

NICETO ZAMORA ELECTED SPAIN'S NEW PRESIDENT

Declares He Will Try Not To Be Dictator During His Regime

MADRID, Dec. 11.—(A.P.)—Niceto Zamora, sometimes called "father of the Spanish republic," was elected first constitutional president of Spain by the national assembly last night. He received 362 votes out of a possible 466. A few deputies divided their votes among five other candidates, and the rest abstained from voting.

The president-elect remained away from the chamber during the voting. His wife and his two young daughters, who clung to his neck and wept with joy, accompanied him to the chamber. "I'll try not to be a dictator during my tenure," said the president-elect, a farmer's son in an unpressed suit who will head the country ruled not so long ago as a monarchy by King Alfonso XIII. The president-elect will take over the executive power in a gala inauguration Friday, replacing Provisional President Manuel Azana, who is expected to become premier in a new coalition cabinet. It will be a national holiday as the president takes the oath of office, to mark the first day of a new constitutional government after more than eight years of dictatorships and provisional cabinets.

Don Alcala Zamora, who served as provisional president after Alfonso's overthrow, will wear the collar of the order of Isabella the Catholic, created by his late enemy, the former dictator, Gen. Primo de Rivera. Alcala Zamora was a monarchist until the beginning of the dictatorship in 1923, when he turned republican and later organized the finally successful

Truckman Injured As His Vehicle Is Sideswiped, Upper

MAISON, Ga., Dec. 11.—(A.P.)—W. L. Gross, Chattanooga, truckman en route home from Florida, was burned severely about the legs yesterday as his truck was sideswiped and left the highway near here, turned over and caught fire.

Gross and a companion, Gordon Barnes, also of Chattanooga, were temporarily trapped within the cab while a 20-gallon tank of gasoline on the running board spilled a stream of liquid over a hot exhaust pipe, causing the fire. The two men broke the windshield and door windows to crawl to freedom as flames enveloped their machine. Gross was burned before he was finally able to extricate himself. He and Barnes also suffered minor cuts in the accident.

Doctor Edwards To Speak At Banquet

Three U. S. Jurists Hear Drainage Case

TAMPA, Dec. 11.—(A.P.)—Judge Rufus Foster, New Orleans, member of the federal circuit court of appeals and Judges Halsted Ritter and Alexander Akerman, Florida federal jurists, heard evidence here today in a suit by landowners in the Oklawaha flood control district questioning state laws under which it was formed. The three-man court was formed because a state law is involved in the suit over the validity of the whole project on which work, costing $10,000,000 has been approved by federal government engineers. Florida and the United States are to co-operate in carrying out the project.

Student Conduct At Florida Is Praised

GAINESVILLE, Dec. 11.—(A.P.)—In his second address of the year to freshmen students of the University of Florida, President John J. Tigert yesterday described the conduct of the students as "virtually flawless."

"Our discipline committee met only twice all last year, and has had no occasion whatever to assemble this fall. Through the office of the dean of students," Dr. Tigert said, "I have reports to show not only much improved scholastic records, but general conduct that is little short of amazing."

Powers Found Guilty in Death of Mrs. Benke

(Continued from Page One) heard slayings at Quiet Dell. About the jury, in the center of a brightly lighted stage, sat the man whose doom they were sealing in a little brown verdict envelope. If Powers had any but a passing concern in what was being decided downstairs, he hid it.

His attorney, who had wept and clutched a table to support himself as he begged the jurors for "mercy-sympathy," was the only one on the stage who displayed any concern.

He paced back and forth, apparently oblivious to the 1300 spectators whose eyes were fixed upon him and his gum-chewing client.

Whenever J. Ed Law, defense counsel, sat down, Powers leaned over and engaged him in an earnest conversation conducted in a whisper. But it was not the talk of a man seeking sympathy. Egan when the tears had rolled down the cheeks of his lawyer, the man branded as "one of the worst assassins the world has ever known," maintained his unshakable expression. He seemed puzzled by Law's display of emotion.

The spectators, who have fought ever since the trial opened for seats in the orchestra pit and balcony, sat in quiet expectancy for a few minutes after the jury retired, when an hour had passed without a report from the basement dressing room, they started sending out for sandwiches. Messengers busy dashed up and down the aisles with paper bags as the crowd settled back, prepared for a long wait.

Outside, several milled about the roped-off street. They examined the alley leading to the stage, out of which Powers had been led twice a day to be photographed, stared at and whistled away under heavy guard to the jail.

When the jury filed back to the stage, a hush fell over the opera

WINTER LAYS COLD HAND ON WESTERN AREA

(Continued from Page One) said there were no unusually low temperatures anywhere to move in behind the rains.

The official forecast called for rains over most of the South during today, but the opinion was expressed that they probably would be light in the eastern reaches of the cotton belt.

Overcast skies which had hampered commercial flying operations for several days cleared up by noon yesterday, and the aerological weather bureau here reported flyable conditions all over the Southeast. Westward, in the vicinity of Shreveport, La., the low pressure area in New Mexico and Colorado caused clouds and fog. Texas was getting rain.

The New York and Augusta flights of Eastern Air Transport were cancelled at Atlanta yesterday, but later in the day conditions on those lines cleared up. E. A. T.'s Florida plane got away.

STUART—Cut-off road connecting old and new Dixie highways at south end of town, will be built immediately by State Road Department.

Disturbed conditions in Manchuria, which he blamed largely on the Japanese occupation, must not be made a pretext for further Japanese military activity, he said. He specified that the first duty of the commission on inquiry should be to investigate and report on the progress of evacuation.

Aristide Briand, who has been

G. O. P. Group Has Launched Drive Against Hoover

(Continued from Page One) Hoover policies but has declined so far to step into the presidential race. The name of Charles G. Dawes, ambassador to England, also is heard in the speculation.

Mann did not discuss those to be associated with him except to say they were "regular Republicans."

"If the next Republican convention, manipulated by and composed of any considerable number of the Hoover patronage machine, re-nominates Mr. Hoover," said Mann, "it will be an utterly useless gesture by the Republicans which will result in certain and calamitous defeat in November, 1932."

He pointed to the capture of the House by the Democrats in recent elections and referred particularly to the Republican upsets in Michigan, New Jersey and Kentucky.

Mann broke with President Hoover shortly after the new administration took office in 1929. (They differences were said to center about southern patronage.)

Chairman at this difficult session, described the role of the investigation commission as providing the council with complete information regarding the Manchurian troubles.

Lord Cecil of England placed the chief responsibility for the success of the scheme on the Chinese and Japanese themselves.

"It would be easy for either of them to destroy the work we have done," he said, "but I am sure this will not happen. If it did the aggressor would bear a heavy load of responsibility."

It probably will require several days. It has been suggested that the commission is likely to go to Manchuria early next year.

Elizabeth Jackson, also from Longwood, writes as follows: "Dear Santa Claus I want a big doll that can talk and walk and a great big ball and please don't forget a little dress and also a little toilet set and a scouter and a sock horse and a little stove and a horn and some apples and nuts and some candy. Thank you."

"Dear Santa," writes Joyce Adams, "I am a little girl seven years old. I would like a doll house and a doll, and don't forget my big yellow kitty. Love."

Alfred Erickson, Jr., Route 2, Box 256, writes: "Dear Santa: I am a little boy 10 years old and I am telling you what I want. I want a diamond base-ball bat and I want some nuts and candy. Please bring me a B. B. gun, if you have one to spare. Please come to my house Christmas. I guess I will close my letter now so, You're truly."

Longwood has a little girl who writes Santa Claus as follows. Her name is Betty Overstreet. "I want you to bring me that big doll in the Sears, Roebuck catalogue on page 583 that says 'move her' head 'Genuine Horseman model'. And a bicycle and I will be sure to hang up my stockings and I want you to fill it full with lots of toys. With love."

BRUSSELS, Dec. 11.—(A.P.)—The chamber of deputies yesterday authorized the government to continue negotiations with France, Holland and England for an economic understanding and enlarging common markets.

The chamber's action was a defeat for the socialists, who had urged that negotiation be aimed specifically at economic union involving Belgium, France and Holland.

Liberals and Catholics combined to defeat this project. The chamber's vote was construed as an expression of confidence in the government.

Your Responsibility

It's a great idea to carry your own load. Sometimes your shoulders ache under it, sometimes it appears to be a long hill that you have to carry it up. Yet it is all a part of life. It's yours to carry and the responsibility of taking it along rests entirely on your own shoulders. There are many ways quite a few of us shirk our responsibility. Sometimes a husband does it at the dinner table when he is supposed to carve meat for the guests and permits his wife to do it. Sometimes a school child does it by having an older brother or sister do all or part of his homework.

Then there is the social parasite who goes out with several friends for dinner and fumbles hopelessly when the check is presented. A responsibility shirker operates in various ways to keep from holding up his end of an undertaking. He is the one who hesitates when something is proposed. He is the fellow who wants the other man to pay as he goes, and who does not want to pay himself. As a child, he starts hiding from his mother when an errand is to be done, and he ends in later life letting other people do things for him that he should be doing himself.

Later on—and often when it is too late—he realizes that he has shirked his responsibility. Nothing is more pathetic than witnessing the belated efforts of a shirker, who seeks in a mad flurry to right a lifetime of wrongs in a few short months or years.

If you find that your fellow man does not hold you in the esteem you would like him to; if your friends and your relatives and even those in your intimate family regard you coolly; if your employer allots the doing of a task to another man in your organization which you should do, take stock of yourself, find out if you have been carrying your own load.

Refusal to accept responsibility is the greatest means of creating a lack of confidence. If you would have others trust you and respect you, do your full share and for good measure, occasionally do just a little bit more than your share.

Complimenting Seminole

A splendid illustration of the type of publicity which Sanford has been receiving of late is found in the Miami Herald which praises this city for its resourcefulness in coming back despite financial difficulties. Such editorial comments on our local development are the kind of advertising which money cannot buy and are given, we may rest assured, only when merited. We take pardonable pride in living in a community about which the Miami Herald can say:

"Despite its financial troubles, there is no time for anything but progress and development in the smiling city of Sanford. Another evidence of good times is being prepared for December 15, when Seminole County Progress day will bring thousands from central Florida to pay homage to the Celery City."

"Opening of a canning plant to employ 225 persons, arrival of a large new river boat, named The City of Sanford; dedication of a new airport, and observance of improved rail facilities will be high lights of the day, coupled with an address by Gov. Doyle E. Carlton and a magnificent parade."

"What Sanford and Seminole County are doing other counties of this state could with profit imitate. We are at the threshold of a new winter season. Thousands of people from other states will be arriving, their minds filled with financial gloom and the scenes of destitution of the Northern winter. What could be more impressive than the sight of flourishing Florida celebrating good times with festal and festival and boasting of being the best place in the country to live?"

"All the advertising Florida could place would be pale and listless compared to the enormous advertising power of apparent prosperity. This is the time for showmanship. If Florida is to capitalize upon the advantages her people enjoy. Take a tip from Seminole County, you other neighbors of Florida, and let's show these tourists what good times look like."

SHALL HOME OWNERS BE PENALIZED?

While President Hoover's confidence in home ownership is still fresh in thought there have come to notice two instances of a condition in the laws of certain states which, probably without intention, sometimes places a penalty on home ownership.

A woman in a Pacific coast state whose husband, a carpenter, has had only a few days' work in many months, applied substantially as last to the county trustee board for aid. This couple owned a home which they had built for themselves. They had obtained through fire insurance the proceeds through fire insurance of their effort. To accomplish they had moved to another town, leaving the house empty for months to keep up payments on the loan. They and their children were in the state hospital, and the state had no other resources.

CARY HARDEE ANNOUNCES

TAMPA TRIBUNE

Making it clear that he will make his race on his own record and not as the candidate of spokesman of any other administration or faction, Cary A. Hardee formally announces his candidacy for Governor. Holding the office from 1921 to 1925, Mr. Hardee mentions that he found facing him, when he began his administration, conditions "of reaction and near panic" immediately following the World War. He offers as the achievements of his administration "wholesome policies," including re-organization of departments, practical economy, the actual beginning of highway building as a statewide system—and that he left the state government to his successor, "without a dollar of indebtedness, not one dollar had been borrowed from one fund and placed in another, there were large balances in the state treasury to the credit of every fund." Mr. Hardee asserts: "What we did then we can do again, and I promise it shall be done."

Quoting figures, Mr. Hardee shows that the annual expense of the state increased from $15,000,000 in 1921, when he went out of office, to $41,000,000 in the succeeding four years. "Such an increase," he says, "was not justified. Efficiency does not necessarily result from a lavish expenditure of money. Extravagance is not only hurtful to the taxpayers, but does not necessarily produce any beneficial result." He promises to "eliminate every unnecessary expense; abolish every useless office; stop the reckless creation of money-spending agencies; cut out the fat; make every dollar do its full duty just as a good business man does in the conduct of his private affairs. Same, sensible economy shall be my watchword." This being a preliminary announcement, the former Governor does not go into details as to his fiscal or other policies, but gives the public plainly to understand that he will work for equitable taxation, "orderly progress" in every department, support of schools, cultivation of the tourist business, better marketing for Florida crops, fair dealing with municipalities. "I want to see good, orderly government in Florida, and am willing to devote four years arduous work to that end."

Cary Hardee's candidacy will immediately command a large support throughout the state and this, doubtless, will be increased as he continues his active campaign. No fault can be found with the declaration he makes in this announcement. Naturally, with the race logically developing itself into one between two former Governors, the people will be called upon to compare the records of the two in office and to judge from those records and from the character, ability and reliability of the men themselves what may be expected of either of them if recalled for another term in the same office.

The campaign will be unique in that it will be the first in which former occupants of the office have been opposing candidates. Only two former Governors have offered themselves for re-election, after the constitutional interim—Dixie, who succeeded; Catta, who failed. It will be also interesting to watch if any of the dozen or more other candidates develop sufficient speed to get into the running with the two ex-Governors.

brings no income because members of that family, like themselves, are out of work. Again, official regulations stand in the way of aid. And taxes must be paid on the house. Legislatures might well consider whether relief laws ought to draw such rigid lines against the person who, for all his ownership of a certain kind of property, may be in actual want. But laws and ordinances can hardly be changed at once. The many unemployment relief committees which have just raised or are raising funds by private contribution all over the United States can meet this exigency more readily than official bureaus. To them is commended the case of the family mentioned, that is trying to get out of mortgage, food and clothing, to hold its slender, mortgage-burdened thread of title to a home.

CHASE DIAMOND BALL TEAM WINS OVER CLEANERS

Ties Up League Leadership With 8 To 7 Victory Last Night

By E. H. CULLUM

Chase diamond ball team tied up for league leadership with the Seminole Dry Cleaners, by defeating the Dry Cleaners last night 8 to 7 in one of the best played games of the season.

Jesse Cook was in the box for Chase and hurled one of his last games. Although nipped for 10 hits, he clamped down in the pinches and allowed only seven runs. He did not walk a single batter and struck out nine. Outside of the very first inning, when the Dry Cleaners put over three runs, he was never in any real danger, the Dry Cleaners adding one more run in the 2nd, one in the fifth, one in the seventh and one in the 8th. In the ninth inning, with the score standing 8 to 7 in favor of Chase, L.J. Dodge, first up for the Dry Cleaners, popped out; Jack Tills singled, stole second and third. Knight flew out. Johnny Hodge up. Johnny had previously hit a triple and a home run. With the triple run on third, Johnny sent one down the right field line that would have been a home run in any game, however, the ball went foul by inches, and also the Dry Cleaners chances of bagging the game went glimmering, as Johnny lifted the next pitched ball on a high fly to short left, which Cordell, after a long sprint got, thus ending the game.

Hodge pitched for the Dry Cleaners, and although he allowed the Chase crew only four hits, his wildness in the fourth and fifth innings, walking four batters in those two innings, coupled with in-field errors, the Chase team was able to put over the necessary runs to win the game.

Miles was the heavy hitter for the Dry Cleaners, getting a single and a home run out of four trips to the plate. Johnny Hodge was next in line with two out of five, a triple in the first inning and a home run in the fifth.

Boy Britt came near establishing a record for striking out, going down by the strike-out route three times in succession. However, he more than made this up by his excellent fielding. Especially is this true when he went far back to get Cordell's fly in deep center. Jack Tills also played a sensational game in the field, and great credit is also due Kelly for the manner in which he handled the third base position.

Taken all in all it was a great game and thoroughly enjoyed by all present, both teams battling on fairly even terms, and not definitely decided until the last man was out.

Tonight The Sanford Herald and Bryan's Sporting Goods store cross bats. The Herald defeated Bryan's last time they met, and the Bryan team will be out tonight to avenge the defeat if possible.

On Sunday afternoon the Dry Cleaners will go to New Smyrna to engage the New Smyrna All Stars.

NAVAL GRIDDERS MAY GIVE CADET TEAM SURPRISE

Midshipmen May Turn Tables On Army As It Did Against Irish

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(A.P.)—Navy's chances of surprising the Army, just as the Cadets dumfounded Notre Dame, came in for serious consideration last night as the two service eleven's made ready to move on New York for battle in the name of charity.

Partly through weather forecasts that rain will fall again before Saturday, and perhaps even that day on the crowd of 80,000 that is expected to jam the big Yankee stadium, Navy has become the favorite of the "hunch" players.

Despite defeat this season by Maryland, Notre Dame, Ohio State and Southern Methodist, the Midshipmen headed last night for New York and training quarters at Hyde park, because of last Saturday's victory over Pennsylvania. Navy turned in that surprise by the margin of a lone touchdown, but in the very manner that may bring discomfiture to the Army.

All season long, in defeat at Pittsborough and Harvard, and the at Yale, the Cadets, despite a powerful line and a squad of fine backs, have shown weak on defense against long passes. And that was the day Navy beat Penn "Bullet" Joe Kirm tossed a long scoring pass to Joe Tetrigi, his fleet backfield mate. He will be tossing again Saturday.

Army, headed by Capt. Jack Price, will come down the line from West Point today, still riding the high wave that carried it to victory over Notre Dame. The Cadets will be quartered and worked out for the last time at Briarcliffe Manor, outside the city.

It appeared last night that the 80,000 seats in the Fall park would be filled with the unemployment fund paying to the extent of about $400,000. The game will start at 1:10 P. M. (E. S. T.) and will be broadcast over two national networks.

WINS GRID TROPHY

Hendrix Lyles, senior halfback of Coach McLucas' Seminole High school 1931 football eleven who, voted the most valuable player on the team, received the annual Peter Schaal silver trophy. He received eight of the 13 votes cast by judges. Lyles, rangy and well-built, is one of Florida's outstanding high school punters, his average distance for the season being 44 yards on 55 punts. Lyles gained 401 of the 1980 yards his team made from scrimmage; 17 first downs; threw 14 of the 36 successful passes the team completed, and scored seven of the 28 touchdowns made. Judges declared him the most valuable man because his scholastic average was high; he is believed to have observed all training rules; he played in more than half the

GEORGIA GUARDS MAY PUT CRIMP IN TROJAN PLAY

Stopping Of Attacks At Center Of Line May Upset U. S. C.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 11.—(A.P.)—A couple of sariel-topped guards, Red Leathers and Red Maddox, may disrupt the famous Trojan power play when Georgia meets the University of Southern California gridsters Saturday.

It was a pair of St. Mary's guards, Capt. Bill Fischer and Mike Stepanovich, who turned the trick when Southern California was beaten Sept. 26, but no other team has been able to muster the necessary strength at these positions since.

The Georgia record shows that Maddox and Leathers, 170 and 191 pounds, respectively, have been pretty hard to deal with all season. And if the Trojans are stopped at the center of the line, all may not be well for them within Olympic stadium walls two days hence.

Coach Howard Jones' team has been successful on its reverses and laterals as well as the occasional forward pass, but ability to crack just inside the tackles has been the primary factor in making the other plays workable.

Georgia will be hampered by the absence of Jack Roberts, who besides being a hard plunging full-back, is a great defensive star.

Coach Henry Mehre took the Bulldogs to motion picture studios yesterday, he appeared at every practice session, day and night, or had a valid excuse, and he displayed model sportsmanship on and off the field during the entire season. He is the fourth winner of the award, Lofton Edenfield, brilliant end, being awarded trophies in 1928 and 1929, and George Mays, sensational half-back, winning the award in 1930.

ECONOMY MOVES ARE EFFECTED IN MAJOR LEAGUES

Estimated Slashes Of Ten Per Cent Are In Sight For Players

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(A.P.)—A wave of drastic economy swept the ranks of major league baseball yesterday.

Cornered by a sharp decline in attendance at their parks, the club owners of the two major circuits voted to economize by trimming the players' limit from 25 to 23 and by substantially reducing operating expenses, notably by cutting players' salaries.

No definite amount was set by the action to cut players' salaries, but the general opinion was that the matter should be left to the discretion of each club owner. Ten percent was the estimated wage slash. A share of what was accomplished by the reduction in player limit, which will save each club approximately $10,000 annually.

In their action to reduce salaries, the majors followed that already taken by virtually every yesterday morning and then put them through their last hard workout at Tournament park, Pasadena, in the afternoon. More defensive work against the Trojan shift was in order, followed by a lengthy drill on Georgia's pass plays. The second team scrimmaged as the Trojans.

At Harvard field, Los Angeles, Southern California was given another secret workout, but it was known that Coach Jones was giving much attention to the Bulldog passing attack.

The Trojans have showed a fair pass defense since the St. Mary's game but are stronger on protecting against short tosses than the long variety expected from the Georgians.

The fight to trim the player limit was led successfully by the second division clubs of the American and National leagues, which argued that players were sitting on the bench of stronger clubs which they could use themselves to good advantage. American league club owners voted to reduce the limit to 22 while the National league stood out for 23. Each voted as a unit so Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, cast the deciding vote for a limit of 23. The option limit of 15 for each club was not affected.

Both major leagues will be forced to adhere strictly to their respective schedules in 1932. The club owners voted that synthetic doubleheaders, whereby games are moved up to make attractive doubleheaders, violate the schedule rules. Henceforth, no club or clubs can arrange such synthetic doubleheaders without the consent of the presidents of both leagues.

The 1932 major league season will open on April 17 and close Sept. 25 with another schedule of 154 games. The schedule, adopted at yesterday's meeting, will be the shortest in major league history. This year, the season closed Sept. 27.

Three members of the minor league's "big five" committee conferred with the major league club owners in an effort to acquaint their big brothers of baseball with their problem of financial difficulties. The majors appointed a two-man committee of Branch Rickey, vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Billy Evans, general manager of the Cleveland Indians, to study the situation with the minors. The three committeemen of the minor leagues, appearing before yesterday's joint meeting, were Judge William G. Bramham, chairman of the committee and president of the Piedmont league; Joe Carr, Columbus, Ohio, assistant secretary of the St. Paul American association club, and Ross C. Harriott, president of the Terre Haute club of the Three Eye league.

Grand's Report On U. S. Visit Is Well Received

Grand sized the possibility and desirability of settling the naval differences between France and Italy. He called the Hoover moratorium the "first real act of international co-operation" and the first attempt to rise above the "tragic habit and credit balances written with the blood of 10,000,000 men who will never see the sun again."

Recalling that America supported his suggestion for an armaments truce, the foreign minister remarked that the truce and the Hoover moratorium were inspired by the same ideals. Both truce and moratorium are provisional, he added, "but are leading to practical and immediate results."

"Both sprang from the same spirit, the spirit of more real and more active co-operation amongst nations, and from the same purpose," he said.

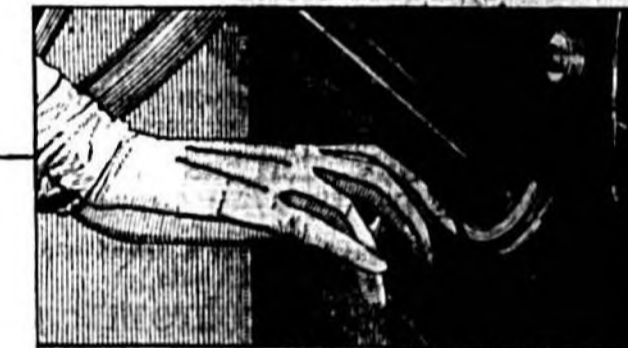

Signor Grand emphasized his admiration for "the broadmindedness, the generous and intelligent understanding of international problems, that President Hoover and the American statesmen constantly carry to their work."

"In the arduous and determined efforts the world is making to overcome the difficulties confronting it," he continued, "this work constitutes one of the surest courses and cannot fail to inspire deep confidence.

"Never as today has it been so clearly shown that the interests of all nations are strictly interdependent, that the misfortune of one will never be the fortune of another, and that in the welfare of all lies the welfare of each.

"I believe that the United States and Italy can work together within the sphere of international co-operation."
