Was SMH Lawyer's Advice Too Personal?

FREDRICK...he wants his own team.

By JEAN PATTESON Herald Staff Writer Claiming Seminole Memorial Hospital's legal counsel Gordon Frederick has become too personally involved in its activity, the board of trustees chairman asked he be replaced.

Voicing strong opposition to the proposed change was Board Member Sophie Shoemaker who cast the lone "No" vote. Blayne and Fred Mobeley voted in favor of finding new counsel.

Frederick commented Wednesday that the board has "done me a service as far as money and time are concerned."

Florida House Panel Adds $ No-New-Tax Budget: It's In Serious Peril

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — A key House Appropriations subcommittee has given taxpayers the prospect of $165 million in new taxes after capping a spending spree by adding $31 million to the proposed education budget.

The extra money for schools put the panel's measure about $18 million over Gov. Reubin Askew's proposed spending plan for schools.

Hans Tanzler Issues 'Urban Flight' Warning

By MARK WEINBERG Herald Staff Writer The 1968 consolidation of Jacksonville and Duval County solved for that area the "greatest problem facing cities today — urban flight," Jacksonville Mayor Hans Tanzler told a Kiwanis luncheon Wednesday.

March Food Price Index Up Six-Tenths Of One Per Cent

Food prices rose six-tenths of a per cent in March after soaring 2 per cent in February and nine-tenths of a per cent in January. Fresh vegetables, eggs and beef declined in price, helping to offset sharp gains for coffee, up 7 per cent, fresh fruit, up 4.9 per cent, and poultry, which rose 3 per cent last month.

Frozen orange juices prices were up nearly 12 per cent last month, reflecting the effects of the winter freeze on the Florida citrus crop. Nonfood commodity price increases also slowed in March, rising four-tenths of a per cent. These prices rose seven-tenths of a per cent in both January and February.

The cost of services was the fastest rising component in the consumer price index last month, increasing eight-tenths of a per cent. Services had risen six-tenths of a per cent in February and nine-tenths of a per cent in January. In a separate report, the Labor Department said the purchasing power of an average worker's paycheck declined one-tenth of a per cent because of higher taxes.

Stunt 'Socks It To Them'

OREM, Utah (AP) — Hundreds of purple socks rained down on the fruit trees outside town when a publicity stunt for the singing Osmond family went awry.

The Osmonds broke ground Wednesday for a $2.5 million entertainment center they are building to record music, film movies and tape the "Donny and Marie" television show.

An airplane was supposed to drop purple socks — Donny's trademark — on the crowd, but the socks landed in nearby orchards instead.

Despite that setback, Donny took the controls of a bulldozer, and Marie drove a team of Clydesdale horses at the ceremony.

The Osmonds are Mormons, and Donny and Marie are attending Brigham Young University in nearby Provo, a school owned and operated by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon).

Polanski Defense Hits Girl

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — A lawyer for film director Roman Polanski says the defense will try to show that the 13-year-old girl Polanski is accused of raping "engaged in sexual activities" before the alleged assault.

"We want to know when, where and with whom and why those people were not prosecuted," Douglas Delton said Wednesday.

Dalton said he also would ask the court to order a psychiatric examination of the girl. Polanski, 43, is charged with six counts of rape, sex perversion and drug violations.

Asked by reporters what impact the case has had on his life, Polanski muttered: "I'm used to grief. This is a trifling."

Ex-Sen. Tunney To Marry

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former U.S. Senator John Tunney is getting married this weekend to a one-time Olympic skier from Sweden, his brother has announced.

DER Cites 'Minor Problems' In Sanford Landfill Letter

By MARK WEINBERG Herald Staff Writer

A letter from the Orlando district office of the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation (DER), which will be mailed today to Sanford City Manager W. E. Knowles, will identify three "relatively minor problems" with the city's sanitary landfill permit application.

The problem areas are in addition to DER's requirement that the city's proposed landfill site, at SR-46A and Orange Ave., be zoned to permit a landfill, according to Charles M. Collins, head of the air and solid waste section of the DER district office, who authored the letter.

DER's lawyer, a member of the state attorney's office will discuss with Collins "today or tomorrow" the possibility of DER's scheduling a public meeting to present plans for the landfill after DER receives a satisfactory response from the city on the three questions, Collins said.

According to the attorney, said Collins, DER could legally call a public meeting, even before the city commission rezones the 55.4-acre proposed landfill site from residential to agricultural, which would permit a landfill after two city commission public hearings and an affirmative vote.

According to Collins, SanJard's letter to DER dated last Friday, "satisfied all the criteria" except for zoning and three DER requirements:

- The landfill must be screened from the view of motorists on SR-46A.
- The city must provide more detailed plans to prevent storm water from running off SR-46A onto the landfill area; and
- City officials must provide a means for methane gas to escape from within layers of solid waste.

DER regulations require landfills to be "screened from public view from a well traveled highway," such as SR-46A, Collins said. The city's proposal to plant shrubs and trees is insufficient, Collins' letter says, because the trees will not be tall enough to block the view.

The city must construct a wooden fence, a berm (earthen wall) or devise some other means to solve the problem, according to the DER official.

Collins thinks "a berm would be best because this landfill has become so controversial that when we come before the public, I want to make sure we're covered."

A three-to-four-foot berm planted with shrubs or a seven-foot berm would be sufficient, Collins said and a berm would help address the public of off-site drainage entering the landfill.

The city has argued SR-46A itself would block storm water from the landfill site, but Collins decided differently after a Wednesday night visit to the site. "The road has no curbs or anything to stop the water," Collins said.

If the city placed a swale (shallow drainage ditch) adjacent to SR-46A and constructed a berm behind the swale, storm water would be blocked from the landfill. The water could be diverted to the east into an open field or into a nearby clay pit, said Collins.

The third problem, according to Collins' letter, is the city's need "to address the gas collection system for multilayer operation." The city plans to pile layers of solid waste on top of one another.

"When you put solid waste in the ground, it starts to decompose and produce gases such as methane, Collins said. Under some circumstances the gas can travel hundreds of feet underground and enter nearby homes, creating the possibility of fires.

DER regulations require collection of the gas within each landfill layer beginning with the second, which could be accomplished by placing perforated pipe within each layer, allowing the collected gas to vent harmlessly into the atmosphere, Collins said.

The landfill must be screened from the view of motorists on SR-46A.

The city must provide more detailed plans to prevent storm water from running off SR-46A onto the landfill area; and

City officials must provide a means for methane gas to escape from within layers of solid waste.

DER regulations require landfills to be "screened from public view from a well traveled highway," such as SR-46A, Collins said. The city's proposal to plant shrubs and trees is insufficient, Collins' letter says, because the trees will not be tall enough to block the view.

Rash Of Rashes Shuts Mirror Lake

County officials have posted no swimming signs at Mirror Lake in South Seminole County.

The signs went up Wednesday after seven neighborhood children broke out in a rash after swimming in the lake. Mrs. Pat Miller, a lakeside resident, said her daughter Libby, 12, broke out in mosquito-like bumps all over her body except her face. Mrs. Miller said she noticed the hive-like rash after Libby went swimming Sunday.

She said this morning Libby was back in school after staying out two days with the rash.

County health officials said the lake will stay closed until testing is done. Mirror Lake is located on SR 436 in Forest City.

FBI Agent Returns To Stand In Marijuana Plot Trial

JACKSONVILLE (AP) — FBI agent Gary Ramsey was called back to the stand today as the final prosecution witness in the marijuana conspiracy trial of Circuit Judge Samuel S. Smith and three other North Florida men.

Over defense objections, U.S. District Judge John A. Reed permitted Ramsey to tell the jury about a statement he claims Smith made at the time of his arrest last Nov. 18 at the courthouse in Lake City.

Ramsey said Wednesday that Smith first denied any part in a plan to get and sell confiscated marijuana held by Suwannee County Sheriff Robert Leonard.

But Ramsey said the judge changed his story after hearing a tape recording of a Sept. 10 conversation between Smith and Leonard.

Concert Under Gargoyles Set

GAINESVILLE (AP) — From the 45-foot high ceiling of the newly renovated University Auditorium, gargoyles representing a 1920s concept of education look down upon today's University of Florida students.

The figures and the basic architecture of the cathedral-style building were preserved in a $2 million renovation. The first program will be a Saturday evening concert by the North American Air Defense Band.

The legislature was started with a 1922 legislative appropriation of $100,000. But it couldn't be completed. Even in those days, the money wasn't enough.

Ex-Cultist: 'Brainwashed'

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — A young Brooksville woman who joined a religious cult says she was brainwashed. "It was like I was taking a drug for three months," she told a House committee.

But members of one cult, the Hare Krishna movement, countered with a young Miami woman who said an attempt to force her to leave the group was "such a terrible experience it's even hard for me to talk about it."

Members of the Governmental Operations Committee clearly favored killing a resolution calling for an investigation of religious cults, but Chairman Hyatt Brown, D-Daytona Beach, deferred action.

Longwood: City Can't Correct Utility Woes

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

Complaints from adjacent property owners concerning noise, appearance and odors from the privately-owned and operated Longwood Utilities Inc. sewer plant on Longwood Hills Road must be settled, principals have been told, but no City of Longwood money can be spent to aid the settlement.

City Council Chairman J. R. Grissom attended a meeting with the principals, complaining property-owners, Dr. Gerald Grissom and Sam Lewis, and members of the city council Wednesday, told the group in no uncertain terms that city money, according to law, cannot be spent on private property.

City Attorney Ned Julian Jr. said the city had taken all the action it could by issuing a moratorium on building permits in the areas served by the plant and filling it in circuit court to require that the utility be operated in accordance with the state Department of Regulation (DER) requirements.

When DER gave its approval to the plant operation, the city dropped the moratorium and the lawsuit.

Both Lewis and Grissom, meanwhile offered to contribute $500 each to the effort and gave their recommendation for correction of the problems to George Nader, builder, developer and president of the utility firm that serves four city subdivisions bounding the E. E. Williamson Road.

Grissom and Lewis recommended a berm at the north end of the plant be increased in height by three feet and that the present blind fence at that spot be placed atop the heightened earthen berm to shield the plant from the Lewis home.

The two also urged that the plant be increased in height by three feet and that the present blind fence at that spot be placed atop the heightened earthen berm to shield the plant from the Lewis home.

FOSJ Lauds Land Buy

A local save-the-river group today lauded the state's purchase of a 28,800-acre tract along the St. Johns river as a move that will preserve the St. Johns in the future and get a sluggish slough moving on their way to Jacksonville.

The Florida Cabinet on Tuesday agreed to pay $16-million for the Toohatchee Game Preserve along the St. Johns in East Orange County.

Most of the land was bought for about $5 an acre in the mid 1920s. The state is paying $450 an acre.

Friends of the St. Johns (FOSJ) spokesman Roger Swanson said the purchase "guarantees" water from the marshlands in the land will remain in a natural state and continue to feed the St. Johns.

"The area will be related in its natural state. That's a good thing for the future," Swanson commented.

One of the major problems environmentalists cite on the river is its sluggish waters. Swanson said one of the major reasons for the river not flowing as swiftly as it once did is headwaters near Melbourne are dammed.

There is a bill under study by the Florida Legislature calling for a $1.5-million expenditure to get headwaters flowing again into the river.

Seminole County Commissioners last month passed a resolution in support of the bill. Fishermen, in appearances before the commission, said the St. Johns is dying. Ten years ago, they say, drinking water could be scooped direct from the river. Now, however, they say drinking the foul river water could result in illness, or death.

The 28,800 acre preserve was owned by 55 individuals in Orange and Seminole counties. State officials at first tried to buy the land for $13.4-million, but stockholders held out and cabinet members Tuesday voted to pay the full $16-million requested by owners.

Hospital Cost Hikes Ceiling A Good Idea

Hospital costs have been rising out of control, much faster than other elements of the cost of living. Now, even residents of Seminole County face a possible rate hike at Seminole Memorial Hospital because of recommended pay raises for hospital employees. Special factors have spurred price increases in hospital care. Special treatment is necessary to bring them under control.

That is why we are inclined to support President Carter's call for a temporary federal levy imposed ceiling on all hospital rate increases.

It would not be a price freeze, which would necessarily involve a wage freeze and would be unfair to nurses and other hospital workers. But it would be a limit on the rate of increase in hospital costs to keep them more in line with the rate of increase in the general cost of living. No definite figure has been set but a 9 per cent permissible increase per year has been mentioned and seems reasonable.

The temporary lid would give time for the government to work out some permanent program of hospital cost containment that would be more precise and less sweeping than price control.

We would like to avoid government interference with the free market mechanism in all cases where competing providers sell services to the public. But sometimes it is nevertheless necessary to install a governor to keep the machine from overspeeding.

Seminole Memorial Hospital has maintained the lowest rates of 14 other hospitals in the area. While hospital costs have gone up 1,000 per cent since 1950, compared with a 136 per cent increase in the cost of living. They went up 15 percent last year, compared with a 6 per cent increase in the consumer price index.

One factor is the fact that 90 per cent of hospital services are paid for by someone other than the patient—either by the government or an insurance plan. This encourages wasteful use.

Another factor is the cost-plus reimbursement system that has encouraged hospitals to buy equipment and expand space, resulting in an excess of 100,000 hospital beds that cost $2 billion a year to maintain.

There are other factors, some legitimate, but massive inefficiency remains in the system, causing tax costs and insurance costs to rise so fast that they threaten to become back-breaking. Now is the time to call a halt.

The 'Good Teacher'

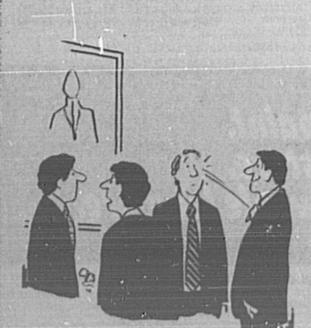

Myra Lee scores false modesty. "I know I'm a good teacher," she said after the assessment was validated with her selection as 1977 Teacher of the Year in nationwide competition.

And the approach she takes with her students at Helix High in San Diego, Calif., is the sort of thing that could bolster the confidence of the American people in their schools. She acknowledges the importance of "the basics," reading and writing, but insists that they must be introduced in relation to real-life situations.

Fred Hechinger of the New York Times made the same point recently in an address to the National School Boards Assn. at Houston. Instead of a push for a "return to the basics," he said, we must "go forward to the basics"—to "new life, new approaches, new answers, new confidence."

The "teacher of the year," this year or any year, must combine time-tested goals with new challenges.

DON OAKLEY Has He Got His Foot In His Mouth?

Andrew Young, this country's outspoken new ambassador to the United Nations, says he has a big mouth and that he's going to keep on sticking his foot in it.

It's not easy to nibble on your toes and talk at the same time, but the former Georgia congressman has accomplished it on several recent occasions. Latest was during an interview on British television in which he criticized Britain's record in race relations and allowed as to how he sometimes almost thought the British had "invented racism."

Young shortly thereafter removed his oral impediment long enough to issue a formal apology to Britain's chief U.N. delegate, who allowed as to how he was happy to consider the incident closed.

Rather more troubling than this gaffe, however, was something else Young said during the same interview. Although he has been leading a Western effort to find some means of exerting pressure on South Africa to change its racial policies, short of a United Nations sanction, he hinted that the United States might not stand in the way if a sanction resolution came to a vote. That is, it might not use its Security Council veto to block it.

Now the United States certainly has nothing to gain in the eyes of black Africans and the rest of the "Third World" by defending the white racist regime of South Africa. But it would seem that if we were to go so far as to refrain from vetoing a sanction resolution against that country, we might as well go all the way and vigorously support it. Either it is right or it is not right.

Better yet, we ought to tie in our support of sanctions against South Africa with a resolution condemning all the governments that are trampling on human rights on that continent, some of them in ways that make the South Africans look like amateurs.

It would never pass, of course, since 99 per cent of those governments are black, but coming from a black American like Young, it might carry more than a little moral weight. In any event, since he says he's going to continue speaking out, it would be refreshing to see him offend a nonwhite government for a change.

Curiously, though, for all his neglecting to make sure his brain is engaged before he puts his mouth in gear, Andrew Young has been carefully selective about where he places his foot.

Anytime the number of people looking for jobs increases, it usually means the economy isn't doing so well. But not always.

Job-hunting by executives posted a 58 per cent rise during the first three months of 1977, according to an international executive search firm, Eastman & Beaudine, Inc. This was 10 per cent higher than the same period last year. In some fields, such as banking, marketing, personnel, sales and engineering, there were increases of more than 100 per cent.

The reason this is good news, of course, is because the executives looking for jobs for the most part already have jobs.

JACK ANDERSON AND LES WHITTEN

Pentagon Asked To Join War On Drugs

WASHINGTON—Congress has called for military equipment, including planes, radar, sensors and satellites, to bolster the faltering battle against drug abuse.

This unusual request has been forwarded to the Pentagon by the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee. In a private letter to Defense Secretary Harold Brown, the senators pleaded.

"This country is fighting a self-proclaimed war on drugs. When fighting a war, you use the best resources available and make every effort to win. This is not being done."

The letter, signed by Sens. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and Charles Percy, R-Ill., contends that drug abuse costs the United States a staggering $17 billion annually. More than 3,000 Americans die each year from the improper use of drugs; thousands more are killed and injured in drug-related crimes.

The sheer magnitude of the drug problem has led the subcommittee to seek drastic countermeasures.

"Within the federal government," declare the senators, "the Department of Defense alone possesses the air and land vehicles needed to pursue and track the drug traffickers. They point out that the Customs Service

The bleeding hearts across the nation last week whined, "Shame, Shame," on these 11 members of the Florida Senate who had been able to hold off for one more year, despite immense pressure, passage of the Equal Rights Amendment in this state.

They cried that those 21 senators—forgetting to mention their colleagues in the House who also had opposed the amendment—had denied their mothers, sisters, wives and daughters the legal guarantee they will always be able to take full advantage of the benefits of this democratic society.

Come on now. Let's be honest about it. Would this amendment have given women any rights they do not already have under the law if they wish to have them?

Are there really women in this world who want to be equal to men? If prejudice really is practiced in this country against women, it is by other women.

Statistics show that more than half of the nation's wealth is directly controlled by women. I would dare say that another 25 per cent of the wealth is indirectly controlled by women through their influence on their husbands. So, if women are not granted equal pay for equal work, most likely it is other women who are responsible.

Statistics also show that more than half the registered voters in the United States are women. Yet, few public offices are held by women. Why? The only answer can be that women will not elect other women to office.

How many women can possibly believe that those 21 senators, most of whom are married, would have dared vote against ERA if their wives had been for it. The first thing those senators would have been denied would have been their beds or at the least their bed partners.

So, first of all let's not blame men if women do not have equality. Let's blame the real culprits—other women.

The majority of women believe they are superior to men and have convinced men that this is so. The majority of women are not abused by society or men, they have in life exactly what they want. And, the ERA would not have granted women equality.

In fact, they have an edge over men and smart women like that edge. The so-called feminist leaders, many of whom no man in his right mind would treat a woman, are loud, overbearing, unattractive and certainly not feminine.

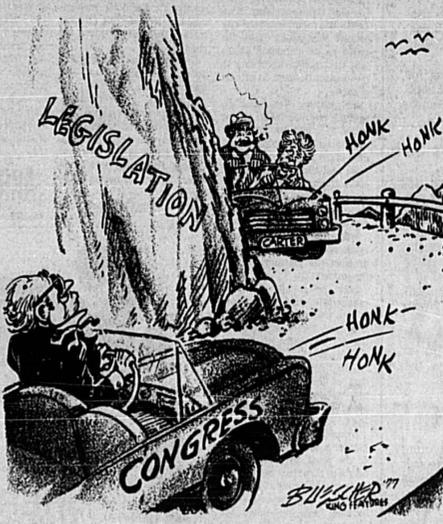

To compare ERA to the constitutional amendments which granted women the right to vote and blacks their civil rights is ridiculous. Neither of those amendments changed anyone's attitude. Even though the constitution guaranteed blacks civil rights 100 years ago, the did not actually gain the benefit of those rights until other laws implementing the constitution were adopted and enforced. The amendment granting women the right to vote did not do and does not mean that women vote or that their votes differ in any way from those cast by men.

The rights which supposedly would be granted to women under ERA already are granted in the law.

Do women really want to be equal to men? I, for one, do not. I rather enjoy my superior position. I rather like to have men cater to me, to have them open doors for me and to light my cigarette. I know the superior advantage I have and I suspect the great majority of women understand their favored position, too.

So, women's libbers, if you want to be only equal to men, you'd better convince other women first and the men, those with the votes in legislative bodies, will follow right behind.

COMING AROUND THE MOUNTAIN

JOHN CUNIFF The Coin's Other Side

NEW YORK (AP)—At a time when many investors and others resent the cars and planes and other perquisites of top corporate officers, Courtney Brown would have us look at the side of the coin that is seldom faced.

Brown would surround the top man, the chairman or president, with as many conveniences as are necessary to keep him mentally and physically fit, and working productively instead of being mired in extraneous details.

"Instead of saying these emoluments are totally uncalled for," say they are utterly essential," said Brown, who has held high positions in business, government and academe, and who is now chairman of the American Assembly, which holds nonpartisan discussions to illuminate issues of U.S. policy.

It was at an assembly meeting on corporate ethics a few days ago that the question was put to Brown, a dean emeritus of the Columbia Business School and a man who sits on the boards of four very large corporations.

"Is it proper for high corporate officials to enjoy such benefits as big cars, private jets and apartments, all paid for by investors?"

Brown answered that it was proper. "I've concluded that if they (corporate chief executives) are the hardest working group and the least protected," he said.

"There is nobody to tell them when to stop. They love their jobs and the jobs make so much money that they can burn themselves out and not last as long in business as the board wants them to."

In the newspapers the day before were stories about the chief executives of General Motors and Ford receiving close to $1 million in salaries and bonuses for 1976.

Such incomes "create an extremely bad impression and a quite uncalled for," said Brown. "They do a vast amount of damage to the morale of the guy at a desk earning $20,000, with a wife and kids, trying to make a go of it."

He continued: "The other side of the coin is that the senior officers of our major corporations work like the very devil—they're like marathon runners—and they run most of the time."

Anything done "to ease the drain on their energy, that can take the tension out of life, is in the interests of the stockholders," he maintained.

"It really doesn't cost very much to provide the amenities and comforts of a company car and driver—I don't care if it's a Cadillac this long." A car and a plane, he said, might save the chief executive two hours of waiting.

And if the executive lives in the country and is forced to remain late at work he should be provided a city apartment, said Brown, adding: "These are expenses of a very minor nature."

How minor becomes obvious to a ridiculous degree, he said, if the exhausted executive, forced to make decisions that cannot be postponed, blunders to the extent of millions of dollars.

Late August, we revealed that this same Orlando Bosch was involved in a plot to assassinate former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in Costa Rica. Bosch slipped into Costa Rica on a false passport, ready to gun down Kissinger, but was clapped into jail four days before the visiting secretary arrived in the country.

Bosch is now in a Venezuelan jail on suspicion of bombing a Cuban airliner. This caused the deaths of 71 Cubans, some reportedly Castro secret agents.

Meanwhile, we have learned from U.S. intelligence sources that another figure in the Letelier case, Roberto Carballo, may be in danger of assassination himself.

He is head of the veterans of the Bay of Pigs Brigade. His predecessor, Juan Jose Peruryo, was shot to death in Miami last January. It has been whispered that he was assassinated because he was preparing to talk to the FBI about the Letelier case.

Carballo has been asked point blank by federal investigators whether he was involved in the Letelier bombing. He has denied it flatly. But there is concern, nevertheless, that he may be a marked man.

JOHN D. LOFTON, JR. He Should Hang Tough On Cuba

WASHINGTON—All bright-eyed and bushy-tailed after a four-and-a-half-hour stroking session with Fidel Castro, Sen. George McGovern said the United States should lift its Cuban trade embargo "without delay."

Fresh from another trip to Cuba during which he once again did not raise the subjects of human rights, political prisoners, or compensation for the millions of dollars of U.S. property seized when Castro took power in 1959, the South Dakota Democrat said that Castro told him Cuba's aggression in Angola was not a pattern that would be repeated elsewhere in Africa.

But, if Sen. McGovern really believes this, then he is—and I say this with all due respect, which in this case means none—truly a moron. Because Cuba is doing right now, in Africa, what the senator says Castro told him Cuba would be doing—repeating what it did in Angola.

Western intelligence sources say that besides the 1,000 troops and 4,000 advisers it has in Angola, Cuba has 2,000 military and/or civilian advisers in the Congo (Brazzaville); 200-300 in Sierra Leone; 300-500 in Guinea; 300-500 in Equatorial Guinea; 300 in Guinea-Bissau; 500-600 in Mozambique; 500 in Tanzania; 650 in Somalia; and about 100 in Uganda. In each case, the magazine reports, "In Mozambique the Cubans help with sugar growing and perhaps the training of Rhodesian guerrillas. In Somalia, on the Horn of Africa, they advise the army as well as Somali guerrillas who are active in the neighboring French territory of Afars and Issas, which is set to become independent this summer. And now, judging by Fidel Castro's swing around Africa, they seem to be extending their influence to Ethiopia as well."

Furthermore, just three days before McGovern called for the lifting of the U.S. trade embargo of Cuba, and only one day before he met with Castro, the Cuban dictator turned up in Moscow where he signed a joint pledge with Soviet Communist Party leader Brezhnev. This pledge committed the two to doing everything they could to strengthen and promote international Communist support for Third World national liberation movements in Asia, Latin America, and Africa.

But we really shouldn't sweat all this, says Sen. McGovern, because, he says, Castro told him that once a pattern of trade develops between the United States and Cuba, Havana will think twice about its policies of exporting revolution to other countries.

Well, there's a word for this sort of talk: blackmail. And the United States should have no part of it.

This country should not lift its trade embargo of Cuba until Castro renounces all his military personnel from Africa, agrees to respect the human rights of his subjects (and allows someone in to see this is being done), and some equitable settlement reached regarding all the U.S. property stolen when the Communists stole it.

As with the Soviets and the SALT talks, President Carter should also "hang tough" on Cuba. There are no compelling reasons to do.

Curfew Clamped On Karachi After Strike, Street Riots

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP)—A curfew was clamped on Karachi today after a general strike paralyzed Pakistan's largest city and supporters and opponents of Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto battled in the streets with sticks, daggers and firearms. At least 11 deaths were reported Wednesday, bringing to 162 the number killed since the March 7 elections, in which the opposition Pakistan National Alliance claims Bhutto's party used massive fraud to win 15.

Rebels: Cubans Were In Zaire

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP)—Two rebels captured by President Mobutu Sese Seko's forces say Cuban advisers accompanied them to the border of southern Zaire six weeks ago and then returned to Angola. "There are no Cubans now," Yava Pierre Kapenda, 28, told a news conference Wednesday night.

Castro A Hit With Capitalists

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—The Minnesota trade delegation visiting Cuba met with President Fidel Castro for an hour and a half Wednesday night, and the bearded Communist revolutionary made a hit with the American capitalists. Castro said the 16-year-old U.S. trade sanctions were economically and morally unjustified and removal would create "optimum conditions" for the discussion of other problems between the two neighboring countries.

board, and the public, should know Keen's attitude." Frederick said that because of the attitude of Keen and Blayney, he felt no sense of loss at being replaced by new counsel.

"I'm delighted to know that some of the people there recognize the service I have given," he added.

Frederick said he has no idea what Keen's plans for the hospital are. "But if he's seeking to build an empire," commented Frederick, "the hospital is not the place to start."

Keen said Wednesday his only plans for the hospital were to "build a strong board of directors, and make the hospital a better place for both its employees and the public."

"The job pays nothing," said Keen. "I spend three, five, six, seven hours a week on the hospital—and that doesn't benefit me in any way."

Keen admitted he told Frederick he wanted to "bring my team" into the hospital, "but I don't have anyone in mind. I have not talked to any attorneys. I don't plan to hire a personal friend," said Keen.

"By 'team' I meant building a strong board and having someone fresh and new as counsel who would give objective legal opinions," he explained.

"I was very satisfied with the legal ability," said Keen, "but because of his time with the board and his influence, I have felt intimidated."

"We are entering a new stage of hospital growth. I have a responsibility as chairman of the board, and I feel the influence he (Frederick) would have on the board is not something I could control," said Keen.

Keen said he asked Frederick to resign "so I wouldn't have to express my personal feelings (to the board)."

Keen said Frederick argued it should be a board decision whether his services be terminated. "I ended up agreeing with him," said Keen.

He added that the attorney's fee did not enter into his decision to change counsel. He said the fee was "most reasonable" but that the board should not let Frederick just because his fee is low.

Keen said the Seminole County Bar Association would be informed that the position of counsel to the hospital board is vacant.

School Board Gets Redistricting Plan

By STEVE DAVIS
Herald Staff Writer

San Sebastian Heights parents presented to school board members Wednesday night a recommended plan for more permanent boundaries in the redistricting of schools in south Seminole County.

The board voted 3-2 in February to approve an elementary school zoning change, recommended by Supt. William P. "Bud" Layer, transferring approximately 201 students from Sabal Point to Spring Lake and from Forest City to Bear Lake.

S. K. Reze, of San Sebastian, said after reviewing guidelines established by Layer and West Lake Bramley, San Sebastian parents have requested that in preparation for the new school to be constructed at the Wekiva Hunt Club, a Wekiva school be established at Sabal Point or Bear Lake Elementary to include the approximately 130 students from the hunt club and approximately 130 students from West Lake Bramley.

The parents contend by reducing student population at Sabal Point and Forest City Elementary, San Sebastian students can remain at Forest City.

"This will have a positive impact on the students who will ultimately be together at Wekiva Hunt Club," the plan states. A new housing development, scheduled to begin later this year at Lake Lotus by Country Creek Developers will provide additional student population to Bear Lake, Reze said.

One San Sebastian parent stated the transferring Bear Lake students would greatly affect activities and programs which have originated at the school, including summer enrichment programs, music and extra-curricular activities. Additionally, she said Highway 436 would provide "a barrier" in getting students to and from Bear Lake Elementary.

Board Chairman Darvis Sims reported that the plan and determine if a "workable solution" could be reached. Layer will report to the board on the recommendation in two weeks.

In other action, the board tabled a recommendation by Layer that William A. Cox, an Orlando architect, be employed to replace and repair roofs at Idylwild Elementary, Teague Middle and Lake Howell High Schools. The board voted unanimously last week to place the three schools on the priority list for repairs, expected to get underway by the end of this school year.

Board members conceded they wished additional background information on Cox before assigning him the project.

Layer reported Cox had extensive experience in roof repairs to schools in Orange County. The board will discuss the matter at next week's regular meeting at Altamonte City Hall.

Board members also adopted a driver education policy of offering a course of instruction in safe and lawful operation of a motor vehicle to senior high students.

Minimum requirements for the course include 30 classroom hours plus a minimum of two hours of driving of which one hour will be in traffic.

Board Chairman Darvis Sims reported that the plan and determine if a "workable solution" could be reached. Layer will report to the board on the recommendation in two weeks.

Event To Be Held Saturday At Satellite Beach

Athletes Gear Up For Special Olympics

By ROBYNKRAW
Herald Correspondent

Eighty-three mentally handicapped young athletes from Seminole County will be participating in the 1977 District 7 Special Olympics games to be held Saturday at Satellite Beach.

Among these is a four-year veteran of Special Olympics competition; Ray Helms, of Longwood, who is eagerly preparing his first year in the bowling category. For the past four years, Ray participated in track and field events. He also competed in basketball "run, dribble and shoot" one year.

Ray is the 17-year-old son of Milton and Joan Helms of Longwood. He is an educable mentally handicapped student in the work-study program at Croombs High School, Sanford.

The school's "special ed" physical education teacher trains the kids for the Special Olympics.

Ray, like the rest of his family, is very interested in sports, but he has never been able to participate in community sports activities such as Little League.

Though Seminole County provides no year-round sports (or social) activities for retarded children, Ray has found some outlets for his athletic drive.

He is involved in Orange County-sponsored activities, and is a member of a women's softball league sponsored by Casselberry Land Company. When the team wins a trophy, Ray does too.

But Ray, his parents and many other Seminole County families hope the opportunities for "special" kids in this county will grow.

Parents are now gathering data to determine how many kids are interested in becoming involved in activity programs.

Joan Helms is director of the District VII special olympic games (Seminole, Volusia, Brevard, Orange, Osceola and Lake Counties).

She is also involved with the Seminole County Association for Retarded Children (SCARC), and she was a vice president for the Orange County Association.

Her husband, Milton, works for Panning Lumber in Casselberry. They have another son, eight-year-old Todd. Todd has no handicap, but a third son, who died in 1968, was severely handicapped.

Her son's death and her involvement in the Special Olympics led Joan to a teacher's aide job with Rosewood School (a Seminole County public school) for the mentally handicapped.

Joan works with the "profound" (lowest I.Q. level) class. This class is housed at Kradle Kare, on Lake Howell Road, Casselberry.

Joan began her Special Olympics volunteer work as a county coordinator in 1973. She became district director last year. As director she is responsible for organizing the games within District 7.

Participants may compete in only one sports category in the upcoming games. This year's basketball competition was held in February to allow athletes to enter basketball then and another category now.

Track and field competitors will choose a few activities from 13 individual, team and wheel chair events. Some track and field events are the 50-yard dash, softball throw, mile run, tug-of-war and wheel chair relay. A swimming category will be offered, as well as bowling, basketball and track and field.

Though entrants must be mentally handicapped, they may also have an accompanying physical handicap. The minimum age requirement for "Olympic" athletes is eight years old. No maximum age requirement has been set.

The main principle of the Special Olympics is to allow the "kids" to succeed in competition. So athletes are grouped by ability, as well as age. Nobody is left way behind, and every participant wins a ribbon or medal. Medals are proudly worn to the victory dance at the state games.

The Joseph Kennedy Foundation sponsors the games nationally. The foundation originated the Special Olympics in Chicago in 1967.

They are now held at county, district, state and international levels in every state and eight foreign countries.

SCARC sponsors the local games. Civic organizations, PTA's and individuals help SCARC raise money for the program.

Some parents provide registration fees. But nobody is excluded if they can't pay. "SCARC doesn't want to put a burden on the parents or children," said Joan.

Special Olympics' directors hope to eventually make the games a year-round program. Facilities and volunteers are available, but the program needs more money. Seminole County School Board provides a school bus to transport the athletes to the games.

District games will begin at 9:30 a.m., Saturday, at Satellite Beach High School, off A-1-A. Spectators are welcome and admission will be free.

Carter To Congress: You Do The Dirty Work On Energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is passing the job of formulating a tough new energy policy to Congress that clearly is reluctant to accept the assignment.

Carter laid out his comprehensive energy program to a joint House-Senate session Wednesday night, acknowledging that it would be painful and declaring, "I don't expect much applause."

He didn't get much applause, either. Yet, Democratic congressional leaders vowed to fight hard for the bulk of the program, which calls for conserving energy through higher automobile and fuel prices and taxes. But they conceded the plan faces major opposition.

Carter told Congress that to deal with the nation's energy crisis the lawmakers must approve taxes and price increases on dwindling fuel supplies and must agree to heavy taxes on gas-guzzling automobiles.

His plan for a standby gasoline tax of up to 50 cents a gallon drew the most vigorous criticism. It seemed doomed to an early defeat.

Members of Congress of both parties, deeply split over energy issues, voiced little enthusiasm for the over-all package, but many praised Carter for courage in proposing stiff conservation measures. "I'm going to be leading the charge to do everything possible to put together his program," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, which will handle most of the President's proposals.

But Jackson added that he sees little likelihood of Carter's gas tax proposal passing Congress. And he predicted major modifications would be made in the President's oil pricing recommendations.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill also expressed reservations about the gasoline tax but vowed full support for the President's oil pricing recommendations.

Carter knows "this is his first major fight.... This is a battle." And Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia claimed "the problem of supply was not addressed at all" by the President. But not that Congress still hasn't seen details of Carter's specific legislation, which will be submitted on Monday, Byrd cautioned. "We shouldn't shoot from the hip.... Much will depend on acceptance by the American people."

House Republican Leader John Rhodes of Arizona said Carter talked too much about conservation and not enough about encouraging more energy production. "It was a message addressed to no growth and I don't think that will satisfy the country at all," he said.

Carter told Congress he wants to conserve energy by making gas-guzzling automobiles, gasoline, oil and natural gas more expensive.

He asked for authority to impose a "standby" gasoline tax of up to 50 cents a gallon that would begin in 1979 in yearly five cent increments if consumption rises above specified targets. The taxes he asked on automobiles that get poor gas mileage would range from $50 for fuel-inefficient automobiles built in 1978 to $2,500 by 1985.

"We simply must save gasoline and I believe that the American people can meet this challenge. It is a matter of patriotism and commitment," Carter said.

He also proposed new taxes on crude oil that would add about seven cents a gallon to the price of gasoline by 1980 and lead to equivalent increases for other petroleum products; an increase in the federal price ceiling for natural gas, and taxes on industrial-oil and give tax breaks to homeowners who add insulation to their homes or take other energy-saving measures.

"Voluntary compliance will not be enough," Carter told Congress. "The problem is too large and the time is too short."

Carter had one prominent Republican ally, Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois. "We're a nation of energy-hogs. We've just got to change our habits, even if just to reduce criticism of this country from abroad," Percy said, urging Republicans not to take a "partisan approach. There is no reason why we should not support those parts of the program that make sense."

Carter said his program would "reward those who conserve and penalize those who waste." And he said it strives to spread the sacrifice over all segments of society.

Carter called his proposed standby gasoline tax "one of the most controversial and mis-understood" parts of his program. The tax would be triggered at a rate of five cents a year, beginning in January 1979, if gasoline consumption rose above specified levels.

Criticized as inflationary, ineffective as a means of curbing consumption and as penalizing low-income Americans most, the gas tax proposal was widely attacked by lawmakers — despite Carter assurances that it would only be levied if conservation goals are not met.

Carter's oil pricing proposals also generated controversy. His plan would put new taxes on domestic crude oil in two stages that would hike its average cost over a three-year period to the 1977 world-market price of $13.50 a barrel charged by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. This is more than twice the price of some existing domestic oil.

The proposed domestic crude oil tax is expected to add another seven cents a gallon to the pump price of gasoline by 1980.

Carter said there would be "dollar for dollar" rebates to those who use oil to heat their homes to cover the added costs of this tax.

Pegging prices of domestic oil to OPEC prices gives too much power to the oil cartel, critics said. Jackson said Congress would not allow OPEC to decide how much oil will cost in the United States, and predicted that this portion of Carter's proposal would be modified.

The conservation incentive part of the plan — such as tax credits for home insulation and solar energy measures — won praise from Democrats and Republicans and have the most likely chance of success.

Byrd of West Virginia claimed "the problem of supply was not addressed at all" by the President. But not that Congress still hasn't seen details of Carter's specific legislation, which will be submitted on Monday, Byrd cautioned. "We shouldn't shoot from the hip.... Much will depend on acceptance by the American people."

House Republican Leader John Rhodes of Arizona said Carter talked too much about conservation and not enough about encouraging more energy production. "It was a message addressed to no growth and I don't think that will satisfy the country at all," he said.

Carter told Congress he wants to conserve energy by making gas-guzzling automobiles, gasoline, oil and natural gas more expensive.

He asked for authority to impose a "standby" gasoline tax of up to 50 cents a gallon that would begin in 1979 in yearly five cent increments if consumption rises above specified targets. The taxes he asked on automobiles that get poor gas mileage would range from $50 for fuel-inefficient automobiles built in 1978 to $2,500 by 1985.

"We simply must save gasoline and I believe that the American people can meet this challenge. It is a matter of patriotism and commitment," Carter said.

He also proposed new taxes on crude oil that would add about seven cents a gallon to the price of gasoline by 1980 and lead to equivalent increases for other petroleum products; an increase in the federal price ceiling for natural gas, and taxes on industrial-oil and give tax breaks to homeowners who add insulation to their homes or take other energy-saving measures.

"Voluntary compliance will not be enough," Carter told Congress. "The problem is too large and the time is too short."

Carter had one prominent Republican ally, Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois. "We're a nation of energy-hogs. We've just got to change our habits, even if just to reduce criticism of this country from abroad," Percy said, urging Republicans not to take a "partisan approach. There is no reason why we should not support those parts of the program that make sense."

Carter said his program would "reward those who conserve and penalize those who waste." And he said it strives to spread the sacrifice over all segments of society.

Carter called his proposed standby gasoline tax "one of the most controversial and mis-understood" parts of his program. The tax would be triggered at a rate of five cents a year, beginning in January 1979, if gasoline consumption rose above specified levels.

Criticized as inflationary, ineffective as a means of curbing consumption and as penalizing low-income Americans most, the gas tax proposal was widely attacked by lawmakers — despite Carter assurances that it would only be levied if conservation goals are not met.

Carter's oil pricing proposals also generated controversy. His plan would put new taxes on domestic crude oil in two stages that would hike its average cost over a three-year period to the 1977 world-market price of $13.50 a barrel charged by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. This is more than twice the price of some existing domestic oil.

The proposed domestic crude oil tax is expected to add another seven cents a gallon to the pump price of gasoline by 1980.

Carter said there would be "dollar for dollar" rebates to those who use oil to heat their homes to cover the added costs of this tax.

Pegging prices of domestic oil to OPEC prices gives too much power to the oil cartel, critics said. Jackson said Congress would not allow OPEC to decide how much oil will cost in the United States, and predicted that this portion of Carter's proposal would be modified.

Ailing Horse Tracks Still A Tax Relief Problem

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Florida's ailing horse-racing tracks would be buttressed by $10.6 million in tax relief for the next three years under a bill package approved by a House committee.

The Regulated Industries Committee approved 15-2 Wednesday a two-bill package giving the breaks. Most of the revenue would be made up by higher levies on dog tracks and jai-alai fronts, but the state would still lose $1 million in revenue.

Chairman John Culbreath said the three-year relief package may not be enough to insure that the horse tracks, primarily those in South Florida, survive the strains of inflation.

"We don't know," said Culbreath, D-Brooksville. "We hope it will generate enough momentum for the tracks to help pick up attendance and their handle."

The bills, which now must go to the Appropriations Committee, won the panel's approval after lawmakers rejected an amendment by Rep. A. I. "Gus" Craig, D-St. Augustine.

Although Craig denied it, supporters said the amendment would lock Hialeah Race Course into the choice middle-racing dates. Gulfstream Park lobbyists said the amendment could spark a court fight.

"If we adopt this amendment, it's going to jeopardize the whole package," said Rep. Van Pelt, R-Port. Lauderdale. "We're going to end up with no package and the industry is hurt to suffer."

The panel turned down the amendment 10-4. Dog track lobbyist Cliff Herrell, whose clients will get much of the relief package's cost, supported the measure but warned that only permanent tax reductions for the horse tracks would shore up the industry for good.

"I don't think this solution has been arrived at solely because of the choice middle dates, when the tax rate would be 4.2 per cent."

However, the package would increase the total takeout from 17 to 17.4 per cent for all pari-mutuel facilities, thus raising an anticipated $5.5 million. That would come primarily from dog tracks and jai-alai fronts.

Russi No-Hitter Tops True Pitchers' Day In Sanford

Pitching continued to dominate Sanford's Little League play with Wednesday's National League games finding Terry Russi hurling a one-hitter, George Winegard and Mike Galm chucking two-hitters and Mike Leonard fashioning a three-hitter.

Russia's no-hit gem paced the Railroaders to a 10-0 victory over Winegard's First Federal team. Galm pitched Chase & Co. to a 13-2 win over Seminole Sporting Goods. And Leonard hurled Prosser Ford past Medical Center, 7-4.

In the day's Junior League game, Rotary defeated Moose, 13-2, as Freddie Howard chucked a three-hitter and Wayne Pace drove in four runs. Russi and Harold Gaines had the only hits for the Railroaders, who took advantage of four walks to explode for six runs in the second inning. Dean DuBoise had a single and double and Alfred Bookhart and Ed Rinkavage had two hits each to pace Chase & Co. Tom Vezino and James Cameron had the only hits for Seminole Sporting Goods.

Flyers, Canadiens On Collision Course

By The Associated Press

Teams which have taken different approaches to the task at hand are one step away from a head-on collision.

Victories by Boston and Philadelphia in tonight's Stanley Cup playoff action would send both into the semifinals, where they would be paired against each other. The Montreal Canadiens and New York Islanders, both of whom have already won their quarterfinals, would meet in the other semifinal.

Boston started last in its series against Los Angeles, winning the first three games before the Kings, on the verge of elimination, came back to win the next two.

Philadelphia, meanwhile, started slowly against Toronto, losing the first two games on its home ice. But the Flyers came back to win two in Toronto, then took a 3-2 lead in the series with a 2-0 victory at Philadelphia.

The Kings expect a big boost from their home fans as they try to even their series with Boston tonight. Prior to Game Five in Boston, the Kings received a telegram which read, "We are cheering you in L.A. Your faithful fans are with you."

That prompted the Kings' Dutch Goring to speculate, "Do you think they're gonna raise the roof Thursday night or what?"

"They're probably the best fans in hockey," added Goring. "They could have booed us, but they didn't. They stuck with us."

The Toronto fans will be pinning their fading hopes on a final goal tonight.

Rookie Mike Palmateer, the Maple Leafs' mainstay through the regular season and the playoffs, suffered torn ligaments during the third period of Tuesday's loss and will be out of action. His replacement is Wayne Thomas.

Leafs Coach Red Kelly has been using three lines against the four employed by Philadelphia's Fred Shero, and some have attributed Toronto's slide to fatigue.

Toronto's Dave Williams insisted, "We're not any more tired than they are," but teammate Borje Salming conceded, "It's getting to you. I can feel it in my legs."

Shero feels Toronto is not as deep as his club, which is why Kelly has stayed with just three lines. "If he's been't confidence in the men on his bench," Shero said, "then he doesn't play them. He's doing what he knows is right."

Kremer Hurls Brantley Win

Jim Kremer scattered four hits Wednesday, posting his fourth victory in five decisions at Lake Brantley defeating Apoka in baseball, 5-3. Kremer fanned eight.

Randy Fowler carried the big bat for the Patriots, going 3-for-4 with a homer and double. John Sobik also homered for the winners while Jim Fry had a triple and Tommy White a double.

Brantley entertains Bishop Moore Friday afternoon.

LOOKOUTS Extend Helping Hands

By JANE CASSELLBERRY

HERALD STAFF WRITER

A LOOKOUT orientation course to enable individuals of all ages to feel more comfortable with physical and behavioral differences caused by physical, mental, emotional and social disabilities will be offered Saturday by OUTLOOK Central Florida, Inc.

The course will be from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the First Federal of Seminole on SR 64. Longwood and registration will begin at 9 a.m. The orientation will consist of informal, informational and thought-provoking material, with discussions led by handicapped individuals, their relatives, friends and professionals. Those participating should bring a sack lunch.

The LOOKOUT course is designed for those interested in any of the following:

- Being a better friend to a handicapped person in the neighborhood;
- Helping "mainstream" handicapped students in your school;
- Becoming a member of a LOOKOUT Team (to "lookout" for handicapped persons in city and county recreation department programs this summer);
- Helping entertain autistic children from all over the United States, while their parents attend the annual conference of the National Society for Autistic Children;

- Volunteering to assist with "patterning" a brain-injured child (one family needs 25 volunteers a day for 15 minute periods of patterning).

Recent legislation mandates "mainstreaming" handicapped children into public schools; "deinstitutionalization" of severely handicapped persons into more normal community settings; "affirmative action" employment; and removal of architectural barriers in public buildings.

OUTLOOK hopes to recruit at least 20 teenage LOOKOUTS in county schools to help these handicapped youngsters feel welcome and make it easier for them to cope with their new surroundings. The LOOKOUTS are also planning on working with area recreation programs this summer so that they can be opened up to the handicapped.

Already working as LOOKOUTS in Sanford schools are Cheryl Penick, Seminole High School senior; Junette McBryde, Crooms High School;

Mrs. Lois Smith (left), who holds her autistic daughter, Beth, discusses LOOKOUT plans with Cheryl Penick, Seminole High School; Charlene

Garden Gate Caladiums Sprout For Spring Beauty

In springtime, thoughts turn to the earth and budding plants. The Central Circle of the Sanford Garden Club has advice to offer on one of Florida's most attractive plants:

Caladiums are a group of foliage plants native to tropical America. The leaves are large and arrow shaped, beautifully marked in various colors and patterns with heights up to eighteen inches.

Caladiums belong to the Arum family and the hearty foliage is bothered very little by insects. If the foliage does appear to be effected by insects it can be dusted with Sevin.

Caladiums can now be seen peeking through the ground and even leading out in some places. Due to the severe winter in Florida the bulbs are late sprouting this year. Now is the time to fertilize. They like plenty of water.

If you plan to plant new bulbs this spring, soaking them in warm water for several hours will hasten the sprouting. Planting the bulb upside down will make a bushier foliage.

The Caladium thrives best in shady areas and makes a lovely border for flower beds. They also make beautiful potted plants. The average life span for the foliage is about four months. The bulbs can be planted any time from March through July.

As the foliage matures, tall blooms will appear and these should be snipped off to assure a healthier foliage. Any dead or broken leaves should also be snipped and new ones will take their place.

Bulbs should be taken up about every three to four years as they go deeper into the ground each year. The bulbs can then be separated and spread to other areas of the garden.

and Charlene Stallworth and David Norman, Sanford Middle School.

Those attending the orientation session will have the opportunity to raise such questions as "What is a disability? a handicap? an inconvenience? and what is 'normal'?" also, how do the new laws affect me, my family, and my community and what can I do?"

Resource persons will be present to help think through these topics and let participants know of opportunities for further training, especially in programs where volunteers are needed.

Churches, synagogues, civic and social organizations, school or service clubs are encouraged to send representatives to OUTLOOK Executive Director Elsa Ellis.

OUTLOOK is a non-profit organization dedicated to the purpose of providing a more normal community for handicapped persons and their families.

Programs Set For Working Adults

The Adult Occupational Education Services at Seminole Community College is offering training for adults who can not, because of work schedules, attend the more traditional day or evening program offerings at the college.

Courses and programs are offered in places accessible and at times convenient to working adults.

The objective of the adult occupational education concept is to offer area residents an opportunity to upgrade job competencies for advancement or train for new professions or careers. Individuals may also desire help in starting their own businesses by taking the Federal Small Business Administration co-sponsored Courses are for adults who are interested in advancing and broadening their knowledge in certain fields but who are not primarily interested in receiving academic credit. However, academic counseling is available at the college for individuals who desire to further their academic education.

Courses offered in the program include: Fundamentals of Supervision; Starting and Managing a Small Business; Emergency Medical Technician; Real Estate Salesperson; Effective Speaking and Real Estate Property Management.

Also, Respiratory Therapy Technician; Small Business Profit Planning and Cash Management and Insurance for Agents.

For more information, call the coordinator, Occupational Program Development, 323-1450, ext. 322.

Hubby Should 'Cleave Unto Wife'

Dear Abby: We have been married seven months and our only quarrels have been over my husband's refusal to take my part against his parents when they are in the wrong.

We live in a one-room apartment with a pull-down bed. The church we attend is on the corner of our block. My husband's parents attend the every Sunday. We attend a later Mass, but his parents have started coming to our apartment right after morning Mass.

I work six days a week and Sunday morning is the only morning I can sleep a little later, but with my in-laws calling on us before 7:30 a.m., it is impossible. Also I loathe terrible when I first get up, and I'm embarrassed to receive guests that way.

Last Sunday my in-laws woke me up again. I ran into the bathroom and locked the door. My mother-in-law demanded that I come out and apologize for my "childish" behavior. My husband didn't take my part against his mother, and I think he should have.

Another time his father opened some mail, addressed to me, and my husband didn't say a word. When I complain about his folks, he says, "Remember Exodus XX, 11, the Fifth Commandment: Honor thy father and thy mother."

IN-LAW TROUBLE

DEAR TROUBLE: Your in-laws are rude and inconsiderate, and your husband should set them straight. And since your husband quotes Scriptures, ask him to read Genesis 11:6: "And therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife."

DEAR ABBY: "X" and I were secretly married by a justice of the peace in a neighboring state during our freshman year at college two years ago. Afterward, we never lived together except for one weekend and a night now and then. Our marriage was very disappointing; and we soon realized it was a big mistake, so we just broke off.

Now I have met someone else and I am serious about him.

At Seminole Memorial Doctors To Host Medical Program

The first in a series of three post-graduate medical education programs hosted by the doctors at Seminole Memorial Hospital is scheduled Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the hospital auditorium. Dr. Robert M. Rosemond, chairman of the education program, said he expects about 100 physicians from the Central Florida area to attend. Seminole Memorial Hospital's nursing staff has also been invited. The program will include three lectures Friday night, and hospital rounds Saturday morning to observe interesting cases. Speakers will be Dr. Roger T. Sherman, chairman of the Department of Surgery at the University of South Florida. His topic: "Pancreatitis"; Dr. Clarence M. Legerton Jr., chairman of the Department of Gastroenterology, Medical University of South Carolina. His topic: "Medical vs. Surgical Jaundice"; and Dr. Peter C. Gages, chairman, Department of Cardiovascular Disease, Medical University of South Carolina. His topic: "Myocardial Infarction Update."

Dr. Rosemond noted that the hospital's post-graduate medical education program helped gain "marks" toward the hospital being accredited by the Joint Accreditation Commission.

Biggest News In Hats: Flowers

By ELLIE GROSSMAN Herald Services. NEW YORK—Just a minute. You can't go out like that in your eyelet camisole and petticoat, even if it is a warm spring day. You need a ballbunt hat, preferably with daisies trellised all around or cabbage roses, one here, one there, or lilies of the valley, chrysanthemum buds, poppies, dogwoods, or... what do you mean you don't like flowers? You have to like flowers. They're the biggest news in hats since the pith helmet. All right, then choose peribunt instead of ballbunt, with a crocheted crown, like the one Frank Olive designed for Oscar de la Renta's spring collection, and the smaller version he did for Anne Klein. Take it in white—that's the color this season—and you won't have to worry about matching. You have white? Then choose black, that's good, too. Now what! You like a portrait or shepherd's brim but it's too much for you because you're Wide-brimmed hat with chiffon scarf and flowers at crown recalls the romantic look of garden parties (top). Giant-brimmed sombrero beach hat of rough straw, highlighted with a chin tie scarf, creates "south of the border" flavor (middle). Snap-brim cloche of felt with matching buckle (rim embellished with the chicly tailored look for summer wear (bottom).

FACTORY CLOSE OUT Beauty Tips. Look light. Try to avoid very dark brown and green eye shadow if you wear glasses. They tend to look muddy. Dressing after dance. If you're going from dance class to dinner, think about dressing up your leotard with a crocheted shirt, a midcalf length wrap shawl and high heeled sandals. Nothing special. Don't worry about what shoes to wear with ankle-tied harem pants. Low sandals, espadrilles, even ankle-strap flats all work well. Secure tie. The easiest way to tie a bow blouse is to cross both ends of the tie at the throat, flip one over the other and secure with a pin. Standing sense. If you work in a uniform, chances are you're on your feet a good deal of the time. In which case, support pantyhose are a good investment.

HOROSCOPE For Friday, April 22, 1977. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be doubly careful in money matters today, especially if you're negotiating with people in whom you don't have complete faith. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Cooperation is apt to be fashioned of flimsy stuff today. If your best you rely more on yourself than on others. CANCER (June 21-July 22) An unusual situation could develop today whereby a strain could be placed on your resources because another failed to live up to obligations. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In dealing with friends today you're prone to be a little too touchy. If they don't comply exactly, you could become unreasonably angry. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be very careful about staking your reputation on anything you're unsure of today. You could be put in a bad light. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Uncharacteristically, you're not too charitable today. Avoid those pals who might put the bit on you. You'll resent it. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you're involved in a situation that's moving too slowly any erratic action you take today to errate it could be more costly than helpful. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Hasty decisions made under pressure today could have a boomerang effect. Weigh alternatives judiciously before committing yourself. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A lack you thought to be a snag could prove surprisingly difficult today, especially if you're working with an ineffective aide. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You might be inspired by someone who took a chance and won, and try to go the same route today. This could be a big mistake. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Although your motives are laudable concerning those under your care, your tactics may defeat your own purpose. ARIES (March 21-April 19) You are a bit of a daydreamer today, with a limited attention span. If you're handling the affairs of another, a mental lapse could be costly. YOUR BIRTHDAY April 22, 1977. Several interesting business propositions may be brought to you this year. Their chances for success are predicated on the caliber of those you'd be involved with.

Acne Treatment Often Helpful. DEAR DR. LAMB—1 am 15 years old and I have very oily skin. I've been to a dermatologist and he gave me soap and a tube of cream. He also gave me a pill to take once a day. The chemical in the pill was tetracycline. I used it for a few months and it worked terrific. Then my father read in a newspaper that this chemical could have some bad effects on young people. It never had any on me.

DEAR DR. LAMB—How old is too old for vitamin C pills? I bought two expensive bottles of natural vitamin C and my husband won't touch them since you said they could poison us. If we cannot eat citrus as it is necessary to eat vitamin C tablets to get enough vitamin.

DEAR READER—Your dermatologist was doing the right thing. Tetracyclines are used to eliminate small bacteria that live just inside the skin pore. These bacteria act on sebum, the oily secretion your skin glands form, to break the fat down to fatty acids. The fatty acids are irritating to your skin and cause the inflammation that damages your skin. Regular use of tetracyclines in younger people may damage the development of normal teeth. The tooth development phase is over by 12 years of age and this danger no longer exists. Since the acne problem usually begins after this age, during adolescence, it is perfectly safe to use tetracyclines for this purpose and this has been done for many years now with good success and few if any difficulties. I would have sent you The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated, to help you but you didn't include your address on your letterhead. Let me remind readers who want a copy of my reply to please put their address on their letterhead. Others who want The Health Letter on acne can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

WIN AT BRIDGE. For the simple reason that I didn't care how the finesse came out, I was going to be sure of my contract if it lost or if it won. The Professor was right as always. If the finesse had lost, the defense would win that trick, one heart and the ace of diamonds. Eventually, the Professor would have ruffed his last two diamonds with dummy's last two trumps and made his game. After the finesse succeeded the Professor still made only four because he had to lose a low diamond at the finish. If the Professor had played out his ace and king of spades, East would have been left with the good queen. He would cash it when he got in with the ace of diamonds and the Professor would have wound up one trick short. ASK THE GADGOLDS. An Ohio reader wants to know what to bid with a balanced 21 points after the bidding has gone one notrump-pass-pass. All you can do is pass and try to set the notrump bidder. If you double your partner will take your double out.

Broadcast Pioneer Paley Loosening Grip On CBS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Broadcast pioneer William S. Paley has taken the first step toward loosening the tight control he's had over CBS since it was founded in 1928. He said Wednesday that he plans to step down as the company's chief executive officer and will recommend to CBS directors on May 11 that John D. Backe, president of CBS, Inc., be named his successor. But does he think he'll ever step down as board chairman? "Yes, of course I will," said the man who took a 16-station radio network, named it CBS and built it into an empire that last year had 30,000 employees worldwide and net sales of $2.2 billion. But he only grinned when asked if he'll retire as chairman. "I don't know," said Paley, 75. "It might be that I get interested in something else I want to try, it could be a lot of things. "But it's awfully hard for me to imagine not being interested in CBS as a corporation as long as my mental faculties remain at least normal, as well as my physical frame and what's in it." Tanned and fit-looking, Paley spoke in a brief interview after addressing the annual CBS shareholders' meeting, held this year at CBS' production center in nearby Studio City, Calif. Paley owns not only the CBS radio and television networks, but also Columbia Records and other divisions that publish books, operate retail stores and make musical instruments. Backe, the 43-year-old executive Paley picked to succeed him, comes from a publishing, not a broadcasting background.

Van Meter Cancels Meeting On Casselberry Petition

Casselberry City Council Chairman Nathan Van Meter has cancelled a special council meeting called by Councilmen John Leighty and Frank Schuette for 7 p.m. today. The announced purpose of the special meeting was to act on "the people's petition" requesting a special election. Van Meter, in a memo to his colleagues this morning, said that, according to the city charter, the petitioning and affidavits seeking the election to repeal a resolution granting Mayor Gerald Christensen full time status and a $17,800 annual salary may only be presented to the board by the city clerk at a regular meeting. At the conclusion of the memo, Van Meter chastised his fellow councilmen by noting that either the mayor or the chairman should call special meetings so that "legalities" can be checked into. He added that it would be a good idea in the future to call other members to find if they can attend a special meeting before one is scheduled. "They (referring to the majority of the council) aren't even willing to throw the voters a scrap," Schuette said today after being notified of Van Meter's action. He said apparently the majority "plan on stalling" action on the petition until the charter deadline passes. The charter ban the holding of special elections within six months of a regular election. "I see this being dragged on until June 5 arrives and is gone," the freshman councilman said. "It shows their total insecurity and disregard of the very people who put them in office," Schuette said. Early Thursday afternoon Schuette and Leighty delivered a notice to city hall calling the special meeting and charging Acting City Clerk Linda Thomas to notify council members. They instructed Miss Thomas to properly post the notice and notify the press. Police officers delivered the notice directly to the councilmen in the early evening, prior to the 24-hour notice deadline before the meeting.

County Plan Usurps City Power: Knowles

Seminole County's proposed comprehensive plan development framework is a blueprint for the county's usurpation of Seminole's seven cities' authority in such areas as roads, drainage, solid waste, fire protection and annexation, Sanford City Manager W.E. Knowles has charged in a Tuesday memorandum to County Planner Bill Kercher. The plan illegally "interjects the county into various municipalities' internal operations" and "clearly prescribes a big brother attitude," the city manager has charged. Knowles' memorandum also says the plan "strongly reflects the philosophy of consolidation of all major functions except those of law enforcement and utilities" and "requests a meeting between city and county planning staffs to discuss the plan." The plan will be examined by the county commission in a May 17 public hearing. Knowles has sent copies of the memorandum to the mayors of Seminole County's seven cities. "The law does not allow county planners to usurp the planning powers of the cities except with formal agreement," says Knowles in a covering letter to the mayors. Knowles, in his memorandum to Kercher, argues that although the Seminole County Comprehensive Planning Act of 1974 "limits the county's exercise of (planning powers) to the unincorporated area" of Seminole, the plan "has transgressed the municipal operational boundaries." The proposed plan does this because it "proposes to set up a county government structure, supported with countywide funds, and charges this organizational structure with the review of" many governmental functions now exercised by the cities. Knowles describes this structure as "an additional layer of government similar to that rejected by the county commission pertaining to" the Regional Interim Sewer Plant Committee's recommendation for an elected board to run a north Seminole regional sewage treatment system. The county plan's proposals for a countywide urban and rural firefighting capability "is an example where bigness does not evolve efficiency. How can the planning operation justify urban firefighting service in a countywide organization that is not staffed, equipped or located to provide...service on a level demanded by (insurance) underwriter requirements?" Knowles states. "The city manager says the plan... is characterized by 'little to no attention to solutions except to call for more studies... This document creates a need for more planning... years to come.' Charging the plan 'lacks specifics' and 'fails to address... existing problems in the unincorporated areas,' Knowles asks Kercher, "When will the county's comprehensive plan be evolved for the unincorporated areas for review and comment?"

STUDENT LEADERS
 The future leaders of our nation will be coming from the ranks of today's youth leaders. What are they thinking? How do they view their leadership roles? How do they view Jimmy Carter's? How about the future of the nation? Are they satisfied that the schools are preparing students for the tight job market?
 To find out, Herald education reporter Steve Davis interviewed each of the student body presidents of the five Seminole County high schools. His reports begin in The Sunday Herald.

Request Before PSC May Hike Seminole Utility Bills

By ED PRICKETT
 Herald Staff Writer
 Asst. County Atty. Gary Siegel today will ask the Public Service Commission (PSC) for a ruling that would hike monthly power bills of Seminole County residents by about three per cent and bring in almost $800,000 in revenue each year in county government. "If the PSC rules in favor of the county, it will mean an increase in monthly light bills," State Rep. Bob Hattaway said. "I am opposed to that." On tap in Tallahassee is a county-sponsored bill that would do the same thing Siegel is asking the PSC to do. Hattaway, a Democrat from Alamoonte Springs, said he also opposes the bill. "It is dead this year," he said. The issue surfaced in February when Florida Power & Light Co. (FPL) began listing franchise fees separately on monthly utility bills. Then residents in unincorporated areas of north Seminole realized they were being charge franchise fees that were being paid to the city of Sanford. FPL Commercial Manager Scott Burns said today his firm pays Sanford $306,000 yearly. He said if the county has its way, FPL would shell out an additional amount to county government. Burns said the city's franchise fee is about three per cent of a resident's average monthly electric bill. In South Seminole, Florida Power Corp. charges only residents of the incorporated area, Siegel said. However, the PSC will be asked to allow the county to collect franchise fees from both power firms. Siegel said he would request: "If the county obtains legislation, 'his position is that the present system should be maintained and the amount of the franchise fees should be considered as a cost of doing business and spread over all utility bills.'" The franchise fee should be treated as restricted to customers within the cities charging the franchise fees and not spread as a cost of doing business among all of the customers of the utilities." — Franchise fees should appear on bills as franchise fees "so that all the customers will know what they are paying." Burns said the franchise fee system went into effect in 1966. But it wasn't until February that the PSC ordered the charge listed separately on utility bills. The reason for the fees is to allow power companies to borrow money at a lower interest rate over a long period of time, say 30 years. Power companies, however, have no franchise agreements with county government. Commission Chairman Dick Williams said the fees should be eliminated entirely, or else county government should get its share. County residents have complained to the commission about having to pay the three per cent franchise fee. In 1975, the PSC directed that franchise fees be listed separately on electric bills and billed only to residents of cities. The Florida Supreme Court, however, overturned that decision. The court ordered the PSC to direct Tampa Electric Company (TECO) to return to the old method of listing the fee as an operating expense. That meant residents inside and outside cities pay fees, but only cities collect them. Now, the PSC has decided to rehear the matter and issue a formal decision. Burns said the system FPL uses is equitable because both city and county residents benefit when power firms are able to obtain money at lower interest rates for long-term capital investment. Today's PSC hearing was scheduled to be held in Pinellas County.
