Auto Merger To Be Decided Saturday

NEW YORK, July 27.—(INS)—The Chrysler Corporation is expected to make a final decision tomorrow as to whether the company will go through with its proposed merger with Dodge Brothers. This merger, if effected, would mean an automobile combination ranking next to the Ford Motor Company and General Motors.

Rumors were current in Wall Street today that unless fully 90 percent of the Dodge stockholders assent to the plan it will be dropped. Published newspaper articles have asserted that the merger is being held up and possibly may be blocked by a small minority of Dodge stockholders.

SUPERB PLAY OF TILDEN SUBDUES FRENCH NET STAR

Rene LaCoste bows before
American Ace In Sustained
Upset; Gallery Acclaims Bill In Comeback

ROLAND GARROS STADIUM,

PARIS, July 27.—Bill Tilden, America's great ace, lifted himself to the very pinnacle of his game today by beating his arch rival, Rene LaCoste, of France, in the first day's singles of the Davis cup challenge round. The scores were 1-6, 6-4, 6-4, 2-6, and 6-3.

The victory, one of the most sensational Tilden has gained during his brilliant and fulsome career, came as America's vindication after his summary dismissal from the Davis cup team on charges of having violated the player-writer rule. Until the very eve of the challenge round, Tilden himself believed that his part in the matches would be that of a spectator. But, overnight, he was reinstated and returned to the fold in time to carry the American shield on to victory in the opening match.

It was cruel irony, at that, or at least it seemed so in the eyes of the French gallery, that it was France and not America that finally succeeded in gaining Tilden his hearing and his redemption. For the French feared the effect on the gate of Tilden's absence from the play, and, through Ambassador Herrick, prevailed upon the American authorities to permit Tilden to play. And how he did play once they got him there!

COX AND DAVIS JOIN CAMPAIGN FOR AL SMITH

Raskob Answers Bolt Movement With Announcement Of Enlistment Of Two Former Democratic Nominees

Ex-Ohio Governor Is Slated For Big Role

Governor Ritchie Of Maryland Arrives In Gotham With Smith

NEW YORK, July 27.—(INS)—Democratic campaign managers today answered the incipient "bolt movement" in the South with the announcement that two standard bearers of previous years had enlisted "for the duration of the war" in the front ranks of the aggressive Smith-Robinson forces.

They are James M. Cox of Ohio and John W. Davis of West Virginia, Democratic presidential nominees of 1920 and 1924 respectively.

Raskob told Chairman John J.

Ritchie, who came to New York yesterday to see the Tunney-Heaney bout, that he is subject to call for part the national executive committee may select for him in the campaign.

Cox, who came to New York yesterday to see the Tunney-Heaney bout, said that he is subject to call for part the national executive committee may select for him in the campaign.

Herbert Hoover today predicted a growth of world trade, with America sharing in a golden flood of prosperity.

The Republican nominee for president took occasion, in responding to a "great welcome home" celebration given him by San Francisco, to reveal his views on the world business situation. He proved this optimistic note.

Hoover spoke first of his early days on the coast, when he went around hunting a job. He told of a trip to Europe on a mission for the city of San Francisco, a trip that eventually won him world renown. And then, he talked on business conditions in the future. He declared the nations of the world are facing a gigantic trade boom with the Orient as the scene of tremendous struggle for business.

"Our foreign trade has grown greatly since the war," said Hoover, "until today, if we allow for the depreciated dollar, it is 50 percent greater than it was before the war. In the meantime, the other great nations engaged in the war are only recovering to the level of their pre-war trade."

The outlook for the world today is for the greatest era of commercial expansion in history.

The rest of the world will not finance "dry" organizations already springing up over the country for action in the presidential campaign.

This is the principal engineering feature of the new era of commercial expansion.

Hoover declared the "most priceless possession" of San Francisco was the city's trade with the Orient.

Soz. Y. Gama struck the key note of the meeting in his speech when he declared that Mexico required peace, peace based on justice.

Representatives of various groups of the party from all parts of the country met here last night and definitely approved this program of harmony.

As explained to the delegates by Deputy Antonio Diaz Soto, Y. Gama, Agrarian leader, the program calls for cooperation between President Calles and the other leaders of the Obregonista party and the elimination of all labor officials from all government offices.

The program also calls for election of Obregonista party members exclusively to the incoming Congress.

Brooklyn Slaughter Loop Leaders While New York Drives Two To Tigers; Boston Braves Down Chicago

NEW YORK, July 25—(INS)—

Leading big league clubs which piled up an imposing list of victories on their own grounds have made an impetuous start in every territory, and as a result of their defeats yesterday both of the pennant races are tighter today.

The St. Louis Cardinals were slaughtered by Brooklyn 8 to 1, the Dodgers scoring all their runs in one inning. The New York Yankees game a copper in Detroit and lost two games. The Philadelphia Athletics taking to the road like a duck to water, beat the White Sox twice and cut New York's lead to nine games.

The Boston Braves and the Phillies, who made such a miserable showing in the west, served notice that they are no pushovers on their home lot. Dutch Brandt of the Braves stopped Chicago, 3 to 1, despite Hack Wilson's 23rd homer, and the Phils held the Reds to an even break.

Lindstrom of the Giants hit a homer with two on base. Grantham of Pittsburgh duplicated thefeat, and then big Frank Hogan hit another homer which gave New York a 6 to 5 victory. The Giants now trail the second place Cubs by only two games.

After knocking out George Pipgras and nailing out the Yankees 2 to 2, the Tigers took a 10 to 7 slugfest from the champions. Stanmer and Van Gilder held the hammers to four hits in the opener. St. Louis ruined Washington's winning streak by trimming the Nats twice, 12 to 8 and 6 to 5, and Cleveland two-timed the Red Sox 10 to 2 and 15 to 5.

High lights of the various games were:

Hurst of the Phillies hit two homers; Autrey, Cleveland's second string catcher, made five hits in one game; Jumbo Jim Elliott, Brooklyn southpaw, held the slugging Cardinals to five hits; Cleveland walloped 34 hits in two games and jumped ahead of Washington into fifth place.

BOSTON, MASS., July 26—(INS)

Work proceeded on North Station Group; Demolition of East Wing of Old Station Is Started By Contractors

BOSTON, MASS., July 26—(INS)

Work on the New Boston and Maine $10,000,000 North Station group, which will be one of the outstanding railroad terminals of the country, is progressing swiftly. Workmen have begun demolition of the east wing of the old North station to make way for the four-story baggage, mail and express building, and the way has been cleared for the Million Dollar Thorofare which will provide a direct artery from Park square to the North Station.

The new North Station has already begun to take form to the thousands of persons who pass through it daily. The first phase has been completed and will be ready for formal opening early in the Fall, it was stated. The Coliseum above it will be finished the first part of November.

$1,000,000 Thorofare

To make possible the new Million Dollar Thorofare, 92 feet wide, the Boston and Maine has been taking up tracks and raising most of its freight houses in the Minot street area. The new station will give direct access between the North Station and the adjacent business district, and the Back Bay, Cambridge and other sections.

In order to clear the way for the construction of the new roadway, it was necessary to demolish the west wing of the old North station. The old Boston and Lowell station, which has served as temporary headquarters of the North Station during the construction period will also be razed when the new baggage unit is put into use.

The Thorofare will occupy all of the present 40-foot wide Nashua street and a strip 52 feet wide relinquished by the Boston and Maine, will take all of the site of the west wing and a large section of the Boston and Lowell unit.

Consideration is being given to the construction of a large modern hotel on part of the site that will be cleared with the destruction of the Boston and Lowell station to complete the new North Station group.

Progress on the New North Station and the Coliseum, and on the New North Station Industrial Building on the site of the old Pittsburgh depot, has been rapid, despite the delays occasioned by the general strike of steel workers.

A clear picture of the spacious and ample proportions of the facilities soon to be made available are given to contractors, who have been somewhat restricted during the early stages of construction, with the opening of the new concourse and the main entrance of the New North Station.

Though structurally complete the concourse and the new waiting room are still without finished floors, walls and ceilings. Marble work and other sidewalk finish is now being set, but it was stated, final plastering and furnishing must await the roofing of the new Coliseum over the station.

Great Coliseum

The Coliseum steel work has risen to an impressive height over nearly half the great seating capacity which will accommodate more than 18,000 persons at one time at sporting and other events to be staged under the management of the Boston Madison Square Garden.

Establishment of the North Station group, already representing a major transformation of the long established character of the North End, has now extended its influence as far west as Leverett street and the Charles River dam and well into the Charles River itself. The Minor street yards became a thing of the past as a freight loading area. For years their ground area was extended by trestles thrust into the river.

As part of the Million Dollar Thorofare "clean-up" the trestles are being removed, with its hundreds of great piles and thousands of heavy planks and bearing beams. Before long this will have been cleared to the shore line and the drawbridge, in mid-river with 100 feet of trestle north of it, will in turn be pulled out.

MIND TELEPATHY THEORY SCOUTED BY PROF. COOVER

Authority On Psychiatry Declares Fakers Are Responsible For Popular Notion Of Reading Of Minds

By STANLEY A. WEIGLE
International News Service Special Correspondent
STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif., July 27.

The human mind is still safe from prying eyes and mental telepathy and is no more likely in this day of television than it was in the dark ages in the opinion of Dr. John Edward Coover, Stanford and world authority in physical research.

"We see many fakirs," said Dr. Coover in an interview with a International News Service correspondent, "and we have many experiences that make us wonder if there isn't something in the popular notion of mental telepathy. But fakirs are fakirs nevertheless, and our surprising experiences are always explainable on some other ground than the popular notion of mind reading."

Common Thoughts

Dr. Coover cited the case of two persons, one of whom says something that the other person was thinking at just that time. They think it with mental telepathy, but what actually happened, unless it was mere coincidence, was that they both saw the same person, sign or thing and that common experience started a common train of thought.

This explains, according to Dr. Coover, the fact that twins frequently think much alike. The reason is that they have usually been together since childhood and shared the same experiences.

"Another everyday experience wrongly attributed to mental telepathy," says Dr. Coover, "is when John Jones thinks of Mary Smith and then Mary Smith appears."

It may be that John was thinking of Mary most of the time. But more likely John saw Mary out of the corner of his eye before he really thought he saw her and so started thinking of her."

No Mind Reading

Thus a boy absorbed in a dime novel forgets that he is sitting in a chair in his home. Yet, without being cognizant of it, he feels the chair and is dimly aware of the room.

Many fakirs have been exposed by Dr. Coover including Madame Ellis, who mystified thousands at the 1915 World's Fair in San Francisco. Madame Ellis' method was the common one of using a confederate with a code.

Dr. Coover pointed out that these codes need not be spoken. Thus, a blindfolded person could be an assistant by using a tiny finger mirror seen through the crack of a blindfold.

But as for genuine mind reading, there isn't any.

CONFEDERATE VET DIES

ATLANTA, Ga., July 25.—(INS)—Lorenzo Dow Grace, the oldest resident of the Confederate soldiers home here, died today. He was supposed to be 114 years old, claiming to have been in middle life when the war between the states broke out.

Daily Fashion Hint

A MODEL IN CONTRASTS

Many original color combinations may be used in this two-piece sport suit for trimming—If contrasting colors are not desired, the frock is equally effective made up in one material. The sleeves may be made in two-piece style, with pointed sections gathered to straight cuffs, or in long plain one-piece fashion. In light shades of flannel, this frock is ideal for the golfer, while in darker shades of crepe de Chine it makes a practical tailored street costume.

FUNERAL RELICS OF ANCIENT KING ARRIVE IN LONDON

Remains Of Eleven Women In Harem And 48 Slaves Tell Mute Story Of Murder At Ur's Final Rites

LONDON, July 27.—(INS)—Grim relics of the human sacrifices made at the funeral of the all powerful King of Ur, who ruled the ancient Mesopotamian Kingdom of Chaldea five thousand years ago, have reached London.

The remains of eleven women of the harem, blazing with gold jewels, six soldiers and forty-two male and female slaves, who were murdered in the dark underground tombs of this King so that they might serve their master in the next world, are included in this valuable collection, now on exhibition at the British Museum.

Considered the most important discoveries since the tomb of Tutankhamen was found in Egypt, these objects were dug up at Ur under the direction of the well-known archaeologist, Leonard Woolley.

Murdered People

When the tomb was opened it was found to be a charnel house of decayed bones. The murdered men and women lay as they had fallen against the walls and on the floors.

The skulls of the soldiers, crushed by the weight of the earth which had fallen on them, lay in copper helmets, turned bright green with age. The women of the harem were piled against the wall of the tomb chamber, their skeletons still wearing ornaments of beaten gold; beside them their make-up boxes in the form of little gold cockleshells and full of a hard green substance which 5,000 years ago had been face paint.

Thin bands of beaten gold, which the women twined in their hair, were visible around the skulls.

The most interesting object in the exhibition at the British Museum is the headdress of the mysterious Queen Shub-Ad. This queen's body is believed to have been placed in the tomb at a late date in order that she might lie near her husband.

Her skull being crushed, it was impossible to reconstruct her features, but the most perfect woman's skull in the tomb was taken and modelled after the face of the dead queen. On this the headdress has been arranged.

Fifty-Six Bodies

It is formed of coils of gold ribbon. Across the forehead is a band of lapis lazuli beads, from which hang heavy rings of bright gold. Higher up the headdress takes the form of two floral wreaths, one of mulberry leaves, the other of willow leaves, everyone beautifully formed of gold.

The final touch is a great gold urn which towers above the wreaths. It is like a seven-fingered hand, and from the fingers fall seven delicate golden flowers which swayed and tinkled together when she moved her head.

Exactly the same, fifty-nine men and women were murdered as a mystery, but from appearances it is believed they were all marshalled into the dim underground chamber and then, at a signal, slaughtered where they stood.

TO ATTEND AIR DERBY

RADIO CLEANUP UNLIKELY

WASHINGTON, July 27.—(INS)—

So much political pressure is being directed at the Federal Radio Commission to prevent the much needed wholesale reduction in broadcasting stations that there apparently is little chance for the government to "clear the air," and defer the listing public good reception next winter.

TO ATTEND AIR DERBY

John Henry Mears, journalist and B. D. Collyer, his air pilot, who last Sunday completed their record breaking circling of the globe, will attend the Atlantic air derby which will be held at Candler Field Saturday and Sunday, it was announced today.

A MUCH TRAVELED BEVERAGE

CANNED sauerkraut juice—travels over 74,294 miles of railroads throughout the United States, extending from the northern reaches of the Great Northern route to the southern extent of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas lines and from the eastern limits of the Central Railroad of New Jersey to the western end of the Texas and Pacific routes.

A nationwide investigation has brought out the fact that of forty-two important railroads in the United States which operate dining car services, fourteen, besides the large Western chain of Fred Harvey station restaurants, serve this healthful drink. And dining-car superintendents seem to be well pleased with the reception which sauerkraut juice gets from their patrons.

A Popular Beverage

The superintendent of dining car service on the Illinois Central System wrote: "I believe that this company was the first in this part of the country to use this product on all of its dining cars. We sell considerable of it. The Texas and Pacific Railway Company stated:
"We have been serving canned sauerkraut juice on our dining cars for some time and are having very good success with the same." From the Fred Harvey at Springfield, Mo., the superintendent of dining cars wrote: "We have been serving sauerkraut juice on our dining cars and in the eating houses of the Frisco and Santa Fe for some time.
We show it on the special selection of dishes of our breakfast meal that is made out each day.
We find the beverage to be reasonably popular with the traveling public."

The Kraut Cocktail

The most popular sauerkraut drink as it appears on the menus as a dinner cocktail or relish, or merely as an à la carte item, is "Canned Sauerkraut-Juice." Many housewives serve a "Kraut Cocktail" made as follows: mix two tablespoons tomato catsup, one-half tablespoon Worcester Sauce, one-half tablespoon sauerkraut juice and one-half tablespoon cream. Add a small ball of sauerkraut to a sherbet glass of this sauce mixture.
Garnish with a sprig of parsley and serve with celery and salted boda wafers.

White sauerkraut juice is packed in large containers for railroad hotels, and dining rooms, it is also packed in No. 3 cans containing two pounds net or one full quart for personal and family use.

For many centuries cabbage has been a favorite food of mankind.
There is on record a poem in praise of cabbage, written in Latin by one Macer Floridus, three and one-half centuries before Columbus discovered America. But it was the famous Merchant of the Pasteur Institute of Paris, who first drew the attention of the scientific world to the beneficial effects of sauerkraut.

Sauerkraut juice is a natural vegetable product made up of pure juice of cabbage to which salt has been added and which has been subjected to fermentation. For home use, as well as for traveling, a wine glass of sauerkraut juice before meals is an excellent appetizer.

FRIDAY JULY 27

A LOVE STORY

Oh! life was rather dull and tame
Until the day I met you,
And then across my path you came.

At once I vowed I'd get you,
Though making love was new to me.

And I was far from handy,
The thought occurred that I must be.

A purchaser of candy.

Then I began to rack my head
For gifts I could be buying
I bought you roses pink and red
To prove my love undying,
I bought you ribbons for your hair.

And books o'er which to finger,
And my devotion to declare—
A jewel for your finger.

And that was twenty years ago—
How quickly sweet time passes!
Acknowledge as your steady beau,
I bought you opera glasses.

I bought a pocketbook of gray,
The parasol you carried.
And then there came the happy day

That you and I were married.
Two-heads are better far than one;

That fact there's no denying.

For you have kept me going on

An endless round of buying.

But, oh, my dear, if still there be

A thing for which you sorrow,

Just mention what it is to me—

I'll have it here tomorrow!

Unwise Tactics

Last week, coast guard cutter C-209, patrolling the waters of Lake Erie, sighted the trim yacht belonging to Frank R. Raichle, prominent Buffalo attorney and partner of William J. Donavan, assistant to the U. S. Attorney General. Believing they stood a good chance to make a rich catch of liquor, guardmen opened fire and dropped five shells near the bow of the unsuspecting pleasure craft. Upon investigation the supposed rum boat turned out to be quite a different thing. Aside from not finding any contraband it was discovered that there were several women aboard and that the men were conspicuous by the lack of any stimulating spirits.

Without any word of apology the commander of the cutter realized his mistake made off, leaving the outraged party in a feeling of irate indignation. That their indignation was entirely warranted we believe to be the case, for to have one's favorite pastime interrupted by the crash of shell fire, especially at a time when the country is supposed to be at peace, is not a very pleasant thing to contemplate. But aside from this, by what change in the evolution of our country has it come about that our citizens cannot go about their business without being subjected to high-handed treatment and to possible injury to life and limb? Has the world freedom come to mean so little that a man's safety can be jeopardized by law enforcers without a general feeling of public resentment?

While we believe the laws of this country should be enforced we cannot help but resent practices of wanton disregard for certain rights which we like to think belong to all American citizens. It is regrettable that many in constituted authority have been so arrogant and ignorant in the performance of their duties that they have done much to militate public sentiment against the roots of good government respect for law.

Conservatism In Aviation

Tremendous strides have been made in the field of aviation during the past few years, particularly in the last decade. It was an important factor in the World War and has played an even greater part in the commercial activities of the nations. Its potentialities have been demonstrated in the air mail, passenger carrying lines and in the transportation of freight.

The most notable achievements in recent progress of aviation have been confined to the construction of giant planes with super-motors capable of traveling great distances and withstanding the most adverse weather conditions. Flights across oceans and continents and endurance tests have shown the possibilities of the air but perfection of these potentialities lies in future development.

There is much room for improvement, so much so that Commander Richard E. Byrd sounds a warning note that the public must not expect too much in such a brief time. Ocean air service, giant air liners and air flyvers may come, he says, but they are not here yet.

"We are in a seventh heaven of self-esteem," declares Commander Byrd, "over this thrilling matter of human flight, which the Wrights have made possible. Being an imaginative people, we cannot resist the temptation to speculate extravagantly about the future of aviation."

Pointing out further that aviation progress must be along conservative lines and yet predicting that flying's future holds achievements that are not dreamed of today, Commander Byrd in the Forum Magazine continues:

"The art of flying has been much hurt by air enthusiasts, I admit. There have been too many predictions that have not yet come true. That is why many of us try hard to steer a middle course. But for all my conservatism I am confident that flying has a future as yet undreamed of."

"Though I look for no immediate spectacular advance in flying, I do believe that design will be slowly improved, performance enlarged, and safety increased every year. I think the so-called 'flyer,' or small private plane is practical today and will soon be built in quantities at a cost of from $10,000 to $20,000. The popular size will carry two or three passengers and be built for safety rather than for speed."

GENERAL SUMMERRALL
CHICAGO TRIBUNE

The present Chief of Staff is to be as well prepared as possible to make good use of them on the war. General Summerrall is doing his best to keep our professional soldiers from lapsing into the inertia of peace times. He is compelling them to think and to act. He is testing as far as the means provided him permit new methods and new material.

How essential this is to national defense the average civilian, of course, does not realize. But many civilian soldiers and especially the veterans who were in France know that the technique of modern war is growing ever more complicated and that modern physical science and modern mechanics are compelling great changes in tactics and organization. This new knowledge is, moreover, not static but is constantly changing, and it is of utmost importance that American military thought should be moving with it and contributing to it. If we are compelled to go to war on a modern scale the industrial, economic and scientific resources of the nation must be drawn upon as quickly and efficiently as possible, and the military forces must be as well prepared as possible to make good use of them on the war.

General Summerrall also proposes, if possible, to have maneuvers on a scale which will give practice to the higher officers in the handling of considerable bodies of troops and this intention should be supported by public opinion. Congress may prove, as it usually does, penny wise and pound foolish, but the influence of civilian soldier opinion may induce more intelligent provision for this highly profitable and necessary training. Of course, at best, maneuvers must be skeleton, but a deal of training in staff work can be given as planned by General Summerrall with officers of the regular army, National Guard and reserve, employing the signal corps and some other necessary troops. No real concentration of troops is contemplated but the framework of operations will be created, with staff organization, posts and communications as if an enemy were in the field. Operations will be planned and carried out so far as the staff work concerned.

THE WHOLE TOWN
LAKE COUNTY CITIZEN

The following story reminds us of an incident that happened here a few years ago—when an ex-major bought some books that he didn't pay for right away, so he received three letters, one addressed to a prominent attorney, so the postmaster gave it to him, another to the mayor of the city, and another to the chief of police. His answer was similar to the following:

"I received your letter telling me I had better pay up.

"I am the railroad agent here and received the letter you wrote the agent.

"I am the president and sole owner of the local bank and can assure you as to my financial standing.

"As the mayor of the city, I shall have to refer you to a lawyer, since I am the only member of the bar in this vicinity.

"If I were not the pastor of the only church here, I would tell you

MEXICO'S AFFLICTION

wise prove.

While the American people have become used to the frequent outbreaks in Mexico, in its innumerable outbreaks and revolutions, yet the news of the killing of Obregon, the president-elect of the republic, was received here with horror and sorrow.

It is most unfortunate that this trouble should come to our sister republic, for the many questions between that country and ours that have caused both them and us considerable anxiety were in a fair way to be settled most amicably. Most of the problems have been disposed of. With a few more months of quietness and peace in Mexico all would have been solved and nothing remain to imperil the good feeling between the two nations.

The country will sorrow with Mexico over the severe loss that country has sustained in the death of Obregon. It will indulge the hope that no serious national disturbances will result, and that peace will be maintained within her borders.

It takes a smart person to spell and play schafkopf. —Atchison Globe.

There are seven million Smiths in the United States. If they all vote for Al, will they elect him? Nearly two million Smiths are listed in telephone directories. Usually only one member of the family is listed. In every city the Smiths lead in numbers, except in Minneapolis and St. Paul where Johnsons have a large lead.

Johnson is second to Smith throughout the entire country. With a Johnson for Vice-President on the Smith ticket, it might sweep the country. The Houston Convention didn't think of that.

Capper's Weekly.

AL SMITH'S "NOPE"
DETROIT NEWS

plied with an indignant "Nope?" It simply can't be done. The great men of history, Socrates, Moses, Galileo, Shakespeare, Washington, are never quoted as having said "nope" to anyone, because it is not a stately word. It is comfortable; it flows from the mouths of men who have had days let their suspenders hang over their hips. "No" is sometimes brutal; "nope" never.

It is a mild, friendly negative, almost affectionate; husbands use it to their wives, fathers to their children, and Tammany statesmen to their followers.

It is not as final as "nix," but almost; at any rate, when Al Smith said "nope" there were no more questions asked.

LINDBERGH'S EARNINGS
NEW YORK HERALD-TIMES

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, according to the Treasury Department's computations, cleared at least $204,000 during the last six months of 1927. A good round sum, but one which none will begrudge him. The inspiration which he has given every one and the excellent reputation which he has given the United States in foreign countries cannot be measured in money and could never have been bought, no matter how strenuous or how conscious an effort had been made.

One wonders what he will do with this fortune, which is so sure to increase as he wings his successful way through life. He has no dependents and has none of those pleasant and costly vices which make a fortune disappear like sand before the wind. Even if he had a tendency toward dissipation—which he has not—he would have to keep himself in good condition to fly so far and so steadily.

This fortune of his will make him an even more interesting young man to watch, for one is always sure that he will do the right thing. Even if one forgets his stupendous flights, his capacity, paradoxical in an aviator, for keeping his feet on the ground, would make him unique. One wonders, for instance, how much money he could have made had he accepted only a fraction of the offers which came his way.

But he has steadfastly refused to commercialize himself. Unlike so many aviators and "aviatrices," his portrait adorns his advertisement, we never will. He is ideal and his work not come in dollars.
