Rayburn Speaks In Favor Of Program For Stronger Defenses

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Members disclosed today that the Senate Military Committee had received testimony that President Roosevelt overrode specific objections from General Martin Craig, Army chief of staff, to permit the French air mission to buy 100 American-made bombing planes of the latest type.

Secretary Morgenthau told committee, Senator Austin (R-Vt.) said, that the President overruled Craig's objections after a conference with Morgenthau, Craig and the secretary of Navy.

The President, meanwhile sent a special message to Congress recommending the establishment of a central technical agency to promote and co-ordinate research and enforcement of federal and state water pollution control, and legislation to carry forward a broad national program for protection of waterways and conservation of the nation's energy resources.

The House aligned itself almost solidly behind President Roosevelt's continental defense program yesterday when it passed and sent to the Senate the $275,000,000 army expansion bill to raise the army's first-line fighting plane strength to 3500 within two years and make the Panama canal impregnable.

The vote was 367 to 15, with 11 Republicans and one Democrat voting against.

Passage came a few minutes after defeat of a Republican amendment on pure water.

Decline In School Revenue Reported By Colin English

TALLAHASSEE, Feb. 16.—Florida school revenue declined $1,250,000 during the last school year, according to a summary of county reports released today by State Superintendent Colin English.

School revenue from tax collections was $1,230,000 less during the year 1937-38 than the previous year. This decrease of 6% is attributed principally to the operation of the Murphy act.

Prior to the removal of the poll tax as a requirement for voting, the schools collected at least $200,000 on a general election year from this source. During 1937-38, a general election year, collections from poll taxes were only $5,000.

Correct county and district tax collections were about equally the same as the previous year, but were $60,000 less than the year 1936-37. There was an increase of $162,000 in revenue from mineral taxes available for school purposes as a result of special rates of the last legislature to aid schools in certain counties.

Funds from oil revenue available for schools during 1937-38 totalled $60,000. In 1936-37 the total was $20,000, and in 1935-36 this total was $25,000.

Freak Weather

Winds Which Reached
71mph Velocity
Reported Abating

BOSTON, Feb. 16.—(AP)—An Arctic cold spread over the east today in the wake of freak weather conditions that claimed at least 13 lives in the eastern half of the United States.

Atching winds that had reached a 71-mile an hour intensity yesterday ended the threat of serious floods along sections of the New England coast.

Snow and swiftly dropping temperatures accompanied the storm as it moved eastward from the midwest, freezing rain-swept highways but lowering the flood menace in the upper Ohio valley.

Gale-force winds yesterday struck Mid-South first, toppling over houses, trees and power and telephone lines and bringing death to two persons in Alabama. They later struck New York without warning, reaching 65 miles an hour and bringing with them a 20-minute cloudburst, and roared on into New England.

With an abnormally high tide along the New England coast, especially in Rhode Island, officials feared floods in the area damaged in last September's hurricane. State police set up a special patrol.

There were flood fears also in the Ohio, Tennessee and Cumberland River valleys and the Red Cross in Kentucky made plans to evacuate lowland families should the water rise much higher. At Paducah, Ky., the predicted river crest was 49.5 to 50 feet, compared with the flood stage of 43 feet.

Florida Growers Are Ready For Lettuce Comeback

BRADENTON, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Florida is ready for a comeback in its lettuce war with California and Arizona.

This region used to ship thousands of cars of lettuce—but it was the old loose-headed Boston variety. When the firm, triple-headed iceberg variety, grown largely in California and Arizona, came into widespread popularity 15 years ago, the local lettuce industry faded, even Manatee county grocers found they had to stock the California product.

Hindered by their warm climate, growers in Manatee, Sarasota and a few other Florida lettuce belt counties had about given up hope of competing again in the lettuce market. But now seed breeders have perfected a new firm, crisp head of lettuce they say will grow here and compete with other areas. The hope of Florida growers is stirring.

Approximately 400 acres of the new head is being harvested in Manatee county alone.

67 Cents Per Capita Is '38 Loss By Fires

Ordinances Passed By Commission To Prevent Hazards, Careless Trash Burning

The per capita fire loss in residents of Sanford last year was 67.65 cents, according to an annual report prepared by Fire Chief Mack C. Land.

Although considerably higher than the per capita loss of 17.12 cents for 1937, the lowest in Sanford's history, the Fire Chief declared that losses last year were well below average for cities of similar size.

During the past year, Fire Chief Cleveland's report showed, fire damages to buildings amounted to $1,944 and the value of the buildings involved was $113,221. Damages to contents were $6,013.92 and the value of the contents were $622,836. This makes a total loss of $84,038.57 for the 12-month period while the amount of property involved was $622,836.

As an aid to the Fire Department in keeping losses to a minimum, the City Commission at the last regular meeting passed ordinances prohibiting the burning of trash, leaves, setting of grass fires, or burning of other combustible materials in the city.

The ordinance provides for a fine up to $25 for conviction of violating this ordinance. The Fire Chief, however, may give permission for such burning if in his opinion it will not endanger property.

A second fire prevention ordinance, provides that "It shall be the duty of the occupants of any building to collect and daily remove to a place convenient for the City garbage trucks, empty boxes, barrels, rubbish, trash, waste paper, excreta or other combustible materials."

This ordinance further prohibits the keeping of oily rags and other similar materials in buildings unless in proper containers and gives the Fire Chief the authority to inspect all buildings for fire hazards. The penalty for violation of this ordinance was also set at $25.

The Fire Chief reported a total of 162 fires during the year including 15 runs outside of the City limits. Insurance paid to owners to reimburse losses amounted to $5,359.75.

Chief Cleveland reported that burning trash, oil stoves, gas stoves, defective wiring and pennies back of fuses, cigarettes and sparks from chimneys and flues were the principal causes of fires.

The yearly fire losses in Sanford since 1912 are as follows:

following evening, Thursday, Alexander Bloch, the conductor who in these past three years has brought the orchestra to distinguished quality of performance, will bring the orchestra to Deland, to repeat it goes without saying that the Schumann concerto will receive a fine interpretation. It is a composition attending the pianist upwards evening in Winter Park. To opportunity to display all he has of repeat it, that is, with one exception. At the Winter Park performance, the solo feature will be Saint-Saens concerto for orchestra and cello, the soloist being Arnold Kvam, the brilliant young cellist from Iowa, graduate of the Peabody Institute in Baltimore who has lately returned from graduate studies and notable concert experiences in Munich, Berlin and other European centers.

For this, at the concert in Deland will be substituted the Schumann concerto in A-Minor for piano and orchestra in which last month Ercelle Mitchell Lindsay won a crowning success with the orchestra at Winter Park. She will be replaced here by another brilliant Florida pianist, Professor Arthur J. Graham of Stetson.

Miss Eleanor McKay
Weds John D. Peters

In a setting suggestive of a beautiful garden, Miss Eleanor McKay of Tampa and John Dwight Peters, formerly of Sanford, were married last night at 7:45 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Angus McKay, parents of the bride. The Rev. John B. Walker, rector of the St. Andrew's Episcopal church, officiated.

The drawing room, in which the ceremony took place, was appropriately decorated for the occasion. An embankment of potted palms ranged against the walls and formed a background for huge pots of azaleas, their snow white blossoms shining out from the dark foliage. Tall white tapers in cathedral candleabra provided illumination. An aisle of white ribbons on white standards curved from the reception hall to the improvised altar.

A program of nuptial songs was presented by Mrs. C. R. Marney as wedding guests were assembled. Her selections included "Ich Liebe Dich" (Edward Grieg) and "Calm as the Night" (Carl Bohm).

She was accompanied by Mrs. Robert Nunes, pianist, and Mrs. Antonette Robb, cellist, who also played "L'Amour, Toujours L'Amour" (Triniti), "Traumerei" (Schumann) and "Liebestraum" (List).

Just before the entrance of the wedding party, chimes were sounded by Robert Nunes, and Mrs. Nunes played the traditional wedding marches on the organ.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was never more lovely than in her wedding gown of antique ivory bridal satin. The bodice was cut with a deep decolletage in front, and finished at the neck line with a wide collar of delicate rose point lace that fell in points almost to the waistline. The extremely full puffed sleeves were finished with narrow cuffs of the lace. Her slender waist was encircled with a fitted girdle that extended upward in a point at the front, and below the waistline in a V at the center back. The skirt was gathered very full at the waistline and fell in rich folds, extended by a hoop, to the floor with a sweeping train.

Clusters of orange blossoms caught her veil of illusion at each side of her face. She wore long white kid gloves, and carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Thomas J. Hanley and Miss Mary Irene McKay, attendants of the bride, were her only attendants.

Chester H. Ferguson served Mr. Peters as best man.

Mrs. McKay, mother of the bride, wore an exquisite formal gown of orchid pink chiffon, the bodice shirred down the front and at the ends of the wide shoulder straps. Silver lace formed the foundation for the bodices and a wide band of the lace trimmed the foundation skirt. She wore a corsage of orchids.

Mrs. T. L. O'Connor of Sanford, mother of the bridegroom, was dressed in pearl gray chiffon, that was particularly becoming. It was fastened on simple lines, with a full skirt and a softly shirred bodice made with a round neckline and caplet sleeves. Her corsage was of orchids.

Only relatives and a few close friends attended the ceremony, but additional guests arrived for the wedding reception that followed. The reception hall, library and sunroom were a veritable flower garden with great bowls and baskets of white gladioli, snapdragons and feathery pine blossoms against a background of palms. White candles burned in all of the reception rooms.

The bride's table was overlaid with an imported Italian cut work cloth, bordered with a wide band of Venetian lace. In the center of the table was the wedding cake, shaped like a large wedding ring. Crystal hung crystal candlesticks holding white tapers were placed at the ends of the table. Large crystal bowl of gladioli, snapdragons and pine blossoms, accented by white tapers in crystal holders, stood on the buffet, and bouquets of the same flowers were placed on the man-of-the-reception. Mr. and Mrs. Peters left for a short time to visit the bride, travel light, ensemble in hand, and will return to the hotel with a few relatives and some friends.

During the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Peters left for a short time to visit the bride, travel light, ensemble in hand, and will return to the hotel with a few relatives and some friends.

Daytona Bucs Are Unable To Stop Orlando Tigers

GREYHOUND ENTRIES

DAYTONA BEACH, Feb. 16.—Inability to hit the fast breaking Orlando offense and to stop the stampeding of Arnold, Isbell and Morris cost the Daytona Beach Buccaneers their second loss of the season to the Big Ten Tigers here, yesterday, 46-39.

For three quarters, the teams battled virtually on even terms, but in the fourth period, the big three of the Orlando club started clicking and from then on it was Katy-bar-the-door for the Bucs.

During the first half and the majority of the third quarter, the margin between the clubs was never more than two points.

But later in the third and early in the fourth Isbell and the rangy Morris combined to get the ball off the backboard five times after Buc shots had failed, and each time they were able to pass the full length of the floor to Arnold who had sneaked behind the Buc defense and the early had little forward speed for a shot.

Those five baskets put the Bucs out of the running. They continued to fight, but it was a losing battle and the Bucs knew it. The Orlandoans led 11-9 at the quarter. The Bucs took the halftime margin of 19-17, and the Tigers went ahead again at the third period, 32-30.

Miss Andrew Scores Narrow Victory In Feature Event

MISS ANDREW, a daughter of the great distance runner Just Andrew, squeezed through last night to score a victory in the 5-mile feature event at the Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club, besting Agricola San and Valentine's Boy at last minute hitches.

Gay Hop, usual entrant in the feature events, also had to come from far back to win the ninth race over the futurity course by a nose and a photo finish.

The 5-5 combination won the daily double and paid $28.10. The dogs were Sam Jackson and Irish Cop.

The 4-7 combination won the quinella for the fourth time in eight days and paid $10.80. The greys were Buddy Hare and Miss Riley.

Reconstruction Already Begun In War Torn Spain

Trade Is Near Normal Despite Over Two Years Of Fighting

LONDON, Feb. 16.—(UPI)—Everybody agrees that reconstruction in Spain is going to be a long, expensive job.

But Spain, from what can be gathered, is not so badly off as one might imagine after a costly blood-letting that may be passing an end after two and a half years.

Here is the economic picture the insurgents paint of their side:

Business as usual. The "new Spain" already functioning on its own steam. Their bill largely paid (though many believe the insurgents heavily indebted to fascist powers). Foreign—largely British—interests doing business at the old stand. Demolished buildings being rebuilt. Municipal services restored. People living as normally as visitors find it hard to believe a war is going on. Banks operating. A start made on social reforms such as stem clearance, new schools and the establishment of agricultural credit for the "little farmer."

He's Short Of Cash

How come, you're probably asking. How is Francisco Franco, the insurgent general and head of government, accomplishing all this?

He admittedly lacks gold and possesses very little foreign currency.

But—

He has swelled his side's coffers enormously by capturing territory containing most of Spain's amazing natural resources.

He has paid lots of bills with printing press pesetas which have been backed only by insurgent confidence of victory.

He has had available as security for borrowing, enormous stock and bond holdings of wealthy families who sympathize with his cause.

He has continued to collect the usual taxes—and has added a few new ones of his own such as the 10 percent sales tax on everything.

The peseta is rigidly controlled. Its official value is 10 cents. Before Franco's offensive rolled over Catalonia it was quoted around three cents in Paris—about 15 times as much as a Republican peseta.

After Barcelona fell, and Loyalist officials fled Catalonia, it took a 500 peseta government note to get one franc (about 2½ cents) at the French border.

Franco's pesetas cannot be exported or imported, but no one questions their value in Insurgent Spain. He has officially recognized government pesetas issued before the war.

Property Under Close Control. Incidentally, the insurgents announce that private ownership will continue in their "new Spain"—but, as in Italy and Germany, under close state control.

As evidence of how they have turned the natural resources to their credit, the insurgents cite the case of Viscaya. The monthly average of iron ore mined in that province in 1938 was 122,722 tons. Production held up well in 1938 until the war started in July, then gradually sank to 11,989 tons in June. The month Gibral was captured. By August, say the insurgents, they had the output up to 42,477 tons.

They tell the same story about the export of iron ore from Bilbao. The monthly average in 1938 was 84,440 tons. It dropped to 8,554 in June, the month the city was captured, but was up to 90,511 in September.

The insurgents blame the drop on internal factors such as demoralization of the workers and sabotage. Impartial observers attribute it to the Insurgent blockade of the port.

Taxes And Business Go On.

As one proof of what they call the normal conditions prevailing behind the battle lines, the insurgents point to the regularity shown in the budgets of municipalities. Even in cities so near the front as Granada and Zaragoza, they say, municipal revenue without any extraordinary imposts has been maintained at the same rate as in 1934, 1935 and the first half of 1936.

An evidence of the stability of the national budget the insurgents assert that the municipalities still are collecting from the state about one-sixth of their total revenue. This is obtained through their share (32 percent) of the trade tax and income tax paid by the state, and 30 percent of the taxes paid by the state for gas, electricity and for motor vehicles.

Zaragoza, for instance, collected more than 2,500,000 pesetas in 1936, according to the insurgents, despite the fact that the latter half was a war period; 2,820,547 pesetas in 1937; and has estimated its receipts from this source in 1938 at 2,755,347 pesetas.

Thanks to their good position, the insurgents go on, the municipalities are able to relieve the national government of some of the responsibility of repairing war damage and launching ambitious new projects under "new Spain's" social welfare program.

War Scars Removed.

Bilbao, they say, is restoring the bridges that were blown up by the government forces on their retreat. Oviedo has drawn up plans for the reconstruction of the city, entailing an expenditure of 300 million pesetas, and its example is followed by Guernica, Irún, Gijón, Toledo and a number of other war-scarred towns and cities. Burgos is spending 3,000,000 pesetas on buildings and new streets. Seville is building workmen's dwellings and clearing the Amate slum area.

That is the economic picture painted by the insurgents. It is useful only if one remembers that the work of propagandists in war time is to make their side appear as well off as possible.

The government side has had one big advantage throughout the war—the gold reserve of the Bank of Spain, estimated by some sources as high as 2,250,000,000 pesetas. It seized this reserve as the outbreak of hostilities and has used it to finance its defense.

Forty million dollars in gold is blocked in the Bank of France pending the decision of French courts as to whether it belongs to the government or the insurgents.

No estimate has been made of what the total cost of reconstruction will be. But it will run into billions of pesetas and require a generation to complete. Franco has helped to keep the cost down by capturing prisoners.

Race For Spain's Trade.

One thing is freely admitted by Spaniards themselves—outside capital will be required even though reconstruction is carried out in the framework of a controlled economy similar to the German and Italian plans.

Another big problem will be foreign trade, which has fallen off considerably. Britain and Spain always have been good customers of each other. Now British coal exports to Spain are said to have dropped 37 percent; machinery 90 percent; motor cars, 95 percent.

These are Britain's big three exports to Spain. Naturally she will try to win that trade back. And while financial experts predict a free-for-all among various powers, British interests feel they have the top hand because they have the money.

Citrus Juice Sales Get Boost By Doctor

Miami Gamblers Draw Big City Court Fine

JACKSONVILLE, Feb. 16.—Dr. W. A. McHall, Florida State Health Officer, gave a decided boost here recently to the statewide and national campaigns to increase the consumption of citrus juices. Emphasizing the fact that citrus fruits contain vitamins A, B, C, and G, the health officer pointed out that regular consumption of large quantities of citrus are highly beneficial.

Dr. McHall's statements, coming as they do in the midst of the 5-cent citrus juice drive conceived by Burton Schoepf, of Tampa, should go far to add effectiveness to that campaign. The health officer stated that not only were citrus fruits good for the normal person, but that they were excellent in combating colds. His advice, if you have a cold, is to go home at once, drink as much citrus juice and water as you with the new method of retailing can. Go to bed and call your doctor.

MIAMI BEACH, Feb. 16.—Three men arrested in a gambling raid on the Palm Island club were fined heavily in city court yesterday.

Judge Daniel P. Galan assesed a penalty of $1000 and costs against a man booked at Ralph Lang, 50, charged with operating a gambling establishment. Two men named as dealers were fined $300 and costs each. Their names were recorded as Ambrose Maley, 21, and James Simon, 29.

Police raided the spot Sunday and seized roulette wheels, dice

table, other equipment and $500 in cash. Al Capone has a home on Palm Island.

The latest development in the sale of citrus is the successful experiment of A. C. Tonally of Tavares, in selling fruit by the peck and half peck (gallon, dry measure) at stores he operates in Virginia and West Virginia. Announcement of Yonally's success came from the Lake County Chamber of Commerce.
