Ken Hodges Boasts 4 Winners A Night So Far This Season

A handicapper whose worth has been overlooked by dog trainers and Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club patrons came to light Saturday when George Reverman, mutual manager, announced before the races that Ken Hodges, official approximate odds handicapper for the club had had an average of four winners per night thus far this season.

A rush to follow his choices, shown on the morning line (first list of odds on the big odds board) followed and believers were rewarded with six wins in the 10 events. Two second choices won and the other two events were captured by outsiders.

NO SECRET "There's no secret about it," Mr. Hodges said, "and really no trick to it. It just necessitates a careful and purely mathematical study of the past performances of the greyhounds. The dogs at Longwood are running very close to form and that makes my morning line look very good indeed to its followers."

Mr. Hodges studies each race separately, considers the class of greyhound in the event, their past records and finally decides that on form so-and-so should win. Then he names the second choice, third choice and so on down the line. His choices are only designated by the approximate odds which are posted on the odds board before each race. The dog showing the lowest odds is his first choice and so on.

good a guide the morning line is to the betting public. In the feature at Longwood tonight Slide Traffic and Chance Charlie are likely to be the betting favorites with Speedy Event close behind. The test is over the futuristic course in the ninth race.

Wallace Says Relief Needs Are Increasing

Industrial Recession And Drought Blamed For Drop In National Farm Income

Roosevelt Talks With Big Business

Meeting Is Held To Discuss Means For Gaining Prosperity

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace told the Senate unemployment committee today that demands for rural relief were increasing steadily and that neither local nor federal agencies "have the means to cope" with the situation.

Testifying at the unemployment inquiry, he blamed the industrial recession, falling farm prices, increased mechanization of agriculture, and the drought for the critical condition which he said demanded an expansion of rural relief.

Farm income, he said, would fall this year 8 to 10 percent below 1937. Relief need is the greatest, he said, in the great plains region which has suffered from droughts since 1931.

President Roosevelt asked five industrial executives to confer with him at the White House late this afternoon on the business recession.

Sanford Milk Is Reported As Well Up To Standard

Twelfth Analysis Is Given Commission Disclosing Quality

Milk sold by 11 dairies in the City of Sanford are well within the requirements of the City ordinance for Grade A milk, according to the twelfth analysis of the year presented to the City Commission in the regular meeting in the City Hall last night.

The standards set out in the ordinance provides that Grade A milk sold in the City of Sanford shall not contain less than 2.5 percent of butter fat and that the bacteria count shall not be in excess of 50,000.

Milk from licensed dairies sold in the City is well within these requirements, the lowest butterfat content being 4.4 while the highest 4.8. The lowest bacteria count was 800 for pasteurized milk, while the highest for raw milk was 23,000. All of the milk was reported free from sediments and preservatives.

The Commissioners expressed themselves as well pleased with the high quality of milk sold in Sanford residents.

Alex R. Johnson, advisor for the Seminole Chapter of Future Farmers of America, appeared before the Board and requested that the City make a donation of $25 to aid the Future Farmers in preparing a Seminole County Exhibit at the State Fair to be held in Tampa soon.

An ordinance prohibiting the parking of vehicles on the west side of Oak Avenue from the First Street to the intersection of the railroad property with the curbing, was adopted. This ordinance was required by the Atlantic Coast Line officials before the company would grant permission for the City to widen Oak Avenue to take in several feet of their property near First Street.

The Commissioners also designated Thursday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock as the time for a special conference with officials of the Florida Power and Light Company.

Byrnes Flays Lynching Bill In Filibuster

Says Carpetbaggers Made Lynching Necessary Once But It Is Declining Now

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Senator Byrnes, South Carolina Democrat, continuing a steady attack from the South on the anti-lynching bill, charged in the Senate today it would "arouse ill feeling between sections."

The filibuster against the bill, going into its fifth day, drew from Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, a restatement of his intention to hold later Senate sessions until there is action on the measure. The leader added he had not decided definitely whether to hold night sessions. Byrnes, taking the floor when the Senate convened, asserted there "has been a steady decline in lynching for 16 years. Out of 130,000,000 people in this country, only eight were lynched during 1937. The South Carolina senator spoke of the "outrages" he said the South had suffered at the hands of "carpetbaggers and scoundrels" during the reconstruction period and said this made it necessary for Southerners to "take the law into their own hands."

Now, he said, lynching is rapidly declining but some legislators want to "destroy the power of the states" with the anti-lynching bill.

"Can one forget the record of the United States government in the enforcement of the national prohibition law?" he demanded. He expressed a similar doubt that the anti-lynching measure could be enforced.

Meanwhile a joint congressional committee reported an agreement on the wheat provisions of the "ever normal granary" program. Senator Pope, Idaho Democrat, said the wheat agreement was a "direct compromise" between separate bills passed by the House and Senate.

"As you know last year the City celebrated the event with a fine program dinner. Sanford received much publicity but nothing of lasting value was left to keep in mind the 100th anniversary of our City.

Storm Delays Removal Of Crash Victims

Ranchers Watch Airliner Go Into A Spin And Crash In Remote Mountains

Flames Prevent Rescue Effort

ROZEMAN, Mont., Jan. 11.—(AP)—A driving snowstorm today shrouded the bodies of 10 victims of the Northwest Airlines plane crash and impeded their removal from the remote clearing 14 miles north of here.

The inspection party of postal officials and newsmen failed up the mountain trails to the spot where the big transport plane crashed and burned late yesterday.

The plane, piloted by Nick Mamer, a veteran of a million miles of safe flying, was found soon after the crash, but the storm prevented immediate efforts to bring out the bodies.

Ranchers said the plane went into a spin 200 feet from where they were cutting timber, and burst into flames as it hit the ground.

The passengers and crew list, given out by the airline: In addition to Nick Mamer, pilot, and F. W. West, copilot, both of Spokane, Northwest Airlines reported the ship carried: G. A. Anderson, Spokane, Wash.

Duke And Duchess Are Names Given To Zoo's Leopards

"Duke" and "Duchess" were the names chosen for the pair of African leopards, recently added to the Municipal Zoo, in a naming contest conducted for the past two weeks.

The names of leading theatrical performers, prominent historical figures, and cartoon characters suggested by voters who cast approximately 500 ballots.

During the contest ballots were cast by persons from nearly every state in the Union and several from Canada, also by persons residing in nearby towns, as well as a large number of localites.

Among the many names suggested in the balloting were: Tillie and Mack; Maggie and Jiggs; Romeo and Juliet; Ruben and Rachel; Big Apple and Baste Q; Mickey and Minnie; Toot and Tooty; Nip and Turk; Tit and Tat; Adam and Eve; Spoc and Dot; Imp and Impena; and a large number of others.

The latest addition to the Zoo consists of small Australian Kangaroos which have hatched recently. These birds do not make nest feathery nests for their young but lay their eggs on the hard, wooden floor of their specially constructed nests. Several more of the birds are expected to hatch within a short time.

More Confusion

If the man in the street doesn't understand all he knows about the current economic slump and the efforts of the government to combat it, he should not be discouraged for it is apparent that the high cockleburms in Washington as well as the tycoons of industry and finance don't understand it either.

"The more the senate relief and unemployment committee delves into the causes of the current business recession the more confusion it stirs up," says the Miami Herald in calling attention to the demands for a balanced budget which in some instances have recently been changed to pleas for larger government spending.

"The Executive said the budget cannot be balanced this year," the Herald continues. "But he did recommend certain drastic reductions in government spending. He did not satisfy one group in the first instance. In the second, he ran counter to the economic theories of labor leaders and a group representing big business."

"Robert E. Wood, president of Sears Roebuck and company, joined with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Homer Martin, president of the Committee for Industrial Organization, to urge that extensive relief legislation be undertaken and that the President's economy program be abandoned.

"The three were agreed on tax modification. Wood declared that two administration spokesmen had 'scared' business and spread the 'fear psychology,' only to have the President assume a conciliatory attitude.

"Wood asked the committee 'What is the business man to believe?' The ordinary citizen also may well ask what he is to believe. He has been told that relief has gone too far, that too much federal money has been spent, that economies should be effected immediately.

"Now he hears labor leaders and the head of a big business urge that there should be more relief and the President's economy plan should be ditched.

"Confused as the common run of citizen may be about national economics, he is in no worse state than financial and business overlords, labor chieftains and the lawmakers."

Power In The United States

The part which POWER—water, and gasoline, as well as electrical—has played in building up this country, is shown in a pamphlet "Facts About Power," recently issued by the United States Chamber of Commerce. These facts show that the United States leads the world as a power-using country, consuming more than one-third of the world's total electrical energy, and having nearly a third of the world's developed water power.

Some of the striking facts about power are: Including transportation—principally the automobile—the total power capacity of the United States increased from 64 million to 1,663 million horsepower in the thirty years from 1899 to 1929.

The power capacity of stationary plants supplying American industry in 1929 was the equivalent of 780,000-000 workers.

DISPELLING THE FOG

By CHARLES WICKELSON
Democratic National Committee

Sit-down strikes by capital, with the purpose and intent of making the Federal Government do as the gentlemen of finance want it to do, are nothing new in our history.

Andrew Jackson ran into one a hundred years ago that makes the present corporation effort at high-jacking as impressive in comparison as a kitten's arching its back to emphasize a demand for richer cream.

The methods of the old-time effort to coerce the Government were a little cruder than the processes of today, but the changes are of degree rather than of character. The present-day soviet of capitalists is not quite so frank as when "Old Nick" Biddle announced that he would advise the Jackson administration to the withdrawal of Government deposits from his bank, but it is somewhat harder for the "Sixty families" who control the holding companies and other trusts to express themselves than it was for the dictator of finance of the 1830's.

Times have changed, of course, since the good old days when the big bank could arrange "loans and accommodations" for senators and representatives, according to how they voted on the legislation asked for by the President, and New York banks were denied funds because Pennsylvania had endorsed the President's policies. That is only one of the examples of the interference of Government with business in which the ingenious money powers of a century ago saw the on-march of anarchy and the destruction of American institutions.

They send bankers to Leavenworth and Atlanta now-a-days for doing the things that Nicholas Biddle did right along, which has compelled a change in methods, but the essential objective—the restraint of Government interference with speculative practices for the increase of profits—remains unchanged.

In the old days, the czar of American finance pulled loans back from local banks in order that industries and agriculture all over the United States should be crippled, and thereby an economic depression should be produced; the theory being that the Jackson administration should be frightened into letting up on the Biddle institution. Today the process is for the ranged super-capitalists to withhold investment from the economic stream and so make business languish, with the same idea of forcing the Government at Washington into subservience to the big interests.

The Gannett and minor tom-tom beaters of the reactionary press of today had their parallel a century ago, though the subsidies that poured on the Jackson bidders were more direct than they are now. No big newspapers were themselves of the element then represented by "The Bank," whose contemporary modern equivalent is the Liberty League, and its allies.

However, there are some compensations for the more tortuous processes which time has brought. Jackson's foes did not have the convenience of radio announcers plugging the sale of corporation products and incidentally slipping into their sales talks their own views, or views that have been handed them, on government and economics.

It is entertaining to read over the propaganda of that vivid period of American history. The President was bent on the destruction of business and the gathering of all power to himself. They played him with a crown and scepter, with his feet trampling the Constitution. Gravelly, and over and over, they pointed out that the Jackson policies would plunge the country into chaos; that the depression that resulted from the acts of "The Bank" itself would progress until total ruin confronted the country. All President Andrew Jackson was doing was rescuing the nation from a tyranny that not only insisted on monopolizing the fiscal affairs of the Government, but on taking over the whole business, including elections.

It developed, when the Government deposits were withdrawn and Congress refused to recharter Mr. Biddle's monopoly, that the state depositors made an excellent substitute, the commercial world jumped into its stride and the Treasury became as pliant as a lot of the tax revenues were redistributed to the state—not, of course, without the cry being raised that no power was vested in the Federal Government to make such a distribution.

Nobody was ever more honest than Nicholas Biddle, and he would have readily admitted that the same and similar tactics were

Model Air Raid Tunnel Is Built In London

Pupils will be experienced imperial pilots now serving with second class air navigators' licenses.

While on duty they will get to try out their knowledge with the cooperation of their ship's command and crew.

Building permits at Miami Beach declined last year as compared with 1936. But with $10,000,000 of new construction in 1937, Miami Beach has small room for complaint; in fact, still leaves other Florida cities green with envy.

The Ludlow Amendment was defeated in the House of Representatives yesterday and the people will not have a chance to say whether they want to go to war. However, no Congress has ever voted this country into war without the overwhelming endorsement of the people. It is not likely that any Congress ever will. But some dictator might, if we ever have one.

The banking business in Florida apparently is picking up. Figures show that there are now 109 state banks as compared with 102 four years ago and that they have $78,000,000 in deposits, or 100 percent more than in 1934. Most local banks are also doing well. There are 48 of them in Florida, the three in Jacksonville having more deposits than all the state banks put together.

New Dealers who did much to discredit the Constitution when they compared it to the "horse and buggy" age would preserve some parts of it. The power to declare war, for instance, lodged in Congress by the Constitution, they would leave strictly as is, but the people, grown to believe what the New Dealers said, that the Constitution is not a sacred document, would change it. They claim for themselves the right to declare war. This President Roosevelt says, would be disastrous.

There is no reason why a Democrat should remain a Democrat because his father was a Democrat, or because his grandfather fought with Lee at Appomattox; and there is no reason why a Democrat should lose standing among Democrats because he happens to vote for a Republican when he believes that Republican is a better Democrat than the one which the Democrats have nominated. All this we gather from President Roosevelt's Jackson Day Dinner address, in which he said, "My father and my grandfather were Democrats, and I was brought up a Democrat, but in 1904 when I cast my first vote for president, I voted for the Republican candidate, Theodore Roosevelt, because I thought he was a better Democrat than the Democratic candidate."

One has only to read the impassioned outbursts of the reactionary publicists to learn that it is always patriotism and not self that motivates their clients; altruism and not avarice that is behind the opposition to the Government, and that it is social aviation and not sordid selfishness that inspires the great and unceasing effort to keep things as they are.

They have been saving this country from going to the devil so often that they now begin to believe it themselves—and the poor old country has staggered along notwithstanding, and has not even reached or even approached the limbo to which it was doomed whenever anybody sought, to touch their gorgeous privileges.

It has happened rather frequently in the intervening years that people and institutions with a bad case have attempted to make that cause the distress of the whole industrial and commercial circle. When the first anti-trust laws were put on the statute books, they were pointed to as measures intended to destroy American initiative and eliminate corporate efficiency in promoting large enterprises. When an income tax, graduated according to the size of the incomes, became our basic revenue source, those who fought it tried to make the country believe it was class legislation aimed to penalize success, and thereby to break down everything that had made the United States great and prosperous.

It has happened before; it is happening now, and doubtless will happen in the future. 'Bombing Of Panay' Is Shown At Ritz

Noran W. Alley, whose special Universal feature "Bombing of the U. S. S. Panay" comes to the Ritz Theatre tonight and Wednesday, has been the favored son of singular good camera fortune many times before in his career. In fact, so unusual have been his achievements that he is today regarded as one of the most picturesque and adventurous members of his profession.

Alley started his career on the Chicago Tribune. He went to the Hearst publications from there and later developed an aptitude for film covering that finally saw him swing to this branch exclusively. During the World War he was a cameraman with the rank of lieutenant in the U. S. Army signal corps filming some of the most important battles in France and ending with a captaincy that he still holds in the U. S. Army Reserve Corps.

A few years ago his name was in the front page headlines when his trans-Atlantic trip as cameraman and co-pilot with the Flying Hutchison family came a cropper in the frozen tundra of Greenland. Unequaled are his other exploits in his search for camera excitement. He was "in" on the bloody Herrin, Illinois, riots. When the United States airship "Shenandoah" fell near Pittsburgh some years ago, Alley was purring through the immediate vicinity with his car and camera. Incredible good luck had placed him there in a leisurely cross-country auto trip! It was intention and planning that saw him, early in his career, hunting Mexican bandits with Perryhing in "Diamond Jack's" famous expedition. But it was again fortunate chance years later that saw Alley hanging on to a refueling hose of a "mother" ship when another non-stop endurance flight plane met motor trouble and had to descend.

Alley is married and his wife, Mrs. Willa Alley, and his three children, Dexter, Norene and Janet, now live in Hollywood. Both he and his family have lived the wandering life of adventurers, however, and are well known in New York, Chicago, and almost every other Metropolitan city in the country.

Lynching Bill May Include Gang Killings

Southern Senators To Seek Expansion Of Measure To Cover Racketeer Warfare

Byrnes Says Negro Rules Democrats

Russell Insists Bill Would 'Lynch' Last Bit Of State Rights

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Southern senators fighting the anti-lynching bill told the Senate today they would seek to expand it to include gangsters and mob violence.

Senator Russell, Georgia Democrat, carried on the debate against the pending measure as the Senate rounded out the first full week of discussion without even approaching a vote on any of the number of amendments proposed.

Failure of the Administration leaders to impose longer Senate sessions in order to wear out the opposition speakers led to the defeat among some Senators they were trying to avoid an open break with the southern bloc.

Senators Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, taking the floor when the filibuster entered its fifth day, yesterday asserted that southern white people had given unflinching adherence to the democratic party because they believed they could depend on the support of northern Democrats "when problems affecting the negro and the very soul of the south arose."

Mr. Byrnes said, "The negro has not only come into the democratic party, but the negro has come into control of the democratic party."

The South Carolinian asserted that Walter White, secretary of the Association for the Advancement of Colored People, "has ordered this bill to pass."

If White would agree to shelve the measure, Byrnes asserted, "the advocates would desert it as quickly as football players unscramble when the whistle of the referee is heard."

Byrnes spoke for an hour and a half, interrupted by three times-consuming quorum calls taken on motion of his southern colleagues.

Senator Russell, Democrat, Georgia, took up the talk against the anti-lynching bill in mid-afternoon, asserting that it would "chance the last remaining evidence of state's rights and sovereignty."

Comparing the legislation to "skunk meat," Russell asserted that "you might take a dead pig and dress him up in fancy paper and label it 'country' cured ham," but it would still be just plain skunk meat.

Last Rites Held At Episcopal Church For Mrs. Miller

Last rites for Mrs. F. L. Miller who died early yesterday morning following a short illness, were held in the Holy Cross Episcopal Church, of which she was a member, this afternoon at 4:00 o'clock, with Rev. Martin J. Brann, pastor of the church officiating. Interment was made in the family plot in the Lakeside Cemetery.

At the funeral services a choir composed of Mrs. B. P. Herndon, Mrs. F. E. Russell, Mrs. Roby Lutz, F. E. Lammson and Roby Lutz sang "The Old Rugged Cross" and "In the Garden" with Charlotte Smith as accompanist at the organ.

Bank President Reviews Results During Past Year

Shinholser Is Optimistic Over Prospects For 1938

"Satisfactory progress during the year of 1937," was reported by S. O. Shinholser, president of the Sanford Atlantic National Bank at the annual meeting of the stockholders held in the bank yesterday.

General banking conditions as a whole have shown improvement during the past year, the local bank president who acted as chairman of the meeting stated, adding that the progress made by the institution during the year was satisfactory.

"Loans and discounts," he asserted, "continue to show increase over the past few years, and the records of the bank for 1937 indicate increased activity in savings accounts and Christmas Savings Clubs."

"With a brighter outlook for general improvement in fundamental conditions in this City during the coming year, the bank president concluded, "prospects are better than for several years."

The following directors were re-elected by the stockholders for the coming year: George W. Frasier, J. L. Frasier, J. L. Ingley, R. A. Newman, and S. O. Shinholser.

Officers of the bank re-elected by the directors for the coming year were: S. O. Shinholser, president; J. L. Ingley, executive vice-president; George W. Frasier, vice-president; A. L. Betts, cashier; and A. F. Collum was elected assistant cashier.

Mr. Collum has been connected with the Sanford Atlantic National Bank for the past eight years, mostly in the capacity of head teller and received what officials termed a "well-earned promotion." He has been engaged in the banking business in Seminole County for over 17 years and during this time he has been prominently identified with church and civic organizations in this City.

The Board of Directors of the Atlantic National Bank of Jacksonville in their annual election yesterday named J. L. Ingley, as assistant trust officer for the coming year.

Dawson Tells Of Causes Of Plant Disease

Co-Operation For Pink Rot Control Urged; Measures To Combat Infection Are Given

Because of the prevalence of pink rot in the celery crop during the past few weeks, County Agent C. R. Dawson, acting under the direction of Dr. R. W. Rupprecht of the local celery experiment laboratory, is sending to all the farmers in this vicinity information regarding the cause and control of the fungus sclerotium, which experiments have proved is responsible for the plant disease.

Thousands of crates of celery and other vegetables are rendered unsalable in Seminole County because of the disease, which those close to the industry claim is gaining prevalence. It has been deemed advisable to bring to the attention of local growers some of the facts regarding the disease as well as suggestions for control which have developed as a result of recent experiments.

According to Dr. William R. Shippy, of the local experiment laboratories, general facts concerning the disease have been known for a number of years but much additional information is needed before suitable control measures can be determined.

"To date complete eradication of the disease has been impossible," Dr. Shippy points out, "however, laboratories in the State, including the Sanford laboratory, are co-operating in a study of the disease in an effort to find a suitable means of eradication or methods to reduce the severity and spread of the noxious plant infection."

It cannot be emphasized too strongly that successful control of the disease will require the concerted efforts of all growers of celery and other susceptible crops.

"Pink rot," Dr. Shippy says, "is caused by the fungus sclerotium which lives in the soil from season to season in the form of resting bodies (sclerotia) which are small, hard and black on the outside but are white inside. During the late fall or early winter sclerotia become active and send out thread like fungus branches on the surface of the soil or just beneath the surface, frequently coming into contact with celery stalks or foliage, gaining entrance to the plant through wounds or other injuries. Once within the plant, infection spreads rapidly in other portions and to neighboring plants."

"A second method of infection is reached when the fungus branches on reaching the surface develop into aerial, brown mushrooms (apothecia) which contain countless numbers of spores that are literally exploded into the air and are deposited on lower portions of plants and on the soil. Fortunately, because of a lack of vigor, only a small proportion of these spores actually cause infection. However, enough of the spores lodge in plant wounds, and in other favorable spots to account for infection and cause a rapid spread of the disease over large areas."

"The information now available suggests a number of possibilities for attacking the disease. It is realized that all of the measures are not practicable for growers, but may be applied in combination to the best advantage. Growers are urged to take seriously and to do everything possible to prevent further spread of the infection."

Last Word From Veteran Captain Musick Was That Ship Was Dumping Gasoline

Leaky Oil Line Caused Trouble

Musick Had Million Miles Of Safe Flying To His Credit

HONOLULU, Jan. 12.—The Navy received a wireless message today that the aircraft tender Avocet has picked up the wreckage of the Samoan Clipper near Pago Pago. There was no mention of survivors.

Pago Pago, Tutuila, American Samoa, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Hope waned for the trans-Pacific Samoan clipper and crew of seven which vanished mysteriously yesterday a few minutes out of Tutuila.

Fear grew that the 31-ton flying boat's gasoline caught fire as it was being dumped into the Pacific ocean and exploded killing the ace commander, Capt. Edwin C. Musick, and six other crewmen.

The clipper carried no passengers. The plane, only three minutes out of Pago Pago was dumping gasoline preparatory to landing when last heard from by radio.

An oil slick was reported found on the water 12 miles off Tutuila Island. In the same vicinity a column of smoke was reported sighted. It was feared here that the sinking marked the destruction of the clipper and her crew.

No further word came from the plane after Capt. Musick, the 43 year old veteran trans-Pacific aviator, messaged he was dumping gasoline and would return to the island because of a leaky oil line.

Musick was on his last flight with the clipper in the Pan American Airways' new Honolulu to New Zealand service. The naval aircraft tender Avocet and a naval plane investigated the reports of oil and smoke but failed to find any sign of the clipper.

There are few ships in this part of the Pacific for the search but English officials were reported to have sent one boat to scour many islands in the neighborhood of Samoa.
