Assault on crime bill

Politics, gun ban fuel dispute

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Republicans say they want to slice the pork out of the crime bill and splice tougher sentencing measures in.

Democrats say the dispute stems from election-year politics and a National Rifle Association-inspired effort, backed by Republicans, to remove a ban on 19 assault-style weapons from the bill.

By whatever reasoning, a $30.3 billion crime measure — desperately wanted by President Clinton — is hung up in the Senate in a partisan struggle likely to be decided by a single vote or two.

The debate "is like a bad migraine headache," Sen. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., said Wednesday. "It goes on and on and on."

Democrats have well over 50 votes needed to pass the bill. But Republicans have threatened to raise a procedural issue as leverage to force the changes they want on spending and sentencing.

To surmount it, Democrats would need 60 votes, and Majority Leader George Mitchell told House Democratic leaders in a telephone call Wednesday he couldn't yet count See Crime, Page 5A

Local cops, politicians interpret

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

Heated debate nationally over the proposed crime bill also has local politicians and law enforcement officials talking.

Sheriff Don Eslinger said he believes a multi-faceted approach is needed for crime-fighting, but disagrees with certain elements of the proposal. One, for example, would make criminal gang activities a federal crime rather than a state crime. Eslinger also disagrees with the ban on assault weapons.

"What we have seen is gun-control legislation affects law-abiding citizens and not the criminal element. If you were really serious about crime, if they use a firearm while committing a crime, you would put 'em away and not let them out until they serve their full sentences."

Eslinger said he supports programs to encourage more law enforcement involvement in the community. Eslinger has placed more deputies in neighborhoods such as Midway and Winwood and is about to launch a major departmental refocus on neighborhoods. See Local, Page 5A

Police officers honored for heroism, accomplishments

By VICKI DeBORNIER

SANFORD — Police work, law enforcement officials will tell you, is often thankless. While officers often perform their services without the pats on the back for a job well done, 15 of their number were honored Wednesday at a breakfast at the Heathrow Country Club.

An elegant meal, attended by the officers, their spouses, law enforcement administrators and several mayors, the Law Enforcement Appreciation Breakfast attracted the largest crowd in its six year history.

"It was a fantastic morning," said Undersheriff Steve Harriott of the Seminole County sheriff's office. "I think everyone had a great time."

College entrance scores dip

Local kids better than nation average

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County high school students fell a bit on their college entrance exam scores, like students across the country.

While Dave Winger, director of testing for the school district has not had the opportunity to analyze the figures, he said he believes the local students, who did exceptionally well last year, fell a bit this year over last.

Winger noted that last year saw several students who earned a perfect score on the test. That raised the county average several percentage points.

According to statistics available on the Scholastic Assessment Test (SAT), formerly known as the Scholastic Aptitude Test, local students scored an average of 429 on the verbal portion of the test and an average of 493 on the math portion of the test.

Last year, the average verbal score was 433 and the average math score was 495.

Scores on the American College Test (ACT) were not yet available at the county level.

Murder trial ends

Jury to begin deliberating

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The jury was expected to begin deliberating later today after closing arguments in the second degree murder trial of Michele Roger.

Trial testimony Wednesday focused on Roger's mental state at the time she has admitted stabbing her live-in boyfriend, David Richmond, in their Oviedo condominium Sept. 6, 1992. Roger family members disposed of the body and police were not called.

Roger contends she killed her companion in self-defense after he attempted to burn her face and threatened to kill her. The defense also claims Roger suffered battered spouse syndrome which kept her in the relationship when abuse escalated.

Two expert witnesses disagreed as to whether Roger was suffering from battered woman's (spouse) syndrome, a sub-category mentioned under post-traumatic stress disorder. Research is still being done on the syndrome.

Psychologist Teresa Parnell testified See Murder, Page 5A

Meeting the challenge

Easter Seals spokeswoman Martha Mannarino said the painting party held Wednesday at Camp Challenge, in Sorrento, was a big success. While there is still "a lot of work to be done," Mannarino said everybody "pulled together" and got interiors of three of the big cabins finished. Mannarino said volunteers came from as far away as Jacksonville.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Boys accused of rape may attend school

TAMPA — Two 12-year-old boys accused of raping a 9-year-old boy at gunpoint this summer will be allowed to attend public school classes, a judge has ruled.

The 12-year-olds, both of Plant City, have been charged as adults in the attack. They have been free on bail but restricted to their homes prior to Tuesday's ruling. Hillsborough County school officials decided Wednesday to schedule a placement hearing soon to determine where the 12-year-olds should attend school. Although classes start today, the two boys will not go to school until after the hearing, and they could be transferred to an alternative school.

The boys were to attend Turkey Creek Junior High School. Turkey Creek principal Ron Frost said he received a few calls from parents concerned about having the rape suspects at school. Frost said he, too, had concerns about safety, including that of the boys.

Rearrests planned for juveniles

TAMPA — Police planned to rearrest more than a dozen youngsters at a juvenile detention center on new charges, in order to force them into lengthier stays behind bars.

When police went to retrieve one boy Wednesday at a local halfway house as part of the program jokingly called "Stop the Madness," they were told he was on a field trip to Sea World. "That's part of the problem with our juvenile justice system," said Maj. Ken Taylor. "They have no concern for a system that does nothing more than lock them up for 21 days or send them to Sea World."

In all, 15 juveniles were charged with 78 new crimes. The new charges came from police follow-up files of crimes that happened in July and August. The maximum penalty any of the juveniles face is 21 days in the detention facility.

You may be a winner

TALLAHASSEE — The state will advertise the names of more than 45,000 people who are owed $14.1 million in unclaimed funds.

Twice a year, the state comptroller's office publishes a list of names in an effort to return the abandoned property to their rightful owners or heirs. The names were to appear today in special tabloid sections in more than a dozen state newspapers.

Florida law requires bank accounts, stocks, bonds, insurance checks, utility refunds and the contents of safe deposit boxes to be turned over to the state if companies holding the property can't locate the owners after periods of inactivity.

Any money that isn't claimed is placed in a state fund for public schools.

Anyone who recognizes a name should call the comptroller's office at 1-800-848-3792.

EPA proposes dioxin site for Superfund

PENSACOLA — The Environmental Protection Agency has proposed the site of a former creosote plant that neighbors have dubbed "Mt. Dioxin" be placed on the Superfund priority list.

That would be the next step to finish cleaning up the former Escambia Treating Co. site, surrounded by homes and businesses. The plant applied creosote to wooden utility poles until it closed in 1982.

Escambia Treating was one of a half-dozen sites in the Southeast — out of more than 6,000 under consideration — recommended Tuesday for the priority list. Already on the list are 1,232 hazardous waste sites across the nation.

Residents have claimed initial clean up efforts last year just aggravated health problems they have blamed on the plant.

90-year-old gets high school diploma

OCOCHE — Jewell Vernon Long's high school class graduated in 1921 without him. But he eventually achieved his goal of becoming a Baptist preacher.

Now, at 90, he's getting his high school diploma. "He is inquisitive. He is tenacious like a bulldog," said one of his teachers, Betty Trawick.

Long, a native of Oklahoma City, Okla., with Choctaw Indian ancestors, celebrated his achievement Wednesday at a party given by the Orange County School District's Westside Vo-Tech center, where he took his classes.

"I just decided I'd like to get it," said Long, who retired as preacher at Zellwood Baptist Church in 1967. "You've got to keep your mind active when you're older, or you lose it."

He blames appendicitis and a stubborn streak for dropping out of school. The illness kept him out of classes for a month, causing him to flunk algebra twice. He then related his father's promise to pay for law school or medical school if he finished high school.

"I didn't want to be either one. I wanted to be a preacher," Long said. "I just got discouraged and quit trying."

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Guantanamo camp expanded

Refugees have no hope of reaching U.S. shores

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States is preparing to house thousands of Cubans — perhaps up to 65,000 — at Guantanamo naval base for an indefinite period, says Defense Secretary William Perry.

"We are preparing to maintain that base indefinitely, if necessary, until such time as the people can be repatriated to Cuba," Perry said Wednesday when asked whether the United States would maintain a Cuban colony at Guantanamo for months or years.

As he spoke, a rush was on to expand detention camps at Guantanamo for 40,000 refugees and contingency plans were dusted off for housing up to 65,000.

Since the United States halted automatic asylum for Cubans on Friday, nearly 10,000 people have been picked up from rickety boats and are on their way to Guantanamo or are already there.

Meanwhile, the administration emphasized anew that refugees setting off by sea from Cuba's shores have no hope of being allowed in the United States.

"They will absolutely, in no way, have any way of coming to the United States," said White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers. But she also said the administration is "looking at ways to expand legal migration."

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., called Clinton's policy a failure and said the administration should call for Fidel Castro's removal from power with "no conditions, no waffling."

Guantanamo has capacity for 23,000 refugees now and will be expanded to handle 30,000 by week's end, Perry said. By the end of next week, Guantanamo will be able to accommodate 40,000, he said.

The Pentagon has ordered a review of contingency planning for up to 65,000 refugees at Guantanamo, administration officials said.

The base already houses 14,000 Haitians who fled their country.

The United States rejected Cuba's assertion that the only way to stop the refugee exodus was for Washington to hold direct talks with the Castro government on lifting the economic embargo against Havana.

"We see nothing to be gained" from high-level talks, Undersecretary of State Peter Tarnoff said. "It should be clear after 35 years to Fidel Castro and his government that the way he has been managing the affairs of the island is a failure."

Perry acknowledged fears Castro might encourage thousands of Cubans to flood through the gates of Guantanamo, risking their lives across a mine-filled no man's land.

"We would regard this as being an unfriendly act toward the United States and would take appropriate actions," said Perry.

The administration has been vague about what will happen to Cubans in the long term, whether detained at Guantanamo or in third countries. The administration hopes to reach an agreement to send some refugees to the Turks and Caicos Islands, Suriname, Panama and other countries.

The rain is raining all around... Especially on JoAnn Pavlock's spider plants. Pavlock decided to give her houseplants a little shower and got drenched by the afternoon rainstorm for her efforts.

Pyramids on I-75?

By The Associated Press

WILDWOOD — A Florida company wants to build two pyramids as mausoleums along Interstate 75 designed to hold more than 1.3 million bodies and cremation urns. The great pyramids of Florida would rival the Great Pyramid in Egypt, the company says.

The pyramids would go up on a 600-acre Pyramid Memorial Park alongside I-75 near this Sumter County town.

The largest pyramid in a design submitted to the Sumter County Planning and Zoning office by Pyramids Unlimited Inc. of Naples would stand 495 feet tall. The 50-story mausoleum would be the largest in the country.

Pyramids Unlimited wants to build the park in two phases costing a total of $100 million. Commercial sales of vault and urn spaces in the pyramids could reach $1 billion.

The first pyramid, 171 feet high, housing 10,000 vaults and 20,000 urn niches, it also would include a visitor center, a gated entrance, parking and garden areas.

The smaller pyramid would be called the Golden Pyramid.

The second phase would add the 495-foot Greatest Pyramid, a memorial and educational museum and expanded parking and garden areas.

The Greatest Pyramid would be surrounded by a moat, house a glass-sided chapel, 300,000 vaults and more than 1 million urn niches, according to the plans.

The City of Wildwood passed a resolution approving the proposed park and sent it to the county zoning office, which has scheduled a meeting next month to decide on a special zoning exception. The pyramid complex would be on land zoned for farming.

Confidence rebounds in August

By The Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — Worry over tourism squelched consumer confidence in some parts of Florida in August, but drier weather in the Panhandle helped boost the levels statewide, University of Florida economists reported.

The monthly Florida Consumer Confidence Index increased to 88 in August, up from 87 in July, said economist David Denlow of UF's Bureau of Economic and Business Research. The index is 10 points higher than in August 1993.

"The August index is good news," Denlow said.

Before the June floods, 70 percent of Panhandle respondents to a UF poll said they expected the economies of their communities to improve during the coming months. In July, after the adverse weather, that share dropped to 50 percent. In August it jumped back up to 67 percent.

"Nationally, a recent slowing in the growth of consumer spending and a jump in retail inventories has created fears that the Federal Reserve hiked interest rates too sharply. But our index indicates that Florida's consumers are likely to continue to spend carefully and steadily, if other states are as confident, no recession looms," Denlow said.

Concerns about tourism are the apparent cause for falling confidence levels in southeast Florida and the Orlando area. In the southeast, confidence dipped to 80 in August from 94 in July, while in Orlando it fell from 88 in July to 85 in August.

"Travel to Florida is soft, while it's rising in other parts of the country. It's also possible the turmoil in Cuba may be partially responsible for the decline in southeast Florida," Denlow said.

The Florida Consumer Attitude Survey is conducted monthly by the bureau. Respondents are all 18 or older and live in households telephoned through random digit dialing. The index for August was calculated from 1,000 responses. The margin of error for the index is almost 3 points. Results for the Panhandle are subject to larger statistical error because of disrupted telephone service.

The index is patterned after the University of Michigan's confidence index for the United States. Both use 1986 as the base year. Numbers below 100 indicate that consumers are less confident than they were in 1986, when the index was 100.

All right, listen up!

We read of people walking or riding their bikes in questionable neighborhoods late at night, who were attacked, beaten and robbed. Does anyone listen? We expect they don't, because the next time we look, there are more reports about similar incidents.

We hear about car-jackers reaching in a car window or pulling open the door of a vehicle at a stoplight. Do we double-check to keep our windows closed and doors locked at all times? Nope. Continuous reports on car-jackings prove we don't.

A woman gets beaten by her ex-husband. She wonders why he does this, seeing as how he's only done it a half dozen times before even though she never reported the incident. Or maybe she knew he was drunk but thought she could handle the situation.

One of the biggest examples is the constant suggestion, "If you drink, don't drive." Many people don't believe this is aimed at them. Arrest reports prove they are generally wrong.

People don't keep track of their youngsters, and fail to give parental guidance and leadership. Then they wonder why a police officer is knocking on their door at midnight. How could that wonderful child possibly get involved in drugs or crime?

We apparently don't believe leaving our cars unlocked will be an invitation to car thieves to take what they want.

We tell people not to use drugs, then see drug sales going on and don't report them to the police because we don't want to get involved. Or are people who issue such cautions doing some buying of their own?

People often say that the lack of concern has to do with a lack of proper parental training and education. Whether that's the situation or not could be the subject of extensive discussions and debates.

Do people know better than to do what they are doing? Yes. They know better. Most just don't give a darn.

One point should stand out however. Whether we have been taught or not, we should be...that's SHOULD BE smart enough to learn from other people's mistakes.

Let's start heeding the words of drill sergeants who are known for telling their recruits, "All right men, listen up, and listen up carefully."

The real importance of talk radio

The current liberal attack on conservative talk radio shows the clearest evidence of how uncomfortable our liberal friends become when confronted with opposition they cannot ignore.

As Bill Buckley remarked many years ago, the liberals of those far-off days were fond of insisting that they positively enjoyed hearing other points of view, but often went into shock on discovering that there really were other points of view. Even today, the liberal notion of the ideal public dialogue is the sort of genteel murmur that might be produced by a difference over some minor point between, say, Tom Brokaw and Peter Jennings.

As long as the liberals controlled every known means of communicating political ideas, that was the only kind of dialogue Americans ever got to hear. Thus when, on Nov. 18, 1981, President Kennedy signaled a major change of strategy by attacking "the discordant voices of extremism" (meaning conservatives), the liberal media fell in line like a row of baby ducks behind their mother. On Nov. 24, Time's "Nation" section led off with an approving report on "Thunder Against the Right." On the 28th, The New York Times Magazine carried a harsh "Report on the Rampageous Right." On Dec. 4, Newsweek lumbered belatedly into the fray with "Thunder on the Right." Four days later Time returned to the attack with a long article on "The Ultras." And the networks chimed in.

What was the conservative reply? For all practical purposes there was none. Like the robber barons of the Middle Ages, the liberals controlled every pass through the Alps.

Even in the early 1980s, however, talk show hosts on local radio stations noted that hot political topics could light up their switchboards with calls from articulate conservatives with nobody else to talk to. Certain hosts -- Barry Farber in New York and Shirley Spellerberg in Miami, to name only two -- encouraged such people to call in, and championed their views. Within a few years the whole culture of talk radio became largely a conservative precinct. Conservatives had discovered a new pass through the Alps.

Like the robber barons of the Middle Ages, the liberals controlled every pass through the Alps.

(Another such pass, by the way, was direct mail, which became a favorite means of conservative communication when the lists of Goldwater contributors were laboriously copied down and computerized after 1964. But such mailings are used chiefly to alert conservatives in, say, Oregon, where both senators are knee-jerk liberals, to the possibility of contributing to a conservative senatorial candidate in Florida or Texas.)

What has happened recently, and what has so unnerved the liberals, is that talk radio has "gone national." Instead of local talk show hosts commiserating with conservative insomniacs during the wee hours, Rush Limbaugh (and others) are proclaiming well-informed conservative views in an entertaining format in broad daylight to tens of millions of people. Local talk show hosts could be -- and were -- serenely ignored for 30 years. But our liberal president himself lost his cool and publicly attacked Limbaugh.

What all this implies for the future remains to be seen. But it would appear that, at a minimum, liberals have permanently lost their monopoly of the public dialogue.

Clinton's best strategy: lose

I have fashioned what I believe to be a novel strategy that might guarantee Bill Clinton a two-term presidency.

He should contrive to lose the election of November 1996, spend the following four years trashing the hapless Republican who happens to occupy the White House, then run again in 2000.

In the extremely partisan, mean-spirited, slash-and-attack political atmosphere that has dominated the past 25 years, I figure the best place to be is out of office. The only person to enjoy a fairly successful tenure was Ronald Reagan. Look what being in got Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford, Jimmy Carter and George Bush. Single terms, that's what. (OK, credit Nixon with 1.5.)

Look what being in has gotten Bill Clinton. Everything he has done since being sworn into office, with the possible exceptions of deficit reduction, a favorable economy and the NAFTA treaty, has earned him the opprobrium of the media, politicians of all stripes and the public at large.

There are days when the man couldn't please an amoeba. We are all familiar with the waves of criticism that regularly roll in from the reprobrates of the right. Pat Robertson suggests that Clinton's counsel and pal Vince Foster may have been murdered. Jerry Falwell hawks videos suggesting Clinton may be implicated in numerous deaths in Arkansas.

But how about this from the conservative middle: "Rarely have the personal character flaws of a president so evicted the policy priorities of his own presidency.... The result... is the image of a president reduced to a comic figure." That comes from Business Week.

You sort of expect the immutable left to give the moderate Clinton a hard time, and they do. Columnist Alexander Cockburn of The Nation refers to him as "President McMuffin." Essayist Christopher Hitchens, speaking on National Public Radio last May, had this to say: "He is a man who has no principles and no ideas. He is neither competent nor good in point of ideology."

But how about this from the liberal middle: "Bill Clinton's dilatory, casual response to the great crime in the Balkans was not only shameful, it also marked a moment in the history of American foreign policy. This administration is transforming the only superpower in the world into the only abdicating superpower in the world." That comes from The New Republic.

So here is the solution, Mr. Clinton: Do not run for the presidency in 1996. If that seems too drastic, do your best to give a respectable showing, but for heaven's sake, lose. Let Dan Quayle or Dick Cheney or Bob Dole or Phil Gramm or William Bennett or Patrick Buchanan demonstrate their inability to run this anarchic contraption we call a democracy. Let one of them write a budget, devise a health plan, deal with Haiti.

For four years, never give them a day's peace. Question every move they make and sit a couple of independent counsels on them. By the year 2000, I expect you'd be looking pretty good.

There is a precedent, you know. Grover Cleveland was both our 22nd and our 24th president, serving from 1885-1889 and from 1893-1897. He was succeeded and preceded by Benjamin Harrison, who obviously bombed in his efforts to woo the public.

If you are given to fancy and illusion, you have to wonder whether Grover Cleveland and Bill Clinton are metaphysically linked in some way. Both despised the press.

Uncle Sam should keep grubby paws off Social Security bucks

Entitlements Now there's a word that's been kicked all over hell's half acre by politicians at nearly all levels, many hundreds -- perhaps thousands of times. Yes, for months stretching into years, some of our beloved politicians have been trying to modify (read reduce if not eliminate) what they have considered to be "our sacred cow" entitlements.

Let's take a deeper look into that word and determine more precisely its meaning and intent according to the master of word spelling and definition, one Mr. Webster.

On page 377 of my trusty Webster's Seventh New Collegiate Dictionary we will find "entitlement" with the following definition: "To give title to, to give a legal right to, to qualify for something." Well now that seems to be clear cut and totally understandable to everyone -- even me.

Let's relocate that word "entitlement" out of the dictionary and apply it to everyday -- working grunts -- thinking and conditions that we all are exposed to and to a great extent, are governed by.

For example, let us assume that you, Mr. W.G., applied for and was hired by Company X to function as a full-time bookkeeper at Y dollars per week with two weeks vacation after one year, with Company X. When payday rolls around, each and every week/month, you are legally entitled (your entitlement) to receive your agreed upon Y dollars (less deductions, of course). In other words, my good friend, Mr. W.G., you have qualified for and are legally entitled to receive your pay/salary. Anything less -- fraud.

Now, let's move this hot word "entitlements" on into my age bracket, a category of retirement and Social Security payments -- regular and on time.

I think that it was way back in the mid-1930s that the U.S. Government decided that its citizens would require financial help upon retirement and created the Social Security law (FICA) whereby nearly all working folks were "required" -- not "asked" -- to contribute Z percent of their pay into "the fund." Our employer was also "required" -- not "asked" -- to contribute a like percentage. We've been "FICA'ed" to death ever since with periodic percentage increases.

Maybe we should stop for a moment or two and analyze what we've just read. The working grunt contributed Z percent. The W.G.'s employer contributed a like Z percent. Good old Uncle Sam "did not" contribute one lousy penny. No siree -- not a penny came from general tax income. Therefore, there is NO DOLLAR DRAIN on Uncle Sam's resources because of Social Security.

SEMINOLE OPINION

And where are all these zillions of dollars now? I dunno! Gone! There's not one lousy dollar in the Social Security barrel. Uncle Sam "borrowed" them years ago to use for this 'n' that 'n' something else. Only thing in the SS barrel is Uncle Sam's "IOU" for billions upon billions of "your FICA dollars." The real dollars! Vanished -- poof -- gone in a cloud of smoke.

After working for some 43 years and paying my FICA tax, along with my employer's percentages for some 43 years, I claim "entitlement" to speak for all working grunts -- past, present and future. The following is addressed to 435 House members and 100 Senate members: Keep your grubby little paws off of our Social Security. It's not your money, it's OUR money. Not a single penny came from general tax income and not a single penny should be spent for general tax outgo. And while you're at it, start repaying your indebtedness to the Social Security fund.

Do ya hear? Do ya understand? Listen closely ... HANDS OFF. Anything less -- FRAUD.

Puff on that one for awhile.

them. Democrats arranged a private caucus today to plot their next move.

A handful of Republican moderates hold the pivotal votes. John Chafee of Rhode Island and Nancy Kassebaum of Kansas among them. Senate GOP leader Bob Dole told reporters during the day, "I don't know for certain but I would say we have enough votes."

For his part, Clinton called for swift Senate enactment of a bill that has taken on enormous political significance.

"This bill is centrist and bipartisan to its very bone," he told members of the International Convention of B'nai B'rith in Chicago via satellite. "It's time to put away the excuses, the blame and the politics and join forces and pass this crime bill now."

But the election-year subtext couldn't have been plainer.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said in an NBC interview that the public is "not stupid. They know that for 25 years Republicans have been trying to get tough laws on the books and build prisons, to grab violent criminals by the throat. And for 25 years, basically Democrats have been coddling criminals."

Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., interrupted bluntly: "Phil, that's nonsense."

Hours later on the Senate floor, Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., said the assault-weapons ban was not the only matter at the root of the struggle.

"Not just guns but a perception that our colleagues (Republicans) are bigger, better, braver, tougher, more willing to incarcerate, more willing to fry than the Democrats. That's the fight."

Republicans worked to shed the impression that the gun issue was involved. They offered to release the crime bill for a final vote if Democrats would first pass a companion measure trimming $5 billion in "social spending."

They also proposed requiring federal minimum sentences for state crimes of violence involving guns and for individuals convicted of selling drugs to minors. "We want to put some of these good provisions in," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah.

Missing from their list of amendments was an attempt to strike the gun ban.

But Democrats retorted that any changes would send the measure back to the House, where an effort would be made to remove it.

Dole issued a written statement saying House rules prevented any such vote. But Sen. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, a member of the NRA board, said he would force Democrats to find 60 votes for passage regardless of any other changes.

And Democrats seized on that. "It's a way of protecting the assault weapons ban from being enacted," said Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell.

The crime bill nearly died in the House two weeks ago from wounds inflicted by Republicans. Democrats opposed to the gun ban, and a small group of liberals who oppose broadening the death penalty.

The White House and House Democrats cut enough of the crime prevention money to win the support of several GOP moderate votes. That sent it to the Senate, with the weapons ban intact. That provision would outlaw 19 specific firearms and scores of others that have assault-style characteristics.

Although Republicans questioned many of the underlying funding claims, the measure is designed to help pay for an additional 100,000 police. It would also require life sentences for some third-time felons and expand the federal death penalty to more than 60 crimes, including fatal drive-by shootings, carjacking deaths and major drug trafficking.

the ACT in 1994, the first time that's happened, education officials said.

I am very encouraged by the results shown by female students and by the increasing participation of minority students," state Education Commissioner Doug Stinson said Wednesday.

At the state level, students scored higher than the year before on the ACT, officials said.

More than half of Florida's high school graduates took the test more than a third of the time last year.

They improved their SAT scores from the year before in the math portion, but they dropped 11 points in reading and 7 points in writing.

Their ACT scores edged up a point while their SAT scores sagged by the amount.

The composite SAT scores were 31 points ahead of those of the females because of higher math scores. On the ACT, males trailed for the first time ever, by three-tenths of a point. They had led by a tenth of a point in 1993.

District officials attribute the increase in scores by females and minorities to efforts to increase participation by those groups in upper level math and science courses.

Overall, Florida's college-bound seniors had average SAT verbal scores of 413, down 3 points from 1993, and average math scores of 466, unchanged from the previous year.

Nationally, the class of 1994 had average verbal scores of 423 on the SAT, down 1 point, and average math scores of 479, up 1 point.

A more diverse group took the tests in Florida than nationally, with more minority students, more students whose parents didn't attend college, and more from low-income families.

"You're looking at a different pool than the U.S.," said Department of Education spokeswoman Martha Miller. "A big predictor of scores is income level."

Minority students made up 36 percent of Florida's SAT test takers, up from 14 percent 15 years earlier, and 35 percent of the ACT test takers, up from 15 percent 15 years ago. Minority students made up about 30 percent of test takers nationally.

Scores for all racial groups declined slightly from 1993 - 1 point for whites and Hispanics and 5 points for blacks. ACT scores remained roughly the same for all racial and ethnic groups.

Since 1979, non-Hispanic white students have boosted their SAT scores by 7 points, African-Americans by 51 points and Hispanics by 1 point.

lying for the defense said Roger suffered post traumatic stress disorder and battered woman's syndrome the night of the stabbing.

Threats against Roger, her father and pets along with physical altercations between the couple caused the defendant to experience sleep disorders and nightmares. Looking off a list of elements leading to a diagnosis of post traumatic stress, Parnell also said Roger was hypervigilant where a movement or sound might trigger the feeling or thought that abuse was about to take place.

Parnell said battered spouse victims sometimes exhibit outbursts of anger against the aggressor. She also pointed out elements of the controlling and possessive nature of the relationship.

Testimony throughout the trial showed the couple often fought. Richmond disliked Roger's dancing and Roger disliked Richmond's cocaine use.

Parnell said Roger dropped out of high school after ninth grade because she did not feel she fit in with her friends and lost interest in school. Roger said she did not like the drug and alcohol abuse activities of her peers. Outside of her family, Roger has had only acquaintance-type friendships since junior high. After dropping out of high school, Roger studied acting. Roger enjoyed dancing, because she was performing and it related to her teenage fantasy of becoming an actress.

Roger told the doctor she tried cocaine five or six times in the month and a half after Richmond's death in an effort to see what attraction it held for him and to feel closer to him. The doctor also testified Roger tried marijuana once but she did not ask when. The dancer drank only occasionally at work.

Psychiatrist Ralph Ballentine testifying for the state said although Roger was abused during the relationship and feared for her life, she did not meet all the criteria necessary to be diagnosed with PTSD disorder on the night of the stabbing, although some of her symptoms have increased since the incident.

Ballentine said Roger provoked abuse by continuing dancing. She described Richmond as lots of fun to be with and said the couple had a great sex life in the beginning of the relationship. Although battered spouse victims are typically passive and submissive to this type of abuse, Ballentine said Roger had a strong personality and resisted. "I became as crazy as he did," Ballentine reported Roger told him, "and fought back."

Although the stress disorder is recognized as a diagnosis in psychiatry, research is on-going for battered woman's syndrome. There is no definition for battered woman's syndrome in the diagnostic manual.

Ballentine said Roger was estranged from her family shortly before she stabbed her boyfriend, not because she withdrew from them but they severed contact with her because of her continuing relationship with Richmond. She went to her mother and father for help after the stabbing.

Information given to police by a fellow topless dancer and a missing persons report filed by Richmond's family, who live near Chicago, led to an investigation of Richmond's whereabouts and later a murder indictment against Roger.

Roger family members attempted to cover up the killing by saying they thought Richmond was working in South Florida in the aftermath of Hurricane Andrew. Richmond operated a tree service. Roger's father and brother have admitted disposing of the body. After the body was removed from the residence, it was burned, mixed with concrete and the blocks dropped in the Atlantic Ocean.

"Obviously, I support programs that support law enforcement involvement in the community," he said. "I'm just not sure if this is what we want."

The bill contains more than $9 billion in programs to provide youth with midnight sports activities, arts, crafts and dance activities, and to encourage law enforcement and attorneys general to become more active in social services.

State Sen. Gary Siegel, R-Fern Park, said the social-program "pork" in the crime bill should be trimmed.

"I'm in favor of things that help deter children from getting into crime," said Siegel. "But there's too much pork in the bill and not enough law enforcement."

Siegel served as chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Juvenile Justice Reform which produced a host of get-tough laws aimed at criminal kids this year. Last year, he served as chairman of the Senate Corrections Committee, fighting to reduce early releases.

Siegel said the emphasis of the crime bill is laden with too many social reform programs and not enough crime-fighting measures.

Doug Elam, chairman of the Seminole County Republican Executive Committee, said he doesn't see the debate as partisan, but rather as philosophical differences between the parties.

"Our party has always been against more government," said Elam. "Whenever you create a larger bureaucracy, you put more and more people on the payroll and it gets harder and harder to take them off. I'm not opposed to preventing crime. That's the smart way to go."

Other local law enforcement officials this morning commented on tougher sentencing, broadening the death penalty and the possible ban of 19 assault weapons.

Sanford police Commander Dennis Whitmire says there are many areas of the bill which are good. "On the whole, it may be a fine package, but economically, it's not viable," he said. "What we need is more prison beds. What's the good of having running people in when there is not place to keep them?"

Lake Mary chief Richard Beary said a ban on assault weapons will have a null affect. "It's the people who use guns, not the guns themselves which we have to control," he said.

Beary doesn't believe tougher sentencing at this stage will do any good. "What's the use of that if we don't have enough prison beds to hold them," he said. "Most of our laws are good already, but if there is no time spent in jail, nothing is being learned."

Lake Mary police Capt. Sam Belfiore is also against a ban on assault weapons. "We need tougher sentencing," he said. "That's why I'm active in the STOP (Stop Turning Out Prisoners) organization." Belfiore commented that only .03 percent of shootings take place with the use of assault weapons.

Herold Staff Writer Nick Pelouf contributed to this report.

Honored

While there was some talk by Tom Cernock of Simon and Associates about security as it relates to the Seminole Towne Centre mall, the focal point of the morning was the officers.

"We got the chance to honor some of these guys," Harriett said. "Some of these guys were honored for heroic acts. Some for doing a good job. Some for other things. But the one common denominator was that they had all, in some significant way, done something to improve the community they serve."

The officers who were honored were:

● Officer Gary Calhoun of the Maitland Police Department, for his work as the coordinator of that department's community policing program.

● Officer Stephen Shea of the Lake Mary Police Department, for his "criminal investigations instincts" and for the work that has helped the department solve several cases.

● Cpl. John Moore of the University of Central Florida police department, for his "versatility" and for procuring a $100,000 Department of Transportation grant to build sidewalks that have improved pedestrian traffic at the college.

● Assistant Chief Terry Baker of the Longwood Police Department, for his efforts in spearheading the opening of the Longwood Teen Center.

● Investigators Robert Cable and Jose Romero of the Winter Springs Police Department for their work as homicide investigators in that community.

● Sgt. Gertrude McGriff of the Eatonville Police Department, for her work administering outreach programs for children in her community.

● Lt. Bill Telcamp of the Altamonte Springs Police Department, for his work with the community policing department in that city.

● Officer Kevin Flanagan of the Casselberry Police Department for his heroic intervention in an attempted suicide in Casselberry in which he disarmed a young woman who was stabbing herself in the chest.

● Cmdr. Larry Monti of the Sanford Police Department who has served that department for many years as a "frugal" financial officer, saving the department a great deal of money.

● Officer Mike Beat of the Oviedo Police Department who saved several people from a burning car when he was off duty and drove past an accident scene in Longwood.

● Sgt. Rex Straw of the Winter Park Police Department for his work as supervisor of special events in that city.

● Lt. Ernie Scott of the Orange County sheriff's office, for his work as supervisor of the street drug unit for his department.

● Corrections officer Angel Santana Sr. of the John E. Polk Correctional Facility for his leadership and his "contributions to the corrections mission."

● Lt. Jim Brantly of the Seminole County sheriff's office for 34 years of service to public law enforcement.

According to Harriett, Brantly has not only served the sheriff's department and the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, he has spent more than 20 years as an adjunct professor in the Seminole Community College police academy.

"About 90 percent of the officers being honored here today studied with him (Brantly) at one point or another," Harriett said.

Harriett reported that the appreciation breakfast is a popular event among law enforcement personnel and said he hopes there will be more opportunities to honor those who serve their community.

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

Magic, NBA headed to court

ORLANDO — The Orlando Magic on Wednesday launched a legal challenge of the NBA's decision to void the team's contract with free agent Horace Grant.

The club's six-year agreement with the 6-foot-10 power forward was rejected this month on grounds that the deal, which included a one-year, option-out clause, violated the league's salary cap.

The NBA also voided similar contracts the Phoenix Suns negotiated with A.C. Green and that Toni Kukoc signed with the Chicago Bulls.

AROUND THE STATE

Heat try to deal for Pippen

MIAMI — The Miami Heat are talking to the Chicago Bulls about trading Rony Seikaly and one other player to the Bulls for All-Star forward Scottie Pippen. The Miami Herald reported Thursday.

The Herald quoted an unidentified source in Chicago as saying the deal would send Seikaly and either Glen Rice or Steve Smith to the Bulls.

The Heat has been aggressively pursuing Pippen, along with the Washington Bullets who are reportedly offering Calbert Cheaney, the rights to No. 1 draft choice Juwan Howard of Michigan, and a possible future No. 1 draft pick, according to the Herald.

Gators lose CB Kennedy

GAINESVILLE — The Florida Gators' pass defense, the worst in the Southeastern Conference last season, took another hit Wednesday.

Coach Steve Spurrier announced that senior cornerback Larry Kennedy, a strong candidate for the Thorpe Award, could miss Florida's Sept. 3 season-opener against New Mexico State due to a sprained foot.

Sophomore Shea Showers, who played 240 downs in 1993, is expected to take over the right cornerback spot in Kennedy's absence.

NCAA challenges Florida law

TALLAHASSEE — The NCAA sued the Florida Board of Regents on Wednesday seeking to void a state law that has prevented it from acting on the eligibility of Florida State players who took part in an illegal shopping spree.

The NCAA wants to overturn a 1992 law that has kept it from actively investigating possible rules violations at Florida State and also at the University of Miami.

All-American linebacker Derrick Brooks and tailback Tiger McMillon were suspended by Florida State for two games and guard Patrick McNeil for three games for accepting gifts last November from prospective agents in violation of NCAA rules. A fourth player, Forrest Conoly, was suspended indefinitely by university president Talbot "Sandy" D'Alemberte.

The law being challenged requires the NCAA to follow due process protections provided to Florida residents under state law. The NCAA prevailed last year in a similar legal fight against the state of Nevada.

AROUND THE STATE

Jaguars join Cheese League

STEVENS POINT, Wis. — Presented a jacket from the newest NFL member to join the upper Midwest's Cheese League, Gov. Tommy G. Thompson said Wednesday that efforts are under way to attract more teams.

The expansion Jacksonville Jaguars were officially welcomed to the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point where they have signed a contract for preseason training.

Summer weather is relatively cooler in the region, so the Minnesota Vikings in Mankato, Minn., and the Green Bay Packers at home are annually joined by the Kansas City Chiefs at UW-River Falls, the New Orleans Saints at UW-La Crosse and the Chicago Bears at UW-Platteville.

The small-town congregation, whose squads occasionally scrimmage with each other, are cumulatively known to the summer tourist industry as the Cheese League.

Jordan leads Barons by O-Cubs

HOOVER, Ala. — Michael Jordan, in a batting groove since returning from a shoulder injury, had his first three-hit game Wednesday night to lead the Birmingham Barons' 5-0 victory over the Orlando Cubs in the Southern League.

Jordan was 3-for-4 with two runs, stole two bases and an RBI in the best offensive game of his young baseball career.

Jordan is batting .429 (6-for-14) with a homer, 4 RBI and 3 stolen bases since returning to the lineup Friday after sitting out with a strained left rotator cuff.

Ram debut

Family, friends, and fans braved rain and lightning Wednesday night to be at Lake Mary High School's annual Red-Gray Scrimmage at Don T. Reynolds Stadium. Patrons could partake of a cookout dinner while watching the Ram freshmen, junior varsity, and varsity football teams work through their paces. The Lake Mary band also took to the field for a performance. The event served a twofold purpose, providing the Lake Mary booster club an opportunity to raise money by selling tickets, meals, memberships, and Ram paraphernalia (hats, shirts, and the like) while giving fans a first glimpse at players such as freshman running back Pedro Aviles (left).

Jones holds off Anderson in wire-to-wire victory

By PAUL MARABELLA
 Special to the Herald

NEW BMYRNA BEACH — Jerry Jones raced green flag to checkers in winning the Modified feature event last Saturday, Aug. 20, at New Smyrna Speedway.

Jones used his advantage of starting on the pole to jump to the early lead while Joe Middleton charged from his fourth-place starting slot to second place before the first lap was completed.

On lap three, Jeff Anderson got by Middleton for second and, with Jones in his sights, started to close in on the race leader.

With five laps remaining, Anderson closed to the rear bumper of Jones. But despite repeated challenges, Anderson was unsuccessful in reeling in the front runner.

Following the lead duo to the checkers were

Middleton, Ron Blackard, and Bill Gunn.

Gary "Hot Shoe" Balough blew the doors off of the competition in a caution-free 25-lap Late Model feature. Balough, who started the race from the fourth position, took the point from early race leader Ricky Wood on lap three and from there on, it was clear sailing to victory lane.

"Everything was just perfect tonight," said Balough. "The track was a little slick from the earlier rains, but we had no trouble getting around. You have nights like this where everything seems to go your way. Unfortunately, some nights things go against you."

Wood was a distant second, finishing in front of Bill Coody, Pat McClain, and Mike Kubanek.

Gary Frush edged Chuck Vola at the finish line to take top honors in the Bomber division. Mike Stevens was third with Brian Schlimmer and Gary Roberts rounding out the top five.

Barbara Pierce also turned in a wire-to-wire run in winning the Sportsman main event. Pierce, who picked up her 11th victory of the season, took the checkers ahead of Chris Lawrence, Fireball Maguire, Art Chapman, and Dale Clouser.

Doug Pilla's misfortune on the final lap of the Limited Late Model headliner was Allen Rhodes' good fortune.

Pilla, who took the lead in the main event on lap five, raced uncontested for the remainder of the race until, with the checkers in sight, the car shut down coming out of turn four.

That allowed Rhodes to get by and claim the win. Pilla managed to hang on for second place in front of David Ponder, Bob Longbottom, and Tommy Elliott.

Other feature event winners were Tim Nicholas (Run-A-Bouts), Gene Van Aistine (Mini Stocks), and Brett Weber (Four-Cylinder Enduro).

Wallace to drive No. 28 while Irvan recovers

By PAUL HOWELL
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Following the strain of the past few days, there were some distinguishable smiles on the tired faces of Ernie Irvan's race team.

Irvan, the Winston Cup star known for his quick wit, remained in a Michigan hospital on Wednesday after suffering severe head and lung injuries in a weekend crash.

Back in Charlotte, team owner Robert Yates called on Kenny Wallace to fill in for Irvan, who was in critical but stable condition and showing signs of improvement.

Wallace, 31, who has raced in two Winston Cup events this year, will drive Irvan's No. 28 Ford Thunderbird Saturday night in Bristol, Tenn. Qualifying for the Goody's 500 will begin Friday.

The good news on Irvan's medical condition gave his crew the freedom to talk about their driver's unique sense of humor, which came through even during the heat of battle.

When Irvan was running for the lead at Darlington last fall,

Area Toastmaster contest

The four clubs of Area #25 Toastmasters International invite you to attend what is expected to be a "light and lively" program of Advanced Speech and Dramatic Presentation contests to be held at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 27, at AAA National Office, 1000 AAA Dr., Heathrow.

There will be four speakers in each of the two contests. The purpose of the contest is to select an individual from each style of speech to represent Area #25 at Florida's Central Division of Toastmasters International.

Advanced speeches are prepared during the meeting and delivered in an extemporaneous manner. The speeches in the Dramatic Presentation contest may range from high drama to fairy tales.

The Toastmasters clubs in the area are the Foliage Club of Apopka, Lake of Mount Dora, Seminole Nightowls of Sanford/Lake Mary and Omni Toastmaster of Heathrow.

The public is welcome to attend. This is a good opportunity to hear some of the best speakers in the area and enjoy a laugh or two with a friend. The cost is $5 per person. Coffee and pastry will be available. For more information or reservations, contact Sam Ryan at (407) 942-5471.

Birds of a feather will flock

The Seminole Audubon Society will open the 1994-95 season on Sunday, Aug. 28 at 3 p.m. The meeting will be held in the Agricultural Extension Service Auditorium located behind the Seminole County Historical Museum on Highway 17-92. The meeting is free and open to the public.

This year the chapter is conducting a bird survey for the major trail systems in the Seminole County Environmental Center in Spring Lake Hammock. The Center is located on the west side of Lake Jessup off of Sate Road 419. Lorne Malo, Environmental Specialist with the St. Johns River Water Management District will answer questions and prepare teams for the survey. Malo is currently conducting a seasonal survey at the Hal Scott Preserve in east Orange County. Beginning birders are encouraged to participate in this project. New people will always be accompanied by experienced Audubon members during fieldwork and additional pairs of eyes will be needed.

On Saturday, Sept. 3, Seminole Audubon has been invited for a field trip to the Environmental Center. Anyone interested should meet at the Study Center at 8:30 a.m.

Local students chosen for youth orchestra

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — The Florida Symphony Youth Orchestra will embark on its 38th season this fall.

Fifteen local students have been selected by auditions for a seat in one of two orchestras. Basis for this selection was excellence in musical performance, maintaining private music lessons, rehearsals with the orchestra at least three hours every Sunday, mastery of eight to ten unabridged pieces of classical music and then perform at least six concerts this season.

Discipline is foremost as well as an outstanding educational experience. Many may become professional musicians and teachers. Alumni from previous youth orchestras include principal players in the New York Philharmonic and the Atlanta Symphony.

This year 170 students were selected from over 300 applicants for membership. Forty-five different schools from eight counties were selected. Elizabeth Goltara and Kristen Kaiser were chosen from Greenwood Lakes Middle School in Lake Mary to play percussion and bassoon, respectively. Eleven students were selected from Lake Mary High School. Those students include Katie Oliver, violin; Jorge Rullan, trombone; Sarah Hardy, flute; Mayumi Imamura, clarinet; Lori Lukas, clarinet; Alexi Tchausoff, cello; Erica Markovitz, oboe; Brian Smith, percussion; Erin Cain, flute; Dulcie Livingston, oboe; Nathan Holladay, bassoon. Iarea Butler was selected from Seminole High School to play trombone, and Amy Hunter from Sanford Middle School was chosen to play trumpet.

Several students spoke about their selection and the opportunity to perform with the youth orchestra. Sarah Hardy said, "The Florida Symphony Youth Orchestra gives kids my age the experience of being in a real orchestra. It also gives you a chance to meet a lot of different people who are interested in the same thing as you, music." Dulcie Livingston said, "Being in the Florida Symphony Youth Orchestra gives me the opportunity to sharpen up my skills as a musician. It helps me to overcome small pressures of performing so that when I become a professional musician I'll be able to handle the greater pressures. It's more than an organization though. It's a place to make new friends and have a few laughs." Elizabeth Goltara said, "I felt surprised to make it into the symphony for my second year. I saw plenty of other people who could have beaten me. I was very lucky. I like being in the symphony. It gives me a chance to challenge myself. I like going to different places for concerts like Leesburg Fashion Square Mall and the Bob Carr. It's a great experience for young, talented musicians. I would recommend it to anyone who is just waiting to do something exciting or is really into music." Amy Hunter said, "I'm really excited about being accepted into the orchestra. I'm looking forward to playing with the group. I think it will be a great educational experience for me and I can't wait to get started."

Grand Rehearsal is scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 27, at Seminole Community College from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Professional musicians will be present for coaching and full orchestra rehearsals. The first concert is scheduled for Nov. 12 at the Bob Carr Performing Arts Center at 7:30 p.m.

How body fights off inflammation

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please explain what macrophages in the lungs are. Are they normal or does this indicate a particular illness or disease?

Be grateful for your macrophages. These tiny soldiers usually enable us to lead healthier lives.

DEAR READER: Macrophages are cells that act like SWAT teams in the body. In their resting state, these burly cells hang around in tissues, passing time, not knowing really what to do, not bothering anyone.

However, if macrophages sense foreign protein, such as microorganisms beginning an infection, they immediately turn into killers, push their way between other cells, and congregate ready to do battle: This is, in a word, inflammation.

Once activated, macrophages expel caustic enzymes to kill the invading protein and they engulf the paralyzed bacteria -- and digest them. The wonder of this remarkable phenomenon is that it occurs minute by minute in various parts of the body, and we are rarely aware of these millions of life-and-death struggles that are a normal part of a healthy immune system.

Therefore, when macrophages are identified in tissues, such as lung, examined under the microscope, doctors have incontrovertible evidence that this tissue is under siege: Inflammation is present and the macrophages are doing their duty.

Macrophages will attack any "foreign" substance -- viruses, bacteria, yeasts, cancer cells, minuscule particles of matter -- even normal tissue sometimes in the presence of "auto-immune" diseases, such as lupus or rheumatoid arthritis.

Of course, this is sometimes a suicide mission: The macrophages die carrying out their job, leading to the formation of pus. But, by and large, the system works with astounding efficiency.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Richard Nixon said: "If an individual wants to be a leader and isn't controversial, that means he never stood for anything." Well, at the bridge table it doesn't pay to be a controversial leader. For one thing, if your "clever" opening lead backfires, partner is likely to turn a deaf ear to your explanation. And usually it isn't necessary to be clever. Listen to the auction, consider each logical choice in turn and hopefully one will become the clear winner.

Today's deal, though, gave West a tougher-than-average lead problem. North opened with three no-trump, showing a solid seven- or eight-card minor and no side ace, king or void. South took a shot at six diamonds, which East unexpectedly doubled in the pass-out seat. What should West lead?

The double of a freely bid slam usually shows a void somewhere. So, normally the opening leader picks his longest suit. Here, therefore, it is reasonable to lead the spade jack. West envisages that partner will ruff, return a heart to his ace and receive a second ruff for two down.

However, against a doubled slam, the target should be one down, not two. West should ensure that his side has its best chance to defeat the contract. And even if East is ruffing the first spade, the heart ace will have to stand up. So, the correct opening lead is the heart ace.

Looking at the full deal, which came from Frenchman Francis Pouget and was publicized by Jose Le Dentu, you see that only the heart ace works. At the table, South's imaginative bid succeeded when West led the spade jack.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Ouel
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Aug. 25, 1994

The year ahead could be both a productive and exciting time for you. You might become involved in several pursuits simultaneously, each of a different nature.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're a pretty good salesperson today, but only up to a point. Once you have your prospect nodding in agreement, stop where you are and don't oversell. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N. Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Someone with whom you've been involved previously tends to think of you and your resources as his/hers. This manipulator might be up to old tricks again today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Take nothing for granted in your personal dealings today. Oral agreements could be of little value, so be sure all the important copy is in writing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone you went out of your way to help recently might be looking the other way today when you need his/her assistance. Bite the bullet and chalk it up to experience.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In social situations today, even friends who usually support you might align against you. Try not to be unduly distraught and maintain your dignity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're not likely to have much success today if you take it upon yourself to champion an unpopular cause. Perhaps there is a valid reason that everyone is against it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There is a chance today you might discover someone you like hasn't been as frank and forthright with you as he/she should be. Be careful about taking this individual into your confidence.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Don't be reluctant to stand up for your rights today if you feel you're getting a raw deal in a business arrangement. If your voice is silent, others will be.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A partnership arrangement could be more of a hindrance than a help today, owing to the divergent opinions of you and your cohort. To be effective, your aims must be in harmony.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A while back you were rather lucky in getting someone to take care of a responsibility for you that you should have taken care of yourself. Unfortunately, this might not repeat itself today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Avoid situations of a competitive nature today between you and a friend. Something that might start out in fun could suddenly assume serious overtones.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your judgment in career matters might not be up to par today, so be careful. You may think you have all the acca, but when you play them they could be trumped.
