Since the Senate has passed that Florida's biggest industry is the tourist business. During the past winter, according to official estimates, 1,700,000 visitors spent $250,000,000 in this state. That is not the biggest since the boom of the largest in the history of the state. Back in 1924 and 1925 Florida may have been more crowded, but that was because there was not so much room to crowd. New streets, new hotels, new houses, new apartments, make Florida better able to take care of two million tourists today than a million ten years ago.

"Struggling Upward"

Had he died in any other times than those, the death of Adolph Ochs would be the occasion to point out a perfect example of the little fellow who made good in a big way. A self-made man in every sense of the word, one who got his start in the world at a very tender age as a printer's devil, with little schooling and no background or financial backing at all, he once might have been labeled as a Horatio Alger hero or the subject of one of the success stories which a few years ago were so popular. He was typical of the rugged individualists who took advantage of America's opportunities.

Imagine a boy starting out in the South shortly after the Civil War to make his fame and fortune. There was nothing but destruction and desolation everywhere when his family settled in Knoxville in 1863. But young Ochs got a job delivering papers at the age of twelve, and a few years later was starting out as a printer's devil at two dollars a week. By the time he was twenty he had gone to Chattanooga where he made a few hundred dollars publishing a city directory.

With $250 of the money he had made, he bought into the dinky little Chattanooga Times. The price for his half interest was $1,750, but Ochs could make a down payment of only $250. Two years later he decided he wanted the other half too and he was willing to pay $7,500 for it. For fifteen years he slaved over this Chattanooga paper and made it one of the great newspapers of the South.

Then in 1896, while still a comparatively young man, he decided to go to New York. There he found the badly battered, practically defunct Times struggling against the newer but circulation building yellow journals. He thought there was a field, even in New York, for a decent newspaper one which would print all, and only, the news that's fit to print. So he organized a company and bought the old New York Times.

Employing about 100 persons, with a circulation of scarcely 20,000, doing an annual business of only $500,000, Mr. Ochs' controlling interest in the Times cost him but $75,000, profits from his Chattanooga venture, launched on $250. A quarter of a century later, the New York Times was employing 3,200 persons, enjoying a select circulation of some 400,000 subscribers, doing an annual gross business of $25,000,000.

But it is not as a financial success that the New York Times deserves most consideration and Mr. Ochs' highest praise. At a time when other journalists were pandering to the baser instincts of a degraded population, and making a success out of it when social critics and sex were suddenly recognized as the chief attractions of journalism, he staked his success on the highest type of journalism. He published the greatest and most respected newspaper of his day.

For this he should be remembered. But what will the capitalist and the capitalist who ran a $250 investment up into the millions.

Florida Leads

That Florida is the largest state in the nation in the number of automobiles registered is no longer a subject for surprise. The state has led in this respect since 1927. In 1933 the number of automobiles registered in Florida was 1,000,000, or 10 percent more than in any other state.

The reason for this is not that Florida is a wealthy state, but that it is a state where the automobile is the most important mode of transportation. The state has a large population, and a large area, and the automobile is the most convenient way of getting from one place to another.

SANFORD MIAMI HERALD

Other sections of Florida are moving forward at new rapidity in the Herald revival. There is a general wave of prosperity and optimism coupled with sound reasoning.

For example, H. M. Pappworth, president, and Earl Robinson, secretary of the Seaside County Chamber of Commerce, declare that Sanford and Seaside County will make more substantial progress in March than in any six-month period during the last five years.

They point to the completion and dedication of the $200,000 Lakeland boulevard project, for which the people have been working 10 years. The Atlantic Coast Line railroad handled more than 1,000 cars of outgoing freight, largely shipments of vegetables, passenger business was the biggest in years, and other outgoings were shipped to by tourists.

The Sanford Atlantic National bank deposits are higher than last year with the greatest increase taking place in the last 90 days.

The first of three cut-offs on the St. Johns river, shortening the distance to Jacksonville, has been completed and a second started.

Another new boat line has been established to Tampa. The State-Farmers Wholesale Market has done a gross business of $200,000 in March and hundreds of trucks and railroad cars have carried the Seaside County produce to market. Hotels report their best business in years and various corporations are adding to their plants and facilities.

Similar stories, come from other cities and counties of Florida, all disclosing the improving trend in the Miami district. It is up to the rest of the United States may follow.

500,000 New Farms In U. S. In 5 Years

WASHINGTON, Apr. 10.—(AP)— Half a million new farms were estimated recently by census bureau officials, to have sprung up in the United States in the last five years.

So far as there are any indications in the preliminary returns from the farm census, most officials said they believed the increase attributable to persons who went back to the country from city jobs that vanished in the depression. They did not think the work of the farm program had had much to do with the jump.

1935 Tag Revenue Better Than Is 1934

The state motor vehicle department announced Thursday the revenue from 1935 automobile license tags up to Apr. 1 was $494,819 more than that of the same period a year ago.

Increased tag sales brought the total registration of cars to 312, 442 this year as compared with 295,600 last year, the department said. Total collections to Apr. 1
