Lane closings take a break

LAKE MARY - Nighttime lane closings on Interstate 4 at Lake Mary Boulevard will pause for four to six weeks while construction crews concentrate on installing underground dramage and temporary ramps, said construction spokesman Betty Hardy, of Reynolds, Smith and Hills.

The state is paying $6.9 million to replace the narrow Lake Mary Boulevard overpass with a new bridge that will have a total of four lanes for through traffic, two lanes in each direction. Two lanes will be built for westbound traffic turning south and one lane will be built for eastbound traffic headed north. The work is expected to take up to 18 months to complete.

Hardy said crews have spent the last monthlaying new lane stripes on 1-4 at the interchange to direct traffic away from construction and to place concrete barriers to protect workers from traffic.

Fire destroys church

SANFORD -- This morning, Bishop Elba Reaves was standing outside the heaped rubble of what had been The All Saints Deliverance Church, a non-denominational place of worship, and a "place of refuge for people in need" only vesterday morning.

A fire at the two-story brick building, built 64 years ago, was so intense, fire officials said today, that it took 29 firefighters nearly four hours to control the blaze.

The two alarm fire began shortly before noon. By the time the flames were extinguished he had 24 Sanford firefighters, including 10 who were off duty vesterday and five Seminole County firefighters, working the blaze, according to Battallion fire chief Ernie Ellenberg. Two Sanford firefighters were injured slightly during the effort, both were able to return to duty yesterday, he said. Firefighter Dean Rainville was treated for smoke inhalation and firefighter Debbie Miller was treated for second degree burns to her right ear. "They were both fine." Ellenberg said.

million deficit during the next five years.

The alternative is a property tax fucrease that could amount to about $2.86 per $1,000 of taxable property for every home in Seminole County.

Seminole County commissioners will cosider a schedule Tuesday. If they pursue the tax, they will decide May 7 whether to place it on the ballot.

The tax could raise from about $24.7 million annually for the county if those revenues aren't shared with the citles. If the citles insist on a cut of the tax, the county would collect about $15.6 million animally and the seven cities would divide about $9 million annually among themselves.

Sanford would collect about $2 million annually from the tax and Lake Mary would collect about $377,500 from the tax if those and sheriff's office space failed by a resounding margin because the cities sought a share of the tax even though most of them had no real need for the money for law enforcement structures or equipment.

The county is facing about a $160 million shortfall during the next five years largely due to the Florida Growth Management Act of 1985. About $106 million of that debt is for road improvements and maintenence.

Although the county has a $210 million impact fee and bond roadbuilding program, that construction was scheduled to occur throughout a 20-year period and the revenues were structured to finance the program throughout the 20-year time.

FPL first in U.S. to test new fuel

By LAURA L. BULLIVAN Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A fuel being tested for the first time in the United States at a Sanford power plant could be one of the answers to the nation's dependency on oil from the Middle East, a Florida Power and Light spokesperson said.

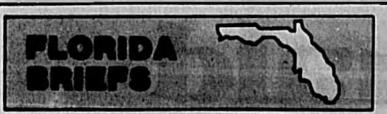

That independence is critical enough to customers to subside complaints about black smoke clouds the new fuel has produced during the test, said Charles Collins of the state Department of Environmental Regulation air division.

Orimulation is being tested by FPL as a low-cost oil substitute at one of the three units at its Sanford plant on the St. Johns River, the first public utility plant in the United States to test the alternative fuel. Chiles changes course in first month

TALLAHASSEE - A month into his term, Gov. Lawton Chiles has discovered how tough it is to keep campaign promises and that his every word or action is scrutinized — but not necessarily with a highly critical eye. During his 18 years in the U.S. Senate, Chiles attained power but was just one of 100 policy makers. As governor, however, he is in the spotlight 24 hours a day.

That makes it tougher to gloss over mistakes, like the pay raises ranging up to $13,000 for most of his department heads. "He's fallen on his sword a few times. I guess if he had some things to do over, he'd do things differently," said House Speaker T.K. Wethereil, D-Daytona Beach.

Yet Democrate and Republicans alike say that, so far, Chiles has used his popularity - partially a result of a campaign that limited contributions to just $100 - and down-home humor to sidestep the kind of critical barrage other politicians would have suffered for the same actions.

"There is a double standard, particularly in the media," said Van Poole, chairman of the Florida Republican Party.

Condo politics may see the light

FORT LAUDERDALE - The closed world of condominium politics could be forced into the sunshine if the Florida Legislature adopts proposed changes in state law. The Florida Condominium Bludy Commission, after hearing from hundreds of witnesses in nine public forums throughout the stats, has agreed to recommend more than 100 changes to laws governing condominiums.

The thrust of most of the recommendations is to make condo The thrust of most of the recommendations is to make condo governments more democratic and more open to public acrutiny, proponents say. If adopted, they would be the most sweeping changes in state condo law since the state began regulating condominiums more than two decades ago. In South Florida, where condos are more common than anywhere else in the state, adoption of the proposals is likely to draw mixed reactions.

"If the state approves these recommendations, I can see a lot more harmony and a lot less frustration for unit owners, boards of directors and developers," said commission Vice Chairman Kitty Thibault, a Pembroke Pines city commissioner and activist in Century Village condominium associations. "It would make it a healthier situation." said Florence Diets.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE Experts: Rolling doesn't fit profile

GAINESVILLE - Several experts on serial murders say Danny Harold Rolling, a suspect in the Gainesville slayings, doesn't fit the profile of a methodical killer who posed bodies and cleaned crime scenes.

The 36-year-old Shreveport, La., resident is being held in the Marion County Jail on unrelated charges while the Gainesville slaying investigation continues.

John Philpin, a Springfield. Vt., psychiatrist who specializes in analyzing gruesome murders, said Rolling's pattern of armed robberies and remorseful confessions when he is caught doesn't fit the pattern of the Gainesville slayings.

Rolling is wanted in Louisiana for the May 1990 shooting of his father, a retired police lieutenant, during an argument at their Shreveport home. The younger Rolling was arrested in Ocala last September and charged with robbing a local supermarket and recently was charged with a similar crime in Tampa.

Rolling as a Gainesville suspect, and The Gainesville Sun reports it has been told by police sources that Rolling is linked to at least one of the Gainesville crime scenes by preliminary DNA tests. Final results of those test, however, are apparently not complete.

Philpin said he sees a pattern in which Rolling was abused by his father then protected by his mother Claudia. The pattern changed latter in life when Rolling seemed to turn to institutions like jails and at one point mental facility - to care for him, Philpin theorized.

"If momma can't intervene and take care of him, he'll set it up so he'll get caught and get into an institution. It doesn't match the methodical, detailed crime scenes in Gainesville, looking at it from strictly a psychological point of view," he said.

ATLANTA - The genetic test that scientists say proved a Florida dentist almost certainly transmitted the AIDS virus to three patients will likely be used in court to bolater lawsuits seeking damages for AIDS transmission, scientists and lawyers say.

The test, called DNA sequencing, compared different strains of the virus that causes AIDS in determining there was at least a 99.4 percent chance that Dr. David Acer of Stuart transmitted it to Kimberly Bergalis of Fort Pierce and two als, eccording to the Alls the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. "Without our really intending it to, that report kind of created a standard of proof." Dr. Hatoid ' Jaffe, deputy director of the division, told The Palm Beach Post last week. "There will be more demand for sequencing. I'm sure other cases will go to court over the issue of proving that person A infected person B."

Jaffe said some lawyers have already asked CDC officials who did the sequencing in the Acer-Bergalis case whether they would perform the procedure privately. But the CDC will do sequencing, a complex process that can take months to complete, only for research, Jaffe said.

The use of DNA sequencing to identify HIV virus transmission links won't guarantee success in court, says Alian H. Terl, a Broward County lawyer specializing in AIDS cases.

Youth gets choice: Learn or go to jail

By IKE FLORES Associated Press Writer

ORLANDO - The shageyhaired high school dropout came up before Juvenile Court Judge Thomas Kirk on a stolen-car charge. The verdict: sentenced to read

The 17-year-old didn't know it, but he was starting on the long road back into the mainstream of society.

The young offender would improve his reading level to the point where he would successfully obtain his General Equivalency Diploma as a high school graduate, take a technical course in vocational school and acquire a good job.

Sentenced to Read is a modest new program designed to keep troubled kids out of jall by offering them the chance to find out what they're missing by rebelling against the system. Special counselors working with juvenile court authorities take on the male and female troublemakers between the ages of 14 and 21 in one-on-one sessions in reading, math and other subjects in which they are deficient. The students must maintain good grade levels and carry out court-mandated community service.

At the end of eight to 12 weeks, they either return to school, take the GED test or go into job-training programs often with tuition, books and expenses paid. If they fail, they are returned to the court system for regular sentencing, which can mean jall. "Out of the first 40 offenders in the program, only two were remanded back to court," says Robert Guy, employment and training director for the Agricultural and Labor Program Inc., a non-profit service organization that runs the program.

"Since then, we've had another 20 or 30 go through positively. . . We expect our recidivism rate (participants that later violate the law) to be 10 percent or so, a very, very low rate for this type of thing."

Social workers, court officials, public defenders and counselors try to weed out the best candidates from some 6,500 juveniles in the Orange County courts - a chancy process at violent without severe psychological problems and have committed crimes against property (petty theft, breaking and entering) rather than against people. Some may have been arrested several times but usually have one conviction.

Most are from broken homes and economically disadvantaged.

A key element in the concept is for counselors to gain the young people's trust.

"The whole idea is that the youth haven't had anybody they can relate to, who listens to them and guides them," says Guy. "So, hopefully, we give them somebody they can actually anchor to for awhile, somebody that is serious with them

Memorial lists living men as dead

By INCHARL J. SMPPEN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - There are 14 Ameri-cans who could visit the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, scan the list of war dead carved in black granite and find their own names. On his first visit to the wall, 20 years after losing part of both legs in Vietnam, Eugene J. Toni discovered that part of the govern-ment thought he was killed in action.

"It was kind of scary," the 41-year-old former Army sergeant said in an interview. "It's like seeing your name on a gravestone.'

Toni's name is there because a government clerk typed a wrong number into a computer. All 14 computer records have been corrected, but the names can never be erased from the polished granite. "It's a very sobering thing," said former Spec. 4 Andrew J. Hilden, who found his name in 1987. "But I guess we have been able to laugh about it - that we've got a walking dead man around." There are 58,175 names of dead and missing carved on the V-shaped wall. The evidence that it lists 14 living Army veterans as dead was buried in computerized Defense Department records at the National Archives. Only three of those errors have been publicly acknowledged before — four years ago. The mistakes apparently did not permeate every government computer - those dis-abled did receive benefit payments. Four of the 14 were found by The Associated Press.

Toni's journey to the wall began on an October morning in 1970 when he tripped a land mine on a reconnaissance patrol for the 101st Airborne in mountainous jungle west of Hue.

Twenty years later. "I woke up one day and decided I didn't want to be a double amputee any more," he said. "I was tired of it. Every day I've got to strap these wooden legs on. I felt like a prisoner who wasn't getting any time off for good behavior." He got treatment for post-traumatic stress. Part of that treatment was to visit the wall - just across the Potomac River from his Virginia home - that he had avoided for eight years. At the memorial one night last March, he flipped through the paperback directory of names on the wall, looking for friends. He turned to the Ts in a longshot search for an uncle he never met.

Instead, he found his own name. He and his wife, Nancy, walked down to panel W7, counted to line 121. "I showed her the name and then we both looked at each other like we couldn't believe it," Toni said.

Three years earlier in Cambridge. Minn., Andrew Hilden and his wife, Shirley, visited a half-scale touring replica of the wall.

More children to be eligible for benefits

WASHINGTON - Thousands more disabled children are expected to become eligible for federal benefits under liberalized regulations being issued today under a Supreme Court ruling. For the first time, the government will consider not only children's medical problems, but also the effect those conditions have on walking, eating, dressing and other daily activities.

The change is expected to add to the Supplemental Security Income program each year as many as 37,000 children with severe physical and mental disabilities that would not previously have qualified them for benefits, officials said. It is effective immediately.

The Supreme Court ordered the change in a ruling issued Feb. 20, 1990, and disibility-rights advocates have complained that crafting the regulations has taken too long.

was conducted by Trinity College in Hartford, Conn. The researchers analyzed data from a nationwide sample of women ages 21-29 in 1986 and their 874 children, who were 3 and 4 years old at the time and had been tested once on a standardized vocabulary test.

Mardi Gras bookings strong

Accordated Press

NEW ORLEANS — Money is tight and people are scared to fly to some places, but you can hardly tell from the bookings for Tuesday's boosy street party known as Mardi Gras.

Street party known as march Gras. This year's bash may not match the 1990 benchmark celebration, which generated $480 million in spending around New Orleans and produced $54.4 million in local and state taxes. But hotels around New Orleans reported bookings of 91 percent, down from 97 percent occupancy last year, for the final four days of Carnival, which ends Tuesday with the big Mardi Gras bash. A day later. Ash Wednesday ushers in six weeks of Lenten repentance to this pre-dominantly Roman Catholic city.

In the meantime, said Stuart Barash, president of Travel New Orleans, "The tourists are coming.'

His company usually books more than 2,000 hotel rooms for Carnival and will fill them again this year, he said.

"There was very little activity until Super Bowl Sunday, and once that came and went and people saw that nothing happened they felt safe in coming to Mardi Gras." Barash said. Overall, attendance could drop 10 percent because of the recession and the war, said Tim Ryan, director of the Division of Business and Economic Research at the University of New Orleans.

That would be significant but not earthshaking. he said.

Interest groups cry foul over chicken

PITTSBORO, N.C. - When outsiders inquire expected to acquiesce to the industry's demands: about touring the Townsend's Inc. poultry processing plant here, a spokeswoman says the company has no objections to such visits but the U.S. Department of Agriculture prohibits them.

"USDA will not allow it," she explains. "USDA will not let us do that."

Those statements are untrue. "That's a dodge," says an official of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service, the federal government agency that provides inspectors to examine Townsend's chickens. The USDA has no interest whatever in who visits the dreary cinderblock facility in central North Carolina.

Owners and operators of the poultry facilities do have cause to be concerned, however. Even under optimal conditions, the process of slaughtering and disemboweling animals for human consumption has more than its share of unpleasant aspects. Moreover, industry critics assert that conditions inside the plants markedly deteriorated during the 1970s and 1980s as line speeds — the number of birds processed per minute -- doubled from 35 to 70, then increased again to 91.

Shortly after President Ronald Reagan entered the White House in 1981, a senior USDA official bluntly explained that his department was

The political climate is such that the special interest groups supporting the meat and pouliry industry have won and now have the ear of Washington.

"They 'paid their dues' and are now in the driver's scat. ... The consumer base has disintegrated. We must be versatile and adjust to this new challenge." The "streamlined" inspection process subsequently im-plemented allows chickens with blood clots, feather clumps, blisters, scabs, tumotsand abacesses to reach consumers, according to some present and former government inspectors who protect the integrity of the nation's poultry supply.

During one processing step the chickens are chilled through immersion in a cold water bath so befouled by their own excrement that it is widely known as "fecal soup." Says Gerald Kuester, an ex-USDA microbiologist: "At the end of the line, the birds are no cleaner than if they had been dipped in a dirty toilet."

The industry, however, remains seemingly oblivious to health concerns of conscientious inspectors and concerned consumer groups. instead, it prefers to blame its customers for unsafe products.

"Research has shown that 96 percent of all foodborne illness outbreaks are the result of improper food handling and preparation in the kitchen." says the National Broller Council, a Washington, D.C., trade association whose members account for about 90 percent of the 6 billion chickens sold throughout the country every year.

In other words, consumers are responsible for cleaning the contaminated chickens they purchase. Indeed, the council has the audacity to suggest that buyers must guard against securing "foods from unsafe sources.

JACK ANDERSON Untold horrors face allied ground forces

NEAR THE KUWAIT BORDER. Saudi Arabia — Ground war has come a long way since the "Charge of the Light Brigade." If only the allied forces had nothing more potent than "cannon to the right of them, cannon to the left of them."

Earth friendly and honest ads A substantial number of shoppers are willing to pay more for a product that appears to be saler for the environment than a competing product. But too often the environmental claims have turned out to be either misleading or downright bogus. In an an attempt to protect consumers, a handful of states — New York, Rhode Island and California among them — have approved "truth-in-environmental-labeling" laws. The laws set standards for the claims of biodegradability, recyclability and similar attributes that are increasingly advertised on products to attract the environmentally conscious consumer.

While that's sensible, manufacturers who market their products nationally are understandably worried about being forced to comply with the proliferation of different state standards. California authorities might be prepared to accept that a product is blodegradable, but that same product may not meet a more stringent standard adopted in the state of Washington.

In order to be called recyclable, must a product just have the potential to be recycled. or must consumers actually have the ability to recycle the product in substantial quantities when the claim is made? Must manufacturers survey every state or county in the country to determine if a waste collection system exists in that location capable of rcycling its products before making the "recyclable" claim?

More than its share

Unices and until the federal government acts, the attorneys general from 10 states have "listied" some broad" guidelines for industry." Environmental cisime, the guidelines say, should be as specific as possible. Terms like biodegradable and re-cyclable should not be used unless the advertised option is currently available to consumers in the area in which the product is being sold. And finally, claims should be substantive and supported by competent and reliable scientific evidence. All that makes sense.

A step toward peace

Intraracial violence has claimed the lives of more than 4,000 black South Africans since 1986. During the last six months alone, about 1,000 deaths have occurred, mainly in townships surrounding Johannesburg. Meanwhile, tens of thousands of blacks have been burned out of their homes.

Most of this destruction of life and property stems from long-standing hostility between the rival African National Congress and the Inkatha Freedom Party. Because these two leading black political factions have been unable to reconcile their differences, the process of peaceful change and full democratization of South africa has been made all the more difficult.

But now the intraracial strife appears to be casing. An especially hopeful development was the recent meeting between the ANC's Nelson Mandela and Inkatha's Mangosuthu Buthelezi.

It was largely a difference in political philosophy that prompted Buthelesi to leave the ANC in the mid-1970s. The ANC favored guerrilla war against Pretoria ane economic sanctions to end apartheid.

Buthelezi favored a more moderate approach that did not include violence or sanctions, which he viewed as having a disproportionately adverse affect on South Africa's black population. When he formed inkaths, a largely Zulu organization, he was branded a traitor by radicals of the ANC.

Perhaps the most important agreement to come out of the ANC-Inkatha talks is that the ANC will, for the first time, recognize Inkatha as a legitimate political organization and that the two will be equally represented in negotiations with the government of President F.W. de Klerk on a new constitution.

The rank and file of the ANC and Inkatha should heed their leaders. Mandela and Buthelezi, and set aside their differences. They should recognize that their biggest enemy is not each other but South Africa's system of apartheid. By working together, rather than at cross purposes, the ANC and inkatha can speed the process of peaceful change.

TOM TIEDE What it's like inside Pentagon

ARLINGTON, Va. - The automatic doors at the public entrance to the Pentagon complain with a weary groan when they open. And when the noise co-mingles with the wind blowing up from the Potomac River, it produces a suggestion in the vestibule that sounds very much like the melancholic wail of an air raid siren.

The symbolism is altogether fitting. The people attached to the nation's defense headquarters refer to the sanctum as "Ground Zero." The Pentagon has been a target of opportunity through four major military struggles, and a host of lesser affairs, from World War II to Korea to Vietnam, and now in the Persian Gulf.

This is where America's hostile engagements are managed. They are fought in places like Bastogne, Bien Hoa, and Baghdad, but they are administered here, hard by Washington, D.C., in the world's most awesome command post. The Pentagon assigns every soldier, supplies every builet, and takes its shots accordingly. The shots began in 1941, for the record. That's when Congress voted to gather all of the previously separated armed services in one superstructure. The Japanese were still months away from the attack on Pearl Harbor. and the editorialists said that a new "War Department" would be too large and too expensive to justify.

Then there was the flak over location. The Then there was the flak over location. The Pentagon was originally designed to fit into a specific site near Arlington National Cemetery. President Franklin Roosevelt thought that was an infringement on the dead, however, and he shifted the project to a rude, out of the way swampland known derisively as Hell's Bottom. Ground was broken in Hell in August 1961. The Pentagon was completed in 15 months, at a cost of 663 million. It was built low to the coll, for military security in the days before soil, for military security in the days before smart bombs, and the five-sided. five-ring. five-story complex instantly became one of the most recognizable establishments on earth.

It also became one of the most enormous. There are 6.6 million square feet of floor space in the Pentagon, three times that of the Empire State Building, and half again as many as New York's World Trade Center. There are 17.5 miles of hallways in the edifice, which in and of itaclf covers a grand total of 29 acres.

Pentagon mathematicians indicate there are 19 escalators in the plant, and 150 stairways. There are in addition: 284 rest rooms, 691 drinking fountains, 7,000 electric clock outlets, drinking jountains, 7,000 electric clock outlets, 16,250 light fixtures (that require 250 bulb changes daily), and, according to best estimates, a stilling 3-inch potted plants. Indeed, the building is a strangetories city. It has a worktime population of about 23,000 people, who come and go in 15,000 cars over 30 miles of access roads. It generates 20 tons of garbage a day, and 200 gallons of luncheon moup. The Pentagon has its own fire department, shopping center, subway station and ZIP code.

As for the commerce, it's generally restricted to war, peace — and, frequently, politics. The Pentagon is said to host two-thirds of the military's senior officers, who preside over 2 million uniformed men and women. who are stationed in 134 countries. in-cluding a total of seven at Vatican City and two on St. Helena.

The commerce also includes patriotism. The Pentagon wears it on the walls. There is a Hall of Heros in the building, and corridors dedicated to Douglas MacArthur and Women in the Service. There is a photo of George C. Scott playing George S. Patton: and 6-inch brass letters that speil out the. Pledge of Allegiance.

Many of the Pentagon inhabitants recite the Piedge every morning, which begins anytime after 6:30. Then they begin to work. They make or receive some 40 million telephone calls a month, they spend at least 35 billion a week, and they generate an average of 60,000 places of mail avery 24 hours pieces of mail every 24 hours. Much of the work is necessarily mundane.

For example, the Pentagon has recently awarded a $5,408.900 contract to the Imperial Tooling and Manufacturing Co., to make 700 aircraft rotary grip anemblies: and it has nelected a Wyoming National Guard general named Charles Wing to serve on the Reserve Former Bolice Board Forces Policy Board.

At the same time Pentagon employees meet regularly in the "War Room" to labor on the Middle East. The War Room is scaled in a highly protected portion of the building, it is equipped with a "T" table, two lecterns, six arge situation acreens, and it is connected electronically to virtually the entire planet.

The employees thus make life-and-death decisions in the War Room. And, by extension, they leave, beginning at 4:30 p.m.; they get in automobiles from 15 parking lots, or they take one of 1,000 buses available, and, in war and proc. they go home to their families. Boms of them leave through those wailing public doors. But they pay no mind. The choirs at the Deptation have

The shots at the Pentagon have almost always been papered or verbal. No one at Ground Zero expects a ficud attack.

The U.S. military is concentrating most of its efforts on destruction of mine fields. mindful of the fact, as one Marine officer said. that mines caused a majority of the casualties In Vietnam.

Military intelligence officers in the region estimate that Saddam Hussein has sown more than 500,000 mines in belts 2 kilometers wide along virtually the entire Saudi-Kuwaiti border. And he is continuing to plant this deadly crop in an effort to turn Kuwait into one big booby trap. From Dec. 19 to Jan. 5 alone, satellite photos showed Iraqi soldiers laying 60 kilometers of mines. They can continue to spread them from helicopters and special artillery pieces that spew mines like a tennis ball machine.

Intelligence sources estimate that Saddam has a stockpile of 20 million mines purchased in recent years from France, the Soviet Union. China and even the United States and Kuwait.

There are the small "toe poppers" that can blast off a soldier's foot; the "bouncing Betty" that jumps 4 feet in the air before exploding: mines set off by trip wires; mines detonated by computer chips; and a large pressure-sensitive mine that can lift a 60-ton tank 5 feet off the ground.

With the approach of the ground offensive. or "G-Day" as they call it here, the biggest fans of the successful air assault were the Army and Marine Corps combat engineers. It is their job to create a path through Saddam's maze using mine detectors, buildozers and special tanks equipped with plows and explosive cords shot by rockets across a mine field and then detonated.

Iraq's last enemy, Iran, didn't have those sophisticated devices. Instead the Ayatoliah Khomeini used Iranian children, including some who were deal and mute, to run through the Iraqi mine fields ahead of the soldiers.

The mines are not all that allied ground forces have to contend with. These are the other features in Saddam's hellish obstacle course, roughly in the order that U.S. soldiers will confront them:

- hundreds of miles of razor wire;

- ditches filled with metal spikes, concrete blocks, burned-out vehicles and 55-gallon drums of napalm that can be detonated by remote control:

- trenches filled with oil ready to be set on fire as flaming mosts;

- 12-foot-high sand walls; - hundreds of thousands of infantry soldiers ready to fire on anyone who makes it that far:

- more than 2.000 fortified artillery pieces that will beich out an inferno if they are not stopped by air strikes and allied artillery;

This is where America's hostile engagements are managed.

Malaysian city exposes litterbugs

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia - A city on Borneo island has announced a plan to deter littering by publishing violators' photographs in local newspapers and displaying them at public places, a news agency reported.

The program is part of a drive to make Kuching, capital of Sarawak state, the cleanest city in Malaysia.

Yusof Hanifah, commissioner in the city of 200,000, said Sunday that the names and photographs of litterbugs would be shown in gewspapers, parks, civic centers and museums, according to the Bernama national news agency. Convicted litterbugs also face fines of up to $370.

The Simpsons make Australian debut

SYDNEY, Australia - It was quite a day for a purported underachiever.

While a Bart Simpson doll made national news when U.S. troops gave it to Defense Secretary Dick Cheney in Saudi Arabia, the animated television character was also making a splash Sunday with his Australian television debut.

"The Simpsons," the popular American television series, attracted an estimated 2.4 million Australian viewers Sunday night. It knocked the long-running Australian news documentary "60 Minutes" into second place by several percentage points in the national ratings.

AGB Research PeopleMeters said "The Simpsons" was the top show for viewers ages 5 to 24.

The 6-inch doll was given to Cheney by a serviceman who said the character has been a "mascot and inspiration" for him and his fellow soldiers. Cheney pledged to put the doll on President Bush's desk.

Election date announced in Suriname

PARAMARIBO, Suriname - The government has announced general elections for May 25 to replace the interim government installed after a Dec. 24 military coup.

President Johan Kraag said international observers will be allowed to witness the voting for a National Assembly as well as local councils in the nation of 400,000 people on the northeast coast of South America.

Kraag has led a provisional government since the coup that deposed President Ramsewak Shank, who was elected in 1987. Shank's Front for Democracy is favored to win election again. The front is a coalition of three ethnically based political parties: the Creole National Party, the East Indian National Reform Party and the Javanese Farmers' Party.

Suriname, a former Dutch colony, has been dominated for a decade by military leader Dest Bouterse.

Bouterse staged a 1962 military coup and remained a power behind the scenes despite his party's 1967 electoral defeat to Shankar. Bouterse is believed to have been behind the coup that ousted Shankar, with whom he had been feuding.

Previously, Japanese nuclear TOKYO - Technicians at a plants have been shut down nuclear plant that shut down in three times by malfunctioning an accident last weekend initially disregarded warning signs because they suspected a gauge measuring radioactivity was broken, officials said today. A neglible amount of radiation escaped into the air and ocean before an emergency system shut off the Minama nuclear plant in Fukul, western Japan, said Kenji Uchida, a spokesman for the plant's operator, Kansai Electric Power Co. But the radiation poses no threat to humans or the environment, said Uchida. Earlier, officials said no radiation had emergency systems. Those incidents resulted in greater radiation leaks than that of Saturday. However. Saturday marked the first time that an emergency core cooling system shut down a reactor in response to an actual accident, officials said.

Nuclear warning signs were disregarded

The plant had its annual mandatory inspection in July, and the Energy Agency said it may consider tightening inspections depending on the investigation of the latest incident. On Saturday, technicians at the plant observed a slight

We are at war: Day 26 Land war seen as weeks away; allies bomb on DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) - The allied air war pressed on without pause today, with one Air Force forecaster calling it a "beautiful day for bombing." Yet despite nearly a month of pulverizing air raids, Saddam Hussein insists frag is not beaten.

Senior U.S. officials have exuded confidence that Saddam will be beaten when President Bush decides to bring the war down to earth. Today, there were clear signs that many believe a major land assault is two or three weeks away.

One senior U.S. commander pointed Sunday to the need to move more soldlers and equipment into place along the front, saying it could take up to a month. Underscoring that, MI-A1 main battle tanka - a key weapon in any ground war - were being shipped north today along Saudi supply routes. Saddam's defiant speech Sunday on Baghdad radio was his first nationwide broadcast since three days after the war's first bombs fell.

"Victory will restore to the Iragis all the requirements for a free and honorable living that they will merit as a reward for their patience and steadfast-ness," he said in his address he said in his address. excerpts of which were carried by the official Iraqi News Agency. "Iraq is not ready to relinquish the role given to it by God," he said.

The fighting words stood in stark contrast to conditions in Saddam's capital. Baghdadis suffer from shortages of food, drinking water, medicine and fuel. Horse-drawn carts are replacing cars, water is drawn from the Tigris River, and twigs are gathered for fuel.

Bush pronounced himself unimpressed by Saddam's speech.

"I heard what Saddam Hussein said, and I didn't hear him my mything about him getting out of Kuwait," he said Sunday in Washington. "Of told reporters in Saudi Arabia on Sunday that the next phase of the fighting - which would include ground and amphibious action - would be "decisive." He did not suggest when it would begin.

In battlefield developments: -A Saudi military source said today he expected the allies to keep the air campaign in the realm of 2,500-3,000 sortles a day, weather permitting. Skies were clear today over the Arabian peninsula, but activity at one major base in Saudi Arabia appeared light, with fewer takeoffs of Saudi Tornado fighterbombers than in the past three weeks.

American warplanes flew 2,800 missions on Sunday, concentrating on Republican Guard troops on the Iraql-Kuwalti border and the bridges. highways and railways used to supply them.

-The military on Sunday reported the loss of the first U.S. warplane in combat in more than a week. The Marine AV-8 Harrier was downed over southern Kuwait on Saturday. and the pilot was missing, the U.S. command said.

-British warplanes reported hitting four bridges in one raid Sunday, including two pontoon bridges recently put up to keep up supplies to units of the elite Republican Guard.

-U.S. military officials said that 75 more Iraqi soldiers, some armed with AK-47 rifles, crossed into Saudi Arabia and surrendered to allied forces. They brought the total of Iraqi prisoners of war and deserters past the 1,000 mark, the officials said Sunday.

-NBC News reported that two American POWs - a man and a woman - apparently have been moved to Basra, a southern Iraqi city that has come under heavy allied bombardment. NBC said Sunday that the Iraqi soldier's description of the woman appeared to match that of Army Spc. Meliasa Rathbun-Nealy, 20. of Grund Rapide, Mich., the only, female American POW.

Mr. Simpson goes to Washington

BOSTON (AP) - A Christmas gift to Staff Sgt. Mike Bozek has been re-assigned - to the White House.

When Defense Secretary Dick Cheney returned for his weekend tour of a Saudi air base, he brought with him a six-inch Bart Simpson doll to be given to President Bush.

Bozek's grandmother, 78-year-old Ruth Robinson of Marblehead, sent the yellow, plastic doll of the popular cartoon character and it was adopted by the flyers, crewmen and support staff working on F-117A Stealth fighters.

"Bart Simpson is going right to the top." Chency said after accepting the doil from Staff Sgt. John Pennell and promising to give it to the president.

Tribe's Mathis takes second at 3A-6 meet

From staff reports

KISSIMMEE - It seems that every time Seminole High School senior Tommle Mathis steps on the wrestling mat, it's another learning experience.

Considering that Mathis' background in the sport is limited, that's to be expected. The fact that he finished second in his weight class (130 pounds) in the 3A-District 6 tournament at Kissimmee-Gateway High School this weekend while continuing the learning process is impressive.

With the runner-up finish -Mathis was pinned in 4:22 by Bishop Moore's Jason Purcell in the championship match - comes a berth in next weekend's 3A-Region II tournament at Auburndale High School

"It was a good match," said Seminole Coach Matt DeVincenzo. Gee Mathis, Page 2B

Senior Tommie Mathis (top) was the only Seminole High School wrestler to quality for next weekend's 3A-Region II tournament, advancing to regionals by finishing second in his weight class (130) at the District 6 meet.

DOUBLE TAKES

Looking like champs

Going through the high school state playoff process is an odd mix of emotions. Seminole boys' soccer coach Carlos Merlino (far right) is the personification of the intensity that the games require while Tracy Sher (below left) and assistant coach Karen Richter of the Lyman girls' soccer team exhibit the elation and relief of staying alive another day. Merlino and the Seminole boys will host the 3A-Region V championship game Tuesday night while Sher, Richter and the rest of the Greyhounds will participate in the Class 4A semilinals this Friday at Bishop Moore High School.

Lake Brantley lays claim to 4A-4 crown

From staff reports

LONGWOOD - What has been the strangest and most competitive high school wrestling season in Seminole County in several years took another twist Saturday when Lake Brantley claimed the 4A-District 4 championship at Lyman High School.

The Patriots became the third different Seminole County team to win one of the three big events so far this season: the Lyman Greyhounds were the team champlons at the Lyman Christmas Tournament while the Oviedo Lions finished on top at the Seminole Athletic Conference tournament.

Tribe takes care of business in district; region next

Carlos Merlino and his Seminole High School boys' soccer team are working their late season magic again.

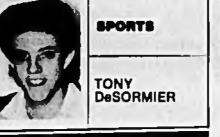

For the second year in a row, the Fighting Seminoles went into the 3A-District 7 tournament with a severely losing record and dominated play on its way to winning the district title.

Last year, Seminole entered the district without a win and seeded last in the seven-team field. This year. Seminole only had four wins at the end of the regular season but received the No. 1 seed because three of those wins came against district opponents.

That raised at least one set of eyebrows around the district.

According to Merlino, the Rissimmee-Gateway coach thought that his team should have had the No. 1 on the basis of its 13-4-1 regular season record. One can only suppose that the fact that Seminole beat Gateway 4-0 on Wednesday night in the district semifinals proved the district coaches knew what they were doing by making the Tribe the No. 1 seed.

While it may seem incongruous that a team could go through the regular season 4-10-1, then "turn around" in the districts and become a powerhouse, it makes perfect sense if you look at the situation carefully.

To begin with, the Seminole Athletic Conference is one of the most competitive soccer conferences in the state rivaled only by Tampa's Western Conference and the Greater Miami Athletic Conference.

For most of the season, SAC members Lake Mary, Lyman and Lake Howell were all ranked - at the same time. And Seminole had to play each of them twice.

While the Tribe was 0-6 against the three, both Lake Mary Coach Williams posted a pair of shutouts.

Larry McCorkle and Lyman Coach Ray Sandidge said that Seminole was not the "breather" in the middle of the schedule it once was. No longer could McCorkle and Sandidge afford to rest key players against the Seminoles.

Once reason is that Seminole has some key players of its own, namely center midfield Geordie Davison and striker Travis Hoover, a pair of offensive players that match up favorably against even Class 4A state-ranked teams like Lake Mary. Lyman and Lake Howell.

Across the back, the defensive foursome of Jimmy Johnson. Raymond Tossi, Marcus Egan and Shayne Stewart have been molded into a solid unit after having to play against the likes of Lake Mary's Justin Walker and Brian Caduto, of Lyman's Richte Steeves and Frank Cipolla, of Lake Howell's Chris Brown.

In goal. Merlino has gone with sophomore Jon Williams from the first game of the season. Williams has also benefitted from the tough competition Seminole faces in the SAC. In Seminole's district semifinal and championship games,

Last year. Seminole sort of surprised its way through the district. That's not to say what the Tribe did was a fluke, but because of their winless regular season, nobody had really mentally prepared for the possibility of playing them. As a result, the Seminoles had the advantage of anonymity.

Not this year. The rest of the district knew what to expect of Seminole, which is why the Tribe was "awarded" the No. 1 seed on the strength of three wins against disrict opponents. And still the Seminole swept through the district nearly unchecked.

That puts Seminole at another plateau. Now the Tribe is faced with the challenge of climbing the next step in the ladder - winning a regional championship.

Last year, it was a little much to ask the Seminoles to be able to carry over the emotion that helped carry them to the district title. But this year, it was a matter of taking business. And the next order of business is the 3A-Region IV championship game on Tuesday night at Seminole's Thomas E. Whigham Stadiulm.

Color brightens landscape

Delightful spinshes of color can be integrated into your landscape by using annual and perennial flowers. Both look great displayed as borders along walkways, fences and along with shrubs. Planting in containers can provide a "portable" burst of color for porches, decks and patios.

Annual and perennial flowers are best used as an accent in the landscape rather than its dominant feature. The size of your flower display should be in proportion with the size of yur landscape. Small, zero lot line homes look best with small areas of color whereas large expanses of lawn and landscape can han-die a large flower display. Annual flowers are those that complete their life cycle in one growing season. They are usually grown from seed and are purchased in small pots. Perennials on the other hand, are plants that continue to grow won't need to be replaced after blooming like annuals.

Annual flowers usually provide consistent color over 3 to 4 months and then need to be removed and replanted. Perennials, on the other hand, usually have a period of time when they bloom, and different varieties bloom at different times of the year. So by combining annuals and perennials in the landscape, you can have year round color in your landscape.

plants that continue to grow indefinitely. They are usually propagated by divisions for cut-tings, and are sold in one gallon Decennials usually Decennials usually Soils should be amended with three of organic matter such as peat moss, compost or manure. Work a three or four inch layer of organic matter into the upper foot or so of soil. Next. test the soil for pH. The ideal pH range for annuals and perennials is between 5.5 to 6.5. Our Extension office can test the soil and make recommendations for pH adjustments.

Fertilizer should also be incorporated into the soil prior to planting. Basically, add about 2 to 3 pounds of a 6-6-6 or similar fertilizer per 100 square feet and work it in well. Another option is to utilize slow release fertilizers which will provide nutrients over a longer period of time.

When planting, space the plants in the bed to allow for future growth and cultivation between them. Fluff the root system slightly if it is root bound. Plant them so that the root mass is slightly above the ground level. Add 2 to 3 inches of mulch which will help control weeds and conserve moisture.

The biggest difference in growing annual and perennial flowers is the amount of maintenance needed to keep them color, sex or national origin.

beautiful. Annuals require more maintenance than perennials. Removing spent blooms is an important maintenance task since it prolongs the blooming period. Other tasks include staking, pruning, watering, weed control and fertilization.

Annual flowers need to be fertilized about once a month with 1 to 2 pounds of a 6-6-6 or similar fertilizer per 100 square feet. Perennials should be fertilized 3 or 4 times during the growing season at the same rate mentioned above. Annuals require more water than perennials and may need to be irrigated every 2 or 3 days. Perennials. once established, can be watered with the rest of the landscape. Fact sheets available from the Extension Service will help you select which annuals or perennials will work best in your landscape. Be adventuroust Dazzle your friends and neighbors with color by combining annual and perennial flowers in your landscape.

All Seminole County Cooperative Extension Service programs are open to all regardless of race.

44-year-old female diagnosed with fibromyalgia. I'm being treated with Sulindae twice daily and still feel quite miscrable. I also suffer from more fatigue than I feel a person my age should experience. DEARREADER: Fibromyalgia is an affliction of unknown cause, marked by stiff. tender, painful muscles. "Trigger points" (discrete areas of particularly tender muscles) are usually present. The disorder may be induced or worsened by stress, virus infections (of any kind), exposure to cold and poor sleep. It is sometimes associated with chronic fatigue syndrome, a poorly understood condition characterized by periodic exhaustion and swollen glands.

19 Failure 20 Represen Latives 22 Charges 23 Pecan, e.g. 14 Fast 5 Crane Both fibromyalgia and chronic fatigue syndrome must be differentiated from other more scrious diseases, such as rheumatoid arthritis, lupus, polymyalgia, hidden infections, hypothyroldism, anemia and Lyme disease. Blood tests are useful in making this differen-tiation, since they are normal in fibromyalgia and chronic fatigue syndrome.

Fibromyalgia often disappears spontaneously, although it may occur in cycles. Stretching exercises, heat, improved sleep, massage, pain medication (such as Sulindac) and local injections of Novacaine may relieve symptoms. The condition is not a health hazard.

Chronic fatigue syndrome is more difficult to treat but may respond to counseling.

The main problem with these two afflictions is that they may represent an early stage of a treatable disease, as I mentioned above. Furthermore, blood tests for such a disease may not turn positive during the initial phase. Inasmuch as you are still bothered by symptoms, I re-commend that you be examined

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a and tested by a specialist in internal medicine, who will revicw the investigation performed by your family doctor, perhaps order more tests and offer further advice. Don't give up on the search for help until your doctors have exhausted all the diagnostic possibilities. ACROSS

By James Jacoby

The ironies of matchpoint play are well depicted in today's deal, in which a one-time national champion got a zero by failing to make an overtrick. South won the ace of hearts and, after some thought, played the queen of spades. East took the ace and returned the queen of hearts. Declarer won the king in dummy, then played A-K and ruffed a diamond. When the queen came down, declarer played a spade to dummy's 10, another heart. That promoted a trick for East's remaining trump, and declarer was held to 10 tricks. Although playing for the overtrick from the start is not without risk, declarer should take the chance. If he wins the opening lead in dummy and plays a club back to his jack. intending to later take another club finesse to shed dummy's losing heart, he will easily make the overtrick. Another line is to win the ace of hearts at trick one with the club king and played and cashed the 10 of diamonds. East followed to the diamond and West was not able to ruff. So South shed his last heart and then ruffed a heart with the remaining jack of spades. However, dummy was left with K-3 of spades, and East still held the nine-spot. When declarer played ace and a club. West stepped in and lead the jack of diamonds. A cover by West would solve the problem, but if West plays low, declarer can still decide to go after clubs. Since all other de-clarers scored 650, we must regretfully charge our vintage declarer for failing to bring in the overtrick. (C)1991. NEWSPAPER EN-TERPRISE ASSN.

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY Feb. 12, 1991

Your most successful endeavors of the year ahead could be those which do not call too much attention to yourself. You don't need acknowledgment and applause, just the rewards that work done well will bring.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Partners could turn out to be liabilities rather than assets today. If you're teaming up with someone for a special endeavor. be sure this individual can make a definite contribution. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper. P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This might not be one of your better days for doing work that requires total concentration and continuity of purpose. These qualities may not be your long suits today, so wait until they social nature that you're reluctant to attend, it might be wise to pass up the activity today. You could make a bad impression if you're in the wrong mood.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Lady Luck is not likely to intervene today to help you achieve critical objectives. If you hope to succeed, you may have to do it the hard way. GENINI (May 21-June 20) Be extremely careful regarding the comments you make to others today. When repeated, your statements might be misconstrued.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Discipline might be required so that your emotions do not govern your spending patterns today. Extravagant urges must not be allowed to overrule your prudent judgment. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you have to make some type of legal commitment today, be certain you have the very best counsel available. This is not a good day to rely solely upon your own judgment. VIROO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be extremely selective today regarding the assignments you give to subordinates. If you choose the wrong person for the job now, you may have to deal with a big mess later. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't let yourself be drawn into petty politics by way of a disagreement between two friends today. Regardless of whom you side with, the posi-tion you take will be unpopular. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

Indifference could be your worst enemy today, especially regarding a matter you've been anxious to finalize. Don't just assume that because things are running smoothly, the con-clusion will be to your satisfaction

BAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be extremely careful about what you put in writing today. Also, avoid altering something which you had agreed upon in the past. Both of these matters could have critical ramifications. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Unfortunately, if you have financial problems today, it isn't likely that you'll be getting much help from others. This is a time when you'll have to take care of things for yourself. (C)1991, NEWSPAPER EN-
