A Sanford youth remains unconscious after he collided with a truck yesterday, said a Florida South Hospital spokesman.

Teddy Hudson, of 118 Airport Blvd., was listed in serious condition with head injuries. He had not regained consciousness since he was brought to Florida South Wednesday morning following initial treatment at Semmola Memorial Hospital, she added.

Hudson was apparently making a left turn onto U.S. Highway 17-92 as he traveled west on Airport Blvd. when he rode his bike into the side of an eastbound pickup truck driven by James E. Gibson of Deltona, said Sanford Police Sgt. William Bernick.

Hudson rode his bike to the Lakewood Middle School every day, said Principal Ted Barber, who added that he might have made the left away from the school for a brief stop at Jack in the Box. The collision occurred about 20 minutes before Hudson was due at the nearby school.

Of Heart Failure

Mamie Eisenhower Dead

MAMIE EISENHOWER
...dead at 83

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mamie Eisenhower, seriously ill since suffering a stroke in September, died of heart failure early today, 10 years after the death of her husband, the 34th president.

Mrs. Eisenhower died in her sleep at 1:35 a.m. EST, said a spokesman for Walter Reed Army Medical Center where she had been treated since suffering the stroke.

Related story, page 5A stroke Sept. 25. She would have been 83 in two weeks.

Peter Esker, information officer for Walter Reed, said funeral plans were incomplete.

Esker said Mrs. Eisenhower, stricken with the stroke on her Gettysburg, Pa., farm, had a history of heart trouble and had not shown any significant improvement since her admission.

"Her condition had remained essentially stable, and she did not show improvement over the long run," said Esker. "She came in seriously ill but stable."

The stroke had affected some of the functions on her right side.

She was last at Walter Reed Sept. 8-15 for a routine examination.

Her death left five living former first ladies — Bea Truman, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, Lady Bird Johnson, Pat Nixon and Betty Ford.

While the family's farmhouse, a national monument maintained by the National Park Service, was her home, friends said late in life she became lonely living there.

She applied in 1977 for a one-bedroom apartment at Washington's prestigious Army Dismal House, a facility she dedicated, but later withdrew her application from the waiting list rather than bump those ahead of her.

When her husband, Dwight D. Eisenhower, campaigned, she left her role as the quiet woman behind the scenes and took to the stump. He would introduce her as "My Mamie."

And while she liked to spend restful weekends in the country during her husband's two terms, she would often fill in for him when national groups visited the White House.

Mrs. Eisenhower, born Nov. 14, 1896, in Boone, Iowa, never hid her preference for the serene, country life of the farm during her eight years in the White House. And the Eisenhowers returned there when the president's term ended in 1960.

She did not miss the public life, she said in an interview on the couple's 50th wedding anniversary. "No one who has ever been in that terrible limelight would ever seek it again," she said.

President Eisenhower died in 1969. He and his wife had two sons, one of whom died at an early age.

Wholesale Index Up; But Food Costs Dip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation at the wholesale level rose 1 percent during October, although energy prices increased at the slowest pace since last spring and food costs dropped slightly, the government reported today.

The overall 1 percent rise in the cost of goods ready for shipment to retailers was somewhat better than September's 1.4 percent surge and the 1.3 percent August gain, the Labor Department said.

But it still offered vivid proof that consumers will be hit with more price hikes in coming months when they shop in stores and supermarkets.

The major bright spot in the October report was food, the Labor Department said.

Wholesale food prices actually fell by 0.1 percent last month following a sharp 1.8 percent rise in September and a 1.3 percent jump in August.

Meat prices turned down sharply while the cost of eggs, processed fruits and vegetables and dairy products also registered significant declines.

On the energy front, prices rose by 4.7 percent. Gasoline costs jumped 6.1 percent and home heating oil went up 4.7 percent, the Labor Department said.

Although the energy increases were hefty, they were still the lowest since last April and a big improvement from September's 6.8 percent increase.

The Labor Department's wholesale price report said the compounded annual rate of increase last month was 12.7 percent. The United States entered 1979's fourth quarter with the highest annual rate of inflation since the end of World War II — 13.2 percent.

Alfred Kahn, the White House's chief inflation fighter, has acknowledged the administration's July forecast of a 10.8 percent inflation rate for the year is now "clearly unachievable" and "11 percent may be impossible to achieve."

"I see no short-term relief in sight," he said recently.

The index, which measures wholesale price changes, stood at 223.7 in October. That means goods and services which were priced at $100 in 1967 cost $223.70 last month.

Over the past 12 months, the Labor Department said, wholesale prices have increased 12.1 percent.

Energy prices during the 12-month period were up 60.3 percent, food costs were up 8.9 percent, consumer goods other than food and energy was 9.3 percent higher and capital equipment prices were up 8.9 percent, the department said.

The Agriculture Department did offer a small glimmer of hope Wednesday that the food price moderation would continue when it reported prices of raw farm products — before they move through the pipeline to consumers — fell 2 percent in October.

Agriculture Department economists predict retail food prices will be stable or increase only moderately for the rest of the year.

The Labor Department said its index measuring consumer durable goods rose 1.1 percent, the largest gain since January.

Much of the advance in this category was due to an upturn in prices for new cars and a 39.1 percent price jump for household flatware.

Large advances were also posted for jewelry, mobile homes, cutlery, lawnmowers, dinnerware and floor coverings.

Four Killed As Freighter, Tanker Collide

GALVESTON, Texas (UPI) — An inbound tanker and outbound freighter collided at the entrance to Galveston Bay in clear weather today, almost colliding with the tanker and leaving the freighter circling slowly out of control in a Gulf of Mexico oilfield.

The Coast Guard said at least four crewmen were killed and 20 were unaccounted for.

Crewboat and helicopter-borne rescuers, battling fumes in the morning darkness, first reported the tanker appeared to be split in two, but the Coast Guard said other sources this morning reported the tanker's 60,000-barrel load spilled into the gulf surface and ignited, creating a burning, rolling slick.

The crewman stayed for a time aboard the Cyprus-registered freighter Albatross to fight the fire, but they were killed to shore when the fire consumed the deck.

"Everyone has been taken off the freighter because it's burning completely out of control," Coast Guard spokesman Tom Pearson said. "The problem is that's still under way. That's moving at a speed of 11 knots in a circle at the right angle. This gives her a diameter of 80 yards that will continue to grow as it goes."

Lt. Commander George Brown said a cutter had been sent to try to clear the channel away from the oil slick.

"The vessel is not there right now trying to stop it but the cutter is not as speedy as the cutter," he said.

The four crewmen were from the Liberian-registered tanker Burnham Angel.

The freighter struck a 1-foot-wide buoy stretching 80 feet along the bay where the tanker appeared to hit it. The freighter and both halves of the tanker were damaged in the collision.

The tanker was carrying a load of oil. Davis said. "It was loaded with 60,000 barrels of crude oil and a good portion of that is on the surface and burning. The ship reported."

The incident took place about 10 miles off the coast of Galveston Bay.

AUTOMATIC LIGHTS DUE

An automatic set of traffic lights should be installed at the intersection of Airport Boulevard and County Road 404 by mid-December, according to Cliff Scott, traffic coordinator with the county public works' engineering division. Scott said scheduling currently calls for the county commission to consider bids for standpoles and installation of the signal at its next Tuesday meeting. The new traffic controller and cabinet are already in the Department of Labor and the State Department of Community Affairs.

The intersection which has a blinking light and four-way stop signs has been considered a hazardous one.

'Bias' Issue Settled

Charges of racial discrimination at Sanford's Omega Workshop have been laid to rest, according to Leonard S. Carwell, Jr., Manpower Manager for the Seminole County CETA office.

The charges, made by the husband of a woman enrolled in the program were withdrawn at a meeting attended by Carwell, program officials, and complainants James and Shirley Stubbs, Carwell said.

Early last month, Mr. Stubbs charged his wife and other blacks had been told to sit in the back of the program's minibus as it transported participants to the daily workshop.

He added that his wife had also been subjected to racial slurs at the workshop.

But Carwell said that the Stubbs did not make those charges at a meeting set up to hear them, but discussed other non-racial problems with the program relating to Mrs. Stubbs' activities.

"Mr. Stubbs said he was satisfied" that the situation was completely straightened out after the meeting, Carwell said.

Seminole County Mental Health Center Executive Director Walter Carwell agreed with Carwell on the results of the meeting.

Council Backs New Job Search Program

By DONNA ESTER
Special Staff Writer

A new and innovative plan to aid persons employed in the private sector, the Community Employment Training Act, was approved by the private market program was recommended by the Public Service Advisory Council (PSAC) at a meeting today.

The recommended program must be approved by the private market program and must be approved by the U.S. Department of Labor and the U.S. Department of Labor.

The program will be implemented by the U.S. Department of Labor, which will allocate money to fund the program across the nation for public service jobs.

The PSAC today urged the county commission which sponsors the CETA program to approve the plan today.

provisions bill, the county has not been able for two months to approve any requests for public service jobs in the CETA program.

Public service jobs are those within county government, city government, the University of Florida, and other organizations. The county has 70 jobs for an annual payroll of $1.5 million in October because of lack of funding.

The new program for which PSAC is seeking funding would aid economically disadvantaged youth from 18-24 years old and Veterans are veterans and could ultimately be expanded to approximately 100 jobs in the county.

Employment goals which must be met during the two-year program include: providing training, health and work skills. In addition, the participants would be helped in writing resumes, completing applications, securing and handling interviews, developing job leads and interviewing through on job leads. Lastly, social job search and health and counseling activities would be provided.

The PSAC today urged the county commission to approve the program, since Seminole Community Action (SCA) over the Florida Support Council for the Blind.

SCA requested the money to hire two supervisors and six vans people to conduct home repair and weatherization for low income, owner occupied, sub-standard housing areas in the county.

The funding will provide salaries for the supervisors and interviewers. The interviewers will be trained as they work. Materials for the project are to be funded through a grant from the Department of Labor and the State Department of Community Affairs.

The project is a continuing one. Shirley Cox, SCA program manager, said at least 60 homeowners will benefit from improved homes and reduced energy costs. The participants will be trained as computer helpers to prepare them for jobs in the open market.

Mr. Cox said that during the past year in a similar program, 10-15 homes were repaired and one of eight young people in the program received his high school equivalency diploma.

At the same time, the PSAC turned down a proposal from the Florida Support Council for the same money. The program for which funding was requested would have recruited and referred 20 unemployed youth to job training, skill development and work experience activities. The training was to include communication skills, job seeking and work experience.

The program which operates out of Orange County is already funded through the Orange County CETA program.

Those Doubts Over China...

Before leaving Peking recently in quest of good will, trade and armaments from Europe, China's Premier Hua Guofeng laid down a hard line about critics of the Chinese Communist regime. He told a group of European correspondents that he opposed anarchy and indicated "anyone slandering and libeling others on the pretext of freedom" would be considered a lawbreaker and be punished.

His pronouncement has been quickly translated into action. Wei Jihabing, China's most prominent dissident and the youthful editor of an underground magazine called Explorations, was sentenced to 15 years in prison on charges of writing "counter-revolutionary and reactionary" wall posters and divulging to a foreigner military secrets about China's recent attack on Vietnam.

Then, on the heels of Wei's sentencing, Fu Yuchun, a woman who organized a rally of peasants protesting food shortages, was put on trial. Both proceedings were closed to all but selected court spectators.

Neither Wei nor Fu seems to have done or said anything that would be considered culpable in a democracy with the usual regard for free speech and assembly. The military information that Wei revealed about the course of the China-Vietnam war would have been included as a matter of routine in an official Pentagon communique were American forces involved.

Obviously, officials are irked by the amount of public dissatisfaction registered recently in China and so they decided to make an example of Wei in the hope of intimidating others. Wei's harsh sentence is disappointing evidence of how limited the freedoms that seemed to be burgeoning in China are to be. It is probably correct, as Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping told visiting U.S. governors recently that the dissidents who are now receiving publicity are no indication that there is widespread opposition to the government. But the Wei case does raise the question: has himself gone in one of his wall posters.

Calling for "democracy and self-rule," Wei argued that, without greater liberties for the Chinese people, the Communist party would never be able to arouse enough enthusiasm to succeed with the "four modernizations" of agriculture, industry, science and defense.

The best that can be said about the cases of Wei and Fu is that at least they were brought to semi-public trials in regular courts and can appeal. And the regime can be commended on the fact that foreign correspondents in Peking, though barred from the trials, were able to write frostily about what they could find out. All this is an advance over the secret, arbitrary, mob-type punishments meted out to non-conformists during the years of the Cultural Revolution and its "years of famine, death and the stringent control of news enforced in the past.

It is gratifying that American and other foreign correspondents in Peking are reporting on dissidence there just as correspondents have been doing in Moscow. It is also gratifying that the State Department has publicly registered its displeasure over the Wei sentence. There has been a disposition among many Americans to keep the news side of communist dictatorship in China while ignoring the same thing in the Soviet Union. The same standards should be applied to both. Actually, friends of China had hoped that Chinese communism would evolve into a freer and better system than Russia's. Perhaps there still is hope, but the Wei case raises doubts.

Dr. Paul Wehr, history professor at University of Central Florida, will discuss the history of the Seminole County community, Slavia, on Thursday, Nov. 8, at 3:30 p.m. at the museum in Loch Haven Park, Orlando.

Wehr researched the subject for a paper delivered last spring at the Florida State Historical Society's annual meeting.

The program, one of four sponsored for the public each year by the Historical Society, is open to all history buffs.

The Central Florida Zoological Park, Sanford, will benefit from the Orlando Darts Holiday, an open tournament sponsored by the Florida Darts Association and the National Grand Arsenary at 2605 S. Fern Creek Ave., Orlando. There will be open singles, open doubles, mixed triples, women's singles, women's doubles, four women team and four women team events. Hospitality night starts Friday at 7 p.m. For more information call 884-DART.

The Longwood-Winter Springs Area Chamber of Commerce has changed its meeting from a breakfast to a luncheon at noon on the last Monday of every month at the Quality Inn North.

The chamber has acquired a portable cooler equipped with a standard trailer hitch that cools up to 40 chickens at once, 800 hamburgers or a half side of beef at once. It is available to various groups for a donation of $25 a day to the chamber's scholarship fund.

Now that the Seminole County Women Bowling

Association has demonstrated it can be done by bringing the State Women's Bowling Assn. tournament and convention to the county in 1981, the men, not to be outdone, would like to bring the State Men's Bowling Association here in 1982, according to Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Executive Manager Jack Horner.

The Beautification Committee of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce has taken as a project replacing dead oaks around the city with young trees. The first place selected for planting was the Florida Power and Light Co. building on N. Myrtle Avenue.

Vic Arnet told the story of a country boy who drove into town one day in his pick-up truck. Driving past the ERA headquarters he read the sign which said "Free Women" and asked a young woman leaving the building "Do y'all deliver?"

ANGLE-WALTERS 'Crash' Indelibly Etched

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Fifty years after Black Tuesday, the Crash of '29 and the Great Depression it precipitated remains indelibly engraved upon the American psyche.

Nobody who was alive on Oct. 29, 1929, or anytime during the decade that followed, or anyone who lived through it as the degree to which it shaped the values and attitudes of millions who weren't even born at the time. And the two of us — ages 52 and 41 — are very much in that category.

We have directly experienced one world war and two lesser conflagrations; the Cold War and McCarthyism; the civil rights revolution and the race riots of the '60s; the Kennedy and King assassinations; the anti-war movement and Vietnam.

And yet it was the Depression, over before we arrived, which has most deeply affected the way we live from day to day.

We digested its lessons at the dinner table every night of our childhoods as we listened to our parents' conversations about the "crash" and "the depression." And we, who never missed a meal in our lives, now scowl sternly at our own children and repeat the old adage: "Don't eat until you're hungry."

As an economy, we are obsessed with security and durability. Who cares if this washing machine costs more than that one, as long as we're sure it will hold us well? And you, that's a heavy coat but it might be out of fashion in a couple of years; better to stick with a classic style that can be worn for five years, or even 10.

Credit cards? A convenience to be sure, but one to be used with caution. If you shop on credit, you're better off with a cash advance from the bank than a credit card. And you, that's a car, you're better off with a cash advance from the bank than a credit card. And you, that's a car, you're better off with a cash advance from the bank than a credit card.

EDUCATION WORLD Aim: Clean Up Sports

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK UPI Education Editor

Somewhere in America: — A college athlete of note draws big pay for a puny student-job off the field.

Another superbly magical draw big grades without lifting the books much.

But if such athletes listen, along with trustees, presidents and athletic directors of schools they attend, they'll all hear a whistle.

And so will student groups pushing for the same. The American Council of Education Commission on Collegiate Athletics is moving that whistle — moving it on national campuses in college sports, knowing it is what it takes to get such money and attention to intercollegiate play.

The Council report, three years in the making and financed by the Ford Foundation, has three words for presidents and trustees of colleges: Clean up sports.

And it puts down guidelines, not just for the presidents and trustees, but also for athletic directors.

The Commission favors intercollegiate athletic programs that take a lot of heat — from alumni, administration or whoever — if they are not to win big money. First: make a profit!

The Council wants college sports put in its proper place — a place which the Council defines as "recreational and educational."

The Council says that a prime function of the athletic program is to provide for as wide student participation as possible and to enhance development through competition.

VIEWPOINT Israel Picture Reassessed

By DONALD F. GRAFF

If Jimmy Carter and Menachem Begin could afford the time out from their respective domestic preoccupations for a brief troubleshooting chat, they might find much in common at the moment.

Both are having tough going with recalcitrant legislatures. Both are being challenged by the courts in the exercise of their presumed executive prerogatives. Both have serious personal problems on their executive teams.

Both are heading into political weather that it would be an understatement to describe as threatening.

But here there is also a difference. While Carter knows the dimension and timing of his challenges — the presidential primaries and election, Begin is beset by uncertainties.

He has survived the no-confidence votes precipitated by Moshe Dayan's dramatic abdication as foreign minister — thanks to a small Democratic majority in the Knesset.

But with the parliamentary base of Begin's anything but harmonious coalition eroding, the economy in decline and criticism of his policies at home and abroad on the rise, the end theoretically could be in sight.

Not that anyone at home or abroad is really expecting Begin to be humiliated in the near future. They only believe that there is a chance to be taken.

This accumulation of the negative has become something of a common denominator in Israeli circles of late. There seems to be a much stronger awareness of what is not wanted than of what is. Even Dayan, whose resignation presented the dominant government factor's deterioration on the Palestinian issue, was unable to specify what he would demand an acceptable alternative to that point.

The most positive aspect of the situation may be that development, and particularly Dayan's departure which has deprived the government of its most personable and persuasive representative, are likely to compel a reevaluation of policies and possibilities that might otherwise be resisted.

Which brings us back to interests common to Carter and Begin. Reassessment could or could not be of them.

There understandably may be great temptation in Washington to take advantage of the present uncertainty in Jerusalem to press for a new accommodation with the Egyptians.

This might be in the short-term interests of Washington and especially of a Jimmy Carter heading into the primaries and in need of whatever achievement badges he can come by. But the long-term, as Carter's own Middle East adviser, Robert Strauss, warns, would likely be a long-term, as Carter's own Middle East adviser, Robert Strauss, warns, would likely be a long-term, as Carter's own Middle East adviser, Robert Strauss, warns, would likely be a long-term.

A 'Golden' Week In The Sun

Golden Age Olympics Opens Monday With Participants From Across U.S.

By JANE CASSELLBERRY Herald Staff Writer Approximately 450-500 entries for the Golden Age Olympics, to be held in Sanford Monday through Saturday of next week, have already been received, according to Virginia Longwell, secretary for the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce.

Entries have been received from virtually every state east of the Mississippi, the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico, she said. Forms requested from Canada and California have not yet been returned she added.

His entry fees for several of the track and field events. Although 55 is the minimum age for participants, there is no maximum age and she is expecting entrants in their 90s. Mr. and Mrs. James Mason of Bram Towers, Sanford, age 81 and 90 respectively, are planning to compete in the Golden Age Olympics bowling event, said Mrs. Longwell.

The fifth annual Olympics has caught the attention of the news media, said Chamber of Commerce Executive Manager Jack Horner, who announced that "Real People," seen weekly on NBC television, had officially confirmed they will be in Sanford Thursday to film swimming events at the Holiday Inn pool and the Jubilee talent and variety show that night at the Sanford Civic Center. "It was their choice as it was the only day they had open during the week," he explained. Horner said he had also been contacted by Jeanie Miller of "PM Magazine" about filming a segment of the olympics for television. Newspapers from St. Petersburg, Miami, Ft. Lauderdale and West Palm Beach are planning to cover the week's activities, he said.

The opening ceremony is scheduled for 9:15 a.m. at the civic center patio, with last year's track and field champions, Orin Graff of Daytona Beach and Harriett Boyd of Sanford, lighting the Golden Age Olympics torch.

Miss Florida and this year's official celebrity hostess, marathon swimmer Stella Taylor, will be among those participating in the opening.

Horner said he had been notified by the governor's office that Max Clark, executive director of the Governor's Physical Fitness program, will be present. Clark is a former director of Seminole YMCA and is well known in this area. Pauline Stevens, chairman of the Unites Beauty Contest, is sponsored by Stepping Stones Monday night at 7 p.m. in the Civic Center, put on an appeal for more male entrants. Contestants will be judged on poise, grooming and talent in both the men's and women's divisions. Information and entry forms for the week's events are available from the chamber of commerce office.

Andytown In Everglades Closes; 'A Little Piece Of History Ends

ANDYTOWN, Fla. (UPI) — George Davis stepped down as mayor Wednesday after one day of presiding over the bar, restaurant and gas station that comprises Andytown, a popular last stop before crossing the Everglades.

It is progress that will push away both Andytown and Davis, who was elected "unofficial mayor" Tuesday by regular customers of the Everglades oasis at the corner of U.S. 27 and Alligator Alley.

Andytown will be razed to make way for a new Interstate 75 interchange.

Owner Constantine "Gus" Tamos will lock for the last time Wednesday and the bulldozers will arrive soon.

"I lost something in my heart," he said Tuesday in a Greek accent softened by 16 years in the United States. "This is going to hurt me bad. Andytown ... Andytown ... there's no way to replace it."

Greg Ritzler, a regular visitor, agreed. "It's a little piece of history that this state has and they should save it."

Andytown dates to 1946 when Andy Poulos stopped by a little shack, which doubled as a gas station and coffee shop, named Sally Wood's.

A mass of swamp flies buzzing around his coffee cup made him so angry he bought the place and decided to clean it up.

Poulos brought his nephew, Tamos, from Greece in 1963 to help run the business. When Poulos died in 1972, Tamos inherited Andytown.

Tamos said he wants to buy nearby land and build a new Andytown, but he is having zoning problems with Broward County officials and won't know if he can get the land for another six months.

He said the state bought the land under Andytown in 1967 for "peanuts" — $180,000 — but waited 12 years to decide where and when to build the new I-75 interchange.

After several court-ordered extensions, Tamos said the Department of Transportation decided this week "they wanted the keys to Andytown in their hands on Thursday."

"I didn't give up so easy," he said as a moving man carried out a water cooler. "I fought to stay here."

"I have tears and blood in this place. They (the regular customers) have nostalgia for this place. I never thought they had so much respect and love for this place," Tamos said.

Mr. X Could Be Victim For Accepting Lover's Terms

DEAR ABBY: I have been using my lady for three years and want to marry her. "Mr. X" and I am 45. I have a job home, no financial worries and I am happy. My problem is getting "Mr. X" away from her family. She works night hours a day as an accountant while spending daily for her five-year-old son. "Mr. X" has had a 40-year-old brother, recently killed. He's a heavy, middle-aged man, 140 pounds, and I don't know if I can stand him. I am not even sure of the pleasure of sexual intercourse. "Mr. X" has a son, not a partner. I don't want to marry her but I don't want to lose her. I want to give her just to please her, from what you tell me he would make a poor father. If you are determined not to go through life without a child, you may have to find another husband. DEAR ABBY: I am not sure how high a premium for life insurance. He one is permitted to smoke in my home, you I am charged the same premium as the chain smoker who falls asleep with a cigarette in his mouth. I am looking for an insurance company that recognizes the fact that I present a low hazard. First are started by cigarette, and therefore will allow a substantial discount to those who have cigarettes from their homes. Do you have any leads? M.A. IN BINGHAMTON, N.Y.

Parents, School Board Split On Busing

The Seminole County School Board asked local legislators Thursday evening for more money to bus school children and changes in the law concerning the busing of kindergarten through second grade students.

But a parent's representative urged instead that the question of courtney busing under the two-mile limitation set by the law be taken out of the hands of local school boards and be placed with the state.

And Mrs. Barbara Chalk of Skylark, the parent's representative, asked for legislation giving a locally appointed safety committee authority over the school board in calling for busing where hazards exist.

School Superintendent William Layer, School Board Member Pat Tolson and the board's financial advisor, Roger Harris, asked for legislation revising the old busing formula to take into consideration kindergarten through second grade students.

"Kindergarten through second graders are not physically and psychologically as developed as high school students, to walk 1.9 miles," the trio said.

"This must be addressed now that kindergarten is mandatory," they said.

The educators also asked that the state fully fund costs over two miles. They enumerated the costs to include gasoline, oil, tires and the full cost of the buses.

"Transportation has never been fully funded by the Legislature," the board's legislative package pointed out. "If this condition cannot be corrected, we recommend that consideration be given to allowing special allocations toward the purchase of 10 per cent of the total fleet, or 100 per cent of vehicles more than 10 years old, whichever is greater, for replacement buses."

The package prepared by county school staff also urged that the use of buses more than 10 years old be prohibited.

United Way Meets Goal

By JANE CASSELLBERRY Herald Staff Writer

Last minute reports by firms in the Pilot Division of the United Way of Seminole County and a gift of $5,000 from an Alachua Springs couple have brought the total raised in this year's fund drive to $250,441.04. The campaign goal was $238,400, the highest yet for the county.

This gave Campaign Chairman Sheila Brown and her volunteer workers something to really celebrate at the Victory Dinner held Thursday evening at Buck's Sanford Airport Restaurant celebrating their month long fund raising effort.

As an added bonus to 1976-77 agencies of the United Way of Seminole, President Bob Deane distributed $25,000 in surplus accumulated from past campaigns with each getting a check for its pro-rated share.

Tom Hunt and Jack Horner, Division chairmen, said the total of $250,441.04 is a record for the county. "Stronberg-Carlson reported an additional $175,000 in bringing the corporate and employee donations to a total of $42,572.58.

Lake Mary: 4th Policeman Lost

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

A fourth police officer will be leaving Lake Mary's nine-member force in the next couple of weeks, Chief Harry Benson confirmed today.

"We will continue as best we can," Benson said, confirming a report that a fourth officer is leaving the city for a better paying job. Councilman Pat Southward told the Seminole County Legislative delegation about the problem Thursday evening.

"The council now has to do something about this situation and they know that," said Benson, who has ridden patrol himself since resignations began flowing into the department.

"It is bad enough to operate with the men paid the lowest salary among police officers in the county. But now they are also risking their lives and reputations with the department being under-staffed as well," he said.

Mrs. Southward urged fellow councilmen Thursday night to approve a temporary measure of shifting two qualified police officers who are currently working as emergency dispatchers to road patrol and hiring two new part-time dispatchers. She also urged her colleagues to approve overtime pay for present members of the department.

"I want to go back into cost of living pay raises for the employees even if the money has to come out of reserve funds," she said, urging this item be voted on by Mayor Walter Brown and the council.

But the overtime pay was another matter. Councilman Cliff Nelson said he could not in good conscience approve overtime pay for one department unless it were approved for all departments. He added that he would rather see the city hire additional officers than pay overtime.

The board agreed to discuss the matter in workshop at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The availability of certified police officers is itself a problem, said Councilman Bert Perichief. Perichief noted that few persons currently enrolled in police standards training are to graduate immediately.

Mrs. Southward, in urging approval of the shifting and hiring, said more resignations of police officers are imminent. She said the police protection is deteriorating, she said, adding the "police men remaining with us are carrying a big load."

Andy Maggard, a long-time resident of the city, suggested the city ask for volunteers. Mrs. Southward explained that the city has to follow state mandate on certification requirements for police officers. She also noted that the city would be responsible for the actions of volunteers.

As for hiring additional employees, Mrs. Southward said currently employees are leaving the city and applications for jobs are not being submitted. "We are going to have a hard time hiring people. They are going the other way."

Armed Robbers Knock Out Clerk

Three men, two of them armed, robbed the Handy Way Country Store on Lake Mary Boulevard and Lake Emma Road late Wednesday night and made off with an undetermined amount of cash and other merchandise.

Details of the robbery are not yet available because the investigating officers at the Seminole County Sheriff's Department were unavailable for comment and had not turned in a report for public dissemination until this morning.

County sheriff's captain Jay Leman confirmed this morning that the robbery occurred, but indicated the investigating officer's report contained little information and that the amount of cash reported to be obtained until the investigating officer himself interviews it.

As far as can be placed together, the three men entered the store, which opened for business only a few months ago at the entrance to the Country subdivision near Interstate 4 just outside the Lake Mary City limits, and demanded the assistant manager open a safe.

Cap. Leman said the investigating officer's report states only that the assistant manager refused, because he was involved in struggle with one of the robbers and was knocked out. There was no indication about how many persons were in the store when the robbery occurred, nor how the robbers left or if they managed to take money from the safe or some other area of the store.

Seminole County School Superintendent Bud Layer (left) will be one of the distinguished citizens of Seminole County presenting these trophies to the participating bands in the 5th annual Seminole County High School Band Festival that will be held at the Lake Brantley Stadium, Saturday at 8 p.m. With Layer are Dale Coppock, ticket and program chairman; Wayne Doyle, publisher of the Evening Herald; and Ernie Butler, chairman of the festival. Coppock and Butler are Optimist club members, the organization which co-sponsors the event with the Evening Herald.

County Schools Don't Want To Lose 'Impact' Funds

By DEANE PEREYRE Herald Staff Writer

Three federal impact funds provide Seminole County school children about $10 million each year at this time, more than $60 million annually to local schools.

"We would like to see the 'B' category children," said William F. Layer, superintendent of schools, in a recent interview of the county's 1976-77 school budget. "We would like to see the 'B' category children, however, federal impact funds and the U.S. Treasury are not quite satisfied by the government to allow children to attend the end of elementary school and transfer into an area by federal activity."

"The federal government is not quite satisfied by the government to allow children to attend the end of elementary school and transfer into an area by federal activity."

Under the law in its present form, there are two categories of children for which a school district is entitled to federal impact funds.

Category "A" children are children of parents who reside and work in federal property.

Category "B" children are children of parents who reside in federal property, reside with a parent employed on federal property, or who had a parent on active duty in the uniformed services.

In 1976-77, Seminole County reported no "A" category children. In "B" category, there were 289 residing on federal property, 289 residing with a parent employed on federal property, and 28 who had a parent in the uniformed services.

In 1976-77, Seminole County reported no "A" category children. In "B" category, there were 289 residing on federal property, 289 residing with a parent employed on federal property, and 28 who had a parent in the uniformed services.

property in the community and their parents pay local property taxes which support the school system.

"Some of these children are associated with low-cost housing projects which we do not believe constitute a federally imposed burden."

A parent who works on federal land, Storrer explained, will still pay property tax on his own home. And, in the case of low-cost housing, he said, federal assistance to provide improved living quarters does not mean an increase in the number of children attending the area schools.

Congress, however, did not agree that "B" category children were not a burden on local school systems and funding will continue through 1980.

The 1980 federal appropriation for "B" category children will cost taxpayers $27 million. With the "A" category, the total cost of the federal impact funds program will be $70 million.

Seminole County has received funds under the federal impact legislation for the past decade, although the original laws were passed in 1960.

"Support of education has changed since 1960, however," Storrer said. "Schools are relying more and more on other sources of taxation such as income tax and sales tax. State support is greater than local property tax support in many areas."

"Nationally, in 1976-77, for the first time in history, schools received more money from state resources than local ones."

For these reasons, Storrer said, it is not felt that the impact of "B" category children on school systems is significant. The taxpayers, he said, could save money if such funding is eliminated.

Washington (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate increased to 8 percent in October, the Labor Department reported today, but there were conflicting signs whether this means a much-discussed recession is taking hold.

The increase, from 5.8 percent in September, brought the jobless rate back to the same level as August and kept it in a range between 5.6 and 6 percent where it has been for 18 months.

The number of unemployed persons increased by nearly 200,000 to 6.2 million.

Most of that increase occurred among people who lost their jobs rather than those newly entering the labor market and most of the increase was among adult women and blacks.

The Labor Department itself said its figures were contradictory on the other side of the coin — employment.

The department conducts two employment surveys each month.

One, based on a sample of American households, showed total employment edged down by 220,000 in October. The other, based on payroll records of businesses other than farms, showed an increase of 200,000.

"We're somewhat at a loss," said Jack Bregger, chief of the department's job statistics section. "On balance, there is certainly evidence of a slow-down but certainly not a recession."

Unemployment, Bregger said, "is still in the range of the last 14 months. If it takes off from here, we can say it's the start of something, but I think it's too early to say now."
