

France Showing Definite Weakness

PARIS (AP)—France is steadily slipping into the status of a "has-been" country.

This is a country which cannot make up its mind, and yet every year of indecision leaves it with less chance of courses to follow.

It is a country on which the free world and the United States has based much of its policy in opposing the spread of Communism. Yet it has one of the largest Communist parties outside Russia.

It is a country with a long tradition of freedom and should be a strong bastion of democracy. But it is one of democracy's weakest links.

The country is fundamentally so rich and well balanced in its resources that ever since the war there has been a lively expectation that France suddenly would "blow some cut" in the full flower of a great nation.

But it hasn't and the reasons are becoming ever clearer both to Americans and to Frenchmen who, as observers or statesmen, must estimate its future place in the world.

Its riches are evident on every hand. Food, one of the great resources of the world, is plentiful here. The fine stashes of wheat in the Ruhr and Washington can be matched in a half hour's drive from the center of Paris. Yet in a large part of France, farm methods are a century out of date.

In Northern France, in the Lorraine area, is an industrial heaven. Side by side lie rich coal beds and rich veins of iron ore. Yet until the time of the Marshall Plan in 1948, the most up-to-date steel plants in France were those laid by the Germans before 1914. They came into France's possession when Lorraine, but in 1920, was restored to France after World War I. And nothing was built to match them until Marshall Plan money financed the building of two great steel mills in Northern France.

These plants were expected to contribute to a quick improvement in France's economy. But under the country's peculiar paralysis they failed as yet to contribute the one thing they were designed to contribute—cheap steel. Prices are fixed at high levels by steel cartels despite effects of the newly formed European coal-steel community to break them up and have a healthy competitive production.

Though a former student of France has managed to deliver an hour's time-travel agreement on deadline as promised, few are optimistic enough to believe that this solved the problem for all time. And the country's inability to deal with other basic problems has brought at least four of them to its doorstep on a critical basis:

1. The situation in North Africa is menacing.
2. Severe internal fiscal and economic problems cry for solution with no immediate remedies in sight.
3. A badly needed friendly settlement with Germany hangs in the balance.
4. International agreements with the West also hang in balance.

Does the average Frenchman think about these problems? Not much.

There is an attitude of shuffling around the people when it comes to foreign affairs, domestic problems, public responsibility. They blame it on the war and if that doesn't quite cover it, they blame it on French individualism. There is truth in both.

The French executive branch is so weak it can be overthrown on the most trivial of issues by minority political parties. And Parliament is composed of a grumbling antagonistic group of minority political parties.

The people who share the responsibility of governing France do not intend to change the system. They might vote themselves out of power—and they are traditionally wary of strong central management.

A new cabinet has to be created for almost every new piece of important legislation contemplated. In choosing members for such a cabinet the dominant question isn't so much "how good is he?" as "how many votes can he guarantee?"

This has held up the rearmament of Germany ever since it was decided in Allied councils of 1945 that it was necessary.

The delay has reacted against France in another way. Germany, not allowed to manufacture armaments, has concentrated on building up her world commerce. As a result she is far ahead of France in German bridges, ships, turbines, locomotives, chemicals and cloth today are moving into export markets France might have had.

While France has drifted to critical postwar years, Germany has worked hard. Germany was ready to accept the European army plan when it was first proposed. But French delay in ratifying it has spoiled the atmosphere. Moreover, the delay has poisoned relations between France and the United States.

For France the bitterest result of vacillation and procrastination has come in Indonesia.

Herein lies and blame fly out in all directions. America was at fault, some Frenchmen say. The United States pressured France into continuing the fight without being ready to come in itself.

One thing seems certain: Anti-Communism, both in Europe and in the United States, are convinced the free world took a beating on the Indonesian settlement; that it was a clear victory for the Communists.

France's position in the Far East, once important, now appears to be eroded.

France may yet be in a position to shape a brighter future in Africa. But there is no indication the National Assembly is likely to support any definite cabinet policy at that front.

Already the slow and painful process of its decline has begun to repeat itself. Reforms are decreed. They are blocked or sidetracked or subverted by local French colonialists. Active fighting on a small scale has started in Tunisia.

Internally, France is doing better than externally. Her domestic production, aided by the Marshall Plan, is 45 percent above 1938. But prices have not lowered to reflect increased efficiency of new factories. Interior industry is protected by price fixing and market allocation designed to give even the backward plans a continuing share of business.

Agriculture is still largely protected by an old tariff wall dating back to 1890.

Even before the war there were far more small shops in France than in the United States. Thousands of them exist only because they escape taxes. But they would not think of forcing one another out of business by shaving profits.

The result is that consumers pay an extravagant price to cover the spread between producer costs and ultimate consumer sales price. This contributes in part to a distribution system unrivaled in Europe for efficiency.

The spread between production costs and consumer prices has been a source of bitter political dispute in France for a generation. It has helped promote Communist party strength. To many Communists now get about a fourth of the vote at elections.

Every evaluation of France on an efficiency and power level of her economy shows a great and continuing contribution to the arts, to good living, to science.

"We would all like to be able to live the way we can live in France," one American official says. Then an associate added: "But how long can America afford it?"

That is the ever pressing problem. Many Frenchmen say the best thing for the world for France would be to break with America which would oblige France to put her economic house in order. But a break might tear down the North Atlantic Alliance, a bulwark of American defense. Any "contingency appraisal" is bound to take that into consideration.

INTERCEPTION MAIN—The interception main of the City sewer and water project, which will accumulate all waste materials in sewers along the waterfront, is shown as it was being started in Fort Mellon Park, near Somoza Blvd. The intercepting pipe under the base culvert (far right) which carries Pump Branch, will pump around the excavation keep it dry for work.

EXCAVATION FOR LINE—The 24-inch intercepting line was laid through Fort Mellon Park at a depth of more than 10 feet. Banks of the excavation continuously fall, according to Warren Knowles, City engineer, and workers have to watch to keep from being buried. Falling sand also slows work. The condition is due to the type of sand and to seepage of water. Hot steamers material is used to seal joints of the line.

OUTFALL PIPE ASSEMBLED—The outfall pipe which will take sewage out 620 feet into Lake Monroe is shown being assembled at the mouth of Mill Creek, just south of Highway 17-92 at the bridge west of the City. The pipe was assembled in 20 foot sections and floated back up the creek until the full length was put together. The pipe was hung between barrels and pushed out into the lake under the bridge.

PIPE LAID IN LAKE—A drag line rig is shown approximately 600 feet out in Lake Monroe on a ramp it made itself. The rig was used to excavate a trench for the outfall pipe, the residue of which was made to build the ramp. After the pipe was put in place, the rig covered it up again. The rig sat on mats to keep from sinking into the lake. The depth of the lake averages four to four and a half feet but some holes were about 20 feet deep. (Photos by Warren Knowles, City manager.)

Four-Laning Of Highway 17-92 Would Be Boon To This County

Someone once said that good roads are the life blood of our economy. Unquestionably, good roads are extremely important to the growth and development, whether it be a city or a country. Seminole County has for many years been suffering because of the failure to get a fair share of highway improvements. We have not grown and prospered nearly as much as some of our neighbors and much of the cause of this situation may be laid to failure to have constructive planning and lack of progressive leadership.

With considerable interest, County residents are following the united efforts of our Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants Association, the City commission of Sanford and the County board of commissioners in their attempt to have Highway 17-92 between here and Winter Park improved to a four-lane road.

Value Of Old Bibles

A widespread idea is that any old book, especially an old Bible, is very valuable. This notion may have come from the occasional reports of the sale of a Gutenberg Bible, the oldest printed version, dating in the 1450's, for a sum running in six figures. This leads many to bring old family Bibles to booksellers or libraries, hoping that they may become rich for life. Unfortunately they are apt to be disappointed.

The Greater Orlando CofC and the Orange county board of commissioners have been invited to a meeting here tomorrow evening to discuss this important proposal with the local bodies. This meeting could result in an important step in the right direction.

The late Rev. Edwin A. R. Rumball-Petre of New York and Los Angeles was an expert on old Bibles. After serving during World War I in Herbert Hoover's Food Administration and the European Children's Relief Organization, he became a dealer in rare Bibles, and wrote an authoritative book on them.

These local bodies can lead the way, but it will take the interest and cooperation of the public in general to get the job done effectively.

Why are not old Bibles always valuable? Because they are so many. Hundreds of thousands are published every year, and generally kept until they fall to pieces. Nor does being old, as many understand the term, necessarily matter. A date of 1820 is to be hoped the people of this country see through the fallacy of labeling as a "give-away" to something called big business the granting of permission to private enterprise to develop any part of the natural resources of America. The so-called liberal politicians and press are over-emphasizing the graphic term at the present time, and it behooves each one of us to analyze it for what it is.

TODAY'S BIBLE VERSE

Our backslidings are many.—Jeremiah 8:5. Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation. Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall.

For instance, whenever investor-owned electric companies have sought licenses in recent years to develop hydroelectric projects or to participate in multipurpose water resource development—as in the case of Hell's Canyon, Niagara and the Pacific Northwest—they have been accused of attempting to grab the lion's share of the benefits to all the people.

Beautiful K. P.

The suggested abolition of kitchen police in the army would do away with a form of discipline on which many company commanders have relied. Hated by all except a few soldiers, it was summarized in the army parody of the popular song, "K-K-K-Katy."
"K-K-K-P, beautiful K-K-K-P,
You're the only j-j-j-job that I adore,
And when the moon shines over the guardhouse,
I'll be m-m-mopping up the kitchen floor."
Recalling the way the parody was sung by several bunkmates it would be wise to abolish the parody, too.

TROUBLE AT (PEACE) PROSPECT POINT

Too Late To Classify

A pencil probably doesn't give you much of a thrill. You find them everywhere. They are all over the house. In your desk drawer, just about everywhere you turn you find pencils. Salesmen pass them out like cigars. They are as common as pins and easier to find. If someone were to give you a little stub of a pencil about four inches long, all chewed up with the eraser gone, you would feel insulted. Our sense of values in this age of abundance easily becomes warped.

Down South

It is to be hoped the people of this country see through the fallacy of labeling as a "give-away" to something called big business the granting of permission to private enterprise to develop any part of the natural resources of America. The so-called liberal politicians and press are over-emphasizing the graphic term at the present time, and it behooves each one of us to analyze it for what it is.

JAMES MARLOW

Probe Of Solon's Finances Ending

WASHINGTON (AP)—On June 7, Coleman Andrews, U. S. commissioner of internal revenue, said his agency was looking into the financial affairs of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wisc.), and had been for months, and would wind up its investigation in 60 days.

The 60 days are almost up. Since Andrews made the public statement his men were checking on McCarthy's income tax returns in relation to his income, he will be asked to explain what the result is. Andrews may possibly refer questions to Atty. Gen. Brownell as the appropriate person in government to give out the final word on any investigation of McCarthy.

It was Brownell who on Oct. 16, 1953, gave McCarthy a clean bill of health on questions of personal finances and possible election law violations but said the government was still investigating the Wisconsin Republican's income taxes.

A report issued by a Senate elections subcommittee on Jan. 2, 1953, raised questions about McCarthy's financial affairs and other matters, but it made no recommendations.

Since there has been no announcement yet on the results of the internal revenue agents' investigation of McCarthy, that makes three pieces of unfinished business hanging over his head. These are the other two:

Washington SAW

The report of his own subcommittee which handled the McCarthy-Army hearings earlier this year, with McCarthy stepping out of the group temporarily. That report is expected to say what the committee members think of the conduct of Army officials and McCarthy and his staff in their relationship which brought on the hearings. There may be conflicting reports.

The new investigation ordered by the Senate Monday night into McCarthy's conduct and accusations, mostly old, made by fellow senators. A special six-man Senate committee will handle this one.

McCarthy would have won a clear-cut victory this week if the Senate—after listening to Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.) and others—had voted against censuring him. Since that didn't happen, the next best victory McCarthy could have won would have been this: a vote by the Senate to approve the whole touchy question of censuring him.

That might have been done by a parliamentary device. But it might have been so obviously a device for not casting a showdown vote on censure, that it could have been taken as a victory for McCarthy. That didn't happen either. Instead the Senate in an overwhelming 73-12 vote left it up to a special committee to conduct hearings and then recommend to the full Senate whether McCarthy should be censured.

Since this committee will be evenly divided between Democrats and Republicans, there's an excellent chance that the committee will be taken apart by a split verdict that winds up nowhere.

While McCarthy may not lose in this fight with him to a featherbedstead.

It will probably be a rough fight, lasting for weeks, perhaps months. And the longer it takes, the longer McCarthy will have to stay away from his ministerial investigations which brought him fame and headlines.

Stetson Law School Moving To St. Pete From DeLand In Fall

Prof. Harvey J. Jernigan, member of the faculty of the Stetson College of Law, has some "honorary" ties in St. Petersburg. He has a wife, Sara Staff, formerly lived in St. Petersburg and her parents now are residents of nearby Ringling Beach.

The Stetson College of Law, the oldest law school in Florida, is moving to a new campus in St. Petersburg this fall after more than 50 years' successful operation in DeLand.

The law school will be patterned after the British "inn" system where students and faculty live and study together.

Professor Jernigan, who has been teaching at Stetson since 1949, was given a Ph.D. in law by Stetson after receiving a graduate scholarship at the University of Illinois. He has a bachelor of laws degree from Stetson.

The professional fraternities are Delta Sigma Phi, business, and Phi Alpha Delta, law.

Florida's "best-kept" secret is the first Member of Congress to personally interview Col. Castillo Armas, the man who overthrew the communists in Guatemala. Stetson visited Armas in Guatemala City as part of a special assignment for the State Department which carried him to Venezuela, Costa Rica, Panama and Guatemala.

"The importance of our Latin-American neighbors pay as much attention to this area as we are paying to Europe and Asia. We should promote good will in these countries before outside influences cause trouble, instead of waiting until the problem gets critical—as it did in Guatemala. The most important thing I found out was that the people of Latin America don't want a free American handout. All they want is to be our friends, to trade with us, and to have us visit their countries. Incidentally, I would say that American businessmen are missing a lot if they don't investigate the Latin-American area for trade and investments," Stetson said.

Let's get going—Congressman Courtney Campbell has introduced a bill directing the Atomic Energy Commission to figure out a way to let private industry get in on the atomic energy field. The Congressman pointed out that $12 billion has been spent on atomic energy up to now. He feels it is time that private industry get a chance to use their ingenuity on this wonderful development. Being a banker, Campbell suggests that the government could get their money back by charging a "usage" fee for inventions, techniques and power under his plan. "I feel," the Congressman said, "that this is the first step toward a practical solution of how to give the people and American private enterprise the benefits of the developments in the field of atomic energy."

Moving day—Washington has finally said a reluctant so-long to Bill and Betty Lantaff. Last week-end saw them take off for Florida, not to come back except for a few short odds-and-ends visits before Diane Fassel takes over his office. Friends of Hill in both the House and Senate—Republicans and Democrats—all say that Florida is losing a real asset in Washington. Many of their friends still are wondering why one of the most promising of all the younger men in Congress should give up his seat in the House to return to Miami and private business. The general feeling seems to be that he just can't get out of public life—and we are all watching to see what his next move is. Is this the first step in a long range plan to get ready for the governor's race in 1957? Only Hill can tell us—and he isn't.

Familiar faces on the hill—Delish Chamberlain, manager of radio station WGGG in Gainesville and a member of the city commission, talking about airport problems. Former Governor Doyle Carlton and his son-in-law, David E. Ward, still battling for the Tampa TV channel—seen with them was Amory Underhill, DeLand, former old friend in the Congressional offices. From Sanford came Chamber of Commerce President Andy Carraway, State Representative Mack Cleveland Jr. and former city-manager Clifford McKibbin Jr. to work on a port expansion project for their city. Also Republican chairman from Levy County, Mrs. Estelle Croley, sightseeing, talking politics and visiting with high ranking Republican leaders.

Mt. Lassen in California is the only live volcano on the U. S. mainland. Says the National Geographic Society.

Sioux Held Big Pow-Wow Yearly

PINE RIDGE, S.D.—The old Sioux, in the days when they ruled the great plains, had a festival that combined in these several of the white man's holidays.

It was called the sun dance, and to the Indians it was Christmas, Easter, Thanksgiving, and a family reunion all wrapped in one.

In those times the wandering Sioux (based the land and chased the buffalo from Kansas to Canada, from the Mississippi River to the Rocky Mountains.)

But once a year the roving tribesmen came together and were knit into a nation by the sun dance, a ceremonial that symbolized their unity and common faith in the Great Spirit.

The Government, in an effort to destroy a tradition which it feared always held the danger of stirring up the fierce Sioux in fresh outbreaks, banned the sun dance in 1880. But it was revived more than 20 years ago, and last week Indians came hundreds of miles to the sprawling Pine Ridge reservation here for a renewal of the symbolic centuries-old festival.

In earlier times no formal date for the ceremony was set. The Indians simply drifted together as if pulled by a magnet by nature's signals—the time when the buffalo were fat, when the choke-berries ripened, when new sage sprouts sprang foot-high, when mooncussins made a crisp echo in the dry strains of summer.

This year Frank Fools Crow sent out the call. Thousands of Indians came by horse and wagon, on foot or in beaten up automobiles. They pitched their modern tents and faded tapes around a great enclosure of willow poles hung with green pine boughs.

In the center of the enclosure stood a slender young cottonwood tree. The tree, selected in advance by a medicine man, had been carried to the site and erected by strong Braves who took care to see that none of its leaves touched the ground. To the Sioux the leaves of this sacred tree stood for human hearts, and must not be bruised.

Sheafs of sweet-smelling sage-standing for purity—were placed in the crotch. From them dangled a piece of buffalo robe and a man-shaped figure cut from a piece of buffalo skin, symbolizing the Sioux assistance on the buffalo.

The sun dance itself designed to demonstrate the four great Sioux virtues—bravery, generosity, fortitude and integrity.

This year three young Braves volunteered for the ordeal. Two were veterans who had played themselves to perform a sun dance in gratitude for their safe return from Korea.

To purify and prepare themselves, the three first took a sweat bath in an "In", or sweat house, made of willow boughs covered with buffalo skins. Steam was provided by pouring water over hot rocks in a pit within the sweat house.

The dancers were then painted, red for the sun, blue for the sky, yellow for the rocks, green for the earth.

Without food or water the three men then danced around the cottonwood tree to the music of beating tom-toms and the eerie, high-pitched, chants of singers. They danced in turn in the direction of the four winds, pausing only when the tom-tom beaters had to rest.

I watched the dance for part of each day, but to me the dance, monotonous in itself, was less interesting than the faces of the old Indians and their squaws on the sidelines.

They wore a look of mingled pride, mystic exaltation and sadness. To them this was no dance of celebration—it was the pageant of mankind's terrible struggle to survive, a victory of man's spirit over all the enemies he meets in his brief life under a blazing sun.

The look on the faces of the young Braves in the audience was different. Few seemed stirred by the symbolism of the dance. They were more interested in making eyes at the young Indian maidens. For them the sun dance was just another opportunity for courtship.

Frank Fools Crow, who wears long braids as his forefather did, said sadly:

"The young Indians no longer care much for our old customs. I fear that may be our last sun dance."

The young Braves and their maidens prefer in flannel. Slowly but inevitably the once mighty Sioux are taking the white man's roads, roads that will scatter them to the four winds.

PAPER PLATE PICTURES

If you don't want to eat from paper plates, perhaps you'd like to use them as home decorations. The paper association gives those tips: get plates in a color or with a border motif that fits in with the color scheme of your room. Take ads from magazines, patterns from wall paper, or even Audubon prints, cut them to the shape and size of your nine-inch paper plates and paste. For a demure, plates with a woodlike finish come in handy. Kitchen plates can be edged with a ribbon or strip of fabric left over from the curtains.

Bon Hope's Family Watches Him Act In Latest Picture

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — It was family day when Bon Hope began his picture on the life of the great entertainer Edie Foy.

On one side of the stage were Bob's wife Dolores and the four little Foyes. On the other was a group including at least three of the picture Little Foyes—Mary, Madeleine and Charles. Another one, Bryan, was expected, but he was busy starting a movie at another studio. He's a producer.

The two family groups and fans of their amused spectators watched as Hope and seven talented youngsters ran through the first musical number of Edie Foy and the Seven Little Foyes. It was a riot. Hope and the kids were all decked out in yellow out fits from shoes to bowler hats.

But the thing that interested me was that there was a different Hope. He has sprung eternal as the brash, slightly luring hepster. But now he is playing the elder Foy. His eyes were peaked, his legs had a canoodle dot under them and his mouthlines were exalted with makeup. Cagney's pursued Foy trademark. He also sang with a hip and was tied his head like the old boy.

He worked with Bob for hours," said Charles. Foy, who runs a night club in the San Fernando Valley. "He's amazingly like the old man."

He says he's going after the role the way Jimmy Cagney did. George M. Cohan. He did the dance numbers like Cohan but the dramatic scenes were Cagney's. Incidentally, Cagney will appear as Cohan in the Foy epic and do a number with him.

Hope and his film children went through a number called "I'm the Greatest Father of Them All" and Charles waxed nostalgic over it. "Almost exactly in years ago, the collective Foyes did the same number in the Palace in New York. Charles helped dance director Nick Castle to create the routine. Hope said he had seen the old Foy only once when he was at his neighborhood canville house, Keith's 105th Street in Cleveland. The year: around 1925.

"He was a great entertainer," Hope reflected. "He inspired many other stars. Like W. C. Fields, who loved him."

"And say—here's a note. Here I am doing a picture about the seven little Foyes and I was one of seven little boys."

Various Fashions Are Main Result Of New Postures

BY DOROTHY ROE
What causes a new fashion? I put this question to Adele Simpson, diminutive New York designer who has set many high style trends, and got this reply: "Every new fashion is the result of a new posture. Women start standing a different way, and all of a sudden it is apparent that their clothes must have a different shape and style."

"Back in the 1800s, women bent slightly forward at the waist and stuck out their derrieres. The fashion result was the bustle. Later came the 'bazon' era, when women threw up their chests, including corsets, and walked in what they believed was a fashionable slouch. The fashion silhouette followed the new posture, and we had the shapeless, caudal, slack-like styles of the 1920s.

"This year women are standing straight as arrows, sticking out neither in front nor in back and today's silhouette is the streamlined sheath."

I was poking around the designer's workrooms, high over New York's bustling garment center, and was examining the dressmaker's dummies on which each season's new styles are fitted. I inquired: "Do you change the shapes of these dummies each season?" "They are changed with each new collection," replied Mrs. Simpson. "Even though they are all made to the measurements of the same girls who model my clothes year after year.

"There is always a slight change in the posture of fashionable women from one season to the other. So we add or subtract a slouching to the dressmaker's forms until the shape of the new silhouette emerges and seems right. You always know when it's right. And last season's forms always look wrong."

All this seemed to make sense, but I still didn't know why women should change their posture each season. Was it something

MISS RUTH ARCHER
Ruth Archer To Give Recital At DeLand Hall

Miss Ruth Archer, of Asheville, N. C., and DeLand, a coloratura soprano from the studio of Professor Harold W. Giffin, of the Stetson University School of Music will give her singing recital at 8 p. m. Thursday in Elizabeth Hall Auditorium in DeLand.

The public is invited and there is no charge for admission. Miss Archer will be assisted by Max Fain, accompanist.

The soprano has selected for her aria "Ombra e Leggera," from Giacomo Meyerbeer's "Dinorah." The jilted Dinorah, crazed by grief, wanders in the moonlit forest. She is teaching her shadow to dance and sing when the lesson is interrupted by her vision of a lovely wedding. A cloud crosses the moon and Dinorah, alone and frightened, pleads for her shadow to return. When it does, she completes the lesson.

Notable in the contemporary group are Sir Henry Bishop's "Lo, Here the Gentle Lark" and the spiritual, "Sometimes I Feel Like A Motherless Child." A touch of comedy is added with "If So One Marries Me" and "Hello, Hello," from Menotti's "The Telephone."

Miss Archer was born in Chile where her parents were missionaries. Her father, the Rev. William Bradley Archer, now is pastor of the French Road Baptist Church in Asheville and her mother has a piano and voice studio there.

At the end of the semester, Miss Archer plans to make her home in Sanford where she is minister of music of the First Baptist Church.

They planned, or did they do it unconsciously? "Oh, it's entirely unconscious," replied Adele. "It's all the result of a subtle change in attitude, in the tempo of their lives, in their perspective."

"I believe that the greatest outward influence on posture, and consequently, on fashion, is the dancer. A new dancer becomes famous in a new hit show. Thousands of people go to see and applaud her. After they leave, the theater women unconsciously try to imitate her—to walk and stand and sit the way she does. They probably aren't even aware they are doing this. But they have absorbed something of the attitude of the dancer, and with it their own posture changes."

"Pretty soon you notice many women walking and standing in a different manner—maybe only slightly different, but enough to cause adjustments in the shape of the next season's fashion silhouette."

So that's how fashions are born.

Florida Boasts Several Kinds Of Gooseberry

"Did you know that Florida has several kinds of gooseberry? This tree in the northern and central parts of our state, we have the native gooseberry," says Martie Wilson, Home Demonstration Agent. It is a small wild fruit about the size of the end of your thumb. It grows in wooded areas in low bushes. Deep red in color, it has a flavor all its own, but you will have to form your own opinion as to the flavor.

It is fine for making jelly when treated right. Have about 1 1/2 cups gooseberries under ripe to get your good jelly stock. Wash and cover with water. Bring to a boil and cook 15 minutes. Cool and strain. Sample, and if not highly acid, add 1 tablespoon lemon juice to each 2 cups stock.

And here's a really the secret to jelly success (gooseberry or any other):

Use a large shallow pan and measure out 3 cups of juice into pan. Bring to boil and add 2 1/2 cups sugar. Stir at once. Then let boil hard until the jelly sheets from spoon or reaches 222 degrees. Liberate in a canny thermometer. You'll have jelly in 7 to 10 minutes in this way.

The secret is in cooking small amounts at a time. It gives you a jelly of better color, flavor and texture and really takes no longer to do a small batch than one large one. Use 1/2 pint jars that can be sealed at tight. That is the best type jar to use for jelly in Florida. Paraffin on top doesn't keep insects and mold out in this climate.

New Orleans Weathers Times Well

NEW ORLEANS.—Take a beautiful, spirited girl of aristocratic family and put her through hard times. Then, years later, find that she not only is still beautiful—but wise and growing wealthy in her one-hundred wisdom.

That, in effect, is what's new about old New Orleans, the beautiful lady of the Gulf coast.

Be sure of one thing, however. There's plenty of the old left in the new New Orleans.

The Vieux Carre still lumbers at sundown and rocks to music and laughter most of the night. The Houma, a La Rochelle, are as good as ever at Antoine's. They're still pouring sazerac cocktails and Harms gin fizzes in the palm, at Pat O'Brien's and plenty of other places. There's enough crayfish bisque, bouillabaisse and pompom papillote to feed a regiment of bouillabaisse every night of the week. At the French market the coffee is, as always, strong as iron.

In the Leuchon Street night spots the girls jump and vibrate and stop as far down as ever. And those jazz sessions in this city where jazz was born? Not the corn for square, man, but the real street jazz, a bygone Armstrong and Jelly Roll Morton and King Oliver and Tubby Hall.

Well, the tourists come and go on their jammed-up buses, past the miles of iron grillwork, through the cool pines, in and out of the historic streets. Let's leave the quarter and go out to the edge of the city.

Here's the spot where a whole of backbones under Andrew Jackson best the British in 1815 in this nation's most resounding victory over the lobster-backs. What now stands on this historic site? The nation's largest aluminum plant, built by Henry J. Kaiser.

Unromantic? Maybe. But significant for this is the story of the new New Orleans.

A century ago New Orleans, pulsing with vitality, was the No. 1 port in the United States. Then, after the Civil War, it underwent a frightful sacking at the hands of Northern GIs who came bearing carbines. In the ensuing years a lot of Southern gentlemen couldn't see much point in expend-

New CARE Package Will Provide Food For Family 3 Days

NEW YORK, N. Y.—A destitute, Vietnamese refugee family of five can be fed for three days for just 95 through CARE.

As announced by Paul Comly French, Executive Director of the Cooperative for American Remittances to Everywhere, Inc., each $5 contribution to CARE's campaign for French Indochina relief will provide a food package containing over 23 pounds of staples specifically needed for families who have fled south of the 17th parallel from northern areas now coded to the communists.

At the time the national CARE drive was launched July 23, on the heels of the cease-fire agreement and with an appeal for public support by Vice-President Richard M. Nixon, there were 200,000 needy refugees, including 60,000 children under 14, in the Saigon area (where CARE will carry initial distributions). Since then, French stated, John V. Docherty, CARE Far East Regional Director, has reported the number has doubled and is expected to reach 800,000 within the next two to three months.

Based on surveys by the CARE Mission staff in Saigon, the food package will contain 16 pounds rice, 1 1/2 pounds table salt, two cans (28 ounces) condensed milk, 3 pounds dried navy white beans and one pound laundry soap—an essential health item under the primitive conditions of the fast-swelling refugee camps.

In addition, Mr. French explained, CARE will use "food amount" family to provide each recipient family with a second, supplementary package containing three pounds salt pork and three pounds salt cod, which must be especially packed to prevent spoilage.

While CARE will start by distributing food, the most immediate need, a clothing textile package is now being assembled for the refugees, French also announced. Its "price" has not yet been determined, but it will include 10 yards of cotton fabric, plus sewing thread, buttons and needles, to provide a change of dresses and suits for the families, most of whom arrive with little but the clothes on their backs.

Those who have left their homes, their farms and livelihoods to flee to free Indochina must not suffer needlessly. Mr. French said, "As Vice-President Nixon has stated, the Vietnamese refugees must be given a chance to establish new lives as free men. If Americans are to help give them that chance—and our help is needed crucially on humane grounds, as well as from the view of our national interests—it is important that contributions be sent immediately to CARE, the only American or other

Contractors Dissatisfied With Quality Of Trucks

NEW YORK.—Contractors, who account for 14 per cent of all truck sales in the United States, are dissatisfied with the quality and durability of their trucks, according to a survey conducted by Construction Methods and Equipment, McGraw-Hill publication, among 204 contractors in 43 states. Furthermore, most contractors complain about the high prices of spare parts and accessories when purchased from the original manufacturer.

Practically all contractors believe clutches and brakes could be improved; one contractor states that brake linings and drums are not protected sufficiently from the elements. Other major truck ailments on construction jobs are in electrical systems and engines, as well as running gears and truck bodies. Some contractors, the survey reveals, strengthen the frame on a brand new truck before it is ever sent out on the job. One contractor, pointing out that the electrical systems being used on trucks were the same as those used on passenger cars, says, "They aren't designed for truck use, so how does the manufacturer expect them to stand up?"

Currently, contractors are using 1,142,250 trucks, in addition to purchasing vast amounts of gasoline, oil and grease, and spending billions of dollars on tires, engines, carburetors, fuel pumps, spark plugs, brakes, and other maintenance needs and accessories. The importance of the construction industry to automotive and truck manufacturers is indicated by the average number of trucks per contractor as revealed by the survey.

Foreign Operation Administration's Special Technical and Economic Mission, and the Vietnam Ministry of Social Action. Contributions "for Vietnam refugees" may be sent to CARE, 600 First Ave., New York 10, N. Y., or any local CARE office. Donors of complete packages will receive a signed receipt from Vietnam.

Smathers Speaks Against Urging Surplus Farming

WASHINGTON.—Senator George Smathers today has criticized the government's plan to encourage farmers to "produce for waste" and he asserted:

"A farm program is not realistic nor genuinely helpful to farmers when it depends upon the building of huge surpluses for which there are neither forseeable markets nor storage space." The Florida senator, announcing his support of the pending Farm Bill with its "flexible" price support formula as opposed to a program of "rigid" 90 percent price supports, asserted there is a bipartisan recognition of the need for "trying new approaches" to agricultural economic problems.

"It is long past the time when we must recognize that fixed price supports are not the final answer to the farm problem. If we can add to the economic stability of agriculture, we should do so. But to continue in our present course wastes billions in American dollars as well as billions in pounds of farm commodities, and especially surplus foodstuffs. I am convinced that either waste is unnecessary."

Smathers said the "rigid" price support formula was a one-time popular form of a "patchwork" emergency farm program designed to bolster the nation's economy during the "hump pricing" days of the depression. But gradually that emergency program had become a permanent fixture of the farm economy program, which has cost more than $16 billions, has been found unsatisfactory and impractical.

Florida farmers themselves led the fight to abandon the ridiculous potato surplus purchasing program several years ago," he recalled. "And the farmers in my state, as well as other sections of the nation, have otherwise moved more closely toward a sounder, and more independent, operation."

Only about two percent of Florida's farms would be affected by the contemplated change from "rigid" to "flexible" supports, he said.

The Florida senator pointed out that the new bill would carry two amendments of great importance to Florida agriculture.

One is the "Halo" or "Golden Rule" amendment, which would permit surplus fruits and vegetables to come into the United States, but would apply to these commodities the same marketing agreement rules governing our own produce.

The second amendment would permit bringing under the marketing agreements for the first time grapefruit for processing—but only when favored by a majority of processors.

Both of these provisions will contribute to the stability of Florida's fruit and vegetable industries, Smathers said, and are being supported for that reason by the Florida delegation.

Police Stop Sale Of Flying Toy

TOKYO (AP).—Police have stopped the sale of Japan's newest toy invention—a miniature "flying saucer".

Police had two objections to the gadget:

1. It makes an ear-splitting noise.
2. It is liable to take off in any direction.

The "flying saucer" is round, with four propellers, each two inches long. It leaves a white trail of smoke. It follows its unpredictable course.

Negro Youngster Is Page Of Court

WASHINGTON.—A Negro youngster has been named a page boy to the U. S. Supreme Court. He's the first of his race ever to be so honored.

The 14-year-old boy, Charles Vernon Bush, will begin his duties as one of the court's four page boys for the term starting Oct. 4.

Charles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bush of Washington. His father is an educational director of Clarke Hall at Howard University here.

This will be, in a way, the first implementation of the court's ruling that segregation is unconstitutional. Mr. Charles, an honor student, will attend the Capitol page school along with the page boys who serve the senators and representatives. He will be the first Negro ever to attend the school.

Sports Selections

By PETE OSBORNE

No doubt those who proclaimed at the beginning of the softball season, this is the best-organized program we have ever had, were right. Games have progressed smoothly, on time, interestingly and with a minimum of forfeitures, and, if you'll notice, the standings are pretty tight.

For the benefit of future seasons, though, when the loop race may not prove quite so interesting, softball officials in Miami have adopted a nice arrangement to insure play. So frequently when a team loses a few games and is removed from championship contention, players become unemployable and often times forfeitures must be made when a team fails to field nine players.

In Miami for the first time this year, a plan was devised to allow teams to play with seven registered players. In this way it is not necessary to forfeit simply because of the absence of one or two participants. Forfeitures, always a cause of speculation and player interest to decline and it isn't seldom that a team must fold due to these factors.

In the Seminole County Senior League, probably there has not been more than a pair of give-away games this year. But it might happen, so the suggestion that next year when the rules are drawn up make provisions for such cases as mentioned.

As for the subject of concessions, it is suggested that either the concession or softball, professional or amateur, must always be ready to cope with teams which fail to appear in sufficient numbers less than nine. This suggestion seems like it might well apply to the Central Florida League as well as the local diamond loop.

While on the subject of concessions, it must be extended to John Anzel, Hugh Carlton, Fred Gagnier and all the rest who are responsible for the keen organization which has helped foster interest in the softball effort. And the players—those whose persistence and interest has greatly contributed to the sport—are also deserving of a tip of the hat.

And a winner still remains to be decided in the league.

Orlando Boosts With Twin Wins Its Loop Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This is one day the Orlando Cubs can take a deep breath when they look at their Florida State League lead. That's because they stretched it to 3½ games with a double victory over second-place Lakeland 4-2 and 8-2 last night.

For some time Lakeland has been creeping up. But the Pilots bogged down at the start of a heavy schedule which called for them to play nine games in five days. After tonight's single game with Orlando at Lakeland, the Pilots play consecutive double headers at Daytona Beach tomorrow and Friday and with DeLand at home Saturday.

Charlie Holl's six hit pitching and a bases-loaded double by Billy Wyatt accounted for Orlando's first victory last night. Then Rip Sewell limited Lakeland to five hits in the second while Bill Shores led the Orlando attack with a home run and triple, driving in two runs and scoring three.

Orlando also pulled farther ahead of the third and fourth place teams when Daytona Beach placed the Orlando attack with a bases-loaded double by Billy Wyatt.

Queen Elizabeth Is Making Her Horse Hobby Pay Plenty

LONDON — Queen Elizabeth is making her horse racing hobby pay—to the tune of 35,000 pounds ($108,940) since March 22.

The pretty young queen is England's leading owner in prize money. The season ends in November but experts already are talking about a royal winner for the campaign.

She could get a big kick out of seeing her name at the top of the owners' list, for horse racing is no arm-chair hobby for her. Horse folk say she knows the business inside out. She delights in a day at the races as a critical visitor to her training stables and always takes a trip to the paddock to run an expert eye over her thoroughbreds before they go down to the starting post.

Then she follows the races carefully through her binoculars. Take a look at the attractive British monarch after her brilliant 4-year-old chestnut colt, Aureole, had raced away with the 23,000 pound ($69,245) King George and Queen Elizabeth Stakes at Ascot July 11—England's richest turf race.

Her eyes shine brightly. She smiled brilliantly as the vast crowd cheered her into the unsaddling enclosure. She gave Aureole a pat of encouragement, congratulated trainer Cecil Boyd-Rochford and smiled her thanks to the jockey Eph Smith.

Then she said: "How wonderful and how tremendously exciting!" Sporting Life, Britain's authoritative racing paper, commented: "Our Queen owns the best horses in Europe, and probably the best in the world."

The Ascot field included four French challengers and Botolph, the Italian champion 3-year-old. Aureole's victory with the 23,000 pound ($69,245) King George and Queen Elizabeth Stakes at Ascot July 11—England's richest turf race.

But the Queen's racing interests don't stop with Aureole. She has a string of 24 thoroughbreds—the biggest since the days of great grandfather King Edward VII. Some of them are untried and unnamed yearlings but they've been chosen expertly by trainer Boyd-Rochford and the Queen.

One of her 3-year-olds, the almost-black Landau, is entered in the St. Leger at Doncaster in September—the last of the English classics. Bookies have not opened their betting lists on that race yet but they expect a pile of money for the Queen Colt as there is always a lot of sentimental backing.

Capt. Charles Moore, the Queen's racing manager, said Aureole would be retired to stud next year. It has not yet been decided whether to race him again this season. Moore handles the money side of the Queen's racing interests and profits are ploughed back.

The Queen's racetrack earnings are a royal record. Previous best was that of King Edward VII in 1900. As Prince of Wales, he topped the owners' list with 29,585 pounds ($82,838) on the present rate of exchange, after taking the Epsom Derby and the St. Leger with Diamond Jubilee.

In 1942, King George VI, the Queen's father, led the owners with 10,538 pounds winning ($29,694) at present rate of exchange. Now Queen Elizabeth is striding away from her 1954 rivals. Second in the list is Maj. L. B. Holliday with 22,506 pounds ($66,968). Sir Percy Lorraine has won 20,505 pounds ($57,668) and Robert Sterling Clark of Upperville, Va., who won the Epsom Derby with Never Say Die, totals 18,654 pounds ($53,931).

Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill shares the Queen's rabid interest in horse racing. He made a special trip to Hurd Park, London suburban track, to see his 4-year-old colt, Pigeon Hole, finish fourth in the mile and a quarter Pomegranate Handicap two weeks ago.

Factory Employing In Southeast Down, According To USDL

Manufacturing employment in eight southeastern states declined again in May to a level of 1,839,000 according to Bureau of Labor Statistics in Washington, D. C. The decline was 20,700 persons at work during April as compared to a decline of 11,000 during the same period last year. The latest reduction was traceable to continuing completion of defense contracts; most markets, especially for textiles, lumber and furniture; seasonal cutbacks in fertilizer plants, vegetable mills, tobacco depositories and in Florida, the end of grapefruit processing.

Of the eight states, Virginia alone reported an increase over the April level as 1,500 persons were added to factory rolls. The increase was rather widespread, reflecting small work force additions in the textiles, apparel, food, lumber and furniture industries. Elsewhere in the Southeast, the month's decline ranged from 1,100 in Tennessee to 6,000 in North Carolina.

Compared with May 1953, there are now approximately 25,000 fewer workers in the Southeast. Four industries—transportation equipment, printing, food and paper, in the order listed—employed more people this year than last. Lower employment levels are characteristic of the remaining manufacturing industries. The textiles group reported the greatest over-the-year loss—approximately 40,000 workers—with the lumber industry reporting the next greatest decline—20,000 employees. Thus the region's two largest industries, in terms of number of persons employed, account for nearly one-fifth of the total regional decline. Compared with the national trend, the contraction in the Southeast is substantially less pronounced. Nationally, employment was down about 300,000 in May, 1954, against a 4.7 drop for the Southeast.

Southeastern factory production workers averaged 38.3 hours work week in May, a contraction of 0.2 hours from April and some two hours shorter than last year's average workweek. Florida reported the longest average workweek and the only one exceeding 40 hours. Among the other states in the region, average workweeks ranged from 37.1 hours per week in North Carolina to 36.2 hours in Virginia and 35.5 hours in Mississippi. The national average was 39.3 hours in May, an increase of 0.3 hours over April but 1.4 hours under that of May 1953. In the Southeast average hourly earnings remained unchanged for the third consecutive month at $1.32. During the past year average hourly earnings for all production workers have increased by about three cents. As a result of shortened workweeks, however, average weekly earnings have shown a tendency to decline. Although this is not the case in Florida and Virginia, where production workers earned 82 cents per week less last year; elsewhere the decline in average weekly earnings ranged from 29 cents in Mississippi to $2.53 in Georgia.

Employment in the textile industry dropped to 581,000 in May continuing a downward trend started in March, 1953. The latest regional employment level brought regional employment to a level 39,700 under that of a year ago. Among the six states with significant employment in the industry, over-the-year declines ranged from 2,000 in Alabama to 14,000 in North Carolina. Average workweek continued to indicate shortened work schedules. Alabama reported the shortest—34.6 hours, up 0.3 hour from April—while South Carolina reported the longest—38.1 hours, 0.3 hour shorter than during April. In North Carolina, with nearly two-fifths of the region's total textile employment, the workweek averaged 35.4 hours, unchanged from April but 3.3 hours shorter than that of last year. For the region as a whole, the workweek averaged 38.3 hours, relatively unchanged from April but approximately three hours shorter than last year.

Employment in lumber and wood products industry declined again in May to 224,200—some 2,500 fewer workers than were employed in April and 20,200 fewer than during May, 1953. Employment in the furniture industry declined by 1,500 over the month, largely in North Carolina, to reach a regional total of 74,500. Compared with May, 1953, the industry employed some 5,700 fewer persons this year. About one-half the loss was in North Carolina.

A sharp seasonal reduction in Florida citrus processing activities was sufficiently large to offset seasonal increases in canning and processing activities, particularly in Georgia, Tennessee and Virginia. As a result, regional employment in the food products industry remained relatively unchanged at 158,500. During the April-May period last year some 2,900 persons were added to the work force. The current employment level is approximately 1,600 above that of May, 1953. Production employees in the industry worked an average of 42.6 hours per week in May—practically unchanged since March.

Employment in the chemical industry declined by 5,500 between April and May to reach a regional total of 196,800. The decrease is normal for the period reflecting reduced activities in

New Compound, Extar, Removes Harmful Tartar From Teeth

One of the nation's leading scientists, Dr. Louis I. Grossman, professor of oral medicine, school of dentistry, University of Pennsylvania, has just revealed that the new compound, Extar, safely and easily removes tartar from teeth. Contrary to popular belief, more persons lose their teeth from tartar than any other cause.

Tartar is the most serious enemy of teeth. It not only mars their beauty, it also sets in a disastrous chain of events. Tartar causes gum irritation which results in periodontitis and loss of teeth.

After two years of testing in laboratory and clinic, Dr. Grossman has published the results of a comprehensive study in the May and June issues of the Journal of Oral Surgery, Oral Medicine and Oral Pathology.

Tartar—on calculus, as the dentist prefers to call it—is a lime-like deposit that forms on the teeth of almost all adults. It may be coloring or stained with the brown or black film in persons who are most careful about mouth cleanliness, tartar is a problem. To keep teeth free of it the dentist must scrape and grind several times a year.

This Extar preparation will free both dentist and patient from the unpleasant scraping, gouging and bleeding that accompanies tooth cleaning in the usual mechanical way.

Like other great discoveries in modern medicine, this one takes advantage of some advances in chemistry. The laboratories of the A. J. Fawcett Co. in Philadelphia developed Extar and made it available for test. Dr. Grossman added it to a list of 20 other compounds he was evaluating.

For two years these compounds were subjected to intensive testing and control. The laboratory studies were made on a tartar substitute, on actual tartar scraped from human teeth and finally, on the enamel surfaces of extracted human teeth.

Dr. Grossman says: "Of the chemicals tried in vitro which were effective in dissolving the tartar substitute and at the same time did not etch enamel, EX 347 appeared to show the greatest promise. It was quite effective in dissolving both the tartar substitute and tartar moved from teeth. On the other hand, it did not etch enamel even when extracted teeth were exposed to its action for several weeks."

fertilizer plants and vegetable oil mills. Last year the April-May contraction involved some 5,700 workers. Earlier declines in firms manufacturing equipment and machinery were contributed to by a drop over the year level of approximately 6,000 workers.

Data for the eight southeastern states were reported by state agencies in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia in cooperation with the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Steel Production Shows Big Increase

The expansion of steel capacity in this country in the past two years but the geographical center of steel-making capacity has moved only slightly south from its previous location. This indicates that the expansion in two years has been fairly well distributed over the country, American Iron and Steel Institute said today.

The geographical center in 1952 was Beaverdam in Allen County, Ohio. It is still close to Beaverdam although now about six miles south of it.

Beaverdam, with no steel mill, is a few miles northeast of Lima, Ohio, and a little more than 80 miles southwest of Toledo. The national steel-making capacity increased nearly 16 million tons from the start of 1952 to the beginning of 1954.

In 1951, the geographical center of the industry was at Mt. Cory, Ohio, 10 miles northeast of the present center.

The geographical center of the industry is figured on the basis of miles times input capacity. Thus, a small increase in capacity at a great distance from the center exerts as much influence as a large increase near the center.

Shotgun Blasts Bring Black-Out

BELLEVUE, Ohio (AP)—With many a startling to show for his efforts, James Welch, a retired railroad conductor, paid a fine of $25 and costs of $4.80 before Judge J. Allen Vickery yesterday.

It seems Welch was trying to get the starlings out of the trees in front of his home. His efforts with a shotgun violated an ordinance about shooting in the city without a permit.

What aroused the local police was the fact his blast cut through a high tension wire. This fell on two distribution wires of the city's electrical system, and the whole town of 4,000 persons was blacked out Monday night for four hours.

LOSES JOB NOW OWNS GAS WELL

SIDNEY, Neb. (AP)—Eight months ago August Jurgens, 49, was laid off his job. But Jurgens says he is certainly not for now he owns a gas well as a result.

When he couldn't find work in town Jurgens decided to try farming at which he once worked. Wanting only some land so he could "have a place to work," he swanned two houses for the land.

Nurse Lady

By ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

CHAPTER NINETEEN

IT WAS the middle of the week when the telephone conversation with Walt when Cynthia received a letter. She did not recognize the handwriting, which was neat, not too small, and had a few feminine flourishes. She could not imagine whom it could be from and found herself even more unprepared when she found that the letter was from Norman's mother.

Norman might have warned her that his mother was going to write whenever he had business to Washington again and she perhaps had not known it.

Dear Cynthia, the letter began. My son has told me so much about you that I feel I can address you by your first name. Norman has also told me some of your ideas in regard to the clinic for those dear little children. I have a few ideas of my own. So I am writing to suggest that you spend this coming week and, if convenient, with us at Pleasantridge Farms. I am looking forward more than I can possibly tell you to meeting you, Cynthia.

Yours sincerely,
ELIZABETH BRANDT

Now what was she going to do about such an invitation?

Of course she could reply with a little note regretting that this week and would not be convenient. And implying that no other week would be either.

She did not believe she wanted to meet Norman's family, visit his home, and just yet, anyway. On the other hand, she had been to the clinic, she might not refuse such an invitation.

"Of course you can't refuse it!" Rox said, when later that day Cynthia decided to take the advice of Elizabeth Brandt.

Elizabeth Brandt, she added, it would be such an opportunity had come so early. When a man's mother asks a girl to come get the once-over, it shows the situation is getting serious.

"That's exactly why I don't feel I should go," Cynthia said.

"I think it's a lovely letter," Rox said. "I don't see any reason why you shouldn't go. Cynthia, Norma spent every other week and with Alan's family. It seems to me, she added, that you never can tell what Norman better. You can tell so much more about a person when you know his family. Only last week Alan's mother said she hoped you would be invited, that Alan was marrying a girl they knew so well."

"Now, see here," Cynthia said. "This letter doesn't say that Mrs. Brandt wants to look me over as a prospective daughter-in-law. If I thought that, I wouldn't go. The only reason I thought maybe I should go is because she is my aunt."

Dillinger Spread Havoc In Period Of 14 Months

CHICAGO, (AP)—John Dillinger had been a good boy, the State Clemency Commission was told. And he was needed to care for his aging father.

Thus on a spring day in 1933, prison gates opened and Dillinger was off and running on an incredible career of crime.

He kept going for 14 months. During that time he achieved a prison break, two jail breaks, three raids on police station arsenals, at least a half dozen bank robberies and 10 violent deaths.

Three times Dillinger shot his way out of police traps.

He robbed and ran, waded and ran, fought and ran.

He sometimes was reported seen a town or two of miles apart on the same day. He became a sort of living legend.

Dillinger was paroled after a year of 10-to-15 year sentence for assault and battery with intent to rob an elderly citizen of his home town, Mooreville, a rural village in Central Indiana.

He liked out of the prison at Michigan City in May, 1933.

He was 31, a little known man of unimpressive stature. At 5 feet 7, he weighed about 150. He had thin, wavy hair and a mocking half smile.

Prohibition was ending. Profiteers in bootleg liquor were looking for a fast dollar in other fields. Dillinger looked around for and decided to pluck his fast dollar from banks.

He was arrested on a charge of bank robbery Sept. 22, 1933, at the home of a girl friend in Dayton, Ohio, and was taken to jail in Lima.

Four days later 10 convicted-prison pals of Dillinger—most out of Michigan City prison. They swept down on the Lima jail Oct. 12, killed Sheriff Jess Barber and liberated Dillinger.

The first elaborate snare for Dillinger was set up in 1934 in Chicago. A bank robbery was planned near a physician's office but Dillinger somehow jockeyed his car through the obstacle course.

The automobile was found later, its body dented and glass splintered by at least 30 bullets.

Dillinger killed Police Officer William F. O'Malley Jan. 15, 1934, during a bank robbery in East Chicago, Ind., and again took to the lam.

Ten days later police in Fresno, Ariz., picked up Dillinger, three gun pals, three women and $27,000.

He was placed in jail at Crown Point, Ind., to await trial for killing O'Malley.

On the morning of March 1, one day before the trial was to begin Dillinger sprang himself and a fellow prisoner.

When Ernest Blunk, a guard, entered the cell to obtain the fingerprints of another inmate, Dillinger drew a wooden gun and disarmed Blunk. He rounded up the other guards, locked them up and left.

The law caught up with Dillinger again March 31 in St. Paul, Minn., but he shot his way out of an apartment.

Dillinger, George (Babyface) Nelson, one of his henchmen and three girls moved into the Little Bohemia resort near Mercer, Wis. April 29. They barged in, took charge, mounted a machine gun on the roof and posted a guard.

Federal and local officers gathered outside the fortress on the

Man Has Own Little Island On Which To Escape World

RUSKIN WANTS to get away from the world, he goes to the island he made himself, pulls up the drawbridge he made himself and goes into his castle. He built it himself. Clough says that from childhood he always wanted to live in a castle but until five years ago the idea was just a dream.

He invested in 40 lots on the Little Manatee River here but when he got to the development he found two lots were nothing more than a sandbar under water at high tide. He built a dredge and pumped up enough sand to raise the level of the sandbar four feet.

Then the thought of living on an island came to him. He began digging a moat between the mainland and his sandbar.

Six months ago he wound up with an island 100 feet wide and 200 feet long, called Faraway Island from a song he once heard.

Then he built a bridge to bring timber from the mainland but too many people, trying to follow the wooden river road, became lost and ended up in his yard. So Clough got an old hydraulic hoist from a filling station and made his drawbridge with an elaborate system of pulleys, cables and gears and weights—all powered by an electric motor.

On the mainland side he has a switch lock to keep prowlers from operating the drawbridge during his absence.

For his castle, he built a living room, kitchen and workshop on the ground floor and a bedroom in a tower. Eventually he intends to have towers at each corner with the house including an open courtyard.

Now Clough lives what many city dwellers would call the life of Riley. He has a variety of food available for the taking but he does not have to depend on the fish.

He can catch all the fish he wants in the river channel, or vary the menu with crabs or oysters from a bed 30 yards away and banana trees and pineapples grow on the island. Cabbage palms produce swamp cabbage, a Florida delicacy. Vegetables grow easily in the Ruskin area—nicknamed Florida's "salad bowl."

He has an artesian well for drinking water. He jumps in the water to take a bath. The water brings a cool breeze and is warmer than any other conditions. If he wants to return to civilization he has an 18-foot cruiser and a new model roadster.

Clough, tall and wiry, first came to Florida in 1923 from Norwich, Conn. He settled down in Jacksonville and painted signs until the ## Self-Rating Scale What Is Your Driving Performance?

The Florida Highway Patrol has cooked up another little safety test for drivers, one that you can take for yourself. It is like playing a hand of solitaire—you can cheat. Yet, isn't it sort of that way in traffic, too? You be the judge: If you're a good driver your score will be from 80 to 100. If your score is 60 to 80, you're fair... If your score is below 60, your friends ought to learn the words and tune to "Lord, I'm Coming Home" to sing when they attend the funeral. For Bud, your days are numbered. Here is the second five-question test in a series of two. Score 20 for each answer given correctly.

One's driving practices determine his record of accidents and violations. The following situations are common in our driving experiences. What is your practice in each case? How many times out of a situation do you follow the right practice? Rate yourself by indicating in the parenthesis the number of times (out of every 5) that you respond correctly.

1. You are driving on a road with a legal speed limit of 50 MPH and pass a sign at town limits indicating a 30 MPH speed limit. Do you slow down? ( )
2. You are traveling at 40 MPH on a narrow, two-lane road. A driver behind you blows his horn indicating he wishes to pass. Do you give way to him? ( )
3. The legal speed limit on a Florida highway is 60 MPH. Do you drive at a lower speed at night than during daylight hours? ( )
4. When driving in heavy fog, do you put on your lower or passing beam? ( )
5. While driving at a legal speed limit of 50 MPH, you see a highway crossing ahead. Do you slow down even though you are traveling on the main highway? ( )

MODERN LAMPS

Lamps presented at a special showing in New York feature "ice cream" colors, glass, polished brass, gleaming materials and frosted effects. Ice cream shades like bottles, urns, cones, cages and tapered stems.

The "bubble" lamp gets its inspiration from the early American oil lamps. Made of plastic, it is matched with wrought iron and polished brass. Most popular color is black, followed by turquoise, "milk chocolate," soft green, blue and gold.
