SALVATION If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shall be saved—Romans 10:9

How many can remember the good old days when they thought the Lord was mighty?

We at last understand why the Lord is the One. Because that is what he is playing.

See something in the paper about Santa Claus. The world reminded that now is the time to do your Christmas shopping early.

Wouldn't it be a good idea for the Florida taxpayers if we should have to build those or thirteen new bridges over the proposed canal?

We continue to say that the monolithic expansion in St. Louis will come from from the exclusion of negroes from the country. We must work to keep the negroes out.

Why not? The negro tourist resort is well-advised to advertise its good features including pictures of at least several bathing beauties?

The Miami Post tells about stages of reconstruction when the V. F. C. took the city over last year, it was likely to end in this latest shock.

With all the unusual developments of the past few weeks, no wonder what our readers would regard as the most important newspaper of the year—the globe of the Social Security Law feature, the adjournment of Congress, the death of Rogers and Post, the assassination of Harry Long, the horrors—tragedy on the Florida Keys, the Italian and Spanish Civil War, Ethiopia, or any other noteworthy event we have failed to mention. Every one has his own ideas about what is news, but certainly no one can say there isn't anything in the paper these days.

It is only the Constitution of the United States and its interpretation by a free and independent Supreme Court which make such practices unthinkable in this country. It is the duty of every American citizen who believes in the liberty and the Democratic principles upon which this country was founded to see that our Constitution is neither destroyed nor undermined. "Eternal vigilance," someone has said, "is the price of liberty."

Eternal Vigilance

As this is Constitution Week and today is Constitution Day, all over the United States, we can think of no better way to celebrate the occasion than to publish in full in other columns on this page the Constitution of the United States together with all the amendments which have been added from time to time since its adoption. We do this not alone with the hope that our subscribers will read it, but also with the suggestion that they clip it, fold it carefully and save it, to read again occasionally as questions arise concerning it.

As the months slip by throughout the coming year, the subject of the Constitution will become an increasingly vital one. Seven laws enacted during the past two and a half years have already been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court. By the same logic and reasoning which invalidated these seven laws, much additional legislation is likely to be thrown out. Each new law held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court will only increase the agitation to amend the Constitution so as to legalize such governmental control and regulation as is now being attempted.

The Constitution itself provides ways and means for such amendments as may be contemplated. It was never expected that this fundamental law of the land should remain unchanged throughout the ages. Every generation since its adoption has seen some changes made in it. The first Congress this country ever had adopted resolutions calling for no less than ten constitutional amendments.
Since that time ten additional amendments have been adopted. Never, when these amendments were being adopted, was the cry raised that the Constitution itself was in danger.

It is not that an amendment to the Constitution may be proposed that excites alarm; it is only the form in which the proposed amendment may take that gives rise to the thought that the Constitution may be in danger. There is no threat to our established order in an amendment to eliminate child labor, to prohibit what should be done for an adequate pension system or to establish essential agricultural legislation. A series of these amendments could be adopted without undermining the traditional form of government or upsetting the Democratic principles upon which it is based.

But if the proposal to amend the Constitution should take the form of abolishing the Supreme Court and limiting its powers, imposed on Congress by a constitutional amendment, it would be different.

We continue to say that the
exclusion of negroes from
negroes out.

Under such circumstances, the branches are divided into three branches: the legislative, the executive and the judicial. There are three branches of the government, each with its own branch of government and each with its own branch of administration. The legislative branch is the executive branch and the judicial branch.

Roosevelt Under Attack In Talks On Constitution

148th Anniversary Of Signing Of Pact Is Widely Celebrated

Associated Press
Denunciation and defense of the Roosevelt Administration dominated observances throughout the nation yesterday of the 148th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution.

At San Diego, Calif., former President Hoover warned that some activities of the federal government "are the same sort of first rapping of safeguards of human rights that have taken place in other lands. Here is the cause of anxiety and concern."

Secretary Roper, speaking at Alexandria, Va., called the amendment the "heartbeat of our constitutional system," and hinted that if New Deal measures are held invalid, the people within 10 years must decide whether they will give the federal government authority to take "bold, direct action" to "avert chaos."

Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the Republican National Committee said at New York that the "philosophy and practices of the New Deal are utterly foreign to the letter and spirit of the Constitution." He reiterated a previous

Storm Warnings Up On East Coast

JACKSONVILLE, Sept. 18.—(AP) Small craft warnings were ordered up today along the Atlantic Coast between Savannah and New Bern, N. C., as the Weather Bureau placed the center of a "gentle disturbance" about 100 miles east of Jacksonville moving northward. The Bureau said it was not really a storm as it apparently crossed Florida yesterday with no higher winds than 20 miles an hour.
