrier was captured today by police who received a tip that he was having drinks at a sports bar.

Mark Richard Hilbun, who has a history of psychiatric problems, was arrested in Huntington Beach, about 20 miles northwest of Dana Point, where he had opened fire in a post office Thursday, police said.

"They didn't even approach this guy with their guns drawn," Frank McNaughton, general manager of the Centerfield bar, said of four uniformed police officers. "They asked him to step outside. He was real complacent. Didn't get agitated at all."

Hilbun allegedly stabbed his mother to death Thursday before fatally shooting a postal office employee and wounding three others.

Orange County sheriff's Lt. Bob Rivas said Hilbun was taken to a nearby motel after his arrest.

Police suspect Hilbun robbed and shot two people at an automated teller machine near Huntington Beach early today, Rivas said. They were not injured seriously, authorities said.

McNaughton said a patron of the bar recognized Hilbun, who was watching sports on television and having a drink.

"He said, 'The postal killer is here. ... The guy on the news. The postal killer's here. I know it's him. I know it's him,'" McNaughton said.

Authorities had been searching since Thursday for Hilbun, 38. The U.S. Postal Service had offered a $25,000 reward for him. Postal Inspector Dave Smith announced the reward offer late Friday and said authorities believed Hilbun might still be in the area.

Residents were forced to pick up mail at the heavily guarded post office Friday as worried postal officials kept carriers off the streets while police searched for him.

Mail clerk Sandy German said mail carriers returned to their routes today.

The attack Thursday occurred within hours of a shooting at a postal facility in Dearborn, Mich. In that incident, postal mechanic Larry Jason killed a co-worker and wounded two others before killing himself. Authorities said one of the wounded was a woman who got a clerk's job Jason had wanted.

Postmaster General Marvin Runyon, appalled at the violence, acknowledged Friday that employees are under stress and promised better working conditions.

"Our management style is too authoritarian — something most of us knew already," Runyon said in Dearborn on Friday.

"We're changing the culture of the organization," he said. "Culture change won't happen overnight, however. We have made progress and will continue to make progress."

Runyon canceled a Friday evening news conference in Dana Point, 50 miles southeast of Los Angeles, because of concerns for his safety and because he wanted to meet with victims' families.

A flag flew at half-staff outside the Dana Point post office Friday, where mail carrier Charles Barbugallo, 41, was killed and clerk Peter Gates, 44, was wounded the day before. Gates returned to work Friday.

The post office reopened with a dozen armed guards. About half the 65 employees scheduled to work stayed home because of stress and grief. Staff from other post offices replaced them.

Hilbun worked at the Dana Point post office as a mail carrier until last year when he was fired for stalking a female co-worker, identified in court papers as 29-year-old Kim Springer. She was under police guard Friday.

Just last week, Hilbun sent Ms. Springer a note saying: "I love you. I'm going to kill us both and take us to hell," said Ms. Springer's boyfriend, 30-year-old Steve Eberhardt.

On Tuesday, Ms. Springer met Hilbun face to face outside her apartment, and he chased her as she sprinted for her door.

"We heard her screaming my wife's name as she ran toward the building and then we heard her door slam," neighbor Asa Hackney said.

Hilbun was diagnosed manic depressive following a drunken driving arrest last summer, said his lawyer, Donald Glenn Rubright. He was being treated with lithium and trying to get his job back, Rubright said.

"It's a classic case of where the system fired him but it didn't solve the problem," U.S. Chief Postal Inspector Ken Hunter said.

Police said the killing spree started early Thursday when Hilbun allegedly killed his 63-year-old mother and her dog at her home.

Business execs plea to Clinton: No new taxes

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — Top business leaders are offering this advice to the nation's CEO, President Clinton: Focus on major projects rather than scattering your energies over too broad an agenda — and lay off the taxes.

Members of the elite, and largely Republican, Business Council were uniformly critical of Clinton's approach to reducing the $300 billion federal budget deficit as too dependent on higher taxes. They also worried that his health care reform package, expected next month, would pile on more taxes.

"The only thing that seems relatively sure right now is a suffocating dose of taxes at a time when the economy is struggling. ... I just wonder whether we can absorb this kind of punishment," said John F. McGillicuddy, chairman of Chemical Banking Corp.

The council's semiannual meeting at this restored colonial village and resort drew 123 active and retired chief executives. They finished their meeting Saturday with a closed session featuring Attorney General Janet Reno.

Afterward, Reno said she told the executives she'd like to use a carrot-and-stick approach to encourage drug users to enter treatment and thus avoid prison. That would open up more prison cells for violent criminals and major drug traffickers, she said.

"It's very frustrating to me to see people getting out after 20 to 30 percent of their sentences because we do not have the prison cells for them. We need to review the federal minimum mandatory sentences to make sure the dangerous offenders are put away and kept away," she said.

On Friday, first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton spoke about the administration's health care proposal. Executives said they admitted her grasp of the issue but many remained skeptical about what the administration ultimately would propose.

Louis W. Cabot, retired chairman of Cabot Corp. and chairman of the Brookings Institution, said he voted for Clinton but now is disturbed at the direction the administration is taking on health care.

"They seem to be headed more in the direction of having the government take over the whole thing through massive regulation that's going to lead to growing bureaucracy. I don't think that's going to solve the problem," he said.

John J. Murphy, chairman, Dresser Industries Inc., predicted Congress never would be able to agree on a health care package anyway.

The two-day meeting was the council's first since Clinton's election, and the executives weren't any happier with the Democratic president than they expected to be at the last meeting in October.

Son arrested in ax murder of dad

LILBURN, Ga. — Police said a Gwinnett County man under pressure from his parents about college battered down a bathroom door and killed his father with an ax Friday, then attacked his mother in a nearby bedroom.

Charles Ross Mize Sr., 43, football coach at Parkview High School in northeast metro Atlanta, was found dead of multiple wounds in an upstairs bathroom of his home when police arrived at 5:45 a.m.

His wife, Judy Mize, 44, was in fair condition at Gwinnett Medical Center after surgery for ax and knife wounds.

Their son, Charles Ross Mize Jr., 24, was being held at the Gwinnett County jail, charged with murder and aggravated assault.

ALABAMA

Ousted governor conducts final tour

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Guy Hunt conducted a final, bittersweet tour of the Alabama Governor's Mansion Friday, cutting roses and petting his dog before heading home to the farm.

Hunt, granted a reprieve from prison but stripped of the governor's office for his ethics conviction, met a small band of reporters and photographers at the mansion gate just hours after his sentencing hearing.

In the back, a rental truck was pulled up to a door. Cases of soft drinks and an exercise bicycle awaited a trip up the loading ramp.

Hunt, who had shed his business suit in favor of blue jeans and a short-sleeved shirt, pointed out boxes in the moving truck. Inside were the final remnants of Hunt's more than six years in office.

LOUISIANA

Committee votes to repeal law

BATON ROUGE, La. — A House committee Friday voted to repeal Louisiana's "right to work" law, which outlaws collective bargaining contracts that force workers to join unions whether they want to or not.

The House Committee on Labor and Industrial Relations voted 7-2 for the repeal measure, which was sponsored by committee chairman Charles Anding, D-West Monroe. It goes next to the full House, where members have been reluctant to tamper with the right to work law since it was passed in a tumultuous 1976 legislative session.

Business leaders have long argued that right to work laws make states more attractive to new or expanding industries.

Organized labor has long argued that right to work laws are simply designed to weaken unions. They say the issue is one of fairness and that under law, non-union members enjoy the benefits negotiated by unions.

MISSISSIPPI

Cuts may save less than touted

JACKSON, Miss. — Mississippi Gov. Kirk Fordice said Friday that complaints about the dollar savings from his eliminating 581 state government positions is a reversal by critics who had first dubbed his action unconstitutional.

Fordice issued a statement one day after House Speaker Tim Ford said the $10 million in savings the governor had touted by trimming the 581 jobs actually would only save $78.262 in state funding.

Fordice said a 1992 law that raised the sales tax also require agencies to reduce staff by 2 percent a year for five years.

"First, the speaker said that what I had done was unconstitutional — now he says I didn't cut enough," Fordice said Friday in his statement.

SOUTH CAROLINA

University wants to hire convicted doctor

COLUMBIA, S.C. — A Columbia doctor who pleaded guilty in 1991 to involvement in an illegal prescription drug ring could be hired at the University of South Carolina's School of Medicine.

It will depend on whether the State Board of Medical Examiners agrees to adjust the restricted license of Dr. Robert Mallin so he can teach medical students. The board is scheduled to decide Tuesday.

Mallin's license was suspended in February 1992, but the board granted him a limited license six months later. It allows him to practice within an "institutional environment," such as a state hospital. He currently works at the Bryan Psychiatric Institute of the state Department of Mental Health.

A former chief of Providence Hospital's emergency room, Mallin pleaded guilty to three federal drug charges, including one count of conspiring to illegally dispense nine controlled substances and two counts of illegally distributing Percodan.

TENNESSEE

NAACP says it will sue

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — The national NAACP says it may sue Knox County to force integration of its school system.

It would be the latest in a string of confrontations over a plan to eliminate what the federal government called "racially identifiable" schools.

The desegregation plan got its start in 1989 when the local NAACP chapter complained to the Office of Civil Rights, an arm of the U.S. Department of Education.

The complaints were about what the NAACP considered the unacceptably low number of black teachers and administrators in the system, and about student transfers it said allowed white flight to suburban schools.

A compromise desegregation plan was adopted by the school board on Wednesday night. It would leave at least five schools with predominantly black student populations.

Pro-choice demonstrators gather

Slain doctor's daughter urges marchers to fight for abortion rights

By BILL KACZOR
Associated Press Writer

PENSACOLA — The teenage daughter of a slain abortion clinic doctor came Saturday to this Florida Panhandle city where her father was murdered and urged demonstrators at a pro-choice rally to stand up for abortion rights.

Police estimated more than 1,000 people marched about a mile on a downtown street to the rally in a grove of oak trees outside Escambia County's judicial building.

"My father lost his life to the hands of a civil rights opponent who decided to abort a 47-year-old man," Wendy Gunn, 18, told the crowd. "We must prove to the anti-choice movement that we will not be intimidated by their terrorism."

Michael F. Griffin, 31, a former Pensacola chemical plant worker, is accused of shooting David Gunn March 10. The Eufaula, Ala., doctor was shot three times at point-blank range as he arrived at Pensacola Women's Medical Services in the midst of an anti-abortion demonstration.

Griffin is scheduled to go on trial June 21 for the murder of Gunn, who also performed abortions at clinics in Georgia and Alabama.

Ms. Gunn, who wants to be a doctor, said she was inspired by her father long before his death and added, "I wanted to be just like him."

At the same time as the rally, 16 anti-abortion protestors across town prayed around a vandalized memorial to women who have had abortions.

The bronze statue of a woman kneeling in prayer had been smashed overnight. It is on a small plot that anti-abortionists own next to the Ladies Center, another abortion clinic.

"I think it was in the same category as the shooting of Dr. Gunn," said anti-abortion activist Wilfred Casler. "I don't blame the pro-choice, pro-abortion group as a whole for the shooting of Dr. Gunn."

Meanwhile at the pro-choice rally, marchers carried signs that read "Former Fetus for Choice," "Womyn Unite — Smash the Christian Nazi Scum" and "We Won't Back Down — Stand up for Justice."

They chanted "Pro-life bigots feel the heat" and "Hitler would have loved you, Operation Rescue."

The march was greeted with two anti-abortion signs on their downtown route. A Knights of Columbus hall was adorned with a sign reading "Adoption, Not Abortion," and an airplane overhead pulled an anti-abortion banner that read: "Male Doctors Hide Behind NOW's Pants."

The rally and march were sponsored by the National Organization for Women.

NOW President Patricia Ireland said at the rally that an "anti-abortion terrorist" may have killed Gunn, but his death only increased commitment to abortion rights.

A counter-demonstration to directly confront the abortion rights marchers was called off a couple weeks ago by its organizer, John Burt of Milton. Burt is a local representative of Houston-based Rescue American and was leading the demonstration that was going on when Gunn was shot.

Burt attended the prayer session at the Ladies Center on Saturday.

Farrow and Allen await decision

By SAMUEL MAULL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — They've made their case in court, and in the media. Now the actress and filmmaker must wait for a judge to decide Farrow vs. Allen.

Did Woody do it? Is Mia a fit mother? Who gets the kids?

After months of media salvos and seven weeks of often painful testimony, the celebrity child custody battle is in the hands of a judge who described himself as the "least qualified" person to make the decision.

Justice Elliot Wilk heard Allen admit he doesn't know his children's birthdays. Farrow said on the witness stand that she called a lawyer first after suspecting 7-year-old daughter Dylan had been sexually abused.

Dueling cadres of psychotherapists presented opposing views. Lawyers blasted the motives and shortcomings of the other side.

How can there be a winner? Here's a quick review:

Farrow and Allen, who never married, had a child together during their 12-year relationship and are fighting over custody of him and two adopted youngsters. Farrow has eight other children as well.

In January 1992, Farrow found nude snapshots of 22-year-old adopted daughter Soon-Yi Previn in Allen's apartment. Allen admitted they were lovers.

In August, Allen sued for custody of Dylan, 15-year-old Moses and his biological son, 5-year-old Satchel. Allen called Farrow an unfit mother, eight days after she accused him of molesting Dylan.

Farrow moved to nullify Allen's adoption of Dylan and Moses. The filmmaker's contact with the children was limited to supervised visits with Satchel.

Friends on both sides told their stories to newspapers and magazines. Allen appeared on the cover of Time magazine, granting interviews to deny the child abuse allegations and defend his affair with Soon-Yi.

After testimony from about 30 witnesses, including psychotherapists, social workers, a nanny and family friends, Wilk said he remained unsure whether Allen molested Dylan.

A panel of sex abuse experts from the Yale-New Haven Hospital, appointed by Connecticut authorities to investigate, said they did not believe any abuse occurred.

Mother, daughter blaze trail together at Harvard

By JON MARCUS
Associated Press Writer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Solveig Nilsen-Goodin walks to school with the same person every day, shares textbooks and takes some of the same courses. But she couldn't decide what to call her classmate when they passed in the halls.

Finally, she settled on Mom. Nilsen-Goodin and her mother, Mary Yvonne Nilsen, are the first mother-daughter students in the 175-year history of Harvard Divinity School.

"We've become each other's support and help," said Nilsen, who moved from a four-bedroom house in Iowa City, Iowa, to the crowded apartment she shares with her daughter and son-in-law, a graduate student at Boston University.

"It was my concern that I not enter her space and, as kids would say these days, invade her turf," said Nilsen, 54. "I've tried to be very careful about making my own friends and living my own life."

The idea of attending divinity school together "all made sense," said Nilsen-Goodin, 26.

The elder woman is the daughter, granddaughter and wife of ordained Lutheran ministers. She hopes to teach writing in a seminary.

Nilsen-Goodin is working toward ordination in the Lutheran church. Her two brothers already are pastors and one of her two sisters is a seminarian.

Nilsen decided to apply to Harvard during a visit with her daughter last year.

"I have a very restless mind," she said. "I just need to keep learning. I always feel frustrated when I don't know things."

Nilsen has written two books, one about a family coping with a son's addiction. "When a Bough Breaks" is partly autobiographical; the oldest of Nilsen's five children is a recovering alcoholic.

"I dedicated my life to parenting and it went so wrong, but it all came out well in the end," she said.

Armstrong, Marlins beat Mets

NEW YORK — Jack Armstrong pitched six strong innings and had two hits to help Florida beat New York 4-2 Saturday, the Marlins' first victory ever against the Mets.

The victory moved the Marlins (13-16) two games ahead of the last-place Mets (10-17) in the National League East. New York beat Florida, 4-0, on Friday.

Trevor Hoffman pitched two hitless innings and Bryan Harvey finished for his ninth save in 10 opportunities.

Lewis still hospitalized

BOSTON — Ten days after collapsing during a game, Boston Celtics captain Reggie Lewis remains hospitalized and is undergoing tests aimed at regulating a career-threatening heart problem.

Officials at Brigham and Women's Hospital said doctors were awaiting test results before determining what to recommend for the Celtics' leading scorer.

The Boston Globe reported Saturday that Lewis was about to have a device implanted in his body to regulate the heart problem in an effort to keep him playing. The newspaper said the operation could take place this weekend.

But a hospital spokeswoman rejected that report, and Boston radio station WEEI quoted Lewis' wife, Donna Harris Lewis, as saying the report was incorrect.

ABC, NBC to split baseball?

NEW YORK — Major league baseball has reached an agreement with NBC and ABC on a unique joint venture that will create a prime-time game of the week and another round of playoffs in 1994.

"We just last night finished some of the discussions with NBC and ABC," San Diego Padres owner Tom Werner, one of three members of baseball's TV committee, said Saturday. "The TV committee recommended what we consider to be a very innovative arrangement to our owners this morning."

Owners meet in Chicago next week, at which time they are expected to vote on the new TV contract.

Tribe defends district crown

By DEAN SMITH

LEESBURG — All they needed was a carrot. Despite a 23-8 record, a lot of people had been asking, "What's wrong with Seminole High School baseball team?"

As it turned out, nothing that a little motivation wouldn't cure.

Friday night at Venetian Gardens' Pat Thomas Memorial Field in Leesburg, with a championship on the line, the Tribe capped off a strong week, humbling homesteading Leesburg 7-2 in the finals of the Class 3A-District 5 Baseball Tournament.

The defending state champions will now host Titusville High school in the 3A-Region III playoff game Tuesday at the Seminole High School Baseball Complex's Alumni Field starting at 4 p.m.

The Bulldogs won the 3A-District 6 title with a 7-0 whitewashing of Satellite High Friday night.

Seminole got its third consecutive outstanding pitching performance of the tournament as senior lefthander Jeremy Chunut, who had been troubled with a sore elbow, scattered six hits, struck out eight and walked only three to collect his seventh victory in nine decisions.

Overall, the Tribe was overpowering in the tournament. The pitching staff gave up just five runs on 10 hits, while striking out 27 and walking four. The offense, meanwhile, scored 25 runs on 29 hits.

"This is a great group of kids," said Seminole head coach Mike Powers. "They don't need a lot of coaching, but they take teaching very well. We went through some problems a couple of weeks ago and had to regroup. I think the loss to New Smyrna in the Patriot Classic woke us up. I think they finally realized that if they didn't start playing hard anyone could beat them."

"Tonight we played pretty well. It got scary there for awhile, but we got the timely hits when we needed them."

The Tribe showed that they came to play in the very first inning as shortstop Scott Ferguson made a beautiful running diving catch a fly ball along the left field foul line with a runner on first base and only one out.

Seminole got on the board in the bottom of the second inning as Matt Freeman singled, went to second on a ground out, advanced to third on a wild pitch and scored on a soft single to center by Tony Duncan.

The Tribe increased the lead to 2-0 in the third

ORLANDO — It was everything a championship game should be.

Top-seeded Lake Brantley and second-seeded Spruce Creek hooked up in a classic baseball game that featured excellent pitching, good defense and timely hitting as the Patriots edged the Hawks, 1-0, in nine innings.

Sophomore Keith Walsh, the No. 9 hitter in the Lake Brantley batting order, singled in Wes Iller with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning for the only run of the game as the Patriots improved to 26-6 on the season.

Lake Brantley will host Winter Park in the 4A-Region IV title game at Patriot Field Tuesday night at 8 p.m. The Wildcats also took nine innings to advance, besting Dr. Phillips 7-6 Friday night.

Iller led off the ninth by being hit by a pitch. Two outs later, Iller stole second. Joey Harmer Tibbetts, a lefthander, worked a scoreless ninth in relief of Brett Black. Black, a hard-throwing senior, was magnificent the first eight innings, scattering five hits while striking out 15 and walking just one.

4A-REGION III TRACK

Breakthroughs yield state berths for 'Hounds

WINTER PARK — If you're going to make a breakthrough, this is as good a time as any to do it.

Competing in the 4A-Region III track meet at Showalter Field and Bob Mosher Track Friday night, the Lyman High School boys track team put together a sequence of personal breakthroughs to finish eighth in the team standings with 21 points, the highest finish of the five Seminole County schools.

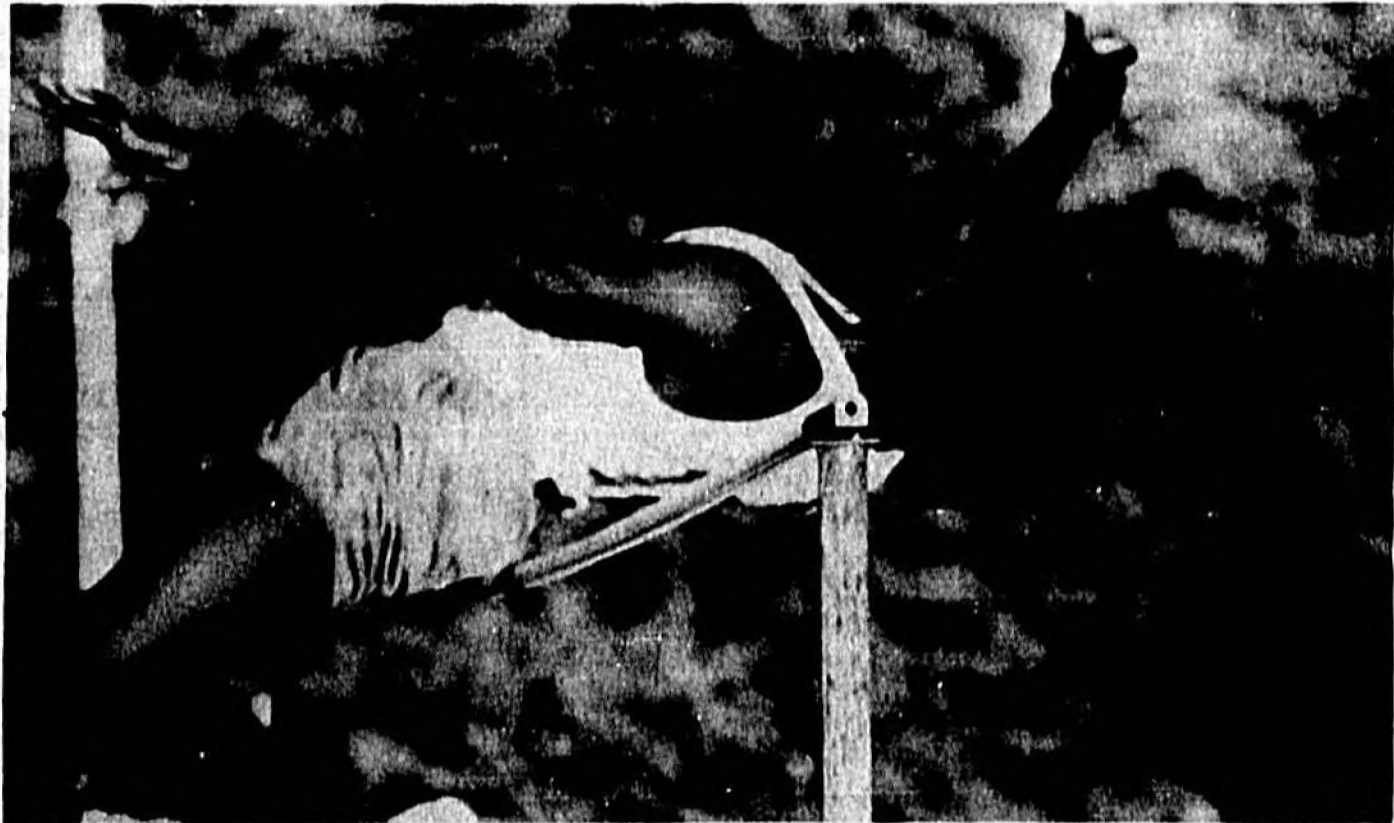

"We had some kids that really made some breakthroughs tonight," said Lyman boys' coach Fred Finke. "As a team, you come into the meet with the idea of trying to do your best. But doing your best isn't making breakthroughs. That's something else."

Leading the Greyhounds were state meet qualifiers Todd Cleveland (who won the 200-meter dash in 21.51 seconds), freshman Rob Evans (second in the 3,200-meter run, 9:50.81), and Demil Gonzalez (third in the 1,600-meter run, 4:28.63).

Also qualifying for the Class 4A state meet next Saturday in Gainesville was Bobby Washington (fourth in the high jump, 6 feet, 2 inches). Lyman also picked up a team point from its 4 x 100-meter relay team, which finished sixth.

"Todd just dominated the 200," said Finke. "Evans had a personal best by 13 seconds and Gonzalez had a personal best by seven seconds."

Dan Hilley and Daryl Bush helped Lake Brantley to a ninth-place tie with Apopka at 19 points. Hilley qualified in two events, finishing fourth in both the 1,600-meter (4:30.5) and 3,200-meter runs (9:57.25), while Bush won the

Bobby Washington, who finished fourth in the high jump Friday at the 4A-Region III track meet, was one of four Lyman athletes to qualify for next weekend's Class discus (163 feet, 7 inches) and finished fifth in the shot put (51 feet, 8 inches).

4A state track meet. Other Greyhound qualifiers were Todd Cleveland (200-meter dash), Rob Evns (3,200-meter run), and Demil Gonzalez (1,600-meter run).

Justin Hobbs and Brian Lucyk just missed qualifying for the state meet. Hobbs taking fifth in the pole vault (12 feet) and Lucyk finishing fifth in the 3,200-meter run (10:08.07).

Lake Howell, the 4A-District 9 boys' team champions, qualified two individuals and a relay for the state meet while scoring 14 points to finish 12th overall.

Matt Bowman won the pole vault (14 feet, 6 inches) for the Silver Hawks while Louis Greco took fourth in the discus (160 feet, 2 inches). The 4 x 100-meter relay of Dale Polk, Antjuann Smith, Anthony Starks, and Kelvin Chisolm finished fourth in 42.49 seconds.

Robert Boothe scored Lake Mary's only point by finishing sixth in the pole vault (12 feet).

While the Lyman boys were making breakthroughs, the Lyman girls continued to perform at their consistently high level. The Seminole Athletic Conference and 4A-District 9 team champions, the Greyhound girls finished third (32 points) behind Palm Beach Lakes (86) and Evans (65).

"We had a good meet," said Lyman girls' coach Larry Baker. "We had some kids that had PRs (personal records) and others that struggled a little bit. I'm really proud of both of our relays. They did an outstanding job."

Boaters should be on defensive

The Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission reminds boaters to be on the defensive when cruising along Florida's waterways. With the increase of recreational vessels traveling the state's rivers, lakes and other waters, defensive driving is as important on the water as it is on the road.

Boats, unlike cars, don't have brakes, and boaters, unlike motorists, aren't required to take a test, pass a course or be of minimum age to operate a vessel.

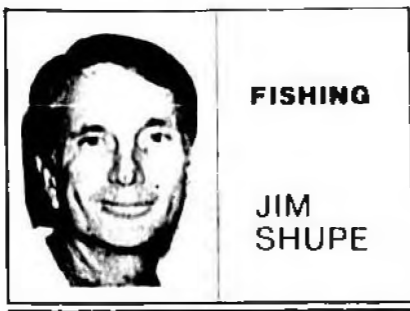

Last year, more than 1,000 boating accidents and 80 boating fatalities were recorded in Florida. That's more than in any other state and the Commission is working to reverse it.

"Every boater needs to know what his responsibilities are. Until we have a more safety conscious public, the number of boating accidents will stay high," Capt. Bob Poole, the Commission's boating safety coordinator, said.

"Taking a boating safety course may be the best way to prevent accidents," Poole said. "It sharpens boating skills and enhances knowledge."

The basic rules of navigation are designed to prevent collisions and other hazards. Lake driving, boating necessitates observing rules and watching for informational signals and other traffic.

The Commission encourages boaters to be "boat smart" by enrolling in the free boating safety course it offers. The eight-hour class covers a variety of topics including how to select the "right" watercraft, boating etiquette, rules of navigation, legal requirements, emergency procedures, proper safety equipment and the danger of drinking while operating a boat.

FISHING

"We can't over-emphasize the importance of personal flotation devices and the hazards of drinking alcoholic beverages while boating," Poole said. "Over 80 percent of boating fatalities involve people not wearing PFDs, and most boaters who have been drinking don't realize their reaction time has been impaired."

Alcohol was involved in 46 percent of the fatalities in Florida in 1992.

The Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission's free safe boating course is taught throughout the year.

"We will schedule a class anywhere and anytime there are enough people who express an interest," Poole said. Special courses also can be scheduled for clubs and organizations.

Interested persons can call the Commission's regional offices at the following numbers: Northeast Region, (904) 758-0529; Northwest Region, (904) 265-3676; Central Region, (904) 732-1225; South Region, (813) 648-3200; and Everglades Region, (407) 640-6100.

SHUPE'S SCOOP

Drive defensively while operating your boat and always be aware of the actions of other boaters.

FISHING FORECAST

Bass action has been good in local lakes and in the river. Shiners are still producing the larger fish, but plastic worms, top-water lures, and spinnerbaits will also work just fine. Some of the best bass fishing is in the river from Puzzle Lake south.

Sebastian Inlet is hot for snook. The outgoing tide is when to plan your trip. Live bait such as pinfish, finger mullet, or live shrimp is the bait to use in the daytime, while lures and jigs are best at night. Look for flounder, redfish, bluefish, and jack crevalle to be scattered along with the snook.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports that dolphin fishing has been good in 100 feet of water. Look for tips or weed lines for the best action. Big grouper and snapper are also falling in these deep waters.

Inside the Port, look for sheepshead, flounder, and small bluefish. Guide Troy Perez reports great action with redfish on the flats of the Banana and Indian rivers. He reports huge schools of redfish in the south end of Mosquito Lagoon.

Shoney's Mother's Day contest

For the past week, Shoney's Restaurants have been asking mothers to register for a number of prizes which will be given away later this month. Today, managers at each Shoney's are selecting one of the entries received at their restaurant, and forwarding it to the main office. On May 24, six names will be selected with the first prize an all-expense paid five-day cruise for two to Mexico or the Caribbean. The remaining five entries drawn will each receive $100 worth of Shoney's gift certificates.

Today is the final day for mothers to sign up. In Sanford, Shoney's is located at 3150 Orlando Drive. Manager Richard Ellison said, "We will close at midnight, so we'll take entries until that time. After that, I'll select one and send it to the main office in Nashville."

He added, "No purchase is necessary to enter, but we hope folks will consider bringing their moms out for a special meal."

Subway donates food

The Subway Food for Food '93 drive held April 18, collected over 25,000 pounds of food for the Second Harvest Food Bank of Central Florida, in just two hours. A free Subway sandwich was given to everyone who took part in the drive as a thank you for their community. Over 15,000 free sandwiches were given out before the drive ended.

The collection took place at all Subway shops in Central Florida including the Sanford operation at 2927 Orlando Drive.

Nationally, the drive obtained over 1.6 million canned goods collected, with $2.5 million in sandwiches given away by Subway.

River Oaks raises money for Plantation

River Oaks, a residential community on the St. Johns River in DeBary, sponsored an old-fashioned historical barbecue on Feb. 27 to raise money for the restoration of DeBary Hall, the former home of Baron Frederick DeBary, a wealthy European who helped settle the area in the 1800's. The event was held on the grounds of DeBary Hall and brought in 48 vendors and approximately 1,000 people. This week, Pinnacle Investment Partners II, developer of River Oaks, announced that a total of $3,300 was raised at the event and has been forwarded to the restoration project.

Wansley, United work together

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — United Van Lines, represented in Sanford by Wansley Moving & Storage of Florida, has recently become the largest carrier in the household goods moving industry.

Sue Wilkinson, Wansley general manager, commented, "We are extremely proud to be associated with United. It has been a progressive company since its formation 45 years ago and has been the most stable of all major movers in our industry."

She continued, "Its success in capturing the top position is due in large measure to a growing base of customers who recognize our company's quality of service and keep calling upon us whenever moving transportation is needed."

Wilkinson noted that her own company, Wansley, has been instrumental in United's overall achievement.

At a recent annual shareholders meeting, United President Robert J. Baer congratulated Wansley for its role in helping United reach the top moving industry position. "United's achievement is the result of the combined efforts of our agents across the nation, including the fine staff of this local affiliate," he said.

"We have invested a lot of time and other resources in a unique quality service program developed by United which continues to pay dividends for us both locally and nationally," Wilkinson said.

"Although this approach is just three years old, United has been emphasizing quality service delivery for the last decade," she added.

Wansley has been an agent of United Van Lines since 1948.

Chamber membership campaign a success

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The 1993 membership drive by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce has been deemed a great success. Over 95 new members have been signed up according to executive director Dave Farr.

Five teams of volunteers invited area business owners and business people to join the chamber during the campaign. It started on April 26, and ended April 29.

Individuals who led in the member gathering included Bobby Von Herbulis of McKee Construction Co., with 12 new members. Todd Williams of Security National Bank obtained 11 new members.

William's total team won first place in the week's campaign by getting 41 new memberships.

Team captains for the campaign including Williams were Brent Adamson of Rich United Corporation, Chet Pierce of McLain, Pierce & Associates, Linda Johnson of William Howard Jewelers, and Rick Russi of Tony Russi Insurance.

"We have been extremely pleased with the performance of our volunteers," Farr said. "They did a great job and really made the chamber shine."

Farr explained that the 95 new members will bring the total membership up to approximately 675.

Contrary to previous membership campaigns when teams have fanned out through the business establishments in the area, this year's campaigning was done mostly by telephone, with team members operating from the chamber offices for specific time periods during the brief drive.

The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce office is located at 400 W. First Street in downtown Sanford.

Furniture distributor moving to Sanford

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Private Source Furniture Makers will be moving to its new facilities in Sanford during this coming week. PSM has leased a 20,000 square foot building at 410 Silver Lake Drive.

Jim Duke of Duke Properties negotiated the leasing from Schilke Enterprises, Inc. The term of the lease is for four years.

Private Source is owned by Raymond Carringer. "We are really pleased to be moving into Sanford," he said. "It's a great city and we are absolutely happy to be a part of it."

The company has manufacturing facilities in South Carolina and Tennessee. They make sofas, lounge chairs and other types of furniture. "The Sanford operation will be our main distribution center and corporate headquarters," Carringer said. "We presently ship to retail stores in 10 or more states."

With the combined manufacturing and distribution, Carringer predicted his three year old firm will bring in between $3 million and $5 million in Florida alone during 1993.

Since beginning the business, three years ago, PSM has operated from offices in Longwood. Prior to this time, Carringer has been in the furniture manufacturing business for over 20 years.

As for the move he commented, "We have just outgrown where we are, and we just need this larger facility which we have arranged for in Sanford."

The lease on the building is for four years, Carringer said he owes a great deal of credit to his company's growth and relocation to Liberty National Bank in Longwood. "They have supported me right along," he said, "and I give them a lot of credit for the success of this business."

The Sanford building is being refurbished and Carringer expects the work to be done to allow him to move in by the end of this week. When fully operational, the distribution center will employ 18 to 20 persons.

"While we here in Florida are known as Private Source Furniture Makers," Carringer said, "we are part of the overall operation which is known as P.P. Wor Co., Inc."

He explained the origination of P.P. Wor. "It actually stands for 'poor people working on retirement,'" he said.

Outstanding Moms

Not just Mom, 'she's my best friend'

By Ed KORGAN
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — The Putnams, who have been in the Sanford area since 1985, are a former Navy family. They lived here when Sanford Naval Air Station was active and when the base was closed, they transferred Georgia for three years. They were to return to Sanford soon for good.

Mary Putnam works for Dearborn Electronics and has been there for a number of years. When she is home she looks forward to seeing and caring for her grandchildren, Jimmie and Lindsey.

Rosie Cannon has great respect for her mom, Mary Putnam, and tells how her mom has helped her out so much in the letter that follows.

"I feel my mom is outstanding because:

First and foremost, she isn't just my mom, she's my best friend. She has more love to give than any person I know. She has always been there for my sisters no matter what. After a tough decision to divorce my father, only thinking of our best interests, she did without things so that we could have and do all the things our friends were doing.

"She has always stood behind our decisions, whether she agreed with them or not. If it turned out to be a good decision, she was thrilled for us, but if it turned out to be the wrong decision, she was there to pick up the pieces. "When my stepfather passed away I was pregnant and went into premature labor. Her only concern was for me and her tiny granddaughter instead of herself. She has gotten me through my recent divorce. And now being a working single. See Putnam, Page 6B

How Moms were chosen

The Herald printed a notice asking readers to help us find our annual "Outstanding Moms" by submitting letters of nomination about the favorite moms in their lives.

The judges selected the three letters on this page as the top outstanding moms.

Kindness

Troubled teen chose grandmom top mom

By Ed KORGAN

SANFORD — Jessica Ligac, an 18-year-old troubled teen, chose her grandmother because she has always been there even though Jessica felt she did not always deserve her grandmother's kindness.

Her feeling for her grandmother are conveyed in the following letter:

"My candidate for 'The Most Outstanding Mom' is my grandmother, Mary Varner. My own mother has not been able to provide for me emotionally or financially for most of my life. My grandmother has always been there for me even though I did not always deserve her kindness.

I have had a very troubled life growing up. My grandmother always did her best to see that I went to church every week and that I had an education in a private parochial school for as long as she could afford it. As I got older, I lost my way and I began to get into some trouble. I gave up on myself and my family in the process.

Furtunately for me, my grandmother did not give up on me, while a lot of my family did. I have not always made the right decisions for myself and while my grandmother expresses her concerns and doesn't always agree with my decisions, she has always done what she can to support me and help me find my way.

Now that I am 18 years old and nine months pregnant, I find myself trying to handle all this alone. If it wasn't for my grandmother's love and support, I would never have made it this far. She is like no one I have ever known, and her generosity. See Varner, Page 6B

Richard M. "Dick" and Virginia "Ginger" Herndon, former residents of Sanford who now live in Winter Springs, have celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. The Herndons lived in Sanford for a number of years where they were active in social and civic circles.

And the world was also their oyster while they traveled several continents when Dick was in the diplomatic service and Virginia was a teacher.

Leave it up to the Herndons to do the unusual. For their golden wedding anniversary, they were invited to San Antonio, Texas, one of the few places they have never visited. Hosts for the gala event were their daughter, Martha Williamson, and her

WEDDING

Mrs. Conrad Theodore Coen

Terri Sullivan, Conrad T. Coen exchange vows

SANFORD — Terri Ann Sullivan and Conrad Theodore Coen are announcing their marriage today. The ceremony took place on Feb. 6, at 4 p.m., at First United Methodist Church, Sanford.

The Rev. Cliff Melvin officiated at the double ring ceremony. Three of the bride's students performed wedding music for the ceremony as well as for the reception which followed later.

The bride is the daughter of Dorothy and Warren Sullivan of Sanford.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Mary Ann Coen of Pine Island, Minn., and the late Judge Theodore Coen.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a formal gown of candlelight lace embroidered with pearls, sequins and beads. A white satin bolero jacket with lace sleeves highlighted the fitted lace bodice. Her finger-tip veil was held in place by a band of scalloped flowers and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnations centered with an orchid and interspersed with greenery.

Janice Watters of Emigrant, Mont., served her sister as matron of honor. She wore a tea-length midnight blue gown and carried a bouquet of salmon and white carnations.

Christine Sullivan of Longwood, the bride's niece, served as flower girl. She wore a dress of candlelight lace and carried a basket of blue, white and salmon flowers. Her hairpiece was a crown of matching flowers.

Christopher Coen of Ann Arbor, Mich., served his father as best man.

Ushers were Kenneth Coen of Pine Island and Edward Sullivan of Satellite Beach, brothers of the bride and groom.

Following the ceremony, a reception and dinner was held at the Alaqua Country Club, Longwood. Among the out-of-town guests were Catherine, Corrine and Claudia Coen of Grand Rapids, Mich., daughters of the groom.

The newlyweds are making their home in Howey-in-the-Hills. The bride is a private piano teacher and the groom is retired.

'Young Men of Future' graduate

SANFORD
MARVA HAWKINS

"Young Men of the Future," young men who were previously diagnosed as "at risk" students at Seminole High have successfully completed a motivational program.

As a part of this program, these young men were exposed to educational opportunities, college tours and employment opportunities, as well as health and social workshops designed to motivate their development as positive leaders in their communities.

They are to remain drug free, crime free and to have participated in community forums which enhanced their social skills.

The graduation ceremony for the "Young Men of the Future" was held Thursday, Apr. 29, at Seminole High School Media Center. The ceremony was the culmination of a year-long consciousness-raising program for students who were considered to be at risk of dropping out of school. These young men were under the leadership of Allen Lockhart of Project III and Helen T. Morris of the Full Service School. Through their guidance these young men have succeeded down the road of academic and overall success in life.

The following young men are the success of the Full Service School program at Seminole High: Lorenzo Tillman, Jamie Moore, Eugene Jackson, Eddie Green, Darius Moore, Greg Stafford, Corey Williams, Eugene Jackson, Cornell Daniels, Theodore Williams, Mario White.

Ginger said, "We were married April 4, 1943, in Virginia and couldn't believe we were celebrating our 50th in San Antonio."

The Herndons took a lot of pictures including snapping one of Dick's ancestor Patrick Henry Herndon's name on the Alamo commemorative statue.

Upon returning from Texas, the Herndons were honored at another celebration when four couples from Tusawilla took them on a fun-filled vacation at Seaside Resort in Florida.

Commenting on the fine cuisine, Ginger said, "I think they took us to every restaurant mentioned in 'Southern Living' and other southern food and travel magazines."

The Herndons, who are constantly on the go, have always enjoyed life and a good time. Virginia said, "It's not bad to get older, but we don't seem to settle down to acting our age."

She also attends Sunday School every Sunday and church services. Ella is also a help to her sister-in-law who has been bedridden for 13 years. Before the passing of her father-in-law, she also cared for him. She worked for 25 years at Sanford Dry Cleaners. When our mother is ill, you will never know because she never complains. Tricia Thomas, urban horticulturist who was introduced by Ann Brisson, presented a program on conservation. Her topic was "Xeriscaping," a method of using hardy plants and drought-tolerant plants in the Florida landscape to conserve energy. A question and answer period followed.

President Metts presided over the business meeting.

Outstanding Moms

By ED KORGAN
Herald Correspondent

The runners-up for outstanding moms are as follows.

Patty Adamson nominated her mom, Maria Beland, who rescued her from an orphanage. Adamson still suffers many scars but her mother is there and still helps her today with the healing of her emotional scars.

Amanda and Emily Spak, 6 and 5 years old, described their mom, Lisa Spak, of Longwood. "Our mom is beautiful and she is sweet. She is very nice. She always gives us love. We love her very much."

Molly Pflueger wrote, "If it wasn't for my mother, Elizabeth Bush (of Sanford), I would not be half the person I am today. She and my father always gave me positive reinforcement in my endeavors."

Susan Wenner and Dianne Blanton love their mom, Clodene Richards of Sanford, dearly. They suggested, "Looking for outstanding mom...then look no more. Our mother has been a tireless example of service to others and her family."

Michelle Tillotson said her mom, Carolyn Tillotson of Sanford, is caring, sweet and gracious. "I remember the time I was in the hospital. She sat by my side all day and all night. She would not move until I was released."

Linda Harkness related how her mom, Rosa L. Myers of Sanford, shared her love between 13 natural and five adopted children.

Cristie Diemer described her mom, Beverly Diemer of Lake Mary, as 5'0" weighing 95 pounds with never-ending energy, helpfulness and enthusiasm. "Words will never be able to express how much I love her, and how special she is to each and everyone of us in her family."

Ruthie Bodin's mother, Avis Bodin of Sanford, is outstanding because she works outside and inside the home and rarely complains. Ruthie continued, "She loves and cares for my family more than anyone else I know."

Leketta Bryant, 10 years old, wrote about her grandmother, Dorothy Holmes, of Sanford. "My grandmother is taking care of us (two brothers and one sister). My grandmother prays with us at night and then she goes to her room and prays again. I hear her tell God to keep her strong for us."

Stanley Jones selected his wife and mother of their children, Cynthia Jones of Sanford, as an outstanding mom. "Cynthia is special because in all her endeavors she continues to stay humble and kind. Never forsaking God or neglecting her family."

Marion Anderson wrote about her sister, "With a whisper of his breath, God gave me my sister, Barbara Gayle Gibson (of Sanford). She is honest, sincere, caring, and supportive. Her tireless efforts in the concern for her family and others, is to be commended. She is a woman of impeccable integrity, and it gives me great pleasure and the opportunity to say many thanks for being 'you' throughout the years."

Latonya Thomas chose her mom, Dorothy Mack, of Sanford, by stating, "By me nominating my mother as an outstanding mom has made me realize how important and special she really is and I am very proud the Lord spared her life these many years because without her my whole life would be incomplete."

Veronda Thompson, 11 years old, stated her mom, Gwen Thompson of Sanford, is always there when she needs her. She related, "April 11, 1993, my parent, she gets my son to baseball and cares for my young daughter while my son and I are at late night baseball games.

Without her help, my son would not be able to play baseball. She does all of these things without a minute's hesitation and it truly brings her a lot of joy to be able to do these things for me. My mom deserves the very best of everything and my sisters and I will always see that she gets it."

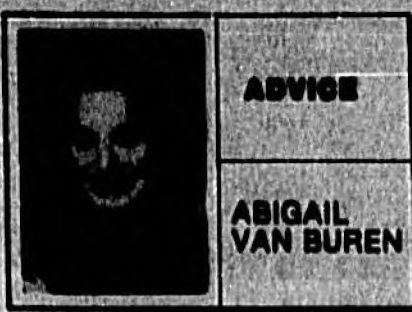

Adoptive and birth mothers together share their joys

DEAR ABBY: Twenty-three years ago, I gave up my beautiful baby daughter — for her sake, not mine. I was unmarried, very young, and was sent to a home for unwed mothers where I was told I had no other choice. The social worker who handled the matter said I should not expect to see my daughter again. I believed her, and cried many bitter tears.

But thanks to my child's adoptive mother, we were eventually reunited. I thank God that she was secure and open enough in her relationship with my child to allow her to meet me. Few adopted children are given that opportunity.

There is a saying that goes like this: "There are only two lasting bequests we can give our children — one is roots, and the other is wings." I would like to add to that statement that adoptees need both sets of parents if they are to have roots and wings.

I count myself fortunate to have emerged from this experience knowing that I did the right thing for my daughter. It's a very long story, but eventually she also met her birth father (he is now my husband) and her two sisters and one brother. (We have also met our daughter's adopted brother, so now it's as though we have five children.)

ADVICE

This adoptive mother has my love, respect and admiration. There is absolutely nothing I would not do for her. After all, she is our daughter's mother.

BLESSED IN NEW YORK

DEAR BLESSED: Not all adoptive mothers are as courageous, secure and generous as your daughter's adoptive mother. She is to be commended. A very Happy Mother's Day to both of you.

DEAR ABBY: I am 65 years old, and although I'm not rich, I have enough income to buy whatever I need. I am also at an age where I have accumulated more than my home can comfortably hold. There is nothing that anyone can give me — except love.

In lieu of buying objects such as lawn flamingos or clay sheep that sprout alfalfa, and which do nothing more than waste money, I let my children know that I would prefer small favors, such as replacing an azalea plant that died, or washing my living room windows, or pruning my rosebushes, etc.

As a consequence, my children kept making subtle hints about the color scheme of the interior of my home. Unfortunately, the hints were so subtle that I didn't catch on — I didn't realize they were offering to paint it for me. I thought they were trying to tell me that the colors were ugly, so I painted the bedroom myself (three coats), and hired someone to paint the living room, because the piano was too heavy for me to move.

I would love to have my whole family gather to wash all of my windows for Mother's Day, and then stay for some of Mom's good home cooking!

P.S. Abby, if you use my letter, please don't use my last name. I want my kids to surprise me!

Darrell Graham

New program to serve community

SANFORD — There has been much discussion about the high dropout rate in high schools and a solution to this problem. In Seminole County, a new program is being set up called the Full Service School which is now in three schools, including Seminole High School.

The Full Service Schools try to more effectively meet the needs of students and their families by making educational, medical, social and human services more accessible.

Helen Morris, who oversees the program at Seminole High School, and others, work with the counselors and teachers to gain insight into a student and his problems.

Programs that are now in effect are tutoring programs as well as mental health and substance abuse counseling programs which offer screenings.

Also, a program called Young Men of the Future was devised to build self-esteem. Recently, 15 young men graduated from the program. They received awards during a ceremony.

In the future a human resource center will be built to make information accessible to students and their families.

"There has been great improvement in the academics, personalities and behavior of the students," Morris said about the progress of the program.

That, she said, is the goal of the Full Service Schools.

This Saturday past, there was a march and a fair sponsored by the Full Service Schools. It lasted from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

It was in response to a newspaper article where the residents were complaining about crime in their neighborhoods.

The mayor offered a challenge to residents of the community to come up with a solution. The fair is a response to that challenge.

The fair will bring information and services to the community such as health services (blood pressure tests and other health screenings), employment services, etc.

All those participating are from the community, such as doctors, teachers, lawyers, etc. to make sure that the whole community is aware of these services.

Full Service Schools are all about prevention and awareness of the problems facing our schools and, therefore our community.

Sanford student among the tops in the nation

Darrell Graham didn't grow up in the finest section of town, he said, but that isn't keeping him from continuing to pursue his ambition of becoming the country's first Black Secretary of State.

School officials at San Bernardino Valley (California) College say that he has already proven himself as a high achiever.

Graham is one of only 20 United States students named to the 1993 all-USA Academic First Team for Community and Junior Colleges.

Graham, 26, who grew up in Sanford, now he lives with his aunt in Colton, Calif. while taking classes.

He is considered to be among the cream of the crop of the nation's 6.4 million community college students, Mary Sanchez of San Bernardino Valley College, said.

Graham was selected for this honor by the American Association of Community Colleges, Phi Theta Kappa and USA Today.

He was awarded $2,500 and a trophy.

Dr. Donald L. Singer, president of the college, said that he was proud of Graham's achievement.

"This is the best thing that ever happened to Valley College," he said.

Graham expects to attend the University of California at Berkeley and earn a degree with an emphasis on international relations.

He also hopes to practice law before entering the world of politics.

Graham is a staunch conservative Republican and says that Washington, D.C. is the place for him.

He added, "As I see it, the leadership runs cyclically. If the Democrats have a lock on for eight to 12 years, then the Republicans will be back in about 20 years. We'll have a Republican president and I'll be his secretary of state."

Smith graduates with honors

SANFORD — Jeffrey Warren Smith, son of Michael A. and Connie L. Smith of Sanford and the only grandson of Donald D. and Gertrude Royer of Maitland, recently graduated from Palm Beach Atlantic College in West Palm Beach.

Smith is a 1989 graduate of Seminole High School and a 1991 graduate of Seminole Community College.

He completed his college education in less than two years.

Smith graduated with honors from the college with a degree in Business Management.

During his time at Palm Beach Atlantic College, Smith organized missionary trips to various Caribbean islands, including Antigua and the Dominican Republic.

Under his direction, students from the college spent their Spring Break volunteering their time building houses, working with children and spreading a Christian message. Smith's parents own Smitty's Mowers in Sanford.

Following a vacation in Costa Rico, he intends to return to Sanford to seek employment.

Seminole High Class of 1939 gives top teacher an award

SANFORD — The Seminole High School Class of 1939 has made a commitment to making their alma mater an even better place to learn.

For several years, the class has presented an award to their selection as the school's teacher of the year.

Last week, Art Woodruff, the physics and journalism teacher at SHS, was presented with the award and a $1,500 check.

Woodruff was also a runner up in the county teacher of the year competition.

The award, called the Marjorie Tillie Lansing Award, is named in honor of a teacher that the Class of 1939 felt inspired and helped them all when they were in school.

The funds for the award are made available through a charitable foundation whose legal representative is Jack Bolt.

The Class of 1939, represented by Fred Ganas and Mary Nancy Terwilliger, gave SHS teacher a $1,500 check during his third period class recently.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY

May 9, 1993

In the year ahead, there is a chance that your opportunities might come in pairs. This could make things tricky for you, because each will require special attention.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Indolence or procrastination could lead to your undoing today. Your indifference might cause you to pass over opportunities beneficial to your general welfare. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) What you know, not who you know, will be the most significant factor for your success today. Personal knowledge can be utilized advantageously, but social contacts can't.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It is imperative that you team up with reliable associates today. A poor choice will not only hinder your progress, it could also tarnish your reputation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Start small today instead of attempting to do things in a grand or lavish manner. If you push projects prematurely, you might leave out essential bits and pieces.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be prudent in the management of your resources today. If you do something foolish (and there's a possibility you might), it could be a serious blunder.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be as cooperative with others today as they are with you. If you're too self-centered, they might withdraw benefits you need that they control.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Responsibilities will not be alleviated today through their own power. In fact, what you neglect might be compounded and cause additional complications.

21) Try to be realistic today when evaluating endeavors about which you know little. It's OK to get enthused, but be sure to investigate all aspects before jumping in.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is a possibility that you might knowingly do things today that smack of favoritism. This won't go over very well with people who will feel slighted.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Before you play what you think is your trump card today, be mindful of your opposition. He or she might be holding a higher hand, and you'll end up the joker.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be careful at this time in situations that require a collective investment. Your associates might pledge their share, then later fail to deliver.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Usually, you are well-tuned to the social amenities. However, today there is a chance you might do something that could cause a hostess to blush.

ing for ways to add to your resources.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't be afraid to be a bit of a dreamer in this cycle, because your wishes and expectations could be realized. Be imaginative, as well as expectant.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Owing to a set of unusual circumstances which might not be totally visible to you, a secret ambition you've been nurturing may soon be fulfilled.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Take advantage of any opportunities you get now to mingle with groups where you can meet new people. Several important relationships might be cultivated at this time.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're now entering a new and different type of achievement cycle. It behooves you to be a bit flexible where your ambitious objectives are concerned. You'll want to be able to make adjustments.

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY

May 10, 1993

New vistas might open for you in the year ahead that could provide adventure, excitement and advantages. These advances might be triggered through a social organization with which you're presently involved.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) At this time, you might discover a new way of doing something that pertains to a matter of consistent importance. Proceed with your ideas, even if they are a bit incomplete.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This could be a good day to launch a commercial endeavor, especially if it's in an area that you're familiar with and also involves people you know well.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Treat seriously any arrangements you enter today that could have far-reaching effects. First, however, clear up uncertainties about small points.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you've been planning to start a new health or self-improvement program, this is a good day to light the fuse and get the rocket off the pad. You're moving along constructive lines.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There are strong indicators showing a revitalization of your social life. New contacts could stimulate an interest in activities that should prove to be worthwhile.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Conditions that affect the security and well-being of you and your family are about to improve. You might begin to experience some of their effects as early as today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A new and better understanding can now be achieved with a person whose views weren't always in line with yours. If you start operating on the same wavelength, the results could be dynamic.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Improvements are now indicated where your financial and material prospects are concerned. Start thinking like a business person and begin looking for ways to add to your resources.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't be afraid to be a bit of a dreamer in this cycle, because your wishes and expectations could be realized. Be imaginative, as well as expectant.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

The Senior Life Master noticed that his students were a little more animated this week.

I can see (the SLM began) that the first burst of warm weather has given you, as it has all flora and fauna, renewed energy.

Perhaps some of you will start playing tennis. All tennis players are told to keep their eyes firmly locked on the ball. A similar recommendation should be made to bridge players. Don't ake your eyes off the cards — or the tricks.

Look at this deal. At first I will show you only the North and East hands.

After a simple Stayman sequence, West leads the diamond two to your ace. How should you continue?

The natural reaction is to give partner a diamond ruff. But that produces only three tricks: the heart king, the diamond ace and a diamond ruff. Which will be your fourth trick? If partner has a black-suit ace, there will be no problems. But if declarer has both these aces, maybe the contract is now impregnable.

At trick two, you should switch to a spade, hoping to establish the fourth trick. The ruff can wait.

Now study the full deal. Note that if East returns a diamond at trick two, the contract will make. Declarer wins West's return and immediately plays the ace and another heart. But a spade switch at trick two establishes West's king as a winner. South cannot discard dummy's spade loser on the club ace, because he doesn't have a hand entry.

Always keep an eye on your target — the number of tricks needed to make or break the contract.
