Ball refunds contested payment

NAACP probe request rejected

By Wayne Mize
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The city commission decided not to heed a plea by the NAACP for an investigation into two Sanford Housing Authority board commissioners during Monday night's meeting at City Hall.

After waiting more than two hours until other city business was discussed, Turner Clayton, Seminole County president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored people, asked the commission for a "full investigation into Bob Ball Sr. and Terri Burratti."

With two letters in hand from Ball, one an apology for comments containing racial overtones, and the other containing proof of payment for $203.75 owed the housing authority, the city commission decided no further action was necessary.

Ball had been formally reported to the Florida Commission on Ethics by housing authority board chairman Alexander C. Wynn III for failing to return $203.75 in unused expenses for two trips made last year for which Ball received advance payments.

Clayton, on behalf of the NAACP, also accused Ball of making statements with racial overtones when Ball told the Herald on May 18 that there would never be an investigation into the housing authority "as long as blacks are in charge out there."

Burratti has been accused by Wynn in letters to the mayor and commissioners of unprofessional behavior for what has been called a threatening remark she made to a housing authority employee, allegedly saying, "I am going to kick your ass."

Clayton asked the commissioners if they consider the Ball letters "an admission of guilt" and if they are, asked why something couldn't be done and why they wouldn't remove Ball from the housing board.

While several commissions, including Mayor Bettye Smith, expressed regret about Ball's racial comment, the tone of the commission was set by commissioner John Y. Mercer.

"To forgive is divine. Forgive, forget and get on with the business at hand," said Mercer.

Sanford attorney James Sweeting III, speaking on his own behalf, also urged the commission to proceed with an investigation of both Ball and Burratti and to hold a public hearing on the matter. "I am

Marina ordinance passes 1st reading

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A 17-year-old Altamonte Springs boy died today as a result of a gunshot wound to his chest inflicted at about 4:35 a.m. today in a known drug dealing area of rural Altamonte Springs.

Sheriff's deputies haven't determined a motive for the murder of Quentin G. Brown of 512 Peach Tree Lane. However, Seminole County Sheriff's Lt. Marty LaBrusciano said the shooting might be drug related or an act of revenge.

While Brown was undergoing surgery on his lower chest to repair damage caused by a small caliber bullet that passed through his body, sheriff's deputies searched for a gunman, who may have been driving a new Mustang from which the shot was fired, LaBrusciano said. Brown died during surgery about 7:15 a.m. in an Orlando hospital.

Altamonte boy killed

Investigators report Brown was standing on the corner of Salina Drive and North Street when the car drove up and stopped. Brown was called to the car and was shot once with a handgun, LaBrusciano said. It had not been determined if the drive was alone or if someone else might have fired the shot. The driver fled and witnesses phoned for help.

SANFORD — In a surprise move on a non-agenda item, the city commission approved on first reading the ordinance imposing fees and parking restrictions at the city marina, located in Lake Monroe harbor.

The item was brought before the city commission by City Attorney Bill Colbert as part of "other business" at the regular meeting's end. Colbert had been instructed by the commission at a past meeting to draw up the ordinance.

Commissioner A.A. McClanahan told the commission that since the ordinance must also have a public hearing at second reading, he did not see any problem voting for the unscheduled ordinance.

Usually, ordinances are scheduled agenda items at commission meetings for both

Lake Mary's finance director quits

By Joyce Herald
UCF Intern

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary's new finance director, Elisabeth Heckel, has resigned her three-week-old position with the city, effective June 10 and has accepted a job with the state of Florida.

Heckel, who became finance director on May 2, said she has been actively recruited by state officials since she took the job of city finance director. She said she had applied for a job with the state last November. Complications with the state's application process delayed the state's deadline for hiring, and she accepted the position as finance director with Lake Mary.

Later, state officials called her for an interview but she declined their invitation. Persistence on their part however, managed to lure her away, she said.

Heckel's new job will be with the Department of Transportation. She said the job is a newly-created position and described it as the "top finance position" for the department's fifth district.

Heckel said she has never quit a job after so little time. However, she called the job with the City, school share playground project

By Carol Rumsey

LAKE MARY — Thirty or more kindergarten students were on hand Monday morning to laugh, play and romp on new playground equipment at Lake Mary Elementary School.

The equipment was installed last week as a joint effort of the city of Lake Mary and the school.

For nearly a year, the Rev. Paul Hoyer, school principal Elizabeth Paul and members of the school's PTA all worked to bring the playground project to completion. With $6,000 in PTA funds and a $10,000 commitment from the city of Lake Mary their project is now a reality.

The bright red, blue and yellow modular-design equipment is scaled for primary-age children.

"The school board doesn't budget for playground equipment," explained Paul. "The school has its own budget, and out of that we must also provide books and needed materials. We could never have done this on our own."

Hoyer approached City Commissioner Randall C. Morris to see if the city would be willing to help fund the project. The Seminole County School Board agreed to allow the city to place equipment on board property and the city drew $10,000 from its recreational impact fees charged to developers. City Attorney Ned Julian said the impact fee is, in essence, a user fee based on growth and cannot be used for ordinary operating expenses.

The school's previous playground equipment for both primary-age and older children had become outdated. Next year Hoyer wants to make equipment for older children a priority.

Tuesday evening, the PTA will see what we've already done," he said. "We're hoping that will fire them up for next year."

Considerable research went into the selection of the equipment. Hoyer visited several

Driver hits bear on road

SANFORD — A Florida black bear was killed by a hit-and-run driver Monday night on U.S. Highway 17/92 near Ken Rummel Chevrolet.

The almost-extinct bear was found on the road near 3455 S. Orlando Drive (17/92) by a passing motorist, who telephoned police.

Police responded to the scene at 11:45 p.m. to find a dead female Florida black bear.

According to Police Lt. Bill Bernosky, the bear was a little bit bigger than a "German shepherd" and weighed approximately 75 pounds.

"It is just a part of Florida history and it is a shame to see her lying here dead," said Bernosky at the scene. "She just tried to make it across the road and didn't make it."

Bernosky surmised the bear had lived in nearby woods and swamps.

Seminole County Animal Control was notified and picked up the dead animal for disposal.

POLICE IN BRIEF

Construction site dispute leads to assault, weapons charges

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A confrontation between two men at a rural Altamonte Springs construction site led to an arrest after one of the men allegedly brandishing a loaded shotgun against the other.

David E. Castillo, 40, of Ocoee, was arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies at 8:52 p.m. Monday at an Embury Construction site at 1055 Maganolla Ave., where the incident occurred. He faces charges of aggravated assault and carrying a concealed firearm.

Castillo, a carpenter, is accused of brandishing a shotgun and threatening to shoot Gary Golden, a laborer, during a dispute. Golden allegedly told Castillo to move his vehicle and said someone should shoot him. Golden turned and walked away. Castillo allegedly called to him and Golden turned to face a shotgun.

The gunman allowed Golden to walk away and sheriff's deputies arrived and reported found a loaded, cocked shotgun in Castillo's truck.

Impatient prisoner charged

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A prisoner, arrested on a suspended driver's license violation, allegedly became impatient waiting on a tow truck for the disabled sheriff's car he was being held in, and reportedly tried to kick his way out.

Charges of resisting arrest with violence were added against him after he allegedly resisted a sheriff's deputy who handcuffed him.

James Arthur Stones, 20, of Orlando, who was arrested at about 8:20 a.m. Monday, on North Street at Lake Howell Road, after being involved in a dispute that led to the discovery that his driver's license is suspended, allegedly hit a sheriff's deputy.

The deputy said Stones tried to kick out the windows of his patrol car, which had a transmission failure, as the officer waited for a tow truck. The prisoner was able to move his handcuffed hands from behind his back to his front. The deputy took him out of the car to recuff him, and alleges Stones hit him when one of his hands was free. He was recuffed and jailed, where he was being held in lieu of $2,000 bond.

Store employees help stop robberies

LONGWOOD — A man who allegedly stole a crowbar from Albertson's supermarket and used it to try to force open a caged storage area in the store was foiled in his attempt, but employees were injured when trying to stop the man who remains jailed today without bond.

Workers at a second Longwood supermarket also reported a confrontation with a robber, which led to an arrest.

In the first case, Master Muhammad Bial, 34, of 139-A E. 15th St., Apopka, was arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies at Albertson's on State Road 434, Longwood, at about 11:29 p.m. Monday.

The trouble began at about 11:10 p.m. when Bial walked into the store and allegedly stole a $3 crowbar from a display. He reportedly was found by the store manager in a caged storage area holding cigarettes, video tapes and perfume. The manager said Bial was trying to pry open the cage when he stopped him and chased him to the front of the store. Bial was caught and twice wrestled to the floor by store employees, but managed to escape.

The struggle continued until police arrived. Sheriff's deputies report store employees were bruised in the fight with the suspect.

In the second case, at about 8:30 a.m. Monday, employees of Winn-Dixie, State Road 434, at U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood, were injured when they tried to stop a fleeing robbery suspect.

was nabbed on Oxford Road at Wildmere Street, after driving away in a pickup truck.

One employee who jumped onto the suspect's truck to try to stop him after an alleged theft of $28 worth of meat from the store, was injured when he was thrown from the truck as it left the store, police said. Police captured the suspect at about 9 a.m. and brought him back to the store where he was reportedly identified by employees. Brown was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond.

Sing it loudly, 'heat goes on'

By Fred H. Cooper
Herald Staff Writer

Two songs might come to mind today, one requiring a slight adjustment in title. "The heat goes on" is most appropriate for today, tomorrow and the remainder of the summer. However, "Tomorrow" might become your favorite if current conditions are unchanged. It could rain today in the late afternoon, but the chances are very good for rainfall tomorrow.

Now here's the situation. Average rainfall for Seminole County in May is about 4 inches but so far this month we've had less than an inch. About 25 percent of normal. Now don't start shouting "rainfall is abnormal," but actually that's about the size of it. If it comes, you can celebrate.

Now if the rains don't come, we don't want you to feel frustrated without something to celebrate. So, this week is National Pickle Week. Be it dull or sweet, start the fads do do in an appropriate manner.

If you're unfamiliar with the weather conditions today, it's the same as yesterday - highs in the 90s, lows were 70 in south county and 68 degrees in Sanford. Winds are gentle and from the south. Sun just blazes down. You can go to the beach but the water there is such that you could rename it Lake Atlantic. So go back to singing "Tomorrow" just like Annie. Let's just hope the storms hitting the north country don't come down here.

Thunderstorms that hung powerful winds which toppled trees from Brooklyn to North Carolina and injured at least one person battered the mid-Atlantic coast today.

Strong storms lined the coast from southeastern New York state to Delaware early today, with showers and thunderstorms extended from western Pennsylvania to eastern South Carolina.

A flood watch was posted for today for small streams in the Catskills and the lower Hudson Valley in New York. Light showers early today fell across New England.

Thunderstorms Monday night unleashed large hail and damaging winds from New York state to Georgia. Northern North Carolina was hard hit by winds that downed power lines and trees in Roxboro, Durham, and Raleigh, the National Weather Service said.

The nation's temperatures ranged from readings of 106 degrees at Bullhead and Yuma, Arizona to a low of 23 degrees at Gunnison, Colorado.

Thunderstorms pelted Randolph County with hail the size of golf balls and winds that downed "many trees."

"One person was pinned and injured by a tree downed by strong thunderstorm winds in western Alamance County," forecaster Hugh Crowther said. "The high winds damaged four homes and two apartments."

Late evening storms in Virginia hurled winds that downed trees and power lines in Halifax County.

In Pennsylvania wind gusts were clocked at 61 mph at Pittsburgh. Half-dollar size hail fell and winds toppled trees northeast of Philadelphia, the NWS said.

(Reports by United Press International and data provided by the National Weather Service were used in compiling this report.)

Report paints grim picture for Soviets in Afghanistan

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — The Soviet army in Afghanistan suffered from widespread drug abuse, internal conflict and desertions by soldiers fed up with primitive health care and hygiene, a study released Monday said.

The report, based on interviews with 35 Soviet war veterans as well as talks with Afghan resistance leaders and an extensive survey of Soviet military literature, was prepared by the RAND Corp.'s U.S. Army-sponsored Arroyo Center.

The report, "Inside the Soviet Army in Afghanistan," was billed as the first systematic examination of Soviet armed forces in post-World War II combat incorporating substantial firsthand information.

Author Alexander Alexiev and his RAND colleagues interviewed Soviet defectors and prisoners of war from a variety of military specialties, ranks and ethnic backgrounds who served in Afghanistan at various times between 1980 and 1987.

The study found:

- Drug use was so widespread, with more than 50 percent of Soviet personnel said to be regular users, that it will likely have a negative effect on Soviet society long after the troop withdrawal, which began May 15, is completed.

- Disease, often caused by extremely poor hygiene, may have claimed more casualties than the bullets of the U.S.-supported mujahideen resistance fighters, while inadequate living conditions and isolations also sapped health and morale.
- Fragging (murder between servicemen) and desertions appeared "fairly common (with scattered evidence of open and even organized insubordination)." The victims of the fragging were typically other servicemen rather than officers.

- Soviet officers instigated reprisals and brutality against the civilian population in violation of international conventions even as they punished troops engaged in "freelance" looting and atrocities.
- Ethnic conflicts in the ranks, particularly between Soviet Muslims and the Slavic majority, were a continuing problem.

The study also found that the estimated 115,000 troops were psychologically ill-prepared for service in Afghanistan.

Before being shipped to Afghanistan, troops were often told that they have been invited by the Afghan people and would be fighting foreign mercenaries. Once in country, they were instructed to regard every Afghan, including women and children, as a potential enemy.

The study said desertion totals were unavailable, but more than 100 Soviet servicemen are known to have successfully de-fected to the mujahideen.

"In taking this extreme and nearly suicidal step, the vast majority of deserters, with some notable exceptions, have been motivated not by political alienation from the Soviet system, but simply by what they considered unbearable conditions," Alexiev wrote.

Among the indicators of a "surprising lack of concern of the care of the troops" were water shortages and meager staffing of even the largest Soviet military medical facilities in Afghanistan.

Cannes festival lackluster affair

CANNES, France (UPI) — The Scandinavian film "Pelle the Conqueror" won the Golden Palm top award Monday at the Cannes Film Festival, a lackluster affair this year partly because of the Hollywood writers' strike.

U.S. actor Forest Whitaker won the Cannes prize for best actor for his performance in actor-director Clint Eastwood's "Bird," the film biography of jazz saxophonist Charlie "Bird" Parker.

The prize for best actress was shared by U.S. actress Barbara Hershey, British debutante Jodhi May and South African actress Linda Meusi for their performances in "A World Apart," an anti-Apartheid film.

"A World Apart" had been the front-runner in the film festival but it received the runner-up Jury's Special Prize and was nudged aside in favor of Danish director Bille August's "Pelle the Conqueror," a Danish-Swedish co-production about a worker and his son seeking utopia on a Swedish island in the early 20th century.

The prize for best direction went to Argentinian Fernando Solanas for his film "South," about a man imprisoned five years by the Argentine military until its fall from power in 1983.

From India, the film "Salaam Bombay" won the Camera d'Or, or Golden Camera, award for best work by a young director. The film was made by female director Mira Nair and won a warm reception at the 41st Cannes festival.

Despite enthusiasm for the winners, most people attending this last day of the two-week film event felt the festival overall started slow and ended weak, with a low volume of industry dealmaking.

Despite high points like "A World Apart" and "Bird," Cannes '88 seemed flat.

One reason was the Hollywood writers' strike, which led studios to hold back films. The American Film Market in Los Angeles in February did a much stronger business than Cannes. And, most critics agreed, the overall quality of films appearing this year at Cannes was lackluster.

"Everyone's been less busy," said distributor David Lampin of Orion Pictures. Added international film magazine publisher Elspeth Tavares: "There isn't room for so many markets. If you buy a raincoat in February, you don't buy another one in May or October."

There also were fewer stars. Robert Redford, Clint Eastwood, Richard Gere and Arnold Schwarzenegger did not generate the hysteria of last year's glittering appearances by Liz Taylor, Mickey Rourke and British royal couple Prince Charles and Diana.

Of the U.S. offerings, "Patty Hearst," the story of the kidnapped newspaper heiress turned revolutionary, was at best controversial. Eastwood's story of jazzman Charlie Parker was well-liked but lacked wide appeal.

More zip came from Mira Nair's "Salaam Bombay" or Britain Peter Greenaway's eccentric "Drowning by Numbers."

As industry analyst Oscar Moore put it, "There was more drama in the weather than the cinemas this year."

Some paths came from the controversy over plans to raze the old Palace of the Festival, the grand, colonnaded movie house on the Croisette waterfront which hosted Cannes festivals for nearly four decades.

Those indifferent to the fate of the Palais at least regretted the disappearance of the Director's Fortnight, a section of competition that allowed for a more adventurous type of film.

The imminent destruction of the Palace to make way for a luxury hotel gave Cannes festival officials an excuse to dispense with the Directors' Fortnight, a sideshow that at times upstaged the main event.

Chilling reminder of man's plight

In 1972, the major powers signed an accord banning the development, production and stockpiling of biological weapons. It was a historic breakthrough, but it does not mean that the world is safe from the dangers of germ warfare.

Biological and chemical weaponry remain the "poor nation's atomic bombs." And as Iraq's hideous gas attacks against soldiers and civilians in the gulf war shows, the use of these weapons remains a real possibility. Because of the threat of clandestine germ-weapon production, the major powers, under the accords of the 1972 pact, maintain bioweapon research facilities. These laboratories are used to develop countermeasures, including antidotes, protective clothing and detectors.

While the need to maintain a defensive capability exists, the U.S. Army's plans for a new bioweapon lab at Dugway Proving Ground in Utah should be studied carefully. Residents are concerned about deadly biological agents escaping the lab. This is an understandable fear, given both the Army's past record of mishandling gas weapon tests at Dugway and a recent congressional report of "serious deficiencies" in safety procedures at other Army chemical and biological test sites.

For these reasons, a full congressional review is called for. Safety is a primary concern. Although the lab is a maximum containment facility, serious consideration should be given to situating it in an even more remote site. Also, congressional oversight should be strict, monitoring both the number and types of tests and biological agents used. These safeguards could reduce safety concerns and international fears that the site could be used for the mass production of new germ agents.

That such a lab is even considered necessary is a chilling reminder of how much further we need to go to ban weapons of mass destruction.

Notch dilemma

If you are a retired "notch baby," born in the 1917-21 period, you may be tempted to agree with pressure groups that say you are getting a raw deal on Social Security. After all, your retirement benefits are not as large as they would be if you were a year or two older.

But that's only part of the story—and a misleading part at that. Chances are that your pension is a pretty generous deal by comparison with the benefits that somewhat younger retirees receive. Moreover, the Social Security fund would be in serious financial trouble if it had kept escalating benefits the way it did for people born before 1917. Many retirees would begin receiving pensions larger than their paychecks had been, and Social Security tax would have to rise to formidable levels.

The culprit was a policy known as double indexing: Benefits rose when wages increased and again when prices increased. Congress voted to correct that problem, phasing in the change over a five-year span to ease the jolt on people who had been looking forward to the sort of bonanza that the beneficiaries of double-indexing received.

Going back to the old system is out of question: the nation cannot afford it. And moving the notch forward a few years, to mollify people born in the 1917-21 period, would solve nothing. Congress would just have to contend with a different group of notch babies crying for special treatment.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Boy, oh, boy! The ol' memory is going. I guess you've been having that problem lately, too — eh, George?"

VINCENT CARROLL

Bush is stuck on '79 campaign tactics

With less than six months before the national election, George Bush is peering over his shoulder at a bleak vision from the past. He's come out foursquare against double-digit inflation, high interest rates and popular malaise — the three signposts of Jimmy Carter's doom.

Won't someone tell the vice president that it's 1988?

Bush is hardly the first candidate to campaign against the past. Republicans "waved the bloody shirt" for decades after the Civil War, blaming Democrats for the slaughter. After 1932, Democrats turned the same tactic on the GOP, reminding voters year after year of Herbert Hoover's legacy.

Admittedly, no savvy GOP strategist could afford to neglect a comparison between today's economic indicators and the suppressed despair of 1929. But there's a task in focusing too much on Jimmy Carter. Even Republican pollsters acknowledge that the electorate is in a peculiar frame of mind this year. Voters simply refuse to recognize how well off they are.

According to several GOP-sponsored surveys, over half of all Americans think the nation is headed in the wrong direction. They feel a vague anxiety about the future, as if prosperity were on temporary loan. Asked what they worry about, they're likely to mention drugs, child care, crime, poverty, AIDS, education, the homeless.

Since these concerns have survived low inflation and interest rates, they deny Bush a natural advantage. He may talk all day about how the GOP has presided over the longest economic expansion in the postwar era, but voters may tune him out. Tell us about the next four years, they'll probably say.

At this point, Bush deflates. Although he talks a great deal about his "vision" for America, it hasn't been clearly conveyed. Yet if Bush fails to flesh out details of his vision, he'll have ignored a beckoning opportunity. Creative answers already exist for some of the very concerns identified by pollsters. They await only an enterprising candidate to notice.

Take education, an issue Bush claims is central to his campaign. Politicians have traditionally demonstrated concern for schools by promising to spend more money on them. Yet has instruction really improved as a result? If Bush is serious about educational quality, he'll endorse parental choice of public schools.

Minnesota provides the example here. By letting parents send their kids to the public school of their choice — across town, across district lines, on the other side of the state if they can arrange it — Minnesota has begun to force public schools for the first time to compete.

Or consider child care. If Bush were smart, he'd outflank Democrats by insisting that current attempts to expand federal subsidies for day-care centers are both unfair and insufficient. He'd argue in favor of giving a child-care tax credit to all needy families with young children, whether they're raised at home or with professional help. And he'd plump for a doubling of the tax exemption for dependents, which would lift tens of thousands of families out of poverty.

That's called seizing the initiative.

ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Freezeniks undermine freedom

WASHINGTON—If the freezeniks and their fellow travelers at college campuses and churches have their way, the United States will adopt a program of total unilateral disarmament while the Soviets continue to maintain their enormous military strength.

One can easily guess what would happen under those circumstances. The American people would be blackmailed into submission with the consequent loss of their liberties.

In the mail the other day came a handout from something called United Campuses to Prevent Nuclear War (UCAM). In the line print, one learns this is an amalgam of familiar unilateral disarmament groups—basic elements of the anti-defense lobby.

The handout was a promotion piece for the anti-defense activities bannered "Spring Into Action." While this movement actually enhances the chance of war by encouraging aggressors to strike against a disarmed free world, one has to give UCAM credit for covering all the bases in its disinformation effort.

The movement is for speedy passage of the INF missile treaty, but it also wants to follow up with drastic reduction in conventional arms. Realistic people know that with the elimination of a class of nuclear weapons, the NATO countries have greater need than ever for strengthening their conventional forces.

The radical line these days is "take a chance for peace." But how much of a chance would the NATO allies have if they dismantled their conventional forces as well as intermediate range missiles? The answer is "zilch." Without strong conventional defenses, the Western countries would be unable to stop the inevitable Soviet sweep to the Atlantic.

The radical disarmers in groups such as United Campuses to Prevent Nuclear War aren't limiting their efforts to lobbying Congress. They are busy trying to smear U.S. companies that manufacture equipment for the national defense.

Organizations such as United Campuses to Prevent Nuclear War thrive on publicity. Therefore, in one sense, it's unfortunate to spotlight such groups. On the other hand, responsible citizens have a need to know about organizations that are dedicated to weakening the defense of freedom.

Dukakis: Dry but competent candidate

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — In the privacy of Washington's smoke-filled back rooms, Democratic leaders acknowledge that they have been choosing poor candidates for president. In 1976, Jimmy Carter was unknown beyond Georgia, untested in national politics and unqualified for the job. Then, the Democrats nominated Walter Mondale who was qualified, but boring.

Now they are about to nominate a candidate as unknown as Carter and as unexciting as Mondale. Michael Dukakis has emerged too suddenly from national obscurity for Americans to really get to know him.

We looked into this virtual unknown who wants to be president of the United States, and here is our appraisal:

Dukakis comes across as dry and dull, but competent. Yet those who know him unanimously agree he is a politician of broad gauge, deep thought and lofty vision.

ROBERT WAGMAN

No V.P. Jackson

WASHINGTON (NEA) — There is almost no chance that Jesse Jackson will be offered the No. 2 spot on the Democratic ticket this fall, according to top-level party operatives.

These sources say each of three separate national polls the party has commissioned over the past six weeks contains very good news for Democratic presidential frontrunner Michael Dukakis — but very bad news for Jackson.

All three polls showed that — if the presidential election were to be held today — Gov. Dukakis of Massachusetts would defeat Vice President George Bush, the Republican candidate.

What the Democratic Party's polls showed, according to the experts, is that the vice president has not been able to hold together the coalition that swept President Reagan into office in 1980 and re-elected him in 1984.

That GOP coalition featured a high percentage of blue-collar workers in the East and Midwest, and conservative Democrats in the South and West. The early polling shows a high percentage of these traditional Democratic voters returning to the fold.

The bad news for Jackson came when he was matched by the voter surveys with Dukakis as the vice presidential nominee in a mythical race against Bush and a range of potential GOP running mates.

In all three polls, clear Dukakis victories became toss-up contests or narrow Bush victories. In each poll, Dukakis lost 6 to 8 points when matched with Jackson. Almost as important, with Jackson on the ticket there were significantly fewer undecideds, with Bush picking up most of those now stating a preference.

The conclusion is obvious. At this point in time, in a close race — and all concerned are now predicting a close contest in November — Jesse Jackson is a negative. He would cost the ticket more votes than he would bring to it.

What Jackson would bring to the ticket would be very large numbers of black voters, Democrats, however, are not worried that these voters will suddenly turn Republican if Jackson is not on the ticket.

But what may happen, and this does worry Democratic planners, is that large numbers of black voters may become disillusioned and stay at home in November if they feel Jackson has been frozen out of the nominating process.

In short, party leaders want to satisfy Jackson even while denying him the second spot on the ticket. If Jackson works hard this fall to ensure a large black voter turnout for the Democrats, it might provide the boost to put Dukakis over the top.

Party leaders hope Jackson will see that it is in his own long-term best interest to turn out large numbers of supporters to vote for someone besides himself. If he can do this, he will have positioned himself as a major force within the party for years to come. Party leaders believe Jackson realizes this and will work hard for the ticket in November — even if he is not on it.

So, if not Jackson, who?

Both Dukakis campaign higher-ups and party leaders hope that a consensus can be formed behind a potential vice presidential nominee before the convention in Atlanta.

Two names frequently mentioned for the second spot on a Dukakis ticket are New Jersey Sen. Bill Bradley and Ohio Sen. John Glenn.

Bears are creatures of habit

By Elisabeth Pennisi
UPI Science Writer

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Even grizzly bears, though known for being loners, have a cultural heritage that shapes their behavior and their use of resources, according to a Alaska biologist.

Since 1984, Robert Fagen, associate professor of biometry at the University of Alaska in Juneau, Alaska, has studied Alaskan brown bears that have come down from the mountains to the Alexander Archipelago to feast on spawning salmon. Though slightly different than the grizzlies of Yellowstone Park, for example, Alaskan brown bears and grizzlies are the same species.

From a distance, he and tourists can see up to 30 bears on the grassy tidal flats. For their long-term study of about 20 bears, he and his co-workers have accumulated 800 hours of observations, enough to enable them to detect cultural traditions and individual differences in the bears.

In general, bears stick to tradition. For generations, perhaps millions of years, these bears have followed the same routes between the mountains and the estuary.

Mothers and their adolescent cubs tend to have the same patterns. If the mother spends 20 percent of her time on the tidal flats, her offspring do as well. "The differences that we've demonstrated for mothers point in the same directions as differences in their young," Fagen said during a lecture in Tucson.

They also fish in the same spots as she does, despite the fact that they are free to run around, said Fagen. "The rule may be that you prefer the habitat that you are brought up in, even if it is only 10 yards long."

Cultural factors — including play behavior — also affect how the bears use their environment. Even though they tend to be thought of as loners, bears can form tightly knit social groups, said Fagen. Like people, bears have different shapes, sizes, experiences, habits and social roles. These differences affect how they spend their time.

"Play is hypothesized to generate a lot of the individual differences in social status," said Fagen.

intervene in the economy and attract and promote new businesses with federal tax dollars to develop and create needed employment here in the United States."

On foreign and defense policy, Dukakis adheres to the liberal line: against U.S. intervention in Third World affairs; against military intervention in Central America; for more limits on armaments; for a "substantial" reduction in nuclear arms and against underground nuclear testing. He would halt research on Star Wars and reduce funding for the space program. Politically, he might be described as Ted Kennedy with eyebrows.

Of small physical stature, Michael Dukakis seems to be larger than he is, through knack of carriage. Those who know him believe he will live up to the illusion.

IN BRIEF

House, Senate conferees begin negotiating budget proposals

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — House and Senate conferees began negotiations Monday to work out differences in rival $20.7-billion budget proposals as Gov. Bob Martinez remained at least nominally on the sidelines.

However, Secretary of Transportation Kaye Henderson opened a possible avenue of compromise by backing away from Martinez' plan to pledge money from the $550 million Infrastructure Trust Fund for transportation bonds — a key sticking point in the talks.

The governor has been talking about floating bonds against a portion of the trust fund, a public works account created in the compromise that raised the state sales tax to 6 percent. But lawmakers have been hostile to the idea, and Henderson backed away from it Monday.

"That never was the request of the governor," he asserted. "The bonding principle needs to be established this year, and it's essential that it be established for future revenue from a guaranteed source. But that guaranteed source does not have to be identified this year."

Jon Peck, the governor's spokesman, said Martinez is still committed to bonding the public works money this year.

Whales, humans join forces

ORLANDO (UPI) — Humans are returning to the waters of Sea World for training and performance with the park's killer whales, a crowd-pleasing practice banned last year after a trainer was seriously hurt.

Rehearsals started Monday for a new killer whale show to begin June 3 at the Orlando theme park. It will be the first with humans in six months.

Sea World officials said humans would also be performing in killer whale pools at the other Sea Worlds owned by Orlando publisher Harcourt Brace Jovanovich Inc. near Cleveland, San Antonio, Texas, and San Diego.

Florida leads in boating deaths

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Florida leads the nation in boating fatalities, and Marine Patrol officials said the problem could get even worse.

There were 102 fatal boating accidents in Florida last year, accounting for 1 of every 10 boating fatalities in the United States. Florida's death rate per 100,000 registered boats was 16.06, more than double the national rate of 8.1.

Fifty-four people have died in boating accidents already this year. With the big three boating weekends still to come — Memorial Day, Labor Day and the Fourth of July — Marine Patrol officials fear the 1988 body count may reach 150.

"The problem is three-fold — inattention, alcohol abuse and speed," said Marine Patrol Commander Col. D.N. Ellingsen Monday. "When you have any one or a number of those things put together, it results in a problem, that problem being a boating accident and maybe a fatality."

Detained Americans on hunger strike

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — Six Americans accused of illegally entering Indonesian waters on a treasure hunt — even though they say they were just scuba diving — went on a hunger strike Monday, fearful that they may face months in an Indonesian jail.

"My wedding anniversary is today," said Danny Commerford of Orange, Calif., choking back tears. "Tell my wife I love her very much."

"Tell Kelly — she's nine and she's my daughter — that I'm proud to hear she got four As and two Bs on her report card," added the 39-year-old building inspector in a telephone interview from Tanjungpinang, where he has been held with five other Californians, three Australians and a Briton since March 22.

Commerford has another daughter, Sarah, 5, who starts kindergarten soon, but her father is unlikely to be around for the big day.

"Our most optimistic scenario is detention for another two months, but it could go six or seven months," he said.

Monday's hearing was the second for Commerford and the nine others on charges of entering Indonesian waters illegally and was adjourned until June 2.

"We have been here for 62 days, and in all that time we have been in court for just two hours," he said, adding that the Americans planned their hunger strike in an effort to speed up the proceedings.

The 10 were arrested at gunpoint two months ago when their Indonesian-flagged vessel Bumi Indah was spotted by a patrol craft in Indonesian waters 55 miles from Tanjungpinang in Riau province.

"Our feeling is that we are being held until the court comes up with an exorbitant fine," Commerford said.

The 10, who say they are diving enthusiasts who were on a holiday jaunt in the waters off Indonesia, face fines of $135,000 if found guilty of illegally entering the country's 200-mile Exclusive Economic Zone.

Tanjungpinang, where the 10 are held and where their trial began May 14, is 500 miles northwest of the capital of Jakarta and 60 miles south of Singapore, the city-state where the saga began.

"We are all just scuba diving enthusiasts, and we decided to be adventurous and organize our own diving trip from Singapore rather than buying into a package for, say, Hawaii," Commerford said.

The presence of Bumi Indah near the spot where at least half a dozen 18th century galleons are believed to have gone down prompted accusations from Indonesian authorities that the vacationers were actually prowling for sunken treasure. All 10 have denied the allegations, pointing out that not one of them is a professional diver.

"What is more is that most of us are now in real financial difficulties. Our businesses are falling apart," Commerford said. Two years ago, Jakarta accused British treasure hunter Michael Hatcher of stealing booty worth over $15 million from the Geldermalsen, which sank in 1752.

Since then, Jakarta has increased efforts to deter unlicensed treasure hunters from prospecting in Indonesian waters.

"The people of the U.S. ought to know what can happen if you are adventurous and you go on a scuba diving trip in a foreign country," Commerford said. "They ought to know what is happening to us. Things are just falling apart, but no one in authority seems to care."

Besides Commerford, the Californians are identified as Bruce Lanham and his brother, Robert; Clifton Craft; Patrick Gibson and James Vorus.

The Australians are Peter Howes, Paul Martino and his son, Paul; and the Briton, Mark Tomlinson.

Miami police force subject of corruption study

MIAMI (UPI) — The beleaguered Miami police force, rocked by a major corruption case that sent 14 officers to jail, will be the subject of a study on how illegal drug trafficking can corrupt police, officials said Monday.

Miami Police Chief Clarence Dickson said he asked the U.S. Department of Justice to conduct the study to "help measure the effects cocaine and other drugs are having on officers."

He said it can be used by agencies nationwide to help them deal with the corrupt influences of drugs.

Police in Miami, Los Angeles and Washington will be the

"This will give us the good, the bad and the ugly — hanging the old linen out. Like it or not, it's got to be done."

—Clarence Dickson
Miami police chief subject of the $375,000 federal study, said Dickson, chief since January 1985.

"This will be the first independent study of how well or how badly we've handled our corruption problem," Dickson said. "We have made a lot of changes — surface changes — to correct problems, based mostly on our in-house critiquing. I want someone on the outside to tell us if we have done enough."

Dickson said the department will aid investigators "100 percent" and provide everything from personnel files to investigative reports on corruption probes.

He said results will be used to review current management practices and to teach officers and their supervisors how to resist corruption.

Dickson, who said he asked for the study earlier this year, noted the results could be risky for him.

Their first reaction was surprise. It's not politically a good idea for a department to do this because there is the chance that a lot of other problems will turn up — and departments don't normally like volunteering for that," he said.

More than 100 current and former officers have been implicated in criminal activity during the past three years.

Fourteen officers connected with the notorious "river cops" case have received prison sentences. The cocaine ring ring by officers was uncovered in July 1985 after three smugglers drowned in the Miami River.

The study should begin by late summer and last up to 1 1/2 years, police said. Dickson said one of three organizations — the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the Police Foundation and the Police Executive Research Foundation — should be selected within the next few weeks to conduct the study.

"This will give us the good, the bad and the ugly — hanging the old linen out," he said. "Like it or not, it's got to be done."

Philippines soften anti-American stand

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Senators softened their anti-American stand Monday on a key issue threatening the future of U.S. military bases in the Philippines and agreed to amend a proposed nuclear weapons ban.

Sen. Wigberto Tanada said 15 of 23 Senate members met in a closed-door session and agreed in principle to allow nuclear-powered vessels to make port calls, but only after they are inspected by Philippine authorities.

U.S. officials have said passage of the original bill that bans the "development, manufacture, acquisition, testing, use or storage of nuclear arms and components," could lead to the dismantling of U.S. bases in the Philippines.

The United States maintains six military bases in the former American colony, including Clark Air Base and Subic Bay Naval Base, which houses more than 17,000 servicemen and their dependents. The two are the largest and oldest U.S. military installations overseas.

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in Manila declined comment, but diplomats said the anti-nuclear bill was unacceptable to the United States even with the proposed change.

The United States has a standing policy of refusing to confirm or deny the presence of nuclear weapons aboard its ships.

The original bill, which reflects the new constitution approved after President Corazon Aquino was swept into power by a 1986 popularly backed military revolt, prohibits the entry of "nuclear armed, nuclear-powered or nuclear-capable military overland transporters, ships or seaborne vessels or submarines, or aircraft or airborne vehicles."

Tanada, the bill's sponsor, said the proposed amendments still ban the entry of ships carrying nuclear weapons. But he says vessels capable of carrying nuclear arms will be allowed entry provided there is prior inspection by Philippine authorities.

"Before these nuclear-powered or armed vessels or aircraft are allowed to enter our territory, they would be subject to verification and inspection," Tanada told reporters after the 2-1/2 hour Senators' meeting.

He said the amendments to his bill were expected to be made in Senate sessions beginning Tuesday.

But Tanada, a member of Aquino's party, expressed his disappointment over the decision, saying "I'm a bit sad because the terms 'nuclear-powered' as well as the term 'nuclear-capable' were deleted or excluded from the ban."

Last year, the United States scuttled its 38-year-old military pact with New Zealand after its Parliament insisted on knowing whether U.S. ships were nuclear-armed or powered before they made port calls.

A similar anti-nuclear bill remains frozen in the more conservative Philippines House of Representatives and its passage is unlikely before the session ends June 10.

Deranged killer may have been involved in unsolved crimes

WINNETKA, Ill. (UPI) — Police formed a special task force to search for possible links between deranged killer Laurie Wasserman Dann and unsolved crimes, including the 1982 Tylenol poisonings that left seven people dead.

The task force was formed Monday on the day schoolmates sobbed over the coffin of 8-year-old Nicky Corwin, the second-grader gunned down Friday by Dann in his classroom at the Hubbard Woods Elementary School.

Dann, a 30-year-old neighborhood babysitter, burst into the school with two handguns and opened fire, wounding five of Nicky's schoolmates, then ran to a nearby house where she wounded 20-year-old Phillip Andrew and holed up for hours before killing herself.

Winnetka Police Chief Herbert Timm said the task force includes between eight and 10 officers from police departments in Chicago's posh north shore and the Cook County sheriff's office.

"We're looking to past acts that may have been done — that she might have been involved with," Timm said. "Until we feel secure, I'm not going to say it's over."

Reagan to veto trade bill today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan chose today for his long-awaited veto of trade reform legislation, drawing the expected protest from Congress despite his claim to taking the nation economically toward "the roaring 1990s."

The president objects primarily to a requirement for 60 days' advance notice of factory closings as part of the 2,000-page compromise bill designed to open global markets to U.S. products, to crack down on foreign trade abuses and to assist American industries and workers hurt by imports.

The legislation has wide support in Congress, however, and the House planned to answer Reagan's veto with an immediate override attempt today. The measure was approved by the House last month 312-107, well in excess of the two-thirds majority needed to enact into law over a veto.

Conspirators plead innocent

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Londell and Tammy Williams, the couple accused in a white supremacist plot to kill Jesse Jackson, pleaded innocent and their lawyers asked the judge to lift an order jailing them until their July trial.

U.S. District Judge Edward Filippine set the July 18 trial date after Williams, 30, and his wife, Tammy, 27, pleaded innocent to all charges against them Monday in a 10-minute hearing.

Their lawyers, Cynthia Short and John Hughes, then filed a motion with the court asking for reconsideration of an order by U.S. Magistrate Carol Jackson jailing the couple without bond until their trial.

Since the charges were filed Tuesday, the Williamses have been held without bail because the magistrate ruled they posed a threat to the Democratic presidential candidate.

Soviet army won't return to aid Afghan forces now under attack

KABUL, Afghanistan (UPI) — A senior Soviet military official says retreating Russian troops will not return to their former bases to rescue allied Afghan forces being attacked by Moslem rebels.

The official, in an interview Monday with United Press International, said the Soviet Union was determined to abide strictly by U.N.-mediated accords signed April 14 in Geneva providing for the Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan that began May 15.

Speaking on condition of anonymity, the official also disclosed for the first time that some 10,000 Soviet troops have been withdrawn from eastern Nangahar Province via its capital of Jalalabad since the beginning of the Soviet withdrawal. That province borders Pakistan.

The third and final column of troops to depart Jalalabad, about 90 miles east of Kabul and astride the main supply route to the capital from Pakistan, arrived in the city Sunday and left Monday in about 200 vehicles for the three-day drive to the Soviet border.

No deaths in fiery plane crash

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — All 28 passengers and crew survived the fiery crash of a Costa Rican airliner that rose 20 feet into the air, then plowed into a coffee field during takeoff from the San Jose airport. Only two people were injured.

"We began the takeoff normally, then the plane suddenly crashed, the seats broke loose and we saw flames and smoke," said Dora Greenhall, a passenger from Miami and one of eight Americans aboard the flight Monday.

Flight 628 of the Costa Rican airlines, LACSA, climbed about 20 feet, then crashed in the coffee field about 650 feet from the end of the runway at the Juan Santamaria International Airport, 12 miles north of the capital.

The Boeing 727, carrying 20 passengers and a crew of eight, was taking off on a flight to Miami via Managua, Nicaragua. Civil Aviation Director Carlos Viquez said investigators today were looking for the cause of the crash.

Witnesses said the plane burst into flames. But an airline spokesman said the fire was confined to a wing that broke off in the crash, the first in the 40-year history of the airline.

Hijacker escapes into swamp

CARTAGENA, Colombia (UPI) — Police searched mangrove swamps near the Cartagena airport for a hijacker who leaped from the rear exit of a Colombian airliner shortly after it made a surprise landing to end a bizarre 1,300-mile journey around the Southwest Caribbean.

The man, who claimed to be dying of AIDS and was armed with grenades and a pistol, hijacked the Avianca Boeing 727 airliner Monday morning, freed its 131 passengers, then forced the plane to Panama, the island of Aruba and back to Colombia before fleeing the jet.

After landing at Rafael Nunez International Airport Monday night, the hijacker ordered the flight crew to taxi the plane to the end of the runway, where he jumped from the rear of the jet and fled into a mangrove swamp, police said.

Police equipped with spotlights searched the swamp between the airport runway and the Caribbean Sea at Cartagena, some 400 miles southwest of Aruba.

Newport folk fest making comeback

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — The Newport Folk Festival, rescued from near-death by a ice cream entrepreneurs Ben & Jerry, is going contemporary this summer with big name entertainers and public radio exposure, officials said Monday.

Los Lobos and the Robert Cray Band will headline the Aug. 20-21 event at Fort Adams State Park. The program, to be called Ben & Jerry's Newport Folk Festival, is shifting from the nostalgic and traditional bookings of the 1965-87 events to a heavier accent on contemporary sounds of folk and cross-over music.

"It's not all folk, but it's folksy. Contemporary is the name of the game in music these days," festival founder George Wein said.

The lineup for Saturday, Aug. 20, will include Los Lobos, the West Coast band with the 1987 hit movie theme song "La Bamba"; guitarist Richard Thompson, who founded the 1970s British folk-rock revival group, Fairport Convention; Queen Ida and her Bontempus Zydeco Band, folk festival veterans Bully St. Marie and Taj Mahal; and Odadda! — a traditional African dance and drum group from Ghana.

The Sunday finale will feature the contemporary blues sound of Cray, New Orleans rhythm & blues pianist Dr. John, the group Nashville Bluegrass, and veteran folkers Holly Near, Tom Paxton, and Doc Watson.

Los Lobos and Cray both played last month at Wein's New Orleans Jazz and Heritage Festival and are eager to play Newport, Wein said.

"We've always had the blues at folk festivals going way back to the early days—B.B. King, Muddy Waters, Mississippi John Hurt, Sleepy John Estes, Howlin' Wolf—we had them all," Wein said.

The historic Newport Folk Festival, which ran from 1959 to 1989, was a career launching pad for Joan Baez, Judy Collins, Arlo Guthrie and his "Alice's Restaurant" anti-draft rag. It was also where Bob Dylan debuted his shift to electric guitar.

Wein and his folk producer, Robert Jones, revived the event in 1985. Last year's sponsor was Nestle Foods Corp., which was criticized from the stage by several performers. Collins and British punk-folker Billy Bragg spoke about nagging questions concerning Nestle's role in supplying infant formula to poor Third World countries, a practice critics contend discourages breast-feeding.

Nestle dropped out of the picture this year after deciding not to increase its support for an expanded event. Ben & Jerry's Homemade Inc., rapidly growing Vermont-based maker of superpremium ice cream, decided to get involved this month.

"We're pleased Ben & Jerry's has rescued the Folk Festival. They love folk music, and this whole thing was put together in two weeks. It made life very easy for us, considering that we were prepared to let the Folk Festival die," Wein said.

Ben & Jerry's multi-year commitment includes an ambitious expansion of the festival format and exposure. The sponsor will also underwrite two two-hour programs to be broadcast on the American Public Radio network over Labor Day Weekend.

For the first time since 1969, the festival will also scheduling workshops the old event was famous for. One morning workshop will be on guitar playing, another on songwriting.

"The Newport Folk Festival has always been the central and leading showcase of folk music," said Allan Kaufman, executive director of sales and marketing for Ben & Jerry's. "We feel it is important to ensure its continuation to help present and foster folk artists, public radio, and the audience for both."

Woman will wed sailor with AIDS

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — A mother of one plans to marry a Navy enlisted man acquitted on charges of having unprotected sex with an ex-girlfriend after testing positive for the AIDS virus, a report said Monday.

"We're eager to get on with our lives and make them as normal as possible," Karen Skardahl, 25, told the San Francisco Examiner.

Skardahl, a security specialist at SRI in Menlo Park, Calif., said she would marry John Crawford, 27, on June 18-38 days after his release from a 15-day brig sentence.

Even though Crawford, who will return to civilian life and pursue a career in the electronics field, was acquitted of the assault charges after a court-martial last month on Treasure Island, he was convicted on a charge of having his ex-girlfriend in his barracks after curfew.

Skardahl said she met Crawford three years ago in a Mountain View club frequented by sailors from nearby Moffett Field Naval Air Station. She said she then dated him off and on, becoming engaged in October. The father of her 5-month-old son, Brian, was someone else, she said.

Early last year Crawford took a mandatory Navy blood test and learned he tested positive for antibodies to the human immunodeficiency virus which causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

"At first I was hysterical when he told me but, after a half-hour or so, I finally calmed down," she said.

"For a while I felt he was going to die. While it's still a possibility, neither of us dwells on it any longer, and we don't base our future on it."

"We've got too much going," she said her fiancé was "totally shocked" when he got the results of the blood test. She added he was not homosexual or bisexual and he was not a drug user.

She said he believes he picked up the virus while he was with the Navy in Naples, Italy, around 1982 or 1983, when he was tattooed with dirty needles.

The threat of becoming ill with AIDS has not deterred their plans for marriage, she said. "I adore John," she added. "He's very sweet and generous, and he's my best friend. And John's so good with Brian."

Skardahl said she had been tested three times for the AIDS virus in the last year and has come up clean each time.

Since Crawford informed her of his condition, she said, "Both of us have been using protection (during sex) and that also includes not sharing toothbrushes or razors."

French: Graf rolls, McEnroe struggles

PARIS (UPI) — Steffi Graf launched her French Open title defense with a quick victory Monday, and John McEnroe, who admits his chances of winning are remote, struggled through two tie-breakers to advance to the second round.

Graf, the world's No. 1 women's player, defeated wild card entry Nathalie Guerin of France 6-0, 6-4 in 52 minutes on the opening day of the two week clay court event.

McEnroe went on to win 7-6 (7-2), 6-1, 7-6 (7-2) over Volkov.

No. 6 seed Yannick Noah of France downed Riki Osterthun of West Germany 7-6 (7-4), 6-1, 6-4.

Lewis runs long jump streak to 53

HOUSTON (UPI) — Carl Lewis, long jumping for the first time since the World Championships last September, needed just one attempt to extend his winning streak in the event to 53.

Lewis jumped 27-9 1/2 in his first long jump of the year over the weekend at the Houston Invitational.

He hit 27-9 1/2 on his last effort and in between, intentionally fouled on his second and third tries, then covered 27-6 3/4 and 27-8 1/4. "I didn't feel great," Lewis said. "I just didn't feel in sync and the weather was funny. It's been eight months since Rome and I saw some things we adjusted as the day went on. I'll be in much better condition for my next meet (at Lausanne, Switzerland, in late June)."

Perdue, Torres SEC's top athletes

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Vanderbilt basketball star Will Perdue and Florida swimmer Dara Torres have been named the 1987-88 Southeastern Conference athletes of the year, league commissioner Harvey Schiller said Monday.

The two were selected in voting by the athletic directors of the 10 conference schools, who each nominated a male and a female athlete from their schools.

Perdue, out of Merritt Island, was selected the SEC Player of the Year in 1987-88 by United Press International. The Associated Press and conference coaches. He averaged 18.3 points and 10.1 rebounds a game in leading Vanderbilt to the Final 16 of the NCAA tournament.

Edmonton goes for Stanley Cup sweep

BOSTON (UPI) — The way the Edmonton Oilers are avoiding "the S word," you'd think they, not the Boston Bruins, were in danger of losing the Stanley Cup final in four games.

"I don't know what 'sweep' means," Oilers Coach Glen Sather said Monday after his team's practice. "It doesn't exist."

The Bruins, however, are well aware of their desperate situation. After the Oilers limited them to 14 and 12 shots in the first two games at Edmonton, Boston hoped its small rink would provide relief.

Instead, the Oilers outplayed them in a 6-3 Game 3 victory Sunday night, Tuesday night, the Oilers, who have played only nine seasons in the NHL, can claim their fourth championship in the last five years.

Dillon wins classic pitchers duel

Ball Motor upends KOC despite Maples' 1-hitter

By Chris Flater
Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — Two of the premier pitchers in the Sanford Junior League locked up in a heated duel Monday night as league-leading Knights of Columbus and Mike Maples went against Ball Motor Line and Mike Dillon.

Dillon tossed a three-hitter and held the powerful Knights to just one run while Ball pushed across two runs on only one hit off Maples and went on to claim a 2-1 victory in a classic battle at Chase Park.

Dillon, a hard-throwing southpaw, retired the first two hitters in the top of the first, then walked Corey Williams. He then got cleanup man Maurice Fisher to pop out to the mound for the third out.

Maples got through the bottom of the first in about the same manner. He got the first two hitters, then walked Tony Holly before striking out Tyrone Williams to end the inning.

Again the Knights could only get a man on with two outs in the second. Maples drew a walk and got as far as second when Dillon got Britt Henderson to ground to Holly at shortstop for the third out.

In the bottom of the second, Clarence Ferrell reached on an error to lead off and Willie Williams followed with a walk. Maples pitched out of the jam, though, as he struck out the next hitter and got the next two on grounders.

Tyrone Chibberton led off the third with a walk for KOC by he was caught stealing by catcher Ferrell who had a big game defensively for Ball Motor Line. Dillon then struck out the next two hitters.

Ball Motor then took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the third. Phillip King led off with a walk but Maples retired the next two hitters. Tyrone Williams then drilled a triple, the only hit for Ball Motor, to drive in King. Maples struck out the next hitter to end the inning.

SANFORD BASEBALL

The Knights got a runner to third with one out in the fourth when Fisher doubled for the first hit off Dillon and took third on an error. Dillon then got the next two hitters to pop out to Holly and he handled both chances perfectly to end the threat. Holly was also a key defensive player for Ball Motor as he had five assists and four putouts.

After Maples set Ball Motor down in order in the bottom of the fourth, the Knights tied the score in the top of the fifth but a key defensive play may have saved the game for Ball. Maples led off with a walk and Henderson then bounced a grounder to King at second. King threw to Holly for the force on Maples and Holly gunned to first baseman Williams for the double play.

Tony Taylor then drew a walk off Dillon, took second on an error and scored on a double off the bat of Dementry Beamon. Dillon then got Anthony Roberts to pop to first to end the inning.

Ball Motor Line scored an unearned run in the bottom of the fifth to take a 2-1 lead. Todd McGill led off with a walk and, with one out, he scored on two consecutive errors by the Knights. Maples struck out the next two hitters to end the inning.

The Knights put together their best threat in the top of the sixth when, with one out, they loaded the bases on a single by Fisher, a hit batsmen to Matt Wilk and a walk to Bill Kern. Dillon then struck out Maples and got Henderson to ground out to first base to end the inning.

Maples retired Ball Motor in order in the bottom of the sixth and the Knights had one last chance to get to Dillon in the seventh. Chibberton led off the inning with a walk and he tried to steal second but was thrown out by Ferrell. Dillon then struck out Beamon and got Roberts to pop out to Williams to end the game and give Knights of Columbus its first loss.

KIWANIS ROUTS ROTARY

In Monday's second game at Chase Park, Kiwanis took advantage of 10 errors and 11 walks to claim an 18-0 victory over Rotary in a game that lasted just two complete innings.

Corey Bennett pitched the two-inning no-hitter for Kiwanis as he struck out five and walked three. Mike Parker had three hits to lead the offense and drove in four runs while Alonzo Brundidge added a two-run double.

Revitalized Lakers drub Mavericks

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Lakers were coming off a grueling seven-game series with Utah and had two fewer days of rest than the Dallas Mavericks — but one couldn't tell Monday night in Game 1 of the Western Conference final.

The defending NBA champions, looking fresher than their opponents and employing their fastbreak effectively, methodically downed Dallas 113-98 to win their 10th straight playoff opener.

"We only had one day of rest, but the adrenalin was still flowing from the last series," said James Worthy, who hit 12 of 17 shots and finished with 28 points for the Lakers.

"Sure, we didn't have much time to prepare, but I sympathize with them. They were just sitting around waiting for us."

Dallas, participating in its first conference final, remained home after eliminating Denver last Thursday at

NBA PLAYOFFS

Reunion Arena. However, Rolando Blackman said the layoff was not the reason the Mavericks never seemed to get it going in Game 1.

"No it wasn't," Blackman said. "We were prepared to come out and play. We didn't have too much rest. That didn't matter."

Byron Scott added 23 points and Magic Johnson chipped in with 19 points and 12 assists as the Lakers improved their home record to 7-0 against Dallas in post-season.

Los Angeles won despite being out-rebounded 39-31. Roy Tarpley came off the bench to tie a Dallas playoff record with 20 rebounds.

"Even though we lost the battle of the boards, we forced them to take shots they didn't want to take," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said.

Game 2 of the best-of-seven series is scheduled for Wednesday night at the Forum. The scene then shifts to Dallas for games Friday night and Sunday afternoon.

Leading 56-53 two minutes into the third quarter, Los Angeles broke free with a 20-10 burst that featured a pair of 3-pointers and a jumper by Scott. Johnson helped conclude the run by out-rebounding Tarpley for the ball in a pile of players, resulting in A.C. Green's layup that made it 76-63 with 2:28 left in the period.

The defending champions hit 13 of 19 shots in the quarter and committed just 2 turnovers to take an 80-69 lead entering the final period.

Dallas never mounted a challenge in the fourth, falling behind by as much as 100-83 with 5:47 remaining. Blackman, Tarpley and Mark Aguirre had 18 points apiece for the Mavericks. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar contributed 17 for Los Angeles, hitting 7 of 10 shots from the field.

The Lakers, seeking to become the first team since the 1969 Celtics to repeat as champions, built a 41-32 lead on Michael Cooper's 3-pointer with 9:45 left in the second quarter — but Los Angeles would not hit another basket in almost six minutes.

While the Lakers missed 9 straight shots, the Mavericks used a 15-1 run to take a 47-42 edge with 4:19 to play in the period. Dallas was powered by Tarpley, who had 10 rebounds in 18 first-half minutes and helped deny Los Angeles a second shot in the run.

The Lakers, though, responded with 8 unanswered points — Worthy capped the burst with a fastbreak dunk — and led 52-49 at halftime.

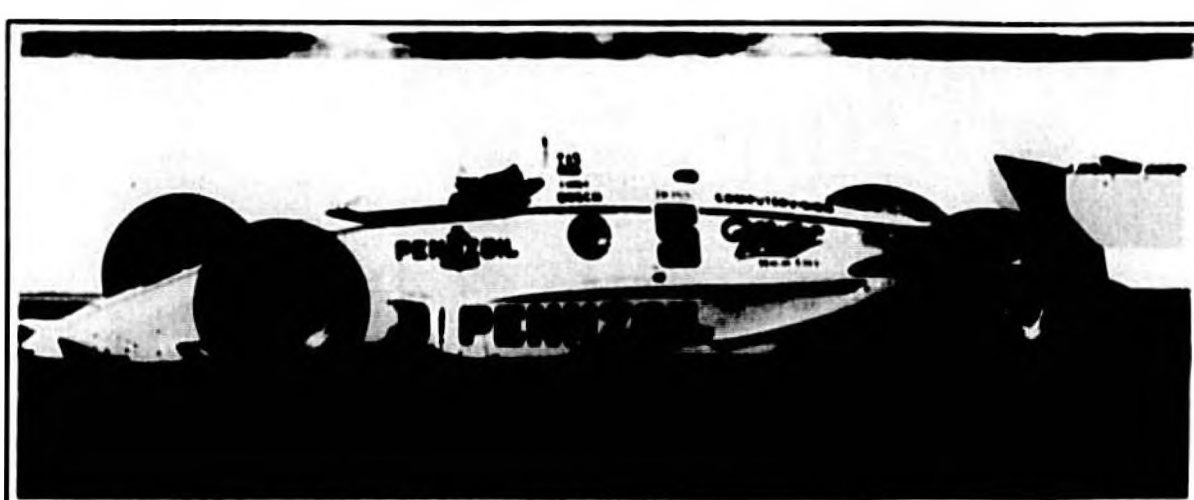

Pit crews ready cars for Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The pit crews working on the cars that will start in the front two rows of the Indianapolis 500 began meticulously putting their cars together Monday in preparation for the final day of practice at Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Thursday's carburetion day is the last chance for cars to get in practice time on the track. Preparing for that day will be the focus of the top six qualifiers during the early part of this week.

A look at the activities in the garages on Gasoline Alley:

Rick Mears, Pennzoil Z-7 Penske Chevrolet — Crew chief Peter Parrott said he was waiting for the team's race motor to be transported via truck from Penske headquarters in Reading, Pa. While they wait for the motor, which will arrive Tuesday morning, the team pored over the car that pole-sitter Mears will drive Sunday in quest for his third

Indy 500 title. "Basically, we are checking every part of the car," said mechanic Rick Rinaman, who changes the left rear tire during pit stops. "Anything that can be wired or secured from coming undone. Every nut and bolt is gone over to make sure it's safe."

After qualifying at a record 219.198 mph, Mears' crew is predictably confident.

"I think if we keep it together, then we've got a good shot," Parrott said. "If we're running at the end, we'll be right there." Danny Sullivan, Miller High Life Penske Chevrolet — Sullivan's green, gold and white car lay in several pieces in the garage as crew chief Chuck Sprague and the rest of the team went about double-checking various parts of the machine. Sprague also was waiting for a race motor to arrive from Reading.

Any team that has the second-fastest qualifying time is confident before a race, and adding to the confidence in Sullivan's garage is the fact that the car won a sponsor award for the best-looking car in this year's race. The last time the team got the award — in 1985 for the red and white Miller American Special — Sullivan won the race.

"We're hoping it carries over," Sprague said. "Now if we can with the pit stop contest, we'll really be on a roll."

Sullivan's team also won the pit stop contest in 1985. This year's contest will be held Thursday.

Orioles club A's, Stewart gets loss

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Mike Boddicker broke his club record 13-game losing streak and Dave Stewart dropped his third straight decision Monday night when the Baltimore Orioles cruised to a 7-3 victory over the Oakland Athletics.

The Orioles handed Oakland its third straight defeat and, in the process, extended a Baltimore winning streak to three games for the first time since Aug. 18-20, 1987.

Boddicker, 1-8, recorded his first victory since a 5-2 decision over Oakland last Sept. 4. The 30-year-old right-hander, who has won 10 or more games in each of his five big league seasons, allowed one run in five innings.

Dave Schmidt hurled 3 2-3 innings, but yielded Jose Canseco's leadoff homer in the ninth. Canseco has 11 home runs, tying him with teammate Mark McGwire and Minnesota's Kent Hrbek for the American League lead.

Mariners 14, Red Sox 3
At Seattle, Jim Prealey drove in five runs and right-hander Billy Swift recorded his second straight complete game victory, leading the Seattle Mariners to a 14-3 decision over the Boston Red Sox.

White Sox 9, Indians 3
At Chicago, Ozzie Guillen doubled home Mark Salas in the sixth inning Monday night to help the Chicago White Sox snap a seven-game losing streak with a 3-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Guillen, who had not driven in a run since April 30, hit a line-drive double to left-center that fell just out of the reach of a diving Mel Hall with two out. Salas had reached on an infield single.

Brewers 9, Blue Jays 7
At Milwaukee, Odell Jones relieved injured starter Teddy

Higuera after one inning and allowed two hits in five innings to help the Milwaukee Brewers to an 9-7 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Jones, 2-0, allowed one run and left with a 7-2 lead. The Blue Jays came within 8-7 in the eighth when Rance Mulliniks hit a three-run homer and George Bell added a solo blast. Dan Plesac pitched the final 1 2-3 innings for his ninth save.

Twins 7, Royals 5
At Kansas City, Gene Larkin singled home Gary Gaetti with two out in the eighth inning, delivering the Minnesota Twins a 7-5 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

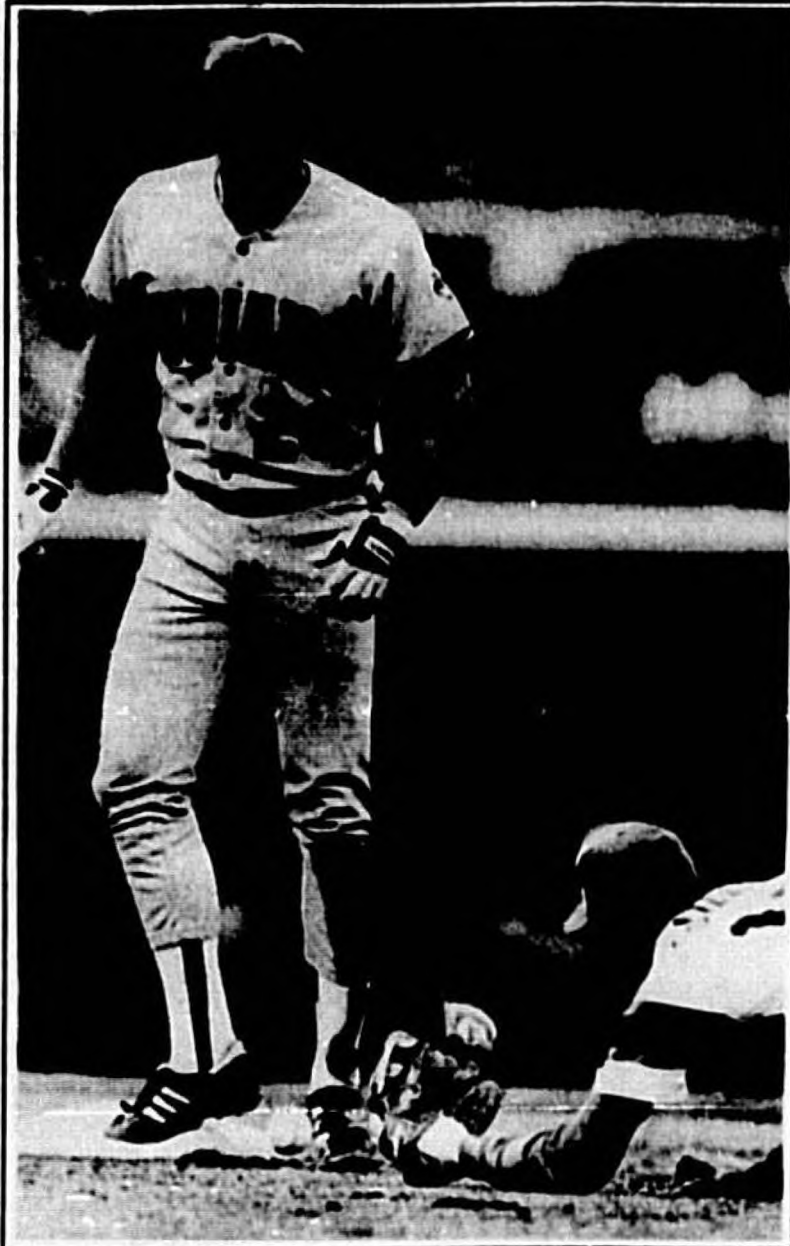

Larkin drove in three runs and Gaetti scored three times as the Twins handed Kansas City its ninth loss in 11 home games.

Keith Atherton, the third Minnesota pitcher, improved to 2-1. Jeff Reardon pitched out of an eighth-inning jam to collect his eighth save of the year and 201st of his career.

Yankees 5, Angels 2
At Anaheim, Calif., Rafael Santana singled home the go-ahead run in the sixth inning and scored twice to lift the New York Yankees to a 5-2 triumph over the California Angels.

Cecilio Guante hurled 2 2-3 innings of scoreless relief to win his third game in five decisions. Dave Righetti recorded his eighth save, pitching the last two hitless innings.

Astros 3, Pirates 0
At Pittsburgh, Mike Scott scattered four hits and Rafael Ramirez, Chuck Jackson and Jim Pankovits each drove home a run Monday night to lead the Houston Astros to a 3-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in a game called in the bottom of the ninth because of rain.

Cleveland's Brook Jacoby stands on second base and watches as Chicago's Ozzie Guillen tries to come up with the ball. It was Guillen who came up with the game-winning hit in Monday's game against the Indians.

Umpires waited the mandatory 1 hour, 15 minutes to call the game. Torrential rains caused them to halt the contest before the Pirates could bat in the ninth. There was a hurricane watch in the Pittsburgh area.

Reds 8, Cardinals 3
At St. Louis, Dennis Rasmussen snapped a personal three-game losing streak and Lloyd McClendon hit his first home run of the season to lead the Cincinnati Reds to an 8-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Rasmussen, 2-4, hadn't won since April 19 when he shut out San Francisco on four hits. The left-hander lasted 5 2-3 innings and received relief help from Jose Rijo and John Franco.

4 state teams vie in NCAA regionals

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Florida Gators are delighted about being seeded No. 1 in the NCAA East Regional baseball tournament, but they aren't as thrilled about the location.

Coach Joe Arnold said he would rather have gone to the Northeast Regional in New Britain, Conn., where his Gators would not have to play in front of Florida State fans.

"It will be a hostile crowd," Arnold said. "But we warmed up to that last weekend in Starkville" where the Gators won the SEC tournament last weekend.

"They were pretty hostile too and there were more of them," Arnold said of the crowd at Mississippi State.

Florida (43-16-1) is one of four state teams in the regionals, which begin Wednesday. Florida State is ranked No. 2 in the East regional, and Stetson also is in the field. Miami is the host and No. 1 seed in the Atlantic Regional at Mark Light Stadium.

Arnold likes the No. 1 spot, because it could mean a day off. Despite playing lightly regarded George Mason (34-25-1) in the opener Wednesday, Arnold is going with Jeff Giddumb, whose 14-5 record is a school record for victories in a season.

"You don't save anybody," Arnold said. "Why would we want to save him? By being the No. 1 seed, we're going to get a day off after the first win, which is going to get Giddumb an extra day to come back in Game 4 or Game 5."

After the Florida-George Mason opener Wednesday, Florida State (48-16-1) will meet Stetson (32-24) in the nightcap. The third first-round game will be Thursday afternoon with North Carolina State (44-14) playing Tulane (31-16). The nightcap will be a losers' bracket game.

In Miami, Georgia Tech (43-22) meets Virginia Commonwealth (45-14-1) in the opener Wednesday with the Hurricanes

Although the Hurricanes are ranked sixth in the nation and coach Ron Fraser will probably start Joe Grahe (11-4) "but that's not written in cement."

Tanner out as Braves' manager

By RICHARD L. BROOK
UPI Sports Writer

It came down to a difference of one. One. As in the difference between four and five.

One. As in the difference of opinion between two good men.

That difference cost Chuck Tanner his job as manager of the Atlanta Braves.

Tanner wanted to use a four-man pitching rotation. Atlanta General Manager Bob Cox wanted a five-man rotation.

The two met for three hours Sunday night in a Chicago hotel room. And, in the end, all they could agree on was they did not agree.

So Tanner, padded with two-plus seasons on the five-year contract he signed with Atlanta in 1987, will go on his way.

And Cox, asking former catcher Russ Nixon to be the Braves' manager until the end of the season, will continue on his way.

What brought the philosophical pitching differences between the two to a head was a recent incident involving Zane Smith. Tanner started Smith, who was ineffective, gave him a day off and then brought him back in relief during a game Atlanta was losing 1-0.

SCOUTING REPORT

The move provoked a serious question of what Tanner was doing with Atlanta's young staff.

Cox then insisted Tanner use a five-man rotation. Tanner wanted to continue with four starting pitchers.

It was not a bitter confrontation. Just a serious difference in the direction the organization's pitching was headed. And if one had to go, Tanner was going to be the one.

There are two things to understand. Cox, a former major-league third baseman, has definite ideas on pitching. He believes it is the most important component of a pennant winner.

Also, Tanner was not Cox's choice to be Atlanta's manager. He was hired by John Mullen before Cox was brought in to run an organization seen by owner-scouting enthusiast Ted Turner as being run aground.

Tanner's critics point to his record as a manager, which in recent seasons ain't all that hot. But managing the Pittsburgh Pirates when they were in the transition period of going from first (under Tanner) to last and taking over the talent-rich Braves wouldn't make any manager's record sizzle. His reputation as a handler of young pitchers is open to question but here again we have a gray area because Tanner hasn't had many young staffs with talent to develop.

So Nixon will initially form a rotation from Paul Smith, Zane Smith, Tom Glavine, Rick Mahler and Kevin Collman.

If Atlanta continues its low station, look for more youngsters to surface from the minors at mid-season. One thing the organization has is young pitching.

Nixon has experience managing Cincinnati (part of 1982 and all of 1983, both of which resulted in sixth-place finishes) and was handling Atlanta's Double-A affiliate at Greenville, S.C. That club, with a young staff, was in first place with a 22-21 record.

How well the young Atlanta pitchers progress and respond to Nixon will have a great deal to do with whether the former major-league catcher is retained next year.

Nixon, a solid organization man, could be in the right spot to catch Atlanta on the way up.

Or he could be just filling a hole and saving a salary. Especially if Cox has someone else in mind for next season.

Class A: Home of the no-hitter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Baseball fans wondering where the no-hitter has gone should look in Class A Ball.

So far this season, at least three no-hitters have taken place on that level, including two on May 20.

"That's odd," said Scott Scudder, a 20-year-old right-hander who hurled Cedar Rapids, Iowa, to a Midwest League victory over Wausau, Wis., that date. The very same day, Winston-Salem's Bill Kazmierczak subdued Virginia in a Carolina League game. It was Kazmierczak's second no-hitter this season.

The Double A Eastern League has also yielded a no-hitter in 1988, this one from Cesar Mejia, who works for Glens Falls, N.Y., a Tigers' affiliate.

No major-league starter has gone nine hitless innings since Milwaukee's Juan Nieves stopped Baltimore April 15, 1987. Several others have come close this year, including Cincinnati's Ron Robinson, Texas' Paul Kilgus, Houston's Nolan Ryan, Pittsburgh's Doug Drabek, San Diego's Andy Hawkins and St. Louis' John Tudor.

"I guess I would know what was going through their mind," said Kazmierczak, a 24-year-old righty in the Cubs' chain. "The adrenalin is flowing so much it (a baschit) would be a letdown."

"You gotta take a walk around the mound, and tell yourself it was a good effort."

Robinson came the closest of any major-leaguer this season, going 8 2-3 perfect innings. One more out would have given him only the 14th perfect game in major-league history. He never got it.

"He still pitched an incredible game," Kazmierczak said.

MINOR LEAGUES

Kazmierczak, a native of Chicago, hurled his first no-hitter April 13 against Salem, Va., a Pirates' farm club. It was supposed to be a seven-inning game, but the score was 0-0 after seven so Kazmierczak had to mow 'em down again. Only after his teammates scored in the bottom of the eighth did they notice what had happened.

"Everybody looked up," Kazmierczak said. "and Holy Cow No-hits!"

The second game put Kazmierczak face-to-face with the no-hitter because, from the early innings, he had runs to work with and he knew he hadn't allowed any hits.

"Knowing about it brought a lot of excitement," he said. Scudder, 20, comes from Paris, Texas, and pitches for a Reds' farm club. He admitted he needed a little luck in his no-hitter. One play at third base was called an error, even though it could have gone either way. Another ball bounced off his leg to first. Then came the ninth.

"The crowd was real loud," Scudder said. "I think I walked the first guy then I got two quick outs. I was just trying to throw strikes."

The batter hit a flare and, for one moment, Scudder thought the ball might fall.

"Then," he said, "I saw the second baseman camped right there."

Scudder's manager, Mark Bombard, knows all about no-hitters. He pitched three in the minors, including a perfect game against a Lakeland club that included Lance Parrish.

Williams goes back to regular lineup

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Seattle Manager Dick Williams, whose club dropped two of three in Baltimore over the weekend, has decided to put Jim Prealey and Harold Reynolds back in the lineup.

"I've got to go with what I think is the best we have," Williams noted. "I thought the kids (Edgar Martinez, Rich Renner) might be able to shake things up a bit. We're just not hitting well. A loss is a loss no matter who you're playing against."

"I guess the way we are playing it doesn't make any difference who we are playing," Williams added. "You're not going to win any if your club doesn't get any pitching."

Winfield All-Star leader

NEW YORK (UPI) — Outfielder Dave Winfield of the New York Yankees is the early leader in balloting for the 59th All-Star Game, the Office of the Commissioner announced Monday.

With 40,364 votes, Winfield has an edge over last year's leading vote getter, Ozzie Smith of the St. Louis Cardinals (38,982). Other leaders in the American League are Oakland's Jose Canseco and Mark McGwire, Rickey Henderson of New York and Wade Boggs of Boston.

In the National League, the top five included Smith, New York's Darryl Strawberry, Glenn Davis and Bill Doran of Houston and Chicago's Andre Dawson.

The All-Star game is scheduled for Tuesday, July 12 in Cincinnati.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Houston Astros outfielder Billy Hatcher, who batted .536 in six games, was named National League Player of the Week.

Hatcher had 15 hits in 28 at-bats, including 11-for-15 over the weekend in St. Louis. Friday night he notched his first career five-hit game. Hatcher scored six runs during the week and stole two bases.

FINANCIAL

Market moderate, prices up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 11.11 Monday, was up 4.14 to 1945.62 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 240-236 among the 798 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 3,650,000 shares.

Prices closed lower Monday in the slowest session this year as investors refused to commit themselves to a lackluster market that remains worried over the outlook for higher inflation and interest rates.

Volume slowed to 102,640,000 shares, compared with the 120,600,000 shares traded Friday, the previous low for the year.

Dollar drifts lower; gold, silver down

By United Press International

The dollar drifted slightly lower today in light trading on major foreign currency markets. The price of gold moved lower.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar weakened against the Japanese yen, closing at 124.25 yen, off 0.55 from 124.80 yen on Monday.

Currency dealers in Japan said the dollar's weakness was due to concern among market players over a possible hike in U.S. interest rates in the wake of a Federal Reserve Board decision to tighten credit.

Central bank of Japan head Satoshi Sumita Tuesday predicted the yen's exchange rate will stabilize at around 125 yen for the time being.

Speaking at a news conference in Nagoya, in western Japan, Sumita based his prediction on sustained expansion of the world economy and policy coordination among major monetary powers to stabilize foreign exchange markets.

He said the central bank's policy aim is to stabilize the exchange rate at around 125 yen per dollar.

In Europe where currency markets in Frankfurt, Zurich, Paris, Brussels and Amsterdam were closed Monday for the Pentecost religious holiday, the dollar edged lower.

The dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.6993 West German marks, down from Friday's close of 1.7026 and in Zurich, the dollar opened at 1.4155 Swiss francs, down from 1.4025.

Reagan cites summit hopes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan says he does not expect "a quick radical transformation of the Soviet system" despite improved superpower relations and the United States must remain firm and vigilant.

Reagan cited "profound political and moral differences" in a USA-sponsored WorldNet speech released today by the White House and said, "We do not expect to turn a corner one day to find that all of our problems have gone away because our adversary has been transformed."

Hailing the signing of the Intermediate Nuclear Forces Treaty, the president also said he hopes to reach agreement on a Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty that would reduce long-range nuclear armaments by 50 percent this year.

At the same time, he said, the requirements "of a good treaty and not some arbitrary deadline will determine the timetable" for his visit to Moscow and views meetings with Soviet citizens as "equal in value" to his summit talks with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Reagan scheduled a meeting today with Republican and Democratic congressional leaders for one last appeal for Senate ratification of the INF treaty by the time he arrives in Moscow Sunday. He flies to Helsinki, Finland, Wednesday morning on the first leg of the 10-day trip.

"As we negotiate from strength, we are guided by realism — realism about just what can be achieved in our relations with the Soviet Union and about what the Soviets themselves seek to achieve," he said. "We do not expect a quick radical transformation of the Soviet system."

"We must continue to fulfill our own responsibility to stand firm and vigilant, to provide the incentive for a new Soviet policy in contrast to the old," he added. "For there still remain profound political and moral differences between the Soviet system and our own."

The INF treaty calls for the elimination of U.S. and Soviet ground-launched missiles with ranges of 300 to 3,400 miles.

The modular one-piece design was chosen for several reasons. Lock said one or two adults can easily supervise a large number of children with the new equipment. All children can play together in a fun and creative fashion, he said.

A similar piece of equipment has been in place at Red Bug Lake Park for about a year and park supervisor Reggie Signon has been very pleased with its performance. "It's a great piece of equipment. We've probably had 300 or 400 children safely play on it at one time," he said.

The playground set is made of 11-gauge anodized aluminum, the same material used in sports stadium bleachers. Barry Lock of Dominica Recreation Products said this material was chosen because it remains cool even in Lake Mary's kindergarten students were also consulted beforehand. Kindergarten teacher Kathy Bailey said pictures of the equipment under consideration were shown to the children to see what they liked best.

Monday morning, one student told Bailey that he felt like he was on the space shuttle.

Five-year-old Valerie White said, "I like the slide best because you can slide down it a whole bunch of ways—on your stomach or back, and side ways."

The park, located in front of Lake Mary Elementary, is open to the public during off-school hours.

April durable goods orders up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Orders for big ticket manufactured goods, especially electrical machinery and defense communications equipment, increased 0.8 percent in April to a record $116.3 billion, the Commerce Department reported today.

The department said the $1 billion jump from revised March totals of $115.3 billion takes the April total for new orders above the previous high of $115.6 billion in December and follows a 0.9 percent jump in March.

Excluding the defense sector, new orders for expensive manufactured products were also up 0.8 percent to $106.3 billion after an 0.3 percent drop from February to March, the department's Census Bureau said.

It is the third increase since a 1.2 percent decline from December to January, the department said, and is another indication that U.S. business is booming.

The April increase in orders was concentrated on electrical machinery, up 4.4 percent to $19.6 billion.

first and second readings prior to adoption.

Not included in the ordinance, according to Colbert, are written regulations against the power loading of boats onto trailers.

However, Colbert advised commissioners that existing codes already provide them the authority to regulate power loading simply by posting rules and regulation "signs" at the marina.

Power loading is the use of engine power to force a boat onto a trailer instead of using the hook-and-crank method.

The city commission had previously discussed the damage that power loading has done to the ramp, saying the practice has loosened the structure, and decided to prohibit the practice at the public boat ramps.

City resident Joan Butler told commissioners she was in favor of the ordinance "as it reads now (without power loading restrictions)."

Butler told commissioners that she owns a 24-foot boat and that she would have trouble loading it without power. She also said she knows many elderly and handicapped people who would have the same problem, and if power loading were prohibited they would be denied use of the lake.

The ordinance proposal calls for a $100 annual or a $6 daily fee for marina use by non-residents, to be enforced only on weekends and holidays.

City residents would not be charged and would only need a city-issued decal.

Parking at the marina would be on a first-come, first-serve basis, with additional parking provided at the municipal parking lot.

adjustments to city employee salaries.

During last Thursday's city commission meeting, Staff Coordinator Charles Lauderdale presented commissioners a memorandum on pay scales, in the memo Lauderdale states, "the level of compensation has created numerous operational problems and has proven to be very costly to the city."

Lauderdale said the city has lost $80,000 in costs associated with losing trained employees because of low wages.

In Heckel's letter of resignation she said, "The City of Lake Mary must realize that the present pay scale is insufficient to attract, let alone maintain, quality personnel."

"I would hope that the elected and appointed administration of the city realize this, and moves quickly in a positive manner to correct the present pay scale."

Lauderdale said he is working on several options to fill the vacancy left by Heckel. He will present the alternatives to city commissioners Thursday night at its special meeting.

One possible option, he said, will be to contact the second-ranked individual selected during the city's recent recruiting process for finance director, Lauderdale said attempts to contact this person have failed thus far.

He said he hopes Heckel's resignation causes city officials to recognize the need to "invest in good quality people."

Maryland governor signs legislation banning handguns

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — Even as Gov. William Donald Schafer signed the nation's first ban on the sale of handguns known as Saturday Night Specials, gun groups were gaining momentum in a petition drive to prevent the law from taking effect in 1990.

White House press secretary James Brady, who was seriously injured by a Saturday Night Special in a 1981 assassination attempt on President Reagan, looked on as Schafer signed the law Monday in a ceremony at the State House.

Brady and his wife, Sarah, who lobbied the General Assembly to aid the bill's passage in Maryland, vowed to work with other state legislatures if asked to see similar laws passed.

"This was a major breakthrough," said Brady, who is confined to a wheelchair. "Maryland is in the vanguard. I would like to see the other states, like the domino effect, fall into the ranks."

But as gun-control advocates celebrated the new law, the powerful National Rifle Association and other gun groups worked to collect 33,000 signatures on a petition to put the law before voters in a November referendum.

"They're pouring in the door," said Dick Minard, spokesman for the Maryland Committee Against the Gun Ban. "We have petitions up to our elbows."

Minard, saying his group can easily meet next Tuesday's deadline to deliver one-third of the signatures, said there is opposition to the law from all parts of Maryland.

The law, effective Jan. 1, 1990, creates a nine-member board that will use factors such as weight and ballistic accuracy to determine which guns can be made and sold in the state. The factors effectively will exclude low-quality handguns and guns that cannot be detected by airport security equipment.

Manufacturers making guns not included on the list face a maximum $10,000 fine for each gun made, while dealers could be fined up to $2,500 for each violation. Guns made before 1985 are excluded from the law's provisions.

"It is a total, outright ban against all handguns in the state of Maryland," Minard said.

themselves."

In Ball's letter of apology for comments with racial overtones, he stated, "Again, I am sorry for any words that might have offended the black community. I don't consider myself as being racist."

Ball was present at the meeting but Huratt was not.

In other action related to the Sanford Housing Authority, the city commission appointed Alberta Detreville to replace William Long as tenant-representative on the board of commissioners. Long's term expired May 20 and the commission did not re-appoint him.

Frances Oliver, also representing the NAACP, asked for a copy of Detreville's resume "for further investigation."

The commission also put Alfred DeLattibeaudiere, who was appointed by the commission for the same tenant-representative position but did not qualify, back on the Code Enforcement Board. DeLattibeaudiere had previously resigned his post on the Code Enforcement Board to accept the housing authority position.

Sheriff's investigators have been told by witnesses that the car from which the shot is believed to have been fired has been seen in that area before. The area of the shooting has been the site of numerous drug-related arrests involving the open street sale of marijuana and cocaine in recent years.

Police search for 'mountain man'

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI) — A 50-member posse is scouring treacherous forest for a fugitive "mountain man" wanted for questioning in the killing of a hiker and the wounding of her companion on the Appalachian Trail, America's most famous footpath.

Police officers from Pennsylvania and Maryland with helicopters, horses and dogs combed Michaux State Forest in south-central Pennsylvania Monday for Stephen Roy Carr, 28, before suspending the manhunt at nightfall until daybreak today.

"They'll go as long as they have leads," state police Trooper Kenneth Zeisloff said.

Zeisloff said the hunt focused on caves, cabins and shacks where Carr might be hiding, although it is not certain he still is in the forest.

No warrants have been issued, but Carr is sought for questioning in the shooting death May 13 of Rebecca Wight, 29, of Blacksburg, Va., and the wounding of Claudia Brenner, 31, of Ithaca, N.Y.

A gunman whom the women had encountered without incident twice that day on the trail opened fire on their campsite, authorities said. The gunman was described as 6 feet tall and wearing gray sweatpants with a maroon stripe.

Police released a picture of Carr but refused to say whether Brenner, who was hospitalized, has been shown the photo.

Zeisloff said Carr was "being looked at real hard" in the shootings. "We found some evidence that we feel is incriminating," the trooper said without elaborating.

Carr is believed to have been living on South Mountain since early January, spending some nights in a hole he dug in the ground and covered with a mattress, Zeisloff said.

"We believe he stayed at some abandoned houses, probably spent some time in cabins he broke into ... wherever he could find," the officer said.

The trooper said Carr was a fugitive from another state on a "relatively minor" crime but he would not elaborate.

"They are looking for some kind of mountain man," state police spokesman Thomas Lyon said.

The search for Carr began about 6 a.m. Monday and was concentrated in 10 square miles of rugged terrain ranging from forest to briar patches to swamps near the Appalachian Trail, which stretches from Georgia to Maine. Searchers were forced to crawl at times, officials said.

Habits of violence down marriage before husband leashes temper

DEAR ABBY: I am a 35-year-old man in the middle of a divorce because of my own stupidity. I was guilty of cheating and beating.

When my beautiful, faithful wife found out that I was cheating on her, she confronted me, and I not only denied it, I beat her up! It got to be a habit with me. Every time we had an argument, I would hit her. I don't know how she took it for so long. This went on for four years. Then she left me for good.

I went to my girlfriend's house. We got into an argument and I hit her once, and she had me arrested. It was the best thing that ever happened to me. When I went to court, I was given a choice of facing the charges of assault and battery or taking a six-week course called "How to Control Your Anger." Well, I have been through the course, and let me tell you, Abby, if I had known there was a class like the one I took, I would have sought help sooner. It really works. I have learned how to control my anger, and I don't let myself get violent anymore.

It's too late for me because I lost the only person I ever really loved. Please let people know they can be helped—that beating women is not only a crime, it's usually learned behavior. My father beat my mother. If I could be cured, anyone can.

CURED IN CONNECTICUT

DEAR CURED: Good for you! I called Connecticut to find out more about this course. I was told it is offered to people who are charged with violence in domestic situations. There are comparable courses in other states. Any man or woman who settles an argument by hitting should call his or her county family or domestic relations counseling office and inquire. Don't wait until you assault someone, prevent it from happening by learning how to control your anger.

DEAR ABBY: I came to this wonderful country 20 years ago, and I have nothing but the highest praise and respect for the United States. I am proud to be an American, and I've never suffered any kind of discrimination. I never, I do have one minor gripe that I wish you would air to your readers on my behalf, and the thousands of other people in my situation.

I have made a tremendous effort to learn the language and acquaint myself with U.S. culture. But in reciprocity, very few Americans make an effort to pronounce my name correctly. Abby, my name is part of my heritage, but people tend to make up nicknames, or else they totally mispronounce my name.

MADAR CHOAT (NOT 'MIKE CHARLES')

DEAR MADAR CHOAT (NOT 'MIKE CHARLES'): Americans often give people instant nicknames. It is considered a gesture of affection and done only with people they like. There is no offense intended.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow who has just started to date again after several years. I date someone who is desirable. I feel insecure about the correct formalities—especially when he takes me home at night.

Is it all right to say good night at the elevator downstairs? Or would this throw a wet blanket on future dates? If I let him take me to my door, wouldn't it be awkward if I didn't invite him in for a few minutes? (I am assuming that he is the "right" one for me—I know what to do about the others.)

I don't mind losing someone who isn't worth keeping, but I don't want to lose a desirable man through ignorance.

UNCERTAIN

DEAR UNCERTAIN: A gentleman should see his date safely to her door—women have been mugged in elevators and halls. If you like him well enough to want to see him again, and consider him the "right" one, invite him in for coffee, tea or conversation.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

Mexico extends anti-inflation plan to September

By Frederick Kiel

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The government, pursuing its controversial plan to lower inflation during a presidential election year, Monday extended through August its freeze on prices, salaries and the peso-dollar parity.

The plan, called the Economic Solidarity Pact, has brought the monthly inflation rate to 3.1 percent in April, down from 15.5 percent in January, and officials are predicting that the monthly rate will soon drop to a targeted 2 percent.

As part of the plan, Banco de Mexico, the central bank, announced that interest rates on bank deposits and Treasury notes dropped Monday to between 4.75 and 11.05 on a yearly basis.

Simple interest rates for savers were at nearly 160 percent annually only four months ago, but they have fallen constantly along with inflation to their new levels of between 36.9 and 50 percent.

The Pact brought together officials and leaders of business, labor and agriculture in December at Los Pinos, the presidential residence, where the accord was first signed.

Under it, all sectors of Mexican society agreed to make sacrifices to help bring down inflation.

Starting March 1, the government froze salaries and the prices of public goods and services while the peso-dollar parity was set at about 2,300 pesos to the dollar.

Since the government provides a large percentage of raw materials and other products to industry, and a great deal is also imported, the moves were aimed at cutting production costs, thereby keeping pressure off consumer prices.

President Miguel de la Madrid called again the Pact signatories to Los Pinos Sunday and an extension of the accord was signed, a palace statement said.

Inflation for January through April ran at 35.71 percent, and the April rate was the lowest monthly figure in the past 34 months.

Under the accord, the government promised not to raise the prices for public goods and services, nor change the peso-dollar parity, through August.

Labor unions agreed not to seek any wage increase during the same period, while businessmen pledged to try to lower consumer prices.

The government says that the Pact differs from other anti-inflation plans that have failed in Latin American countries because it is not a unilateral one imposed by the government but instead was worked out with all sectors of Mexican society.

Critics charge that the plan is only bringing down prices artificially during a presidential election year.

Voters go to the polls July 6 to choose a successor to De la Madrid for a single, six-year term.

Carlos Salinas de Gortari of the governing Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, which has never lost a presidential or gubernatorial vote since its foundation in 1929, is the almost certain winner.

However, opposition candidates are hitting Salinas hard over the nation's economic troubles, which first began in 1982.

There are no effective public polls of what voters think, but many experts are saying that Salinas may win with the lowest percentage ever for a PRI presidential candidate.

The government has said the Pact get at the root causes of inflation by lowering inflation fears, cutting production costs and lowering government spending.

Critics charge that government deficit spending has not dropped enough and that freezing the dollar-peso parity will mean a sharp devaluation in the future.

Government economists say that the peso remains undervalued against the dollar and that the largest foreign reserves in Mexico history, about $15 billion, are sufficient to support the currency.

Your Eye to Beauty is a full-service salon

Your Eye to Beauty, 901 W. 13th St., Sanford, is a full-service unisex salon and will observe its second anniversary on June 29.

"We're a BIONIC salon," Camilla Barnes, owner, said. "Our slogan is 'Believe it or not I care.'"

A cosmetologist, Camilla Barnes specializes in color and hairweaving using no braids, no pole, no machine and no glue. She works with patients who have suffered severe hair loss from having their hair over processed or from cancer treatments.

Camilla is on the executive board of the American International Hair Weavers Association and is president of the Florida association. She has appeared on local television shows to talk about hairweaving. She is an instructor and operates under Dr. Martha B. Hayes, who has a degree in cosmetology and has been featured in several national magazines.

Hairweaving for men and women is done by appointment and a private entrance and private weaving room are available. Camilla can use the hairweave technique on persons of all races and hair textures. She can match your hair natural hair color or if you want an odd color she can send off to make sure it matches perfectly.

When she finishes weaving the artificial hair to what is left of your natural hair she said it will not be detectable and you can shampoo it, swim, comb, curl and perm it.

Camilla has been hairweaving since 1978 and joined the association five years ago after finding out about Dr. Hayes' new method.

A well-rounded Cosmetologist, Emanuel Luster specializes in precision cuts and curls. Also on the staff are hairstylists George Fields, qualified in all fields, and Grace Wheeler, who specializes in perms.

The salon is open Tuesday through Thursday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Friday and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and nights and Sundays by special appointment in advance.

They offer a Senior Citizen Day special on Tuesdays when seniors can obtain beauty services for $10 except for curls which are $30.

On Friday and Saturday two nail technicians are available in the shop, who can apply extension nails, acrylic and ceramic finger nails.

The Your Eye to Beauty staff puts on an annual hair fashion show at the Sanford Civic Center and will present a show at the Holiday Inn in Ocala on June 11. Their hairstyling team will also demonstrate their skill at the American International Hair Weavers Association Annual Convention in Miami in September.

Can your hair color change suddenly?

Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: You say that no one has ever turned white overnight? On June 15, 1910, my aunt was operated on. As the ether was given, the nurses and doctors watched as her hair turned white. She was 28. My brother was a towhead until, at age 4, his hair turned black in four days. One morning when he looked in the mirror to shave, it had turned milk-white. So it can happen.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I appreciate your comments, but can offer no scientific explanation for the events you describe. It is my understanding that hair pigment is laid down in the hair shaft during growth and, once there, it cannot be removed or modified by natural means. I welcome comments from dermatologists who can explain the unusual phenomenon of rapid change in hair color.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 35, male and a vegetarian, non-smoker and non-drinker. I just had an adenocarcinoma removed from my upper palate. Is it possible to graft skin over the hole, which is about the size of a quarter? DEAR READER: I think so. Most patients who have a surgical defect of the palate from removal of tissue can be helped by a graft or by other types of operation to close the abnormal opening.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband, 26, is manic-depressive, on lithium daily since age 17. Sometimes he also has to take Thorazine and an anti-depressant. He inherited this from his father. Is there a blood test which my boys (3 1/2 and 1 1/2) can have to see if they are predisposed to this illness? DEAR READER: Unfortunately, there is no blood test that measures a predisposition to manic depression, the wild mood swings that accompany bipolar mood disorders.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Declarer won the club lead in dummy and immediately played a heart to his 10. West took the jack and played a heart back. Declarer won East's king with his ace. The queen was now a winner, but what about the lowly three-spot? Theoretically it could be ruffed with one of dummy's clubs, but if declarer tried to cash his queen, East would ruff.

run when West continued with a second diamond. More power to the defenders, if they could come up with that sequence of diamond plays. But South was rethinking his play. "Even though three no-trump might make, I should make this contract." Perhaps you alert readers also saw the trap that declarer set for himself. "All I have to do," continued South, "is finesse my queen of hearts when I first lead hearts. Then I can play the ace, give up a heart loser to West, and be able to safely ruff the fourth heart with a club in dummy." South was right, and although his realization came after the fact, he is not likely to make this mistake again.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bode Cool YOUR BIRTHDAY MAY 25, 1988 Many opportunities could be in the offing for you in the coming year, but be alert as to which ones are realistic and which ones are pipe dreams. If your choices are wise, the rewards will be gratifying. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) As a Gemini, you tend to be a bit impulsive, especially if something sounds like it could be fun. However, caution should be heeded in all involvements today. Geminis, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH, 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. CANCER (June 21-July 22) A hasty evaluation on a matter of importance could cause serious consequences. Don't allow anyone to rush you to judgment or force your hand. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's fun to play hooky once in awhile, but this may not be the time to do so. Any responsibilities you ignore today could double in size by tomorrow. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A well-heeled friend who lacks understanding of your economic picture could entice you into the world of big spenders today. It could be a costly excursion. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Should you find your personal projects or goals thwarted today, don't fight it. If you do, you could end up feeling pretty busy about life. Tomorrow is another day. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Harboring negative thoughts is always a fruitless endeavor. Should you find an attack of the blues coming on today, nip it in the bud, pronto. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Throwing caution to the wind and going out on a buying spree will play havoc on your budget for a longer period of time than you anticipate. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) As resistance to your aims stiffen today, there's a good chance your temper could soar. Unfortunately, all that this will do is generate additional opposition. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An irrational approach to problem solving could make matters worse today. Try not to bury your head in the sand or go flying off into the skies without a parachute. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you expect too much from others today you could be greatly disappointed. You might respond in a way that is unbecoming and out of character for you. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take extra pains today not to say or do anything that might be construed as tasteless when out in public. A valuable ally could be alienated by a thoughtless blunder. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Temper your grandiose ideas with a large dose of realism today before you attempt to put any of them into action. They may contain more sizzle than substance.
