WCA to meet tonight

SANFORD — The Westside Community Association will meet 7:30 this evening, at the West Sanford Boys & Girls Club, 919 Persimmon Ave. Residents of Goldsboro and the surrounding area are invited to attend. The association was formed to provide meaningful, positive and productive communications with city officials and district commissions to help motivate and improve the community.

Hanna at Black Tie event

SANFORD — Jack Hanna, director emeritus of the Columbus Zoological Gardens, will be guest of honor at the largest fund raising event of the year for the Central Florida Zoological Park. The event is the 4th annual Black Tie on the Wild Side, to be held at the Walt Disney World Dolphin Resort on Saturday, July 24. The fundraiser benefits the zoo's conservation, education and operation programs. Hanna was director of the Central Florida Zoo from 1973 to 1975. Known as "Jungle Jack" by many, Hanna is credited with having turned the Columbus Zoo into a remarkable success. His ability to demonstrate a unique style of animal enthusiasm has led to frequent appearances on Good Morning America, Late Night with David Letterman, and Larry King Live. Hanna is also very active with Easter Seals and the Leukemia Society. For information on the Black Tie on the Wild Side event, contact the Central Florida Zoo, at 323-4450.

School board negotiating

SANFORD — The negotiators for the Seminole County school district and the employees' unions are still meeting at the bargaining table in an effort to come to an agreement on contracts for the next school year. According to Nancy Wheeler, the unions' chief negotiator, the process is moving along at a "healthy pace," though money matters will not be discussed until at least next week or, perhaps, the week after that. "We have to wait and see what the final budget figures from the district are going to be," Wheeler said. Wheeler believes that the negotiations are moving along well, but will not be wrapped up quickly as the teachers are renegotiating their full contract this year, as they do every three years. "There aren't any items that appear to be a problem," she said, but she added that the contract is being discussed item-by-item which will take quite a bit of time. She said that if all goes well, the unions and the district will be able to reach an agreement before the start of school on Aug. 23. Ken Bovio, chief negotiator for the district, was unavailable for comment.

Man gets blank scratch-off ticket

FORT MYERS — Chris Larkin feels the blank scratch-off lottery ticket he bought for a dollar beat all the odds and he's hoping for a big return on his weird luck. Larkin said he bought a roll of 11 Red Hot Million tickets in Sanibel about a week ago. "The 11th ticket was completely empty," Larkin said Tuesday. "The way I figure it, the prize for this game is $15,000, and the odds of winning are 240,000-to-1, and I figure I beat those odds all to hell."

Indicted for murder

Love turns sour for Sanford man accused of stabbing girlfriend

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A Seminole County grand jury Tuesday indicted a Sanford man for first degree murder in the June stabbing death of his girlfriend.

The indictment was returned against Darrick Gerald Taylor, 21, who is being held in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility without bond. Taylor is charged with stabbing Kim Grace, 28, on June 28 while she was at a friend's home at 82 Seminole Gardens. Grace, according to police records, lived at 79 Seminole Gardens.

Grace was taken to Orlando Regional Medical Center where she died.

Taylor turned himself into authorities July 4. Grace's neighbors, Christine Fields and her 15-year old son, witnessed the stabbing according to statements given police. Grace was at Fields' apartment at the time. She said the two were talking about "Rod" (Taylor).

On June 2, Seminole Circuit Court Judge Alan Dickey placed Taylor on four years probation after he pleaded no contest earlier to aggravated stalking, criminal mischief and burglary to a dwelling involving Grace. The plea was made after negotiations between the state attorney and the public defender representing Taylor.

Grace attended the sentencing, was aware of the agreement and requested that Taylor not receive jail time on the charges. Jack Scalera, chief of operations in the state attorney's office, said after the stabbing Grace was granted $3,000 restitution for damage Taylor had done in her apartment. According to a police report, Taylor broke into Grace's apartment earlier this year, destroyed furniture and shredded or tore her clothing with a sharp instrument.

Grace and Taylor had taken out protection injunctions against each other in domestic relations court. Taylor, who claimed Grace pistol-whipped him, had requested his injunction against the woman be dropped. Grace asked a judge to continue her injunction against Taylor.

As a condition of his probation, Taylor was to have no contact with Grace unless she consented to it.

Grace was the mother of three small children.

Darrick Taylor, far right, will appear in court this afternoon following his indictment for first degree murder. He is shown at a court appearance after his arrest earlier this month.

Licensed gator hunter Joseph Suarez carefully checks securing lines before putting Old George into his truck along the Sanford lakfront

Gator tagged nuisance had to leave town

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A 12-foot-long, 600-pound alligator was hoisted from the shore of Lake Monroe Tuesday and trucked out of town.

He had been declared a nuisance. "It's a sad situation," said Sanford Police Chief Ralph Russell. "People see an alligator along the lakfront and start feeding it as if it were a pet."

It is against state law to feed an alligator, and Russell said many people believe it's an unnecessary law and feed them anyway.

He continued, "The problem is that soon the gator learns how to survive this way, and begins to believe humans are a source of food. From that point on, they could even go after someone thinking it was another offer of food."

The alligator, often referred to as "Old George" has been a sight along the lakfront for a long time.

Experts estimated its age at 50 to 60 years. The gator weighed up approximately 600 pounds.

Chuck Volk, of the Monroe Harbour Marina commented, "Even though a lot of boaters here at the marina have expressed concern about them, alligators aren't as dangerous as people think. If a water skier or boat comes near them, they will try to escape. Problems like this usually occur when people toss them food."

Volk observed, "The only real enemy alligators have is people."

Complaints were reportedly made to the State Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, which is responsible for declaring a nuisance gator. They contracted with Joseph Suarez of Ocala, a licensed alligator hunter, who specializes in removing nuisance gators from lakes and other bodies of water frequented by fishermen, swimmers and boaters.

Tuesday, about noon, Suarez and his crew were seen along the lakfront. See Gator, Page 5A

Taxpayers' money, city needs: Lake Mary budget

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary commissioners will consider taxpayers' wallets and city needs as they begin fiscal year 1993/94 budget discussions Thursday night.

According to the preliminary meeting agenda, the meeting is to deal with the general fund budget including projected revenue schedules; projected expenses summaries; proposed expenditures; and setting of proposed millage rate and formal hearings.

The formal public hearing on the budget has been proposed for Sept. 9.

Much of the initial requests by the city's various department heads have already been trimmed and fine-tuned by City Manager John Litton. A number of proposals have been made for new equipment and special projects.

As indicated in his initial budget address given last Thursday, Litton is proposing the following:

- Vehicles — Lease/purchase of new fire pumper (estimated at $215,000); replacements of road grader and dump truck; replacement of three police cars; replacement of van for fire department; replacement of golf cart assigned to meter services.
- Personnel — Add one new police officer; upgrade another of.

Secondhand smoke comes under fire

Waynette Smith and Bob Oakley enjoy smoking, but say they try to be considerate of others.

EPA urges smoking restrictions

By RITA BEAMISH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Environmental Protection Agency today urged parents not to smoke in their homes and said children and non-smokers should be protected from secondhand smoke in public places and on the job.

The agency, following up on its politically charged classification of secondhand smoke as a serious cancer threat, said restaurants and bars that allow smoking should only designate smoking areas "with some knowledge of the ventilation characteristics of the space, to minimize non-smoker exposure."

Woman dies in home being fumigated

FORT LAUDERDALE — A woman broke into her tarp-covered home being fumigated and police found her dead in bed in front of her television set.

The 47-year-old woman, whose name was not released by police Tuesday because family members had not been informed, may have been drunk when she entered her home.

The victim, who lived in the home with another woman, was seen walking crookedly around her house about 6 p.m. on Monday by neighbors who believed she was drunk, police said.

Signs warning danger and explaining the deadly nature of the pesticide were posted on the tarp and on all of the home's doors.

Exterminators also placed inside the home containers filled with a liquid that fills the air with an eye and throat irritant, warning potential intruders to get out, said Joe Malinowski, vice-president of technical services at Orkin Exterminating Co.'s headquarters in Atlanta.

Despite the precautions, the woman apparently opened a section of tarp in the back of the home, entered through a window and crawled into bed after turning on the TV set.

Judge resigns

MIAMI — A circuit judge who tearfully admitted to using cocaine while on the bench during one of the country's largest judicial corruption cases said he is resigning.

Dade Circuit Judge Phillip S. Davis, who was acquitted three months ago of accepting $30,000 in payoffs for judicial favors, said a medical disability is making it difficult to continue his judicial career.

The 39-year-old jurist testified during the Court Broom judicial corruption trial that he had used cocaine, alcohol and other drugs while on the bench.

On Aug. 17, Davis was scheduled to stand trial on seven charges before the Judicial Qualifications Commission in Miami, which is urging the Florida Supreme Court to kick him out of the bench.

"Given his testimony at trial, his removal from the bench was inevitable," Special Assistant U.S. Attorney Larry LaVecchio said. "I'm glad to hear that the taxpayers are saved the unnecessary expense of a trial before the JQC."

Masked executor keeps his hood

TALLAHASSEE — The grim job of the masked executor that pulls the switch on Florida's electric chair hasn't violated any of the state's ethics laws, a panel ruled.

The Florida Ethics Commission said Tuesday the executioner doesn't have to remove his mask and doesn't have to be identified.

A Lake Worth attorney complained the executioner obtained his job outside the competitive bidding process, violated a state law banning the wearing of hoods in public buildings and doesn't sign for his cash payments.

"I want him to stand up, take off his hood and be counted," said Frank A. Kreidler, who filed the complaint in June and has twice asked the state to identify the masked executioner.

But the Ethics Commission ruled there were no grounds to Kreidler's charges that the executioner had violated a host of laws while performing the grim duties.

State law exempts the executioner from being identified, and since the executioner does not personally benefit from his duties, there was no ethical violations.

Executioners are paid $150 per execution.

Regulators refuse to reopen rate case

TALLAHASSEE — The state Public Service Commission decided not to reopen a water and sewer case that set identical rates for 127 utility systems in Florida.

An official in Attorney General Bob Butterworth's office and state Sen. Ginny Brown-Walke, R-Spring Hill, vowed to appeal in court after PSC members Thomas Beard and Susan Clark rejected their requests Tuesday to reconsider the statewide rates set for Southern States Utilities.

"I would have been shocked had they reversed themselves on it," said Brown-Walke. "I think they're dug in too deeply to reverse themselves."

Michael Twomey, an assistant attorney general, and Brown-Walke said they filed the requests on behalf of hundreds of Southern States customers in Central Florida.

They contend the PSC lacked authority to grant such a broad-based rate plan and that customers never knew a uniform rate was being considered during the months the case was under review.

By having uniform rates, customers of less-efficient Southern States utilities are being subsidized by those served by better-run systems, the critics contend.

Twomey said the PSC can't force customers in one region to pay for systems with which they are not connected.

Jazz event needs sponsors

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — A night of jazz music is being planned in Lake Mary. The event, offered free to the public, is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 25.

Called "Jazz on the Boulevard," the function is sponsored by the City of Lake Mary, Greater Lake Mary/Heathrow Chamber of Commerce and WLOQ radio. It will feature a jazz concert by Jackie Jones and her band at the amphitheatre adjacent to City Hall.

Corporate sponsors and patrons are now being sought to help finance the event.

According to Lake Mary City Manager John Litton, the event should be able to be held without utilizing any city funds.

During a recent City Commission meeting, Litton presented a request for the serving of alcohol, (beer/wine), on the city property during the event. The beverages are tentatively scheduled for a VIP tent to be set up in the area.

Tickets for persons wishing to attend the cocktail hour at the VIP tent are $50 each. This includes preferred seating and name recognition at the event.

Corporate sponsorships are also available. Preliminary plans call for more than the musical concert. People will also have the opportunity to greet sponsors and patrons, participate in the ribbon cutting for the event, and enjoy special food. A silent auction may also be included as planning continues.

The public is also encouraged to bring a picnic lunch, and either a blanket or lawn chair.

The Meet & Greet event along with the official ribbon cutting is scheduled from 6 until 7 p.m. The free jazz concert is from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m. on the lawn of the amphitheatre at City Hall.

Sponsorships and patrons are now being accepted. For further information, or to sign up, contact the chamber office at 333-4748.

Time is near

The fund raising clock ticks yet another notch for the Main Street Program. Jane Marshall, treasurer of Sanford Historic Downtown Waterfront Association, presented a check for $1,000 at The First Street Gallery to Chris Cranlow, co-chairman of the program, leaving a balance of less than $4,000 needed to reach the $30,000 goal from the community.

State spending spikes in June

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — State spending on office equipment and expenses was up 41 percent in June over the monthly average as the fiscal year came to a close.

The money went for computers and data bases as well as for motivational goodies for employees like pins, posters and refreshments, plus conferences in the Keys and Nashville, Tenn. "We did not spend purposely for the first eight or nine months of the year to make sure we were covered," said Tom Herndon, chief of staff for Gov. Lawton Chiles. "It's a rational practice."

Chiles' office spent $165,621 on new equipment in June, 10 times more than the $16,000 it averaged each month during the rest of the fiscal year. The Florida Times-Union reported Tuesday.

But Dominic Calabro, president of Florida TaxWatch Inc., a not-for-profit government watchdog, criticized the June spending blitz.

"It's the typical perverse spend-it-or-lose-it philosophy," Calabro said Tuesday. "It's very disavowing to the taxpayers."

Calabro blamed the Legislature. He said state agencies are reacting to a wasteful budgeting process that encourages hoarding. Under state law, agencies which are prudent with their money must return it to the treasury at fiscal year's end, rather than keeping a portion to reinvest in their programs.

On top of that, they're then likely to lose any chance of getting more money next year.

Rep. John Long, who chairs the House Appropriations committee, said he would have his staff examine last month's purchases.

"Are these legitimate needs, or are they just buying things because they don't want to look bad?" Long, D-Land O'Lakes, said.

State agencies spent $172 million on office equipment and expenses in June. During the previous 11 months, they spent $1.34 billion on those categories, a monthly average of not quite $122 million.

Analysts cautioned that vouchers sometimes are processed more quickly in June, possibly exaggerating the spending increase.

And, they added, Hurricane Andrew might have contributed to the increase because some agencies depleted their accounts in August and September, then received federal reimbursements in the spring.

Workers, employers relate workers compensation woes

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — High premiums for mandatory workers compensation coverage puts some employers in jeopardy of losing their businesses, a Fort Myers construction company owner said.

Lance Jackson said Tuesday a Senate panel should focus more on the rising costs that threaten his 25-employee Mustang Construction Co. than some employees' complaints of being ignored by the system.

"I am one injury away from being out of business," Jackson told the Select Committee on Workers' Compensation Reform. "I've got an education. I'll go get a job. What about the people that work for me?"

The committee scheduled testimony today from state labor and insurance officials involved in running the system.

The Senate refused to take up a House workers' compensation reform proposal earlier this year when leaders said it didn't go enough to cut costs. A special legislative session on the subject is expected in the fall.

The panel heard Tuesday from disabled workers like Bobbi Neal, 47, of North Point. Neal's knee was injured by a falling sheet of plywood in October 1987 when she was assistant maintenance supervisor at an apartment complex.

After surgery the following March, she had to wait until August to receive a check, and later compensation checks were irregular, said Neal, who walked with a cane. "I had no income coming in. I had a son, I had rent to pay, but I heard nothing from anyone."

"The system itself has victimized me more than anything," said Neal, who hired an attorney in May 1988.

"The injured worker is not asking for this. This is nothing that anybody should ever have to go through."

Richard Raymond, 43, of Orlando, limping heavily, said he injured his sciatic nerve trying to straighten a bread rack on his bakery job.

Auto theft attempted

Two Longwood roommates were arrested on attempted auto burglary charges early Monday morning. Winter Springs police reported seeing the pair jump a wall to a subdivision, then found them standing next to a locked car attempting to open it. Arrested were Anthony Raymond Spurlock, 19, and Christopher Alan Bobo, 27, both of 181 Oleander St., Longwood.

Mom reports theft of check

Robby W. Trathen, 22, 319 Coble Drive, Longwood, was arrested on a grand theft charge by Seminole County deputies Monday afternoon. Trathen's mother reported on June 10, he deposited his father's $3,493 expense paycheck in his own bank account.

Suspended license

William James White, 34, 1111 Sanford Ave., Sanford, was arrested on a suspended license charge by a Sanford policeman early Tuesday morning.

Warrant arrests made

The following wanted persons have been taken into custody:

- Neddrell Reena Bryant, 34, 1308 W. Third St., Sanford, was arrested Monday on a charge of failure to appear in court to answer to a suspended license charge.
- William David Warren, 22, 225 Palm Place, Sanford, was served with four warrants at the Seminole County jail, each on probation violation charges for convictions including burglary and cocaine possession.
- Jason Revels Hendricks, 19, 218 Palm Place, Sanford, was served with a warrant at the county jail Monday for a probation violation charge for a dealing in stolen property conviction.
- Marion Alonzo Smith, 38, 3000 Dixon Ave., Sanford, was served with two warrants at the county jail Monday, both charging him with probation violations for residential and vehicular burglaries.
- John Burgess, 43, 48 William Clarke Court, Sanford, was arrested on a probation violation charge for a burglary conviction.
- Eric Theottis Smith, 27, 909 Bay Ave, Sanford, was arrested on a probation violation charge for a marijuana possession conviction.

- Loren Baker, 38, 701 E. Eighth St., Sanford, was served with a probation violation charge at the county jail Monday.

Crimes reported to authorities

The following crimes have been reported to area law enforcement authorities:

- Tools and tool boxes valued at $12,000 were reported taken from Rick's Foreign Car Care, 1055 Nursery Road, Longwood, sometime between 6 p.m. Friday and 7:54 a.m. Monday.
- $270 in cash was reported taken from a residence in the 1800 block of Hawkins Avenue of Lockhart's Subdivision near Sanford sometime between 11:30 p.m. Friday and 7:30 a.m. Monday.
- Tools valued at $482 were reported taken from Scotty's, 701 S. French Ave., Sanford, sometime between 8 p.m. Sunday and 7:30 a.m. Monday.
- Tires and rims were reported taken from two cars at Orlando Car Corp., 2913 S. Orlando Drive, Sanford, sometime between 2 p.m. Saturday and 7 a.m. Monday.
- A Seminole County government van was found in a driveway behind West Fifth Street east of Elm Avenue at 6:45 a.m. Monday after it had apparently been missing since 6 p.m. Sunday.
- While a resident of a home in the 2700 block of West Airport Boulevard lay asleep between 6:45 a.m. and 2 p.m. Monday, someone reportedly took a fan from a bedroom and placed in a utility shed and took a car battery from the carport.

Public hounds sex offender

By DAVID AMMONS
Associated Press Writer

OLYMPIA, Wash. — When child rapist Joseph Gallardo was released from prison, word reached his hometown before he did.

Warned by the sheriff that a bearded 35-year-old with "sadistic and deviant sexual fantasies" soon would be in their midst and might strike again, neighbors held a rally. A few hours later, Gallardo's house was burned down.

He fled to his brother's in Deming, N.M., but was hounded from there, too, slipping out of town just before a protest march Sunday.

About half the states — Washington included — have laws requiring sex offenders to register with a local police agency upon their release, state prison chief Chase Riveland said. But only Washington expressly authorizes law enforcement agencies to notify the public, said Judith Schretter, counsel for the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children in Alexandria, Va.

The uproar in Gallardo's case has stirred debate over whether such measures give rise to vigilantism.

"It's very volatile — sex, children, the bogeyman — and notification is like a match struck near the gasoline," said Gerard Sheehan of the American Civil Liberties Union of Washington, which opposes the notification law. "Our officials need to be concerned about fanning what I call 'private justice.'"

Ex-convicts have been hounded in other states in recent years, including California, Minnesota and Virginia. But in other states — some of which notify only the victim when the offender gets out — word gets out mostly by word of mouth or when law enforcement officials notify neighbors without express legal authorization.

In California, for example, residents kept Lawrence Singleton on the run from town to town after he was paroled. He was convicted of raping a teen-ager and hacking off her forearms with an ax. He is now believed living in Florida.

The measure allowing Washington law enforcement to notify the public when a sex offender gets out was part of a tough 1990 law that was spurred by the sexual mutilation of a 7-year-old boy and the slayings of three youngsters.

When Gallardo was freed July 12 after serving nearly three years for having oral sex with the 10-year-old daughter of a friend, before he got out, Snohomish County sheriff's deputies released a flier with his picture.

Based on drawings and writings by Gallardo that had been found in his house, the sheriff's office described him as someone at high risk of committing another sex offense. It said he had sexual fantasies "which include torture, sexual assault, human sacrifice, bondage and the murder of young children."

In an interview with The Seattle Times, Gallardo said, "Just because a person draws something, it doesn't mean that's what they want to do."

Neighbors in the Seattle suburb of Lynnwood quickly organized a rally near Gallardo's house. Hours later, the house went up in flames before he could move in.

"I'm not saying any crime was right," neighbor Kevin McMahon said. But he added, "There's a lot of mothers going down the road with smiles on their faces."

Gallardo was on the run Monday, his brother, Pierre, told KING-TV in Seattle.

Although some legislators and citizens are calling for tougher laws against sexual predators, others are warning against a mob mentality taking away the basic rights of the offender, no matter how despicable the crime.

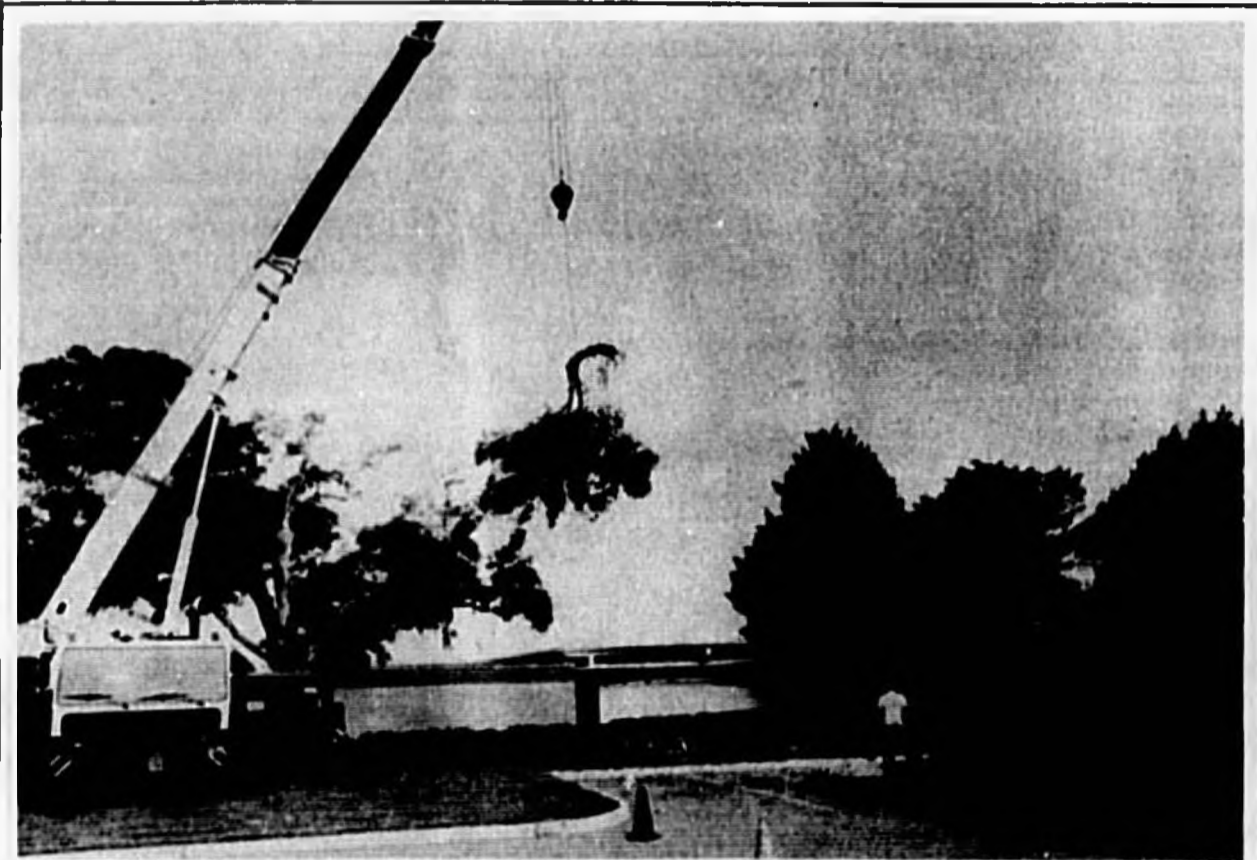

"We don't want vigilantes, that's for sure," prison chief Riveland said. "This man was convicted of one single sex offense, with someone he knew. The rest is fabricated from what he had written and drawn. Normally, we convict people on their behavior, not on what we think they might do."

Jim Townsend, deputy Snohomish County prosecutor, said the Lynnwood residents overreacted. And he and Riveland said such harassment may actually drive the ex-convict underground or out of state, where he won't be monitored.

Townsend said scores of convicted sex offenders are living in the county, about 70 close to where Gallardo planned to live. As of Tuesday, 7,083 sex offenders were registered with police agencies where they were living.

Notification of the community occurs in about 10 percent of cases, Riveland said. The decision is up to law enforcement authorities. In some cases, notification means a visit to the neighborhood school or handing out posters.

Riveland said notification "for the most part is handled in a responsible fashion" by both law enforcement and the community.

A tree goes at Sanford Middle School
When Sanford Middle School needed a large tree removed from the campus Tuesday, Echo's Tree Service undertook the project. The trunk cavity and some limbs of the 50-year-old Water Oak had rotted, increasing the risk of falling branches. School buildings blocked easy removal, so large limbs had to be lifted over the building with a crane supplied by Sunrise Crane Service in Orlando.

Study: Family may have been overestimated in breast cancer

By BRENDA C. COLEMAN
AP Medical Writer

CHICAGO — Women who fear they are doomed to get breast cancer because their mother or sister had it may be somewhat more worried than necessary, researchers say.

Some studies have suggested that a woman's risk of breast cancer doubles or triples if her mother has had it, and that the risk at least triples if a sister has had it.

But a group of researchers says that some of those studies — by relying on the participants' memories of who had breast cancer — may have overestimated the prevalence of the disease in families.

In a study of nearly 118,000 women, the researchers found only one in 40 cases was due mainly to heredity. Compared with a woman whose mother and sister had not had breast cancer, the risk was 1.8 times greater if a woman's mother had breast cancer and 2.3 times greater if her sister did, they found.

"Sometimes women who have a mother or sister with breast cancer feel they're doomed to get breast cancer themselves," Dr. David J. Hunter, an assistant professor at Harvard School of Public Health and Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, said Monday. "This demonstrates they are at high risk, but this puts that risk in perspective."

Hunter and his colleagues' findings were reported in today's issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association.

They tracked women, enrolled at ages 30 to 55, in the continuing Nurses' Health Study. Over 12 years ending in 1988, invasive breast cancers developed in 2,389.

"Within this population of middle-aged women, only 2.5 percent of breast cancer cases are attributable to a positive family history," Hunter and his colleagues wrote.

Women who had neither a mother or sister with breast cancer had about a 7 percent chance of getting it between ages 30 and 70. The likelihood rose to about 10 percent for women whose mothers had breast cancer, and a little higher — about 12.5 percent — if the mothers were stricken before age 50.

The chance was about 13 percent for women whose sisters had breast cancer and about 17 percent if the mother and a sister both had it.

The National Cancer Institute estimates that an average woman's chance of getting breast cancer in her lifetime is 1 in 9, or 11 percent.

Dr. Nicholas L. Petrakis, a breast-cancer researcher and professor emeritus at the University of California, said the study "should reassure a lot of women."

No clear motive for six friends accused of killing another

By CATHERINE WILSON
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Talk among a half-dozen friends about their dislike for another in their circle escalated to his brutal killing at a secluded lake, as brag upon boast brought about murder, police and a lawyer for two suspects said.

"Every brag got bigger and bigger, and it got to the point where they talked themselves into a corner and couldn't back down," said Jeffery Smith, an attorney representing two of the six suspects.

"If one person said, 'No this is wrong,' they all would have backed down," Smith said.

Bobby Kent, 20, was stabbed July 14 in the neck and stomach, "brained with a baseball bat" and dumped alive in a lake at a construction site in the upscale Weston development west of Fort Lauderdale, investigators said. A remorseful participant led detectives to his body four days later.

Four men and two women ranging in age from 17 to 20 are being held in the Broward County Jail without bond on first-degree murder charges.

They have tight connections: Martin Puccio was Kent's best friend, a longtime neighbor and an elementary school pal. Alice Willis was Kent's ex-girlfriend. Lately she was dating Donald Semence. Lisa Connelly was Alice's best friend. Derek Dzirko is Lisa's cousin. Derek Kaufman was the likely catalyst with a reputation, Smith said.

"Once they got to the scene it was 'You do it. No, you do it first.' Finally, Lisa said, 'If you guys aren't going to do it, I'll do it,' and that's when Donald (Semence) decided to do it," said Sheriff's Office Homicide Detective Frank Ibarra.

Semence stabbed Kent in the neck. Kent reached back, saw the blood and yelled to Puccio for help. Then Puccio stabbed his former best friend in the stomach, detectives said.

The others moved in, beating him with a bat, lead pipe, then slitting his throat before dumping him in the pond.

"I think they were surprised that killing a person is not that easy," Broward County sheriff's spokesman Jim Lejedal said after the last arrest was made Tuesday.

"You and everyone else is trying to find some logic, some good reason, some motive — and there isn't any," he added. "One of the girls said that he was abusive, but certainly that wasn't the motive for all of them."

The group covered up evidence by wearing surgical gloves, erasing tire tracks and dumping the weapons on the ocean, investigators said.

Smith, representing the two cousins, denied his clients wielded weapons in the slaying but corroborated much of the official account.

But Thomas Cazal, Puccio's attorney, slighted the investigators' theory. Without elaborating, he said, "When the entire story unfolds and each can describe the inordinate provocation that he or she endured, the public will have a considerably different perspective."

The plotting went on for about two weeks, and the first attempt failed when Willis couldn't pull the trigger on a pistol the night before the killing, Lejedal said. Kent was lured from home with a promise that he could drive Willis' Mustang in a drag race.

"This was a circle of friends and the victim had just fallen from their good graces for one reason or another," Lejedal said. "It was just a situation where they decided that they would kill him."

If museum is moved, move it downtown

The success of a historic museum depends on what it offers to the public, and where it is located. Herein lies the problem for the Museum of Seminole County History.

Situated at Five Points, south of the city, the county museum suffers from a lack of indoor space with which to expand its displays, and a poor location which does not attract passers-by and is not fully-accessible to wheelchair bound visitors.

Plans have recently been discussed to move it into the downtown Sanford area. We believe this is an excellent suggestion considering Sanford is the county seat.

Efforts to restore the historical downtown, residential areas and lakefront of Sanford, are progressing. A grand re-opening is being planned for late November on the newly expanded and remodeled Sanford Museum.

With two separate museums in Sanford, each would help the other attract more interest and therefore more visitors.

The Seminole County museum covers the interesting history of the entire county, but expansion has been delayed because of a lack of space. Plans have been considered to add more exhibits of a hands-on nature. Outdoor exhibits such as farming equipment could also be displayed.

In recent budget hearings, the Deputy County Manager changed his mind in recommending the museum occupy the old Post Office building at the corner of E. First Street and Palmetto Avenue.

He projected the $200,000 cost of vacating the present Technical Services Division out of the building, and moving the county museum in, as being too costly.

The county museum board has suggested the use of the old Chase Building, at the intersection of Oak Avenue and 2nd Street. It would certainly have more than enough space for an excellent expansion. However, there would be no adjacent outdoor space on which to hold the annual Pioneer Days and Ways celebration, which draws thousands of visitors to the museum.

The Chase building is privately owned, and would have to be purchased. Money would be difficult to obtain.

We support the idea of moving it downtown, but suggest more consideration and studies be made before pursuing the matter further.

New life for Navy base

The proposed closing of the Orlando Naval Training Center, as several have suggested, could be a blessing in disguise.

This area and its huge and growing number of retired career military and naval personnel needs a veterans' hospital. Locating it in Brevard County on the very edge of the region it is supposed to serve doesn't make a lot of sense. Obviously such a facility should be situated in the center of the area to be served.

There is already a hospital at the ONTC which could be made into a VA medical center. But this area is going to need even more than that.

We all know times and conditions change. Retired career military and naval personnel, just like civilians, today are living longer and longer and they, too, will be reaching a point, if they haven't already, when they will be in need of "nursing home" care.

Instead of occupying hospital beds needed for the more acutely ill many retired career service veterans could be adequately cared for in ONTC barracks easily converted into the nursing home type facilities. Sooner or later the VA is going to have to provide such services and ONTC would be an ideal place to start.

This would also eliminate the need for a costly VA hospital in Brevard where we understand some medical and prescription services are already available at the Patrick Air Force Base hospital. Consequently, we suggest ONTC be used for a new type of VA medical center complex. It could be the right facility in the right place, continue to provide hundreds of jobs, and at the same time save millions of tax dollars.

Cutting illegitimacy cuts welfare

It was once called "bastardy." Then "illegitimacy." Then "out-of-wedlock birth." And now, frequently, wholly sanitized, "non-marital birth."

Whatever it's called, it is at the root of our social problems. And, according to a new Census study, it is growing ominously.

Meanwhile, President Clinton's brand-new task force on welfare reform made its first public appearance. Alas, it went beyond mere sanitization, not mentioning the surge of out-of-wedlock births, even as that causes the current explosion of welfare.

Although there is tough-minded thinking now going on about welfare inside the Clinton task force, this public timidity does not augur well. As long as political America remains uncomfortable mentioning illegitimacy, we will continue to condone it. As long as we condone it, we will subsidize it. When we subsidize it, we cause it. By now, it's our fault.

The new Census data are shocking, although not unexpected. In one decade, from 1982 to 1992, the rate of illegitimate births soared from 15.8 percent to 24.2 percent, an increase of more than half — the largest increase ever. (And Census data, which come from a survey, are lower than birth records.)

For comparison, the illegitimacy rate was about 3 percent in 1950 and 4 percent in 1960.

The new levels are highest among African-Americans (rising from 49 percent to 67 percent) and Hispanics (16 percent to 27 percent). But it is a national problem. The illegitimacy rate grew most rapidly among whites (10 percent to 17 percent).

Remarkably, all this happened while fertility fell across-the-board for all races. This means the increase in illegitimacy comes from voluntary behavior. (If a woman can control the birth of a third child, she can usually control the birth of a first or second child.)

Whatever it's called, it is at the root of our social problems.

ELLEN GOODMAN

From radical to conservative?

BOSTON — Not long ago, the leaders of a local NOW chapter dreamed up the perfect T-shirt for their membership. On the front it would read: "I'm a radical feminist." On the back it would read: "Unless, of course, you think I'm too conservative."

It's a shame the T-shirt never got into production, because I'd like to send one to Ruth Bader Ginsburg. It's just the thing to wear under her dressed-for-judicial success suit on Tuesday (July 20) at the Senate confirmation hearings for the Supreme Court.

Ever since the diminutive and reserved appeals court judge accepted the nomination, she's been regarded suspiciously by conservatives. But she's also been inspected warily by some feminists.

The word that has attached itself permanently but not always flatteringly to her resume is "moderate." If, however, Ruth Ginsburg is now a moderate, it tells you more about how far the mainstream has drifted than how far the judge has drifted.

When the young baton twirler and treasurer of the Go-Getters was growing up in America, that stream was male with hardly a rivulet for women. The law school dean who invited the nine women in Ginsburg's class of 500 to dinner asked them why they were taking a man's seat. Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter denied her a clerkship. Even during her teaching years, the law school books contained such lines as "Land, like woman, was meant to be possessed."

In the 1970s, when women's rights advocates were automatically labeled as "libbers," Ginsburg became the leading strategist for the step-by-step assault on legal inequality. Read the front of the T-shirt please.

At the ACLU, she laid the groundwork, chose cases and argued successfully that different treatment meant subordinate treatment. She took the radical position that equal rights weren't radical.

Today, not even Pat Robertson openly argues that women should stick to a separate sphere. It's become possible to be described as a moderate feminist, even a conservative feminist. Read the back of the T-shirt please. Some '90s activists worry that the woman who was once on the cutting edge is on the fence or even the other side. They are concerned that Ginsburg ruled too often with conservatives during her tenure on the appeals court — and, more importantly, they are anxious because she has criticized the 1973 Supreme Court ruling on Roe v. Wade.

What did the only openly pro-choice nominee we've seen in years say? She believes that abortion rights should have been grounded in women's equality, not in privacy. This is hardly a new argument. Indeed Justice O'Connor hinted at the same thing in the court's last ruling. It doesn't presage a Ginsburg vote to overthrow Roe but perhaps a willingness to add another, stronger pillar under choice.

The judge also has said that the court got too far out in front of the public and the legislatures. "Roe v. Wade," she is convinced, "halted a political process that was moving in a reform direction and thereby, I believe, prolonged divisive and deferred stable settlement of the issue." Maybe it prolonged the struggle and maybe the conflict was inevitable, but after 20 years of non-stop abortion wars, she makes a reasonable point.

The woman who comes before the judiciary committee is careful, most comfortable with incremental change. In another context, she wrote approvingly about a "temperate brand of decision making, one that was not extravagant or divisive." That's likely to be her kind of decision making on the Supreme Court.

But that does not mean that yesterday's radical has become today's conservative. Or that the person on one decade's legal barricades will be barring the door during the next.

Clarence Thomas picked himself up with other people's bootstraps and went out to prove himself liberated from liberalism. But Ruth Ginsburg picked herself up and started a bootstrap business.

At her announcement she talked about her mother and Title 7. She thanked her husband and the women's movement. She lists her most significant legal work as "The advancement of equal opportunity and responsibility for women and men in all fields of human endeavor."

The worriers who see her from the back — the back of the T-shirt — won't always see eye to eye. But as Ginsburg told a gathering not long ago, this too is a part of change: "The feminist movement today is a house of many gables with rooms enough to accommodate all who have the imagination and determination to think and work in a common cause."

One of the finest rooms in that house of many gables is now being reserved for her at the Supreme Court. If the Senate hands her the key, I suspect that she — and we — will find this a very comfortable chamber.

The word that has attached itself not always flatteringly to her resume is 'moderate.'

TV is chewing gum for the eyes

They told me in journalism school that I shouldn't write about things I know nothing about, but today I'm going to violate that rule. I'm going to write about television violence, and I don't know a cursed thing about it.

What I mean to say is I have no first-hand knowledge. I've read a lot about it, and I've talked to people about it, but I haven't seen much of it myself because I don't watch television.

Well, that's not really true, either. There are some redeeming things on the tube that warrant periodic attention. Namely, baseball and basketball games. Or a big breaking news story that's visually interesting. Or a presidential speech, an occasional public TV program, a sporadic National Geographic special, old black-and-white movies or a Suzy Bogguss video if I trip over the Nashville Network while searching for ESPN.

As far as the rest of it is concerned, I'm from the Frank Lloyd Wright school of thought: TV is chewing gum for the eyes.

Does that mean I'm some sort of television snob? Maybe, but it's more likely I was simply trained right. My paternal grandfather, in whose home I was raised, steadfastly refused to have a TV set in the house while I was still in high school. Homework and "Hit Parade" didn't mix, this very wise man said.

So now I'm all grown up and I'm TV-free. I have never had the pleasure of seeing even one episode of "Beverly Hills 90210." Or "Harlan & Merleem," whatever that is. Or "Danger Theater" or "Top Cops" or "Johnny Bago," whatever they are.

Still, I know that some of this stuff is violent because I read about an American Psychological Association report that estimates the average American child will have seen 8,000 murders and 100,000 acts of violence by the time he or she finishes elementary school.

They can develop all the technology they want, but they'll never get me to look at that "be" until they come up with something that will also block out Roseanne Barr, Pat Robertson, Rush Limbaugh and that magnet for the brain-dead, the home shopping channel (which for the longest time I thought was the Zircon Channel because the only thing I've ever seen on it while searching for ESPN is a hand wearing a fake diamond).

While I was thinking about TV violence, I thought up five other reasons why you should just turn the damn thing off:

1. It rots the brain. This is literally true. A Canadian team studied a small town in British Columbia before and after it got television for the first time and found that both adults and children suffered a 20 percent loss in creativity.
2. It robs children of their fantasies. Indeed, educational psychologist Jane Healy, author of "Endangered Minds, Why Our Children Don't Think," believes it may actually be reversing the evolution of the human brain.
3. It filters out homely and squeaky-voiced political candidates (Ross Perot being a possible exception). It is a sad fact of the electronic age: You gotta be pretty to win.
4. It discriminates against newspapers and books, because every hour spent watching the tube is an hour spent not reading. And that means you're discriminating against me, podna.
5. It's only going to get worse. Five-hundred channel systems are just around the corner. I can't imagine what it will be like when I have to flip through half-a-thousand channels to find ESPN. At the rate of 5 seconds per channel, it'll take almost 42 minutes.

They'll be in the third inning before I get there.

So now I'm all grown up and I'm TV-free.

Commissioners cut spending plan

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners shaved $3.4 million from County Manager Ron Rabun's proposed $276 million spending plan Tuesday in an effort to offset proposed gasoline and utility tax increases.

Rabun and his chief budget officer, Jean Kassab, say the property tax trims should offset the tax increases. The exact property tax impact had not been calculated by this morning.

"It should be pretty much of a wash," said Kassab.

At the command of commissioners Monday afternoon, Rabun returned Tuesday morning with a 10-item hit list of proposed cuts.

Sheriff Don Estinger will be asked to whittle another $250,249 from his $28.9 million budget, already trimmed $365,000 from the sheriff's proposal.

A new $450,000 subdivision street resurfacing program will be eliminated and $500,000 will be cut from the proposed $2.8 million road and highway repair program, leaving about $1.7 million. Commissioners asked the program to be expanded to allow the county to repair roads before they become non-passable emergency situations. The cuts could eliminate that new service.

Commissioners also decided Monday not to move the Museum of Seminole County History to the old Sanford post office and not to hire a museum curator, at a savings of about $232,000.

Commissioners did not pursue another $1.1 million in cuts to offset Rabun's proposed garbage dumping fee increase of $5 per ton. The fee is the rate charge garbage haulers, not residents, to dump their loads at the county facilities.

Rabun said the "tip fee" increase is needed to offset the expense of programs and requirements imposed by the state and federal government on garbage disposers.

"If there's one thing I want the commission and the people to understand is that this is not a collection services issue," said Rabun. "This is a separate, garbage disposal issue. Without this, we'd be in a crisis."

Of the $3.4 million in cuts, $1.5 million were made from county reserve funds. About 10 percent of Rabun's proposed $276 million budget, $26 million, represents unspent dollars, contingency funds and reserves for unforeseen construction expenses. Of the $85 million general operating fund, Rabun proposed about a 6 percent reserve.

Rabun said the reserve fund cuts could be made to take the county a minimum 5 percent level.

"It takes away a little bit of the comfort level," said Rabun. "But it doesn't take away from the 5 percent that Moody's, and Standard and Poors (bond rating services) want to see."

ficer; hire part-time fire marshal; add one secretary to building and inspection; for the Parks & Recreation Department, addition of supervisor of maintenance and conversion of two part-time maintenance positions to one full-time.

For general fund capital projects, Litton is recommending $25,000 for resurfacing Commerce Street; $20,000 for resurfacing Rantoul Lane; $9,500 for improvements to the Community Center; $4,500 for improvements to Central Park/City Hall irrigation; and $5,000 for Neighbors for Neighborhoods.

Litton is also recommending construction of a picnic area at the new sports complex, installation of a backstop at Liberty Park ballfield, building of a carport/storage area at the Public Works/Public Safety Complex.

A number of additional proposals for projects are also included in the initial budget requests including utility and stormwater projects and vehicle maintenance.

Initial discussions of the various requests and line items in the proposed budget will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday, July 22 at the commission chambers of Lake Mary City Hall, 100 W. Lake Mary Blvd.

rived with his truck, and with assistance by several local residents, managed to pull Old George on shore and tie and blind him.

A crowd of approximately 40 persons spent their lunch hour watching Suarez perform his work.

Spectators at the scene report the gator's left rear foot was missing, although the leg was mostly intact.

After double checking all lines and tapes, Suarez loaded the gator on the truck and left the area. He said the Game and Fish Commission would decide what to do with the gator, but added that he assumed it would be put to death.

Although several on-lookers suggested the gator be saved and taken to the Central Florida Zoo, Curator Fred Antonio explained that the zoo is permitted to have only a certain number of alligators, and that number has already been met.

"Standard operational procedure," Antonio said, "is for the state to license a particular gator hunter who is assigned to an area. In exchange for handling problem gators, he in turn gets the hide and meat, so I would assume the gator will be killed."

Man held in stalking, death plot of women

By RON WORD
Associated Press Writer

GREEN COVE SPRINGS — Just a week before a rape, murder and mutilation was planned, police have arrested a 20-year-old man who kept "a top 10 list of potential homicide victims."

Gregory Dale Donaldson, 20, a cook at an Orange Park fast-food restaurant, was being held on $2.5 million bond following his initial appearance Tuesday on charges of stalking, conspiracy to commit first-degree murder and solicitation to commit first-degree murder.

"It is my opinion, it has come to a point where he has graduated from his fantasy mode and was moving into a point where he was carrying out his fantasies to the reality mode," said Clay County Sheriff's Office detective Jimm Redmond, lead investigator in the case.

Donaldson was arrested Monday while he was on a shopping spree to buy items on a three-page list of materials he claimed he needed to kill a Jacksonville Beach woman he had been stalking, police said.

The alleged murder was planned July 27, Redmond said.

who added Donaldson had given police a detailed statement concerning his plans.

When asked if Donaldson was capable of carrying out the killing, Redmond said: "There is absolutely no doubt in my mind."

The detective said he heard discussions about "his future plans pertaining to sexual homicide, mutilation, cannibalism, vampirism, sexual torture."

Police seized 21 boxes of evidence including writings, drawings and pornography from his home and car.

Among the writings, said Sgt. Dan Smith, the spokesman for the Sheriff's Office, was a "step-by-step" plan of the murder he planned to commit later this month.

Authorities displayed five knives, a shovel, surgical gloves, cleaning fluids, surgical sponges and other items.

They also showed some drawing done by Donaldson of mutilated and decapitated women, including one labeled "Lust-Murder."

Books on serial killers Ted Bundy, Jeffrey Dahmer, the Hillside Strangler and the Zodiac killer were found in searches of Donaldson's home and car.

smokers should be protected from secondhand smoke were good ones.

"We always try to get a seat as far away from the non-smokers as we can so we don't bother them," said Toni Gold of Deltona. "And if we had to sit in non-smoking then we wouldn't smoke at all."

Her husband Fred said he has never had anyone complain about his smoking, but he tries to be careful where he lights up as well.

The couple noted that they both enjoy smoking, but that the EPA's recommendations would not bother them if they were implemented.

Mark McCarty is an ardent non-smoker, he said. He said that he would prefer if all restaurants and public places would become smoke-free.

"I was in a restaurant on Sunday and I put a suggestion in their suggestion box that they go smokeless," he said. "I think going smokeless would cause restaurants to run smoother."

He said that he doesn't believe that many restaurants would exclude smoking patrons.

"It takes a lot of guts to do something like that," he said.

He said that he has seen one restaurant, the Burger King in Longwood, restrict their customers to non-smokers.

"I have a lot of respect for a business like that," he said.

McCarty said that he doesn't mind sitting in a non-smoking section of a restaurant as long as the facility is well-ventilated.

"That's all they have to do," he said.

Corey Dudley of Deltona, who was dining with McCarty, said he eats in restaurants with both smokers and non-smokers.

"It doesn't matter to me one way or the other," he said. "I'll sit up with the smokers in a ventilated restaurant and when I'm with a non-smoker I try to make sure that we're as far away from the smokers as we can be."

Waynette Smith of Sanford said she has only once heard a complaint from a non-smoker about her habit of lighting up at the end of a meal.

"One time there was this guy with an oxygen pack sitting up here in the smoking section because there weren't any other seats and he asked us if we'd stop smoking and we did," she said.

Bob Oakley of Sanford, who was eating with Smith, said he thought smokers should be able to smoke in peace, but if there weren't any seats for the non-smokers he thought they (smokers) should be considerate of the non-smokers' feelings.

"I don't mind putting my cigarette out if I really have to," he said.

NAACP looking for woman suing Vogle

By Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH — The NAACP is trying to find Selena Washington, a South Carolina woman suing Volusia County Sheriff Bob Vogle for confiscating $19,000 from her during a 1990 traffic stop.

Ms. Washington complained Vogle's men were trailing her and asking questions of her Charleston neighbors in an effort to discredit her, said Charles Burr, an attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The woman then dropped out of sight.

"She's nowhere to be found," said Burr, adding Ms. Washington apparently had gone into hiding to escape the alleged harassment.

The class action case filed by Ms. Washington, 44, and the NAACP has gained national attention.

Vogle's Selective Enforcement Team, which has confiscated some $8 million in cash while making arrests in only 25 percent of the cases, has been accused of targeting black and Hispanic motorists in a crackdown on drug trafficking.

Attorney General Janet Reno announced last week she has asked the FBI to investigate the squad's tactics for possible civil rights violations.

Ms. Washington recently testified before a congressional subcommittee that Vogle's Interstate 95 drug squad had seized $19,000 in cash from her in April 1990.

She was not arrested or charged with a crime. She produced documents showing the money came from a friend and two relatives who loaned her money while she waited for an insurance settlement for damage to her home by Hurricane Hugo.

Looking presidential not always so easy

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The White House has been working hard to project an image of a president in charge, his attention focused closely on the nation's problems. But it's hard to look presidential when your helicopter can't land on the White House lawn.

Or when you have to live out of your car trunk on a visit home. Or when a senator of your own party thinks she's paying you a compliment by calling you the "commander in chief of disasters."

Those are just a few of the minor glitches and image problems that have plagued President

Clinton this hot and hazy summer.

First, the helicopter. Clinton lately has been forced to go by car to the Pentagon on the other side of the Potomac River to catch his Marine One helicopter.

That's because an enormous tent — larger than most houses — that was set up on the South Lawn of the White House for Clinton's Georgetown College reunion last month was left there too long. All the grass under it died. When it was removed earlier this month, there was just one large rectangle of brown.

The National Park Service had to reseed the area, and it will still be several weeks before Clinton's helicopter can land and take off there. If a landing were tried now, the rotor wash could throw up a blizzard of grass and soil chunks, one White House aide said.

True, it's not a big deal for a White House that has had to cope with far worse in image problems.

For instance: There haven't been any more $200 Hollywood haircuts aboard Air Force One since veteran political operative David Gergen came aboard as counselor.

And, for the most part, the White House is managing to get the most nettlesome issues — gays in the military, a shakeup at the FBI, the controversy over fired travel office employees — behind it.

"You guys must be bored," White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers told reporters Tuesday.

"I think everybody is grateful that we've been able to clear the decks in order to focus like a laser beam on the economy."

But some image problems persist.

For instance, it probably didn't help Clinton when, at a meeting with flood-state governors and other officials in St. Louis on Saturday, Sen. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., told him: "I think that you, as commander in chief of disasters, should be congratulated."

"I don't know about being commander in chief of disasters," Clinton answered sheepishly. "I'm afraid I may live to hear that again before long."

Lawmakers vent frustration over military gay ban policy

By DONNA CASSATA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — What if one soldier tells another he is gay? What if a sailor marches in a gay rights parade dressed as a transvestite?

Even after hearing from the Pentagon's top echelon, members of Congress say they can't figure out if such behavior would be grounds for a commander to investigate under President Clinton's new policy on gays in the military.

Call the attorney general. Aspin said that the policy leaves the final decision to the discretion of the commanders.

Across the street from the White House, meanwhile, gay rights groups registered their displeasure with the policy.

About 75 protesters marched through Lafayette Park, chanting "You can't ban us" and "Les Aspin, more queers." Police reported 11 arrests when marchers approached the White House fence.

Police in San Francisco arrested 41 gay rights activists they said tried to enter the Federal Building with placards protesting the new policy.

And David Mixer, a California consultant who helped raise $3 million for Clinton's campaign, said the president had betrayed the gay community. He promised protests, too.

"The confusion will get bigger rather than smaller," an exasperated Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., Senate Armed Services Committee chairman, said at the end of a hearing Tuesday on Clinton's "don't ask, don't tell, don't pursue" policy.

The Senate committee hears testimony today from the Defense Department's general counsel, Jamie Gorelick, on the legal implications of Clinton's new policy. Defense Secretary Les Aspin and the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who testified before Nunn's committee Tuesday, move over to the House Armed Services Committee today.

Led by their chairman, Gen. Colin Powell, the Joint Chiefs defended the policy Tuesday as acceptable and workable. "I believe this is the right answer," Powell said.

Opposition in Congress and from the military forced Clinton to abandon his campaign pledge to lift the ban on gays in the military outright. Instead, the president unveiled a compromise Monday allowing homosexuals to serve as long as they remain silent about their sexuality.

Clinton, in an interview with Wisconsin journalists, heatedly denied that the new policy betrayed political weakness. "It may be a sign of madness, sir, but it is not a sign of weakness," he snapped.

Later, in a televised interview with CNN's Larry King, the president said "the Joint Chiefs came a long way on this policy from where they were back in January."

"They know that there are and always have been homosexuals in the service who have served with distinction," Clinton said. As to the compromise, Clinton said, "I believe it's the best we can do right now."

But at Tuesday's hearing, skeptical lawmakers peppered Aspin with hypothetical situations that might arise from such a policy.

What if a soldier admits to a bunk mate that he is homosexual? Would the service academies be forced to change their code of conduct that says cadets cannot lie since the new policy requires service members to hide their sexuality?

After nearly three hours of questioning, Aspin added to the confusion when he acknowledged that the policy would still discourage homosexuals from signing up.

"If a person is homosexual, they would be much more comfortable pursuing another profession than the military," Aspin said.

Still, he described the president's plan as progress for homosexuals who want to be in the armed forces. "The policy before was 'don't tell.' What's new is 'don't ask' and 'don't pursue,'" Aspin said.

Nunn expressed frustration when Aspin was presented with a hypothetical situation in which one soldier tells another he is gay. Would that be credible information sufficient for a commander to investigate?

Aspin said no. Rather, he said, grounds for an inquiry would be a pattern of homosexual conduct defined as "a homosexual act, a statement that the member is homosexual or bisexual, or a marriage or attempted marriage to someone of the same gender."

Nunn contended that Aspin was contradicting himself, and declared, "This has to be pinned down. We can't have a commander out there saying, 'What do I do?' and somebody says,

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

Football officiating clinic

LONGWOOD — The Central Florida Officials Association, Inc. (CFOAI) is offering a clinic for anyone interested in officiating high school or little league football this fall.

The clinic starts Thursday, July 22, at 6 p.m. at Orlando Edgewater High School, and each Monday and Thursday through August 19.

For information, contact: Tom Storey (831-0130) or Rick Corley (644-2465).

Toucan Willies gets split

WINTER SPRINGS — Oviedo's Toucan Willies was within three outs of pulling off the biggest upset of the season, but Certified Slings showed why they are undefeated rallying for three runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to win 5-4 in Winter Springs Recreation Department Men's Class C Tuesday Night Summer Slowpitch Softball League at Central Winds Park.

Pitcher Dennis Codrey had held Slings (4-0) to only five hits entering the seventh but the winners came up with four consecutive hits and a sacrifice fly to pull out the win.

The nightcap, a make-up game, was all Toucan Willies as Codrey had a no-hitter until two out in the seventh, finishing with a one-hitter as Toucan Willies crushed City Night's Valet 16-0.

Doing the damage for Toucan Willies in the first game were Randy Ramroth (home run, single, run, three RBI), Eddie Norton and John McKay (two singles each) and Ryan Alkire (RBI).

In the late game, Ramroth (triple, two singles, two RBI), Greg Register (three hits), Norton, Alkire, Kenny Tuttle, Pete Arcomone and Billy Stripp (two hits each), McKay (triple, 2 RBI) and Ronnie Gardner (double, two runs).

Toucan Willies (3-2) will play City Night's Valet (3-2) again next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Smokies top O-Cubs

ORLANDO — Tim Hodge singled in the 11th inning to score Tim Hyers with the winning run as the Knoxville Smokies rallied to beat the Orlando Cubs 6-4.

Howard Battle had four hits for the Smokies. Rudy Gomez, Doug Glanville and Mike Grace each had three hits for the Cubs.

AROUND THE STATE

Home runs doom Marlins

MIAMI — Andres Galarraga hit a 455-foot home run off Chris Hammond (10-6) and Dante Bichette added a three-run homer to help Colorado break its five-game losing streak and clinch the season series against its expansion rival with a 6-3 victory. The Rockies lead 7-4 with one game remaining Wednesday.

Willie Blair (4-7) gave up two runs in five innings and struck out six for his first victory since June 19.

Relaford leads Suns

JACKSONVILLE — Desi Relaford had five RBI, including a three-run homer, to help propel the Jacksonville Suns to an 11-4 Southern League victory over the Chattanooga Lookouts.

Lightning to play in St. Pete

ST. PETERSBURG — The Tampa Bay Lightning, which played its first season in the 10,400-seat Expo Hall at the Florida State Fairgrounds in Tampa, will play in the 28,000-seat Florida Suncoast Dome this season.

Fryar hurt

DAVIE — The Miami Dolphins got a scare Tuesday when wide receiver Irving Fryar strained his right knee.

But team doctors said that X-rays showed that Fryar suffered no damage to cartilage or ligaments, but did strain a tendon. Fryar will miss up to two weeks, but does not face surgery.

Sunday, third-year receiver Mike Williams broke his left ring finger in a bicycle accident.

AROUND THE NATION

Fire delays Braves vs Cardinals

ATLANTA — Fire swept through a section of Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium before the Braves' 8-5 victory over St. Louis, sending fans and players scurrying for safety as black smoke poured from the burning press box.

The fire in the stadium's middle level started 90 minutes before the scheduled 7:40 p.m. EDT starting time and was put out in 45 minutes.

Atlanta fire chief David Chamberlin said the fire, which delayed the start of the game until 9:38 p.m., apparently started with a "sterno heating unit."

Arlington rallies past Oviedo American Majors

OVIEDO — The best laid plans of mice and men oft go astray. The same can be said for baseball managers.

During the course of Tuesday night's Little League Baseball Major Division Section I Tournament at the Oviedo Little League King Street complex, the respective managers of the Oviedo American and Arlington all-stars made several strategic moves that initially worked but would always seem to come back to haunt their teams.

But in the end, once-beaten Arlington did just enough of the right things to pull out a 7-6 victory and force a winner-take-all contest with the previously undefeated Americans for the sectional title tonight.

Tatroe's 65th birthday maked by ceremonies at New Smyrna oval

By PAUL MARSEGLIA
Special to the Herald

SAMSULA — Apopka's David Russell out-horsed Orlando's David Rogers to win the Granny Tatroe 65-Lap Social Security Late Model Feature Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway.

Russell, driving the Horses Around Farms Chevrolet Camaro, crossed the stripe less than a car-length ahead of Rogers, who was at the wheel of the TM Ranch Pontiac Firebird.

The race, co-sponsored by Volusia County Council on Aging, Action Performance, and DeLand Hi-Performance, was in honor of Alice "Granny" Tatroe's 65th birthday, which she celebrated Saturday. More than 3,000 fans and drivers were in attendance to help Granny, who has been racing late models for 18 years, celebrate the occasion.

"Tonight was Granny's show. I just want to thank my crew and sponsors for giving me a winning race car. This is our fifth consecutive win at New Smyrna," said Russell, a four-time FASCAR Late Model champion.

"This victory is special to me. Granny was already racing here when I first started running late models. She was treated with respect then, but more so now because she has come a long way as a driver and a competitor."

In pre-race ceremonies, Tatroe received a birthday cake, a plaque and a T-shirt from the Council on Aging.

"Many people think life begins at 40, well Granny says life begins at age 65," said Judy Guttenmatte from the Council on Aging. "This plaque is a reminder that we can all have a fulfilling life after 60."

Upon receiving the plaque Tatroe stated, "I just can't believe this attention. I'm so excited I don't know if I can go out and race tonight. I just want to thank the Harts, my fellow drivers and all the fans for making this my best birthday ever."

Following the ceremonies, New Smyrna Beach Mayor George Musson, the honorary flagman, dropped the green flag and the cars roared to life in preparation for the 65-lap feature event.

"This is a case of a gramps waving the green flag for a granny and her fellow drivers," said Mayor Musson. "I'm thrilled and pleased to be here. On the flag stand I had the best seat in the house. I could see everything going on around me. The power of the late models as they went by was just awesome."

Trailing Russell and Rogers at the finish were Ed Meredith, Wayne Anderson and Bruce Lawrence.

"It was an outstanding race. David (Rogers) raced me from flag to flag. I got high in turn two and he got by me, three laps later he got out of the groove and I got the lead back," said Russell, who set the evening's fastest qualifying time.

Gordon to pilot No. 28

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — IndyCar racer Robby Gordon will drive the late Davey Allison's No. 28 Ford Thunderbird in Sunday's DieHard 500 NASCAR race at Talladega, Ala., Allison's racing team announced.

Gordon, 24, of Orange, Calif., was given a one-race deal on Tuesday to drive for Robert Yates Racing, which owns Allison's car.

"I'm not replacing him," Gordon said. "It just happens that I have an off weekend and I'll do the best I can. Davey was one of my favorite NASCAR drivers."

Scheduling conflicts prevent Gordon, who is currently eighth in points in the IndyCar circuit, from running in all the remaining Winston Cup races this season.

"I'm excited that they're taking a chance with me," Gordon said at a hastily called news conference outside Yates Racing's shop. "I know it's a big risk."

Gordon got his start in off-road truck racing and later worked the IMSA and ARCA circuits. He has never won an IndyCar race but has one top-five and six top-10 finishes in nine starts this year.

Yates said he chose Gordon because he has raced on the Winston Cup circuit and because he's highly regarded by other NASCAR drivers. Gordon's only NASCAR experience came in the 1991 Daytona 500, when he ran as high as fifth before spinning to avoid an accident and finished 18th.

"We're going to put Robby in the car for one race," Yates said. "As far as the future, we're going to look down the list (of available drivers). All we've been doing is answering the phone. A lot of people want to get in the seat of the No. 28 car."

Gordon is under contract with A.J. Foyt's Copenhagen Lola Ford-Cosworth Indy team, an arrangement that prevents him from staying with Yates for the rest of the Winston Cup season.

"Robby's racing career doesn't hinge on this," Yates said. "He can drive with a clear mind. He is under no pressure."

Yates said the process has been an agonizing one because it involves naming a replacement for the popular Allison at his home track, Talladega also is the place where the 32-year-old stock car driver crashed his helicopter last week, suffering fatal head injuries.

He recalled that Allison didn't drop out of a Winston Cup race at Michigan last year after his younger brother, Clifford, was killed in loser's bracket final. The Americans used the long ball to take a 3-1 lead in the second inning. Ruben Melendez led off the game for Oviedo with a walk and later scored on a long home run to dead center field by Jorgi Hernandez that nearly cleared King Street. The third run came on a solo home run to right center by Dave Roland leading off the second inning. Arlington got a run back in the bottom of the first inning on a walk to Jermaine Pender, a wild pitch and an RBI single to center by Clint Chauncey. Oviedo starting pitcher Nathan Dancy allowed at least one hit in each inning but was able to keep Arlington at bay as the Americans maintained the 3-1 lead until the bottom of the fourth inning. With two out and no one on, Arlington got the first big break of the night when a bouncer between the mound and first base was bobbled for an error by Dancy, and the flood gates were open. After a wild pitch, Pat Rumble doubled over the Oviedo left fielder's head, scoring

"It happens," said Altamonte Springs coach Jerry Lisle with a shrug and a small smile. "This kid (Niceville pitcher Chris Storr) shut us down the other night, when we just barely beat him, and he did a super job again tonight." At the start, it looked like Altamonte Springs might have the answer to the puzzle presented by Storr, scoring a run in the top of the second inning. Bryan Chancellor led off with a walk, stole second, and went to third on a wild pitch. After Jose Tormas walked, Matt Ballard singled to score Chancellor. Altamonte Springs had a chance to do more damage as Tyler Carr followed Ballard's hit with a walk to load the bases. But Storr got out of the jam by striking out a batter, getting the next hitter to hit into a fielder's choice, and the final batter to pop up to first base. Trevor Dixon, the starting pitcher for Altamonte Springs, also had control pro-practice. He also kept racing at Pocono after his father, Bobby Allison, suffered career-ending injuries in a wreck. "I'm sure it went through his mind but he ran at Pocono and he ran at Michigan," he said. Allison won three Winston 500s at Talladega, which is located not far from his hometown of Hueytown, Ala. His father, Bobby Allison, won four times there and his uncle, Donnie Allison, posted two victories at the superspeedway. Yates decided not to enter the No. 28 car in last Sunday's Champion 500 race at Pocono International Raceway, saying the team needed time to grieve Allison's death. "Had Talladega been the first weekend, we would have missed it," he said. Now the team needs to get back to business, Yates said. "This is our livelihood," he explained. "This race team is prepared to go there and win this race." "I believe this team has the support of Davey Allison," Yates added. "He's just a little higher up with a better view."

Roach posts wire-to-wire victory

By PAUL MARSEGLIA
Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — Orlando's Ronnie Roach, driving the REDAT/Bilstein Shocks Chevrolet Camaro, led from the drop of the green flag until the wave of the checkers to win the Late Model feature event Friday night at Orlando SpeedWorld.

"I was really surprised, the car was tough right off the trailer tonight," said Roach, who has two feature wins on the season. "We wrecked real bad a few weeks ago and had to replace the front and rear clip and a bunch of other stuff. I never imagined our first race back we would run this good."

Racing the low groove and using lapped cars to his advantage, Roach crossed the stripe three car-lengths ahead of Pete Orr. Orr was trailed by Wayne Anderson, Speedy Reeves and Dave McCabe.

"With Pete (Orr) and Wayne (Anderson) behind me I knew I would have to take the lead first and stay down low on the track so they would have to pass me on the outside," said the 33-year-old Roach, who has been racing for eight years. "It's tough to pass on the outside on this track unless your car is handling real well and you have a strong motor."

Orr added, "second was the best we could do tonight, we had the handling but the car was just down on power."

By virtue of winning last week's feature event, Anderson started the race from the tail end of the field.

"We were able to work our way through traffic and get to third place," said Anderson, the current FASCAR Late Model point leader. "Ronnie (Roach) and Pete (Orr) were both running a good race tonight and it took me a while to run them down. It never falls though, when you need a caution you go all green flag." After several laps of wheel-to-wheel racing, Ron Editor's note: Saturday's results from Volusia County Speedway will appear in Thursday's Sanford Herald.

McCreary outduelled Michael Williams to take the lead in the Limited Late Model main event. But coming hard through the pack was John Michalowski, who edged past Williams with five laps to go and set sail for McCreary.

McCreary held off Michalowski to take the victory, with Williams, Gary Schlichter and George Murphy finishing third through fifth.

Bill Loomis led every circuit to notch top honors in the Sportsman Division feature.

Rounding out the top five, respectively, were Rick Johns, Billy Gerdy, Jimmy Johns and Jerry Smith.

on the white flag lap, Osteen's Bobby Sears got around Kelly Jarrett to take the advantage in the Mini-Stock feature.

Jarrett, trying to regain the position, pulled alongside of Sears and raced fender-to-fender to the finish line, with Sears edging Jarrett at the line by several inches.

J.D. Duncan was third, John Gazdacko was fourth and Gene Van Alstine was fifth.

Bruce Thompson nipped Glen Carter to score his third Modified feature win of the season.

The rest of the top five was filled by Joe Adams, Sanford's John Ripley and Kelly Jarrett.

Surviving a first lap caution, brought out when Glen Cordell and Bobby Stevens smacked the turn one wall, Wally Semrow bested Glen Castro to take the victory in the Bomber feature.

Following the lead duo across the finish line were Stevens, Mike Hughes and Dave Waddell.

Also posting wins were Mike Mingione in the Run-About feature, Sara Townsend in the Mini-Stock Bomber feature and Greg Pitts, who outclassed a 35-car field to win the 50-lap, Four-Cylinder Enduro.

Earnhardt adds to commanding lead

Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH — Dale Earnhardt raced to a 209-point lead in the NASCAR Winston Cup standings with his Sunday victory at Pocono International Raceway in Pennsylvania.

Earnhardt's margin over second-place Dale Jarrett, 2,612-2,403, means he could finish last in the next stock-car race and still hold a 61-point edge, the difference between first and 13th in a single race.

Rusty Wallace, who finished second to Earnhardt in Sunday's 500-mile race, is third in the standings with 2,352 points. Fourth is Morgan Shepherd with 2,272, followed by Ken Schrader, 2,181; Kyle Petty, 2,175; Mark Martin, 2,172; and rookie leader Jeff Gordon, 2,108.

Davey Allison, fatally injured in a helicopter crash a week ago in Talladega, Ala., was ranked ninth in the standings with 2,105. Allison had one victory and six top-five finishes in the first 18 races of the 1993 National Association of Stock Car Auto Racing season. His death came before the 17th race Sunday.

Earnhardt leads the circuit in money winnings with $1,162,410. Ernie Ivan is second with $710,290, while Jarrett is third with $708,225.

CITY OF LAKE MARY, FLORIDA
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE HEATHROW INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS CENTER DEVELOPMENT OF REGIONAL IMPACT (DRI)
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the City Commission of the City of Lake Mary will hold a Public Hearing on August 5, 1993, at 7:00 P.M., or as soon thereafter as possible, in the Commission Chambers, 100 W. Lake Mary Boulevard, Lake Mary, Florida. The purpose of the hearing is to receive public input and to determine if a proposed change to the Heathrow International Business Center DRI Development Order constitutes a substantial deviation regarding an extension of the buildout date.

The Heathrow International Business Center DRI is located in Section 6, Township 28, Range 30, further described as located on the south side of C.R. 44A, west of Interstate 4, containing approximately 214.76 acres.

Documents relating to the proposed change, a complete legal description, and information and materials relating to the Heathrow International Business Center DRI are available at the address below. Those in attendance at the Public Hearing desiring to present input will be heard and written comments may be filed with the City Commission at the Public Hearing or by mailing same to the address below c/o "City Planner". The hearing may be continued from time to time as found necessary. Further information pertaining to this development may be obtained from the City Planner's Office, Lake Mary City Hall, 100 W. Lake Mary Boulevard (P.O. Box 930700) Lake Mary, Florida, 32793-0700; (407) 324-3049.

Persons are advised if they decide to appeal any decision made at the hearing, they will need a record of the proceedings, and for such purpose they may need to ensure that a verbatim record of the proceedings is made, which record includes the testimony and evidence upon which the appeal is to be made.

Persons with disabilities needing assistance to participate in any of these proceedings should contact the City ADA Coordinator at least 48 hours in advance of the meeting at (407) 324-3024.

"After the race I gave Granny the trophy, she deserves it more than I do. She's sort of the undeclared spokesman for racing. Her determination and drive keeps all the young guys going. With Granny, you do the best with what you have and never give up."

Tatroc, who qualified seventh out of a 20-car field, finished the race in ninth position.

"It was a little hot out there tonight, and I don't fell my age," said Tatroc. "The car ran real good. I had a lot of help from the guys at J & M Motors in Edgewater. They worked on the car and kept me in the race. I don't know what else to say, this whole night left me overwhelmed. It's one I'll remember for a long time."

In other racing division's last Saturday night:

Orlando's Jacob Warren continued to dominate the Limited Late Models, finishing ahead of Keith Balga, John Michalowski, Mike Todd and Michael Williams.

Osteen's Marc Kinley headed all comers in the Modified feature. Dave Savicki, Jeff Anderson, Gary Salvatore and Danny Kintz finished second through fifth.

Wally Semrow made it a perfect weekend as he followed

Friday's win at Orlando by taking the Bomber feature. Following Semrow across the line were Gary Frosh, Bob Richardson, Bob Hiner and Myles Granberry.

Pat McClain got the trip to victory lane in the Sportsman feature, besting Dale Howard, Art Chapman, Barbara Pierce and David LeBeau.

Osteen's Bobby Sears again dominated the Mini-Stock feature with Conrad Grenier, Ted Vulpius, Jerry Symons and Rick Maguire trailed.

Lee Wagner outraced Lyle Messinger, Rob Montineri, Mike Wathem and Tim Welter to the checkered flag in the Action Performance Run-About Special feature.

Short answer to simple query: abstinence is the safest sex

DEAR ABBY: I just read the confidential you wrote to "Needs to Know the Truth in Cleveland." You said, "The only safe sex is no sex. Trust me."

Well, that is the best, and most accurate advice I have ever heard on that subject. Thank you for telling it like it is.

I am relieved to know that there are still people out there who speak the truth without rationalizing, or trying to justify sinful behavior all in the name of "safe sex."

I hope your statement will send a message to people who engage in sinful behavior, and worse yet, take chances. When are people going to wake up and realize that there is no "safe sex"?

ADVICE

The only answer is no sex. Say it again, Abby and say it often.
ANOTHER ABIGAIL, ST. PAUL, MINN.

DEAR ABIGAIL: The statement was made in a literal context, not in a religious or philosophical sense. The woman's question: "If condoms aren't 100 percent safe - what is 100 percent safe?" My answer: Abstinence.

DEAR ABBY: You said, "When an engagement has been broken, the lady should return the ring, or she's no lady."

Sorry, Abby, you are way off base on that one. My engagement was broken two months before my wedding date when I learned that my philandering fiancé got himself into the embarrassing position of becoming a father. I was shocked and totally devastated. Can you imagine how hurt I was when he actually married this bimbo a week after terminating our engagement!

The ring he had given me on the eve of our engagement was a beautiful three-carat solitaire. The louse had the nerve to ask me to return it, which of course I refused to do...on the advice of my lawyer. I promptly sold the ring and used the money to reimburse my bridesmaids for their dresses. I also repaid my parents the money they had deposited for the wedding that never came off.

Then I took a vacation and began a new life of my own. Abby, if by your definition I am no "lady" - so be it. But he was certainly no gentleman!

BETTER OFF
DEAR BETTER OFF: Considering the circumstances, you'll get no argument from me. Pass the crown, please.

DEAR ABBY: I am 25 and I am just about to get married to a man I love very much. I am still a virgin. I am afraid that after he sees my body, he is going to want to get a divorce! I have these ugly stretch marks on my hips and backside.

Do you know of any creams that would work? Is there a plastic surgeon who could fix this? Will it hurt? And how much will it cost?

Please answer quickly, Abby. My wedding is on Aug. 5.

DESPERATE BRIDE-TO-BE IN PORT ARTHUR, TEXAS

DEAR DESPERATE: Calm your fears. If the man proposed without encountering your stretch marks, then you can be certain they will not be of utmost importance to him after he discovers them. I know of no solution to the stretch mark problem. But the magician who finds one is certain to make a fortune.

Roquefort reigns as king of cheese

By BUZY PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

ROQUEFORT-SUR-SOULZON, France - Roquefort is a moldy, old cheese, true enough, but also a revered aristocrat.

Mold, age and history shape the mystique and quality of the cheese with the distinctive blue-green veins. It is made from ewe's milk and has been produced since ancient times exclusively in this scenic, hilly part of southwestern France.

Roquefort has graced royal tables since Julius Caesar apparently savored it during his Gallic campaign. Charlemagne had the cheese brought to his imperial quarters at Aix-la-Chapelle in the 9th century.

In the 15th century, Charles VII gave the inhabitants of Roquefort royal permission to make money from cheese produced on land he owned.

It is considered very different from the run-of-the-mill bleu cheeses made from cows' milk, so often seen in salad dressings.

"Roquefort is unique," said master cheese maker Maurice Astruc, who sniffs, pokes and tastes to control quality as the cheese ages in caves under the village.

Astruc works for the company known as Societe, which with two affiliates makes more than 70 percent of the 16,000 tons of Roquefort produced in the village. The rest comes from seven other firms, most of them family owned.

Showing visitors through underground tunnels where the cheese is aged, Astruc glowed with enthusiasm.

"By law, Roquefort must be made from whole, unpasteurized milk of a special breed of sheep, the Lacaune," he said. "The milk comes from a well-defined area within about a 20-mile radius of Roquefort."

He said exceptions were once made for milk brought in from the Pyrenees and Corsica, but now enough ewe's milk is produced in the Aveyron and other departments around Roquefort.

Cheese making starts in dairies near the local sheep farms. But law decrees that it may be refined or aged only in this village, in a designated area 1.2 miles long and a little more than 300 yards wide.

"It must be aged for at least three months and only in our cellars here, going down several levels below the street," Astruc said.

Typical recipes offered by Roquefort producers:
ROQUEFORT AVOCADO MOUSSE

3 ripe, medium-sized avocados
Juice of 1 lemon
4 1/2 oz. Roquefort
4 1/2 oz. creme fraiche or heavy cream
Pepper to taste
(Serves 6)

Halve the avocados, remove flesh, adding plenty of lemon juice. Blend with Roquefort in food processor or with a fork. Add freshly ground pepper. Whip the cream with a beater and gently fold into avocado-Roquefort mixture.

Fill the avocado shells with blended mixture and serve immediately, or chill for not more than 30 minutes (otherwise avocado will turn brown). A white Riesling wine goes well with this first-course dish.
BEEFSTEAK AU ROQUEFORT

3 oz. Roquefort
4 medium-sized steaks (T-bone or NY strip, for example)
3 oz. unsalted butter
1 tbsp cognac or "eau de vie"
Salt to taste

Mash Roquefort in a bowl with butter, adding cognac or eau de vie. Mix well and refrigerate. Barbecue or broil steaks. Just before removing from heat, top with dollops of the Roquefort mixture, which should melt on the hot meat. Serve with baked potato, green beans or other simple vegetables. A good Bordeaux wine goes well.

There's no 'cure' for bone fracture

DEAR DR. GOTT: What can be done for those of us who have developed osteoporosis and suffer compression fractures of the vertebrae of the spine? I cannot take estrogen, as I have a history of breast cancer, but a bone biopsy ruled out bone cancer as a cause of my fractures. Will I always have this pain?

DEAR READER: In osteoporotic patients, bones fracture as calcium leeches from them and they become weaker and more brittle. The cause of osteoporosis is unknown, but the disorder commonly affects older adults, women more often than men.

Weight-bearing exercise, such as walking, and calcium supplements (at least 1,500 mg per day) frequently help mildly osteoporotic patients. In some post-menopausal women, the use of estrogen slows the loss of bone calcium.

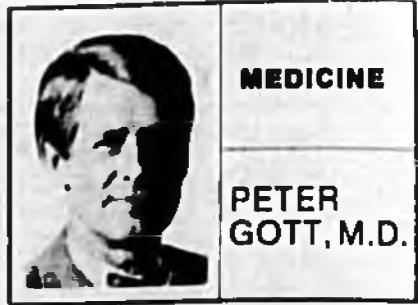

However, once spinal compression fractures have appeared, more aggressive therapy is warranted to strengthen bones, reduce pain and minimize disability.

At present, two prescription drugs are widely used for this purpose.

Calcitonin (Calcimar) is a synthetic hormone that prevents calcium loss from bones. The medicine is given by daily injection and must be continued indefinitely for maximum benefit. Being a complex molecule, calcitonin can sometimes cause severe allergic reactions. Nausea and flushing of the skin may also occur. However, the drug is generally safe.

Etidronate (Didronel) regulates bone metabolism. The drug is administered as a daily pill for several weeks with "rest" periods between cycles of therapy. Didronel may cause nausea, diarrhea and allergic reactions; it should be used with caution in the presence of kidney problems.

Either of these two medicines, in association with supplemental calcium, moderate exercise and a healthful diet, may reduce your pain.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

In "The Faerie Queene," Edmund Spenser wrote, "So double was his pains, so double be his praise."

This is only fair, and it can apply in a bridge deal — like today's. How should South plan the play in three no-trump, West leading the heart queen?

South had a tough decision after his partner's takeout double. He was a little strong for one no-trump and a little weak for two no-trump. He compromised by jumping to two spades, showing 9-11 points and at least four spades. North's cue-bid of three hearts was game-forcing and expressing doubt about direction. The bid is usually made with three spades. With four spades, normally North would raise. South showed his heart stopper; North was happy to pass.

South had six top tricks, one spade, two hearts, one diamond and two clubs. From the bidding, it was likely that West held the K-Q of spades and the club queen. But were the spades or the clubs breaking 3-3? Declarer found a line that allowed him to test both suits.

After winning the first trick in hand with the heart king, South led a spade queen, ace. Dummy's spade jack was won with West's king; back came a low heart to dummy's ace. Dummy's spade 10 was cashed but West discarded a heart. Now declarer played a club to his ace and led the club jack, queen, king. When declarer played a club to his 10, both opponents followed. So a diamond to dummy's ace allowed South to cash dummy's club six for his ninth trick.

The more chances you have to make your contract, the better.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 22, 1993

A number of chances within your field of endeavor could work out advantageously for you in the year ahead. Each event might help you move up the ladder a few steps ahead of others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you don't have active outlets to occupy you mentally and physically today, you might get very restless and disorganized. This could turn a productive day into a ho-hum experience. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Because of your intense desires regarding things you want for yourself and loved ones, you will be well motivated today to figure out ways to get them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Substantial steps can be made today to advance your self-interests, provided you do not delegate assignments to others you're better able to take of yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Keep an eye peeled for bargains today, because your commercial instincts are well tuned and, if anyone is going to find a good deal, it is likely to be you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have the ability today to arouse an interest in and gain the support of others for things that are of personal importance to you. You'll know how to use this gift constructively.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Others might think and talk about ways to improve their lot in life, but you'll be the guy/gal who will actually do something about it today. Way to go!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There could be some interesting developments today that might have a favorable effect on your future. It all ties into something you put together a short while back.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Success is probable in your endeavors today, whether it is focusing on your own interest or managing something for another. It looks like all your bases are covered.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you do everything in accordance with your highest standards today, you'll find persons with whom you are directly dealing will begin to treat you as you're treating them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Strive to be as imaginative as possible today, even when handling mundane assignments. Using your mental faculties will help you find better methods and systems.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try to get to know better over the next few days two persons you recently met who you feel are potential friends. Your insights regarding relationships are pretty good.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In order to get some key matters finalized today, don't be afraid to be a bit more assertive than usual. You're working against time and pushing could be required.
