Police Chief Dobson has asked me to pass on this bit of information. Summer time is here and a lot of the city residents will be going out of town on vacation.

Chief Dobson has requested any people leaving the area for a while to please call the police department and leave your name and address. This way the officers on patrol can spot check your home and be on the lookout for prowlers, burglars, etc.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. John R. Knoll of 110 Edgemoor St. who celebrated their 26th wedding anniversary on July 2. Many happy years ahead for you are wished by all of your friends.

One couple here in town are celebrating the "4th" in style. Murray and Dawn Martin of 121 Edgemoor Street held a fish fry for their neighbors and friends.

Good Neighbor Of The Week is Mrs. Betty Taylor of Hacienda Village. Mrs. Taylor's creative ability in floral arrangements is known all over Hacienda. Instead of just selfishly hoarding all that talent to herself she graciously shares it with all who ask her.

We believe the play by declarer, but rather think West came up with the defense some time after the score had been marked down.

'Shevin: Fuel Shortage is Contrived

15 Oil Companies Charged

ATTY. GEN. ROBERT SHEVIN files in Federal Court

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin today filed suit in federal court against 15 major U.S. oil companies charging them with conspiring to contrive the current fuel shortage.

The 68-page suit calls for the companies to rid themselves of all crude oil exploration and development capabilities if they stay in the retail gas business, Shevin said.

The suit is one of the biggest trust-busting attempts against oil companies since the Standard Oil Co. was broken up in the early 1900s, Assistant Atty. Gen. Dan Dearing said.

Shevin charged that major oil companies should not be able to control crude oil from the time it comes out of the ground until it is pumped at a gas station.

He said the action was prompted by the nationwide gasoline shortage. The 68-page suit, expected to be filed in U.S. District Court later today, alleges the oil companies have engaged in illegal monopoly and unreasonable restraint of interstate trade and commerce.

Named as defendants were Exxon Corp. of New Jersey; Texaco Inc. of Delaware; Gulf Oil Corp. of Pennsylvania; Mobile Oil Corp. of California; Standard Oil of Indiana; Shell Oil Co. of Delaware; Atlantic-Richfield Co. of Pennsylvania; Phillips Petroleum Co. of Delaware; Continental Oil Co. of Delaware; Sun Oil Co. of California; Cities Service of Delaware and Marathon Oil Co.

"We're not interested in the gasoline wars as supported by profits made at the crude oil level," said Dearing. "If we remove that section we can make the marketing truly competitive."

The suit is a class action on behalf of all counties, cities and school boards in the state, Shevin said.

Teenage Burglary Suspect Shot Fleeing Break-In Site

A 17-year-old burglary suspect was listed in fair condition after Florida Hospital North today after being shot in the left side by a Seminole sheriff's deputy.

Hospital officials said Jack O. Crane, 17, 225 Grandview, Altamonte Springs, is in intensive care following surgery to remove the bullet.

Sheriff John Polk said Crane was wounded by Deputy Ronald

E. Pritchard after the deputy fired three warning shots when the suspect fled from a burglarized Fern Park service station just after midnight.

Detective Jerry Capshaw said Crane has been charged with breaking and entering with intent to commit a felony.

Authorities said Pritchard was dispatched to a "burglary in progress" call from the Shamrock Service Station, O'Brien Road and U.S. 17-92, to find Crane inside the building after removing jalousies from a window. The suspect armed with a 10 inch bayonet, fled on foot when ordered to halt and Pritchard fired three warning shots in the ground and air, officials said.

Pritchard chased Crane on foot into a covered hallway separating classrooms at the Nazarene Church adjacent to the service station. There the officer fired at the suspect, wounding him in the left side just above the hip.

Capshaw said the 10 inch knife was within arms' reach of

Uganda Frees 112 American Peace Workers

By John A. Spolski

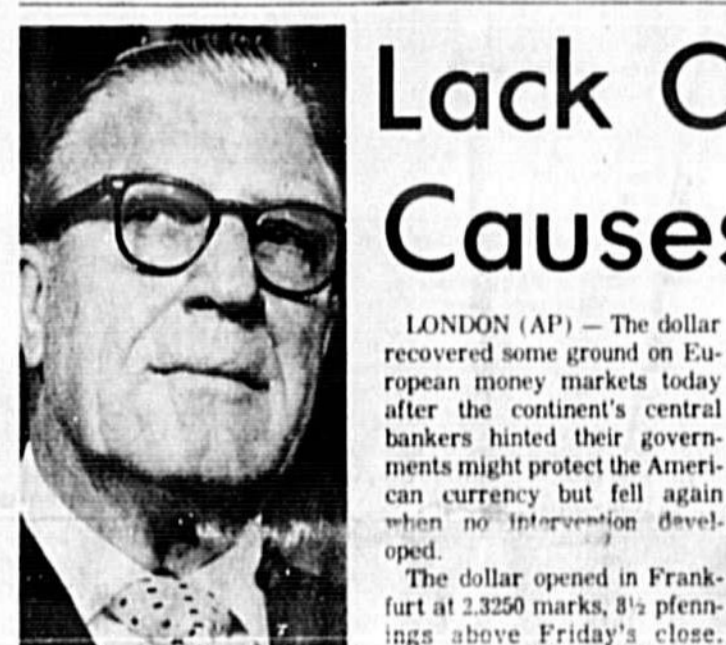

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — President Idi Amin today ordered the release of 112 Americans detained for two days in the eastern African nation of Uganda, the U.S. Embassy reported.

Amin, an unpredictable strongman at odds with Washington, had the young American volunteers taken into custody Saturday after their plane was shot down on the way to their Peace Corps posts in Africa.

The president's release order in a message to the U.S. Embassy in the Ugandan capital of Kampala.

A public turnout was expected for the occasion, with Missouri Gov. Christopher S. Bond on hand and Chief Judge William H. Becker of U.S. District Court in Kansas City administering the oath.

Turner was arrested in Frankfurt, Germany, last month at the request of British authorities. British police were investigating fraud charges in connection with the activities of Turner firms in Great Britain.

CLARENCE KELLEY...to head FBI

President To Attend Kelley Day

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon files to the swearing-in of Clarence M. Kelley as director of the FBI.

Nixon planned to speak briefly at the afternoon ceremonies at the Federal Office Building in Kelley's hometown.

It was the President's first public appearance since June 15, when he went to Perkin, Ill., for the dedication of a memorial congressional research center honoring the late Sen. Everett M. Dirksen.

A public turnout was expected for the occasion, with Missouri Gov. Christopher S. Bond on hand and Chief Judge William H. Becker of U.S. District Court in Kansas City administering the oath.

Kelley, 61, is a 20-year veteran of the FBI. He has been Kansas City police chief since 1961.

Kelley takes over from the current acting director, William D. Ruckelshaus, former head of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Lack Of Intervention Causes Dollar Rise, Fall

LONDON (AP) — The dollar recovered some ground from European money markets today after the continent's central bankers hinted their governments might protect the American currency but fell again when no intervention developed.

The dollar opened in Frankfurt at 2.250 marks, its previous level, then plunged back to 2.085-2.11 by noon, before Friday's close of 2.085-2.11.

"Everyone had expected an intervention," said a Zurich banker. "That's why the dollar shot up in the morning. It did not come, so it came down again."

The dollar also made a comeback in Paris, buying 136.40 commercial francs in bank-to-bank transactions, up from 136.39 Friday. Trading there was slow, however.

The weaker British pound slipped slightly against the dollar, to $2.555 Friday to $2.585 at the opening today. But the pound rose against the mark, Europe's strongest currency, from 5.73 marks Friday to 5.58.

Paradise Unfulfilled

Mexico Learns Red Trade Not Rosy

If it really were true, as so many Latin American analysts insist, that a nation's prosperity depends on relations with the Soviet Union and the Communist bloc, Mexico would be a paradise.

For Mexico established formal ties with the Russians almost half a century ago, in 1924, nine years before the United States. Mexico was the first of the American republics to recognize the Soviet Union.

And Mexico has maintained or established relations with the other countries as they have been taken into the Soviet orbit.

Yet, Mexico's trade with the Soviet satellites since 1960 "has been scant and irregular," and its commerce with the Soviet Union is "even smaller and fluctuations more marked," according to a recent Mexican government bank study entitled "Mexican-Soviet Trade Relations."

That is to say that Mexico's relations with the Soviet Union and its satellites is currently and always has been of negligible value.

The study, prepared by Miguel Alvarez Uriarte, was reported in the monthly publication of the Banco Nacional de Comercio Exterior, a Mexican government institution.

The foreign trade bank long has lobbied in favor of Mexican relations "with the whole world." For all practical purposes, the phrase, "our relations with the world" has come to be another way of saying Mexico should strengthen its links with Communist countries.

Mexico already is doing business with most of the important nations of the free world.

Again, in 1973, the bank study declares that Mexico cannot ignore the vast potential of Soviet demand for Mexican products." But there is a clear trend of pessimism running through the article.

Study of Mexican foreign trade statistics since 1960 shows that "exports to the Soviet Union reached their peak in 1962 and 1963, with $5.8 and $3.7 million. Subsequent shipments to the Soviet Union rarely amounted to over half a million dollars yearly."

On the other hand, "as regards imports, Mexican statistics record 1965 and 1966 as peak years, with purchases amounting to some $700,000; the average dropped to $400,000 in 1971 and 1972. Insignificant trade balances showed a deficit for Mexico in recent years, except 1971," the study said.

For the most part, Mexican exports to the Soviet Union were goods like rice, cotton, tobacco, and wearing apparel. Purchases from the Soviets included caviar, crab and other fish preserves, books, movies and phonograph records.

The bank study repeats the assertion that "political considerations have determined Mexico's lack of interest in official and private levels—in Socialist markets."

250 Years Old Smith's Economics Still Working

By JEFFREY ST. JOHN, Copy News Service

NEW YORK — "Adam Smith's political economy," observes the British writer E.G. West in "Adam Smith: The Man and His Works" (Arlington House, New Rochelle, N.Y.), "has remained for all times, and indeed in many ways the modern era has not yet caught up with it."

Nineteen Hundred Seventy-Three marks the 200th birthday of this Scotsman who gave to the world the best and most enduring blueprint for economic prosperity ever written: "The Wealth of Nations."

The revolution this work created in favor of economic freedom was as far-reaching as the American Revolution of 1776 for political freedom.

Both rebellions were against the 18th Century concept of mercantilism, which has more relevance to the type of government-managed economy we have in the West today than many realize or seem willing to acknowledge.

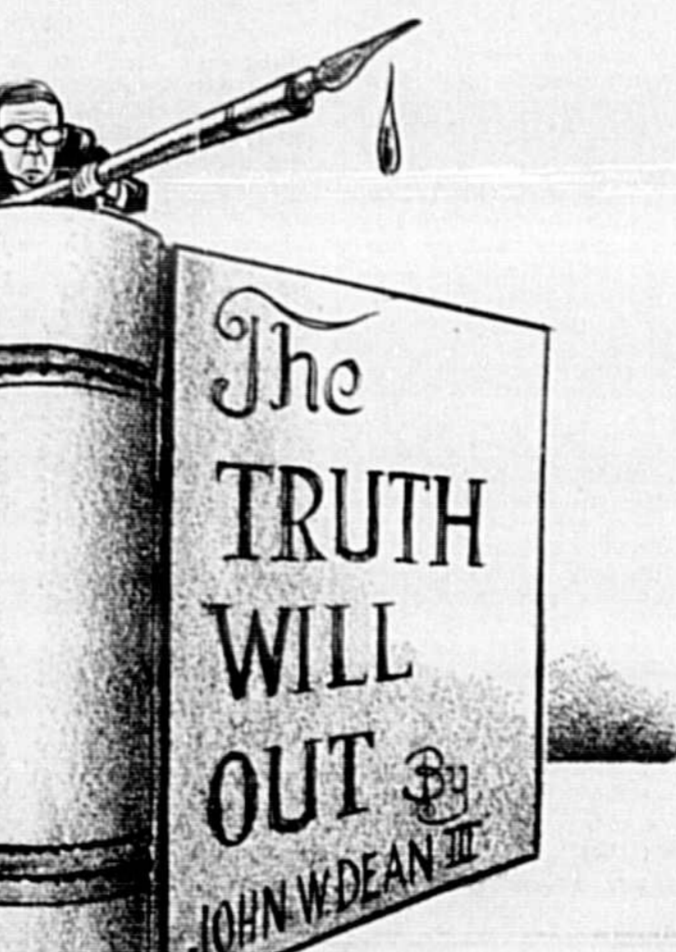

So, in this sense, the ideas of Adam Smith have not, as Dr. West indicates, caught up with the modern era. In fact, what Smith had to say about the economic structure of the 18th Century is applicable to many dubious practices of the 20th Century U.S. government-managed economy.

"It was not only the American and French revolutions," observed Dr. West in his work on Smith, "but also the revolution in commercial and economic thinking which put an end to medieval mercantilist politicians." Today we have here and in Europe the emergence of the very government controls which Smith warned would lead nations, not to wealth and prosperity, but to poverty, depression, and despotism.

President Nixon's economic program since August, 1971, is a contemporary illustration of what Smith warned against almost two centuries ago.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

By DON OAKLEY

On one occasion Moynihan was known to have remarked to a small group that "blood ran" in the basement of the White House in arguing out the pros and cons of one particularly controversial issue (involving race). In this, a more brilliant concepts were studied.

The White House under Mr. Nixon in 1969 began with an assortment of men deliberately chosen to bring out conflicting views. From Daniel P. Moynihan to Lee A. Dulridge to Donald Rumsfeld, a wide spectrum of views was represented.

In the cabinet were such individualists as Robert H. Finch, John A. Volpe, Walter J. Hickel and George Romney. The far began to fly. There was ferment at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.

But gradually the men with divergent viewpoints were weeded out or shifted to the "suburbs" and one carefully massaged line of thinking began to prevail on domestic issues. (Even John Connally faded from the picture.)

Some independents — Dr. Henry A. Kissinger and Melvin Laird for two — held their own in the foreign field. But originality and flexibility in thinking on internal problems began to die out.

It was a minor incident and no far-reaching conclusions should be drawn from the unfortunate experience of a demonstrator during a presidential visit to Pekin, Ill., the other day.

First, police and Secret Service agents made the man take his "Impound Nixon" sign off its pole, then ordered him to remove it from its plywood backing.

When he gave them an argument, they arrested him and, according to a wire service report, hustled him around a corner where an officer clamped metal keys over his mouth, jerking his head back and forcing him to his knees. Then he was handcuffed.

If it was a case of "police brutality," or just the use of somewhat more physical force than might have been necessary, it is not the first time it has happened in this country, nor anywhere else, and won't be the last. And after all, protesters have been known to be assassinated during public appearances.

Even if we grant this, however, and even if we dismiss the demonstrator as some sort of kook or a troublemaker, there was also the unpleasant sight of a policeman with a rifle shooting from the top of a nearby building. "No pictures!" What would he have done if some news photographer had taken a picture — shot the demonstrator on the spot?

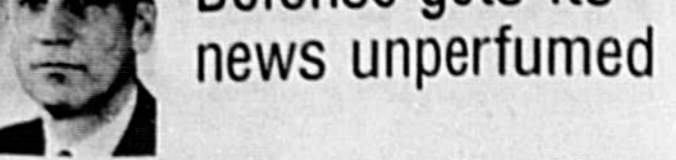

Yes, the demonstrator in Pekin may have been a kook, just as drug pushers may be "the very offshoot of humanity," as Milton J. Ambrose, a federal drug abuse official, said recently in defense of lawmen who have mistakenly broken into homes of innocent citizens and terrorized them on more than one occasion.

But we could do worse than recall a statement attributed to an anti-Nazi martyr whose name at one time was well-known in America.

"In Germany they first came for the Communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Communist. Then they came for the Jews and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I was a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me — and by that time no one was left to speak up."

For Communists or Jews or trade unionists, substitute kooks or demonstrators or "vermin" and Pastor Martin Niemöller's words strike uncomfortably close to home today.

RAY CROMLEY Defense gets its news unperfumed

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The men and women who prepare news summaries for the secretary of Defense make it a point to include all possible critical and antagonistic news reports, columns and editorials.

The reason is obvious. Officials cannot do their jobs even passing well unless they know what their critics say on them. Otherwise they live in a dream world. They begin to think themselves invulnerable.

The news clippers in the Pentagon do their job exceedingly well. The information sheets are frequently filled with more critical of the Defense Department than favorable.

Numbers of the men and women who do the selecting have worked under both Republican and Democratic administrations.

This reporter knows that with surprising regularity super critical news clippings served up to Secretaries Melvin Laird and Elliot Richardson have been expurgated out of the reports made available for President Nixon's daily reading.

There also are reports from the White House that an attempt was made about two years back to bring into the staff several objective reporters (not necessarily pro-Nixon men) to make certain that what the President read daily was not perfumed over so completely he would be left in isolated ignorance. The attempt failed, for one reason or another the men were never hired.

Leaving Watergate aside, this type of censorship on what the President learned and the paucity of viewpoints made available to him these past two years has meant that Mr. Nixon has been singularly unable to understand practical political realities in dealing with Congress, especially in working with a Congress dominated by the opposition.

As one researcher reported at a political science meeting here, "The President may have known the facts." But "Prof. Richard Johnson of Stanford put it. "Written opinions papers and 'objectified' briefings tend to filter out one vital element — the emotionality and conviction with which a given viewpoint is held by its proponents."

That Mr. Nixon has had what successes he has achieved in the legislative branch is because Congress itself has been badly divided — and because in several important fields, such as defense, the executive department concerned has been headed by some man knowledgeable in working with the Senate and House.

The White House under Mr. Nixon in 1969 began with an assortment of men deliberately chosen to bring out conflicting views. From Daniel P. Moynihan to Lee A. Dulridge to Donald Rumsfeld, a wide spectrum of views was represented.

In the cabinet were such individualists as Robert H. Finch, John A. Volpe, Walter J. Hickel and George Romney. The far began to fly. There was ferment at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.

But gradually the men with divergent viewpoints were weeded out or shifted to the "suburbs" and one carefully massaged line of thinking began to prevail on domestic issues. (Even John Connally faded from the picture.)

Some independents — Dr. Henry A. Kissinger and Melvin Laird for two — held their own in the foreign field. But originality and flexibility in thinking on internal problems began to die out.

EDITORIALS One of the seeds of a police state

BY DON OAKLEY

It was a minor incident and no far-reaching conclusions should be drawn from the unfortunate experience of a demonstrator during a presidential visit to Pekin, Ill., the other day.

First, police and Secret Service agents made the man take his "Impound Nixon" sign off its pole, then ordered him to remove it from its plywood backing.

When he gave them an argument, they arrested him and, according to a wire service report, hustled him around a corner where an officer clamped metal keys over his mouth, jerking his head back and forcing him to his knees. Then he was handcuffed.

If it was a case of "police brutality," or just the use of somewhat more physical force than might have been necessary, it is not the first time it has happened in this country, nor anywhere else, and won't be the last. And after all, protesters have been known to be assassinated during public appearances.

Even if we grant this, however, and even if we dismiss the demonstrator as some sort of kook or a troublemaker, there was also the unpleasant sight of a policeman with a rifle shooting from the top of a nearby building. "No pictures!" What would he have done if some news photographer had taken a picture — shot the demonstrator on the spot?

Yes, the demonstrator in Pekin may have been a kook, just as drug pushers may be "the very offshoot of humanity," as Milton J. Ambrose, a federal drug abuse official, said recently in defense of lawmen who have mistakenly broken into homes of innocent citizens and terrorized them on more than one occasion.

But we could do worse than recall a statement attributed to an anti-Nazi martyr whose name at one time was well-known in America.

"In Germany they first came for the Communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Communist. Then they came for the Jews and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I was a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me — and by that time no one was left to speak up."

For Communists or Jews or trade unionists, substitute kooks or demonstrators or "vermin" and Pastor Martin Niemöller's words strike uncomfortably close to home today.

Luckily, my mother and mother-in-law are not overly sensitive as are some mothers-in-law I've heard of who insist to be called ma'am, maaam or mother dear.

In general conversation, a lot of moms-in-law are referred to as "John's mother dear" or "Herby," and he is not likely to call all his friends to remark, "Do you know what SHE said to me today?"

In fact, newswriters are not the only offenders in the matter of designations. Parents-in-law can be just as obtuse. My own parents have infuriated us for years by calling us "the kids."

Gainesville '8' To 'Bug' Mitchell

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Mitchell testified here in April at a pre-trial hearing for seven members of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War and a sympathizer accused of plotting violent disruptions at the 1972 Republican National Convention.

He told the court that he knew of no efforts by the committee to Re-Elect the President, which he headed, to bug the telephones of GVAW members.

"He came down to see us, so we were going to see him," said Gainesville Eight defendant Scott Camil, Florida coordinator for the VVAW. "The FBI has been trying to find out when we're going to leave for Washington. We intend to be first in line to get seas in the boating room."

Lawyers for the Gainesville Eight contend the Nixon administration ordered the prosecution to direct attention from the Watergate break-in last summer.

Camil said the VVAW members went from front-row seats at the hearing so the television audience could see their shirts — emblazoned with a picture of a bumblebee with President Nixon's head wearing earphones.

Letters on the shirts is the slogan, "Watergate bug."

"There is nothing in the record to show me there is any illegal electronic surveillance in this case," Judge Arnow said at the conclusion of the gagging hearing.

Charges Dropped-POW Groom Bitter

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER Associated Press Writer MIAMI (AP) — A former prisoner of war who married his Army nurse Sunday said a Pentagon decision to drop charges of aiding the enemy filed against eight other POWs makes him feel "like I spent five years for nothing."

Army Staff Sgt. Harry Etmueller said his future in the Army may hinge on getting a good explanation from the Pentagon as to why the charges were dropped.

Etmueller, of Long Beach, N.J., married Army Nurse Ruth Wardell of Oregon City, Ore., in Miami with Florida Gov. Reubin Askew serving as best man.

Col. Theodore Guy, the Air Force officer who filed the charges recently against the men, gave the bride away at the wedding attended by about 40 POWs who were guests at a "Florida Says Thank You" weekend.

The Pentagon announced last week it would not prosecute the charges brought by Guy. One of the men charged had committed suicide.

"That makes me feel like I spent five years for nothing," said Etmueller, who was a prisoner for 81 months. "I'm going to Washington to find out why they were dropped. My military future depends a lot on what is done."

Etmueller said former POWs he had talked to supported Guy, who was their commander in the camp, and were unhappy that the Pentagon had decided not to prosecute.

"I don't feel the Pentagon is justified in dropping the charges. I witnessed things in that camp I did not appreciate," Etmueller said. "Everybody got the word about what to do, but there were a few who decided not to follow orders."

Marine Sgt. Larry Kavanaugh of Denver, Colo., shot himself after Guy filed the charges, and Kavanaugh's wife has threatened to file a suit over her husband's death.

A DEFENSE of the FBI should be unnecessary in view of its reputation for efficiency and integrity established over a half century under the direction of the late J. Edgar Hoover.

But Acting Director William D. Ruckelshaus has responded to speculation that the agency suffers from low moral and a lack of leadership, calling the charges "overblown and overstated."

Ruckelshaus was particularly critical of comments made by his designated permanent replacement, Clarence M. Kelley, in confirmation hearings before a Senate committee.

Kelley should keep in mind that the FBI won its peak respect during the period when it was distinguished by its efficiency, discipline and the mutual loyalty between the agency and its director.

Hypocritical Remark

Berlin Wall Destruction A Big Deal

By JOHN PINKERMAN, Editor, Copy News Service

A few days ago in the United Nations, Horst Grunert, East Germany's permanent observer at the world body, hinted that the infamous Berlin Wall might come down some day.

Big deal. What this callous man was saying was that after nearly 12 years of the most inhuman kind of mass captivity the people of East Berlin might once again freely visit relatives and friends on the more prosperous western side of the divided city.

Grunert typified the Communist philosophy that caused the Schandmauer (Wall of Shame) to be built on Aug. 13, 1961, when he answered a newsman's question about the recent shooting of an East Berliner who sought to flee to freedom on the other side of the Wall.

His response had a chilling effect on all those present. "I didn't speak with anyone who tried to leave our republic by violating the laws," he said, "so I don't know the intentions of these people. Maybe they were influenced by some of the mass media to believe that life in the so-called Western countries is more many. I hope that mass media will try their best not to influence our young and inexperienced people to violate our laws and then there will be no more incidents."

In other words, according to Grunert, the shootings will go on. And, this is the global philosophy with which we are establishing that is called a "detente."

As in most detentes with the Reds, this is a one-sided deal: Willy Brandt calls it Ostpolitik and it permits West Berliners to visit the east side of the city a total of 30 days a year.

President Nixon, too, has established a dialogue with Soviet communism and I suppose that is a good thing, but it doesn't change the Communists' cruel approach to human relations.

The East Berliner, for instance, is just as much a prisoner in his tiny enclave as he was when the Wall went up. His situation is part of a lesson that might be useful for many Americans who take freedom lightly. These people, many are my friends, often say, "Life under communism can't be too bad."

I am no flag-waving fanatic, but to those people I say, "Go to Berlin. If you don't understand the difference between our system of life and East Berlin communism after you have visited both sides of that great city, you'll never understand."

The history of The Wall tells much. There was the first crude concrete block and barbed wire barrier, plus tank traps, crude minefields and guards hiding in trees along Bernauerstrasse. There were many escape attempts, a few successful — under the Wall, across the Spree River, via trucks crashing through barriers. Many were killed, too, and an incident of Aug. 17, 1962, still is vivid in West Berliners' memory as the most striking example of Communist "detente."

Eighteen-year-old Peter Fechter on that day made a dash for freedom. He negotiated the minefield and tried to scale the 12-foot wall but was shot down by Red guards on the Soviet side of the city. Bleeding and dying, he cried out for help but the guards who had shot him ignored his pleas for over an hour as West Berliners shouted angry protests, held back from more violent action by their own "peace-keeping" police. Finally the guards dragged young Fechter away — but he had bled to death before their very eyes.

Luckily, my mother and mother-in-law are not overly sensitive as are some mothers-in-law I've heard of who insist to be called ma'am, maaam or mother dear.

A lot of people call their in-laws "hey" and they produce a third generation, at which point they call them Nana and Poppa.

Since my own mother-in-law's first girl to me was a volume titled "Planned Parenthood," I had a feeling she wouldn't relish being called Nana. I finally gathered up my courage and began calling her by her first name. Since I had always been taught to be respectful to my elders, I felt rude and incontinent for years, but she found this nomenclature preferable to hey or Mrs. Colby, my other options.

The first big issue on the Senate floor this week concerns efforts to clear a legal obstacle to building the Alaska oil pipeline. A massive general farm bill set for action on the House floor.

Other pending legislation ranges from campaign reform and minimum wages to presidential war powers. Congress also is expected to move toward final action on the regular appropriations bills to finance the government during the fiscal year that started July 1.

Senate Resumes Watergate; John Mitchell To Testify

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress is returning from an extraordinary Independence Day recess to such unfinished work as Watergate, all of the big money bills for the new fiscal year, and long-range farm legislation.

The Senate returned today and the House is due back Tuesday from a recess that began June 30. The televised Senate Watergate hearings resume Tuesday with testimony scheduled from former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

The pipeline dispute facing the Senate involves an argument over energy needs and the environment, with the plan's backers saying it would relieve the nation's shortages by tapping vast oil resources in Alaska.

Midwestern senators plan to press for an amendment to block the project, pending study and negotiations for a trans-Canada pipeline to bring Alaska oil directly to their part of the country.

Poor Ratings Challenged By TV Execs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Television executives whose stations were given poor ratings have reacted sharply to outgoing Federal Communications Commission Chairman Nicholas Johnson's evaluation of network-affiliated TV in the nation's big cities.

Johnson said the ratings were arrived at on the basis of data supplied by the broadcasters themselves. No monitoring or survey of TV guide or newspaper listings was conducted. Reports are required at the time a renewal applies for license renewal, but Johnson said the FCC makes "no inquiry whatsoever into a licensee's news, public affairs and other newsports, nonentertainment programming, no matter how badly a station had performed."

Johnson's rating came in a farwell broadcast Sunday in which he criticized the FCC for failing to set minimum standards for license renewals. He proposed a set of his own with which he rated stations in the top 50 markets.

Stations were graded for performance in a variety of categories such as public affairs, news, local programming, commercial ad concentrations and most use of funds for programming. Equal opportunity ratings were done separately. His rating system took in 144 TV stations in most categories and 147 in others, depending on information available. The broadcast listing referred only to TV stations.

The station rated as having the best record of minority employment was WTEV in Providence, R.I., and KABC in Los Angeles paid the highest pay to minority employees, Johnson said.

A short business meeting followed the festivities at which Johnson said the introduction to a 264-page study entitled, "Broadcasting in America."

Palmer Optimistic About British Open Chances

British Open over the 7,664-yard, par-72 links beside the Firth of Clyde. That score, 12 under par, stands to this day as a record for the British championship.

NFL Club Drug Use File Opens Up Pete Rozelle

By JACK MURPHY Copy News Service It would appear that Pete Rozelle has changed his mind about the matter of drug abuse in the National Football League. Yes, he is saying, there is a problem. And, yes, he has the authority to do something about it.

Pete, baby, you've come a long way since giving your deposition in the Houston Ridge lawsuit on Dec. 2, 1971. Then you seemed doubtful of your authority to obtain the drug records of the 28 teams you supervise as commissioner.

The commissioner has appointed a four-point program on the use of prescription drugs which requires each NFL team to submit: (1) An inventory of all prescription drugs in the possession or control of team physicians by July 15 and each succeeding July 15 and Jan. 15 thereafter; (2) beginning Aug. 15, each team must provide monthly reports; (3) by Aug. 1, each team must furnish details of a program which assures an adequate listing of drug bills, and (4) the NFL's director of security will conduct spot audits to assure compliance of Rozelle's program.
