Alleged murder weapon found

SANFORD — On Tuesday afternoon, Sanford Police found a gun, the one allegedly used in a Monday night shooting on 13th Street in Sanford, in Lake Monroe near Enterprise.

Working on a tip from witnesses, Sanford Police divers went into Lake Monroe off the boat ramp at Lake Shore Drive in Enterprise and conducted a grid search of the waters. Lt. Dennis Whitmire said.

After about four hours, Whitmire said, they recovered a .9 mm gun much like the one in Monday night's shooting.

Danny Lawson, 19, of 68 Seminole Gardens, who was charged in the shooting, maintains it was an accident and Monday night he told police that when he bent down to assist Bass after the shooting, the gun disappeared.

Whitmire said the police are not calling the shooting an accident and Lawson remains at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility charged with murder.

He said the gun has not yet been sent to the crime lab in Orlando so that comparisons can be made to make an absolute determination that the gun the divers found was the gun used in the shooting.

Sanford bitten by 'Spruce-up Bug'

SANFORD — From time to time, people will grab brooms and rags and cleanup their houses, lawns and garages but on Saturday the entire community of Sanford will take to the streets in the annual Make Sanford Shine drive.

Clubs, church groups, government officials and individual residents have pledged participation in the "Spruce-up Bug," the logo for the annual city drive.

The annual trash bash has been scheduled for Saturday. Activities will get underway at the parking lot of the Sanford City Hall when garbage bags and poker sticks will be handed out.

The members of the Sanford City Commission, the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs and other organizations will have specific areas for the clean-up campaign.

Arrangements have been made to deposit full trash bags at certain areas to be picked up by city crews.

Park dedication set

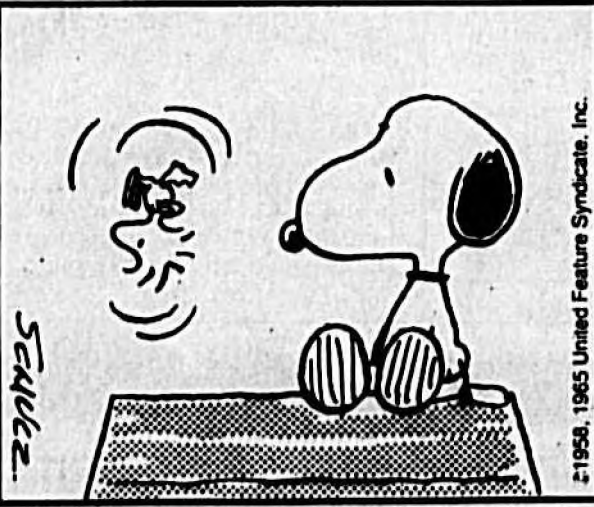

LAKE MARY — On Saturday at 9 a.m., the city of Lake Mary will dedicate their new sports complex which is located on Rantoul Road, just off of State Road 46-A.

The complex will include one softball field, three baseball fields and a multi-purpose field.

One of the baseball fields will be named in honor of Jeremy Millhouse, the young man who was killed at a Lake Mary bus stop a few miles away.

Construction began about five months ago on the property which was purchased about a year and a half ago.

Densch, Kemco win P&Z approval to expand in Sanford

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford may be home to a new distribution facility for a major Central Florida beer distributor.

And plans are advancing for a 32-employee unincorporated metal fabricating company to move into the city in an expansion project that could double the number of jobs at the firm.

Thursday night, Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission members unanimously recommended approval of a rezoning and development plan for a warehousing facility on 10 acres located just outside the western city limits at the northeast corner of State Road 46 and Rand Yard Road. Annexation and city commission approval are needed for the action to be complete.

P&Z members also unanimously recommended approval of a rezoning and site plan for Kemco Industries for a 35,000-square-foot manufacturing and office facility located partially in Seminole Industrial Plaza on Keyes Avenue. A portion of the property lies west of South Sanford Avenue on vacant land formerly owned by Cardinal Industries.

Both proposals will be considered by city commissioners next month.

Seeking the Rand Yard Road rezoning was Mountain Distributors Inc., which listed a Rockledge, Fla. address. Mountain Distributors main headquarters is located at 75 W. Holden Ave., Orlando, the same corporate address as Wayne Densch Inc., according to the Department of State Division of Corporations. Wayne Densch serves as president of Mountain Distributors and chairman of Wayne Densch Inc.

Densch is the Central Florida distributor of Budweiser beer products.

SANFORD — Members of the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission will review a proposed new transient housing regulation one more time next month before voting on it.

The proposed ordinance would require all owners of residences with two or more units to either obtain a state hotel license or a statement from the state declaring they do not need the license. The proposal would also grant the city the right of minimum housing

Sanford Historic Trust Tour of Homes

Woman's Club, 8 homes on tour

By DEL FREEMAN
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — The Sanford Historic Trust Tour of Homes is scheduled Saturday and Sunday, from noon to 6 p.m., beginning at the Cultural Arts building, Fifth Street at Oak Avenue.

According to Chairman Julia Goeb, eight homes will be featured in addition to the historic Sanford Woman's Club which was formerly a Presbyterian church. Tickets are $10 per person and may be purchased at the Cultural Arts building where a variety of activities will take place. For information, call 321-6734.

Carmen Nestl and Jim Sharpe bought their historic 1306 Park Avenue home from the woman who'd lived in it since 1939, they said, and believe that they are the third owners. The approximate 1,600 square foot home was built in 1929, and the couple have kept it as close to original as possible, with the exception of an expanded kitchen.

"We sort of moved in and did a bit at a time," Jim said. He and Carmen did all the renovation themselves during the two years they have occupied the home, projects which seemed to consume a great deal of time in the doing, but on reflection seem less burdensome. He would still like to add a half bath downstairs, Jim said, and perhaps a deck and porch.

"We look around and think it wasn't so bad now that it's virtually done," he said. He'd never done anything of this nature before, but said with a few helpful hints from the home renovation program, "This Old House," they muddled through.

A sort of double porch entry to the home fools the visitor into thinking perhaps one has been enclosed and another, screened porch, added later to the front of the house, but the couple say that is how the house was SANFORD — Is bigger necessarily better? If you're talking about the Florida Citrus Sallfest, bigger isn't just better, it borders on being mandatory.

This weekend, nearly 700 boats and 3,000 sailors in more than 50 one-design crafts will be in Sanford to compete in one form or another in the Sallfest, recognized as the United States' premier sailing regatta and the second largest in the world.

Last year, the Florida Citrus Sallfest — which is sponsored by the Seminole County Tourist Development Council — set a national attendance record with 654 boats competing in the event. Event registration has grown an average of 60 boats a year since 1983.

"With the expanded regatta schedule, the event will unquestionably remain the nation's No. 1

Lake Mary says goodbye to Mayor Morris

By GEORGE DUNCAN

LAKE MARY — By a unanimous vote, the Lake Mary City Commission named Richard Beary as new police chief Thursday night.

City Manager John Litton had said earlier that Beary was his choice for the position but the city commission made it official with the Thursday night vote.

Litton said there were a number of qualified candidates for the post but said Beary had "outstanding credentials from the city of Altamonte Springs." Beary was the commander of operations for Altamonte Springs before being picked for the Lake Mary job.

New cop chief: It runs in family

By GEORGE DUNCAN

LAKE MARY — For the new Lake Mary Police Chief, law enforcement is something that runs in his family.

Richard Beary, a former commander of operations for the Altamonte Springs Police Department, was officially chosen as the head of the Lake Mary police Thursday. His brother, Kevin, is the sheriff-elect in Orange County and his father, Ray, is the retired police chief of Winter Park.

"It runs in the family. Absolutely," he said. "My whole family has been in law enforcement. I got a taste of it and I liked it so I decided to pursue the same career as the majority of my family."

A graduate of Rollins Collins and of the FBI Academy, the 33-year-old Beary has been with the Altamonte Springs department for 15 years.

Governor's nepotism

Leaders turn their heads on political shenanigans

By BRENT KALLESTAD
Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — As the Capitol buzzed with Thursday's news that House Speaker Bo Johnson's wife was settling into a newly created $52,000 state job, Gov. Lawton Chiles tried to stay out of the controversy. "I don't know much about it," Chiles said when asked about Judi Johnson's new position. "I haven't had a chance to read my paper today. I saw the headline."

Of course Chiles, who will need Johnson's help in passing his legislative agenda in the 1993 session that begins in February, chose his words carefully. Chiles does not control the Department of Agriculture, which hired Johnson's wife.

But the governor didn't attempt to defend the appointment by Agriculture Commissioner Bob Crawford, who is elected independently, like former Gov. Bob Martinez did in April 1989 when one of his agencies tried to move the 24-year-old daughter of Secretary of State Jim Smith into a $73,000 state job.

"There are a lot of people who come here with no experience," said Martinez. "We are in a city where government is the main employer," he said at the time. "My point is, it is a company town ... big government, big universities."

Kathryn Smith, who later married Martinez's former chief of staff, Brian Ballard, withdrew a few days later from consideration for the management post at the Department of Business Regulation. Nearly four years later, some of the state's most powerful politicians are still involved in handing out high-paying jobs to well-connected relatives.

"People know that they're not being necessarily judged on their qualifications when they apply for positions," said Charlene Carra, lobbyist for the Florida Women's Political Caucus. "That's why highly qualified women are disappointed the system works that way. Usually, it's a lesser qualified man that would get the appointment."

Mark Neimeier, lobbyist for the state employees union, said nepotism is often bad for morale.

Man's death in custody accidental

MIAMI — A Dade County judge on Thursday refused to allow criminal charges against two Miami police officers accused of using excessive force while arresting a 63-year-old man who died in their custody.

The injuries that caused Fermin Alameda, a retired janitor, to die shortly after his arrest by officers Emilio Lopez and John Collins on the night of Aug. 9 were accidental, the judge said. Alameda's death "was accidentally caused during police efforts to control him," said Dade County Judge Gerald Klein.

The judge's decision, after 20 hours of testimony during an inquest to determine whether the officers should be charged with a crime, angered the family and attorney for Alameda. "This decision is an outrage," said attorney Mike Miller. "Apparently the lessons from Los Angeles have not been learned."

"The evidence was there," said Alameda's daughter, Lily Centeno. "They set up a play and they played their parts very well, but they didn't give us justice."

Alameda was arrested for disorderly conduct after he got in the way of firefighters trying to put out a fire in the city's Puerto Rican neighborhood known as Wynwood.

Lopez subdued Alameda, who was drunk, by dropping him to the ground. Then he rammed his knee into the man's back. Collins assisted by using his body to hold Alameda to the ground.

4-time space flyer chief astronaut

CAPE CANAVERAL — Four-time space flyer Robert "Hoot" Gibson has been named chief of the 89-member astronaut corps, NASA said Thursday.

Gibson replaces Dan Brandenstein, who left the space program in October. Brandenstein commanded Endeavour's inaugural voyage in May, which involved a daring satellite rescue by three spacewalking astronauts.

Gibson, 46, a Navy captain from Lakewood, Calif., became an astronaut in 1978. He has commanded three shuttle flights, the most recent in September, and served as shuttle pilot once. His wife, Rhea Seddon, also is an astronaut.

NASA grounded Gibson in 1990 for violating a policy barring flight crew members from high-risk activity. He was racing a stunt plane at a Texas air show; his craft collided with another plane and that pilot was killed.

Loren Shriver, who has flown in space three times, was named deputy chief astronaut.

Session to tackle gambling laws

TALLAHASSEE — New House Speaker Bolley "Bo" Johnson named members of 23 House committees and said most members were assigned to areas they desired.

Johnson, Democrat, and Republican Leader Sandra Northam, R-Miami, said Thursday they met the previous evening working out committee assignments according to the interests House members expressed.

Johnson told representatives to be ready to act on hurricane recovery gambling laws in a special session next week.

Gov. Lawton Chiles' term formally ended in January and the session is expected to begin Wednesday.

"I think the session will focus on hurricane recovery and gambling laws," he said.

House members wrapped up three days of meetings on Thursday. They will meet again on Friday for their regular session. Johnson said he will be in Tallahassee through the end of the year.

State's highest court hears appeal

MIAMI — A former state district court judge's appeal of a conviction for child molestation was heard Thursday by the state's highest court.

Richard Trepinski, 55, has been held on $50,000 bond at the Charlotte County Jail since his Nov. 19 arrest on 99 counts of child molestation in the presence of a child.

During an arraignment hearing Wednesday, Trepinski, along with his attorney Leonard Johnson, appeared before Charlotte County District Judge Barry Casanovi.

The state still has not filed any formal charges in the case, so it had to be "delayed," said Johnson, who filed a motion Tuesday asking Trepinski's release.

Assistant State Attorney Paul Alessandrini had asked that the case be delayed because prosecutors only received the case package Monday.

Wee Deliver

Goldberg School post office carries special correspondence

By Brent Kallestad
Special Correspondent

SANFORD — The workers at the Wee Deliver post office at Goldberg Elementary School in Sanford carry more than notes between one classroom and another in their bags.

They also bring letters from exotic locales and from those serving our country around the world.

"Of course we have the students writing to each other and even some parents come in to mail notes to their children, but we want to encourage our students to write as much as possible," said Kathy Scott who organized the post office at the school.

Scott said that several of the teachers have made arrangements for their students to write to military personnel serving overseas.

Some of the letter recipients are relatives of students or school personnel and others are those who students "adopted" during Operation Desert Storm.

Other students are taking part in the U.S. Post Office's Olympic Pen Pal program.

According to Arthur McDaniel, assistant principal, the program, which costs students about $7 per year, provides participants with the names and addresses of youngsters worldwide who are looking for pen pals. They also receive other materials from the post office.

"The students seem to enjoy the option," McDaniel said.

School officials did not know how many students were participating in the international pen pal program, but they said that every student in the school had sent at least one piece of mail through the school system.

"This is a very popular program," Scott said.

Scott noted that teachers have incorporated the post office program in to many aspects of the curriculum.

Some teachers are taking the opportunity to teach their students the proper way to address letters. Some are teaching letter-writing etiquette. Even math teachers are getting in on the act.

"They're teaching the kids about the cost of stamps and using it to teach some addition and subtraction," Scott explained.

McDaniel said that the Wee Deliver post office at Goldberg is one of the most popular learning programs among the students.

Special session slated

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Hurricane recovery and gambling regulations should make up the agenda in a special legislative session next week, Gov. Lawton Chiles and House Speaker Bolley "Bo" Johnson said Thursday.

"The people of Dade County are anxious for a signal that says we are mindful of the crisis," Chiles said.

But he said he still is waiting to see a plan from Dade County lawmakers on how to handle a $200 million boom in sale tax collections stemming from recovery activity in the wake of Hurricane Andrew.

That's on the top of the list for the three-day session that Chiles and Johnson said should start Wednesday morning. Florida's 180 state lawmakers were already scheduled to hold committee meetings next week.

Dade officials have argued that the $200 million should go to hurricane recovery in their county, which suffered the nation's costliest natural disaster Aug. 24.

Chiles said he has always expressed a willingness to work on that proposition, but that Dade County officials must "recognize that we have state expenses that are going on taxpayers all over the state and that money is not a windfall."

He did not have a dollar figure for state expenses but estimated they would equal at least half the $200 million sales tax boom.

Regardless of the merits of the issue, lawmakers may not have enough time in the session because of a 72-hour waiting period before votes on appropriation bills. The provision was added to the state constitution by voters last month.

Chiles said the requirement may cover only general appropriation bills approving an entire state budget.

But Johnson, D-Milton, said House attorneys have concluded the 72-hour delay will cause a problem and said lawmakers will instead work on a policy rather than specific appropriations.

Drug charges filed

Ronald Roy Addison, 38, 905 W. 12th St., Sanford, was charged with the sale and the delivery of cocaine and the possession of drug paraphernalia when he was arrested by Sanford Police on Wednesday.

Undercover agents purchased a quantity of alleged cocaine from Addison for $10, police said. The substance tested positive for cocaine, police said.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Michael Anthony Kennedy, 35, 811 W. 20th St., Sanford was charged with the sale and delivery of crack cocaine by Sanford Police on Wednesday.

Police said an undercover agent purchased crack cocaine from Kennedy for $10. A presumptive test of the substance proved positive for cocaine.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $5,000 bond.

Retail theft charged

John Henry Harris, 54, 1801 W. 15th St., Sanford, was charged with retail theft by Sanford Police on Wednesday.

Police said he was seen leaving Pearl Lee Brown Tavern, 1007 W. 13th St., Sanford, with a quart bottle of beer which he had not purchased.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $100 bond.

Father, son dispute

Chad Christopher Carter, 20, 216 Pheasant Run Ct., Longwood, was charged with domestic violence by Seminole County sheriff's officers on Wednesday.

Deputies said his father had called deputies earlier in the evening because his son had pushed him, but the younger man had left by the time deputies arrived.

Deputies were called again when the son allegedly tried to force his way into the home. Deputies said the father feared more violence.

The son was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $1,000 bond.

Correction

The last sentence of the following police incident was inadvertently deleted Thursday. It is being rerun in its entirety.

Sanford police made three arrests on drug-related charges south of downtown Tuesday night.

Dennis Grooms, 41, 821 Holly Ave., Sanford, was charged with sale and delivery of cocaine. Police reports state Grooms sold crack cocaine to an undercover operative working with the Special Investigations Unit. Police report the buy occurred on Ninth Street between Maple and Holly Avenues.

SIU agents arrested two people in another reported bust. Agents report arresting Marquetta Prealey, 23, 1114 11th St., Sanford, after purchasing cocaine from her. Police report Prealey, in a written statement, told them she had obtained the cocaine from Arlington Ferry Mills, 20, 1015 Cypress Ave., Sanford. Police located and charged Mills with conspiracy to sell cocaine. Police report finding Mills in possession of a $5 bill they had given to Prealey.

Alleged drug dealer and voodoo

TAMPA — A voodoo doctor claims he visited an alleged crack dealer in jail and was asked to cast spells on 58 people involved in his prosecution.

The unnamed black magic "root doctor" made the list available to a federal judge Wednesday after turning government informant against accused St. Petersburg crack kingpin Romeo Mathis.

"This court has gotten to the point where it isn't surprised anymore," said U.S. District Judge Elizabeth A. Kovachevich, who incidentally was second on the list.

U.S. Attorney William Barr, who in April authorized prosecutors to seek the death penalty against Mathis, topped the black magic list. Prosecutor Jeffrey S. Downing, who was third in line for one of the spells.

The network members who pleaded guilty and agreed to cooperate with police — labeled "main mouths" on the list — were noted, along with a few people Mathis suspects will testify against him when he comes to trial late next fall.

And detectives Jim Mc-

Conaughey and Paul Cooke, who led the intense, yearlong investigation, topped about a dozen targeted police officers. Before his arrest in November 1991, Mathis sprinkled voodoo seeds on his front steps to curse detectives who might raid his house, officials say.

What police described as a violent, $15.6 million-a-year crack distribution network was crushed a year ago. Mathis, 34, faces the federal death penalty on a charge that he ordered his nephew to kill a young drug dealer who had crossed him.

Mathis also sought some magic for himself and eight others who are "still standing strong: fighters who want to go to court" on the drug, gun, racketeering and conspiracy charges, the list shows.

Mathis' defense attorney said he will ask that the list be suppressed.

County to modify new nuisance ordinance

By MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A proposed new county nuisance ordinance will come back to the county code board next month with modifications.

Code board members Thursday wanted changes made to the proposal before passing it on to county commissioners for adoption, said board secretary, Judith Fullen. The proposed ordinance would allow the county to clear up unsightly lots if the owner refuses or is incapable of doing so, then placing a lien on the property in the amount of the cleanup expense if the owner refuses or is incapable of paying the county. Fullen said board members wanted wording in the ordinance to establish specific owner hardship conditions that must be present before the process would be utilized. They also wanted a cap on cleanup spending.

"Basically, they didn't want the county to spend a lot of money and only have a bunch of liens to show for it," said Fullen.

Fullen said code board member Hugh Harding wanted the process restricted to only "eminently dangerous" situations. But other code members wanted to keep their options open and did not support his recommended modification. The revised ordinance will be reconsidered by the code board Jan. 28.

Renaissance of Sanford evident on home tour

Sanford's renaissance is most evident within the downtown historic district where, over the years, once graceful homes had fallen into disrepair.

Suddenly, sagging verandahs are shored up. Coats of paint in many colors cover wood structures long scabbed with blistered, peeling paint. Poorly maintained rooming houses are transformed into glorious homes. Flowers bloom where weeds once choked them out.

Homeowners proud of their handiwork wished four years ago to share their vision of a revitalized residential district. It was hard to tell people the reasons behind buying a ramshackle Victorian house that had perhaps been a neglected rooming house, where burnished wood floors were scuffed and scarred, plumbing groaned like a mother in labor, and resplendent brick fireplaces were walled up to prevent transient tenants from starting fires.

It was hard to explain why a trip to the hardware store was almost as exciting as a trip to Paris.

Or why stripping a meticulously handcarved stairway of paint so thick that detail had been lost was more satisfying than doing anything at all to a brand new house.

Those homeowners, urged by the residential preservation group, The Sanford Historic Trust, decided not to explain their passion for old homes to others.

They decided to show them. The Sanford Historic Trust's first Christmas season tour of homes was an immediate success, with close to 500 visitors taking the journey through Sanford's beginnings. Four homes, built from the late 1800s to the early 1900s.

This weekend, about 700 visitors are expected to again tour historic homes painstakingly and lovingly being restored by their owners. Visitors who attended the first tour will notice that the handful of homes restored enough to be on it have been joined by hundreds more now under restoration, too.

Take the time to take the tour. It's worth it. Over the past four years the tour has been a big part of the pride, camaraderie and spirit of revitalization evident downtown. Residents there may not talk much about those intangibles.

But they sure can show you.

No endorsement

I write concerning City Commissioner Lon Howell's campaign for re-election to the District 1 seat. In Mr. Howell's latest campaign brochure making his requests, without credit to the Herald and against my expressed wishes, my letter to the editor of the Sanford Herald that appeared a year ago therein. It is obvious that Mr. Howell's inclusion of this letter was to imply my personal endorsement of him. The fact is that I don't endorse him at all. I want a change. I want a commissioner who actually lives in my district, who does not owe back real estate taxes, who is not having real estate foreclosed on, and who has no outstanding personal monetary judgments against him. Commissioner Howell is not giving me these things. It's time for a change.

CHUCK STONE

'Tis the season to be ecumenical

It's a special season of celebrations for some of us and for all of us — but mostly for all of us.

In the next few weeks, we will go our separate ethnic ways at Hanukkah, Christmas, Kwanza and the Festival of Three Kings. But we'll all celebrate a thriving national unity on New Year's Eve.

Recently, we were unified with a national fest that no longer celebrates only the Pilgrims' thankfulness for their survival in the New World. Today, Thanksgiving has radiated into a national holiday that is one part gastronomical excess, one part school vacation, one part football, and one part televised parade. (What would we do if near-bankrupt Macy's did not escort Santa Claus into town behind those monstrous animal-shaped balloons.)

However it is characterized, it ushers in what I call the American Festival of Holidays. Nowhere in the world are so many diverse religious and ethnic holidays celebrated in so short a time span. We are a festive civilization.

Holidays are seasonal certainties in lives filled with daily uncertainties. Although, many of us celebrate different holidays, it is important that all of us be comfortable in our knowledge and understanding of their commemorative differences.

Any school child can recite the historical genesis of Thanksgiving. But how many gentile kids can explain the meaning of the Jewish celebration of Hanukkah, which this year begins at sundown on Dec. 19?

Years ago, when my son attended nursery school at a synagogue, he informed us that he was going to celebrate Hanukkah because he was Jewish. So, we did.

And we explained to him the significance of the miracle of the cruse in the Temple of Jerusalem. After the Maccabees out of their temple in 185 B.C., they found a small cruse of oil with which to light their holy lamps. Miraculously, the oils burned for eight days. During Hanukkah, Jews light a candle each evening for each of the eight days on an eight-pronged menorah.

In the next few weeks, we will go our separate ethnic ways.

On Christmas Eve, Dec. 24, many Christians will light candles in church. Although the celebration of the birth of the Christ child has been tainted by mercantilistic greed, and Santa Claus and his jet-propelled reindeer seem to have replaced the sacredness of the creche, Christmas still exalts the better angels of our nature.

The lighting of candles also endures in the African-American holiday of Kwanza, which is Swahili for first fruits. In 1966, Maulana Karanga, an African-American who shared the black nationalism ideology of Malcolm X, founded Kwanza in the hope that more emphasis would be placed on inward spiritual development.

Hundreds of thousands of African-American families now celebrate Kwanza, which begins the day after Christmas.

Each day, a child lights candle to commemorate Nguzo Saba or Kwanza's seven principles: Umoja (unity); Kujichagulia (self-determination); Ujima (collective work); Ujamaa (cooperative economics); Nia (purpose); Kumba (creativity); and Imani (faith).

During the lighting ceremonies, the meaning of each of the principles is discussed. Members of many families exchange small gifts.

Report glosses over questions

WASHINGTON — Many at the State Department, especially Foreign Service professionals, question Inspector General Sherman Funk's report blaming the Clinton passport file search on overzealous middle-level officials. These longtime department insiders say the report ignores critical questions, glosses over key points, and subtly shifts blame.

Critics point to Funk's two central conclusions: that investigators "found no evidence that it had been orchestrated or directed by the White House"; and that the whole thing is "much ado about very little.... We found no major fraud, no massive corruption, no rogue operation subverting American foreign policy."

As a longtime Foreign Service officer puts it: "They weren't looking for a subversion of foreign policy. They were not looking for a rogue operation. They were looking for an officially sanctioned political dirty trick in the making, and that is exactly what they found. It is dangerous to see it as merely a display of its significance because it wasn't a major national security breach."

"As for saying it was not orchestrated or directed by the White House, they must have searched diligently for those words. Anyone reading the report can see that the White House at the very highest levels approved of, and encouraged what was going on to the point that you could easily defend the charge that it sanctioned the activity."

Insiders point to a number of major unanswered questions and lapses in the report. Among the most serious:

What exactly was being searched during 12 hours at the National Records Center in Suitland, Md. Sources there say the search for Clinton's file — and his mother's — should have taken less than an hour. The report says that for eight hours on the second day the searchers went through "classified and other records." The suspicion is that what was being searched were still-existing files of materials forwarded to longtime Passport Head Francis Kellogg from her close friend J. Edgar Hoover on individuals Hoover suspected of committing "subversive acts." An antiwar demonstration in London would have qualified as such an act in Hoover's eyes.

Why did State Department officials let spokesman Richard Boucher issue an official "guidance" on Oct. 18 saying the search was initiated by unidentified "low-level people" and "mid-level clerks" who were not acting under political pressure. That very morning Acting Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger and other top officials were briefed on the content of four telephone calls monitored by the State Department Operations Center between Steven K. Berry, acting assistant secretary for legislative affairs and Assistant Secretary for Consular Affairs

Elizabeth Tamposi. On three of these occasions Berry told Tamposi that he had spoken to higher-ups in the White House, including Jim Baker aide Janet Mullins, who were extremely interested in the result.

On Sept. 30, while the search was underway, Tamposi phoned the White House to attempt to inform Jim Baker's top aide, Margaret Tutwiler. Reportedly Tutwiler told investigators she would not take the call. But according to telephone logs, Tamposi spent seven minutes talking with someone in her office. Investigators say no one at the White House will admit to receiving the call. But they did not spend any time trying to find out with whom Tamposi spoke.

Why does the report completely gloss over the fact that Tamposi's roommate at the time of the search was Alize R. Glen, deputy spokesman for the Bush-Quayle campaign and the point person in leveling charges against Clinton. The report says nothing about Glen, only listing her among the 100 individuals interviewed. It glaringly omits listing her job or title.

On the night of Sept. 30, Tamposi ordered the Clinton file brought to the Alexandria townhouse she shared with Glen. She later told investigators no one else was at home that night. Later, Glen told a reporter that her records showed she was in Little Rock, Ark., negotiating the debates on the night of Sept. 30. But it appears from newspaper stories that Glen conducted news briefings in Washington both late on the afternoon of Sept. 30 and again early in the morning of Oct. 1.

It stretches credibility that the one person in the Bush-Quayle campaign who would be most directly involved in what the search might turn up (because it would likely fall to her to leak it) would not be told about it or shown the file by her roommate, who had already been told that the highest levels of the White House were eagerly awaiting the results of the search.

Finally, insiders familiar with Inspector general investigations at this level question why Funk did not order all interviews be conducted under oath. He says he left it up to individual investigators. But it appears that no one in the White House or in the Bush campaign was questioned under the penalty of perjury.

Longtime department insiders say the report ignores critical questions.

JACK ANDERSON

Saddam had plans to invade Saudi Arabia

KUWAIT CITY, Kuwait — Kuwaiti military officials have proof that Saddam Hussein originally intended to invade Saudi Arabia shortly after he invaded and occupied Kuwait in August 1990. Although the proof is substantial, Kuwaiti leaders have little interest in revealing it publicly.

The fact is that two years after the seven-month Iraqi rape of their country, Kuwaitis are still paranoid, suspicious and convinced that, under the right conditions, Saddam Hussein might strike again. If they boast openly about the defeated Iraqis, it is usually quickly followed up by allusions to U.S. military and diplomatic backing. They are anxious not to boast.

Kuwaitis believe that Saddam is biding his time until U.S. interest fades. He appears to feel that President-elect Bill Clinton will be softer than Bush — one explanation for why Saddam is fearlessly flouting provisions of the peace accord his officials signed at the 1991 cease-fire, including the continued detention of as many as 800 Kuwaiti prisoners-of-war whose release was part of the accords.

Iraq was also supposed to relinquish all claims to Kuwait — claims that were bogus in the first place. But Saddam's men openly refer to Kuwait as Iraq's "19th Province." Iraq's government-run newspaper has boasted that Kuwait some day "shall return to the right people."

It is because Kuwait officials do not want to tweak this Arab lion, however defanged the rest of the world perceives him, that they don't actively publish much of the intelligence they collected on Saddam and his intentions in the early days of the invasion. A secret warehouse here sheds some light on Saddam's expansionist plans for seizing much of Saudi Arabia. It's in the form of something as mundane as license plates.

When the Iraqi bureaucracy got down to running the "annexed" 19th Province — Kuwait — they churned out thousands of new Iraqi license plates which had, in Arabic, Iraq in one lower corner and Kuwait in the other. They are the same plates they have for their 18 provinces — like Iraq-Basra. Within weeks of the invasion, all Kuwaitis had to use these new plates instead of the old Kuwaiti ones.

In the warehouse kept under Kuwaiti lock and key, there are dozens of boxes with Iraq-Kuwait plates ready for future use. But among those boxes, according to one eyewitness, there is one box of similar plates that identified a northern province of Saudi Arabia as an Iraqi province.

One civilian, Mohammed al-Fajji, was willing to talk to our associate Dale Van Atta about some related intelligence that al-Fajji gathered in the early months of the occupation. Al-Fajji is one of Kuwait's leading merchants. He owns 80 buildings or complexes and is considered an important figure in the transportation industry. He's also one of the heroes of the Kuwaiti resistance, surviving imprisonment and torture. Prior to the invasion, al-Fajji was good friends with Saddam, even contributing aid to him in the long Iraqi war against Iran.

At first, he found Saddam's August 1990 invasion of Kuwait "unbelievable" — especially because he had helped Saddam before. He tried to use his previous friendship with Saddam to lessen the brutality of the occupation in the first days — but soon realized it was a lost cause. So al-Fajji sent his family out of the country.

To this day, Schwarzkopf says he can't figure out why Saddam didn't make the move when the United States had so few troops there in the first months.

Kuwaitis are still paranoid that, under the right conditions, Saddam Hussein might strike again.

Unemployment up only slightly

By JACQUE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's unemployment rate climbed slightly to 7.5 percent last month, showing a slight increase that left intact most of the improvement seen in October, a state economist said today.

"This was an insignificant change statistically and we still feel it's a positive sign because last time the drop was so severe," said Rebecca Rust, chief of the state's bureau of labor information.

The state's jobless rate dropped 1.5 percent from a recession-peak of 8.9 percent in September to 7.4 percent in October.

In November, the nation's unemployment rate dropped to 7.2 percent, the fifth consecutive decline and the lowest rate since April.

Last month in Florida, just over 6 million people had full or part-time jobs and 488,000 people were looking for work. The unemployment figure doesn't measure the number of people who have given up the search for jobs.

Hurricane Andrew's impact on the unemployment is a mixed bag, Rust said. Unemployment is high in the Miami area but some sectors of the economy — construction, transportation, trade, services — are showing strength that can be traced to recovery activity, she said.

In October, the unemployment rate in Dade County was 8.6 percent, the fourth highest of Florida's 20 metropolitan areas. Fort Pierce led the state with a rate of 13 percent, followed by Lakeland with 10 percent and West Palm Beach with 8.8 percent.

regatta," said regatta chairman John Gardiner Jr. in a recent Florida Citrus Sailfest press release.

"We welcome all sailors, with eight race courses accommodating over 50 classes of singlehanded or crewed monohulls, catamarans, sailboards, IODAs and remote control sailboats."

Last year, participants represented from 28 states and six countries, including Canada, England, Norway, Holland and the British Virgin Islands.

To go with the expected increase in registration, Gardiner and crew had added to the schedule of events, which will include JY 15 midwinters, the Sailing World Speed Circle, four-hour Celebrity Sailor Clinics, eight-hour Mistral IMCO and ABK windsurfing and sailboard clinics, JY 15 and Mistral boat charters and free sailboard lessons throughout the weekend.

While celebrity sailors have always been a part of the Florida Citrus Sailfest, organizers are now billing the participation as the "Sailing All-Star Game."

Sailing legends Teddy Turner, Rod Johnstone, and Peter Johnstone will be competing against Olympic medalists Julia Trotman, Morgan Reecer, Randy Smyth and Mike Gebhardt in the JY 15, One-Design 14, Laser, and Sunfish classes.

World champions Jim Brady, Greg Fisher, Ed Baird, and Carlton Tucker also will be in town this weekend to participate in the activities.

Today's schedule is crammed with free clinics and lessons being offered by the celebrity sailors, followed by the Night Before Citrus party this evening. Racing will commence — weather permitting — Saturday morning and wrap up Sunday afternoon.

Once again, Mt. Gay Rum will sponsor Saturday night's Mt. Gay Partyfest street party.

The Florida Citrus Sailfest is the only regatta to have been named the Best Regatta in the Nation twice by U.S. Sailing, the sport's national governing body. Recently, regatta organizers were nominated for the USA Today/RIT Quality Cup, an award which recognizes excellence in quality service.

originally built. They have made the enclosed portion their living room and replaced french doors leading into a formal dining room.

Carmen, who said she studied decorating magazines before making her choices, has done the downstairs in a deep burgundy; the upstairs in a dark green, and the effect is striking. Visitors, Jim said, are taken aback at first, but the overall effect is conducive to the home and quite eye-appealing. She has decorated walls of the living area in white-moulding bordered tapestry, which picks up the burgundy theme, and they found an old armchair which dominated one corner for a rustic effect.

The dining furniture is a sample of pieces they found through ads in the newspaper, she said, and its dark wood lends a very old-worldly feel to the area. They purchased the table and buffet from an older couple who had traveled extensively; the husband as an employee of the American Embassy, Jim said. They struck up a friendship, and the sellers threw in a tablecloth which had been knitted by hand by nuns in pre-Communist China. Jim ripped off a screened porch and tore out an old half-bath to expand the kitchen, installing a new window and a door with a window to bring light into the area. Carmen has chosen a dark green for the countertops and white for the cupboards.

Upstairs the couple have three bedrooms, any of which could be from the pages of House Beautiful, and they found an old claw-foot tub and a reproduction of a matching sink to retain the antique flavor of the bathroom. They have placed potted greenery at the foot, landing, and along the upper steps of the stairway, and have chosen a sheer curtain to cover the midway window which floods the area with light.

"We always wanted an old historic home, and when we preferred something a little larger, but when we saw this we jumped on it," Carmen said.

The couple purchased the home from the second owner and say they think she must have occupied it for 40-odd years without doing much to it at all. They think that may have been due to her age. She's lost her license, but retained her 1949 Buick car and periodically drove it up and down the rear driveway to keep in practice, they say.

When the house was willed to her kin on her death, furniture and her automobile were sold off except for the Victorian pieces with which she furnished the living room area. Those have been donated and are on display at the Seminole County Historic Society, and Jim and Carmen started fresh bringing in their own pieces.

"We collected them a little at a time, which was really the best way to do it," Jim said. "We'd see something and think how nice it would look in a particular spot."

Like many older homes, the floors are natural wood, and like some of the other older homes on the tour, for unknown reasons the upstairs and downstairs are different woods, oak downstairs, pine upstairs.

"I saved plans for decorative home for the upstairs and for herself," she said. "With the decorations period-like in effect, in keeping with the age and the ambience of 'This Old House.'"

Arcadio Vergara, far right, and Michael Beckler were on hand with friends and parents Thursday night as the city of Lake Mary contributed more than $6,500 to the JAM fund, the fund set up to help the medical expenses of the victims of a Oct. 9 school bus stop accident. Beaten in front of the boys is Mike Kalin, a trustee of the JAM fund, who accepted the check.

Mayor

The commission set Jan. 4 as the first day he would assume his $47,500-a-year position.

Litton noted Beary had just received an award of valor from Altamonte Springs due to his involvement in three felony arrests.

Several Lake Mary city commissioners also praised Beary with Commissioner George Duryea taking notice of the three arrests.

"I can understand why Mr. Beary would like to come into a quieter community," Duryea said.

Mayor Randy Morris also noted that the Altamonte

Springs officer came "highly recommended."

Beary told the commissioners that he looked forward to working with them.

"I feel confident we will do great things for the city," he said.

In another matter, a check for approximately $6,500 was given to Mike Kalin for the JAM Trust Fund Relief. JAM is an acronym for three boys involved in an Oct. 9 school bus stop accident in Lake Mary.

Two of the boys, Michael Beckler and Arcadio Vergara, were at the meeting. The third boy, Jeremy Millhouse, was killed in the accident.

Kalin also presented a plaque to the city, to thank Lake Mary citizens for their support after the tragedy.

In a farewell to the council, Mayor Randy Morris praised commissioners and noted the "incredible change" in the town during the past five years. Morris did not run for re-election and the Thursday night session will be his last meeting as mayor.

"Most of those incredible changes were good although there were a number of growing pains," Morris said. He also praised the increased professionalism of both the police and fire department in Lake Mary.

Beary

"I started in this business when I was 18. I went to high school during the day and the police academy at night," he said.

Beary said he will spend the first six months of his new job "finding out what makes the community tick," but said some law enforcement problems are common to all Central Florida cities.

"Traffic is a big problem that has to be dealt with and there's the crime problem that every city in this area has, burglaries and robberies, things of that nature," he said.

Beary said he was very happy at being chosen and was excited at the prospect of his new job.

"It will probably take about six months to evaluate and get to know the department. After that time, I'll decide what changes need to be made and what programs need to be instituted."

The first six months will be a "learning curve," he said.

minor policy decisions. Any major policy matters will wait until I find out what's going on," he said.

The Lake Mary Police Department employs 19 full-time officers and seven reserves.

During the time with the Altamonte Springs department, Beary helped open the Altamonte Mall substation, which has helped improve the department's response time to crime.

Max Daugherty declined to state the nature of the enterprise planned for Sanford or the relationship of Mountain Distributors to Wayne Densch Inc. Daugherty is the listed representative of both corporations and president of Wayne Densch Inc.

When asked what business Mountain Distributors was currently conducting, Daugherty replied "Right now, there is no business being done as Mountain Distributors."

Kemco president and owner

Steve Kracht said he plans to build 30,000 square feet of manufacturing space and 5,000 square feet of office space on three vacant lots in the commerce park and two acres of former Cardinal land.

Kemco is currently located in 26,000 square feet of leased space in Midway Commerce Center, said Kracht. He said the company builds metal electric control panels for Florida Power Corp., Florida Power and Light and other clients. Kracht said the growing company needed room to expand and selected the Sanford property which will have a capacity for an additional 20,000 square feet.

Kracht said he plans to open operations in May and hopes to double his employment.

Seminole County achievers to participate in Kwanzaa

By SHARLEY R. BAKER
Herald Correspondent

The approaching holiday season calls for celebrations that are as varied as their participants.

Kwanzaa, an African-American holiday which is celebrated for seven days in December (officially Dec. 26-Jan. 1) is becoming increasingly popular among African-Americans.

On Saturday, Dec. 5, at the James R. Smith Center on Brulon Boulevard, Orlando, at 3 p.m., McKnight Achievers from Lake, Orange, Seminole and Volusia counties will celebrate Kwanzaa.

Participants from Seminole County include: Zekia Sweet, Kolesha Ferril, Shakira Hunt, Aisha Lyons and Erika Witherspoon.

"The Seminole group has done research on Ghana and Senegal," according to Cynthia Sweet, Seminole County chapter director of McKnight. "The results of their research of these countries, their food, industry, artifacts, political and education systems will be showcased at the Orlando celebration."

Seminole County Achievers will also recite poems and wear the model native attire from Ghana and Senegal in a fashion show.

Kwanzaa was created by Dr. Maulana Karenga, of California, and has been recognized by African-Americans from every phase of life in the U.S. for 26 years, according to Nina D. Frazier of Kuumba Innivals in Winter Park.

The origin of Kwanzaa lies in the celebration that early ancestors of African-Americans held when the first crops of the year were harvested. The idea was to give thanks, so that a good harvest for the following year would be insured. The early harvest celebration included feasting, drumming, dancing, storytelling and strengthening of family ties.

Kwanzaa educates participants in the richness of an African background and reminds them of the blessings their children bring, the work their elders have done for them, and the tasks that lie ahead.

Participants focus their minds, heart, bodies, and souls on seven principles which should be practiced in daily life and instilled in children from birth.

The are: Umoja, unity; Kujichagulia, self-determination; Ujima, collective work and responsibility; Ujamaa, cooperative economics; Nia, purpose; Kuumba, creativity, and Imani, faith.

U.N. to send Marines to Somalia

By VICTORIA GRANAM
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS — President Bush was ready with a first wave of Marines after receiving the go-ahead from the United Nations for the world's biggest armed humanitarian rescue. In all, some 28,000 Americans will lead the force charged with getting food to starving Somalis.

Bush was expected to approve today the dispatch of U.S. troops as the major part of the force. Three U.S. ships now in the Indian Ocean carried 1,800 troops who could land on Somali beaches within hours, and the rest could arrive within weeks.

The force, approved by the U.N. Security Council on Thursday night, is a bold — and risky — expansion of the U.N.'s role. The mission's vague mandate to use "all necessary means" to establish as soon as possible a secure environment for humanitarian relief operations in Somalia "could mean a long stay."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says the Bush administration hopes the troops will be out by Jan. 20, inauguration day for President-elect Clinton. Clinton expressed support for the mission Thursday.

"For the first time you have an intervention in favor of humanitarian aid, with a moral backing," Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali said Thursday. "I hope this will be a precedent."

For all the boldness of the move, it came more than a year after severe food shortages and civil unrest were first reported in Somalia.

Clans have been battling for control of Somalia since the collapse of President Mohamed Siad Barre's rule in January 1991, worsening a famine that has killed 300,000 people and put another 2 million at risk.

Well-armed militias, mostly untrained young men and boys, have stolen at least half of the food and medicine shipped to Somalia and paralyzed a 500-member U.N. peacekeeping force in place since September.

Even China, always reluctant to back foreign intervention, agreed that Somalia's horror demanded radical steps and approved the force.

But the day after 15-member council approved the intervention, major questions remain, including the size, scope and duration of the mission and how the United States will cede political control — always jealously guarded — to the United Nations.

A major concern is what will happen when the combat troops withdraw in favor of lightly armed peacekeepers — whether there would be a return of the warlords and teenage freelance gunmen who have held sway since the government collapsed.

Boutros-Ghali said political reconciliation and reconstruction would be part of the U.N.'s mission once food deliveries are secure.

U.S. soldiers won't wear blue helmets, like lightly armed U.N. peacekeepers and the U.S. flag will be flown, Western diplomats said.

The size of the force is yet to be determined.

The U.S. offer galvanized the world body into action. France reportedly will contribute 2,000 troops and Italy also will send soldiers. Many other nations are considering sending troops, including Belgium, Canada, Nigeria and Egypt. Many others who could make contributions in cash or services.

About 600 U.S. troops already are working in Somalia and neighboring Kenya, using 10 C-130 transport planes in the U.S. military's "Provide Relief" mission.

The exact nature of the operation will be determined on the ground.

"Our mission is essentially a peaceful one, and we will endorse the use of force only if and when we decide it is necessary to accomplish our objective," said Edward Perkins, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Boutros-Ghali says he expects the operation to "neutralize" and take control of heavy weapons and to disarm combatants.

Bush consulting Congressional leaders before acting on Somalia

By ROBERT BURNS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Bush summoned congressional leaders to the White House to spell out his plan for an armed U.S. relief operation in famine-ravaged Somalia. The Pentagon readied about 28,000 troops for the mission, which some critics likened to an ill-defined police action.

The largest U.S. contingent would be 18,000 Marines from the 1st Marine Expeditionary Force from Camp Pendleton, Calif. In a second wave, up to 10,000 soldiers from the Army's light infantry 10th Mountain Division at Fort Drum, N.Y., would be added, said a Pentagon official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Williams declined to say exactly how many troops might be sent to Somalia. France said it would contribute 2,000 troops, and Belgium and the African nations of Kenya, Nigeria and Zimbabwe also offered troops.

Amid questions from some in Congress about how much the campaign would cost U.S. taxpayers, the White House made clear it would act quickly now that it has U.N. approval and that it hoped to complete the task by Inauguration Day.

"Our purpose is to first of all ... get the aid through, and secondly to accomplish that as rapidly as possible, and to turn it over to peacekeeping forces of the United Nations as soon as possible," Fitzwater said before the U.N. vote.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater defended the U.S. offer to send troops, saying the "crisis remains urgent" in the east African nation, where an estimated 2 million Somalis are in imminent danger of starvation.

The president was expected to announce the troop deployment and its objectives, possibly at a news conference later today, before heading for the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md.

The troop movement was authorized Thursday night by the U.N. Security Council, which voted 15-0 in favor of using force to ensure deliveries of humanitarian aid.

"We are pleased by the U.N. vote to authorize military force ... to alleviate the starvation and human suffering in Somalia," Fitzwater said in a brief written statement after the vote.

President-elect Clinton called the Security Council resolution a "historic and welcome step" that "has provided new hope to the millions of Somalis at risk of starvation."

"I commend President Bush for taking the lead in this important humanitarian effort," Clinton said from Little Rock, Ark.

Pete Williams, the Pentagon spokesman, said 1,800 Marines board a three-ship amphibious strike force were off the coast of Somalia, awaiting further orders. Their task would be to move in and secure Mogadishu's port and

Immigration fueling US population growth

By TIM BOVEE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Heavy immigration will fuel a decade of population growth in the 1990s unrivaled since the 1950s despite declining births, the government says.

As a consequence, it said, by 2050 nearly half the population will be members of a racial or ethnic minority, double what it is today. Without immigration, the minority population would be closer to one third.

The Census Bureau's projections, released Thursday, estimated about 180,000 people on average will immigrate to the United States each year, legally or illegally.

Along with newborns, immigrants will add 25.4 million to the population in the 1990s. At the turn of the century, there will be 275 million Americans, the bureau said.

In that same period, demographers expect births to decline from the present 4.1 million per year to fewer than 3.9 million in 2000.

A law signed by President

America's urbanization

Growth of metropolitan areas with populations of 1 million or more.

Year	Number	Population (millions)	Percent of U.S. population
1950	14	44.9	29.7%
1960	22	63.9	35.6%
1970	31	83.9	41.0%
1980	35	104.0	45.9%
1990	39	124.8	50.2%

In 1950 less than one-third of the U.S. population lived in metropolitan areas with populations over 1 million. In 1990, however, just over half of the total population lived in metropolitan areas with populations over 1 million.

Bush in 1990 raised the ceiling on legal immigration by 25 percent, to 675,000 people a year.

Jennifer Day, author of the Census Bureau study, said immigration will add 22.8 million people by the mid 21st century. "That doesn't include the children had by immigrants," she said. "There are a lot of extra factors in there."

Immigration and births will swell the U.S. population to 383 million by the middle of the next century. More than one-third of the immigrants will be Asians, and another third will be Hispanics.

The number of Americans not belonging to a racial or ethnic minority will decline beginning in the 2030s, from a peak of 208 million people.

No. 1 Oviedo struggles with Spruce Creek

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

OVIEDO — Last year the only team in Florida that gave the Oviedo High School boys basketball a tough time was Spruce Creek. The teams met three times, with Oviedo prevailing by one point, one point and 11 points.

And this year it appears the Hawks will be a thorn in the Lions' paw again.

Tuesday night at Oviedo, the defending Class 4A state champions and current No. 1 ranked team in the state barely held off Spruce Creek as Randy Wright hit a pair of free throws with 0:04 left on the clock to give Oviedo a 55-52 victory.

"This was a good second game for us," said Oviedo head coach Ed Bolton. "University was a good team for us to open with (the Lions won 64-33) and this was a good test for us. They've got a good team. Dave (Spruce Creek head coach Dave Fedor) does a good job. They never quit and got the ball to the right people. (Curtis) Wiggins and (Zach) Sipp can play with anyone.

"They're going to win 15-20 games this year. But we need to play good competition to get better. Hopefully this got us ready to face Miami."

Oviedo (2-0) will travel to Miami this Saturday to take on No. 2 state ranked Miami Senior High School in a rematch of last year's 4A state final. The game will be played at Miami-Dade Community College, North Campus starting at 8 p.m. A crowd of 5,000 is expected.

Tribe claims first win

From Staff Reports

WINTER PARK — Junior Dean Daniels scored a game-high 13 points Thursday night to lead the Seminole High School boys' basketball team to a 48-45 win over the Lake Howell Silver Hawks in a consolation game of the Rotary Tip-Off Classic at Winter Park High School.

Ronnie McCarrell added 10 points for Seminole.

It was the first win for first-year Seminole coach Bob Traina.

"The game was very similar to the one we played last night (Seminole's 67-66 loss to Oak Ridge on Wednesday)," said Traina. "It was a much slower-paced game.

"We did our job defensively, we just didn't capitalize offensively. We missed too many easy shots. Because we weren't making our shots and taking care of the ball, we didn't get good clock management and it nearly cost us the game. We have to work on that."

Traina did say he was pleased with the advances Seminole had made in the short period of time since its season-opening loss to Spruce Creek on Tuesday.

"We did make some progress," he said. "I thought our defense was very good. It created a lot of turnovers. We just weren't able to DAYTONA BEACH — Shorthanded Seminole gave defending 4A-District 9 champion Mainland all it wanted Thursday night, but it was not enough as the Buccaneers held on for a 55-52 victory over the visiting Tribe.

The junior varsity contest also went the home team's way, 45-30.

Seminole (5-2) only dressed seven players for the game and some of them were not 100 percent.

"We played well, but several of the girls are not feeling well," said Seminole head coach John McNamara. "So we can't run as much as I would like to. We still had a chance to tie the game but Tenneshia (Eason) had a three-pointer bounce away at the buzzer. Three games in three nights is tough. We're coming along and I think we'll be tough by the end of the year."

The Tribe will be playing three tough games next week as they travel to St. Cloud on Tuesday to take on the No. 1 state ranked Bulldogs, they go to Winter Park Wednesday for a game against Bishop Moore and 6-foot, 5-inch Amy Dorsett.

Nikki Washington topped the Seminole scoring chart with 21, while Eason chipped in with 20.

Humphrey a happy Fin

By STEVEN WINE
AP Sports Writer

MIAMI — Labeled a malcontent in Denver, Bobby Humphrey may soon be rewarded by the Miami Dolphins for good behavior.

The two-time 1,000-yard rusher could complain about his limited role in the Dolphins' sputtering offense. Instead, perhaps mindful that his contract expires after this season, Humphrey sounds like the consummate team player.

"I'm not a person who disagrees with something someone asks me to do," he said.

That would be news in Denver. A year ago, Humphrey was upset about his lack of playing time and left the Broncos for a 97-day holdout, and coach Dan Reeves decided to trade his star running back to Miami last May for Sammie Smith.

Now, Humphrey watches Mark Higgs get the bulk of the carries for the Dolphins.

"Everything is in Bobby's favor, because his contract is up this year," Higgs said. "If he has a good year and keeps his head, he'll be rewarded big — bigger than me. And he knows it."

Humphrey is making $450,000 this year. He could double that in 1993.

Used primarily on third down, Humphrey has just 60 carries this season, compared with 198 for Higgs. Humphrey averages 5.3 yards per attempt, compared with 3.6 for Higgs. Humphrey also leads the Dolphins with 42 receptions.

Going into Sunday's game at San Francisco, the Dolphins (8-4) have scored just two touchdowns in the past 10 quarters.

Lyman played tremendous defense as the Greyhounds crushed visiting Eustis 67-34.

Brown, who also had a great defensive game, tossed in a game high 22 points, while Smith tallied 16 and Wood 10 as Lyman improved to 1-1.

But it was the defensive play in the middle by Ideahia Wess that was the turning point in the game. The score was only 9-7, Lyman, when she entered the game in the first quarter and the Greyhounds went on 43-12 run over the next quarter and a half to turn the game into a rout.

Katy Lyons led Eustis (0-2) with 12 points.

The junior varsity game also went to Lyman by a 37-12 score.

The Greyhounds will host DeLona next Tuesday night.

Unrealistic expectations

During holidays, give adult kids, grandkids a break

Holidays can be stressful for a number of different reasons. One thing that makes this hard is expectations on older parents, adult children and grandkids. Many times families are thrown into situations that they normally don't deal with all year long. People are on edge and stressed out. I found the following article in a Home Economics newsletter from Citrus County. The author was unknown but I thought the information was helpful — I hope you think so too!

My Children Are Coming Today — My children are coming today. They mean well. But they worry. They think I should have a railing in the hall. A telephone in the kitchen. They want someone to come in when I take a bath. They really don't like me living alone.

Help me to be grateful for their concern. And help them to understand that I have to do what I can as long as I can. They're right when they say there are risks. I might fall. I might leave the stove on. But there is no challenge. No possibility of triumph: no real aliveness without risk.

When they were young and climbed trees and rode bicycles and went away to camp, I was terrified. But I let them go. Because to hold them would have hurt them.

But now our roles are reversed. Help them see. Keep me from being grim or stubborn about it; but don't let me let them smother me.

Take a break with your grandkids. A grandparent is one of life's treasures. Lucky are the children who have the chance to truly know their grandparents. This relationship can help children feel more secure, and that they belong to a family unit. Grandparents often have the greatest gift to give a child — their time. This can be time to talk, time to listen, time to share all forms of unhurried play. Time spent with a grandparent can help a child develop positive feelings about older people. Their stories and remembrances help link the past with the present.

Christmas sounds

A letter landed woman man of her dreams

DEAR ABBY: Last year, when you gave the addresses for Operation Dear Abby, I sent a Christmas card to "Any Lonely Soldier."

I received a postcard from a "Dave Simcox," U.S. Navy, stationed aboard the U.S.S. Eisenhower. He thanked me for my card and asked me to write again and tell him something about myself. It seemed harmless enough, so I wrote back and we corresponded for several months. It never occurred to me that we'd ever meet, so I was very open and honest concerning my hopes, dreams, etc.

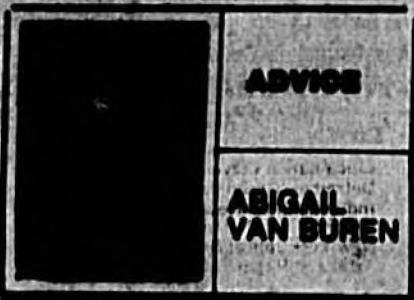

In March, he said his ship would be pulling in; could he meet me? At that point, I panicked and thought, "What am I getting into?"

We didn't have a clue as to what each other looked like, as we had never exchanged pictures! He assured me that he didn't care what I looked like — he "knew" I was a beautiful person by reading my letters. Abby, I couldn't believe there was a man on earth with the same values as mine.

Anyway, we finally met for dinner and talked until 5 a.m. I knew then that I had finally met a man I would consider spending the rest of my life with. He asked me to marry him on our second date. I said yes — we were married within two months.

I am 33 and Dave is 29, and I feel as though we have known each other forever.

If it hadn't been for Operation Dear Abby, we would never have met. This all seems like an incredible dream, but it's true!

Thank you, Abby. LUCKED OUT IN INDIANA DEAR LUCKED OUT: Congratulations. Many others have also "lucked out," but there are many who have made good friends sans romantic connections. Grandmothers, grandfathers and veterans in all branches of the service have become friendly correspondents through Operation Dear Abby. I have been told repeatedly that mail is the No. 1 morale booster for men and women in the service.

DEAR ABBY: About wind chimes: They do not scare the birds! I have 13 sets of wind chimes and five wind ornaments hanging on my porch — plus five bird feeders.

I have chickadees, woodpeckers, sparrows, cardinals, finches and flickers — all eating. The feeders are 3 to 5 feet from my back door, and it is fascinating to watch the birds congregate. They also like to nest on the porch.

The tinkling does not bother them — they perch on the wind chimes and crack seeds. During a storm, they seek refuge there.

Someone else must also like wind chimes, because a thief stole three sets from my porch!

I, too, like peace and quiet, and the chimes and bird sounds are a lot better than barking dogs, my neighbors playing loud music until 4 a.m. — or the sound of cars roaring by, loud enough to break the sound barrier!

RUTH PUKSZA, BELOIT, WIS. DEAR RUTH: My mail is filled with praise for wind chimes — I have had a lovely set of wind chimes tinkling away in my back yard for four years. (It was a house gift from my good friend Erma Bombeck.)

Smoker, drug-mixer creates fire hazard

DEAR MARY: My elderly father-in-law has lived with us since my mother-in-law died. He takes anti-depressants and some other medications, and he also likes his beer. Since he's the only smoker in the house, we ask him to smoke only in his bedroom or outside, in consideration of the rest of the family. It's getting to the point we're afraid to leave the house in cool weather since he has burned several holes in his sheets and furniture when he's smoking in his room. He has to live here for financial reasons, but I'm beginning to feel like a prisoner in my own home because I'm afraid he'll burn the house down while we're gone. This problem is coming between my wife and me and I need some help in dealing with it.

DEAR RESPONDER: Your father-in-law is mixing drugs and it's a recipe for danger. Get a smoke alarm and put it just outside his bedroom door, or even inside the bedroom if it's not too sensitive. Make plans for an emergency while hoping it never happens. Get the family together and have a fire drill. Identify escape routes and make sure everyone knows exactly what to do in case of a fire or other emergency.

When you and your wife are away from home, provide another adult or responsible older teenager to stay with the children and your father-in-law. It's important that you not allow your children to be afraid of their safety whenever you're away from home. Finally, it might be helpful to have your father-in-law's doctor review his situation and your concerns.

Spastic bowel syndrome has no physical cause

DEAR DR. GOTT: I can't understand why you doctors can't find a cure for spastic bowel or irritable bowel syndrome. Over-the-counter remedies don't help. I don't eat cabbage products or drink cola or eat beans. Surely, I'm not alone in this dilemma.

DEAR READER: You're hardly alone in this dilemma. Irritable bowel, a common ailment, causes periodic gas, abdominal discomfort, diarrhea or constipation. Physicians have never been able to find a physical cause for the affliction, which is considered to be a "functional" disorder, meaning that the bowel functions abnormally. This is probably the reason that no cure has been identified. The causes are obscure and may be related to stress in many cases.

Nonetheless, some dietary modification may help. For example, try chewing your food more thoroughly and eating several small meals a day, rather than two or three large ones.

Make sure your doctor has checked you for lactose (milk-sugar) intolerance with a breath test. Finally, ask your doctor to prescribe an anti-spasmodic, such as Donnatal, for the times when you're particularly bothered by symptoms.

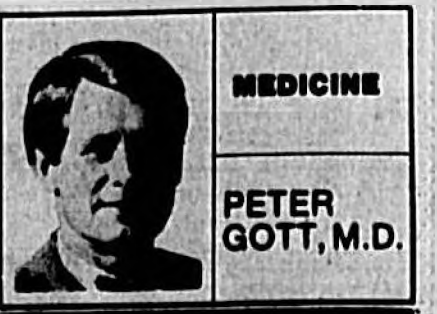

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Irritable Bowel Syndrome." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91389, Cleveland, OH 44101-3389. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 4-year-old son had blood drawn to determine his lead level. The count was 14, a figure my doctor feels is too high. When reporting this information to the state, they indicated that 25 is too high and we are torn between the conflicting stories. I'd like your advice.

DEAR READER: If your doctor believes 14 is too high for your son, follow your doctor's advice and forget the state's recommendation. Your physician is much more familiar with your son than is a state bureaucrat looking only at a chart of lead levels. Lead poisoning in children is a serious public health concern because it can cause anemia, mental retardation, seizures, and other consequences.

Children may develop lead toxicity from ingesting the chips or dust of lead paint, eating from lead-glazed ceramic ware (most of which is prohibited in the

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

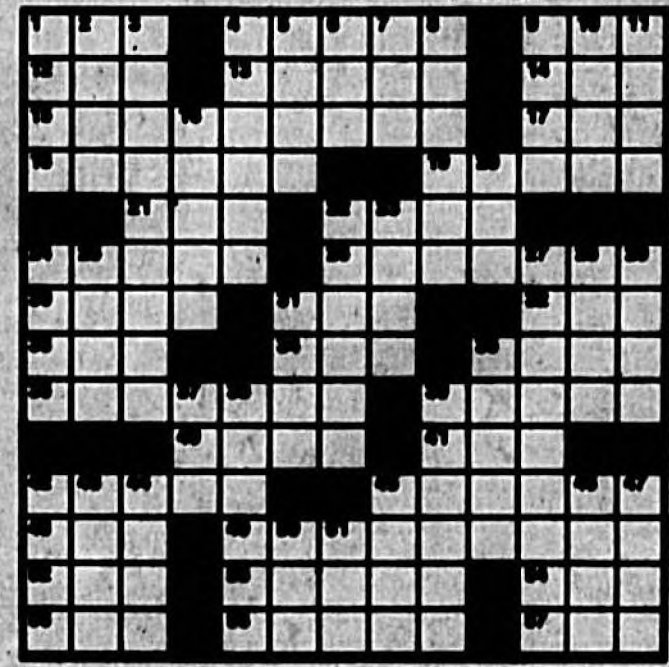

United States), and absorbing traces of the metal from contaminated soil. Treatment is chelation: the administration of a compound (EDTA) to bind to lead in the body and facilitate its excretion.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Almost anywhere you travel on the globe, you will find a bridge club with an open door and people happy to welcome you in.

If you are planning a trip to London and would like to play some Chicago-style rubber-bridge, visit the immodestly named TGR. The club was opened earlier this year under the management of Irving Rose. He is a colorful person who, unlike many experts, has always been happy to talk to and advise up-and-coming young players.

Rose is an imaginative player. Would you have duplicated his defense on today's deal?

After an aggressive auction in which North's two-spade cue-bid promised diamond support, West led the spade ace, dropping declarer's king, Rose, sitting East, had already diagnosed the deal. South had to have all the missing points for his opening bid. With the heart ace onside, there was no legitimate way to defeat five diamonds. So Rose planned to give declarer a losing option.

At trick two, West switched to a club. When dummy played low, Rose put up the queen. Declarer won, drew two rounds of trumps ending in the dummy and called for dummy's heart. Rose played the queen.

Convinced that West had the ace, and hoping to ruff it out, South played low. Back came a spade. Declarer now crossruffed in the majors, but nothing good happened. Finally, South fell back on his last chance: He led a low club and finessed dummy's 10 — but Rose produced the jack for one down.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
 Dec. 5, 1992

Members of the opposite gender could prove to be helpful to you in the year ahead in advancing your worldly interests. It might be a mistake, however, to mix romance with business.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Members of the opposite gender will find you less appealing today if you come on too strong. If you want to score more points, play it humble and keep a low profile. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't make promises to family members today unless you're absolutely certain you'll be able to keep them. Failing to deliver what you say you'll do could leave a lasting scar.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It will confuse and irritate your companions today if you're lovey-dovey one minute and temperamental the next. In order to appear poised, keep an even control over your emotions.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Treat others fairly today, but also be pragmatic in your financial affairs. If you let your feelings rule your logic, you might be taken advantage of.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Even though you intend to do the best for those you love, you must be careful today not to badger or push them. Try to guide them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Usually you're pretty good at keeping your jealousy under control, but today, if others are receiving more attention than you, you might get bent out of shape.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be prudent in the management of your resources today, especially when you're involved in activities with friends. You could be enticed to spend too much.

ANNIE

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You might get some criticism today or get blamed for something done by a close associate. State your position instead of being used as a whipping post.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Know what you're getting into today before becoming involved in a romantic adventure. It might start off innocently enough, but it could get complicated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Positiveness is not a prominent part of your nature, but today you might step out of character and try to monopolize pals in ways that could put some stress on the relationship.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's imperative today that you and your mate have common objectives. If there is a divergence it might cause you to pull apart instead of pulling together, and both of you could be losers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If your heart isn't in your work, you are likely to do a poor job. Rather than complicate distasteful tasks, temporarily shelve them for today.
