

The Governor's Appeal

It has been evident for more than a week that public sentiment has been growing throughout the state in favor of the use of "Big Stick" methods by Governor Sholtz in an effort to break up the dilly-dallying tactics of the Legislature and get something done before the remaining half of this session has passed into history.

Again were outlined the major problems of the state confronting the legislators. Educational measures were mentioned, as were also the proposed reduction of judicial circuits, county officers' salary bill, a state homestead law, workmen's compensation, the elimination of various bureaus and commissions, the motor vehicle license tax, city and county bonded debt legislation, opposition to the sales tax, and a balanced budget.

That Governor Sholtz considers over-bonded cities and counties one of the most important matters confronting the Legislature is indicated by his words discussing this problem. "All the work of the Legislature will be of little value unless we set the machinery in motion and place our house in order. I cannot too strongly emphasize the importance of this problem. In a spirit of co-worker and in accordance with my duty as your governor, I have suggested the debt funding bill now before you for consideration."

"Unless something better is offered I am asking that you not delay further consideration of this measure which has now been in committee for some weeks. There can be no return to normal conditions, our people cannot solve their problems, our people cannot save their homes and property unless the problem of bonded indebtedness of cities, counties and political subdivisions of Florida is worked out on the basis of our capacity to pay."

Governor Sholtz's reiterated opposition to the sales tax at this time, we believe, is well taken. The enactment of any additional tax measures now could hardly result in an equivalent reduction in the ad valorem real estate tax, which is, of course, the primary reason for the advocacy of the sales tax. New sources of revenue now would probably mean additional excises for expenditures.

It seems to us that the Governor has a carefully conceived objective to which he is trying to lead the state. The people as a whole, we believe, are as much with him today as they were when they elected him. We can see no reason why the Legislature should delay further in following his leadership.

Another Good Man Lost

Ever since Joseph McKee temporarily assumed the mayoralty of New York, during the period between Jimmy Walker's abdication and the election of John O'Brien, the good citizens of America's metropolis have looked with expectant and appealing eyes at Mr. McKee with the hope that he might become a candidate for mayor next Fall.

In view of his large personal endorsement last year when over 200,000 voters "wrote in" his name on the ballot, political sages saw in Mr. McKee the logical man to break the grip of Tammany Hall. No follower of the "wigwag," he has always taken a forthright position in matters of municipal government. As president of the board of aldermen, it was he who usually "threw the monkey wrench" into many an unwise and tainted transaction, and it was he who continually fought against the extravagances of the "play boy" mayor, Mr. Walker.

During his brief regime at the helm of New York City affairs, Mr. McKee demonstrated what can really be done in the way of effecting economies and improving efficiency when one has the courage and is not shackled by the tentacles of a political machine. In short order he had taken away the luxurious cars which officials had been accustomed to drive about. He had reduced salaries, including his own, dismissed needless employees, combined departments and otherwise adopted business-like policies until the taxpayers were being saved many millions of dollars.

Of course, such a way of doing things was not to Tammany's liking. It viewed with alarm any encroachment of the political dole system by which it maintains its hold on such a large part of the electorate, and besides the atmosphere just wasn't right with "Honest Joe" sitting at the head of the table. The consequence was that Tammany selected a more amenable candidate, Mr. O'Brien, who was elected as most Tammany candidates are. Mr. McKee went back to his old position as alderman president and has since been blocked by the new regime at every turn.

But Mr. McKee should worry. It is a truism that good men don't circulate in politics very long. Business always has its eye alert to take advantage of high class material, and Mr. McKee has just been made the head of the Title Guarantee and Trust Co. with a salary of $50,000 a year. Thus business again has taken the cream and has left New York the skimmed milk. McKee is no longer an alderman. When asked if he were disgusted with politics he replied: "You're telling me."

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

A delightful event in children's circles last week was the old-fashioned surprise pound party tendered Russell Brady at the charming home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Walker by the Junior boys and girls, members of the Congressional Church Sunday School. This going party was a tribute of love to the young classmate who is likely to leave Sanford for a better home and much regret is expressed that he must go for good. It is a favorite in the Sunday school.

The Junior Brotherhood of the Congressional Church entertained a number of their young friends at a very delightful party at the hospitable home of Mrs. F. W. Whittier. The party was given in honor of the Junior boys and girls, members of the Sunday school. WORLD CO-OPERATION

BY J. RANSAY McDONALD

The address of J. Ransay McDonald, former Minister of the Interior, delivered at the National House Club luncheon in his honor recently and heard throughout the country over a National Broadcasting Company network, as transcribed by stenographers, follows:

Today I am here on the invitation of your President, your very buoyant, forceful and courageous President, to face another problem equally curious, equally absurd in its features. In America at this moment and in Great Britain there are millions of men who want work, and who can't get it. There are millions of families that want to be clothed and cannot be clothed. There is spare labor, there is potential demand. And yet by what magic, by what sinister device should those who want to clothe themselves be unable to do so? Why is it that those who are inadequately clad, wishing to give service to the community for an economic return, while the community is craving for that service, cannot have the opportunity of rendering it so that they might demand the labor of the workers who consume its products?

The same is true in England. We are told almost every day that we have got 3,000,000 unemployed men. We are told in the adjoining column of the newspapers that hundreds of thousands of families are living under inadequate conditions of life. And yet, the text of both columns by some strange device cannot be brought to wipe each other out and bring happiness, peace and contentment to the mass of the people.

Voices Hope of Farmers Governments cannot be indifferent to a state of things like that. Your President and I, with our friends, our admirable expert friends, have begun to ask what we can do to find the solution to those problems. In a short time the international economic conference, we hope, is to meet. And what is it going to meet for? It is going to meet for the purpose of trying to discover how by wise international government action the American farmer can acquire a market and a good price, simply by bringing natural economic laws into operation so that by the ordinary operation of demand and supply, the exchange of labor and products, the ability of labor to consume the farmer may go out in the lightness of heart sowing his seed in the springtime, come in in the autumn still with gladness of heart, bearing in his sheaves, knowing that there is not only a market for his but that there is a good price, and by the simple fact that he gets his price he may in turn become an employer of town labor, and labor in all its forms of expression from one end of the world to the other.

Amalgam Nationalist Economies We want the machinery of production and of consumption to begin to go round again, and we can't do that by any system of pure nationalist economies. And, my American friends, if you want to see a really good nationalist go to Scotland in order to find him I am proud of being a nationalist; I am proud of my history; I am proud of my culture; I am proud of my kith and kin; I am proud of the part that we have played in the history of mankind. But if I translate that pride of mine, that nationality of mine into nationalistic economies, if I engage in the trade delusion or imagination that Scotland, made economically self-contained, is going to make its own way in the world's wealth, then what I shall find is this: That I shall both impoverish my neighbors outside of my own boundaries.

Wealth, happiness, contentment enjoyed by large populations living on high standards of life can only be maintained by a freely flowing international exchange. And how we are going to devise that freely flowing exchange is to be the main purpose of the international economic conference. Self-sufficiency in the economic field on the part of nations ultimately ends in the poverty of their own people.

When I speak to an American audience I am sensible of the fact that I am speaking to an audience that believes in representative government. And when you come to think about it, I think you will agree with me that the problem is not merely one of economics and poverty. Your people are now educated. The working classes of the world are no longer ignorant. They are capable of understanding the reasons why and wherefore. Crush these people down by economic failure to poverty and you do not merely rear a situated population but you create a revolution in your population which will not be a population that will not care to look upon year after year the slow moving machinery of democracy that will stretch to quicker and ruder methods.

Steady Influence Sought What? Because these thoughtful people are without hope, men with broken hearts, men who see life's savings disappearing, and people who have not got long views. They are people who cheer scientifically have short views. And this conference is to deal with the problem of an economic machine that for various reasons has ceased to work effectively but in itself, the conference is going to be a great machinery designed to power in the world's material progress. It is not to be a mere formality, it is to be a real thing.

Remember our own. My friends, to live until I reach the age of Methuselah I shall never forget that hectic week-end, the week-end beginning with enormous drains upon our deposits in banks, not from inside the country but from outside—drains which we had to meet in gold.

Can you imagine that in the early days of that crisis we said "Let it rip. Let it rip. We will go off gold. There are benefits in being off gold, and we will reap them." My friends, that is doing the whole genius of the British nation a grave injustice. We had honor; we had responsibility; we strove to fulfill both. We borrowed; but the drain kept on.

Finally the decision was taken. There was no alternative. Before we went off gold our cost of production were too high in relation to the value of our commodities. We were being underpaid—underpaid and adverse drain. Nobody can live long under that, and when we went off we saved the situation. And we did not fall off; we gradually slipped off. A very great difference, at any rate—psychologically. The struggle we put up to maintain our position is remembered to this day by every nation in the world that was watching us and that was involved in that crisis. But when we were off, can you blame us? Will any of you put your hands on your hearts and say you blame us if we said, "never again, if we can help it, shall we go through the terrible days of that week-end?"

Now, what is the meaning of that? I hear some people using the word "retaliation." To me the very sound of retaliation is repulsive, but what is worse than the sound of the word is the spirit behind it. Nations, the United States, Great Britain, France, must protect themselves. But how do you protect yourself? Retaliation? That is to drag conditions down and down through a vicious spiral, a descending spiral course.

When I came here four years ago I was trying to persuade you that competition in armaments was wrong. Now, I say precisely the same thing in relation to this new position that the nations of the world have got to face. If you, politically, want to keep secure and be protected, come to agreements with the other nations; get your reasonable conferences going and honored by other nations. Then you can sit under your fig tree, no man making you afraid.

And in that spirit and in that belief I am glad to say that both your great President and myself have begun a co-operation, a co-operation that we are both determined on—not at all because it is merely an Anglo-American concern—but we have begun a co-operation which with objects I believe will discover how the present distress of the world can be removed, and how all those who are willing to give service to the community may get an economic return which will enable them to live adequate and good lives. If we think that I think, I think neither one of us would have met each other this morning.

you keep fresh in mind and strong in body? How long will that energy remain in you which makes your writings so vivid and your thoughts so much worth other peoples' while studying. Contact, exchange, that is the life of all of us, individual nations, the whole world, and that spirit which recognizes in these future even more than today those problems of money, of labor, of trade, of national prosperity, of wealth, of high standards of living, are international problems.

Mr. H. de B. JUSTISON of Miami SAYS:

"WE HAVE BEEN DELIGHTED WITH THE SAVING IN OUR ELECTRIC BILLS SINCE INSTALLING THE ONE METER RATE."

"The cost of installing the Thrifty Three system was more than made up to me by the saving the first month. Since then, each month's bill has been more than one-fifth less than they were under the two meter rate. We have a six room home and are using the following electric appliances... water heater, range, lights, iron, percolator, radio, toaster and vacuum cleaner. It seems that electricity is our cheapest servant and our greatest convenience."

With four adults in his home, Mr. Justison is paying an average of $10.00 a month for electric cooking, water heating, lighting, radio, entertainment and the use of several smaller electrical appliances. This is less than $5.00 per month per day. Where could there be a better way to save in comfort and convenience than by doing what they buy electric service?

HEAD OF U. S. TELLS OF PLAN ON RECOVERY

These minorities to understand that their selfish practices are against sound public policy. The President spoke before a gathering which had heard distinguished speaker after speaker say that the parting of the ways had been reached; either the antitrust laws must be re-examined to permit cooperation through trade associations linking competitors in each line, with a government agency supervising their agreements, or industry must submit to strict regulation of employment wages, production, perhaps prices. Some insisted this road led to government ownership.

Yesterday the first alternative, the one desired by business, was produced in legislative form by a group of administrative advisors, who already have appraised the President of the general plan now ready to put the concrete proposal before him.

Their bill, like most big ones put forward in the current special session, was put on a temporary basis to grant a three-year trial period for the trade association system.

The associations would work out production agreements subject to approval of a new government regulating or reviewing agency. The latter would be empowered to require acceptance of work hour and wage conditions as a condition to approval of the agreements.

Among the authors were Senator Wagner, Democrat, New York, outstanding congressional spokesman on administration labor policy, and Assistant Secretary Dickenson, of Commerce.

The industrial desire for this general plan as expressed at the Chamber meetings was seen to merge two viewpoints: First, the long-held desire for modification of the anti-trust laws to get away from the ruinous competitive conditions, wasteful and expensive both for which the federal prohibition on combines with its threat of punitive triple damages to violators, is blamed by business; second the 30-hour work week bill pending in Congress, together with the wage and production control proposals of Frances Perkins, the secretary of labor, to which a large section of the business community is opposed. The President has said no word on this bill; it is not now on the emergency administration program; it is subject of most heated controversy in Congress, but nevertheless it is regarded as a constant threat unless business can attain the bill's objectives voluntarily.

Garden Club Offers Reciprocity Program

An appreciative audience of over 100 persons was in attendance at the reciprocity program presented Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the Woman's Club house on Oak Avenue by the members of the Garden Club of Sanford in honor of the members of the Woman's Club with Mrs. J. H. Colclough as program chairman.

Mrs. Endor Curlett of Geneva, director of the Central District of the State Federation of Garden Clubs, gave a talk in which she told of the plans for the arboretum in Sebring. Her sister, Mrs. Roland S. Read, delivered a short address on the work of the Junior Garden Club in Seminole County.

In introducing Miss Cecelia Bachman, of Tampa, a student of piano at the Orlando College of Music, Mrs. Colclough stated that she considered no Garden Club program complete without musical numbers since so many great composers received their inspiration from things of nature.

Miss Bachman, who has just presented her yearly recital, is a freshman at the Orlando College of Music and was a member of the William Wilhelmina Swayze, who was an instructor under Leschetizky and was at one time a tutor to the princess of Spain. Miss Bachman's numbers included compositions by Liszt and Debussy.

At the conclusion of the musical presentations Miss Bachman received a large arm bouquet of yellow gladioli and blue statice.

Sholtz's Signature On Beer Bills Not Likely Till Monday

Manufacture and sale of beer, wine and the other beverages included in the legalization bills—hard liquor is not among them—will be permitted throughout Florida but any county may, upon request of one fifth of the qualified voters, hold an election to determine whether manufacture and sale will be prohibited in that county.

These elections, however, may not be held oftener than once in every two years.

All state revenue derived from the 6 cents a gallon manufacturer's tax on the beverages and from the licenses imposed on manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers will go into a special fund to be held intact until disposed of by the Legislature.

Sponsors of the beverage bills in the Legislature estimated the revenue will run $2,000,000 a year. Manufacturers will pay $700 annually, on each plant with a $5,000 bond posted. Wine makers must be approved by the governor. Filing of bonds and their approval may cause some delay in the legal manufacture of beer in the state.

Each distributor or wholesaler must pay $200 a year as state license on each establishment he operates. He also must post the surety bond required of the manufacturer.

The following licenses must be paid each year by retailers or vendors:

Restaurants and eating places—Accommodating less than 15 persons, $20; 15 to 49 persons, $35; 50 to 99 persons, $75; 100 persons or more, $100.

Stores, shops and similar places—100 to 299 rooms, $75; 300 rooms or more, $100.

When a restaurant or dining room is operated jointly with a hotel only one license will be required but it will be the highest on applicable to either the restaurant or the hotel.

Boats, dining cars and other passenger carriers will pay the same license as restaurants. Clubs will be charged the highest license fee applicable to them as hotels or as restaurants and will be charged a minimum of $25 a year, if they have neither hotel nor restaurant facilities.

Boats, dining cars and other carriers wishing to sell the legalized beverages will be subject to only one license although they may operate in more than one county in the state.

Cities and counties may levy up to 50 per cent of the state license fees but may not charge a manufacturer's gallonage tax on beverages made in or shipped into cities and counties.

General supervision of manufacture and sale of legalized beverages in Florida will be in the hands of the governor who will carry on regular inspection of breweries, wholesale houses and places where the drinks are sold through a staff of not more than 10 supervisors.

Governor Sholtz last night said he will announce appointment of these supervisors today and will call them to Tallahassee for a conference to outline their work.

They will be paid $150 a month from the beverage tax and licenses. The supervisors must furnish $5,000 bond each.

All state, county and city licenses and taxes to be charged under the state act will be in addition to the tribute makers, handlers and sellers of the beverages must pay Uncle Sam under the federal act.

The federal fees are: Retailers, $20 a year for beer and $25 for wine; wholesalers, $50 a year for beer and $100 for wine; manufacturers, $1,000 a year.

The federal manufacturers' tax is four cents a gallon.

JUDGE DESCRIBES HOW MOB TOOK HIM FROM COURT

LE MARS, Iowa, May 5.—(AP)—An elderly judge told a mob of farmers dragged him from his court, threatened him with hanging, subjected him to indignities, and finally left him unconscious.

The four members of the court did not reveal whether the judge, C. C. Bradley, gave the names of the leaders of the farmers seeking to halt mortgage foreclosures on farms.

After hearing Judge Bradley's story, the court judiciary continued hearing evidence from witnesses of the riot last Thursday at the O'Brien county courthouse.

A declaration that citizens had been treated unjustly by the military since the riot came from State Representative Alesch of Plymouth county, storm center of the battling, before he went before the military inquisitors.

"While not condoning the attack," he said, "some demonstration was needed to bring to the attention of Washington and the nation the deplorable plight of the farmers.

"A great number of innocent persons have been taken in the wholesale arrests. Some of them may have been in the mob, but took no part in the riot."

Don't Drive Inattentively

When a driver's mind wanders or fixes upon something foreign to operating his car, accidents, such as the one pictured above, are frequent.

Unquestionably inattentiveness was a large element in the $6,000 deaths and nearly a million injuries reported by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters last year.

Every driver must obey certain fundamental laws of driving. He must pay attention to traffic and road conditions. These are the prerequisites of safe driving.

If a motorist's mind is diverted from these rules by the attractiveness of the scenery, an unusual shop window display, or the recollection of a friend on the sidewalk or in another car, anything can happen. Frequently it is a bad accident.

If you want to view scenery while motoring in the country, pull far over to the right and stop. In the frame of the city, the only way to study shop windows or to chat with friends outside your car, is to stop and find a parking space.

There is only one place for a motorist's attention to be had that is on his driving.

Light Company Denied Right To Charge Penalty

Smith cites four instances of this rule.

"I, therefore, conclude that it was the intention and effect of this franchise to fix the maximum rate for electric energy furnished for lighting purposes at 11 cents per kilowatt hour.

"With that interpretation and construction the remaining question is whether or not the addition of 10 percent to bills not paid within 10 days after rendition is a violation of the franchise by the defendant.

"This question has been carefully considered and discussed by the Kansas Supreme Court... which concluded that no such addition or charge can be made... I adopt a strict rule the reasoning and conclusions adopted by the Court in this case... I therefore conclude that the company is prohibited by the franchise from making any charge by way of penalty, addition or otherwise for electric energy furnished for lighting purposes in excess of 11 cents per kilowatt hour.

"This restraining order shall become effective upon the plaintiff, Frank L. Miller filing a bond with two good and sufficient sureties, or a responsible bonding company, to be approved by the Clerk of this Court, in the sum of $100, conditioned that said plaintiff shall abide by the decision of this Court and pay all costs which shall be adjudged against him in case said temporary restraining order herein shall be decreed by this Court to be improperly issued and dissolved.

It is understood that Mr. Miller posted this bond late this afternoon.

H. H. Coleman, local manager for the power firm, today stated that "We will appeal this case to the Supreme Court immediately because we believe that our position in the matter is fair as has been decided by many other higher courts."

session of the Congress.

"First, I recommend the repeal of the recapture provisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission act.

"The commission has pointed out that existing provisions are unworkable and impracticable.

"Second, railway holding companies should be placed definitely under the regulation and control of the Interstate Commerce Commission in like manner as the railroads themselves.

"Third, as a temporary emergency measure, I suggest the creation of a federal co-ordinator of transportation who, working with groups of railroads, will be able to encourage, promote or require action on the part of carriers, in order to avoid duplication of services, prevent waste and encourage financial re-organizations.

"Such a co-ordinator should also, in carrying out this policy, render useful service in maintaining railroad employment at a fair wage.

"The experience gained during the balance of this year will greatly assist the government and the carriers in preparation for a more permanent and a more comprehensive national transportation policy at the regular session of the Congress in 1934.

Miss Mabel Wilson and Miss Gladys Adams Smith, home economics teachers at Seminole High School, this morning released to the Herald and its readers another series of recipes which they have tested and declared both nutritious and wholesome, and easily prepared by taking advantage of the foods advertised for sale by Herald advertisers.

The menu's are as follows: "The tougher cuts of meat have more nutritive values than the tender cuts of meat. They have the advantage of being so much cheaper than the tender cuts of meat. Below are some recipes for the use of the less tender cuts of meat."

MEAT LOAF

1 lb. fresh pork; 1 c. milk; 1 lb. veal; 1 T salt; 2 c. milk; 1 c. mlf veal; 1 T salt; 2 lbs. beef; 1-8 t. pepper; 1 c. bread crumbs; 3 eggs slightly beaten.

Chop meat finely, mix, and add remaining ingredients in order given. Shape into a loaf, put in pan, and lay across top six slices fat, salt pork. Roast in hot oven one and one-half hours, basting every ten minutes, at first with one-half cup hot water and after that has gone, with fat in pan. Remove to platter, pour around tomato or brown sauce, and garnish with parsley. One small onion, peeled and finely chopped, may be added.

LIVER LOAF

1-2 lbs. beef liver; 1 c. milk; Parsley; 2 T fat pork or drippings; 1 T onion; 1-2 t. salt; 1-2 green pepper; 1-8 t. pepper; 1-2 c. bread crumbs; 1-4 dried celery; 2 eggs;

Wipe liver, cut into slices, then put through a food chopper together with parsley, onion and pepper. Add crumbs moistened in the beaten egg, stock, milk, fat, and seasonings. If meat stock is not available, use a beef bouillon cube, dissolved in 1 cup boiling water. Mix well. Turn into well-greased dish or mold and set in a pan of hot water. Bake 1-2 hours in a slow oven. Serve hot or cold with catsup, chili sauce or tomato sauce.

MORGAN MEMBER SEES SYSTEM AS BIG BANK FAULT

Lamont Says Ills Are Not Due To Machinations Of Persons

NEW YORK, May 5.—The banking ills of the country are not due to the machinations of men or groups of men, but to defects in the system, Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co., states in his analysis of American banking difficulties published in the current issue of Collier's Weekly.

Written apparently before the gold embargo was enforced, the article sets forth the banker's conviction that "America and the American dollar are still, as to material factors, the safest things in all the world to tie to." He has praise for the Federal Reserve System, but expresses the belief that it should be strengthened and broadened so as to include every commercial bank in the country. Its soundness, he asserts, should be put before the special interest of any bank or banker, great or small. He points out:

"No civilized country of modern times has suffered so cruelly from unscientific and inefficient currency as the United States."

In his analysis he offers two remedies which he believes should lead to banking stability. In expanding these remedies, he says:

"No thorough-going banking reform can be brought about until fundamental changes have been accomplished. The first is to bring all the commercial banks of the country, small as well as large, under the single aegis of the Federal Reserve System.

"The second is to establish suitable provisions for regional branch banking, the geographical limits for each region to be carefully worked out and regulated.

"Then we should have something worth talking about. Such reforms, brought about gradually, ought to begin to yield to the country some measure of banking stability."

He reminds his readers however, that the remedy will not be found overnight, either by this Congress or the next. The law, he asserts, will evolve slowly and must be subject to frequent amendment. He seeks a clear understanding as to the basis upon which the Federal controller of the currency and the banking superintendent of the various states grant charters for the establishment of new banks, saying:

"We must come to regard a banking charter not as a privilege conferred upon a chosen few, or upon an unselected many, in order that they may make money with other people's money; but as a public trust, and in that sense and in that sense only, as a public trust."

"It is the plain duty of the community to see to it that the interest of the American people in the safety of their deposits, and the whole country in the sufficiency and soundness of our banking system, is put before the special interest of any bank of bankers, great or small."

His analysis of the Federal Reserve System calls attention to the benefits which it brought to America's industry and commerce, and declares that in the stress of the last few years its accomplishments have been lost sight of. But he stresses again the need of further development by intelligent public opinion and constant study by experts of methods to strengthen it. He continues:

"The powers of the system are, however, not yet sufficiently broad, and the whole country is even now suffering a curiously from the distress due largely to the defects which still remain in our
