WE, the men of Sanford who believe in dressing well, hereby declare our belief in the undying principle that all men ought to be particular about what they get for their clothes-money.

We declare our unalterable conviction that Palmer & Seigh are selling the smartest lot of suits and overcoats ever brought to this town; and we call upon young men, especially those who are to cast their first clothes vote this fall, to support our candi-

We denounce the cotton-mixed fabrics that are common in clothes, and declare ourselves unalterably for a single-standard — all-wool fabrics.

We pledge our candidate to furnish you the best clothes you ever wore.

About Our Schools

Editor Sanford Schools, City

My Dear Holly: It is with much pleasure and satisfaction I note your editorial in your issue of The Herald of Tuesday, Oct. 1st., on "Our Public Schools."

We are proud of our schools and justly so. Indeed the arrangement of our school plant was by no means a "Happened so," but is the result (so far only in part) of carefully laid plans being worked out by the board of trustees with the aid of Prof. Perkins. You have stated a fact, and stated it well, when you say "The schools are the most valuable asset of our city, and are an institution in which all are vitally concerned." As a community we are indeed fortunate in that we are a people who take a deep interest in the better things of life. To bring our public schools up to the high standard they have now attained, and that is recognized by the best educators of our state, has been possible only because of the fact that the citizens of the district and patrons of the schools are deeply interested in the welfare and education of our children. Nothing is too good for OUR children seems to be the conviction of our citizens. It has been my privilege for more than ten years now, as a member of the board of trustees, to assist in the upbuilding and development of our schools, and I can testify from personal experience to the loyal, sympathetic and earnest support (almost unanimous support) always given the board of trustees and teachers by the citizens of the district. This speaks well for our people and is the basis for the good work now going on in the education of our youth. Now that our schools have opened for another term I trust our citizens will make special effort to visit them, and especially do I hope those parents, the fathers as well as the mothers, who have children there will visit and get acquainted with the teacher in charge of your child, for much encouragement is often given to both teacher and scholar by a friendly visit from the parent. We have the best school plant of any city of our size in the state, much better than many larger cities, our corps of teachers second to none, and our citizens the BEST on earth. Why shouldn't we be pleased? Personally, and on behalf of the school board, I wish to thank you for your kindly expressions, and the interest you are going to take in our schools in the future.

Sincerely,

C. R. WALKER

Services at the Episcopal Church

The Episcopal church will be open for Sunday school at 9:45 and morning service at 11 o'clock.

Rev. F. B. Cannon, who was expected to take the restorship, has accepted work elsewhere. Therefore services will be held as during the summer until further arrangements can be made.

Teachers and scholars are requested to be on hand promptly at 9:45 Sunday, the 5th.

With Congressman Sulzer named for governor and Martin Glynn for lieutenant governor, the Democratic convention met, selected the remainder of the New York state ticket and adjourned.

General Manager W. C. Temple of the Florida Citrus Exchange says he expects that at least 500 cars of grapefruit will go forward from this state during the present week, which embraces the opening week of the shipping season for grapefruit. It was decided at the Gainesville convention of the citrus growers to throw down the bars on Oct. 1 so far as grapefruit is concerned.

The First National Bank of Plant City has formally opened its doors to the public. This makes the third bank for that progressive town.

Authentic information as to the extent of betting on the approaching world championship ball games is impossible. It is known, however, that many Boston supporters have given New York odds as good as 10 to 7 on wagers that the Red Sox will defeat the Grays in the series.

The Orlando Sentinel says: "G. A. Branson brought to the Sentinel office last Friday an extraordinary egg that one of his hens had laid. The phenomenon measured over 8 inches one way and 6 3/8 inches the other. For several years Mr. Branson was manager of the Retreat poultry farm, owned by Rev. H. I. Crisler, and he knows a deal about poultry and eggs, yet he has not hopes of breeding a strain of hens capable of producing regularly such eggs as the one above mentioned."

TAKE CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

Mrs. Jane Callahan suffered from womanly trouble for nearly ten years. In a letter from Whiteville, N. C., she says: "I was not able to do my own housework. My stomach was weak, and my blood was wrong. I had back-ache, and was very weak. I tried several doctors, but they did me no good. I used Cardui for 3 or 4 months, and now I am in the best health I have ever been. I can never praise Cardui enough." It is the best tonic, for women.

Whether seriously sick, or simply weak, try Cardui.

JORDAN CALLS BLUFF OF FOXY FRUIT SHIPPERS

Will Inspect all Citrus Fruits Before Allowing Shipment

FLORIDA NEWS AND VIEWS FROM EVERY SOURCE

Daily Happenings in The Land of Flowers Culled and Tied Into a Nosegay of Brieflets

Pure Food Inspector A. P. Jordan will not issue permits to citrus fruit growers allowing them to ship their fruit, following a test of samples that are brought to him. He will make no more tests except from fruit that he has gathered himself, and will then make these at the packing house. Inspector Jordan reached this decision following the action of one grower to whom he gave a certificate of ripe fruit, based on a test applied to a few oranges brought to him. As soon as the inspector issued this certificate neighbors of the grower he had given it to, swarmed in to see him, and ask for certificates. On investigation it was found that the inspector had been imposed upon, the grower picking out some of his ripest fruit for the test. When he got his certificate he commenced shipping everything he had.

The Orlando Reporter-Star says: "Good water, good streets, and a sewerage system to be voted October 19, is a gentle reminder that Orlando has taken her place on the side of city construction."

Book Lovers' Club

The Book Lovers' Club met with Mrs. Harry Ward Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

A short business meeting was held in which Mrs. Hopson was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy left by Mrs. George Fox, Jr.

At the conclusion of the business meeting the hostess announced they would go into the millinery business, whereupon each guest was supplied with tissue paper, pins and scissors and told they must fashion a hat. The experience caused a great deal of merriment and some unique models were manufactured.

Mrs. Fred Williams, whose creation of a white picture hat with willow plume received the greatest number of votes, was awarded the prize, a beautiful wedgewood fern dish. Miss Collins cut the consolation prize, a miniature picture hat.

Delicious refreshments were served by Miss Madge and Veda Ward, who assisted their mother in entertaining.

Mrs. Ward's invited guests were: Mesdames John Dickins, Caldwell, Harry Wilson, Morton Hopson, J. D. Langley and Misses Collins and Mary McClung.

Millinery Opening

A cordial invitation is extended the ladies of Sanford and vicinity to attend my millinery opening Oct. 10 and 11, Thursday and Friday. The largest and handsomest line of pattern hats ever brought to Sanford will be on display at my parlors over Yowell's store.

HELD A ROUSING MEETING

Commercial Club Members Are Enthusiastic

OVER ONE HUNDRED PRESENT

Will Meet Again Friday Night To Perfect The Organization And Committees

Never before in Sanford's history have the business men been so thoroughly aroused to the importance of organized effort for the upbuilding of the city and a general feeling of good fellowship. The reorganized Commercial Club is meeting every Friday night and each week is devoted to a good natured skirmish between the two committees on membership. One committee reported forty new members and the other sixty at the last meeting. Friday night the club met in the band room of the city hall and Vice President Forster faced an audience of over 100 good men and tried when he rapped for order. Mr. Forster presided in his usual affable manner, and after the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by Secretary Bates many of the new members were called upon to make short talks for the good of Sanford, and for two hours the hall resounded with speeches and applause. From the report of the two committees on membership it was thought advisable to continue the good work and they were instructed to search the highways and hedges and let no guilty man escape. All of the members are requested to aid the committees in the hunt for new members and next Friday night President Lake will appoint all the standing committees and the club will then arrange the work for the ensuing year.

The ready response with which every citizen of Sanford has given the committees on membership indicates that at least 200 members will be added to the list and the club representing it as does every progressive citizen of the Sanford district will be a power for good in the community. It will be the purpose of the club not only to transact the regular routine of business at each meeting but some prominent speaker will be invited to make addresses at least once each month and dull business will be enlivened and many good points for the betterment of Sanford and Orange county will be brought to the attention of the members.

Some there are who believe that less talk and more work is needed, but unless the cheerful spirit predominates at the meetings there will soon be a falling off in the attendance.

The busy man who spends ten hours each day with his own affairs needs some relaxation at these meetings and a few addresses on vital questions at the meetings will prove very beneficial to all concerned.

The meeting next Friday night will be in the band room of the city hall and every member is urged to be present.

At the Imperial

The attendance at the Imperial Saturday night was so great that standing room was at a premium for an hour or longer.

This week's show proved so good last evening that preparations are being made to handle a crowd this evening and tomorrow.

Curly Monnette in his character singing and impersonations was somewhat different from other acts of the same class. His several quick changes are good.

Joe Alvia, the acrobatic dancer presents an act worthy of special mention and the difficult dance of Mr. Alvia was spoken of as being the big hit of this season's vaudeville. He will no doubt draw big houses today and tomorrow.

Cecilian Music Club

The Cecilian Music Club will meet at the studio of Mrs. Fannie Stenbridge Munson Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock sharp. Every member of the Club is requested to be present.

Millinery Opening

Mrs. J. H. Bruton will have her fall Millinery Opening at her parlors in the Bishop Block on Thursday and Friday of this week and promises the people of Sanford some great surprises in this line. Come early and see the latest styles before they are sold.

To the Daughters of Dixie
Where are the daughters of the south in Sanford?

In every other large city and small in the southland there is a chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy and on Memorial Day and other occasions the memory of the Lost Cause is kept green. Only in Sanford do we notice an entire absence of any organization and lack of interest in memorializing the great conflict. There are sufficient numbers of southern ladies in Sanford to have a chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy here or at least to affiliate with Orlando, in order that the memory of the brave hosts in gray can be kept green at least one day in the year. The daughters of Dixie in Sanford are not alive to the opportunity of paying homage to the veterans whose ranks are fast thinning and who will only be here a few years longer to receive homage. Concerted action on our part will organize a chapter here this winter and from this work all of us will realize a vast amount of good not only in studying the history of the south in the revival of sacred memories but in the general feeling of camaraderie that any good organization of this kind encourages.

At the Presbyterian Church

There was a most gratifying attendance at the Presbyterian church last Sabbath, both morning and evening.

Announcement had been made of the subject of the evening's discourse, "The Fundamental Basis of Education" by Rev. McKinnon. Being the county superintendent of public instruction and pastor of the Presbyterian church Rev. McKinnon is in a position to handle this subject particularly well and his sermon last Sunday night was ably composed and delivered. The teachers of the public schools were present, together with many members of other churches and Mr. McKinnon's remarks were closely followed.

He demonstrated that religion is the true foundation of education, taking his text from the Bible and illustrating his point by passages from the Scriptures.

Miss Louise Collins of Dunedin rendered solos at both morning and evening services in a manner most pleasing to the audience.

Triplett Will Speak

Stonewall Jackson Triplett, he of the interdict countenance and unassailable Democracy and sonorous voice, is in demand as a campaign orator, and may be heard in the cause of the just if he can get his consent to go out on the hustings.

Mr. Triplett has received a request from Claude L'Engle, nominee of the party for congressman at large, to address the behalf at Kissimmee, Sanford and Orlando.

In making this request Mr. L'Engle said that he would be unable to go out in his proper person on account of ill health.—Kissimmee Gazette.

Governor Wilson, presidential nominee of the Democratic party, and William J. Bryan, three times Democratic candidate for the same office, had a heart to heart talk at Lincoln, Nebraska, on the political situation throughout the country. Both unhesitatingly predict a Democratic victory. In the sun parlor of Fairview, Mr. Bryan's home, the veteran campaigner and the new comer in national politics sat for a few hours before the Governor's train left, discussing the program of the campaign but with particular reference to the Rocky Mountain states, where Mr. Bryan had just completed a six weeks' tour.

Pages from the careers of the McNamara and Ortie McManigal, as leaders of "the flying squadron of dynamiters" with conversations in which they were said to have plotted to send McManigal to Panama, to blow up the locks of the Panama canal, were read by District Attorney Charles W. Miller, before the jury in the trial of the accused "dynamite conspirators" at Indianapolis yesterday. The incident in reference to Panama, Attorney Miller said, occurred just before the arrest of Los Angeles dynamiters when they were becoming desperate in their efforts to secure explosives without betraying their identities.

"John J., called James B. McNamara, his brother, and McManigal to the headquarters of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers," said Mr. Miller. "John J. said to McManigal: 'We can't get any more dynamite around here without stealing it. Now you go to Panama and see what you can do down there. The McClintic Marshall Construction Company have a large amount of dynamite stored down there. You could easily get hold of it and blow up the locks. That would make 'em sit up and take notice and take their minds off the Los Angeles affair.' McManigal refused to go at that time. Soon after they all were arrested."

Nine young men lost their lives early today when an automobile in which they were joy riding crashed through the railing on the side of the new Thirty-third street Boulevard at Philadelphia and fell into a coal yard seventy-five feet below. The machine, a big touring car, turned turtle in the descent and the occupants were found crushed and mangled in the hood of the machine. The body of the car was smashed to splinters.

War or peace between Turkey and the Balkan states is in the balance. If anything it might be said that the scales swung slightly today against peace in the sense that every hour's delay in the power's intervention in the case increased the chance of hostilities. The word now rests with Great Britain, all the other powers having accepted with some modifications the French Premier's plan for intervention, but it is understood here Great Britain hesitates in going so far as to assume, with other powers, responsibility for gaining from Turkey broad reforms in Macedonia.

Thos. J. Ryan, for many years a leader of the Democratic party in Philadelphia, and a prominent promoter of amusement enterprises, ended his life here today by shooting himself through the mouth. His body was discovered in a downtown office building shortly after he had been discussing business affairs with his private secretary.

Q trolley car, manned by four strike-breakers, was attacked beyond the North Augusta yesterday evening, all of the men being severely flogged and one man shot in the hip. When the crowd had taken the strikebreakers off the car, one of them was rushed over to a clay pit, where an excavation had been made and water was standing. The man was made to get down in the pit and dance, while a number of pistol shots were fired over his head.

The condition of Ralph De Palma, injured while driving in the Grand Prix automobile road race Saturday, when his car hit the machine driven by Caleb S. Bragg, winner of the race, is said tonight to be as favorable as can be expected. De Palma's main injury, consists of an abdominal puncture and unless infection sets in his physicians say chances are bright for recovery. The patient is conscious. He sustained several bruises about the body, but no bones were fractured as first reported.

A Chief is Among Ye Taking Notes and Faith, He'll Plead 'Em'—So Says Saunterer.

Woodrow Wilson displayed his courage in dealing with bosses when he urged the defeat of ex-Senator James Smith for the Democratic nominating for United States Senator. Mr. Smith some years ago represented New Jersey in the United States senate. He belongs to the old school of politicians. Two years ago he wanted the New Jersey legislature to send him back to Washington. Gov. Wilson openly opposed him and is responsible for defeating him. This year Mr. Smith thought that Gov. Wilson would not dare fight him, that he would be too much occupied with his own candidacy to give any attention to the senatorial primary. In that, however, he was mistaken, for Governor Wilson not only issued cards denouncing the style of politics practiced by Smith, but made speeches against him. In consequence the ex-senator went down to a second defeat.

This action on the part of Governor Wilson will undoubtedly cost him some votes in his own state, but it should also win for him admiration from those who care for fearlessness and the courage of convictions. Ex-Senator Smith as an individual is all right, but as a politician he belongs to the class we do not favor in these days of moral awakening. The old Democratic machine tried to discipline Governor Wilson for his first defeat of Smith and the members of it will make a second attempt to punish him, but they will probably not be any more successful than they were at first. The right thinking people of New Jersey will take care of that and they will be backed by the people throughout the balance of the country.

Baltimore fashionable hotels must provide smoking parlors for ladies. The town on the Bay is getting ahead of New York. Oddly enough many who like to recall the venerable grandmother of the past with her pipe are shocked at the idea of the woman of today with a cigarette. It is like the difference between bathing suit and décolleté.

The national conservation congress is devoted to the scheme of conserving human life. It bases its readings largely on the money value of a human being and it appears to think that if only parents may be persuaded that they are losing money if they neglect the health of their children, that they will be more careful about their training, their food, their clothing and general well being.

It may be that there is something in it and that it is effective to say that the amount of sickness annually experienced in this country is equivalent to 3,000,000 years of a single person, and yet one always feels an element of doubt about the effectiveness of such costs.

The trouble is not with the willingness as a rule of parents to care for their children, but sickness is very largely a matter of ignorance. That ignorance is not confined to people in humble circumstances, or those who live in the most modest dwellings.

There is about as much ignorance of health among the well to do as anywhere in society. The general advance in length of life that is noted is mainly due to improved methods of sanitation and to teaching the heads of households that nature insists upon certain conditions as elemental on the question of health and if those conditions are not complied with the penalty is death, or sickness, which in itself is the forecast of death before it need be seriously regarded.

Some estimate the cost of sickness and death in the United States at $3,000,000 a year, of which at least a third is preventable. That is perhaps a reasonable estimate, but all such movements go back to the fundamental principle that the rice is to be elevated through better understanding of the conditions that human life for good or ill. There is sincerity enough; what is lacking is knowledge.

It is autumn!

What a sweet sound in that name. It means that the long summer is over and that the celery crop and the lettuce crop and orange crop and tourist crop will soon be ripe and ready to harvest.

The reason I like autumn is because it always comes in the fall and if there is anything I prefer in autumns it is a nice moist, rainy period when the gentle drizzle falls gently and tenderly upon your neck and trickles down your back. The autumns are so cheerful when it rains twenty-six hours out of the twenty-four and then goes back and rains in between times and it is such a comfort to walk to and from your home while the rain drizzles and your thoughts sizzle and business frizzes and everything is wet except your whiskle.

As I remarked before, the autumn is a very entrancing time and all my friends will back me up in this statement for any one with half an eye could see they are enjoying this weather. They look just like I do when I come out of the bank after being turned down on a loan. But cheer up, Dick Calhoun says that the rains will cease as soon as there is a full moon, and I remarked to him that if the full moon didn't hurry along here it wouldn't have any edge on the rest of us.

There is the same old rumor of a traction line that will connect Sanford and Kissimmee and this time it will be Braxton Beacham who will build the same. This listens better than any similar line of talk that has been given us lately and now let Mr. Beacham get busy and build that line. The people of Sanford will give him the glad hand and just whether the Orlando people will assist is another matter. They certainly need an electric line down there if they ever expect to get any reduction of freight rates, for if ever there was a town that is tightly bottled up, sealed and delivered to the railroads it is that same Orlando. So I say that in talking about electric lines Orlando ought to get busy and lend Beacham all the assistance they can. Our own city of Sanford, of course, while welcoming the traction line is not in dire need of the same as our sister is, and it is now up to Mr. Beacham and the citizens of Orlando to get busy and build that traction line at once. Brophy in his love letter the other day offered to give away the franchises, rights of ways and surveys of the Citrus Southern to any Orlando man who had nerve enough to take up the proposition and push it through, and now let him show the county seat her verve and dash and jump right in while the water is fine. We will help the good work along but it is certainly up to Beacham and the Orlandoites to make good.

I understand that the brick roads will go as originally intended and that all parties concerned are satisfied to let them go where there are the most people living. I am certainly glad to hear that the roads will start soon and that there will be no delay in the matter. This is undoubtedly one of the biggest assets of the Sanford section and we ought to have no wrangle about the matter. This is a good opportunity for Sanford to get brick roads on the through routes and every citizen should be satisfied to have the roads go where they will benefit the most people and let the good work go on at once. We need the roads badly before the winter season starts and if the work can proceed uninterruptedly the roads ought to be finished in record time.

Some man remarked to me the other day that since the Sanford Commercial Club had reorganized that a different feeling was manifest in the city and even if the Club was unable to accomplish anything big this season in the factory line that the simple fact of getting everybody together was enough for one season for him. Well, of course this man is easily satisfied and while all of us appreciate the work of the club in getting the people together we also appreciate the fact that there must be something more substantial in the working of the Club and that there are matters of grave importance to the city's welfare that must be threshed out by the people as a whole. There is no better way for the people to get together and fight out these measures than the meetings of the Club where all the representative citizens are represented and there can be a communion of interests and feelings that among friends and neighbors is the place to solve vital questions and not on the street corners.

PLEASURE IN SUBURBAN LIFE

Many Ways in Which It Can Be Made Superior to Either the Rural or Urban.

We should sharply distinguish between suburban life and rural life, for a vast gap separates them, especially for the gentler sex. Too often in strictly rural life woman's time is wholly occupied in drudgery, to the exclusion of all social life, a considerable distance from nearest neighbors and their equally manifold duties conspiring to prevent a supposed waste of time in "visiting."

While all this is changing for the better, such conditions were never true of ordinary suburban life. Even the farmer's wife may now chat with her friends and neighbors over the telephones, and rural delivery places her closely in touch with the world's movements and brings small articles of merchandise right to her door nearly as quickly as it is delivered to her city sisters. Suburban life consists of living in rather thickly settled communities, generally without the confines of municipalities, yet having, usually, all the city's advantages of transportation, water service, telephones, gas, electricity, daily papers delivered a few hours after publication, together with many valuable up-to-date conveniences.

Every such community should have a live improvement association, and perhaps, in addition, an equally live woman's club. Such clubs may purchase magazines for either individual or collective use at greatly reduced rates, and would they but sufficiently co-operate, all household commodities at equally advantageous prices. Co-operation, zealously and honestly carried out, spells success for any organization or business enterprise.

QUALITIES OF STREET TREES

Some Important Points to Be Considered Before the Road is Laid Out.

It must be apparent to all that the chief point of value in a street lies in its general appearance, for if it be not attractive the street were better bare, though there be but a few trees having no ornamental value for street planting. Nevertheless, we desire the most ornate, and this must first be considered.

The next most important point is its drought resistance. We may be able to care for a tree much or all of the time, but we would be relieved of the possible danger arising from long periods of neglect. Those trees which look best with least care and water will prove the only ones generally useful, for while one will give ample care, his neighbor will give none.

The next point must be cleanliness, for if a tree be too dirty its litter will detract from the beauty and tidiness of the street sufficiently to offset any attractive appearance of the tree itself.

Fourth on the list must come amount of care, a consideration closely allied to the last. Next comes rapidity of growth. Not until we are many centuries older will we settle down to the philosophic state of mind enjoyed by Europeans. We wish a tree to make "a fair showing" in a year, not knowing that the most rapid-growing trees are generally the shortest-lived. We should learn to plant for posterity—for generations to come—as they do in all countries but ours.

Sixth, and last, a tree should have a good root system. Children's Food. The children, especially boys, are a hearty race of people on picnic days in most cases, and they want a lot of food of the more substantial nature, such as fried chicken, corned beef, fish or clam chowder, and other foods in which they can have a liberal hand as to providing, as well as the eating. Johnnie wants to catch the fish, and if properly flattered, will find great delight in digging the clams, or at least picking them up as father digs them from the beach. The girls will enjoy picking berries, if there are any to pick, and then in helping to cook the food in the camping crudity which helps to make a true picnic of the best possible kind.

Some Good in It. "I don't hear Blodgett stutter any more." "No, he's curing himself. When he runs across a difficult sentence he repeats it over and over again until he masters it. See his lips move." "Yes. What's he saying now?" "Can't you catch it? He's saying 'Irresponsible parasitoid.' Try it yourself."

A VOTE FOR WILSON

Just twelve months ago you should vote for Wilson for President

He is the only candidate for President who represents the real, the vital and the effective progressive forces in this country

He stands for tariff revision to lower prices and the elimination of tariff-making

He stands for that legislation which will prevent the control of prices through any sort of monopoly

He stands for the income tax and believes that wealth should share the burdens as well as the blessings of government

He stands for the right of labor and the protection of the weak who suffer the brunt of the greed of the strong as shown in his record as governor of New Jersey

He stands for the reform of our merchant marine, and for the government encouragement of agriculture, industrial and vocational education

He trusts the people and believes that the governed should govern and that senators should be chosen by the people

He indignantly performs in office the functions made out of office

He will "CLEAN HOUSE" at Washington as he has "CLEANED" HOUSE" in New Jersey

He preaches and practices clean politics, and practices it effectively. He unalterably opposes machine politics and the rule of the bosses

He stands for legitimate big business every day, but for monopoly never

As Senator LaFollette says, "He approaches every problem with the solemn promise to be really, in the highest sense, a servant of the people."

RURAL DRAINAGE

Florida, like some other states of the south, has received her share of rain this year, the figures of the weather bureau showing that there is a general excess for nearly every section of the state.

Looked at merely from the standpoint of effect on farming or the lumber industry, the excessive rainfall can only be classed as a great drawback, but as in all things there is some good, the fall of rain has one redeeming feature.

It affords an opportunity of seeing conclusively the need of laws which will provide capable drainage in rural districts.

Not many weeks ago the people of Hillsborough county became aroused to the necessity of some action by the county authorities for the relief of that section and the matter went so far that legislation at the recent special session of the Legislature was deemed advisable.

That being out of the question, because of the peculiar circumstances surrounding the special session, the matter still remains to be considered effectively at some future time.

Derail county and some others of the state may not be so badly in need of drainage as some of the more southern counties, but at least an expenditure of funds in improving lands by turning them of ditches would be a wise and valuable movement.

If certain counties of the state can be classed as being within the drainage district of the Everglades, and by law can be made to pay an increased tax, so can other counties have the privilege of levying a tax for drainage work.

WHAT HE SHOULD WRITE

A gentleman given gray in the newspaper offices of this nation, and who is considered a successful newspaper man, recently addressed a number of young journalists.

He spoke to them as a father would speak to his son, for their own good, not for his. He endeavored to say to them that when he found by experience to be good for them to know and be delivered himself in these words:

"Let your writings more than reward if they will, instead of doing credit to your own vanity, and to the vanity of your readers."

Now the man who preached the above sermon cannot but feel that to write the impression that it is necessary for the newspaper writer to appear cowardly to write always so that the crooked individual would have cause to rejoice.

But the great mass of the people—the toilers of this old world who produce the food and clothing for us, who build our houses and run the trains upon which we ride, and who gather together from the four quarters of the world the goods which we demand, the mothers and fathers of the next generation of useful citizens, the patient teachers in the schools, the physicians and the preachers, the manufacturers who are employing hundreds in sanitary workshops and factories—oh, there are so many good people about whom there is so much of commendation to be said, that newspaper men ought care to say anything about the other fellows.

There are rumors that Hon. Braxton Brantley of Orlando has made the offer of building a traction road from Sanford to Orlando if he can get four other men to put up ten thousand dollars apiece to start the work.

Now the editor of The Herald knows Mr. Brantley well enough to suggest that he take the entire responsibility of this project on his own shoulders and put up the $40,000 himself to start the great work.

The following dialogue took place in a murder trial in Kentucky when a witness was called to impeach a witness who had testified:

"Are you acquainted with the reputation of Jeremiah Simpson, in the neighborhood in which he lives and among those with whom he usually mixes and traffics, and from what his friends, neighbors and acquaintances usually say of him as to truth and veracity or the contrary?" asked the lawyer.

"Yes, I do," replied the witness.

"What is that reputation, good or bad?" asked the lawyer.

"Well, he is such a bad liar that he has to get his neighbors to call his boys to lead, for they won't believe Jeremiah."

The question of the operation of the law school will not lead to the work and the funds being collected, and other preliminary work finished the great work can start all over and the national education will be the nucleus of a new school the people who are anxious to receive have are writing about the date of the starting of the law school and every one who was present here or expected to see any a lawyer interested in the building of the law school.

Whether the Sanford Herald is right or not, "No" "Yes" we will stand for the benefit of our readers, including the Herald and any others who are the day to lead the matter up, that a Senator in a group of students pursuing an advanced course of study in a particular college or university, etc. Before, it would appear safe to say that if the same studies were conducted elsewhere than in a college or university, it would be something else and not a Senator, but the evidence are the results would be the same. Another argument against the college "No" "Yes" Ft. Myers Press.

The business of Orange county is beginning to stir, that an addition to the court house is needed for "What is not to be a good job to put the addition in Sanford, since most of the business comes from the end of the county.

Orlando schools opened yesterday with an attendance of 563 pupils. This is very good for Orlando, but when it comes to children they will have to hand it to Sanford. "What do you know about our attendance of over 600 pupils?"

Hon. John Jones of Orlando is calling the people "try fear people" in an open letter about the shipment of great fruit. Wonder if John expects to be a candidate for Governor.

The Sanford Commercial Club takes in new members one hundred at a time and nothing less will do the hustling committees.

The weather of today is worth something to the celery growers and the seed beds are out of danger of floods and hot weather.

The cool weather of the past few days is having an effect on individuals and business and both seem stimulated by Jack Frost.

The "best beer" places in Sanford having been abolished there is no beer any "better" than Ocala now.

Early Crops: HOW?

TO be a success at maturity, a crop must be started off vigorously; it must have plenty of plant food at hand in the soil, that can be easily and quickly ly taken up by the rootlets and converted into vegetable fibre and crisp green foliage. Later in the season also, the plant food must be there to ripen the product and harden it for shipping.

BRADLEY'S FERTILIZERS

contain this sort of plant food, as Florida truckers have learned from thirty years of experience in using them. Not only "quality" and "reliability" but "suitability" are watchwords of Bradley's fertilizers.

Attacking the Press

At the last session of congress a rider was tacked on the postoffice appropriation bill requiring all newspapers to publish their ownership and circulation and mark as advertising matter all articles for which they receive remuneration of any kind. The shot was aimed at some of the big newspapers that did not please the Progressive Demagogue leaders. The Orlando Reporter-Star, while willing to give all the information called for, denounces the measure in no uncertain terms and says:

"We wish very emphatically to say that if this rider of the bill is not repealed at the next session of congress, this newspaper will flatfootedly refuse to support any congressman or senator who votes for it. And it is very much to be hoped that every newspaper in the land will adopt the same attitude. It is high time the crowd at Washington had a word from home. Since writing the above, the news has come to us of the discontinuance of the Oyiedo Advance, owing to the demands of the new law. Out with the little fellow; out with the small fry; out with the poor man. What right has a poor man in the world, anyway?"

This measure was demanded and passed by the Progressive Demagogues. Mr. Bryan gave it the highest praise in a speech he made in Jacksonville for Progressive Demagogues last spring. While the Progressive Demagogues do not control a majority in congress they exercise an influence there disproportionate to their numbers because of the fact that they are ready to knife the Democratic party whenever it does not submit to their dictation.

The Progressive Demagogues either go too far or not far enough in their guardianship of the people. If they make newspapers struggling for existence and try to build up prosperity for the little communities in which they are published tell all about their business why not make the merchants tell all about theirs? Before permitting them to sell any meat or flour or corn why not make them tell how much they gave per pound for their meat, per barrel for their flour or per bushel for their corn? If they are poor why not require them to publish to the world a list of their assets and liabilities so that their creditors can take away from them the chance of success?

The framers of the constitution valued the freedom of the press so highly that they inserted a clause in that document prohibiting congress from abridging it. It is strange that in the face of this congress has singled out this particular line of business for inquisitorial supervision. —Times-Union.

Truth is Good Enough

There is not a particle of necessity for misrepresenting anything in connection with Florida. The land company telling the truth in regard to the land it owns will make more in the end than the swindler, for the honest company will gain the confidence of its patrons and the public generally, and its reputation for honesty and fair dealing will become widespread and secure for it a business that the dishonest company can never hope to attain. The swindler may make big profits for awhile, but he has to seek new pastures to carry on his operations. Every person buying land in Florida should know with whom he is dealing. He should ascertain from banks, boards of trade, public officials and newspapers, the character and reputation of the persons composing such companies, and also the general character of the lands advertised.

The value of Florida land is steadily increasing as the demand for the land increases. As the state increases in population and as the demand for Florida products of all kind increases, the value of Florida land will increase. The cut-over lands of Florida that are frequently allowed to go to the state for taxes a few years ago are today bringing the owner from five to fifteen dollars an acre in tracts of 20,000 or more acres. These are lands that are being sold, as a rule to settlers. They are just as good now as when they had a heavy growth of timber on them. The cutting off of the timber has not hurt the land in the slightest. The fact that the timber has been removed makes it easier for the settler to clear the land.—Jacksonville Metropolis.

Home Rule for Florida Cities

So far as information on the subject has been given out, nearly every growing and progressive city in Florida stands in need of charter amendments.

Unforeseen conditions continually arise where steps that should be taken towards civic, commercial and industrial development, are retarded by existing charter provisions or the lack of charter provisions.

At present all amendments to city charters must be made by the state legislature. This cannot be done at once and the inevitable delay is frequently detrimental to the progress of the particular development plan the city which desires the charter amendment has in view.

All such legislation by the nature of such things is of course special legislation and it is well known that few legislators in any body except those from the city or country directly interested, pay much attention to special bills.

If cities were given the right to amend their own charters, under certain restrictions, and to ratify them by a referendum vote of the citizens, all city charters would then be made and ratified by those most interested, the people who are governed by them.

The state, too, would make an enormous saving in money and in the time of the legislators, who could then devote the entire session of the general assembly to the transaction of public business in which the entire state is interested. As it is, a large part of the time of each session is given over to the consideration of special bills.

What the growing Florida towns now want is home rule for cities.—Pensacola Journal.

Growing Sweet Potatoes

A few years ago farmers planted potatoes because there was nothing better to occupy the land, and as it took only a small quantity to supply the table, the surplus, or bulk of the crop was fed to the hogs, cattle and horses. Occasionally a load could be sold in the neighboring towns for twenty-five cents a bushel. If sweet potatoes were spoken of as a money crop it was considered a joke or ignorance on the part of the speaker.

But conditions have changed. The demand for sweet potatoes has grown to the extent that they seldom sell for less than $1.00 per bushel, and in the market the demand is always greater than the supply.

The land in this section as well as in all parts of Florida, is well adapted to the cultivation of sweet potatoes. A few days ago, while in conversation with two experienced farmers, the following information in regard to the cost of the production and marketing an acre of potatoes, was gleaned.

Planting, seven days labor, 1.50 per day, $10.50

Cultivation and marketing, seven-teen days, $25.50

Fertilizer, $20.00

Total cost of production and marketing, $56.00

A fair estimate of the yield was 250 bushels per acre, and an average price of 85 cents per bushel, which is a low estimate, the grower will realize $156.50 net profit from his acre of sweet potatoes, or about $6.50 per day for his labor.

The above estimates are considered conservative by several farmers to whom they were shown. Over four hundred bushels of sweet potatoes per acre have been grown on cow pen land, New Smyrna Breeze.

On October 10th, 1912, before daylight, a total eclipse of the sun is scheduled to be visible in the extreme southeastern part of the United States, Mexico, Central America and the West Indies. The sun will rise eclipsed and the shadow will pass off its disc at 6:18 a. m. The eclipse will be visible in Florida.

FOR THE ONION LOVER.

Is the crisp deliciousness of the onion and the feeling which comes from knowing that we have a breath which will bar us from our friends one of the charms of the indulgence in the odoriferous bulb? To most of us who do enjoy the crisp and palatable vegetable eaten with discretion as to time and place, there need be no regrets. We like them ourselves, but how do we protest against the indulgence of our neighbors. There are people who have no regard for the disgust of others, and freely eat of the forbidden fruit (rather vegetable) on any and all occasions. To these who object strenuously to the presence of onion flavor in any food, there is much to say, for many dishes are simply characterless without a dash of onion juice to give it zest.

A mere touch of the flavor is not observable, but its absence is most noticeable. Robert Louis Stevenson calls the onion the poetic soul of the salad bowl. Truly our salads would be flat and unprofitable if it were not for the small bulb.

For an all round vegetable, the onion stands first, wholesome, stimulating, antiseptic and prophylactic. What more could one ask?

Those who are weak and feeble will find that the free use of the onion will give new strength.

Our grandmothers recognized its prophylactic powers (though not by that name), when giving young and old onion sirup for colds and coughs.

The antiseptic effect is found to be active in the large intestine, where imperfectly digested food may be stagnating and cause self-poisoning. The onion disinfects and the whole system is cleansed.

Bolled onions do not leave the breath quite so offensively noticeable as when eating the raw ones, yet there are those who are so fond of them and make up their minds that they may as well be anathematized for a strong odor as a weak one.

Parsley is the best of odor removers, and is really very efficacious.

One good Englishman said we would better be without noses than without onions.

Nellie Maxwell

Weeds in Lawns.

Aside from dandelions, plantain and noxious grasses, the greater number of common weeds may be kept out of lawns by frequent mowings. In new lawns nothing more encourages grass or discourages weeds than close clipping as often as there is sufficient growth for the machine blades to catch. To be sure, there are weeds that thrive splendidly under the treatment outlined, and we must get down on our knees and pull them out by the painful process known as "hand weeding." But then a good lawn is worth all it costs.

Pictures and Religion.

The decision of the pope to allow religious cinematograph shows in Roman Catholic churches in America (on condition that the sacrament is removed) will cause little surprise in this country. In English churches, for all our "bright" services, the use of the cinematograph is almost unknown. There are exceptions, however. That energetic cleric, the Rev. Wilson Carille, finds the cinematograph a help to his popular church army services at St. Mary-at-Hill, and we believe "living pictures" obscured subjects are occasionally to be seen in a church at Bermondsey. A little over a year ago Father James Adderley of Birmingham started a newspaper campaign on behalf of the cinematograph in the services of the church, but nothing seems to have come of it. Yet it is hard to see the difference between a cinematograph service and a magic-lantern service, and lantern services have been held for years in every part of the country.—Manchester Guardian.

Fighting at Night in War.

That the Japanese are determined to do more night fighting than ever in the next war may be inferred from the fact that they have introduced into the service an illuminating 50-pound shell for the heavy field gun, containing sufficient magnesium composition to give a bright light for fully twelve minutes. In battle salvos of these shells will be fired into an enemy's works before the assault is delivered. It has been found by experiment with dummy figures that the defenders when they stand up to fire are sharply silhouetted against the light, enabling the attacking infantry to take good aim at them while themselves lying invisible in the dark. The Russians, too, have learned from the Manchurian war, and are issuing search lights at the rate of one per regiment to permit the delivery of well-aimed rifle fire at night both in attack and defense.—Army and Navy Journal.

OWNERS OF THE STATE DAILIES

Who Owns and Control the Big Dailies of Our State

Thanks to a provision in the general postoffice appropriation bill passed at the session of congress just adjourned, the people of Florida are now in position to know what they have long suspected, says Claude L'Engle in "Dixie", and what has been repeatedly charged:

That the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, the East Coast Railroad and the Seaboard Air Line Railroad are the sole owners of the Florida Times-Union.

Thanks to this same provision, the people of Florida now know WHY IT IS that the Jacksonville Metropolis has never taken a position in favor of any movement for the advancement of the people's rights. Everybody knew before that the Metropolis had expressed no opinion on public questions. Now they know WHY they have not expressed them—

Because they now KNOW that the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, the Florida East Coast Railroad and the Seaboard Air Line Railroad together own seventy-five shares out of four hundred and ninety-eight shares of stock in the Metropolis, giving these three railroads THE BALANCE OF POWER by which they can control at will both Carter and Russell by threatening to decide with either against the other.

The provision of the postal appropriation bill, which I had the pleasure of pronouncing a week or so ago the best bill passed at the recent session of congress, requires newspapers using the second class mail matter privilege to publish each six months, beginning the first of October of this year a list of the owners of their stock, bonds and securities.

Forced to comply with this provision or lose the second class mailing privilege, the Metropolis published Tuesday afternoon, hid away in the One-Cent-a-Word page, a list of stockholders of the publishing company as follows:

W. R. Carter, Jacksonville, Fla., 211 shares; Rufus A. Russell, Jacksonville, Fla., 211 1/2 shares; A. G. Hamlin, Deland, Fla., 25 shares; J. J. Walsh, Baltimore, Md., 25 shares; C. V. Fleming, Portsmouth, Va., 25 shares.

A. G. Hamlin, published as the owner of twenty-five shares of the Jacksonville Metropolis stock, is the stool pigeon selected by the Florida East Coast Railroad to hold its stock. A. G. Hamlin, it will be remembered is a law partner of J. R. Parrott, the president of the Florida East Coast Railroad.

J. J. Walsh, published as the owner of twenty-five shares of the Jacksonville Metropolis stock, is the stool pigeon selected by the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad to hold its stock, for J. J. Walsh is an employe of Henry Walters, chairman of the board of directors of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

C. V. Fleming, publishes as the owner of twenty-five shares of the Jacksonville Metropolis stock, is the stool pigeon selected by the Seaboard Air Line Railroad to hold its stock, for C. V. Fleming is an employe of the banking syndicate in Portsmouth and Richmond that controls the Seaboard Air Line Railroad.

Forced by this provision, which I have pronounced the clapper of the liberty bell, requiring newspapers to tell who owns them, the Times-Union published Wednesday morning on their editorial page the owners of the publishing stock as follows:

H. M. Flagler, New York; J. J. Walsh, Baltimore; F. P. Fleming, Jr., Jacksonville; who are also published as bondholders.

H. M. Flagler owns the Florida East Coast Railroad.

J. J. Walsh, published as one of the three owners of the Times-Union stock, is the stool pigeon selected by the Atlantic Coast Line as holder of its one-third ownership of the Times-Union. He is the same J. J. Walsh who is put down as the owner of twenty-five shares of Metropolis stock, and who is employed in the office of Henry Walters, chairman of the board of directors of the Atlantic Coast Line.

F. P. Fleming, Jr., of Jacksonville, Florida, is the stool pigeon selected by the Seaboard Air Line Railroad as the holder of its one-third ownership of the Times-Union. He is the local counsellor for the Seaboard Air Line Railroad.

This information forced from the Times-Union and the Metropolis by this act of congress, I regard as the most valuable information that we have had transmitted to us for some time. It furnishes the tangible, direct, indisputable PROOF of the suspicion that has amounted to a practical certainty long resting in the minds of the people of Florida that everything that the Times-Union and the Metropolis said about public matters was tainted and that every position that the Times-Union and the Metropolis took, every word that was printed was under the DIRECT CONTROL of the three principal public service corporations in this state.

Who Oppresses the Farmer

It seems to us at the present high prices of farm products, that, like pigs, our farmers ought to be living in clover. Surely they ought to be the last to join the army of the discontented. Eggs are selling for forty-five cents a dozen. Less than three dozen eggs can buy a subscription to the Ocala Weekly Banner for a whole year. At the time of its establishment—counting page for page—it would have required as many as twenty-five dozen. A good sized pig is now worth what a good sized steer was worth a few years ago, and a steer now will bring more than a bale of cotton would have brought a few years ago. The San Antonio (Texas) Express is before us, and here is the way it tells about the changed conditions:

"Yes, a pig now sells at from $25 to $40 according to its size, which is a pretty big bunch of money for a pig. In the old days a hog was scarcely fit for market until a year and a half or two years old, so it cost considerable to raise one, but now a pig of nine or ten months old is popular, and it can be produced at comparatively small expense. Time was when a bale of cotton would not sell for more than $25 though now, together with the seed, it brings a much better price. But a pig is still a very profitable animal, and the wonder is that so many Texas farmers fail to appreciate this fact."

We can remember when sweet potatoes were a drag on the market at forty cents a bushel. Now they are retelling at thirty-five cents per peck. Chickens are bringing fifty, seventy-five and ninety-five cents a piece. Country butter is forty-five cents per pound, and milk twelve and a half cents a quart. Tell us, please, who it is that is trying to oppress the farmer? Surely it is not the fellows who are compelled to give those prices? Ocala Banner

Concerning the Immature Fruit Law

Orlando, Fla. Oct 3, 1912

To My Fellow Countrymen of the Seventh Circuit of Florida

The season is fast approaching for the sale and shipment of our oranges, and to many of you will come the temptation to violate the immature fruit law of Florida, the question of good citizenship will be presented to you, and you must fairly and squarely decide between loyalty and disloyalty to the law of your own making

I appeal therefore to the higher and better feelings of you all. Let it be said that in this era of graft and selfishness, that the high-minded, brave people of the Seventh Circuit have set all considerations of mere gain aside and will stand by their laws, simply because it is right to stand by the law.

Although there have been various holdings of this law by judges in other circuits, yet the fact remains that the Immature Citrus Fruit Law has been declared to be good and sound in this circuit by His Honor W. H. Price at the fall term of St. Lucie circuit, he having presided at this term.

Hence this law is the law of the Seventh Judicial Circuit of Florida, and it will remain in active operation until it is repealed by the Legislature or is reversed by the Supreme Court of the state.

Therefore, it is my duty, without choice, to sustain the law, supported by a decision of a Judge in this Circuit, as long as it is on the statute books, and however it may pain me to prosecute a friend, yet if occasion arises, I shall do so to the best of my ability and to the clearest conception of my duty.

I trust, however, that there will be no such necessity, for I cannot conceive of any man deliberately violating the law in the face of this appeal, which is made to all of you as the friends and fellow citizens who feel with me that the only safety of the state lies in sustaining all, even the least of her laws, not only in the court house, but in the hearts of the people.

Very truly your friend and servant,

JOHN C. JONES, State Attorney, Seventh Judicial Circuit of Florida.

DETERMINE SEX OF A GOOSE

One Good Way is to Notice Difference in Voices—Mating Season is Usually in Fall.

In answer to a query as to method or rule for determining the sex of geese, an exchange makes the following reply:

There are no marks by which one can tell the gender from the geese. The only ways are to watch the actions of the birds and to notice the differences in their voices. The gander has what is popularly called a tenor voice. It is possible that all four of your birds may be geese. If so, you will be unfortunate in attempts to raise any goslings even if you do secure ganders. This is because the mating season is in the fall, usually in September or October, and also because geese very much dislike to have their quarters changed when once accustomed to them. For this reason people who wish to secure birds for breeding purposes make their purchases in the fall so the fowls will get accustomed to their new surroundings. Doubtless nests will be made and the eggs laid, but the eggs may not hatch. If you are forced to buy a gander this spring, it will perhaps be advisable for you to purchase some good eggs of the same breed as you keep, and use these rather than the eggs from your own flock, or at least mark the eggs so that you can distinguish the purchased ones from those laid by your own birds. In this way you should not be wholly disappointed.

Toulouse Goose.

GIVING CHARCOAL TO FOWLS

Puts Them in Good Condition for Work and Prevents Many Diseases Incidental to Season.

Does the average farmer know that an excellent grade of charcoal can be made by burning corn cobs till they turn red, extinguishing the fire and when dry grinding for mash feeding for the poultry.

Charcoal is not a food, though fowls gain in flesh and eggs during its use; it simply puts them and keeps them in a good condition for work. It prevents disease because of its great capacity to absorb gases, acids and impurities. It is an alternative, changing diseased conditions to normal, disinfecting the digestive tract and toning up the system.

In putrid disease like roup, in fermentation like sour crop, in intestinal maladies like diarrhea or cholera, it is of great benefit. In spring and in summer, when the fowl's blood is sluggish it is needed as a purifier to ward off diseases incidental to these seasons.

It should be kept before fowls in size to suit their age, and where fowls refuse to eat it fine charcoal should be mixed in the mash occasionally. It is best given to individual birds in five-grain capsules—large doses are necessary.

Dog's Showing of Gratitude.

Woolwich (England) postman possesses a famous dog, Jack is a terrier who about 15 years ago was found wounded outside Woolwich postoffice. Mr. Haddock, one of the postmen, stopped to bind up the dog's wound, and next morning, at the same hour, Jack returned to the same spot for similar attention, which was given by the same kindly postman. From the day he got better, 15 years ago, the grateful dog has accompanied Mr. Haddock on his daily three miles round, running home at the end of it to his owner in Charlton. Only lately, when old age has asserted its tyranny, has Jack missed an occasional day. During Mr. Haddock's annual 16 days' leave many postmen tried to get Jack to go round with them, but he consistently refused. It is calculated that Jack has walked over 15,000 miles in these daily expeditions of gratitude.
