Affordable housing addressed

The Seminole Housing Advocacy Coalition, SHAC, has scheduled a meeting to discuss affordable housing in Seminole County. The meeting will be held in Altamonte Springs, but is open to all county residents.
SHAC officers are urging anyone who has an interest in the affordable housing problem to attend the function, and become better acquainted with the organization and its goals. The meeting will be seeking input toward a possible solution to the lack of such housing.
Amos Jones will be the guest speaker, who will discuss the history of affordable housing in Seminole County.
The meeting will be held Tuesday, Sept. 17, at St. Mary Magdalen Church, 861 N. Mattland Ave., Altamonte Springs. For further information, contact Angie Romagosa at 280-9155.

Women's group criticizes clinics

TALLAHASSEE — Opponents of school-based health clinics that distribute birth control to students with parental approval have urged Gov. Lawton Chiles to rethink his support of the idea.
"While your intentions may be good, this is only a 'band-aid' solution to soothe the conscience," a letter from Concerned Women for America of Florida said.
Last month, the governor told a group of health officials and advocates discussing the implementation of his prenatal Healthy Start program that providing birth-control services on high school campuses where there was community and parental support was a good idea.
Florida has 15 school-based health clinics and the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services has plans to add another 82.
Chiles on Wednesday defended his support of clinics.
"It's a good way of taking care of children's health problems," he said, adding, however, that he would never try to force a school or community to incorporate such a clinic.
In their Monday letter to Chiles, Concerned Women and a number of other groups said it would be a waste of tax money to support such programs because the services are available elsewhere.

Schools cut taxes

By VICKI DeSOMMER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Despite pleas by irate taxpayers, the Seminole County school board approved without cutting its proposed $312 million budget for the 1991-92 fiscal year.
The millage rate for school taxes will drop .08 mills, but because property values have increased for so many homeowners, the amount of taxes paid may actually rise.

Lake Mary to cut proposed bond amount

By NICK PFENAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary's proposed $5 million bond issue will be reduced to $3 million. The change was approved during a city commission meeting early this morning.

This morning's special called meeting was billed as a "Reconsideration and Clarification of Ordinance No. 564 - Stormwater Management Utility." The scope of today's meeting however, ended up centering on a reduction in the proposed bond.

The first reading, held at another special meeting this past Tuesday night, resulted in the matter being killed due to a tie 2 to 2 vote. When a call was made today to move for reconsideration, none of the commissioners responded.

Commissioner David Meador and Mayor Randy Morris, who were on the prevailing side of Tuesday's defeat, were the only two who could move for reconsideration. Morris however, could not make a motion in his position as mayor, and Meador did not. Following the meeting, Commissioner Paul Tremel said, "I would have made the motion to reconsider it, but I could not do that, according to the laws of procedure."

Morris reported late yesterday that the meeting had been called by Meador, who had voted against the measure earlier this week. Meador however, said he did not specifically call for the gathering.
"Why would I want a meeting? I voted the measure down Tuesday," he added. "I said if the commission wanted to meet again on it, I was flying to Tallahassee Tuesday morning, but I

"This is the most regressive budget we've had to deal with in years," Supt. Bob Hughes said. "And we've just got word today that the state may have another shortfall. Some of the money that is in here [in the budget] may not be forthcoming from the state."

The state may be trimming another 3 1/2 percent from each district's allotment that would mean $3.5 million less for Seminole County.
Homeowners raised questions about the way in which the district was spending tax payers money.

Roy Wright of Sanford was angered by the joint use agreement with the City of Sanford to build a swimming pool.

"We pay our taxes to educate children not to spend $800,000 on a swimming hole," he said.

He said he did not find the amount in the budget and suggested that a cover up by the school district might be underway.

Year-round schools OK'd

By VICKI DeSOMMER

SANFORD — Seminole County is well on its way to converting all of its schools to the year-round calendar.

By 1995 all the elementary and middle schools will be on the year round calendar.

Goldboro Elementary School in Sanford will begin classes on the modified school calendar in July. They will attend classes on a multi-track system with 80 percent of the students attending classes at one time.

Geneva Elementary School in Geneva will be on a single track starting in the summer.

While the change at Goldboro will reduce overcrowding and help students learn more effectively by reducing the amount of learning lost over long summer breaks, the conversion at Geneva is not designed to help alleviate overcrowded classrooms.

Parents from Lawton Elementary School which is already on the alternative calendar, told the board they were happy the board was moving along toward converting all the schools to the modified calendar.

"But we don't think you're going far enough," said Mae Claire Branton, a representative of the Lawton PTA. "We think more of the schools

Lake Mary citizens plan fund-raiser

By NICK PFENAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — A Lake Mary citizens group has distributed invitations to a fund raising event to be held in the city. The pamphlet indicates it stands for "Justice for Lake Mary Citizens, no taxation without representation."

The printed invitation however, does not identify specific names of the organizers or sponsors for the affair, nor the name of the printer.

The invitation for the fund raising event is entitled, "The Boston Tea Party". A line has been drawn through the word "Boston", and the name "Lake Mary" substituted.

The event is scheduled for Saturday, September 21, from 4 until 8 p.m., at the Old Lake Mary City Hall, 158 N. Country Club Road.

Among activities planned are entertainment, an auction, a raffle, political acts, and the sharing of local political concerns. The brochure also suggests, "You can help! Get involved! Contribute to the legal fees."

Information contained in it is directed at the recent group of Lake Mary citizens who wrote a petition directed at controlling government spending. It states, "The Lake Mary Commission voted 3 to 2 against allowing the petition to go to referendum." It adds that the commission then chose to engage the authors of the petition in a legal battle.

Mayor Randy Morris, who has seen a copy of the invitation, handed out during the September 5th, City Commission meeting, said, "One big error in it is the number of the vote. It was 4 to 1 against placing the citizen's petition on a referendum, because of the way it was worded."

The opening statement of the pamphlet concludes, "These involved and concerned citizens who followed all the proper legal steps of the petition process are now faced with huge legal fees. They need your verbal and financial support. We must not let Lake Mary officials deny the citizens their constitutional rights."

According to City Hall records, Lake Mary resident Bill Greene had filed the application requesting permission to use the facility, which is owned by the city. Greene's application specified the function is for "a non-profit social event."

Sanford chamber wants us to sow wild beauty

By NICK PFENAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — If the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce has its way, northern Seminole County would be blooming with wild flowers.

The Chamber will host a seminar Sept. 19, on spreading wild flowers throughout the area.

The brown-bag seminar is the first part of the Chamber Beautification Committee's effort to promote the use of wildflowers, especially in medians, landscaping, and large beautification projects.

It is anticipated that later this year, wild flower seeds will be made available for civic clubs and other organizations interested in beautification projects.

The committee has also planned at least two wild flower demonstration projects to draw attention to the potential of these natural Florida species.

Beautification Committee Chairman Kevin Schweizer, has announced that the guest speaker will be a specialist from the world renowned Harry P. Leu Botanical Gardens in Orlando. The speaker will present a slide presentation, as well as discuss the many ways in which Florida wild flowers can be used.

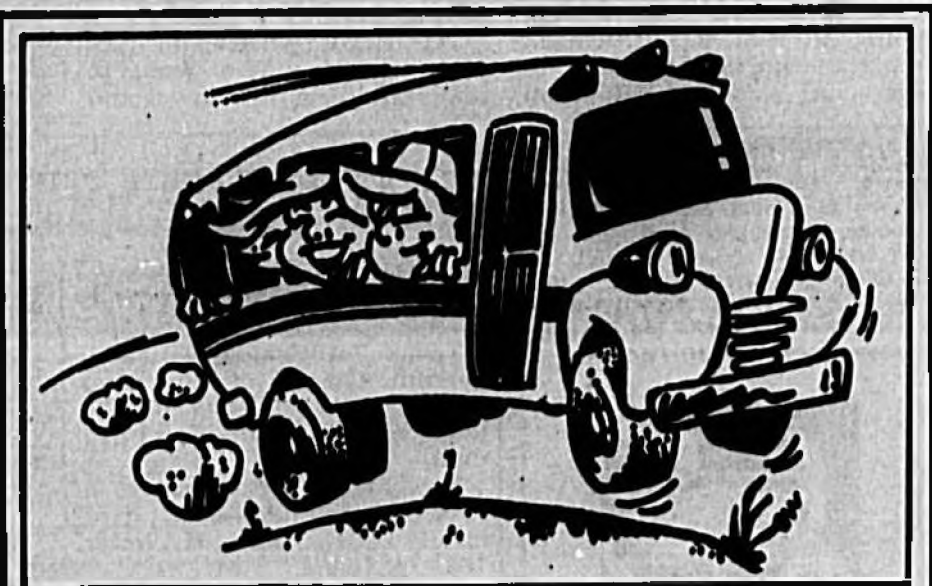

"The speaker will be giving us some information on the best way to handle wild flowers in these areas."

-Kevin Schweizer

Schweizer said, "We have a number of experimental sites in the Sanford area, and the speaker will be giving us some information on the best way to handle wild flowers in these areas." He explained that different methods of planting are required depending on the soil conditions, shade, and water availability.

The Chamber is urging all organizations, garden clubs, and interested persons, especially members of the Scenic Improvement Board, regardless of their chamber affiliation, to attend the meeting. It will be held at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce building, 400 E. 1st Street in Sanford, Thursday, September 19. The session will begin at noon. Persons attending are asked to bring their own lunch.

For additional information, contact Dave Farr at the Chamber, 322-2212, or Kevin Schweizer, at 321-2280.

Stop! Cops cite school-bus violators

From staff reports

SANFORD — School and law enforcement officials say that the problem of drivers passing stopped school buses on the highway is getting to be a big one.

In Sanford alone, three motorists were pulled over at one stopped school bus this morning and 11 motorists were cited yesterday.

"School buses have to stop in order to let children get on or off, and they display flashing red lights and put out stop arms, but motorists continually drive past them." Steve Harriett, Sanford Police chief, said. "Failing to stop for a stopped school bus is punishable by a $100 fine for the first offense."

Harriett added, "If anyone is issued two citations for this infraction within a five year time period, it could result in suspension of a person's drivers license."

FLORIDA BRIEFS

FMP Officer indicted on cocaine charges

TAMPA — A Florida Marine Patrol Officer and two others have been indicted on charges they conspired to possess and distribute 250 kilograms of cocaine, federal prosecutors announced.

FMP Officer Roy V. Rickman, Lawrence Whittaker and Shawn J. Peasefall, all of Manatee County, were in custody Wednesday and each face from 10 years to life in prison if convicted of the drug charge.

Rickman was also indicted on charges of possession of a firearm during the commission of a drug-trafficking felony, which carries an additional mandatory five-year consecutive sentence.

Prosecutors charge the defendants smuggled the cocaine into Manatee County by boat beginning last March. The indictment resulted from an undercover investigation that authorities said is ongoing.

Florida man jailed for pot possession

LONG BEACH, Miss. — A Florida man remained in the Harrison County Jail after 106 pounds of marijuana was discovered in his car when he was pulled over for a routine traffic violation, authorities said.

John Patrick McCormick of Pompano Beach, Fla., has been charged with possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver and distribute, and is being held Wednesday on $100,000 bond, said Sgt. Dan Tackett of the Mississippi Highway Patrol. McCormick is also charged with speeding.

According to the arrest report, patrol officer Darryl Deschamp stopped McCormick for speeding about 11:50 a.m. Tuesday. During the stop, Deschamp smelled a strong scent of marijuana and after a search he uncovered the drug in the trunk.

Tackett said the marijuana has an approximate street value of $106,000.

Federal agent shot

MIAMI — An agent of the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms was shot and wounded while working with local officers.

"Apparently there was some kind of a joint operation between ATF and our robbery section," said Metro-Dade police Detective Lisette Williams. Officials said the action was a sting of a group of home-invasion robbers.

"They confronted some subjects and there were shots fired," said Metro spokesman Donald Blocker.

Scott B. Adams, 31, was taken to Deering Hospital. He was treated for a bullet wound through his right calf and released Wednesday, said ATF special agent Robert Creighton.

Lobbyist code of ethics eased

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Some of the most stringent requirements originally proposed for a Capitol lobbyist code of ethics have been dropped in a new version.

But Rep. Ed Healey, chairman of the Joint Legislative Management Committee, said the panel isn't weakening the proposal to appease the lobbyists.

"We're not trying to give them an easy way to go," said Healey, D-West Palm Beach. "I recognize there's going to be people feeling that way, but that's not what we intend to do."

"We're not trying to give them an easy way to go."

The executive director of a government watchdog group said the revised proposal doesn't go far enough.

"They need to go well beyond that," said Bill Jones of Common Cause of Florida. "If they want to build the public's confidence, they're going to have to develop a code that will ... remove the money in politics."

The original plan included a prohibition against contingency fees, the payments some lobbyists get only if they succeed in getting legislation passed or killed.

It also would have prohibited lobbyists from promising to make or withhold campaign contributions to influence legislation, required lobbyists to take a course in ethics, and prevented lobbyists from telling clients that they can control legislators' votes.

Sex, lies, videotapes

'Nymphomaniac' plea agreement crumbles

By SANDRA WALEWSKI
Associated Press Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — A couple accused of running a prostitution racket out of their home face trial and possible new criminal charges after prosecutors withdrew a plea agreement.

Prosecutor Joel Lazarus accused attorney Ellis Rubin of conflict of interest and negotiating the plea agreement on behalf of Kathy and Jeffrey Willetts in bad faith.

The Willetts had planned to enter guilty pleas Wednesday, but the state dropped its offer one day after it was reported that defense attorneys tried to sell a secret bedroom videotape of the woman with a client.

Lazarus said he was withdrawing the plea agreement because it now appears the Willetts participated in crimes not included in the deal. He said making the videotape would be illegal under state law.

During a hearing Wednesday before Broward Circuit Judge John A. Frusciante, Lazarus presented defense attorneys with a new plea agreement to look over. No details on changes from the original were released.

Mrs. Willetts stood by her attorney. "I have a lot of confidence in Mr. Rubin and his law firm," she said. "I will go to trial, and I will win."

Rubin has denied making any deal with a reporter for "Inside Edition," a nationally syndicated program. He said the tabloid television show entrapped him. "It now has been revealed that 'Inside Edition's' reporter came to my office to entrap us into some illegal or unethical act," Rubin told the judge.

Av Westin, co-executive producer of "Inside Edition," said the show "has acted consistently with appropriate journalistic standards and has operated within the law. We reject any assertion that 'Inside Edition' engaged in any wrongdoing." The couple charged clients from $50 to $150 an hour and made as much as $25,000 over six months, investigators said. They face trial on the original charges Oct. 2.

Rubin had planned to argue that Mrs. Willetts is a nymphomaniac who needs frequent sex as a form of therapy. Her husband, a Broward County sheriff's deputy, described by Rubin as impotent, is said to have watched and taken notes from a bedroom closet.

Television reporter Steve Wilson of "Inside Edition" said Tuesday that one of Rubin's sons, attorney Guy Rubin, offered to sell the program for $80,000 videotape of Mrs. Willetts having sex with former Fort Lauderdale Vice Mayor Doug Danziger, who was known for anti-vice campaigns.

Danziger resigned as vice mayor July 30 amid speculation he was on the Willetts' client list. His lawyer, David Bogenhutz, said Wednesday he could not confirm whether his client was involved with the Willetts, but said: "He's going to hate this. He thought it was over."

Man arrested in slaying of FAMU coed

TALLAHASSEE — A man police said was repeatedly rebuffed in his romantic advances toward a Florida A&M University student was jailed on charges of strangling her with a cord.

Richard Robertson, 19, of Tallahassee initially contacted police on Sept. 4 to tell them he was the boyfriend of 18-year-old Carmela Fuce of Fort Lauderdale, whose nude body was discovered two days earlier at her off-campus apartment.

Tallahassee police Sgt. Phil Kiracofe said Wednesday there was no romantic relationship between the two.

"In fact, Ms. Fuce apparently considered Robertson an annoyance and shunned his attention," he said.

Robertson was arrested Wednesday on first-degree murder charges after leaving the Tallahassee Memorial Psychiatric Center, where he had been since he phoned in a threat to commit suicide three days earlier, Kiracofe said.

Taxing issues

State income tax discussed

By RON WARD
Associated Press Writer

JACKSONVILLE — The pros and cons of a personal state income tax that would replace property taxes were discussed by a tax-reform commission which will recommend new funding and budget plans to the governor and Legislature.

The plan, written by James Bax of Long Boat Key, Allan Katz of Tallahassee and Parker Thomson of Miami, was discussed Wednesday at the Florida Taxation and Budget Reform Commission. There was no vote on the plan, just a discussion of its impact.

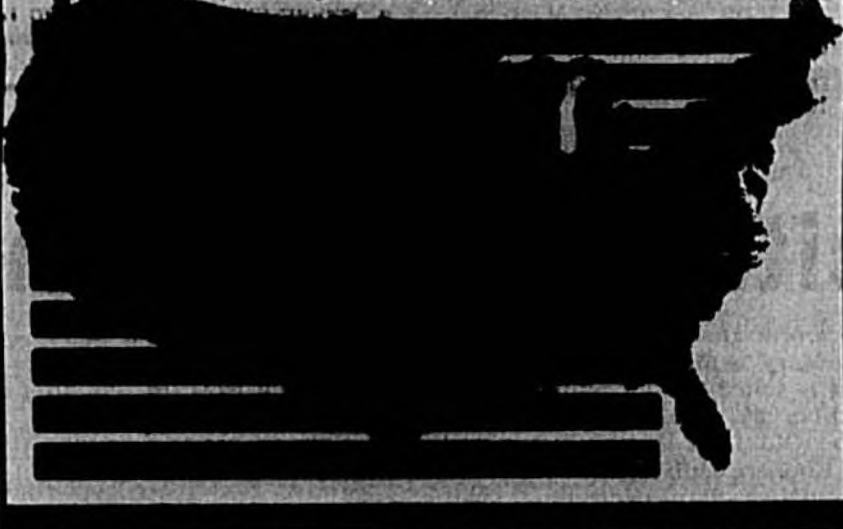

The plan would cap a personal income tax at 5 percent of federal taxable income and would replace property taxes for individual taxpayers.

Property taxes imposed on Florida homeowners brought in about $2.83 billion in 1990. A 5 percent income tax rate would bring in $6.1 billion.

"It is unlikely that we are going to find a perfect tax system that is equitable to everyone," said Katz. But "from

Florida's per-capita tax rank held steady in 1990

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The average bills for Florida taxpayers rose $44 in fiscal 1990, but a new government watchdog group study shows the Sunshine State tax burden is still below the national average.

Florida's per-capita state tax ranking for 1990 was 36th among the 50 states, one notch higher than the 1989 ranking, according to the Florida TaxWatch Inc. study.

The state tax bill last year came to $1,027 per person in the Sunshine State, compared to $1,211 for the average American.

Across the nation, state tax bills rose an average of $64 per person in 1990, TaxWatch found. The highest was Alaska at $2,811 per person; the lowest was New Hampshire.

"The result is a steady-as-she-goes situation," said Dominic Calabro, Taxwatch president.

The rankings are for the 1990 fiscal year, which in Florida includes half of 1989 and half of 1990.

The study noted that Florida's rise through the 1980s from one of the bottom 10 tax burden states to a more moderate tax state has slowed. Calabro said that was partly the result of government using up many taxing options in an effort to address explosive population growth.

For instance, the study found that Florida depends on the sales tax for 62 percent of its revenue, while the figure for the nation as a whole is 53 percent. "We use the general sales tax about twice as much, in part to make up for the lack of a state income tax," Calabro said. The Florida Constitution prohibits any income tax, making the state one of only seven without one. The State Tax and Budget Reform Commission is considering asking voters to repeal that ban through a ballot initiative in November 1992.

Car thief suspect nabbed

Longwood Police, called to investigate a possible shoplifting at Albertsons, 200 Highway 17-92, spotted a red 1985 Chevrolet believed to have been stolen.

A police report stated, an unidentified woman, found in the car, reported the driver was inside the store. When police entered the building, the man reportedly attempted to escape through a warehouse area, but was apprehended.

Michael Dalia, 35, of Caselberry, was charged with grand theft auto, and taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. The Chevrolet reportedly was stolen from the parking lot of another Albertsons store, on S.R. 434, this past Sunday.

Multiple charges filed after traffic stop

Lake Mary Police stopped a vehicle Tuesday morning after it was observed to be crossing the center lane on Lake Mary Boulevard near the Lake Mary Post Office.

During the investigation, officers reported smelling both alcohol and smoke from possible drugs. According to the officer's report, a cigarette butt was found in the ashtray of the vehicle, containing what later proved to be cannabis. A brass pipe used to smoke cannabis was found in the car, as was a beer can, and a bag containing cannabis, in the glove compartment.

The driver of the vehicle, identified as Michael Austin Baker, 24, of 2177 Longwood Lake Mary Road, Longwood, has arrested and placed in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. He has been charged with failing to maintain a single lane, possession of an open alcoholic beverage container, possession of cannabis and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Woman surrenders to police

Terri Neaska Peck, of Osceola Road, Geneva, turned herself in at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Tuesday. Peck was wanted on a warrant issued in Palm Beach County, on a charge of third degree grand theft.

Concealed firearm uncovered

When Sanford Police investigated several men sitting near Ideis Food Store, 1506 W. 16th Street Tuesday, one of the men reportedly told officers one of the others had a gun. The police report states the man apparently attempted to escape by running in an easterly direction, but was apprehended.

Carlos Triman Walker, 18, of 2105 W. 16th Street, Sanford, was charged with carrying a concealed firearm, and resisting arrest without violence.

He was arrested and taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Drug arrest made

Sanford Police arrested Tommy Lee Isaac, 31, of 73 Lake Monroe Terrace, late Tuesday evening. Some type of controlled substance was apparently found in his car, parked at the rear of Ideis Food Store, 1506 W. 16th Street. He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility, and charged with possession of a controlled substance, resisting arrest without violence, and battery on a law enforcement officer. No details were available on the case or the battery charge.

Wanted man located

Seminole County Sheriff's deputies arrested David Shawn Cheek, 32, at his residence, 4951 Woodruff Springs Road in Sanford Tuesday. Cheek was wanted for violation of parole, on a conviction of burglary to a structure. His parole, which reportedly began Dec. 4, 1989, was for five years. He was placed in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Eslinger added to sheriff's candidate list for next year

Sheriff Don Eslinger

SANFORD — Sheriff Don Eslinger said Wednesday he's willing to have voters consider his record when they consider electing him in 1992.

"We've done a good job," said Eslinger, 34. "I think if the people look at what we've done, they'll elect me."

Eslinger opened his campaign account Wednesday to seek the Sept. 1, 1992 Republican primary nomination for sheriff. He said his campaign manager is Dennis Dolgner, director of the Seminole County Port Authority. His campaign treasurer is Mack McReynolds, vice president of Barnett Banks.

In January, Eslinger was appointed by former Gov. Bob Martinez to succeed former sheriff John Polk. In poor health, Polk was forced to resign two years before his term ended Dec. 31, 1992. Polk died in June.

Eslinger has served with the Seminole County Sheriff's Department since Aug. 1978, when he began work as a dispatcher. He began duties as a road patrolman in November 1979.

Investigation agency, has announced his intentions for the office. Larry Conniff, a former Seminole County deputy who challenged Polk in 1988, is making a second bid. Former Seminole County Sheriff's Capt. Harold "Beau" Taylor is also seeking the office.

David Locker, an investigator with the Orange County State Attorney's Office, is also expected to make a Democratic bid for sheriff.

Although Eslinger said he considers himself a Polk protégé by being accessible to the public, he said he has also tried to bring a modern corporate approach to the sheriff's agency, which employs 515 people. The agency has a current budget of nearly $28 million.

One of the first changes he made was to change the name of the agency from "department" to "office."

"Department" connotes it is an agency under another entity," Eslinger said. "While we must go to the county commission to approve our budget, it is a completely separate agency."

Candidates file for commission

LONGWOOD — Although qualifying time for political races in Longwood ends this Friday, three candidates have submitted their papers so far. Only the race for commissioner of District 2 has opposition.

Craig Bush, 46, a real estate agent, has filed his papers to seek the post of commissioner for District 2, currently held by Mayor Hank Hardy. Hardy had earlier indicated he did not intend to seek re-election.

Two years ago, Bush opposed Hardy in a three way race which included June Lormann. Hardy won the election with 42.8 percent of the votes, while Bush received 38 percent. Following the election, Bush said he would pursue what he considered "voting irregularities" at Seminole County precinct 33, which is the Longwood City Hall. Bush said he had lodged a complaint with the Supervisor of Elections over incumbent's photos being allowed to remain on the chamber wall during the election. Hardy's photo was on display as a member of the commission.

The other candidate filed for the District 2 seat yesterday. He is Dr. Fred Pearl, a Longwood businessman who operates Foot Care of Central Florida. Pearl had qualified to seek election to the city commission several years ago but was forced to withdraw from the race due to injuries from an auto accident.

Commissioner Rex Anderson, who has indicated he intends to seek his second term as commissioner for District 4, has still not officially qualified. Anderson's first victory in the Longwood city election in November 1989, was a strong one. Anderson took 59.7 percent of the votes in a three way race.

Adrienne Perry filed her qualifying papers Monday, to run for re-election as city commissioner representing District 1. Perry is just completing her first two year term on the commission. When she was first elected two years ago, she drew an overwhelming 77.5 percent of the vote cast in a two way race for that seat.

According to the city's election ordinances, if Anderson and Perry are not opposed, they will not have to campaign, nor will their names have to appear on Board OK's student suspension

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Without discussion, the Seminole County School Board approved an emergency measure last night which will allow a student who has been charged in several felony crimes to be suspended from school while he awaits trial.

In most cases, a student can only be suspended after he has been found guilty of a felony.

The emergency measure rose out of a student at Lyman High School being formally charged in various felonies including aggravated assault.

While she could not discuss the details of the particular case, Dr. Hortense Evans, administrative assistant to Supt. Bob Hughes, said the student in question had assaulted a neighbor in an incident off campus.

"This did not happen at school," she said.

Still, Lyman principal Carlton Henley, brought the request for an emergency rule to the board because he believes the incident which resulted in the charges will have "a negative impact on the education program or school discipline or the welfare of Lyman High School."

Garbage rates drop in January

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Unincorporated garbage rates will be lowered in January under a plan OK'd by Seminole County commissioners this week.

Contracts with the haulers which will set rates at least $1 lower than current rates is scheduled for Sept. 24. The new rates will take effect in January.

In January, the state will prohibit lawn clippings and other yard waste from being taken to dumps, so commissioners were forced to change their collection program to provide for a separate yard waste. Each hauler will have to provide an additional yard waste truck and crew to drive streets weekly regardless of whether residents put clippings out.

In July, commissioners refused to switch the currently voluntary program to a mandatory collection because of the numerous complaints they had received from residents about rates. County solid waste officials said under a mandatory program, rates would be much lower, but commissioners didn't want to anger residents more.

Commissioners directed staff to negotiate with garbage haulers for a voluntary program that was significantly cheaper than the $13.80 initial price. To help reduce expenses to haulers, they reduced the number of cans or bags of garbage that could be collected for the base rate from four to two. Two weekly pickups will continue.

Commissioners decided to have individuals pay for more containers of garbage or yard waste collection only if requested.

Based on hauler's financial records, solid waste officials negotiated separate rates for each of the six haulers currently providing service to unincorporated areas. The rates vary from $12.80 for Sure Sanitation Service Inc. customers to $11.59 for residents receiving service from DiapoaAll Inc.

County Environmental Services Director Gary Cinder said the rates vary because larger haulers can operate at lower rates because their expenses are spread out over greater numbers.

There will be a $1 per bag or can charge for each additional container placed for collection above the two-can limit and for each yard waste container collected.

Backdoor pickup of garbage will cost an extra $8 per month. Backdoor collection of yard waste will cost an extra $4 per month.

Water association pipe lines in jeopardy

By J. MARK BARFIELD

MIDWAY — Leaders of the Midway-Canaan Water Association fear they may face a $200,000 expense with less than $5,000 in their coffers.

The Florida Department of Transportation is about to begin work widening State Road 48 between Summerlin Avenue to County Road 415 during the first week of October. The $1 million project will add two feet to travel lanes and four-foot paved shoulders to each roadside, covering portions of the main water line supplying this community of about 750 homes west of Sanford.

Association officials say it would be easier to repair a broken line if it were moved out from under the roadway, but they can't afford the estimated $200,000 cost for the relocation. And if the line did break under the road, they don't have the equipment to dig it up.

"We don't even have a backhoe," said Johnell Jackson. "If that line springs a leak, we'd have the road torn up for days."

Jim Hamelin, DOT district resident engineer, says DOT won't pay to move the line because the state owns the roadway land. The water association has a permit to use the road path so if road work interferes with the line, the association has to pay to move their line.

"We feel we've tried to do everything we can," said DOT district secretary Tom Berry. "This project has gone from requiring them to do the relocation to allowing the line to remain in place."

Berry said state law prevents DOT from paying to move utility lines for road projects. He said several smaller lines leading to the community from the main water line will have to be moved. Berry said DOT contractors will move the lines and bill the association. The price: up to $9,000.

Jackson, a member of the association board of directors, said the water line serves about 750 households in the Midway area with each home paying an average of $33 a month for water. Jackson said the association has less than $5,000 in reserves and is constantly repairing lines in the community.

"We know we have problems in those lines out there," said Jackson. "If they cover that line up and it springs a leak, they're in trouble."

Jackson said the association can't afford the expense of moving the line and would have difficulty repairing the main line if it were buried under asphalt.

Association officials have contacted their local state representatives, Sen. W.W. "Bud" Gardner, D-Titusville, and Rep. Frank Stone, R-Oviedo. Gardner and Stone could not be reached Wednesday.

Election taint

According to the official tallies from Mexico's mid-term elections, the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, swept a wide majority of the congressional seats and all of the races for governor in six states. The problem is that most voters don't believe the official results and there is ample evidence to justify their skepticism.

Consequently, an election that might have been a true victory for the powerful PRI, led by President Carlos Salinas de Gortari, remains tainted by the widespread perception that the balloting was illegitimate.

Given the long tradition of electoral fraud in Mexico, it is difficult to gauge whether the level of corruption was any less or more in this contest than in previous ones. But what cannot be disputed is that the modest political reforms implemented by Salinas have stopped short of instilling honest democratic competition. Mexico remains one of the few countries in the hemisphere where democracy still is struggling to take root.

Even opposition leaders concede the PRI is more popular today than it was three years ago, when a similarly tarnished election provided Salinas a narrow victory, according to the official count. The PRI's broadened appeal is due to the sweeping economic reforms put in place by Salinas. Inflation has been brought under control, inefficient state enterprises have been sold off, a growing private sector is flourishing and living standards are rising again after nearly a decade of decline.

Thus it is likely the PRI was entitled to win many if not most of the races. The government's final returns gave the ruling party 61 percent of the vote. That translated into victory in 321 of the 500 races for the Chamber of Deputies, most of the 92 Senate races and all six governors' races.

The conservative National Action Party, or PAN, was credited with 18 percent of the vote, for 40 seats in the Chamber of Deputies. PAN candidates ran strongest in Baja California, winning one Senate seat and three of six seats in the Chamber of Deputies.

Because of a host of irregularities, however, the official outcomes in a number of tightly contested races lacked credibility. There was the usual evidence of stuffed ballot boxes, intimidated voters and a suspicious delay in announcing computerized results. In addition, the PRI-controlled government stained the election by issuing last-minute voter credentials that may have disenfranchised some opposition supporters. And any appeals over the disputed results will be settled by government entities dominated by the PRI.

To succeed over the long term, President Salinas' extraordinary economic reforms must be matched by genuine political liberalization, with all parties competing on a level playing field. Until Salinas takes stronger steps to ensure that elections are conducted honestly, the economic and political rewards of democracy will continue to elude Mexico.

Women advance in the newsroom

Newspaper junkie that I am, I read nine newspapers a day. All of them are published in the East.

That's not to suggest that a few of the nation's more distinguished newspapers are not located west of the Hudson River. It's just that I grew up in Hartford, Conn., comforted by the intellectual superiority of New England, educated about the founding of the nation in the East, but unimpressed that the founders were all white males.

None of this holds true today. As Bob Dylan melodically philosophized, "the times, they are a-changin'." New England no longer dominates America's intellectual underpinnings; genius has become more dispersed. And white males are under accelerated pressure to share power.

Nowhere in America are these changes taking place more dramatically than in newspapers. I reflected on this recently as I was reading one of my nine newspapers, the Raleigh (N.C.) News & Observer. (I also read that city's weekly Carolinian, a black newspaper.)

The News & Observer announced three new editorial appointments — chief of the copy desk, editor of the features section and deputy copy desk chief. All three are women.

The change was even more amplified by the fact that the features editor's predecessor was on maternity leave.

Are these changes influenced by the fact that the News & Observer's managing editor, Marion Gregory, is a woman? Not really. In the nation's 330 journalism schools and departments, two-thirds of the students are women.

I noticed this while teaching journalism at the University of Delaware. Seven years ago, my classes were 50 percent male. In the last couple of years, the demographics had shifted to 67 percent female. The shift was also noted by two journalism professors, Maurine H. Beasley and

"The times, they are a-changin'."

Kathryn T. Theus, in their book about women in journalism education, "The New Majority."

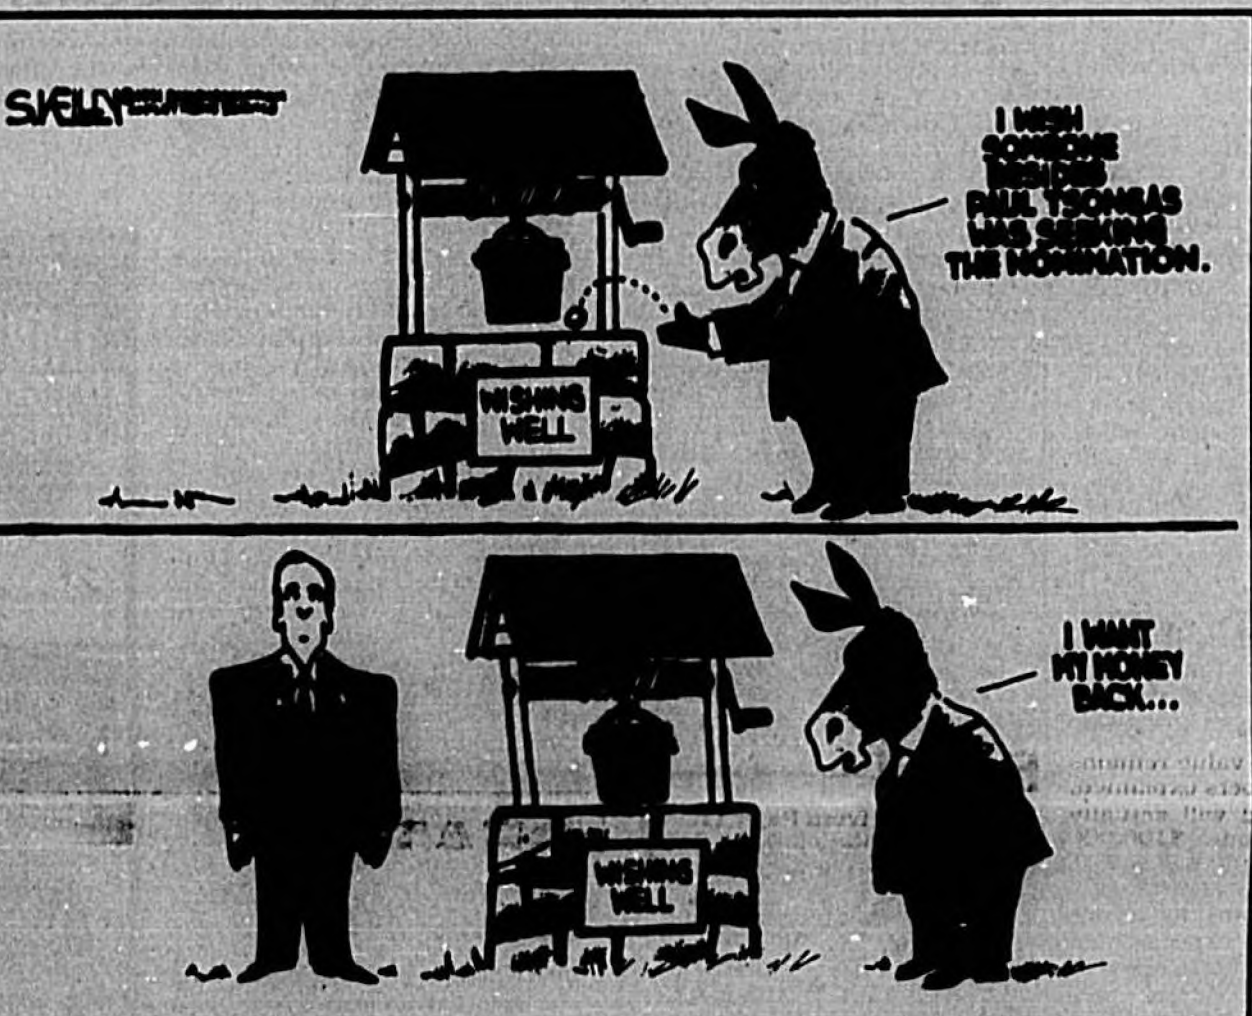

Consonant with these changing demographics the American Newspaper Publishers Association earlier this year elected Cathleen Black, publisher of USA Today, as its president. Three years ago, the American Society of Newspaper Editors elected Katherine Fanning, then the editor of the Christian Science Monitor, as its president.

Although at present women comprise only 32 percent of news staffs, more and more women are moving into high-level editorial and executive positions on major newspapers.

As the female presence in journalism increases, have you noticed any change in the high quality of your newspaper? I doubt it. Professionally, it goes about its job as diligently as ever. It informs, educates and entertains. It exposes charlatans regardless of race, creed or gender. It enables you to stay on top of the world's sometimes kaleidoscopic changes.

This is not to imply that the millennium in journalism is at hand. But women journalists are increasingly making their impact felt.

If you don't believe it, ask my syndicate editor. Invariably, she's right.

Cuomo takes a stand: Kerrey

Our long wait is over. The Democrats' most beseeched presidential prospect, Mario Cuomo, is coming out, at last — for Sen. Bob Kerrey of Nebraska.

"I hear Bob Kerrey will be a candidate — and he can be our next president," booms New York's governor, the elation and even relief in his voice pouring through the phone. "He'll make a very good candidate.... someone I can back enthusiastically."

And how about Mario Cuomo? Is there nothing that anyone can say to get him to run for president in 1992?

"Nothing," says Cuomo, with a finality more explicit than we've heard before. "There's a role for an old crocodile like me. And I'll play it — I'd gladly do it for Bob Kerrey. I would've done it for (Sen. Al) Gore. I couldn't have said that about everyone who's been talked about."

So it is that Cuomo's enthusiasm for a Kerrey candidacy, while stopping short of an endorsement, is the most supportive statement he's made for a Democratic presidential prospect thus far.

Tennessee's Gore has announced his no-thanks, as has West Virginia's Jay Rockefeller, Missouri's Dick Gephardt, and, it seems, just about every known Democrat with a pulse. Except for Paul Tsongas (who is in) and Tom Harkin and self-styled, non-Cuomorian centrists Doug Wilder and Bill Clinton (who are water-testing).

With each announcement of non-candidacy, the pressure built on the maddeningly consistent Cuomo to "cut and run" — cut his robotic response of "I have no plans to make plans" and rescue his party by running for president. Nobody else can make the case against George Bush with such clarity and conviction, one Democrat or another would implore the New York governor virtually every day. Nobody's left with stature and star-quality, they'd say.

But Cuomo never said yes, yet he never quite said no, and, of course, he never said why.

Now there is this need of relief and elation in his voice because, although he hasn't talked to Kerrey recently, Democrats are telling him the popular Nebraskan is going to make the run. And that pleases Cuomo because Bob Kerrey — who keeps a 70-percent approval rating in a 58-percent Republican state — is a man possessed of stature and star quality. Maybe now they'll all stop asking The Question of Cuomo.

Kerrey told a Lincoln (Neb.) Star reporter that, despite his past statements of reluctance, he is now seriously thinking about running for president. Other Democrats such as Cuomo know Kerrey has had a lifetime of experiences few can match.

Kerrey's experience as a former governor gives him crucial understanding of the problems the Washington-bred recession of the Reagan-Bush era is inflicting upon Americans wherever they live.

His experience as a self-made millionaire businessman (he founded a chain of restaurants known as "Grandmother's") gives him an economic perspective Republicans like to think is exclusively theirs.

His experience as a war hero in Vietnam — where his valor as a Navy SEAL cost him a leg and earned him the Medal of Honor — should mean that the team of Bush, Quayle & Roger Alles won't dare attempt to rerun their 1988 Pledge of Allegiance-Flag Factory-My Patriotism assault by insult.

Kerrey will have to answer for his vote against authorizing the war against Iraq. He'll doubtless answer that his decision was akin to that of our present and former chairmen of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. But of course, it wasn't akin to the sentiments of most Americans. Still, when America votes in 1992, worse-than-Hitler Hussein likely will still be Iraq's despot-in-chief, and will still be lying about nukes and chemical weapons.

Meanwhile, here at home, Kerrey will point to his sweeping health-care plan for universal coverage. Bush, no doubt, will still have no comprehensive plan. (His man, John Sununu, believes pursuit of any good plan is bad politics for the GOP.)

And of course, in 1992, the recession's residue will still be slowing our recovery.

"George Bush can be beaten in 1992 — just watch," says Cuomo. And for those who questioned whether Cuomo had sufficient fire-in-the-belly, we now see the answer: Cuomo has the fire — if Kerrey has the stomach for it.

"Kerrey is a man possessed of stature and star quality."

Colleges loose on research records

WASHINGTON — The prestigious Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore gets about $400 million a year in federal research money, more than any other university in the country. But not all of that money goes for lofty purposes. Some of it helps pay for gala banquets, plane tickets to China, art work as going-away gifts for university officials and even flowers.

A team of federal auditors, taking their cue from the celebrated misuse of research money at Stanford University, recently finished a productive fishing expedition into the books at Johns Hopkins. They snagged $828,000 worth of what they called "questionable" overhead costs at the university, and about one-fourth of it was taken out of federal research money that came from taxpayers' pockets.

The government relies on the Johns Hopkins brain trust to advance medicine, international relations and defense technology. Health and Human Services Inspector General Richard Kusserow dispatched auditors to the university this summer to find out what the taxpayers were getting for their dime. Our associate Jim Lynch has obtained a copy of their draft audit, which focused on the university's billings for fiscal year 1987.

A portion of federal research money is allowed to be used for university overhead, but Johns Hopkins and the government differ on what is reasonable overhead. The vague and changing nature of the federal government's rules on research spending has given the university plenty of gray area to exploit. But many of these expenses will be hard to justify in the eyes of the taxpayers who want research money to be spent on research.

The auditors questioned $109,000 in entertainment expenses that they said should never have been billed in any amount to the taxpayers. The president's office ran up a big tab on wine and dining guests, including one five-day binge of banquets without any expressed purpose. One banquet, thrown for no documented reason, cost $7,801.

But the granddaddy of the Johns Hopkins parties was the $23,143.57 farewell bash thrown for a departing provost in 1986. About 380 people swallowed $2,700 worth of booze. The provost got $450 worth of art prints as a going-away present.

The auditors also questioned a string of travel expenses that did not appear to benefit university research — airfare from Indianapolis to Los Angeles for 12 visitors from China, a flight to Germany for a fund-raising affair, and a $27,888 jaunt to Nanjing, China, for several university officials to attend "dedication ceremonies."

Some entire spending accounts — including a $157,941 public relations budget — were deemed by the auditors to be off-limits to federal money completely. In the "not related to research" category was a furnished VIP apartment that the university rented for $13,761 a year for visiting physicians, and the $280 fee for membership in the Maryland Jockey Club, and the $69 spent on flowers.

Johns Hopkins cleaned up its travel policy and billing guidelines in July, the auditors noted. University spokesman Dennis O'Shea said the university had created a new billing system to flag expenses that should not be billed to the government. "We do concede there was some amount of money either improperly allocated to federal research or not properly documented," O'Shea said. The university thinks that amount is less than $90,000. The auditors believed it to be at least twice that.

"The president's office ran up a big tab on wine and dining guests."

Shuttle set for evening launch

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA fueled space shuttle Discovery today for an evening liftoff with five astronauts and an atmospheric research satellite that will study Earth's threatened ozone layer.

Liftoff was set for 6:57 p.m. EDT, but could go as late as 9:54 p.m. Shuttle test director Mike Leinbach said this morning the countdown was proceeding well.

Late this morning, launch pad workers began pumping more than a half-million gallons of fuel into the spaceship. Eight baby rats, the subjects of muscle studies, were loaded into the shuttle overnight.

"Everybody's in a good mood. We're ready to go," Leinbach said.

The chances of favorable weather at liftoff time were put at 70 percent, with the odds improving to 90 percent for the entire three-hour launch period.

"The launch is a historical event because this is the beginning of the environmental era of the space program," NASA chief scientist Lennard Fisk said Wednesday. "It's where we begin to use our expertise in space to begin to understand what the human species is doing to the planet."

Commander John Creighton and his crew worked through the night again, flying their training jets and the shuttle training aircraft. The five men were to awake in the afternoon.

The unusual hours — an evening liftoff and the first night landing at Kennedy Space Center on Wednesday — are required for the precisely timed release of the largest, most complex environmental research satellite.

Discovery's unusual course will take it up the East Coast as far as Cape Hatteras, N.C., where the shuttle will arc sharply out over the Atlantic Ocean. People along the seaboard, especially those in the South, will have a rare view of the ascending spaceship provided the weather is good.

The 14,500-pound satellite is part of a $740 million effort to measure the ozone, atmospheric winds, chemicals and other conditions for at least 1 1/2 years. It will be able to peer at 98 percent of the globe as it circles the world.

A sense of urgency surrounds the mission because of the widening ozone hole over the Antarctic. Pollutants are believed responsible for the destruction.

"The timing couldn't be a day sooner," said Charles "Sam" Gernar, one of Discovery's five astronauts.

The Upper Atmosphere Research Satellite is the first spacecraft in NASA's ambitious Mission to Planet Earth program, which includes a series of Earth observation satellites to be launched in the late 1990s. The cost of these satellites is estimated at $17 billion through the year 2000, with an additional $1.5 billion per year until 2020 or so.

Discovery's astronauts plan to release the satellite into a 351-mile-high orbit midway through the mission. Thrusters will boost the satellite to its final destination 372 miles above Earth.

Ozone serves as a shield against dangerous ultraviolet rays. The chief threat to the ozone is believed to be chlorofluorocarbons, or CFCs, released by refrigerators, air conditioners, some aerosols and plastic foam manufacturers.

"We're going to have to make a lot of important decisions over the next several decades as to how we are, in fact, going to protect the environment from ourselves," Fisk said. "UARS and its companion satellites in Mission to Planet Earth are designed to give policy-makers that information."

Board hears of battered women syndrome

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — An advocate for battered women said she was pleased Gov. Lawton Chiles and the Cabinet talked about a plan to review the sentences of women in prison for killing abusive husbands or boyfriends.

But Candice Slaughter, formerly a battered woman, was disappointed that the panel, sitting as the Board of Executive Clemency, took no action.

Secretary of State Jim Smith had some questions about whether the plan proposed by Slaughter would override the judicial system and about other kinds of defendants who might qualify for such consideration.

"This is new ground," Smith said.

Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher, however, compared the situation to a decision the clemency board made six or seven years ago to keep in mind post-traumatic stress disorder when they reviewed the cases of imprisoned Vietnam veterans.

Comptroller Gerald Lewis called that an excellent analogy.

Women may have gone to prison years ago — and still be serving time — for killings that would not even warrant a charge today because the battered woman syndrome is more widely understood, according to Gallagher, who brought the issue to the board.

"If that's true, I think that we have unfairness in the system and it's our job as clemency board to ferret out that unfairness," he said.

"My feeling is we ought to ... look at this to see if we want to go forward," Chiles said, adding that aides would discuss the matter and the board would take it up again at its December meeting.

The plan could result in the release of women imprisoned for killing abusive spouses.

"Our concern primarily is women who are in prison ... as a result of acting in self-defense," Slaughter said.

Slaughter, chair of the Women in Prison Committee of the Florida Coalition Against Domestic Violence, came up with the idea.

The plan would require case-by-case consideration but would implement a new process for review "to correct some of the injustices that these women have suffered at the hands of the criminal justice system," she said.

A new clemency committee would consider the cases and rank them according to a rating scale that takes into account documentation, past criminal history, prison record and release plans.

Recommendations would range from release to some form of alternative sentence like parole or house arrest to continuing imprisonment, Slaughter said.

Many of the women were not allowed to raise the issue of self-defense at their trials because the concept of the battered woman syndrome was not well known, according to Slaughter.

The premise of the syndrome is that women who have suffered years of abuse are acting in self defense when they kill their abusers even if they are not being abused at that instant.

The concept has been around for years but acceptance of it has always been — and still is — spotty, Slaughter said.

Florida has excellent laws generally but sometimes their provisions are ineffective because judges, attorneys and police are not trained in domestic violence, she said.

Slaughter's plan was developed after former Ohio Gov. Richard Celeste in December reviewed the cases of more than 100 women imprisoned for killing abusive partners and released 28.

Two months later, Maryland's Gov. William Schafer commuted the cases of eight incarcerated women on the basis that they acted in self-defense.

Citing national studies by advocacy organizations, Slaughter's group estimates that at least half of the more than 2,000 women in Florida prisons were battered. About 370 women are serving time for killings.

Bond

would be willing to meet before then to discuss it.

The death of the utility project however, brought about a different approach. City Manager John Litton informed the commissioners that the money to have been received from the stormwater utility project was to have been used to help finance the $5 million bond issue. "What we need now," Litton said, "is for the commission to give new direction to the staff on the overall proposal. Without that portion, we will have to draft a new bond proposal."

The initial paperwork determining the bond company that would handle the proposal had already been drawn up for the higher figure, and the bond company had been selected. Morris asked City Finance Director Robert Lockridge if this reduction in the amount would cause any problems.

Lockridge informed the commissioners. "This might cause some delays, but it would not bring the work to a stop. I don't see any delays we could not handle."

Litton said later that an alternate proposal for the $3 million package had already been presented for the commission's approval at the next regularly scheduled meeting.

The new lower bond issue will now concentrate on money for Phase I of the parka system development, the beautification of Lake Mary Boulevard, and several additional issues including the construction of a tennis court and lighting of a ball field. It will not however, include a massive paving and drainage project originally planned for the city.

Had the Stormwater Utility measure passed, it would have placed a charge of $3 per month on each residential property in the city, plus a higher amount that had not been fully established, for each commercial piece of property.

During this morning's meeting, there was considerable discussion between opposing sides of the commission members, those who have been against the undergrounding of power lines in the beautification project, and those who were against the stormwater utility measure.

The new $3 million bond proposal will be brought up for its first reading Thursday, September 19, during the next regularly scheduled city commission meeting.

perintendent for finance, explained that the millage rate will indeed decrease. The amount to be paid in taxes has gone up in homes where the assessment value has increased.

"This is not on the budget this year," Wells assured Wright and others who came to complain about the pool. "It will not be on next year. It will not ever be on our budget."

"If the assessed value remains the same," Chambers explained, "the amount paid will actually be about $6 less on a $100,000 home."

Sanford's participation in the joint agreement is pending approval on Oct. 8 by city voters of a $3 million bond issue and .5 mil-tax-rate increase.

The owner of a $100,000 home with a $25,000 homestead exemption will pay $6 (.06 mills) less in taxes to the school board this year because the millage will drop from 10.189 mills to 10.089 mills. The decrease is due to the decrease in the debt service on the district's 1988 $105 million bond issue.

Many homeowners said they did not believe the board's contention that the millage rate was going down.

Ryan added the board could not ask for more money until they justified what they have done with money in the past.

"How can you say that?" demanded Jane Ryan of Longwood. "Taxes are going up."

"Sure our test scores are up slightly, but they are not where they should be. SAT scores are above the national average, but the national average is too low."

Some parents, on the other hand, felt the district was moving too quickly.

"I think we need to look at the pros and cons at the end of the year at Lawton," she said.

"You keep talking about flexibility," Bea Kotch, a Longwood mother of three, said. "Students do not need flexibility. They need stability."

Eastbrook Elementary School in Winter Park was also to have converted to the new calendar but, despite parent support for the change, the board decided not to include it in the conversion for 1992-93.

Nancy Hastings, who has a student at Keeth, said she believed the district was "jumping the gun."

Lockridge informed the commissioners. "This might cause some delays, but it would not bring the work to a stop. I don't see any delays we could not handle."

Klein noted that selective enforcement by Sanford Police netted 11 violators in one day at the intersection of Highway 46 (First Street) and Poplar in Sanford.

Had the Stormwater Utility measure passed, it would have placed a charge of $3 per month on each residential property in the city, plus a higher amount that had not been fully established, for each commercial piece of property.

This morning, during the brief time during which one Seminole County school bus drove west on First Street, between Airport Boulevard and French Avenue, three motorists were stopped by Sanford Police officers. Two officers were members of the motorcycle patrol, while the third was in an unmarked vehicle.

"It's incredibly dangerous," Klein said.

Walter Meriwether, the school district's risk management coordinator will meet on Friday with Harriett to discuss the problem.

Klein said enforcement of the law seems to be part of the problem, but noted that law enforcement officials have been cooperative in helping the transportation department seek a solution.

"We'll work this out," Klein said. "I'm not sure if we need more selective enforcement at certain spots or what, but we'll work it out."

Soviet troop departure leaves Cuban exiles with some hope

By CATHERINE WILSON
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — The Soviet troop withdrawal from Cuba is seen as a psychological blow to the hard-line communist outpost, but steadfast anti-Castro exiles are "saving the beers for the last day."

U.S. Rep. Ileana Ros-Lehtinen, a Miami Republican who is the first Cuban-born member of Congress, said the withdrawal will show "whether Fidel will actually control the people as well as he has without the Soviet military presence."

U.S. Sen. Connie Mack, R-Cape Coral, responded to Wednesday's pullout announcement by saying it was time for the Soviets "to completely cut the umbilical cord to Cuba."

At Spanish-language station WAQI-AM in Miami, the atmosphere created by elated exile callers was like it was "everybody's birthday," said news director Tomas Regalado. "We have been flooded, but I mean flooded, with calls from people who are saying that this now is for real, the beginning of the end of the Castro regime," he said.

But celebrations won't come to Miami's Little Havana neighborhood until Castro is gone, Regalado said, adding, "I guess we are saving the beers for the last day."

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev said at a Moscow news conference with Secretary of State James Baker that an 11,000-member Soviet training brigade would be pulled out of Cuba.

The Cuban American National Foundation, which has a delegation in Moscow, said the withdrawal is expected by the end of the year.

Tony Costa, a member of the foundation's board of directors, foresees political change due to the Soviet withdrawal as well as tighter Cuban rationing and drooping morale.

"Nobody has a crystal ball, but I cannot see the Castro government in power for more than six to nine months, if that much," said Costa, whose group is the most vocal exile organization in Miami.

Regalado's callers expect a popular uprising within weeks or months.

Lisandro Perez, director of the Cuban Research Institute at Florida International University, recognizes the optimistic spirit of exiles, but said, "Obviously there's a lot more cause to be optimistic about the exile goal of the overthrow of Castro."

He said the groundwork for the pullout was laid by Soviet reforms and President Bush's promise last May that Cuban need not fear a U.S. invasion.

"The military significance of this announcement I think is almost zero," Perez said. "Symbolically, for those who are in the party, who are in the military, it adds to that sense of isolation."

Ramon Cernuda, an exile who works with the Cuban human rights movement, said the Cuban government doesn't need the Soviet military to stay in power.

But he predicted the troop withdrawal would "contribute to the breaking up of the monolithic support that the Cuban government has received from the military inside the country."

"It will certainly drive the message that they're all alone in this new world order," Cernuda added.

But Thomas Boswell, a University of Miami geography professor who saw rationing and heard plenty of anti-Soviet jokes when he visited Cuba in April, said Castro, rather than Soviet aid, remains the key to Cuba's future.

"He's been in control now for 32 years, and the propaganda program they have almost defies Castro," Boswell said. "He's such a strong personality. It's difficult to go against him now. I don't see him changing his mind radically."

News briefs

Democrats call Thomas evasive

WASHINGTON — Frustrated Democrats on the Senate Judiciary Committee say Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas is an evasive witness, but no groundswell of opposition to his confirmation seems to be emerging. Several senators were openly skeptical Wednesday over Thomas' insistence that he has no opinion on the 1973 Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion. If that's so, said Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., "he's the only person gathered in the room who does not have an opinion." Sen. Herb Kohl, D-Wis., added, "I'm concerned about his candor, his willingness to be forthcoming." Kohl was today's leadoff questioner as the hearings entered their third day.

Shiite prisoners may be released

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Shiite kidnappers released a picture of a British hostage early today and said Israel's release of 51 Arab prisoners began a process that could lead to a "happy ending" for the Westerners held in Lebanon.

Both the Shiites and Israel say a gradual release is in the works, with the kidnapping group referring to a "stage-by-stage" process and Israel's chief negotiator calling it "step-by-step." Israel indicated, however, that the Shiites have to make the next move.

The freeing of the Arab prisoners Wednesday coincided with a visit by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to Iran, the prime backer of the Shiite hostage-holding groups in Lebanon.

Perez de Cuellar, the main force in intensified efforts to resolve the hostage ordeal, was asked Wednesday if he had any timetable for progress. He smiled and replied: "Tomorrow."

Estrogen cuts risk of heart disease

BOSTON — Estrogen pills can reduce the risk of heart disease in older women so dramatically that the benefits outweigh the increased chances of breast and uterine cancer from the hormone supplements, doctors said today.

Women who used estrogen after menopause cut their risk of serious heart disease in half, according to the largest study ever conducted on the subject.

About 20 percent of post-menopausal American women use the female hormone, which eases hot flashes and other symptoms of menopause and prevents bone loss that leads to hip fractures and crushed vertebrae.

If more women took estrogen, "it would translate into many tens of thousands of premature deaths that could be postponed," said Dr. Meir Stampfer of Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, principal author of the study.

Senate criticized on abortion issue

WASHINGTON — Both sides on the abortion-rights issue are criticizing Senate-passed legislation requiring girls under age 18 to notify their parents before having abortions.

But AIDS activists and unionized medical workers are praising the Senate for a separate vote in which it ordered the government to require health-care professionals to wear masks and take other precautions against the spread of AIDS when performing risky procedures.

Both provisions, approved Wednesday, were included in a bill providing $204 billion in fiscal 1992 for the Department of Health and Human Services and other agencies.

Minors can buy alcohol in some states

WASHINGTON — Even though 21 is the legal minimum drinking age across the United States, in some states it is not a crime for minors to buy, consume or in some cases possess alcoholic beverages.

That's because of a knotted web of laws that Surgeon General Antonia Novello says make it difficult, if not impossible, for law enforcement officials to stop underage drinking.

"State laws ... are riddled with loopholes, with laxity and with lip service," she said at a news conference Wednesday, releasing a report describing weaknesses in drinking laws.

Miami nervous about shootings

MIAMI — Headlines about tourists getting shot give image-makers in the city of "Miami Vice" a sweaty palms.

When a British couple became the latest victims, the tourist industry didn't merely wait for the publicity to die down. It offered a $10,000 reward, flew in the victims' relatives and mounted a campaign to fight such crimes in the city that gained a reputation in the 1980s for drug dealing and gunplay.

"After 'Miami Vice,' it's all been an uphill battle for us," said Kent Jurney of the Greater Miami Chamber of Commerce.

'Primetime Live,' 'Frontline,' win Emmys

NEW YORK — ABC's "Primetime Live" and "Frontline" on PBS won five Emmy Awards apiece for 1990 news and documentary programming.

The awards were handed out Wednesday by the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

ABC and PBS won 15 Emmys apiece. CBS won seven, TBS got four for "National Geographic" programs and NBC took home two. HBO and the Discovery Channel won one each.

Among "Frontline" programming honored was a Dec. 11 piece called "The Struggle for South Africa." "Primetime Live," with Sam Donaldson and Diane Sawyer, got one of its Emmys for the segment "Murder in Beverly Hills."

ABC's "Nightline" won for outstanding instant coverage of a single breaking news story for the Aug. 1 program "Bulletin: Iraq Invades Kuwait."

CBS' "60 Minutes" got three Emmys. Correspondent Steve Kroft was honored for outstanding interviewer for "The Walkers," a profile of a Navy family convicted of in a spy scandal.

"CBS News Sunday Morning" won for outstanding general coverage of a single breaking news story for the Nov. 18 segment "Soldiers' Stories."

Stallone sues over impotence story

LOS ANGELES — He-man actor Sylvester Stallone filed a $25 million libel suit against a tabloid that said he became impotent from steroid use and received a surgical implant to correct the problem.

The lawsuit against the Montreal-based News Extra was filed Wednesday in Superior Court.

An Aug. 12 story said that the star bulked up with steroids for the "Rocky" films, then underwent implant surgery "in order to save a relationship."

Fat to be cut from school lunch

By DIANE DUSTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — By 1994, children in the nation's elementary schools should be getting a lower-fat lunch in the cafeteria.

Some already are, but Agriculture Secretary Edward Madigan said Wednesday that educating school cooks on how to reduce fat is a challenge that will take time to accomplish.

"I think they want to provide a healthy diet to children. The menu has to be attractive to children," Madigan told reporters.

"I can assure you that by fiscal year 1994, all food service personnel in the United States will have the tools and the training they need to improve the school lunch program to meet the dietary guidelines," he said.

Madigan's comments came in reaction to criticism of the National School Lunch

Program by Public Voice for Food and Health Policy, a private group that lobbies the federal government to make food policy conform with health concerns.

Public Voice said its analysis of USDA data shows that most 6- to 11-year-olds eat too much fat at home, and get even fatter fare when they buy lunch at school.

U.S. dietary guidelines issued last year say anyone over 2 years old should reduce fat intake to no more than 30 percent of total calories, and limit saturated fat from meat to 10 percent.

According to Public Voice, school lunches average about 40 percent of their calories from fat.

The organization said USDA could help by making sure that the commodities it gives schools are low in fat and include more fresh fruits and vegetables.

Madigan said the department has changed specifications for commodities to reduce fat, salt and sugar content.

He said the government is bound by law to provide whole milk to schools, but he is pushing for skim milk as well.

The secretary noted, however, that only 20 percent of the foods that are served in school cafeterias are provided by the federal government. "The rest is purchased locally by school food service authorities," he said.

The government requires that lunches contain certain vitamins and minerals, but it does not specify what foods to serve, giving schools wide latitude. A school thus could fulfill the government's requirement for calcium with either high- or low-fat cheese, whole or skim milk, ice cream or ice milk.

Soon after becoming secretary earlier this year, Madigan formed a USDA nutrition education task force to study how to help improve Americans' eating habits. He had received an award from Public Citizen for nutrition work he did while a member of Congress.

Iran-Contra testimony was tainted

By PETE YOST
Associated Press Writer

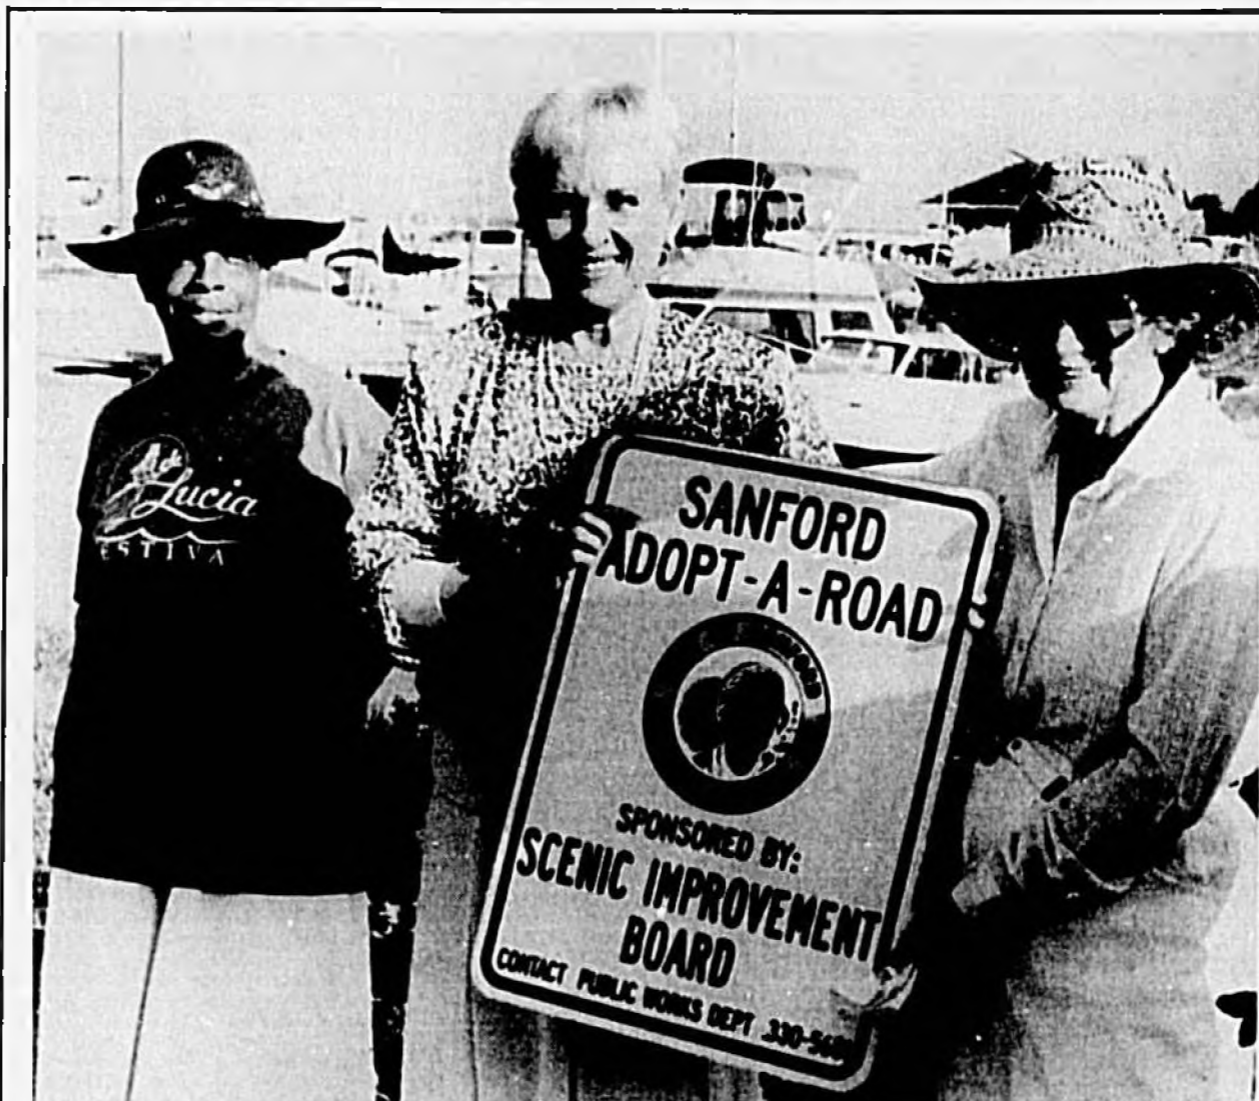

WASHINGTON — Robert McFarlane says his 1989 testimony in Oliver North's Iran-Contra trial was tainted by North's nationally televised congressional appearances.

McFarlane, who was national security adviser during the Reagan administration, testified for four hours Wednesday and battled with a prosecutor who suggested McFarlane was trying to scuttle the criminal case against his one-time subordinate.

"I've had enough of this," McFarlane said several times from the witness stand, shouting at Iran-Contra prosecutor Michael Bromwich.

Prosecutors are trying to persuade U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard Gesell to reinstate North's three felony convictions. McFarlane's appearance opens what could be weeks — if not months — of hearings by witnesses from North's trial.

A federal appeals court set aside North's convictions, saying the government must show that none of the trial witnesses used North's testimony to Congress in July 1987. North gave that testimony under a grant of immunity which barred its use in his criminal case.

Hurricanes, Cougars square off

MIAMI — Tonight's matchup between the Team of the '80s and the Offense of the '90s offers a chance to measure the Miami Hurricanes' staying power and the Houston Cougars' emergence as a national force.

The game also brings together two teams with bad-boy images. For some, the Hurricanes — wearing the white helmets — are the good guys this time.

"I don't know very much about that," Miami coach Dennis Erickson said wryly. "We've never been treated like that much."

Tenth-ranked Houston (1-0) is trying to shake the stigma of NCAA probation, and flamboyant coach John Jenkins has been accused of showing no mercy against weak teams with his point-a-minute offense. Cougars quarterback David Klingler doubts that a victory would impress his team's detractors.

"They can always find an excuse. They might say Miami isn't as good as they used to be," he said. "And if we lose, they'll say, 'We knew it.'"

The normally brash Hurricanes this week have made no predictions or promises, no taunts or threats.

The reason: Erickson ordered his players to stop talking to the media.

"I just felt it was time to focus in on the game," Erickson said.

Bowden: 'Noles ready to roll

TALLAHASSEE — Florida State coach Bobby Bowden said Wednesday he has seen no sign of a letdown as his top-ranked team prepares for a visit from Western Michigan on Saturday.

"We have prepared well this week. They look like they've tried to do what we've asked them to do," Bowden said. "We need to go out and have a good practice tomorrow and we'll be ready."

Defensive back Corey Fuller will miss Saturday's game with a sprained ankle suffered Tuesday. Also out were Mike Morris with a broken foot and Marvin Ferrell, Eric Gibbs and Willie Pauldo, all with knee injuries.

Kickoff is set for 7 p.m. Saturday in Doak Campbell Stadium. Both teams are 2-0.

Randolph, Everett almost back

GAINESVILLE — Florida fullback Kelvin Randolph and receiver Tre Everett appeared Wednesday to be back almost at full speed, ready for Saturday's game against Alabama.

Both missed last week's opener against San Jose State with sprained ankles. Randolph will play this week; Everett seems to be running better and will see action if he's healthy, coach Steve Spurrier said.

But the plague of injured ankles isn't over. Freshman defensive back Ellis Johnson was on crutches Wednesday after spraining one of his in Tuesday's practice.

Three Wildcats suspended

DAYTONA BEACH — Three players, including starters Andre Howard and John Cutter, will miss Bethune-Cookman's home opener against Morgan State this weekend after being suspended from the team by coach Larry Little.

Little, in a statement released Wednesday, said the Cutter, Howard and backup quarterback Michael Jackson violated team policy. He did not elaborate.

Devon Cole will replace Howard as the Wildcats' starting tight end in Saturday's game. Anthony Cunningham will move into Cutter's spot on the defensive line, Little said.

BASEBALL

Braves no-hit Padres

ATLANTA — Kent Mercker, Atlanta's stopgap starter, combined with two relievers on a no-hitter — preserved by a controversial scorer's decision — and the surprising Braves maintained their NL West lead with a 1-0 victory Wednesday night over the San Diego Padres.

Mercker, thrust into the rotation last week after Armando Reynoso did not work out as a fifth starter, overpowered the Padres for six innings in his third major league start.

Rookie Mark Wohlers shut down San Diego for two innings and Alejandro Pena pitched the ninth to finish off the sixth combined no-hitter in history, and the first ever in the NL.

With two outs in the ninth inning, Darrin Jackson hit a chopper to the left side of the infield. Third baseman Terry Pendleton cut in front of shortstop Rafael Belliard, but backed away at the last second. The ball glanced off Belliard, and Jackson was safe.

Official scorer Mark Frederickson immediately ruled it an error on Pendleton, even though he never touched the ball.

After Jackson reached safely, Pena retired Tony Gwynn, the NL's leading hitter, on a routine fly to left field to end it.

Seminole opens swim season with quadrangle meet

From Staff Reports

LONGWOOD — Featuring a team made up almost exclusively of underclassmen, the Seminole High School opened its 1991 swim season with a quadrangle meet at the Sheridan Aquatic Club with Bishop Moore, Kissimmee-Osceola and Mount Dora.

The Bishop Moore Hornets and Osceola Kowboys dominated the girls' portion of the meet, Bishop Moore outscoring Osceola 147-130 for top team honors.

In the process, the Hornets won six of the 11 events while Osceola swimmers won just one. Mount Dora, which scored 100 team points, had three individual winners while Seminole (36) had one, freshman Kara Thomas.

Thomas won the 100 freestyle with a time of 1:06.97. She also finished second in the 100 backstroke for Seminole.

Meanwhile, in the boys' competition, Mount Dora came out on top of a three-way dogfight with a team score of 123, barely edging Bishop Moore (118) and Osceola (115). Seminole scored 64 team points.

Leading the Seminole boys was the 200 freestyle relay team of Bryan Archangel, Jeff Westhelle, Matt Bowlin and Damon Kruid, which swam to a second place finish.

Westhelle also finished second in the 50 freestyle with a time of 29.2. Archangel posted a second in the 200 freestyle (2:27.1) and a third in 100 backstroke.

Seminole's next meet isn't until next Wednesday, when the Seminoles will swim against the tough Lyman Greyhounds.

Lake Brantley tops Seminole

By BILL KERNS
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Seminole High School's varsity boys volleyball team opened its season by dropping a 15-4, 15-8 decision to the Lake Brantley Patriots (2-1) Wednesday night at the Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium.

"This was our first outing while they've already played three matches," said Seminole head coach Sylvester Wynne. "We had first day's jitters and they were ready to play. Not to take anything away from them. They did play well."

Despite losing in straight games, Wynne looks forward to a better season and found some positives on the night.

"We played a fairly good game overall," said Wynne. "The referees were fair. Both teams showed good team sportsmanship and good attitudes. We need to cut down on our mistakes and keep on improving. We'll get better."

Lake Brantley pounced on Seminole for an 8-0 lead and routed the Tribe 15-4 in the first game. Steve Roth led the Patriots by serving seven points.

"We played all right for the first game," said Wynne. "We were just a little shaky and made too many first game mistakes. But overall, we played pretty well. We need to work on our passing game some more. We made too many basic mistakes."

Jon Williams opened the second game for Seminole by serving four straight points. But Lake Brantley rattled off seven consecutive points and never relinquished the lead, winning 15-8. Jeff Kleiman led the Patriots by serving with six points.

The Tribe's improved play

With two matches already under their belts, Jeff Kleiman (No. 13), Eric Castaldo (No. 10) and the Lake Brantley Patriots had little trouble with Randy Bowlin and the season-opening Seminole Fighting Seminoles.

Rams hood Silver Hawks

LAKE MARY — Opening night proved to be a positive step for the Lake Mary High School boys' volleyball team.

Despite a roster loaded with new faces, the Rams answered an early challenge from the visiting Lake Howell Silver Hawks and went on to post a 15-9, 15-6 victory Wednesday evening at Lake Mary High School.

"We have a lot of inexperienced kids in the line-up but they've been working real hard," said Lake Mary coach Bill Whalen. "If they continue to work this hard and pick up a few points that can make them better hitters and better blockers, then we should do alright this year."

Lake Howell (1-1) overall and in the Seminole Athletic Conference) started strong behind the play of Nathan Bird (three kills, three assists, two service points) Johnny Kins (four kills, one ace, five service points), Art Jennings (four kills, two service points) and Doug Swanson (seven service points).

But with the score tied 6-6, Lake Mary (1-0) began to assert itself, going on a 6-2 run.

"Lake Mary is always one of our big games and we came out real fired up tonight," said Lake Howell coach Christy Scott. "But after a good start, we didn't play that well and we missed a lot of points."

Taking advantage of Silver Hawk mistakes and an ace by Chris Parrillo (seven kills, one block, two dinks), the Rams wrapped up the first game as Chris Russ served the final point. Jason Mau (12 assists, two kills, 13 service points) and Ryan Munns (one kill, two blocks, five service points) also played well for the Rams.

Lake Mary girls start slow, roll over Winter Park

By PHIL SMITH
Herald Correspondent

LAKE MARY — Overcoming a shaky start, the Lake Mary posted a 15-8, 15-9 victory over the Winter Park Wildcats Wednesday evening in girls' volleyball action at Lake Mary High School.

In other action Wednesday, New Smyrna Beach dropped Seminole 16-14, 15-3; Lake Howell swept Dr. Phillips 15-8, 15-12; and St. Cloud topped Lyman 18-16, 15-8. There was no report from the Oviedo-Maitland match.

Lake Mary (2-0) fell behind 2-0 in the first game as the front line had trouble finding the inside of the boundry lines. But once they found the range, the Rams ran off eight unanswered points.

The Rams were led by Tara Calvin (four kills, eight service points), Lorrie Boger (three kills, one dink, three service points), Melissa Mau (four kills, three dinks, eight assists, three service points) and Lisa Maslunis (eight service points).

Lake Mary was also able to capitalize on several Wildcat mistakes and moved out to a 13-8 lead. Michelle Ball then launched a pair of wicked serves that could not be returned to close out the first game.

"I was pretty pleased with the way we ran our new 5-1 offense," said Lake Mary coach Cindy Henry. "The ball goes to Melissa on every play. She is a great quarterback. She's the kind of smart, talented player you want to be involved in every play."

Mau, doing the setting, distributed the ball to Calvin, Boger and Diane Duber as well as made some plays herself, keeping Winter Park guessing as to what was coming next.

The second game was all Lake Mary. Maslunis ran off five straight points and Calvin served six more during an 11-0 explosion to give the Rams a 12-2 lead. Winter Park closed to within 14-9 before Shannon Cook hammered home the winning point.

"When you have players like Melissa and Tara coming back, you have a lot," said Henry. "I feel that they are two of the finest players in the state. When you have two senior leaders like that surrounded by an excellent supporting cast, your going to make things happen."

The Rams will try to remain undefeated when they hit the road to take on Seminole Athletic

Recyclers win at Pinehurst

SANFORD — Collecting 14 hits on offense and turning a triple play on defense, the Kokomo Recyclers opened the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Wednesday Night Fall Softball League at Pinehurst Park with a 10-3 win over Pilcher Roofing.

In other games, Regency Mazda tripped Schuckie's Young Guns 9-8 while Crazy Wings held off the Wrecking Crew 14-13.

The Kokomo Recyclers scored all their runs in the first four innings, taking a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the first before adding four runs in the second and two in both the third and fourth innings.

Trailing 8-0 in the top of the fourth, Pilcher Roofing tried to cut into the lead when lead-off hitter John Scott singled and Jerry Dick reached on an error. But Ed Scott, pinch-hitting for Dan Spivey, hit a ground ball that saw Dick forced a second. The relay beat Ed Scott to first before the return throw across

Morning social

Wednesday morning at Bram Towers, Sanford, is an excuse for residents to gather amicably over coffee and donuts or toast. Resident Herman Schroeder claims many of the world's problems are solved at these tables. Top: From left, around the table, are Jackie Bushong, Al George, Ethel Machand, Lucille Keese, Eleanor Eichorn, Lew Goodwin, Virginia Weeks, Blanche Cabana and Mary Ann Albert. Bottom: Anna Clements and Rae Young serve donuts and coffee to residents Wail Wrobel and Billie Bowes. Young has the fresh brewed coffee ready by 8 a.m. Wrobel collects 50 cents from each participant. When extra money accumulates, the continental breakfast is free. Sometimes over 80 residents join the fun and fellowship.

Driver right to insist on seat belt

DEAR ABBY: I agreed to give a woman who lives in my apartment building a ride to her doctor's appointment. When she got into my car I asked her in a gentlemanly manner to please fasten her seat belt. She said she never uses a seat belt because she has a phobia about being confined as the result of a very frightening childhood experience.

I then told her that I had undertaken a liability in accepting her as a passenger, and she would either have to buckle up or bail out. She snapped back, "Don't you carry insurance in case a passenger is injured?" I ignored her question and asked her to please get out of my car. She said I was no gentleman, but she reluctantly fastened her seat belt, and now I have a new enemy in the building.

Do you think I was wrong to have insisted she either buckle up or bail out?

J.C. IN GAINESVILLE, FLA.

DEAR J.C.: You were not wrong. If more drivers were as sensibly safety-conscious as you, there would be fewer "D.O.A." (Dead On Arrival) tragedies recorded.

A California state trooper said, "I have yet to unbuckle a seat belt from a dead person."

DEAR ABBY: I am the cashier at a checkout counter, and I have a few questions and comments concerning the manners of customers:

Why must you run over the person in line in front of you with your cart? The line won't move any faster if you plant your cart against someone's cart.

ADVICE

Why assume that I make up the prices? The cashier is performing a service. I am not out to rob you.

Why must you leave an expensive steak or roast in the produce aisle or on a magazine rack? It wouldn't ruin my day if you handed it to me saying you didn't want it. (And you wouldn't wind up paying for it later in the form of rising food prices.)

Why will you wait two hours for a ride in an amusement park, yet get impatient if you have to wait 15 minutes in a checkout line? (People in Russia wait all day for a loaf of bread!)

And why do those who complain the loudest about long lines spend 10 minutes looking for an elusive penny, rather than break a $20 bill?

To tell you wonderful people who are considerate of those around you, I thank you! Thank you for making me smile when I'm blue and keeping me laughing when my feet hurt. I see a lot of generosity and goodwill among people and it reaffirms my belief that most people are basically good.

Thank you, Abby. I needed to get that off my chest.

ANY CHECKER ANTOWN, USA

CONFIDENTIAL TO "YOUR NEW READER IN PORTLAND, ORE.": True, charity begins at home, but it shouldn't end there.

DEAR ABBY: My friends and I have a problem with which we need help. We wear hearing aids, which makes it difficult to hear people talking on some of the television programs, as the background music and special sound effects are so overpowering, they drown out the voices.

For example, in "Jake and the Fatman," the roar of the ocean is so loud it's impossible to understand what the people are saying. It doesn't help to turn the volume up, and we can't do as President Bush suggests: "Read my lips."

I love music, but loud background music is unnecessary on dramatic shows.

Commercials are a problem, too. They are so loud, they blast the hearing aids out of our ears. (Have you ever tried turning a hearing aid down with barbecue sauce on your fingers?)

The advertisers think they are getting our attention with the extra-loud commercial messages, but most people have remote-control sets and they just shut the sound off until the program comes on again.

Are many of your readers experiencing the same problems? And who can we contact in the television industry to correct this?

CORA LAIRD, FORT DOGUE, IOWA

DEAR CORA LAIRD: The television sponsors have been dodging these complaints for years. Address your grievances to the sponsors of the programs you watch. And while you're at it, write to the Federal Communications Commission, 1919 M St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20554.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69409, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Low-fat diet will help control obesity

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 42-year-old daughter has gone from a slim 120 pounds to 200 pounds over the past 10 years. She tells me she has a sluggish thyroid but is allergic to iodine so nothing can be done for her condition. Is there an alternative treatment?

I might add that my observations have more than cosmetic value. (C)1991 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

MEDICINE
PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR READER: Yes. A good diet.

As a general rule, most people who gain too much weight do so because they consume too many calories.

Many years ago, the poor thyroid gland was blamed for obesity. We now know this assumption was false. Patients with hypothyroidism (underactive thyroid glands) may gain some weight — usually modest fluid retention causing puffiness — but they seldom become obese, unless they eat too much.

Therefore, I suspect that your daughter's problem would respond to sensible calorie restriction, such as a low-fat diet (without sweets or alcohol) that is heavy on vegetables and grains and light on pasta and starches.

Moreover, if your daughter does have a thyroid condition, iodine is not the appropriate treatment. Modern thyroid supplements, such as Synthroid, do a much better job and are quite inexpensive.

Finally, I doubt your daughter is allergic to iodine, a ubiquitous element that is present in many edibles, especially seafood. Since iodine is a necessary trace mineral, people are never "allergic" to it, although they may be intolerant to drugs that contain high concentrations of the substance.

I think your daughter is reacting to normal maternal carping by putting you off with a scientifically unsound excuse. She needs to diet — and to obtain proper medical care if she is hypothyroid.

WAGS

Every year a book is published that chronicles the past year's world championships. You can order the latest edition (published by Apabridge Services Ltd.) for $24.95 by calling 212-868-5860. It has a lot of good material from the various events contested in Geneva last September.

Australia's Michael Courtney found an alternative route to 12 tricks. West led the club ace before switching to a diamond. Courtney won in hand, played a club to dummy's queen and called for the club king. Innocently East ruffed with the spade four.

Today's hand from the Nestle Mixed Pairs, which was played at 286 tables, left many Easts with red faces. The good bidders stopped in four spades, but after hearing partner open the bidding and support spades, most Souths drove to a slam.

A second Australian, Dick Cummings, won all 13 tricks. He received a diamond lead and crossed to dummy's heart king, and East obligingly covered the spade jack. Next came a club to dummy's king, which West ducked, and an avalanche of trumps followed. Somewhat flustered, West discarded the club ace at trick 11.

The normal line of play was to win the diamond lead in hand with the ace, cross to the heart king and call for the spade jack. As more than 70 Easts found to their cost, this wasn't the moment to cover an honor with an honor.

Finally one West protected his partner from error. Against six spades, he made the remarkable lead of the spade queen. (C)1991, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

Sept. 19, 1991

You will be in a lucky cycle for personal enterprise in the year ahead. If you have not been an entrepreneur previously, there is a good chance you will become one now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23) You may not get all the benefits you're entitled to today, owing to your haste to finalize matters. You may be prepared to settle for second best. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences governing you in the year ahead. Send for Virgo's Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't attempt to make a critical decision today unless you're certain you have access to all the facts. Your hunches might not be too reliable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) A friend of yours, who is delightful but a poor credit risk, may ask for a loan again today. Lend only what you can afford to lose.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Something you feel you're entitled to might be awarded today to someone you think is far less deserving. It will be up to you to set the record straight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your probabilities for achieving what you go after look strong today, but should you use unbecoming tactics to do so, you're not likely to have much of an audience applauding your success.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't be too dependent on friends today to help you over the rough spots. This is a day when they're apt to be so concerned with their own problems that they won't have time to worry about you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A partnership you're involved in might not be all that effective today. Either one or both of you may not be prepared to put forth a second effort — if the first fails.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Associates won't think less of you today if you ask to have something important redefined because you didn't grasp all the critical information the first time. Better safe than sorry.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Objectively evaluate your investments today, so that you don't put good money after bad in order to save something you might be better off getting rid of now. If necessary, take a small loss.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be extremely selective today regarding whom you go to for advice. In the long run, what may suit their needs might not serve your best interests.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're doing something complex and involved today, it may be wise to have someone else check your work. Your eye for details may not be too sharp, and you could mess up the project.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is not a good day to take financial risks. A rose that may appear to be an easy pick could be attached to an extremely thorny stem.
