MACKS INCREASE THEIR LEAD OVER SLIPPING YANKS

New York Outfit Handicapped Defeat By Senators Despite Rally

NEW YORK, June 27 (INS)—John Hedges' brilliant ball team idea will be tried out by the Athletics when they face the Yankees in Philadelphia today in the first game of another one of those allegedly crucial series. Old man psychology will be the tenth player in the Macklin lineup, for the 'A's have beaten their erstwhile season six times out of 10 this season and are boasting a lead of 10 and a half games over the champions.

The Macks quashed the Red Sox for the fifth successive time yesterday, 6 to 5, while the Yanks lost to Washington, 4 to 2, in the second half of a bargain 141 after winning the opener 7 to 0.

Mack's third men can blow the entire three-game series to New York and still laugh it off, while the Huggins, only three points in front of the Browns, are very likely to slip into third place if they lose the series. The Browns slipped Cleveland yesterday, 6 to 2.

The Yanks are looking more like their old selves, however. Ruth, Meusel and Lazear put on a home run barrage yesterday. Ruth's outstanding feat, his birth of the champion, and to the first home run by a Yankee easily outdistanced Epps' masterpiece, who had won five straight.

The series opener between Cleveland and St. Louis is the highlight of the National League

Currency To Be Smaller—But It Will Buy Just As Much!

This is the exact size of the new currency which will shortly be issued.

In August, 1928, the great presses of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing at Washington started production of the new currency of the United States. It was the same size as the currency in use in 1927 and completed in the most two years later. The bills being printed now are stored for use as maximum. It is expected that some of the new bills will be released before the coming year.

Because of large cuts in expense and for reasons of convenience to the public, it was decided to issue the new currency in smaller denominations. The first sheet of the new money will be preserved as a specimen and it is planned to issue the new money in the next few months.

Secret Invention May Advance Speed Of Pleasure Cars

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 27 (INS)—Ralph De Palma, veteran 46-year old American race driver, is working on a secret, revolutionary invention at the plant of the Hurdock Pump Company here by which he hopes to turn out a mystery car that will shatter the world's speed record and result in increasing the speed of all pleasure vehicles. It was learned today.

Reports had it that De Palma was experimenting some novel features in a rear drive Miller special race car. What these features were was carefully guarded. "I will have an announcement of greatest interest to make in a few days," De Palma said. "It was believed that De Palma was planning to take his mystery car to Daytona Beach, Florida, within the next few weeks to set a new record—the world's speed record at 211.33 miles an hour established last March by Major H. O. D. Segrave of England. Ray Ketch, who was killed at

DIS IN CRASH

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 27 (INS)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's plane here was riddled today by the death of his friend, James A. Perry, 34, millionaire lawyer, who died when his plane crashed into a tree when he was flying over the city.

German Embassy Of U.S. Has No Liquors

BERLIN, June 27 (INS)—The United States Embassy in London, directed by Ambassador Davies, today said that no intoxicating liquors shall be served in the only diplomatic club in the American diplomatic circuit.

Jacob Guld Schurman, American ambassador in Berlin, announced today that for the present at least, American diplomatic headquarters in this city are as dry as the proverbial Sahara. "We have only one embassy club here in Berlin, and that is the 'Savoy Club,'" Dr. Schurman told International News Service. "This has been dry since the very beginning."

WINTER GARDEN. J. Rev. conducting large outdoor camp at Arnold, London. Camp is being held in 17 miles south-west of this city.

The winner won't require the 100,000 prize. He will have to go on to a September meeting with Jack Sharkey and perhaps an ultimate fight with Dempsey himself.

Paulino and Schmeling came to this country as chumps but today they have the eyes of the world upon them. Schmeling has been undefeated in America and probably has the greatest punch in all the world today. Paulino has lost some fights here in the last two years but he is tougher than the stars below the gods house.

That the fight isn't a sell out. Present indications are that a crowd of 40,000 and a gate of $400,000 will give everybody a break. The promoters, laboring in the interests of the charitable milk fund, had a million dollar sale but they admit now that they blew their chances when they priced the so-called "patron rights" seats at 50 dollars. Each fighter will get about $10,000.

Paulino will come to the weighing in at two o'clock by airplane from Albany. Schmeling will be content to approach in a motor car.

Nobody knows whether Paulino is as tough as they think he is. They know he is tough with George Frazier, nobody knows whether Schmeling is going to win with his punch or lose with his chin.

He looked as if he might do both in the risks meeting. He finally won with the fist for the only knockout of Risk's career. Previously he had won in American rings from Joe Monte, Joe Selivan and Pietro Corri. Schmeling sustained knockouts several at the hands of FRED GAZDAR, Eddie Hand and a guy by the name of Dickman.

Paulino may not be the greatest fighter in history but he never has been knocked out by anybody. Henry, Hilda, Godfrey and others.

Ecclesiast Backs Mrs. Hoover In Her De Priest Incident

WASHINGTON, June 27 (INS)—In the general chorus of criticism going on from southern legislators and from southern spokesmen over Mrs. Hoover, Hoover entertaining Mrs. Osgood De Priest, wife of a negro congressman, at the White House, came a letter of praise for her faith today.

Bishop William Montgomery Brown, who was tried and convicted of heresy before, in which he had been convicted several years ago, has written a letter endorsing Mrs. Hoover's action, and criticizing the churches for their attitude toward the negroes. Bishop Brown was formerly Bishop of Arkansas.

"It is my belief," the Christian church has been in the highest degree interested in the teachings of Jesus as they are set down in the New Testament, their members could not possibly make such one-sided distinctions and encourage one race to oppress another, not least of all, that which the subject race, had done to it, but simply to maintain an economic advantage and satisfy its own sense of race superiority. The church instead accepting the savage as being in every way compatible with Christian culture, if not indeed an important aspect of it.

"I do not blame a savage for being a savage. I wish merely to point out that they are savage as to the drawing of race distinctions. I was a savage myself while I was Bishop of Arkansas."

part of the state, taking in a wide section of the fruit belt in South Florida. Packing houses are located at Titusville, Crescent City, Sanford, Orlando, Ocoee, Kissimmee, Auburndale, Winter Springs, Frostproof, Wauchula, Avon Park, and Nocatee. A few years ago when the tomato industry was at its height, the company operated packing plants at Titusville, Ocoee, Bryan, Miami and Delray.

Chase and Company is one of the pioneer shipping concerns in Florida. Organized first as an insurance and fertilizer concern, Chase and Company came into existence in 1884 with the two brothers, S. O. and J. C. Chase as the founders. It inaugurated its shipping activities about 1888. The general office is in Sanford, and the company enjoys the distinction of shipping the first carload of lemons from Florida. S. O. Chase became greatly interested in celery growing and it was largely through his efforts that the present industry got on its feet. The company is now one of the largest independent celery shippers in the United States.

The annual business of Chase and Company has grown steadily. It weathered freezes and panics in the early years of its existence but came out of them unscathed. In recent years its expansion has been commensurate with the progress of the state.

Tyngville, N. C.—"I had a bilious spell. I would get very dizzy and have such a bad taste in my mouth," says Mrs. Martha Whitfield, of this place.

"When I would stoop over I felt like I was going over on my head. When I would get up mornings, I felt as tired as when I went to bed. A friend told me how she had been helped by taking Black-Draught, and how she kept it in her home. So I thought I would try it, any way, which I did, and from then on I have used Black-Draught when I feel bad, get up tired, or feel that I need anything. Now I recommend it to my friends."

"If I get tired and sluggish, feeling like I must sit around when I have lots to do, I take Black-Draught. A few doses seem to be what it takes to clean my system of impurities that may cause this trouble."

"Theodore's Black-Draught is a purely vegetable remedy, prepared from herbs and roots carefully compounded, weighed and packaged by scientific machinery."

Making Sham Of Patriotism

Under the caption, "Dogma In High Places," the Jacksonville Journal has an interesting and timely comment upon the recent decision of a federal judge who denied citizenship to a person because that person refused to give assent to a section which requires citizens to bear arms. The Journal points out that this is a second instance of such an undemocratic principle, the first being that of a woman, educated, distinguished and able but a pacifist. A Supreme Court ruling denied her citizenship rights. The more recent case involves a Canadian divinity professor at Yale. Professor MacIntosh declined to subscribe to the arms clause, later modifying his original assertion to declare that he would shoulder arms in a just cause.

"The federal courts in both of these cases," says the Journal, "stood pat on the letter of the law, refusing citizenship in the one instance to a woman too old to bear arms, in the other to a man of divine calling who had served honorably in the World War."

"Since two federal courts in different states assumed the same attitude on the same subject, it seems fair to accuse the federal judges of being slaves to patriotic dogma or else of waging the flag for political advantage."

"Either of the applicants could have gotten by if he or she had been willing to shade the truth to serve the moment. But they were honest enough to tell the exact truth."

"It may be that our judges do not understand exact truth or even approximate truth and so, being afraid to follow their natural and acquired intelligence, they fell back to the bulwark of official protection—the rules. Any number of gross stupidities may be hidden behind rules."

"It seems as though any federal judge really interested in the welfare of his nation would have been glad to include in its citizenship law first rate brains that were sharp enough to have discovered the flaw in patriotic dogma."

"There are mighty few intelligent persons who do not make mental reservations concerning 'just' words when they protect their patriotism. Fortunately for nations and armies, patriotism is not a matter of cold reason at all but a matter of sentiment."

"Men who might deny the right of nations to make war today might tomorrow turn swiftly into rabid patriots if their own nations were threatened. Patriotism often overweighs logical objections. It is a sort of infection."

"It seems absurd that United States courts could ponder and labor so foolishly with these questions of patriotism and then go hide from the gaze of outraged reason by crying 'that's the rule.'"

"It's strange that the same courts that find any number of ways around the rules when political expediency demands can be so dogmatic on other points. Maybe it's good business to wave the flag and shout 'patriotism!' but sensible men and women don't think so and they're the ones who think about a matter like this."

The Way Of Love

"Romantic or unromantic boy," says the Miami Herald, "may lead to all the happiness depicted in the fantastical imaginations of gushing authors. Or it may crush into tragedy and bitterness that will wreck lives. Relations between men and women are fraught with delicate situations, whether married or unmarried, and the battle of sex seems to increase in the complexity of social civilization."

"There is the case of Dr. James H. Snook, the deposed Ohio State University professor of veterinary medicine. He married and became the father of a child. Contented family life was not enough. There must be romance. Along came Miss Theora Hix to supply it. For several years they were intimate friends. But the usual happened in the triangle although in this instance somewhat reversed."

"The girl, according to the story of the professor, was jealous of the wife; objected to him going off with his family, threatening to kill his wife and child. The elemental defense of family flared up and the professor struck out. The girl was killed. Mystery, mystery for a moment. Then the confession, and the educator is indicted for murder. He faces possible execution."

"There need be little sympathy for the two principals, the dead girl and the professor. They both played with fire and were burned. If there be sympathy, let it be conveyed to the stoned against mother and child. They, too, must suffer. It is an old story, but ever new—never ending. No individual learns from another. Education and knowledge have no influence over the affairs of the heart. The intelligent and the ignorant are moved by the same urges."

"Tragedy also stalked that Georgia youth, who is said to have committed suicide because of his love for a Miami girl. He was prepared to marry her, when she left. Only death looked good to him then. There was also a hurt to his pride."

"That was finer, cleaner, nobler romance, and yet it, too, spoke folly. Boys and girls may feel at times that all is darkness when the choice of their dreams fails them, and life seems lonely. But live on, and forget, for new interests, new persons will come, and one will wonder why he fell so forsaken because a certain person said 'No.' There are more blossoms to be plucked. Love is like that."

EXIT EXECUTIVE SESSIONS

MIAMI HERALD

Even the conservative, United States Senate is occasionally compelled to yield to public opinion and shed some of its cumbersome methods.

It will be remembered that for more years than anyone can remember, the senate has considered its action on presidential nominations of officers in executive sessions and that the rules of the senate made it a very serious offense for any member of the body to reveal anything concerning the proceedings of those secret sessions.

That was the rule, a rule that was more honored in the breach than in the observance, for there never has been a time that some senator or other, inadvertently or otherwise, did not reveal something of the proceedings which newspapers immediately gave wide publicity.

Only a few weeks ago the senate held an executive session in order to consider an appointment made by President Hoover. Unusual precautions were taken to prevent any information as to how senators voted getting to the public. All to no purpose, however, for an enterprising reporter secured the needed news and published it. Then there was a row.

The reporter was summoned to reveal the source of his information. Of course, he did not give it. Who not violate the ethics of the profession?

The senate could do nothing about it and the matter dropped so far as the reporter was concerned. But the incident has aroused the newspapers of the country and the result of their criticisms of the practice of holding executive sessions of the senate has resulted in that body changing its rules. There will be no more secret sessions. All of the so-called executive sessions will be held in the open hereafter, except in a few cases when information as to what was done when the public was excluded will be given due publicity, and every senator will be permitted to disclose how he voted on any confirmation of an appointee.

So an ancient custom, possibly of use in its time but which long ago lost its value, has been abandoned in the senate.

Florida is to be divided after all, but not after the manner proposed by Representatives Oliver and Weeks. Under the congressional reapportionment bill this state gets a fifth district to be carved out of the present four. And we will go far enough with Mrs. Owen. Oliver and Weeks to say that south Florida should have a congressman of its own if not a governor.

Only a genius like Ruth Bryan Owen's could satisfactorily perform the legend of a representative of one of the states. The dignity of a Jacksonville and the dance of a Miami. When, as it surely will one day, the United States senate claims Mrs. Owen, even two congressmen would have difficulty in filling the place she will have left in the lower house.

Lyle Womack, husband until recently of the famed Ruth Elder, has turned out to be more than merely "Mister Ruth Elder." He is with the Byrd expedition in the south polar regions and his part in that epic gives him a place in the sun without benefit of Ruth.

Would-be herpes in aviation had better hurry. The profession is growing too safe for much more loss. Insurance companies which know everything by a strange mathematics of their own, have reduced their annual rates on aeroplane insurance from over twenty-five percent to six and a half percent.

We know one man who honestly thinks it safer today to ride in an aeroplane than in an automobile driven by a woman. He is married and must be nameless.

The magazine "Liberty" thinks the word "ain't" is a perfectly correct contraction of "and isn't" and commends its use. It points out that the English expression "aren't" is obviously incorrect. But it may be that the broad English expression "ain't" is really "ain't 17" when it is really "ain't 17."

Liberty approves also the contraction "don't" for "does not" as well as "for do not." "He don't," in Liberty's opinion, is perfectly correct. At the Democratic convention of 1912 in Baltimore picture posters of Champ Clark appeared all over the city with the printed supercaption "Don't be like a President! Approve Liberty wing from the Woodrow Wilson camp (and school of grammar) named himself one night by turning the town to write only each of the posters "Yes, he do not!"

Virginia, whose vote went to Hoover in the presidential election will not learn whether this vote was because Virginians loved Hoover more or Smith less. An "anti-Smith" convention has placed its own candidate for governor in the field against the regular Democratic nominee. The bets are that Professor Brown, the "anti-Smith" candidate will be badly beaten. It's hard to play "anti-Smith" without Smith for an "ante."

"Enormous bathing suit demand" reported a textile trade paper of the summer trade. Does this mean a radical change in styles? We thought they were growing smaller and smaller.

SANFORD FORUM

Editor, The Herald

Dear Sir: A few years ago in the early part of June we were driving through the country to Virginia.

One afternoon about two o'clock as we were nearing a certain small village, we saw a man standing on a large platform in front of a country store near the road. His left arm was bandaged up, and he waves a handkerchief as a signal for us to stop. We did stop and he came up to the car and told us that he had to go on certain days to the next town which was about fifteen miles, to the doctor who had been taking care of his broken arm.

We were not crowded and so we took him in. When we had gone a few miles we came in sight of a bunch of convicts working on the road. We slowed up as we neared them to avoid any possible danger, and as we were passing them a young man stepped forward toward us. When he saw the man in our car, he smiled, and said, "Hello," not in a gay manner but just simply a quiet friendly greeting.

He had a light complexion and blue eyes. His countenance was not at all sinister, and he was rather a sad face. "He is an old friend of mine and he's got a life time."

Naturally enough we began asking questions, and I'll tell you the story as he told it to us. A young man who lived among the hills with his wife and two small boys, and not very far from where these men were working, had died some years before.

His wife and boys had stayed on the little place and he had managed to keep the wolf from the door, and now we see the boys, twelve and eight years old, if I remember rightly. They helped their mother in the many ways that boys can help on a small farm.

The younger child died within a few minutes. The older one was badly wounded but managed to drag himself to the little house. "Who can imagine the suffering that mother and child went through?"

Personally, I do not enjoy writing such stories as this, yet it is true that many other crimes, usual in it are being committed, and it will continue to be, so long as our people disregard the laws of our country.

Let's try to see things as they are. It hurts my heart when I read about the facts that there is more crime going on in our country than any other civilized country on the earth.

If there were no drinkers there would be no customers, and to you (from drinkers, it will be well for you to keep in mind what Paul said, Romans 15-1, "We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak and not to please ourselves."

Years ago more respect for ourselves, our fellowmen and the laws of our country.

ANOTHER VILLA RAID

LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL

It is at least pictures to regard the recent raid on the little Caribbean island of Curacao by Venezuelan revolutionists as a return to pirate days. The location suggests buccaners, for it was in this quarter that freebooters sailed the seas. Th swift and daring of the attack would have done credit to Captain Kidd. A handful of non-descript coming from apparently nowhere surprised the sleepy little town of Willemstad, killed several policemen, seized the arsenal and sailed away on a warship they had appropriated, carrying the Dutch governor with them as a hostage.

But the incident was perhaps only an effort to overthrow the government the rebels are trying to upset. It was a raid no doubt similar to that of "Pacheco" Villa when he swooped down on a New Mexico town and immediately crossed the border. Villa's aim was to get the United States involved with the Curacao government, and the Venezuelan bandits were no doubt seeking to bring about the intervention of Holland in their own country.

And Holland is as outraged over the incident as was the United States over the Villa raid. Dutch warships are now hastening across the Atlantic to protect the insular possessions and ships title protest with Caracas. But the chances of success are as doubtful in the later case as in the earlier. The government of Venezuela is more responsible for the revolutionists than Caracas was. To this one-time military chief, if they can be located, they will be punished for the offense of treason as well as invading Dutch territory, but Holland's display of naval strength will have about as much effect in righting the wrong as Pershing's futile chase of the Mexican outlaw.

Nor was the Venezuelan attack on Curacao any more picturesque than Villa's raid on the New Mexico village, only the South American bandits had a cross a narrow stretch of sea to this west of the Dutch islands.
