WORLD IN BRIEF

Polish Workers Plan Strike: Oil Center Adds Threats

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) - Workers in Radom province pressed ahead with plans for a Wednesday strike to force more government resignations and the union in the oil-refining city of Plock demanded a police station be turned into a health center. The actions, combined with threats last week from the union in the important coal mining area of Walbrzych, further challenged the 90-day labor peace that Prime Minister Wojciech Jaruzelski requested and Moscow demanded.

Solidarity union leader Lech Walesa scheduled talks for today in Radom with local union leaders planning a two-hour strike Wednesday followed by full-scale action next Monday despite already winning removal of two key officials.

The union in Radom said their strike would go ahead unless government negotiators came to the industrial center of about 200,000 people 70 miles south of Warsaw in the province of the same name, to negotiate demands that included removal of more local officials.

Air Fares Hurting Tourism

LONDON (UPI) - Newly announced increases in trans-Atlantic air fares could deal a severe blow to the lucrative flow of tourists into the United States from Europe this summer, travel experts believe. Nigel Coombs, editor of the London-based Travel

Trade Gazette, said bookings from London are down this year, and the flood of British vacationers could drop considerably. The past few years, the United States - particularly the sunshine states Florida and California - has become an increasingly popular holiday venue for Europeans, led by Britons enjoying a strong pound and bargain air flights.

In April, TWA, Pan Am and British Airways are all raising their fares by about 10 percent, but some superbudget flights offered by Sir Freddie Laker's Skytrain are rocketing by 50 percent. All cite spiraling operating costs as the reason.

A British Airways spokesman said, "All the Atlantic carriers agree that we have been running the greatest social service in history which is guite out of tune with airline economics."

U.S. Soldiers Kidnap Officer

DUEIMEN, West Germany (UPI) - Two drunk American soldiers kidnapped their officer and held him hostage at gunpoint for several hours, authorities said today.

The soldiers stationed with the 81st U.S. Special Unit in Duelmen, 10 miles southwest of Muenster, had been drinking Sunday night in town and started several fights, authorities said. They were returned to their barracks and disciplined, German police said.

Shortly afterward, the two, ages 19 and 21, returned from their quarters with arms and forced the officer at gunpoint into a military car, police said.

Casselberry To Vote On High-Rise Plans

Casselberry city council members are scheduled to make a decision tonight on the preliminary plans for a high-rise condominium project in the city, a controversy which has drawn large audiences to previous public hearings.

Representatives of Bonaire Development Co. Inc., the developers, will present their plan for Carmel-By-The-Lake, a project of 13 buildings of 10 to 11 stories each on a 44-acre site on Lake Howell.

The developers are requesting an increase in density for the 715-unit project in addition to approval of the preliminary plan. The site is now zoned for 12 units per acre. The proposal has been the center of arguments for and against building high-rises in the city. Casselberry currently has no high-rise buildings, but an ordinance allows buildings up to 100 feet. Opponents of high-rises have asked the limit be lowered to 35 feet. Increases in traffic and of boats on Lake Howell, increases in tax and fire protection, damage to the environment, and appearance have been cited as reasons for opposing the project. Those favoring the high rises have mentioned increased tax benefits, adherence to stricter fire codes and more green landscaped area with the taller buildings as reason to approve the project.-CINDY MOOY

Animal Control Nabs Dog; May Be The 'Infamous' Rolf

Herald Staff Writer

Escaped convict Rolf, the infamous German shepherd under sentence of death for sinking his fangs in pets and people, has been captured.

At least county officials think he has.

The dog Seminole County Animal Control (SCAC) officers picked up Friday afternoon looks like Rolf. He certainly acts like Rolf, SCAS officers say. But until Rolf's owners, Richard and Joann Russell of Oviedo, positively identify the dog, which they hadn't as of this morning, no one knows for sure.

The dog believed to be Rolf, a fugitive from justice since March 7 or 8 when someone entered the county animal shelter and snatched the death row dog, gave himself away Friday when he took up residence in a car west of Sanford, chewed up the interior and refused to leave.

The car's owner, fearing for her safety, called animal control officials who closed in for the capture. However, according to senior animal control officer Robert McIntosh, the dog took violent exception to being retaken. "It wasn't what you would call a peaceful capture," McIntosh said.

"We had to use a capture stick (a long pole with a noose attached which can be slipped around a dangerous animal's neck) to take him down," he said.

Now that Rolf may be back in his cage at the pound, the secret negotiations which were underway prior to his untimely disappearance will continue, according to Assistant County Attorney Robert McMillan. "I still can't divulge exactly what we're trying to do. There was some time consideration to what we were working on before, and right now we're trying to determine if that option is still viable."

Thurmond, who said he sentenced four persons to the electric chair as a circuit judge in South Carolina years ago, termed the death penalty his No. 1 priority for fighting crime. Congress would react favorably to death penalty legislation because it "generally is not too far from public opinion," which overwhelmingly supports capital punishment, Thurmond said. He proposed reinstating the death penalty for murder, treason and espionage where federal laws are violated.

Philly Transit Strike

Snarls Rush-Hour Traffic

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) - A strike by Philadelphia transit workers - the third in six years - snarled rush-hour traffic today, backing up cars for 10 miles along Interstate 95 and stalling jammed commuter trains.

The walkout of 5,000 drivers, mechanics and cashiers for the Southeastern Pennsylvania Transit Authority shut down bus, trolley and subway services in the nation's fourth largest city at 12:01 EST Sunday, The walkout did not have its maximum impact until today, the first weekday rush hour.

More than 1 million commuters enter the city each day by trolleys, buses, subways, trains and highways. About 400,000 normally use the transit system.

"Traffic was generally awful," said Rick Gillespie of the Go-Patrol traffic service. "There was a 10-mile backup the length of I-95 in the city for about an hour, but it started thinning out after 8 a.m.,"

$10,000 Per In Wiretaps

NEW YORK (UPI) - The Justice Department awarded five people $10,000 each because the FBI violated their constitutional rights with telephone wiretaps, clandestine break-ins into their homes or unauthorized mail openings.

Leon Friedman, a lawyer for the New York Civil Liberties Union, said Sunday the agreement providing the settlement was "a victory for our side." Friedman represented two of the five people.

"It was more money than anybody has ever gotten," said Friedman. "It will serve as a warning" against constitutional violations by government.

Discussions of rates and nuclear power are expected to dominate. Baker ordered the hearings because of outcry from consumers in the seven-state Tennessee Valley region who will have to pay for an atomic

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Negotiators for the United Mine Workers of America and the soft coal industry will have to come up with a new contract early this week to avoid a strike in the nation's coal fields. Talks were recessed Sunday night without any

The current three-year contract was reached in 1978 after a 111-day strike, the longest in the industry's history.

Jail Chaplain Charged With Escape Attempt

MIAMI (UPI) - The chaplain of the Dade County jail has been charged with trying to help a prisoner escape. Dade police say the Rev. Roberto Perez, 37, was arrested after inmate Luis Medina attempted to book out of the jail by showing officials a "red pass" that an inmate must present before being released. Officials said they were aware that a pass was missing.

"They wouldn't let him (Medina) out because somebody recognized him," said jail Lt. Ernest J. Stirrup. An investigation was begun to trace the stolen pass.

Just before Perez was to be given a polygraph test, he admitted he took he pass and gave it to Medina, officials

Perez, 37, a pastor at the Riverside United Methodist Church who has been jail chaplain since 1972, was charged Friday with escape, conspiracy to commit escape, and petty larceny in the escape attempt March 6. Perez was released on $3,150 bond. Perez earns about $20,000 a year to arrange religious services and provide counseling. Officials said Medina, who was in the Dade jail awaiting transfer to Florida State Prison at Raiford, was a frequent visitor to Perez' office. Perez could not be reached for comment Sunday. Local officials had no record available of what crime Medina committed. Medina was taken to a processing center for new prisoners being sent to Raiford, a state prison spokesman said.

Attorney Martin Minella says if a murder indictment is returned, he will argue Arne Johnson, 19, of Brookfield unwittingly challenged the supernatural during a Catholic exorcism ritual and was possessed by a demon who "actually manipulated his body."

The facts of the Feb. 16 slaying of Alan Bono, 40, point to an uncomplicated tragedy involving "the best of friends." Beyond Bono's death is a tale of deliverance rituals -"minor exorcisms" - performed last summer by five Catholic Minella. "The devil made him do it ... it's more frightening than 'The Exorcist." Lorraine Warren of Monroe, Conn., who gained national attention with her husband, Ed, for their psychic research in the "Amityville Horror" case on Long Island, N.Y., said during one ritual Johnson "unwittingly challenged what was within the boy. She recalled Johnson saying, "Whatever is in him let it take me on."

May Be Our Last Chance

The deficiencies of the all volunteer military have become so glaring that even its staunchest defenders now admit that something must be done.

Horror stories, most of them true, abound concerning the abysmal quality of recruits, especially those entering the Army.

Consider, for example, the following facts pried out of the Pentagon recently by Sen. William L. Armstrong, R-Colo.

During fiscal year 1979, 86 percent of all ar-tillery crewmen failed the Army's Skill Qualification Test for their assigned specialty. Failure rates for other specialties essential in modern combat were even worse: 89 percent for tracked-vehicle mechanics, 90 percent for nuclear weapons maintenance specialists, and 98 percent for tank-turret and artillery repairmen.

Clearly, an army dependent on such marginal performers in key specialties would be in disastrous trouble soon after the first shot was fired

These dismal test scores are all too predictable given the fact that last year 52 percent of Army enlistees could not read above the sixth-grade level.

For those who believe that the Army's racial and socio-economic composition should at least approximate that of the society it is pledged to defend, there is more bad news.

As of 1979, blacks constituted 28.9 percent of the Army and 33 percent of all enlisted grades, although black Americans make up only 11.7 percent of this country's population. Accordingly, in any future war fought by the all volunteer military, casualties among blacks would be grossly disproportionate to their share of the population.

And then there is the problem of the Army Reserve and National Guard. In theory, half of the Army's ground combat forces and two-thirds of its logistical and support units are provided by the Reserve and National Guard.

But a shrinking active Army and the absence of any real incentive for young men and women to enlist in the Guard and Reserve have left these units woefully understrength. Established Guard and Reserve units are short nearly 200,000 men. And the inactive Reserve, a critical important reason, Brown said. He referred to the manpower pool in any national emergency, has campaign waged by such minority leaders as all but melted away.

One answer to all of this is to bring back the draft. That, however, is an option the Reagan administration and many in Congress would like to avoid if at all possible.

So, both Congress and the administration are bent on one last effort to make the All Volunteer Force (AFV) a success.

There is general agreement that the scarcity of intelligent, educated and highly motivated recruits is the Army's most serious problem. Moreover, the sharpest drop in the quality of enlistees can be traced to Congress' repeal of GI Bill educational in December of 1976.

Reinstating these benefits, used by generations of veterans since World War II to help finance trade school and college educations, would no doubt act as a powerful incentive attracting bright, ambitious young people willing to trade two or three years in service for the chance at an education.

Thus, bills have been introduced in the House and Senate that would reverse the ill-advised repeal of GI Bill educational benefits four years ago. The cost of reinstatement could run to $900 million per year, or more, by the mid-1980's, which may be why the Reagan administration has yet to endorse the idea.

But an administration committed to restoring JACK ANDERSON this nation's military strength must address the deficiencies of the AVF. When it does, the White House may well conclude that $900 million is a modest price to pay for giving the all volunteer military one fast chance.

Minority Business Ownership

> By LEROY POPE UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) - Companies that want to do well in urban markets where there are large black and Hispanic populations are going to have to do more than just hire managers from these minorities, Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. has decided.

The companies are going to have to help the minorities create their own capital base, says Matthew L. Brown, minority dealer development manager for Goodyear. He said Goodyear is doing just that by awarding tire dealer franchises to black and Hispanic businessmen without charge. The minority entrepreneur must arrange at least $50,000 in working capital. In addition to giving him an inventory, Goodyear will build or lease the tire station and rent it to the franchise operator, and will train him and his employees in the tire business. Brown told United Press International the development program has been successful in Texas, Florida, New Mexico and California. It has started in Washington, D.C. and will be spreading this year to Philadelphia, Newark, New York and other cities.

Brown said he hopes to have 100 or more such minority dealers franchised within five years, mainly in the inner city areas, and then will seek to establish minority dealerships in the more heterogenous areas.

He said minority ownership is particularly attractive since an owner is much more likely than a manager to live and be active in the community where his business is located. When it becomes known that he, not a big corporation in far off Akron, owns the business, the premises are less likely to be a target of vandalism and burglary.

But there's a bigger and more important Rep. Parren J. Mitchell, D-Md., the new chairman of the House Small Business Committee and former chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus, to get blacks and Hispanics to build capital bases for themselves.

In a recent lecture at New York University. Mitchell reiterated his theme that blacks and Hispanics are the only ethnic minorities that have failed to build up group ethnic capital bases in the United States. He said every wave of immigrants from Europe, because of traditions from the lands of their origin, had instinctively carved themselves shares of the American capital base as small entrepreneurs - Greek restaurants and Chinese laundries, for example.

"Until they do build a capital base," he said, "blacks and Hispanics never will achieve the kind of eccr.omic stability and confidence the American majority of European orign enjoys.

Blacks and Hispanics, Mitchell said, have not built up their own capital bases in the United States because they come originally from feudal or tribal communal, agricultural societies. Their cultural traditions did not enable them until very recently to comprehend the extreme importance of such a

What particularly irked the congressman was a statement reportedly made by a Mobil official to a group of investment analysts: "If I have a good idea, I'm going to do it myself; if I have a lousy idea, I'm going to get the government to finance it so I don't lose any

Arms And U.S. Security

Someone, somewhere, must be saying "I told you so" about now.

Back in a simpler, less-threatening era way back, in fact, to 1978, before the Iranian revolution and all that followed - considerable misgivings were expressed in Congress and elsewhere to the provisioning of Saudi Arabia with 60 U.S.-built F-15s, then and still one of the world's most advanced warplane.

There was some question as to whether the modes Saudi military establishment was up to managing such super-sophisticated weaponry, and more as to the possible unsettling effects upon the Mideast power balance. The F-15s were, as was pointed out repeatedly, most often by Jerusalem, capable of reaching Israel in addition to whatever other targets Saudi strategists may have had in mind.

But the friends of the Saudis in the Pentagon and on Capitol Hill carried the argument with a compromise deal in which Israel was also tossed a little something, and it was agreed the F-15s would not be equipped with bomb racks that would make them an offensive threat.

Even so, there were mutterings that this was not likely the end of the matter, but only the beginning of another twist to the perpetual Mideast crisis. And taking an even broader view, then-Sen. Muriel Humphrey, D-Minn., declared "every pore in my body goes against seeking peace by arming countries." Well, if you've been following the news in recent days you already know that those F-15s are back in it. The Reagan administration has a brand-new diplomatic-military plan to restore U.S. "credibility" as a partner for assorted nations in the Mideast labeled friendly. It includes immediate sale of air-toair missiles and extended-range fuel tanks to give the planes more offensive punch. And with this much already in the works.

can bomb racks be far behind? The Saudis have requested them and the matter is, it is reliably reported, "under study." Inevitably there will also be a little something more for Israel so Jerusalem is not making a fuss - at least not yet. With the administration talking about investing an additional trillion-plus dollars into our own military buildup in the next few years, a few hundred millions worth of hardware to be passed out in the Mideast may seem scarcely worthy of comment. But as with the 1978 situation, this is almost certainly only another beginning. Authoritative sources in Washington are making it no secret that additional countries - notably Turkey and Pakistan - are in line for similar tangible reassurance and the ultimate evidence of U.S. credibility is to be a permanent American military presence in the area, to secure above all the Persian Gulf and Western oil supplies therefrom. There are, as in 1978, misgivings on Capitol Hill. But there is no serious question that the administration has the support to get essentially what it wants. Still, questions remain as to the wisdom in the long run of defining security and seeking to maintain peace almost exclusively in terms of arms. After all, if weaponry were all tha mattered, there wouldn't be any security problem in the Persian Gulf area today.

reinvestigation. The new probe includes a month-long, $3,000 inspection tour by a Washington official that will include a stopover in Hawaii.

WHOSE CAMP IS IT ?: The Philippines government has taken great pride in the refugee processing center that has been built not far from Manila and accommodates thousands of Asian exiles awaiting permanent resettlement in other countries.

But a ticklish question has arisen: Who should control the center, the host government or the United Nations High Commission on Refugees, which built it largely with U.S. funds?

Philippines officials have insisted on having the final say on many of the decisions affecting the refugee center. Recently, for example, they saw to it that a $93,000 "guest house" for foreign dignitaries was constructed, even though it was vehemently opposed by the U.N. commission, which felt that a refugee center was hardly the place for a VIP guest house.

In the end, though, the United Nations won a partial victory: It was able to have the guest house put to use as a social center for the center's staff.

Mrs. John Bennett of Bernville, N.C. returned to the home of her brother, Bill Wray, last week after spending "an enjoyable" month with her daughter, Mrs. Robert Gould and family at St. Thomas, Virgin Islands. The Goulds have a business in the downtown section of St.

Thomas, but live on a mountain outside of the town. According to Mrs. Bennett, even on the island there is also a noticeable difference between the temperature in town, which is lower ground toward the sea, and in the mountains. The home on the mountain is much cooler, just like her home in N.C., she said. Mrs. Bennett has been with Bill and Gladys Wray since before Christmas, except for the month in St. Thomas, and like .... All have atfirmed that I do not all good things, her vacation had to end.

Doug and "Cuca" Brown's Lakeview Avenue home is always like Grand Central Station with the many friends who come to see them.

This week they have been enjoying Cuca's granddaughter, om, from London, England A very poised, charming, natural beauty, Isabella has traveled extensively in her young life, and has many interesting stories to tell. The highlight of her American trip so far has been a trip on our own St. John's river with some of the neighbors. In all her travels, the mid east, Hong Kong, Europe and the New England States, she has never seen anything to match the natural beauty that we have, she said. Isabella said her friends in England will never believe her when she tells them she skiled in waters where the alligators could be seen on the embankments and thoroughly enjoyed herself! Boating and skiing in Europe are not done often due to the cost of "petrol", so this was really a pleasure.

Four days after Isabella arrived, Deedee Buxton, Cuca's daughter and Isabella's aunt, also from London, arrived, so the house is filled with charming women. Douglas is recovering from a by-pass heart operation he had five weeks ago, and is really enjoying all the attention he gets from his lovely "ladies-in-waiting".

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Buck (Vivian and Dick) have spent a long week-end in Atlanta, Ga. with their daughter and her husband, Barbara and Bob Luth and children John, 41/2, and Jimmy, 11/2. The Luths had their eighth wedding anniversary, and to celebrate the occassion, Vivian and Dick took them out for dinner.

Rachel Berrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Berrey, has been chosen the Most Outstanding Student in the School of Pharmacy at Auburn University, Auburn, (Alabama) by the Student Government Association. Rachel was graduated from Seminole High School in 1977. Shortly thereafter, the Berreys moved to Pennsylvania. Recently they have returned and Edie, a SHS junior, declares that she and her brother Ivan, a senior, find SHS "the best school we've been to. It's great!"

Congratulation to Ralph Byrd, a SHS senior, who has been notified of an honor scholarship from University of Florida because of his high school academic record. Ralph has participated in Varsity football and track for the past two years.

SISTER (Sanford's Interested Sarahs to Encourage Rejuvenation) held their regular luncheon meeting Thursday at the Holiday Inn. Mrs. Richard (Vivian) Buck, president, conducted the meeting.

The members were informed there would be a benefit dinner for the Sharing Center, sponsored by the Sanford Christian Churches, on March 28 from 1 to 6 p.m. at Holy Cross Episcopal Parish Hall. They will serve chicken, baked beans, and cole slaw for a $3 donation for Adults or $2 for children. There will be a take out service set up also.

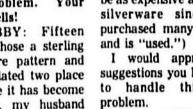

Members were also reminded that reservations must be made in advance and tickets purchased at Lois's Place on First Street for the "Clothes and Cuisine for Culture" fashion show-luncheon to be held at the Sanford Woman's Club at noon on March 19.

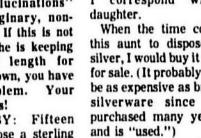

Clothes will be from Lois' Place and the cuisine will be catered by Vivian Buck.

Proceeds from the $5 donatign will be turned over to the Seminole Mutual Concert Association.
